3102. Are you acquainted with the Friendly Societies Act? Partly. I am not particularly acquainted with it.
3103. Do you carry on your business under the Act? Yes.
3104. Do you carry out the provisions of that Act? I do.
3105. Would you be kind enough to look at the provisions referring to Trustees, and say if it is possible to carry them out, or whether you carry them out? I do not see what you mean. I believe they are carried out, from what I see.
3106. Do all the moneys of your Order pass through the hands of the Trustees? No; only the surplus funds.
3107. If the Act says that all moneys must pass through the hands of the Trustees, do you carry that out? Decidedly not, because it is impossible.
3108. Then in that case if the law provides that it should be done — ? It is wrong—you could not possibly do it.
3109. If that is the case, do you think the Act requires amendment? Oh yes, that provision cannot be carried out; at least it could, I suppose, but it would cost a deal of time, trouble, and expense.
3110. Do you think it advisable to have a lengthy Act such as this, or a short Act laying down broad principles, on which the Societies should be formed? It is too long; a person sitting down to it would not know what was being done when he got half through.
3111. Then do you think it would be advisable, if your idea were carried out, that the Societies should make up their own details of working? I believe they do that now.
3112. But they are subject to a certain extent to this Act, which is said to override them? But I take the Act as regards the investment of funds and the appointment of Trustees; for the little details I think myself Societies should be competent to appoint officers to carry on the ordinary affairs.
3113. Then you are in favour of all the details, with the exception of the broad principles regarding contributions, &c., being left in the hands of the Societies themselves? Yes; provided the Act laid down fixed contributions and benefits, so that the contributions shall meet the benefits.
3114. Then do you think that if a new Act should provide for the financial security, and leave the details of working out to the Societies themselves, it would be sufficient? I think it would be a great benefit to the Societies.
3115. Would it be advisable to have a revising barrister or some authority outside the Lodges to examine the constitutions or by-laws—the rules under which you work? Well, I have been in Court and heard cases being tried in which the Judge got hold of the rules and said he never saw such a pack of rubbish in his life; now if they are understood like that, I think it would be advisable to have them revised by a barrister.

* NOTE (on revision) :—The District finds the sick pay for all who become District members, on paying the contributions pursuant to the rules.

Mr.
W. O. Fox.
10 Feb., 1882.

3116. As far as you are aware, do you think as at present situated the Friendly Societies as a whole are in a sound financial position? No, I do not; of course I cannot speak from absolute knowledge, but that is my opinion. As far as I know, I believe a great many of them are not.
3117. Do you know of any reason why it should be so? Yes, from the ridiculous way in which they were started, taking men in at any age and without passing the doctor.
3118. May I ask if you know of a case such as you mention in which any Friendly Society has taken members without passing the doctor? I can only speak from hearsay.
3119. Mr. Rubie.] Have you a fixed scale of weekly payments? No, each Branch settles its own rate of contributions.
3120. You are not the Secretary of a working Court? I am of the District, and of one of the Branches.
3121. What does that Branch pay per week? 12½d., and 1s. a quarter to the Superannuation Fund.
3122. Has that Superannuation money accumulated to any large amount? To something like £1,470 at the close of last year.
3123. Is that in the hands of trustees? Yes.
3124. Bearing interest? Yes.
3125. And what is that money applied for? The payment of members who become disabled through accident from following their usual occupation.
3126. That is, he gets this money as long as he lives? Yes.
3127. And when he dies he gets the funeral donation? Yes.
3128. And medicine and medical attendance? Yes, from the Branch to which he belongs.
3129. And have you found this fund sufficient to carry out this benefit? Up to the present time it has been sufficient.
3130. And what number of members have you taking benefit from it? We paid £344 16s. last year from that fund.
3131. You said that you thought that in any amendment of the present Act there should be a scale of contributions; that would of course necessitate an actuarial calculation as to the ages, &c., of the members? Yes.
3132. Are you in a position to supply the Commission with the ages of all the members belonging to your Order at their initiation? Oh yes.
3133. And you think a graduated scale would work well? It is bound to work well. I believe all Branches in the old country that have adopted it are very prosperous.
3135. Then you are of opinion that in any new Act there should be a minimum scale of contributions and benefits, so that any body of men adopting that scale would be almost certain to keep solvent? Yes, but I would not have a graduated scale of benefits as well as of contributions.
3136. Do not you think a graduated scale of payments could be made without any initiation fees? No, I think there should be something paid for initiation, because there are certain expenses attending the initiation of a member.
3137. In opening new Lodges how are the expenses borne? The expenses in Sydney are very light—the members all do the work free. All they have to pay for is the books, and if they require regalia they wait a bit until they can get it.
3138. How much would that be? If they get the set, from £4 to £5.
3139. Is it compulsory on your members to get regalia afterwards? No, it is not compulsory, but they do do it. I have never known one Branch to hurt the funds through buying regalia.
3140. Do they not take the cost out of the funds? They do, but a subscription is sometimes made up to pay for it.
3141. Are your funds kept separate for each benefit? Yes.
3142. During your experience have there been many lawsuits in your body? Not amongst the members; I do not know of one case. There was one a little time ago, but not amongst us.
3143. You have settled all disputes in your own body? Yes.
3144. And you think it would be judicious to allow it in future? Yes.
3145. Without any appeal to law? Without any appeal to law.
3146. Mr. Newland.] How many Districts are there in your Society in the Colony? One.
3147. And how many Lodges? Twenty-two, one of which is under suspension.
3148. How are the District Officers elected? Annually.
3149. At the Annual Meeting? Yes, from the representatives of the various Courts.
3150. And how many representatives attend this Annual Meeting? Two for every fifty members in a Branch.
3151. What would be the probable expense of that Annual Meeting? Well, the Branches pay their own Deputies; I do not know what they pay.
3152. How are the meetings held, in the evening or in the day? In the evening, about half-past 7.
3153. Have you any idea what is the management expense of your Society? I could not tell you per member; I made a rough calculation this week, and made it a little over 9 per cent. of the income; I could not say however that that is correct, as I have not checked it.
3154. You have included in that only the actual management expenses? That is all.
3155. In making the calculations I presume you took the management expenses of the Lodges as well as of the District? No, that is for the District alone.
3156. Then the management expenses of the Lodges would come in again? Yes.
3157. Do you know what they would be? I know the one to which I belong; I think it is about 6½ per cent.
3158. Chairman.] What Lodge is that? Court Robin Hood.
3159. Mr. Newland.] Could we accept of that Lodge as a fair sample of the rest of your Lodges? I could not say, but would be able to say if I got the returns in for last year.
3160. What does your Society pay the doctor and chemist per annum per member? 28s. at the present time.
3161. How did you arrive at the conclusion that a member joining at the age of twenty-one should pay 8d., seeing that you pay nearly 7d. for medical expenses alone? The young men are not so liable to sickness as the older members.

Mr.
W. O. Fox.
10 Feb., 1882.

3162. Do any of your Societies have quarterly levies for their members? Not that I am aware of.
3163. They have a fixed scale of contributions and no levies? Yes.
3164. You stated that a person had pointed out to you a Society that was admitting members without being examined; did you put any faith in that statement? No, I said a man was pointed out to me who it was said had been admitted without medical examination.
3165. Did you think it possible that any Society was admitting members without examination, unless they were honorary members? I do not know; a few years ago the thought struck me that some Societies were very anxious to get members for the sake of numbers.
3166. In your experience have any of the officers of your Societies misappropriated any of the Lodge funds? No, not to my own knowledge.
3167. Mr. Slade.] Does the Society you belong to very largely favour the scheme of graduated payments? I do not know; I have heard the officers of several Branches advocating it very strongly.
3168. I mean the Order as a whole, in Great Britain; what is the practice there? It is not compulsory, but the Executive Committee advocate it very strongly.
3169. There is a return before me which bears on its face the statement that the Order to which you belong expends as much as 51 per cent. of its income for management. As far as you know is that correct? No it is not.
3170. In addition to the other advantages of superannuated members, do they not receive the money without supervision; they are not subject to the usual overlooking of sick visitors? Oh no.
3171. They are at liberty to do what they like, without any supervision? Yes.
3172. Up to the time a member is superannuated he is subject to all the supervision of a member on the sick fund? Yes.
3173. What is the practice up to the time he becomes superannuated? If he is on the funds, there are certain rules he must be guided by; for instance, he must not be out after a certain hour at night, or do anything to retard his recovery.
3174. With regard to an Arbitration Committee, are you in favour of any superior Arbitration Board as a Court of Final Appeal, to prevent litigation? That might be a benefit, but it would cause a deal of time and unnecessary trouble, because the members composing the Board would not be aware of the other Societies' rules.
3175. Do you think the powers possessed by the Societies are sufficient to meet all cases? I think so.
3176. And their decisions should be made final? I think so.
3177. Mr. Gelding.] You are District Secretary of the Ancient Order of Foresters? Yes.
3178. You have stated in your evidence that the subordinate Lodges during the past year have not made returns to you? Not yet; they are not due until March 1st.
3179. Did you not as District Secretary have the power to fine all these Lodges? Yes.
3180. Did you fine them? Yes, they were fined.
3181. Have you a Widow and Orphan Fund attached to your Society? Not financially attached, although none may join it unless they belong to the Order; there is a separate Widow and Orphan Fund.
3182. Does your Society admit members at half-fees when new Lodges are opened? Yes.
3183. Is it a universal practice for new Lodges to avail themselves of that rule? I know nothing to the contrary.
3184. What is your opinion of the justice of the rule? I think it is radically wrong.
3185. What sick pay do your Lodges grant for the first twenty-six weeks? 10s. after six months' membership, and after twelve months a pound or a guinea a week.
3186. What sick pay does the District allow sick members who become District members? 15s.
3187. No matter how long they may be members of the Society? No, we have nothing to limit that.
3189. I presume your answer in reference to Societies having a graduated scale had no reference to Societies in New South Wales? One of our Societies—Court Sydney—adopts it with new members.
3190. How is it found to act in that case? There is a rule in the District giving the Societies power to fix the rate of contribution.
3191. Could you furnish the Commission with the experience of that particular Lodge on these graduated contributions, or get the Lodge to do so, for five years past? I think they have not had it for that length of time.
3192. How long have they been in existence? Since the year 1843 or 1845.
3193. You are not prepared to give us any information as to the valuableness of the sliding scale, as adopted by this Lodge? No.
3194. Is this sliding scale adopted generally by the Branches of your Order in Great Britain? I think not; it is not compulsory, unless there is a late rule to that effect.
3195. In fixing these rates, have you based your calculation on what would be a proper estimate for New South Wales, or from the estimate adopted in Great Britain? As a matter of course the contributions in the old country are never so great as 13½d. The reason I named that is that one of the Melbourne Courts belonging to the Order pays about these rates and the funds of that Lodge are in a very flourishing condition, having nearly £12 per member.
3196. I presume you have seen the English tables of sliding scales? Yes.
3197. And are you aware that to secure the same benefits as we receive here a man who was thirty years of age would have to pay 2s. 6d. a week—have you tested that question? No, I have not.
3198. I presume you are aware that in Great Britain the medical attendance is simply given to the member himself, and not to his wife and family; and hence that a medical man there is able to attend much more cheaply than here? Yes.
3199. And that naturally would lower the contribution rate? Yes.
3200. Has the Registrar ever called you to account for not sending in proper returns? No, never.
3201. Have you ever studied the question of the sickness and death rate in New South Wales, why it has been so low? No, I have not.
3202. Is it within your experience that where a population is very small the sickness and mortality is much less than in great cities? No doubt it is, but I could not say.
3203. Then supposing the present rate of contribution met present liabilities, as the country becomes more populated would not increased rates of contribution be wanted to meet the increasing amount of sickness? Possibly.
- 3204.

Mr.
W. O. Fox.

3204. When members are paid from the superannuation fund you stated that the Lodges have to supply medical benefits. Do you think that the Lodges ought to pay 7s. a quarter for a member without receiving any contributions from him? Before this fund was in existence the Lodges had a rule by which they were compelled to pay 5s. or 6s. as long as a member's illness lasted; but now they save this money, although it certainly does not seem just on the face of it. I think some provision ought to be made to meet that case.

3205. Do you not think that, considering the importance of the Friendly Societies in New South Wales at the present time, a special Departmental Branch should be instituted by the Government to conduct them and to take cognizance of all matters relating to the Societies? I hardly know, but I do not think there should be any interfering with the internal management of the Societies.

3206. I presume you are aware that ever since the present Registrar has been in office an annual return has been submitted to Parliament? I do not know whether it has or not; I believe it is a matter of importance that the Registrar should compile a proper return from the forms furnished by the Government to the Societies.

3207. Then you believe a vast improvement may be made in the form of these annual returns? Yes, I believe the Branch Lodges should be responsible to their officers and those officers responsible to the Registrar for the correctness of the returns.

3208. Then in order to carry out these things efficiently do you not think a Registrar should be specially appointed to superintend these affairs? Yes, I think it would be a benefit.

3209. And do you not think, considering the importance of Friendly Societies, that their rules should be registered free of charge? Yes.

3210. How much have you paid during the past year for registration fees? I could not say for the Branches. I believe about three Branches have been formed.

3211. Each of your Lodges has separate rules for its local government? Yes.

3212. Do you certify them? No.

3213. You know nothing of them then? I generally have a copy.

3214. Do you not certify that they are in conformity with the general rules? No.

3215. How do you know that they are in conformity? I take it that that is part of the Registrar's duty.

3216. Has the Registrar never refused to certify by-laws without your signature? No, I am not aware that he has ever done anything of the sort for any Society.

3217. Mr. Abigail.] How are the returns sent in from your Subordinate Lodges—to you or to the Registrar direct? Well, I am not responsible. Sometimes they come to me, but they should go direct from the Secretaries to the Registrar.

3218. When they come to you what do you do with them? Simply put a cover on and forward them to the Registrar.

3219. You have seen some of them, I suppose? Yes.

3220. Do you find them as a rule correct in the various particulars? Well the balances generally tally, but I could not state whether they are right or wrong.

3221. Would you favour one central person receiving these returns and being held responsible for their correctness? Yes, I believe they should come to the District Officers.

3222. You have in funds something like £8,870 for 1,480 members; that is representing sick allowance and all benefits? That is the total amount of the funds.

3223. Is that amount available for all the benefits of all the members represented in that 1,480? Yes, if they comply with the rules.

3224. Is that amount in the hands of the District? No, of trustees; the Branches have of course their own funds.

3225. This amount represents the accumulated funds of all the Branches; is that so? Yes, that is something over £6,000.

3226. Then if one Lodge fails to meet its liabilities, can it go on the next Lodge? No.

3227. Then this money is not available for all the members? Only just so far as it belongs to the various Branches; some Lodges are stronger than others.

3228. What I want to ascertain is, whether the funds of a prosperous Lodge are available for sick benefits for a Lodge with poor funds? Most decidedly not.

3229. Have some of your Lodges seceded? Yes, two have seceded during the last three years.

3230. Were their funds low or flourishing? One was very flourishing—the one in Parramatta.

3231. They took their funds with them? Yes, their own funds.

3232. Have you known any injury result to any of the Lodges by the Treasurer paying the various amounts instead of the trustees? No.

3233. Do you attach much importance to the trustees paying the amounts instead of the Treasurer? No, I think not.

3234. Do you take bonds from all your Treasurers? Yes.

3235. Would you favour an annual audit by a public officer of the accounts of the various Societies? Well, I do not know whether that would come in the category of the Registrar's duties.

3236. But would you favour it? Yes, I think it would be a very good thing.

3237. You would favour a penalty for not sending in correct returns? Oh yes.

3238. You attach some importance to them? Yes, without being correct they are of no value whatever.

3239. Are the Lodges under your control making a fair advance in the accumulation of funds? Yes, I think so.

3240. Have you worked out in any way what you consider the accumulation of liabilities? No, I have not—it is a very hard thing to work out.

3241. Supposing a Lodge is flourishing, having about 180 or 190 members, and that it should meet all its liabilities for the year, and add (say) £100 to its funds, do you think that would be sufficient to meet all accumulated liability? I think it is very good where a Society has been established a generation and has a good fund at its back. I think it is perfectly solvent. Some of them have been established over thirty years and have over a thousand pounds; I think that is very good.

3242. Could you state how many members have been suspended or expelled during the last five years? I could not tell.

3243. I understood you to say that you know of no cases in which the funds have been misappropriated? I know of no case.

3244. Mr. Holdsworth.] You stated your members to be 1,480, and the deaths 20 during the past year; that is just equal to about fourteen in the thousand; was that exceptional as far as the death rate is concerned? Yes, during the last two years it was the heaviest amount we ever paid.

3245. Mr. Gelding.] What has been the cause of the exceptionally heavy rate? I do not know, it is not the aged members.

3246. Mr. Abigail.] Out of the 290 admitted during last year, are a large proportion young members? Yes.

3247. Mr. Langley.] May I ask if, in your experience, you have found that there is a larger outlay for sick benefits and medical attendance for members between thirty-five and forty-five than between twenty-five and thirty-five? No, my opinion is that a man is not set well until he is twenty-five.

3248. Do you find you pay more for medicine and medical attendance for members between thirty-five and forty-five than for those between twenty-five and thirty-five? I could not tell, but I could get the information, but I know that during the last two years the deaths have not been those of the old members.

3249. President.] Have you any suggestions to offer to the Commission before you leave? No, nothing beyond what I have already said.

The Commission then adjourned until Tuesday, 14 February.

TUESDAY, 14 FEBRUARY, 1882.

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
E. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,

JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. John Hampton sworn and examined:—

3250. President.] What Society do you represent? The Royal Foresters.

3251. What office do you hold? District Secretary.

3252. How long have you held the office? Fifteen years on and off.

3253. Have you held any other office? Treasurer.

3254. How long? Only one year.

3255. Before or since? Before.

3256. Then you have acquired a large knowledge and experience of the working of Friendly Societies? With my own Society.

3257. What number of members have you? 1,400.

3258. What is the total amount of reserve funds? I cannot tell what belongs to the different Branches—of this I have no knowledge, because each Branch is separate to itself; but the amount of funds and property in cash belonging to the district of which I am Secretary amounts to nearly £9,000.

3259. That does not include any of the moneys in the private Lodges? Certainly not.

3260. How is that sum invested? At the last balance in December there was cash in the Savings' Bank to the amount of £1,193 13s. 11d.; in the Treasurer's hands, £132 17s. 7d.; that was belonging to one fund. Then we have recently started a Widow and Orphan Fund, in which we have £165 16s. 10d., having just started it two years.

3261. And how do you make up the balance of the £9,000? There is the land and buildings; the land is valued by Richardson & Wrench at £7,500, and the stock in hand and property amounts to £120.

3262. Where is the property? In Castlercagh-street.

3263. And is this fund available for the subordinate Lodges? For every one of them in case of deaths.

3264. For deaths only? We have one or two members we have to pay sick pay to.

3265. And what do your subordinate Lodges contribute to this general fund? 2s. a quarter for each financial member.

3266. Have they to pay any other contributions besides that? Yes; they have to contribute towards those members I have referred to who have received this pay, sometimes as high as 3d. or 4d. a year. Once a year I make a levy to pay these members who are those who have fallen out of Courts that have broken up.

3267. This 8s. a year is the contribution towards the Funeral Fund? Yes.

3268. Do you know the total amount paid for medical attendance and medicine? They average 5s. 6d. and 6s. a quarter. I do not know the total amount.

3269. Could you tell me what was paid during the previous year? No.

3270. Could you tell me the amount paid on account of sick pay? I could not. Mr. Oliver has a return of this; he has them all in for last year; I am only Secretary as far as the funerals go.

3271. What number of deaths were there last year? The amount paid on nine deaths of women and nine men was £360 3s. 7d. In the previous year we had a much higher rate; we had sixteen women and fourteen men, the total paid being £573 10s. 6d.

3272. What number of members were initiated during last year? I can tell you the number we had clear at the end of the year. At the close of 1880 we had 1,308, and at the close of 1881 we had 1,400 members; there was a clear increase of ninety-two members.

3273. How long has your Society been in existence in this Colony? I know it was registered first in about 1864, but it had been in existence ten or twelve years then.

3274. What is the largest number of members you have had at any time? This is the largest number; at the close of 1879 we had only 1,200 members.

3275. I suppose you have paid a good deal of attention to the Friendly Societies Act? No, not much.

3276. As District Secretary you have had to make up the returns? Only my own returns; the subordinate Lodges send in their own returns.

- Mr. J. Hampton. 3277. Are the moneys that have accrued invested in the hands of trustees? Yes.
3278. For the Funeral Fund? For the Funeral Fund that is.
- 14 Feb., 1882. 3279. Have you experienced any inconvenience in carrying out your duties, or any defect in the Act? Not the least.
3280. Do you think the Act affords sufficient protection to the members of the different Friendly Societies? I have never found any complaint against it.
3281. Have you ever had any subordinate Lodge in connection with your District in such a position as not to pay its demands to the members? Yes.
3282. How long ago? The last occasion was about three years ago.
3283. What was the nature of the circumstances? Badly looked after by the officers.
3284. And was it dissolved? So far that all the members in the Court getting defunct are allowed to belong to other Lodges and throw their clearances into that.
3285. Then the Lodge became defunct? The Lodge became defunct and were drafted into other Lodges; the sick members came upon the District.
3286. Do you know of your own knowledge the particulars that brought about the dissolution of the Lodge? Merely the neglect of the officers in keeping the members together.
3287. What is the amount of contributions paid? A shilling a week, and a shilling a quarter—the shilling a quarter being for funeral money.
3288. Have you a uniform contribution? No; if the members find the funds decreasing, the rules allow them to increase it.
3289. There is a discretionary power then? Yes.
3290. The initiation fees, are they of a similar character? Oh yes, they are fixed by the District; they have been broken on several occasions by resolution.
3291. But are they fixed by the District as a uniform scale? Yes.
3292. No subordinate Lodge can alter them? No, except on the opening of new Branches; though country Lodges have been allowed the privilege of taking them in at less than the fees set down here.
3293. Have you found this uniform scale to work satisfactorily? Yes, it is according to age.
3294. Do you approve of a uniform scale of contributions? Oh certainly.
3295. And you approve of that system? Yes.
3296. Your District Lodge does not issue by-laws to every Lodge? Every one of them—they are formed by a Committee for each Branch.
3297. Then you have a uniform code of rules? Yes, a uniform code of rules. We have altogether twenty-two Branches—twenty-one in this Colony, and one in Brisbane; and we have the same rules for each of the Branches issued by the Supreme Lodge.
3298. And that is found to work well? Found to work well.
3300. Then you know of no case in which the Act has been found to be defective? Not in any case; the Registrar objected to one rule very lately, but I found he had registered eighteen Branches with these rules; that was in reference to summoning members who have left their arrears behind them. He objected to register these rules. According to these rules, as they are here, it is enacted that "Any member being in arrears, either for contributions, fines, or property (and not paying the same within twelve months after having been suspended by his Branch), the Trustees shall take legal proceedings against him for the recovery of the amount due up to date of suspension."
3301. Do you approve of this power being vested in the officers? Most certainly, we need a certain liability for every member; we have to pay for doctors and medicine during the quarter, and we have to pay the levy for funerals. I think it would be unjust to disallow it, just for the quarter though.
3302. How do you deal with disputes? The member aggrieved can bring the matter before his own Branch, and then before the District—their decision being final.
3303. You have no Board of Arbitration? It is put, first of all, before a Committee, which we call the Committee of Control, and they report to the Districts.
3304. Then you do not go to the Courts to settle disputes? No, we settle all our own disputes.
3305. Mr. Abigail.] I understood you to say that you could not say anything as to the working of the subordinate Lodges, as to the details? Oh, I belong to a subordinate Lodge.
3306. Can you give information as to the working of any number of subordinate Lodges under your jurisdiction? If I knew what you meant I could answer you.
3307. Are you in a position to say if in any of the Lodges the funds have been misappropriated by any of the officers? I do not think they ever have.
3308. Neither Trustees nor Treasurers? No.
3309. Do not the returns from subordinate Lodges come to you? They have lately; previous to that they have been sent to me, and I have sent them to Mr. Oliver.
3310. And when they fail to send any returns do you punish them? The law says they shall be punished, but they never have been.
3311. Could you tell me how many Lodges have made default in sending in returns? Last year not one, but some of them did not come in until December.
3312. In 1879? They did not get them till as late as November.
3313. Mr. Oliver states that eight made default in 1879? He simply states what is wrong.
3314. Are the returns when sent in substantially correct? Yes, I make them so, or have them made so, before sending them to Mr. Oliver.
3315. Are you called upon to make many corrections? Sometimes.
3316. Are they audited? Yes.
3317. And yet you find them incorrect? Yes, sometimes.
3318. Do you think it would be well to have a Government Audit? I should have no objection; my opinion is that the fault lies in the want of efficient officers.
3319. You are in favour of a uniform contribution? I am.
3320. That is for a man at eighteen to pay the same as a man at forty? Just the same, because he gets the same amount.
3321. Does the Society incur the same liabilities? Except in the death of the wife.
3322. Do you find the sickness in connection with your Courts as much with the younger members as the aged? More so as a rule.
- 3323.

Mr.
J. Hampton.
14 Feb., 1882.

3323. This £9,000 you have in hand as a District Fund, that is only available for the deaths of these 1,400 members? And of their wives.

3324. In the case of any Lodge seceding or breaking up, is it possible for any of the members to suffer the loss of the benefits they have paid for? If they secede they lose all their benefits; but if a Branch breaks up we take care of them.

3325. Have you had any Courts secede? Yes, one.

3326. Was it a prosperous one? It was, and is.

3327. They took their funds with them? They did not properly secede—they were suspended; they did not get back any sum they had paid to the District.

3328. In any case where a Lodge falls through for want of funds, can its members fail? No, in no case whatever; they have the privilege of electing which Branch they think proper, and that Branch must take them in.

3329. Who pays the moneys in connection with your Courts to the sick members or doctors? There are men appointed.

3330. What are their titles? Woodward's; the Treasurer pays it to them.

3331. You have Trustees? Yes.

3332. They do not pay? No.

3333. Are you aware that the Act makes provision for the Trustees to pay all these amounts? It may be there, but I do not know it.

3334. Do you take bonds from these men who disburse the funds? Sometimes, if we can get them.

3335. Have you known any case where any wrong has been done by misusing this fund by these parties? I wish to recall one word. I know that one of the Secretaries had been receiving moneys which he never paid in; he had received money on behalf of country members which he kept to his own use, and he was expelled.

3336. Were the police employed? No, he was let off, as he had thirteen children, and the Court thought expulsion was a sufficient penalty.

3337. That is the only case you know of? No others.

3338. Have you had any inconvenience from these parties disbursing the moneys? No.

3339. Do you know of any case where members have paid contributions and not had them entered on the pence card? No, except in this case, and in it the money was sometimes sent by post office order, or the member met the Secretary in the street.

3340. And in this case he lost that? Yes.

3341. What is your opinion as to the general prosperity of your Courts? Some of them are doing very well, and some are in a very poor state.

3342. Can you give us the money per head per member of any of those that are in a poor state? Not just now, I could not; I should say there were half a dozen not very rich in funds out of the twenty-two.

3343. You could do that in a return and give the names? I could for last year, not for this.

3344. Mr. Holdsworth.] In 1880 I think you said there were sixteen wives died? Yes.

3345. Have you any idea what the proportion of married people is in your Order? About three-quarters I should think.

3346. You have not a large proportion of young members then? No, not now.

3347. That I take to be a very exceptional rate? Yes, it was.

3348. You say you have some Lodges in a poor state; is there any special reason for this? Yes, old members, when they get too old to work, go on the sick funds, and I have known there to be two or three all the time, who receive a guinea a week for twenty-six weeks and then reduced pay.

3349. Have you given any consideration to the question of superannuating old members? Yes, I intend to bring it forward this year.

3350. You are in favour of it? Yes, I am determined to have it carried if possible.

3351. Mr. Langley.] What is your opinion as to the advisability of sending in the returns separately from the subordinate Lodges to the Registrar; do you think it would be better to have the whole of them go through the central body? Yes, but the Branches being separate, I think it is advisable they should send in a separate return; but if you could get them in in proper time, it is only right that the Corresponding Secretary should make a collective return from these.

3352. If the law compels each Court to separately register their by-laws, and those by-laws and constitution are all the same, do you not think it a waste of time and money? Well, I think so, because we worked well enough without that—the District used to register the old laws, and all acted by them.

3353. And you think it would be better to have one registration only? Yes.

3354. And one set of returns sent in? Yes.

3355. Would you be in favour of having these returns properly tested? Yes, but the difficulty is to get them tested.

3356. But the laws of your Society say it shall be done? Yes, but the Secretaries in some cases have not the ability to do it.

3357. If the law compels this separate registration and separate returns, you think in that it requires amendment? Yes.

3358. Mr. Rubie.] You hold land to the value of £7,000; is that part of the gross total of £9,000? Yes.

3359. Has that been accumulated by the pence of the members, or is it simply the increased value of the land? Partly each.

3360. How much of the £9,000 has been put to the reserve fund by the increased value of the land? I think the property has cost us altogether about £2,500.

3361. So you have a profit of £5,000? We have a profit of £5,000; I may say the first year I was appointed Secretary we had only about £94 in funds altogether; we have now got in actual funds without this property nearly £1,500 in actual cash, besides the £2,500 the property has cost.

3362. You said you were in favour of a uniform rate of payments and a sliding scale of initiation fees; have you ever paid any attention to the fact that in the old country Societies are working with a sliding scale of payments? I have heard so.

3363. How do you think it would work here? I do not believe in it.

- Mr. J. Hampton. 3364. Considering the immense amount at stake, do you think it would be judicious for the Government to have a Department specially to take cognizance of these Societies? It might be.
- 14 Feb., 1882. 3365. Would it not keep them within bounds? In a measure.
3366. The mode of arbitration, if I understand you aright, is simply if a member has a complaint he refers it ———? To his own Branch first, and if dissatisfied with that he can bring it before this Committee, and then it is referred to the District, and that is final.
3367. Would you be in favour of a Court of Arbitration formed of delegates from the various Friendly Societies? I would rather that every dispute should be decided within its own constitution.
3368. Mr. Newland.] I see in the balance sheet here there is an item of £34 13s. paid for sick pay; how does that appear in the District accounts? I explained to the Chairman just now—that where a Court ceased to exist for want of funds the members were placed on the District.
3369. What are the payments in your Branches? A shilling a week and a shilling a quarter.
3370. And do you find that sufficient to pay all expenses and have a reserve fund? No, most decidedly; but we have power to raise it by the Constitution.
3371. Mr. Slade.] When did I understand you to say Richardson & Wrench made this valuation? At the end of last year.
3372. In your balance sheet for 1880 the same land is valued at £3,000? That was our own valuation; in fact prior to that being made out we had been offered £4,000 for it, and we put the amount down at £1,000 less than we had been offered.
3373. You made a remark that you seldom had any misappropriation of your funds—was that man H—— belonging to your Order? Yes.
3374. How was that settled? You cannot say the funds belonged to the Society; they were not received on behalf of the sick and funeral fees.
3375. Do you keep your funds separate in your Courts? There is no distinction; it is all put into one fund except the Widow and Orphan Fund.
3376. And from that is any stated quota taken for management expenses, or do you pay them out of the general fund without distinction? Out of the general fund without distinction.
3377. Are you aware that the Act says you shall keep them separate? Mr. Oliver never told me it was positive, but asked me the question as you have done, and I gave him the same answer.
3378. Does your experience dictate the necessity of keeping them separate? I do not see under our present working how we could do it.
3379. In your connection with your Society under the administration of the Act, do you see any very glaring shortcomings in the measure? No, I have heard no complaint whatever.
3380. Is it, as far as your practice extends, a satisfactory and useful Act? It is.
3381. You see no reason to have it amended? No, except as I have before stated.
3382. Mr. Gelding.] Are you the only District Secretary connected with the Royal Foresters? At present. We are elected annually.
3383. Then this 2s. levy that is paid in to you covers the management expenses, the expenses connected with the Funeral Fund and the Orphan Fund? Yes, except the Widow and Orphan Fund; that is a penny a week, but is not compulsory on old members.
3384. I understand you that the present great average per head per member chiefly arises from the increased value of the property you hold at the present time? Partly, not wholly.
3385. You have a property valued at £7,500, and your assets amount to £9,000 altogether; this is virtually £1,500 in cash; the property has run up from £4,000 to £7,000, is it not so? Yes.
3386. Then were it not for this greatly increased value of the property your funds would show considerably less than they do? No doubt of it.
3387. It is not the members' contributions that keep the funds at the present state? Well, the surplus funds have risen from £94 to £5,000 without any increase in value of property.
3388. About these old men in the six Lodges which you say are very poor in funds, could you tell us how long they have belonged to your Order? Some of them from twenty to thirty years.
3389. And you think, considering the time they have been in your Order, they should be paid out of a superannuation fund of 7s. a week? You must understand that from the beginning of a member joining the Society, part of his subscriptions have been expended on himself and his family.
3390. Then a member after paying in for twenty or thirty years, when he requires this full amount of benefit should be paid out of the superannuation fund? I stated to Mr. Holdsworth that these men who were complained of are not sick men but healthy men, who have got too old for work, and they go to the doctor and he puts them on the funds.
3391. Do you not think if the sliding scale were adopted with the Societies here, as in the old country, it would tend much to do away with this superannuating old members who had belonged to the Societies for many years? I do not think you would get elderly members or men of middle age to join at all.
3392. Have you ever given the subject any material study? We have had it discussed amongst us.
3393. Are you aware that in Great Britain the Societies that have it are successful? I am not sure of it.
3394. There is no Society in New South Wales that carries it on, is there? I do not know that there is.
3395. I see that you have the privilege of admitting members up to forty years of age? Yes.
3396. Do you believe it is judicious on the part of any Society to admit members at that age for such a sum? It is very seldom they come in as high as forty, but I have found that they have been as good members and have remained as long as those who have joined at a less age.
3397. Have you examined the Friendly Societies Act? I have read it through simply.
3398. Do you not think, considering the importance of Friendly Societies and the amount at stake, the Government should certify to the rules free of cost? I am of opinion that the expenses have no right to be charged, and that if the Government give help to any one it should be to Friendly Societies.
3399. Do you not think, in the event of the Government appointing a qualified person to attend to the Friendly Societies, he should thoroughly examine both the Supreme Branch and District laws before they were passed by him? Certainly.
3400. I presume Mr. Oliver's objection to your wanting to summon members has only taken place lately? It was last November, but he has given way on certain conditions, which were to the effect that all the prior rules had been complied with.

3401. Is it your opinion that arbitration between members and Societies should be submitted to a Board outside of the Society itself? I have answered that already in the negative.

3402. Then you believe it is quite possible for the Societies to find men who would arbitrate between members and the Society in what might be termed a fearless way, and in conformity with natural justice? Yes; I consider it would be best to do it amongst ourselves.

3403. Are you under any other government besides your own District here? No.

3404. The government of the Society is solely in the hands of the Executive in Sydney? Yes.

3405. What salary does the Secretary get? I get £1 for each Court.

3406. Is the Treasurer paid? Four pounds a year.

3407. I presume they are the only paid officers? No, we pay the outside guardian and property-keeper, and the auditors.

3408. Mr. Smith.] I wish to know from you if you think the amount of rates paid is ample to meet all requirements, taking all the circumstances of the Society into consideration? I have already answered that under favourable circumstances it is sufficient; it is only in exceptional circumstances that it is not sufficient.

3409. And these exceptional circumstances are simply with Courts that exist in the country? No more there than in the town; I find that men take upon themselves this going on the funds more in town than in the country.

3410. Have you a large percentage of old members in connection with your Order? Not particularly so; I dare say there is 10 per cent. old members, from fifty to seventy.

3411. President.] Have you anything further to suggest to the Commission beyond your evidence? No; I can only reiterate my statement and experience that the Friendly Societies would progress much more favourably if we could get efficient officers. It is the fault of the internal arrangement of the Societies themselves; the simple duty of making an annual return, you cannot put it into their heads what they have to do.

3412. Any further information you can supplement your evidence with we should be glad to have? I do not think the expenses of management of the Royal Foresters exceeds 12½ per cent.; I could to a very great extent give it you for last year.

3413. Mr. Gelding.] What is the cost of opening one of your Courts? Very little; nothing in the Sydney District except 10s. 6d. for the dispensation, and the country expense is simply that of the party travelling to open the Lodge. We opened a Lodge last year at Richmond River, and the whole cost was £10 7s. 6d.

3414. Mr. Rubie.] Are these old men you speak of very old, and would they only get sick pay for six months? So much for six months, and then a reduced rate of pay; but they had at a previous time taken a like benefit.

3415. How often would you permit a man to come on your funds? He must be twelve months off before he can come on again on full pay.

The Committee then adjourned until Friday, February 17.

FRIDAY, 17 FEBRUARY, 1882.

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,

E. GREVILLE, Esq.,

P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,

JOHN SLADE, Esq.,

J. F. SMITH, Esq.,

F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,

P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,

E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. John Mitchell was sworn and examined:—

3416. President.] What Society are you connected with? The United Ancient Order of Druids, Sydney District.

3417. What office do you hold? District Grand Secretary.

3418. How long have you held that office? Eight years.

3419. Have you previously been connected with any other Society? Never.

3420. That is the only Friendly Society that you have any knowledge of the workings of? Yes.

3421. Have you held any other office in connection with the Druids? I have been through the Chairs in subordinate Lodge; I have filled the several offices which qualify me for taking office in Grand Lodge.

3422. What number of members have you in the District? We have 1,673.

3423. Is that the whole number of members in connection with your Branch of the Order? With the Sydney District; we have a District in Newcastle.

3424. Do you know the number of members in the Newcastle District? I could not say from memory, I should say there were about 700.

3425. How many Districts have you in the Colony? Two, Sydney and Newcastle.

3426. Have you any Grand Lodge? We have a Grand Lodge in Victoria.

3427. Not in New South Wales? Not in New South Wales.

3428. What is the total amount of accumulated funds in the Sydney District? £3,771 2s. 3d.

3429. Can you tell the amount at Newcastle? I could not tell, but could let you know in the course of a couple of days; it would not be out of the way if you sent to Newcastle for the Secretary there; he could give you anything you wish to know.

3430. What is the total amount of contributions received in the Sydney District during last year—does that return show? It is only a return of the list of subordinate Lodges, place of meeting, and the funds, which each Lodge sends us every quarter when they make up their balance-sheets; one is sent to me and one is kept for the Lodge. This is only a copy of what they sent up to me. These balance-sheets I have all classed together, and it has only been done during the last two or three years, because we wanted in the District to know how they were going on.

Mr.
J. Hampton.
14 Feb., 1882.

Mr.
J. Mitchell.
17 Feb., 1882.

- Mr. J. Mitchell.
17 Feb., 1882.
3431. You cannot tell us to-day? Not to-day, but I could get it.
3432. Will you kindly do that? Yes; I have the returns sent in now, asking for the information.
3433. Can you tell the amount of money paid on account of sick pay for all the members in your District? Not to-day; it would be easy to do had I had any idea what was required.
3434. Then you cannot say what has been paid on account of medical attendance and medicines? I could not say from memory.
3435. Have you found any difficulty in carrying out the duties of your office as District Secretary, or any defect existing in the present Friendly Societies Act? No; the only defect I see is, that I am sorry to say that any member has the power to bring another member before the Court and put him in gaol without consulting his superior officers.
3436. You think that is improper? Yes, because a man may have some animosity against another, who may leave the Society and be liable to be brought up before the Magistrates. I think the Act should specify that if members are to be brought before the Court, the Secretary should be compelled to lay the case before his superior officers and ask their opinion whether it is justice to do so; they might inquire into the position of the individual, and let him go if he found it was not fair to him.
3437. You have experienced no difficulty or inconvenience? Not in any form.
3438. How do the Societies make out the returns for the Registrar—do they send them to you or direct to the Registrar? There is no fixed rule; some send them to me, and I forward them on, but the majority send them on direct. Most of the Secretaries know Mr. Oliver very well, and know his ways.
3439. Do not your rules provide that they should be sent to you? It says—"he shall send to the D. G. S. all returns required by the Friendly Societies Act."
3440. You say that provision in your by-laws is not obeyed? Many of them make out the returns and send them on to the Registrar; some of them send them to me.
3441. Are the contributions to subordinate Lodges uniform? Yes, all the same.
3442. Have the subordinate Lodges power to alter their contributions? I never knew any of them to alter them, though they have the power to do so, but not to make them less than a shilling. We pay 13d. a week right through the Sydney District.
3443. With regard to initiation fees, are they uniform? There is a scale, so much according to age.
3444. Do the subordinate Lodges adopt the one scale for all the Lodges? Yes.
3445. It settling matters of dispute that may arise between members and Lodges, how are they dealt with? Exactly the same as laid down in the Friendly Societies Act.
3446. And how have you found that work? We have had very little to do with it; our people as a rule have been pretty amicable, and we have had no disputes.
3447. Have any of your members at any time had cause to go to the Law Courts to settle matters of dispute between private Lodges and themselves? Not that I am aware of.
3448. And how have your Lodges been able to meet their engagements during the number of years you have been District Secretary? We have never had to assist them in any shape or form.
3449. Their income has always been equal to the expenditure? Yes, though some of them have got very low down.
3450. Have there been any Lodges dissolved on account of want of funds? No.
3451. Does the District Lodge assist the subordinate Lodges with the accumulated funds when they have any case of necessity? We have never had any case arise.
3452. Does the amount of funds given in your balance-sheet include the whole value of the funds of the twenty-one Lodges? That is the twenty-one Lodges and the District together; we have a stock of £160, that belongs to the District.
3453. That is the total value of the funds of the Lodges? And the District. We have £1,139 11s. 3d. included in the amount already stated—£3,771 2s. 3d.
3454. You cannot tell us how much has been paid on account of funeral donations during the last year? During the last six months we paid £175.
3455. Is there anything in connection with the Act that you think would require alteration or amendment, from your experience as an old officer? Not so far as I know; from my experience we work the Society in the most simple manner possible, and the laws seem to suit us very well. I have read the Act through a few times, and there is nothing that I see, so far as we are concerned, that we wish to have any alteration in.
3456. You have no suggestions to make in the shape of alterations or amendments that you would like to see embodied in any future legislation? No, not particularly.
3457. How is your Funeral Fund arranged—is it separate in each Lodge, or is it a general Funeral Fund? Our District pays all the Funeral Fund; the Lodges get a bill, so much per quarter, to support the Funeral Fund; the Grand Lodge meets every half-year, and a statement is made, and the levy is fixed at that time. What we have paid the last two or three years is 1s. 6d. per member per quarter, and 6d. per member for the Management Fund.
3458. That is 2s. a quarter for each member? Yes, for each financial member.
3459. And are you of opinion that the contributions levied at the present time by your subordinate Lodges are sufficient for all purposes to meet your financial obligations? Well, I can only say yes, because we never had a Lodge that was not able to pay. It is sufficient if a Lodge is worked with proper economy. As far as we are concerned, all our Lodges have prospered; some of them are down in funds, some are one quarter down and another up, on account of having men who get sick when the Lodge funds are flourishing.
3460. What is the youngest age at which you admit members to your Order? Fourteen.
3461. And the oldest? Thirty-nine.
3462. And have you members in your Order over forty? Yes.
3463. Many? A good many.
3464. Fifty years of age? There may be a few that age.
3465. Can you tell the average age of the members in your District? I could not tell you to-day.
3466. Mr. Smith.] How long has your Society been established in this Colony? About fourteen years.
3467. What number of Lodges do you say you have now in connection with your District? Twenty-one.
3468. Have you any Lodges seceded from the District? One.
3469. Is that still in existence? Yes.
3470. Working alone? It has joined another Society—the Grand United Order of Oddfellows.

Mr.
J. Mitchell.
17 Feb., 1882.

3471. Have you had any Lodges in the country districts or city go defunct? No; we have only lost that one.
3472. Have you had many of your members go into the Law Courts to settle disputes? Not any.
3473. Do you hold any property in connection with your Order? No freehold or landed property.
3474. This £3,771 2s. 3d. is cash? Hard cash.
3475. What proportion of that belongs to the District Fund? £1,139 11s. 3d.; that is the funeral money and Management Fund.
3476. The District Management Fund and Funeral Fund are both represented there? Yes.
3478. Has it come under your notice that prosecutions have been instituted for non-payment of arrears? Yes.
3479. Has that been generally adopted by your Society? Our Society is much averse to it; and I may say that when the notice appeared in the paper I went to the D. G. President. I ascertained that one man, named Joseph Smith, who was imprisoned, was a hard-working labouring man. The President came to me and asked who the man was, and I made inquiries and found he was working for the builder of the new Infirmary, that he had three children and a wife. The President asked me to send an order for £5, in order to get him out of gaol. I went up on Tuesday and paid £10 to get the other man out of gaol. The Society did put the man in gaol through the indiscreet action of the Secretary.
3480. This Lodge is situated at Ryde, is it not? Yes.
3481. Is it under your jurisdiction? Yes.
3482. Was the District consulted in this matter? No.
3483. Do I understand you to say that this action was taken on the sole responsibility of the Secretary himself of that Lodge? I would not put it all on his shoulders, but I think he should not have attempted to put men into gaol without taking the opinion of the Board of Directors or Executive Officers.
3484. You say that the Grand Lodge has released the men from prison? Not the Grand Lodge. I mentioned it in my Lodge on Monday last, and the money was paid down in order to release them.
3485. No portion of the amount paid by you was drawn from any of the funds? Not in any shape or form.
3486. And it was simply voluntary contributions given by the members of the Lodges? Yes, that is what it will be. Our Lodge took the matter up, and one of our officers advanced the money.
3487. Are these men now to be reinstated and to have the rights and privileges of members? The man Smith, the first that was got out of gaol, said to me—"Now what am I to do?" and I advised him to send in his resignation if he wanted to have no more to do with the Society; but I also advised him not to do so, and then he will be transferred to Sydney.
3488. Then they will be transferred to Sydney? Yes, that is, the one; I cannot say for the other.
3489. Are you cognizant of the cause that brought about this large amount of money being owed to the Lodge? I must say it is a mistake; one man owed £8 14s. and the other £4 16s.
3490. Could you tell the Commission the cause of them falling into arrears? The whole thing was a mistake. I should imagine you cannot summon a man after he owes twelve months' money. I would not let them put me in for £8 14s. It was for arrears of contributions for four or five years.
3491. Mr. Abigail.] Does the Friendly Societies Act prescribe how much a man shall be liable for before he is expelled? I should imagine twelve months' subscriptions.
3492. But does the Act say so, or leave it an open question? I think it is left an open question.
3493. Then under the Act the law would be fairly dispensed? Yes.
3494. You said your Lodges have all met their financial obligations up to the present time: have you made any estimate of what liabilities have accrued each year to each member? No, I never went into that.
3495. It is part of your duty as D.G.S. to make out annual and quinquennial returns from the District, for the Registrar of Friendly Societies, have you done that? The annual returns I have made out, but when I went to Mr. Oliver for the quinquennial return forms he said it was not required here.
3496. Do you know the Act makes it penal? Yes; and I went to him for the forms, but could not get them.
3497. In this case of these members at Ryde and the money paid by you to release them from gaol, what became of that? I gave it to the gaoler.
3498. Is it carried to their credit in the books of the Lodge? I do not know how that would be done. I do not know if the Government would claim it or would refund it to the Lodge.
3499. Do you know what the judgment of the Bench was? I only read it in the Evening News, and do not remember the terms.
3500. You stated that you have advised these men to transfer to Sydney: supposing they do that, will the Lodge in Sydney get any portion of the money they paid to the Ryde Lodge? I should think not.
3501. So the Lodge they have transferred to will take all the liabilities without getting any benefit? Yes; our laws say that members may transfer from one Lodge to another, but the Lodge from which they transfer are responsible for sick pay.
3502. I understood you to say you were not in favour of that portion of the law which enabled a Lodge to take action against a member for more than twelve months' dues, but you would give the power to sue for contributions up to twelve months? If I were a law-maker, I would say that if a member is away from the Society for three months, at the end of that time he should be knocked off the doctor and chemist. In our Lodge we pay 2s. 4d. to the doctor and chemist, and 2s. to the District. If he were allowed on the books for three months, at the end he would be owing 13s., out of which they would have paid 4s. 4d. to the Lodge chemist and doctor and to the District. You might then strike his name off and only lose 4s. 4d. by it.
3503. So you would lose the 4s. 4d. to get quit of the member? I believe that would be the best thing to do.
3504. Do you mean that you would then strike his name off all the books or give him the privilege to pay up? I would allow him to pay up any time within twelve months.
3505. Your laws give the District Grand Lodge power to appoint special auditors to audit the books of any any Lodge, or Lodge that there may be some difficulty about; have you ever had a case in which that has been necessary? No.

Mr.
J. Mitchell.
17 Feb., 1882.

3506. Do the subordinate Lodges send in returns? Yes, every three months.

3507. Have you examined them? The District Officers do that.

3508. Are they not audited by members of the Lodge? Yes.

3509. And again by the District Auditors? Yes.

3510. Can you say whether they find the balances always correct? As a rule, yes; the only mistake they ever found was that the Treasurer was charged with a pound too much.

3511. So in your experience the Lodge Auditors are generally correct? Very fair, yes.

3512. Now, in the matter of arbitration, are you in favour of arbitration as a final settlement of any question of dispute? I think it is a very fair way.

3513. Not to give them the power at all to go to law? I think it is a bad thing to go to law with Societies.

3514. Is there anything of a friendly nature in connection with your Societies; what I mean is, is any of its money spent in convivialities or other than in benefits? No.

3515. If any of the members are unfinancial, do you give them the benefits? No, but I have known a man who was likely to become unfinancial to be paid for by members who were there.

3516. Then he did not become unfinancial; but if he does? I have seen it done, but not out of the funds.

3517. But out of the funds of the Lodge? They could not; there are too many members who would object.

3518. Then you act on purely business principles? So far as the Lodge is concerned.

3519. Is there any drinking carried on? Our Lodges are not allowed any drink in the room.

3520. Mr. Smith.] It is discouraged, is it not, by one of your regulations? Yes.

3521. Mr. Abigail.] In the matter of regalia, is it compulsory? The Lodge has a set of regalia, we have seven beards and gowns and collars which cost 5s. each. During initiations they wear beards and gowns, which cost about £8 the lot.

3522. That comes out of the funds? Yes, they are provided by the District at the opening of each new Lodge.

3523. Is much money spent in testimonials or other purposes of that kind? The only testimonial I ever saw given was to Mr. Slade when the laws were revised.

3524. President.] You did not touch the funds for that? No, it was done by the members.

3525. Mr. Abigail.] When I asked you if much money was expended in testimonials, I meant inside or outside the Society and taken out of the contributions of the members? You may see some "jewels" down there. Our Society wishes to get on in the world, and if a member takes up the starting of a Lodge our Grand Lodge has passed a resolution that any member who shall apply for a prospectus and form a Lodge should receive £5 for the outlay; instead of giving this £5 in cash, they gave it in two jewels. It was not a presentation, but money earned according to law.

3526. What money was it taken from? The management fund.

3527. Does "Medals, £5" come under the same heading? Yes; it should read "Expenses for forming the Harmony Lodge at Glebe, £5."

3528. I see from one of your annual reports dated the 21st of last month, that a resolution was moved that a Past President's collar be presented to the outgoing President? That is an officer of the Society who has performed his duties for twelve months, and he gets a collar given to him.

3529. Then there is another resolution that Treasurers having twice officiated as D.G. Presidents shall have a Past President's collar; was that carried? I suppose so; that is Mr. J. H. Davics, who has been Treasurer some time.

3530. An amendment was moved that all Past Presidents in Sydney receive collars; that was not seconded? Yes.

3531. How many would there be? Fourteen.

3532. And what is the cost of each regalia? About £2.

3533. Do you think the objects of Benefit Societies to be of such a character as to require special legislation? Yes.

3534. Your Society you say is considered prosperous? Yes, I think so.

3535. Have you any notion of what is prosperous in a Society—how much per head they should have in accumulated funds? Well, a Society is like a lot of other things—it is carried on on credit. If a Lodge is started to-morrow with sixty men, and the average of them pay 10s. each, there is £30 to start the Lodge with. And if they pay 24s. to each for a month, where is the money to come from? The only redemption for a Society is that all the members are examined by a doctor, and are supposed to go a reasonable time without getting sick.

3536. Have you known any cases in which members have been admitted suffering from chronic disease, through a bad examination by a doctor? I cannot specially refer to any case, but I believe such things do occur.

3537. You have not made any calculation as to how much a Society should have to place it in a fairly solvent position? No.

3538. Have you had any communication with members interested in Friendly Societies in Victoria? No; we are under the supervision of the Grand Lodge of Victoria to a certain extent.

3539. John Henry Curtis is connected with your Society in Victoria? Yes, we had him here a short time ago.

3540. Do you know what is the average of funds per member of Societies in Victoria? No, I could not say.

3541. Do you know what the Druids have? I do not know.

3542. Is it £9 per head? I said I did not know. I have read Curtis's evidence, but it is some time ago, and I do not remember what it is.

3543. Are the funds of your Society one common property for the benefit of the whole of the members? No, each Lodge sticks to its own.

3544. In the return I suppose it will show the state of the individual Lodges? Yes, you have it there.

3545. I see there is one Lodge with forty-one members, with £29 19s. 11d.; you would not consider that favourable? No, but there is one with 138 members and £814.

3546.

Mr.
J. Mitchell.
17 Feb., 1882.

3546. That I suppose you consider fairly good? Yes, I should think so.
3547. I see there are ten Lodges in this list with less than £1 per head accumulated funds; what condition would you call them in? Not at all solvent.
3548. Would you be in favour of, or do you think a periodical investigation of the condition of Benefit Societies should be carried out? Yes, I think it would be a very good thing indeed.
3549. And at what intervals do you think it should be done? Every five years.
3550. Do you think it should be made by Government officers? Well, if it is to be done it ought to be done well, and might be done by Government officers.
3551. Supposing an investigation should show that a Society was going back, would you provide power to compel them to raise their contributions to a safe basis? Yes.
3552. In preference to reducing the benefits? Most decidedly.
3553. Do you think the expenses of managing these Societies are excessive? As far as our Society is concerned, I think not.
3554. Have you known any members defraud the Society by misappropriating the funds? I know one man who did so, and he was brought to account and refunded the money; and he lost a very good position.
3555. Were the police brought into the question? No; he was summoned before the Lodge, and admitted it, and paid it all back again.
3556. Mr. Greville.] I understand you to say there are a few of your members who have turned fifty? Not very many of them.
3557. And that is to be accounted for by the Society having been in existence only fourteen years? Yes.
3558. When the Society comes to be double its present age, do you think the same rate of contribution made now will be sufficient then? So long as the managing part is kept down, I do not think the death rate will increase much.
3559. Not with the increase of age of the Society, and members daily approaching death? Well, they keep paying towards their liability; every six months each man pays something towards his death money, and with increasing age you have increasing funds coming in.
3560. In other words, you believe it will not be necessary to increase the rate? Well, it may be of course; I believe if they could be induced to pay another 2d. it would not be much more out of their pockets.
3561. But what I want to arrive at is whether your present contribution will be sufficient as your young members get old? Well, as they get old they are more likely to get sick.
3562. Then what is your answer to my question as to whether you think the rate will have to be raised or not? I am hardly prepared to answer. "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."
3563. Are you of opinion that instead of having a contribution similar for all ages it would be better to have one apportioned to the age—in other words, a sliding scale? No, I do not think so.
3564. You approve of the fixed scale? If you make the admission money according to age it is sufficient. There would be a great amount of bother attached to the sliding scale in Lodges.
3565. Then you recognize the fact that there should be some extra payment, but think it should be obtained through the initiation fee, and not through the contributions? That is what I think would be best.
3566. When you adopted the contribution of 13d. per week, from what did you get the idea? That was started before I joined the Society.
3567. Was it from Victoria or England? I suppose from England; that is where the Society emanated from.
3568. I want to know how you came to fix it at 13d.; are there any tables or authority? Not that I know of; it was that when I joined the Society.
3569. Mr. Holdsworth.] Can you tell me the age of the Prince Alfred Lodge here? About twelve years.
3570. I see it has forty-one members, and £29 19s. 11d. reserve? Yes.
3571. Are the members dependent entirely upon the funds of the Lodge to which they belong? Yes.
3572. Is any provision made for members if a Lodge should break up? I think there is some provision made in our laws to the effect that the District will take them over.
3573. Then if a Lodge breaks up, no injury can really be sustained by the members? Not at all.
3574. I think you said you were in favour of uniform rates? Yes.
3575. You think if the initiation fee is made according to age it is sufficient? Yes.
3576. How often do you pay an initiation fee? Only once.
3577. Then the only benefit the Lodge can derive from that is the difference in the interest between the different amounts paid? Yes.
3578. Do you think that would be sufficient to meet the differences in the ages? Well, as a rule, a man getting on for thirty-six is more healthy than a man of twenty-five. Our experience is that it is the young men who take all the money.
3579. Mr. Langley.] May I ask if your Society is in connection with the Druid Society in England? Yes, with the United Ancient Order of Druids in England.
3580. Are your members acknowledged by that body as members, in case they leave this Colony? Yes.
3581. In case that the law laid down a fixed scale of contributions, do you think any difference should be made between the contributions to a Lodge which affords its members no benefits should they leave this Colony, and to a Society the members of which can take their clearances with them and be received into Lodges at a nominal sum in other parts of the world? No; if I were a man that wanted to join a Society, I would look out for one that had relations in some other part of the world.
3582. Then do you think the two Societies should have equal benefits? It is worth the risk for a man to pay 1s. 1d. and 1s. 2d. a week.
3583. But I speak of the abstract question—do you think the two Societies offer equal benefits? No, of course a local Society would not have equal benefits to that which has branches all over the world.
3584. Then why would you compel me to pay the same in the one as in the other? Because you had the opportunity of joining the other.
3585. In the case of these men at Ryde, you say I think that twelve months was all they could be sued for? Oh, I did not say anything of the kind.
3586. Is it a fact that they could not be sued for more than twelve months? That is for lawyers to decide.

- Mr. J. Mitchell.
17 Feb., 1882.
3587. But in your opinion was it legal to claim more than fifty-two weeks? I would not like to give such an opinion.
3588. If that were the case, would not the donors of this money be entitled to claim all but the twelve months from the Lodge that received it? The question comes whether the Lodge will get it or not. Will the police authorities pay the money to the Lodge?
3589. If the present Friendly Societies Act permits such a thing as that, do you not think it is time it was altered? Yes, as soon as possible.
3590. Have you seen this Act? Yes.
3591. Are you of opinion that it would be more advisable to have a short Act laying down certain bases upon which Societies should frame their own laws, rather than this Act we have at present? I think there is a lot of stuff in the present Act that nobody can understand, and it might be abbreviated a lot.
3592. But do you think if it were abbreviated it would be a benefit? What is in it would not do any harm.
3593. Then do you think a shorter Act would not be more beneficial? I think the Commission could make a more applicable Act in many ways.
3594. I presume you know there is a lot in it that might very well be left out? There is not the slightest doubt it might be made more simple.
3595. Mr. Rubie.] Have you a Widow and Orphan Fund in connection with your Society? No.
3596. How are your funds invested? In the Savings Bank.
3597. In the name of Trustees? Yes; three Trustees.
3598. Has each Lodge Trustees? Yes.
3599. You said the whole of the funds to the credit of the Order were about £900? No; £3,771.
3600. That is divided between the Lodges and the District? Yes.
3601. There are some of the Lodges have a very small sum to their credit: suppose three or four deaths were to occur, how would they meet that? It does not affect them in any way; it would come from the funds we have in the District.
3602. Well, there are some of these with very few members: suppose three or four were taken ill, how would they be provided for? That is where the trouble comes. If a Lodge has forty members it has an income of £2 a week, and could this pay for them? If Societies took in men who were liable to consumption and other complaints these Societies would not last very long.
3603. In opening new Lodges do you take in members at half-fees? Yes.
3604. You just stated that any increase in contributions would, you thought, be more beneficial by way of initiation fees? I said I thought it would answer better. It is difficult now to carry on books; and if you had books with one paying 15d. and another 10d. and so on, you would have to pay your Secretary perhaps £50 a year to keep the accounts.
3605. Have you found any difficulty in providing Secretaries for the Lodges? Yes, a good deal; men do not like to take a job like that for £4 a year.
3606. As a rule, do you find the Secretaries efficient for the work they undertake? Yes; I never saw any that were not efficient.
3607. How are your Auditors appointed? They are appointed every six months, one retiring every three months.
3608. I think, in answer to a previous question, you said you had a system of arbitration in your Order which you consider quite satisfactory? We never had anything to do with it.
3609. Have you never had any complaints to refer to arbitration? No.
3610. What would you think of a Court of Arbitration being formed out of the various Friendly Societies—do you think it would act well? Yes; it would be best for them all to join together and form one body.
3611. Do you think that in any new system there should be a uniform code of rules with a minimum rate of payment put down and certified by an actuary, so that any Society not adopting that should not get the benefit of the law? It would be a good thing if we could get an idea like that.
3612. Mr. Newland.] Do I understand you are under the supervision of a Grand Lodge in Victoria? Only in so far that we get the password from them and they issue dispensations to us.
3613. You pay no capitation tax to them? No.
3614. Could you give any idea of what is the management expense of your District per member? I do not know; in the last report for the past six months there was an average of about 10 per cent.; but in that there is an item for funeral regalia—£37 10s., and there are several other matters of goods that we have sent to Lodges.
3615. Do you think such an amount as £37 10s. should be spent in funeral regalia for a Society numbering only 1,600 members? Yes, I think so.
3616. Do you think all this show and pomp is necessary? No, I am strongly opposed to it.
3617. I do not thoroughly understand your explanation in reference to a Lodge not being able to pay its sick members, and would like some further explanation; that is, if a Lodge for want of funds is not able to pay its sick members, what course they adopt? Such a thing has never come under our notice, but the District would assist them; the rule is laid down.
3618. You have some monster demonstrations in connection with your Society at different periods? We have had two.
3619. Have they been successful in a pecuniary sense? Yes.
3620. Had there been a loss, how would it have been met? It was got up for the benefit of the District, and any loss would have been met by the Management Fund of the District.
3621. Mr. Gelding.] How do you account for the very great expense of opening Lodges in the country Districts, say at Goulburn—£18 5s.? You must reckon that to open a Lodge people have to start from Sydney and go up in the train; four have to go, and if they go on Monday they arrive on Monday evening; they open the Lodge on Tuesday and arrive in Sydney on Wednesday, and I think £18 is not too much expense; the Lodge pays half, and the District pays the other half.
3622. I presume the District officers who travel to open the Lodges are paid full expenses for the time and labour performed? I do not know about full expenses; when train and other expenses are taken out there is 10s. allowed for each man. We were up there for two days.
3623. Has your District got the power to raise the quarterly levies to the Funeral Fund if they think fit? Yes.
- 3624.

3624. Have you had occasion to do it? We have been down to 1s., but never above 1s. 6d.
3625. You have stated that if the sliding scale were adopted it would be a very troublesome affair—Are you aware that in Great Britain there are some two or three thousand Lodges with ordinary Secretaries carrying out these duties? No.
3626. Then you have never studied the question of a sliding scale? No.
3627. How long have these Branches of yours been in existence? The last was opened the other day, one three months ago, and others six months since.
3628. Then you account for those that show a decent average that they have only been recently opened? Some of these have been opened a long time.
3629. Have you given the question of whether this 13d. a week is sufficient to meet your liabilities, even as they at present stand, mature consideration? As far as our Order is concerned, I think so.
3630. Then how do you account for half of your Lodges only holding a little bit of money like this? They have been exceedingly unfortunate in sickness.
3631. I see in your District, taking the whole of the funds of the Druids into consideration, that the average per head is somewhat under £2 2s.: do you think that is an average that would meet any unforeseen draw upon it, or that it is sufficient to meet present liabilities? The average is as good as ever we had, and we have carried on the last ten or twelve years.
3632. Have you formed any opinion as to what would be a fair average? I think they should not have under £5 a head.
3633. Are you aware that the Registrar in Victoria deems £11 as not too much for a Society to hold? Oh, there is no doubt they go into the matter more as a matter of business there than here.
3634. Do you not think there is a greater probability of sickness and death arising in the future than in the past, owing to the increased rate of population and frequent connection between here and other countries? No doubt the more we mix up with others the more liable we are to disease, and doctors should take greater precautions in taking in people.
3635. And I presume your sick pay, the amount paid out of the funds, has been greater the last two or three years than heretofore? Yes.
3636. And the probability is that the draws on the fund will increase more in the future than they have been in the past? They may be so.
3637. Do you not think if a sliding scale was introduced whereby members paid a fair quota weekly to assure certain benefits, it would be far better than working on what may be termed a hand to mouth principle? No doubt it would be far better, but I think it would be a means of closing up Friendly Societies.
3638. Do you not think each Society should settle its own grievances in its own governing body, without going to other Societies? As far as a matter of law and justice is concerned one man can tell what is right and wrong; but if there is a dispute amongst members every one has his friends.
3639. Where do your arbitrators come from? Anybody in the Order.
3640. Do you not think, considering the importance of Friendly Societies, that the Government should appoint a gentleman to specially attend to this particular business? I think so.
3641. Do I understand you to say that any of your members who may take the trouble to get together sufficient members to open a Lodge is presented with a testimonial of £5? Yes.
3642. That is holding out a bonus to any of your members to open Lodges? Yes.
3643. Who pays the £5? The Management Fund of the District.
3644. Mr. Abigail.] I understood you to say that you went to the Registrar of Friendly Societies' Office for the quinquennial return forms, and he told you it was not necessary to send in any? Yes.
3645. Mr. Smith.] You give it as your opinion, that a Society not having £5 a member is not in a good financial position? I think they ought to have it in order to have any standing.
3646. And your Society cannot show that average in this Colony? No.
3647. Mr. Abigail.] You stated just now that there was £5 bonus paid to any one who opened a Lodge? Yes.
3648. How many Lodges have been opened during the past year? I could not tell you at present; three or four. Three, I think.
3649. President.] Is there anything further you would like to suggest to the Commission, or have you any further evidence to give? No, I can only say that I trust the other Societies that come here will do as I have done, and give as full particulars respecting themselves.

The Commission then adjourned until Monday, 20th February.

MONDAY, 20 FEBRUARY, 1882.

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
EDW. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,

JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,

P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. Thomas Joseph Murray sworn and examined:—

3650. President.] What Society do you represent? The Australian Holy Catholic Guild of St. Mary and St. Joseph.
3651. What office do you hold? I held the office of Secretary, and now I am Past Secretary; I hold no office.
3652. How long did you hold that office? I was elected in 1876, I think in December, and I resigned about a week ago.
3653. Did you hold any office prior to that? No, I only joined them about that time, a few months before I was appointed Secretary.

Mr.
J. Mitchell.
17 Feb., 1882.

Mr.
T. J. Murray.
20 Feb., 1882.

3654.

- Mr. T. J. Murray.
20 Feb., 1882.
3654. What number of members have you in your Lodges—the gross number? In Sydney we have seven Branches; there are country Branches under their own control.
3655. But under your District? About 1,000, I should think.
3656. What number of members have you initiated during last year? I could only say roughly, about fifty I should think; there were about twenty-five last half-year.
3657. What number of members have been expelled during a like period for non-payment of dues? I am not aware of any; we expelled one during that period.
3658. Have any been suspended for non-payment of dues? Yes, one or two.
3659. What was the total amount of accumulated funds in connection with the subordinate Lodges? We set down our assets at £6,590 7s.; that includes the Guild Hall, furniture and things of that kind, and stock.
3660. That is the property of the Sydney District? Yes; we have no connection with the other Branches except transferring members.
3661. And how is that money and property secured to the members of the Society? We have the Guild Hall, which we set down at £7,597 14s. 2d.; there is a mortgage on that of £2,000; we have furniture, £283 7s. 5d.; rule books, £54 6s. 6d.; scarfs, stock, &c., £269 18s. 5d.; funeral regalia, £114 9s. 1d.; and medal, £15 15s.
3662. Are these regalias and medals purchased from the funds of the Societies? Yes.
3663. That is, the funds made up from the contributions of members? Yes, from the ordinary fund; all our moneys go into one fund, out of which everything is purchased. There are also drugs and fittings, valued at £141 4s. 8d.; and a cash balance of £179 1s. 11d.
3664. What was the total amount paid on account of funeral donations during the year? I find I have not the report of the preceding half-year; the amount last half-year was £190, but the preceding half-year was much more; I do not remember the exact amount, but it was between £200 and £300.
3665. What is the donation in case of death paid to each of your members? The highest amount is £40 at the death of a brother; £20 mortuary, and £20 widow and orphan donation; it varies according to the time a member has been in the Society.
3666. Will you state the graduated payments? This is the death and funeral rule:—"The Guild mortuary donation for a brother shall be £20, less the funeral expenses and any debts due by deceased to the Society; the balance, on production and delivery to the Warden of the certificate required by the Friendly Societies Act, 1873, shall forthwith be paid to the representative of the deceased as follows:—To the wife, eldest son or daughter, father or mother, eldest brother or sister, in the discretion of the Council; and if there be no such relatives, the balance aforesaid shall revert to the Guild, unless the deceased brother shall have otherwise bequeathed it by a written document." The Widow and Orphan Fund donation is given according to the following rule:—"At the death of a brother the Council shall cause strict inquiry to be made into the moral character and temporal circumstances of the widow, the number of children, with the name and age of each; and if such inquiry be satisfactory to the Council, they shall vote a sum of money, not exceeding £10 for the first five years the brother was a subscribing member to this Fund; £15 if over five and under ten years; and £20 if above ten years, as the case requires; such sum to be applied for the benefit of the widow and children in such proportions and in such manner as the Council in their discretion may think best."
3667. Then I see from your rules you pay sums of money to unmarried brothers and in case of death of a widowed mother? Yes.
3668. What amount do you pay? In the case of a brother's wife—I will go through them all:—"On the death of a brother's wife," the rule says, "the sum of £12 shall be paid to the brother, if a full member of less than five years on the books; and the sum of £15 if a full member of more than five years standing; and at the death of an unmarried brother's mother, she being a widow, residing with and supported by him, the sum of £10 will be paid to the unmarried brother (provided in each case that they are full members and not in arrears according to Rule 119), upon production and delivery to the Warden of the certificate required by the Friendly Societies Act."
3669. What amount of contributions do the members pay? 2s. 4d. every fortnight, or 1s. 2d. per week.
3670. Are the contributions uniform? Yes.
3671. Every member pays alike? Yes, all alike; there are a few cases in which there are associate members; these pay 6d. a week, but they do not receive benefits.
3672. And are the initiation fees uniform? They vary according to age; the rates will be found on pages 18 and 19 of the Constitution; they vary from 2s. 6d. at from 18 to 20, to £10 10s. at the age of forty.
3673. And do you take members beyond forty years of age? Yes; they have to pay the full entrance fee; it is very rarely a member joins over forty—I have never known it.
3674. And do all the members who are initiated and are financial participate in the advantages you have named? Yes.
3675. That is, they get a certain donation at death? Yes, and besides that we have a sick allowance, which is a guinea a week; during the first twelve months he gets a guinea a week; the next twelve months, 10s. 6d.; and then 5s. a week for the remainder of the time he is ill, unless a final payment is made.
3676. As agreed between the member and the Society? Yes, if a brother wishes he can take a final payment of £20 instead of the 5s. a week.
3677. I understand you to say that all the contributions go into one fund? Yes, all go into one fund.
3678. You have no separate funds? No.
3679. But I notice you provide for the registration of the wives of members? Yes, that is in the case of a second wife. Every member joining has to pay 5s. to the fund, and unless he pays it he would have no benefit; but in case of the death of a member's wife and he marries again he has to register his second wife and pay an entrance fee.
3680. And how do you settle disputes between members of your Lodges and the Lodges themselves? We have a Council consisting of the representatives of each Branch, and the disputes are brought before this Council, evidence is taken, and it is settled by vote.
3681. Is the decision final? It is not final; we have three arbitrators to whom it can be referred.
3682. Have you had any cause to defend actions in any of our Law Courts? Yes, we have.

3683. In consequence of members being dissatisfied with the decisions? Yes, one or two. Lately a brother brought an action against us for sick pay, and it was overruled that he should first appeal to the arbitrators; he did so, and they granted the allowance. There may have been other cases; I do not remember. Mr.
T. J. Murray.
20 Feb., 1882.

3684. During your term of office have there been other cases that you know of? I do not remember having any other for benefits; we have had cases in connection with other things, but not for that. We have had cases in connection with the hall, and so on.

3685. What was the nature of these? We had some case in the District Court, but it escapes my memory what it was about; it was in connection with some one who rented the hall from us.

3686. You have no cases now pending? There is a case now before the Council in which a brother claims sick pay, being bad on the books.

3687. You say that the whole of your funds are vested in Trustees for the benefit of the Society? Yes, we have three Trustees.

3688. And the whole of the property is vested in them? All our funds are invested in the building.

3689. Have there been any defalcations? Not since I was elected to office.

3690. Has there during your term of office been any Society that has not been in a position to meet its financial obligations? There was one Branch at North Shore which was not considered to be paying, and it was dissolved and the members were attached to the District in Sydney as country members. A rule was passed and the Branch was dissolved.

3691. Had they any funds? All the moneys come to the one fund; they surrendered their warrant and broke up the whole thing, and they are living there as country members now.

3692. Has there been any other Lodge suffer inconvenience for want of funds? I think not—I have not heard of any; but no matter whether a Lodge is paying or not the money goes to one fund—one Treasurer at the Guild Hall, and the seven Branches are paid out of that.

3693. And are you of opinion that 14d. a week is sufficiently large an amount of contribution to meet all engagements? Yes, I think it has proved itself to be so. The Society has been established for thirty-eight years, or since 1845.

3695. And you think the amount is sufficient to meet all the engagements of the Society? Yes, so far as I am able to judge, unless some unprecedented epidemic or something of that sort should come in. During the last two or three half-years we have had a very heavy death rate on account of so many old members being in the Society. We paid one half-year £427 for sick pay and £266 for mortuary and widow and orphan donations. That was the half-year ending June, 1880.

3696. Can you tell the average number of days, taking the whole of your members, that have been paid for sick pay? We paid £475 for last half-year for a thousand members; that is about seven days per member. These are mostly the same people who have been ill all the time.

3697. Have you experienced any inconvenience in the working of the Act as Secretary of the Grand Lodge? No.

3698. What is your opinion as to the working of the Act—do you think it sufficient in every way to afford protection to the members? I have never received much benefit from the Act; it seems to me very cumbrous and very difficult to understand, and I think the way the returns are to be sent in is almost a farce. It is impossible for the Branches to supply the information according to the Branch returns, because so many Branches differ in the way they keep their funds.

3699. But you have experienced no inconvenience? None whatever.

3700. What was the practice with you in furnishing these returns? I think the Act says that the returns are to be furnished every five years.

3701. But is there not an annual return to be furnished? I always send my printed reports to the Registrar.

3702. And has it been the practice of subordinate Lodges to send in separate returns? They come in to me, and I send in a return embracing the whole of them.

3703. Do you know the Act requires separate and distinct returns from each Lodge? Yes, I believe it does.

3704. Has the Registrar at any time demurred to your sending in a gross return? No.

3705. Have you anything that you could suggest that would be an improvement on the present legislation? No, I have not thought the matter over; I do not know of anything except that the forms for sending in the returns should be more simple, so as to suit each Lodge.

3706. Have you or any of your subordinate Lodges proceeded against any of your members to recover arrears of contributions? No.

3707. What is your opinion in reference to that principle as embodied in the present Act? I do not approve of suing for arrears for over twelve months.

3708. What course does your Society take when a member gets twelve months in arrears? We let him fall out, the rule saying that after that time he loses all benefits, and he cannot commence his payments again without getting a doctor's certificate.

3709. You have no claim on members after twelve months? I do not think so, in the face of this rule.

3710. If a member is three months in arrears, what do you do? He does not get any benefits, and we endeavour to get him to pay up before posting his name up.

3711. Are there many old men in your Society? Yes, there are a good few, in consequence of the age of the Society.

3712. Is there a fair proportion of young men? Yes, those who join are generally young men.

3713. What would be the average of the ages of the members, taking young and old together? I should think about forty years, but I cannot state accurately, and I may be a great way out in saying that. There are members from eighteen to sixty.

3714. Have you many from eighteen to twenty-five? There are more between thirty and forty, I should think.

3715. What proportion would you have from eighteen to twenty-five? I should think there would be more than one-twentieth, as we have now juvenile Guilds established, from which at eighteen years they are drafted into the older Societies. I should think probably the proportion is nearer one-tenth than one-twentieth. That is of course given simply from memory.

Mr.
T. J. Murray.
20 Feb., 1882.

3716. What has been the cost of management during the past year, apart from sick allowance and medical attendance? The only expense, apart from these—if you take the report, every item is given—the only salary paid was the Secretary's salary.
3717. You do not seem to separate working expenses from general expenditure? No, we put all the moneys into one fund. The working expenses would be very light; £100 for the year would include everything, and be the very outside; and the receipts would be in all about £3,000.
3718. What were the total receipts for the year? A little over £3,000.
3719. And how is that made up? Members' contributions and rent.
3720. How much for contributions? In round numbers £2,300.
3721. And how do you make up the other? We have rent for this half-year, £260; that would be £520 for the year; and there are transfers and other small items, making up a total of a little over £3,000 for the year.
3722. And what has been the expenditure—taking sick pay, medical attendance, and all together? About £1,400 for the half-year; that would be about £2,800. During the last few years there has been a very heavy death-rate. I have simply taken the last half-year's accounts as a basis.
3723. Mr. Gelding.] Do you give every member joining your Society a copy of the rules before he becomes a member? We expect him to buy it on becoming a member.
3724. I ask you that because I see that unless he acts very strictly up to certain rules laid down he is liable to be suspended or expelled. I refer to rule 125? Yes, they are all made thoroughly acquainted with that rule.
3725. Did you ever have occasion to expel a member for breaking that rule? Only one young member.
3726. Referring to the Widow and Orphan rules—I see that the Council have the power of withholding the Widow and Orphan donation if they think that her position warrants them in doing so? Usually a Committee is appointed to inquire into the character of the woman, and if she were of bad character she would not get the money; but I do not remember such a case.
3727. Then if they deem she is sufficiently wealthy they could withhold the money? I do not think it has ever been done.
3728. I see under the 107th rule you can withhold sick benefits from any one engaged in military or naval service; can you explain the cause of that? I think there is a rule elsewhere that prohibits the Lodges from taking soldiers.
3729. Do you remember any member committing suicide? I do not remember any.
3730. Would the Council in such a case withhold the Widow and Orphan donation? I think they would, according to the rule.
3731. No matter from what cause the suicide might be committed? If they saw their way clear to pay it they would do it.
3732. As a matter of opinion, do you think it is just to do so? I do not think it would be just to the woman; still I see it is in the rule. It has never been brought under my notice before.
3733. What was the original amount paid for the land in Castlereagh-street? I was not in the Society at the time; I think it was something like £1,400 or £1,500, or perhaps it might have been £1,800.
3734. The original cost of the building before being altered, do you know that? The value is set down at £7,597—that is the original cost; I am sure it is worth considerably more than that.
3735. Did the Registrar of Friendly Societies ever take exception to registering the medical rules of your Society? Not that I am aware of.
3736. Are you aware that by having these special rules certified to, in the event of your not being able to supply a medical man, your Society would be liable for any expense incurred? Oh yes, we are aware of that; and there are two doctors, and if one is not in they can call on the other.
3737. What is the average amount you pay for medical levies? We pay a lump sum to the doctors in Sydney, £200 each doctor; in Balmain and Newtown they pay something like 16s. a head.
3738. Have you any juvenile Branches in your Society? Yes, we have.
3739. How do they work—are they a success? They are not a very great success; in one District, the St. Patrick's District, they are doing better; if worked and kept up they would be a success. I had nothing to do with them. Financially they work very well, and are a great feeder to the other Societies.
3740. What benefits do they give to their members when they are sick? I said before I had nothing to do with them, but I think they pay them something like £3 in case of death; there is no sick pay. I think it varies from 20s. to £3, according to the length of time they have been in the Society. They pay a small entrance fee and 2d. or 1d. a week; and at the age of eighteen they are admitted, free of charge, into the other Society.
3741. Do they have to undergo medical examination? Yes, they undergo another examination.
3742. Are you in favour of a Board of arbitrators outside your own Society, composed of members of various Friendly Societies, to arbitrate on any disputes that may occur amongst your members, or do you think they should be settled solely by the Council of your own Society? We have arbitrators beyond the Council, and I think it would be much better to have arbitrators of this kind than going to the Law Courts. It would be less expensive, and probably more satisfactory.
3743. Mr. Slade.] How is your Society managed—what is the name of the ruling body? The ruling body we call the Council.
3744. And who forms that? From each of four Branches four members are returned, and two from three others; we have three Trustees. The Warden is the highest lay officer, and there is a Bursar or Treasurer, and a Chaplain, Father Mahony.
3745. How often are they elected? They are elected every half-year, and every year the Warden and Bursar are elected.
3746. Has the governing body any separate fund for the purpose of meeting the deaths? No, all the moneys of the Society go into one fund.
3747. And who administers that fund? The Council.
3748. Do they administer the sick pay likewise? Yes, all accounts, whether of death or any other kind, are passed by the Council before being paid. Four of the Branches meet in the Guild Hall, and the money goes into the hand of the General Bursar; the others meet in their own schoolrooms, and they bring in the money themselves. All the money comes in to the General Bursar, who pays all expenses out of that.

3749. And does this Council fix the amount of levies? We never have had any levies made.
3750. There is no separation for management or anything? No; all the money has gone into one fund.
3751. Did you state to the President what provision you made for minorities? Yes; they merge into the general body and join any Branch they wish.
3752. What is your opinion of graduated payments according to the age of a member who joins? It has never been suggested before, and I could not give any opinion on it; it is a difficult question to answer.
3753. At the present time your members pay one fixed sum, without regard to age? Yes, except in the case of the entrance fee, which varies from 2s. 6d. to £10 10s.
3754. Have you any superannuation fund connected with your Order separate from the other funds? No, we have no such fund. There was at one time a fund they called the "Totally Destitute Orphan Fund," but there is now no other fund but the one, as will be seen from our last balance-sheet.
3755. Does your Society give testimonials to your members in any way? No, they could not vote a sixpence.
3756. If any are given, it is by voluntary subscription? Yes.
3757. The up-country Branches disburse their own sick pay? They have no connection with us more than that they bear the same name and are Branches of the same Society, and there is an interchange of members. They have the sole control of their funds, and they meet all payments themselves.
3758. Do you offer any special advantages to members founding a Branch? No, there is no concession made.
3759. What is the cost of opening a Branch? If a Branch were being opened now in Windsor or Parramatta or any other place, no part of the cost would be borne by the Sydney Council.
3760. Can you tell us the probable cost of opening a Branch in Sydney, with books, certificate, regalia, and everything like that? The cost would be a mere nothing—a few books, costing a few shillings, and so on; the scarfs, each member buys his own and pays for it.
3761. Are there any fees to the opening officer? No.
3762. In the 13th rule there is mention of some regalia which it is compulsory for each member to wear; what is about the probable cost of that? The cost of the regalia is 19s. 6d. For officers of course it is more; the Council's scarfs cost 30s.
3763. That is borne by yourselves or the Society? By ourselves.
3764. The copies of rules, it also says, shall be paid for by the members? Yes, we charge them 6d.
3765. There is a clause in the Friendly Societies Act which says that every member joining a Society shall be informed of the cost of joining, and no more shall be demanded? Yes, every member is told that he has to buy a scarf and rule book, and he has to make a declaration.
3766. What is the name of your presiding officer? The Warden is the highest lay officer; but if the Chaplain comes to a meeting he takes the Chair.
3767. Is that power given to the clergyman to take the Chair at any time he chooses exercised? Sometimes he comes pretty regularly to the meetings.
3768. And in all cases he has the right to take the Chair? Yes.
3769. In reply to Mr. Gelding, you said none of your members had been sued for arrears; I think there was a case of two members being sued, did you forget that? I do not remember it. That was very much my reason for resigning, that I objected to sue them for arrears.
3770. In confirmation of your answer to Mr. Gelding, you are in favour of an Arbitration Board as an ultimate tribunal, rather than to have recourse to the Courts? I think it would be preferable, as it gives such scandal going before the Courts, and I think more justice would be obtained.
3771. Are you aware that there are many Societies that have only one Branch; for them do you not consider a Board of Arbitration like this would be very useful? I think it would be a very useful Board to appeal to, but I have given the question no thought.
3772. Mr. Rubie.] When you took office were the funds all amalgamated? I believe they were, but I am not quite sure, as immediately after my coming into office the new rules were brought in.
3773. Was there not a separate ledger account kept for each fund? No.
3774. Are you aware that such was in existence? Some time previously there was, but since then they have all been kept in one fund. I kept the accounts in the way my predecessor did, though I believe some years previously to that they were kept differently.
3775. You stated a little while ago that there was a "Totally Destitute Orphan Fund," is that in existence now? No, there is no such fund.
3776. What was done with the money belonging to it? I could not say. I presume it must have been put in with the other funds. It was prior to my taking office.
3777. Then you have no knowledge of the amalgamation of the accounts? No; the first balance sheet shows they were then amalgamated. I have only the balance sheets for two years before, in which it appears there is the half-yearly statement of receipts and expenditure; then the Liverpool-street property; the general fund, including sickness, the amount received by the fund, subscriptions, and so on; then there is the Widow and Orphan Fund.
3778. What was to the credit then of the General Fund? £4,254 in 1874, and Widow and Orphan Fund, £1,826 11s. 11d., and Totally Destitute Orphan Fund, £67 7s. 5d.
3779. So that at that time there were three distinct funds kept? Yes; the capital at this date was £6,148 7s. 10d. Then there is a statement showing how the capital was invested at the time.
3780. President.] What number of members had you then? It does not give the total number, but the number admitted was thirty-five. My predecessor had merged these accounts into one fund; and a rule passed since then says there shall be one fund. The rule says that the objects of the Guild shall be "to raise a fund by entrance fees, subscriptions of the members, fines, donations, rent, and interest on capital, from which shall be paid on death of a member or a member's wife, to his widow, himself, or children, the administrators, executors, or assigns of such member, or his widow, or for the defraying of the expenses of the burial of a member, a sum of money to which he or they may be entitled by the rules of the Society."
3781. Mr. Rubie.] Was the hall built since you took office? No, before.
3782. Have you any knowledge of what it cost? I think there is some statement giving the cost.
3783. I suppose all the outlays and repairs have been added to that? Yes.
3784. That is the actual cost at present? Yes.
3785. What is the whole fetching a year now? It is let now for a theatre for £10 a week, less of course the usual charges for insurance and so on.

Mr.
T. J. Murray.
20 Feb., 1882.

- Mr. T. J. Murray.
20 Feb., 1882.
3786. Taking these matters into consideration, would it pay 5 per cent. on the outlay? Yes, I think it would, because we have to take into consideration that we have our own meetings there.
3787. Is there not some lawsuit pending about the hall? I believe it has been settled within the last few evenings.
3788. What amount has that suit cost the Society? There was £10 10s. paid to the architect, and £3 or or £4 to the solicitors, and Dr. Donovan's opinion, the bill for which has not yet come in, say £10 10s.
3789. By whose authority was that undertaken? Principally by the Warden and Trustees.
3790. Without the sanction of the Council? I think originally they did it without the sanction of the Council, though I could not say for certain.
3791. Has the dispute with the St. Leonards Branch been settled? Yes, it has been settled.
3792. Were not these men trying to get some justice done them? There has been no move lately made by them; they appealed to the Court.
3793. What amount of money was expended in that? I do not remember, though there was a good deal of expense. There is one item (December 31, 1879) of £20 12s. 4d. for law expenses.
3794. I understood it cost something like £150? I know it cost a great deal, and the Society has always been put to great expense from time to time for law expenses.
3795. Mr. Langley.] Will you inform the Commission what that dispute at St. Leonards was? I really could not say exactly how it arose, but shortly after the election of a Warden he took an idea into his head that they were not paying over there.
3796. Was there not an application from St. Leonards to be allowed to separate from the District? Yes, they wished to be separated to another Society called the Catholic Guild, but which we did not recognize, because they were established without our authority. Authority had been given to start a Branch at Lane Cove.
3797. And is not Lane Cove the same as North Shore? We would not have given them the right to open a Branch there.
3798. Did you or did you not refuse to give the Society at North Shore a portion of the funds to which they were entitled? Yes, I believe it was refused.
3799. And that is partly the reason why the lawsuit was commenced? Yes.
3800. Your first rule allows you to have a common fund? Yes.
3801. Are you aware that clause 40 of the Friendly Societies Act says most distinctly that the contributions payable "shall be entered in a separate account distinct from the moneys received and paid on account of any other benefit or fund; and also that a contribution shall be made to defray the necessary expenses of management, and a separate account shall be kept of such contributions and expenses"? I have not gone by that, but by our own rules.
3802. If the Act says so, does it not clash with your first rule? Yes.
3803. Then how is it possible for the Registrar to certify that the rules are in conformity with law? I cannot answer that question; I have carried out my instructions from the Council.
3804. If you look at the accounts for December 31, 1876, you will see there is an amount £1,495 1s. 4d. loss; is that the loss for the half-year? I do not know what that refers to.
3805. If you look you will find it is a debit balance? I do not know what it means.
3806. Was it during your term of office? I was elected at the very close of that year.
3807. You were in office when it was brought in, I suppose? Yes.
3808. Then will you explain it to the Commission? The balance-sheet was made out by my predecessor, but was submitted in my time. It appears that here is set down the amount of funds. It must have been in connection with the hall if anything.
3809. But it there appears there was a loss of £1,495? It appears so there, but unless it is explained in the report I do not understand it myself.
3810. Now on the opposite side you will see a large amount of money in the hands of your officers, £205 15s. 11d.? That is the time I speak of that there were some defalcations in the Society, a short time before I joined it.
3811. Was that made good? It was made good afterwards. I do not know that the full amount was made good, but it was settled somehow.
3812. Is there anything in your next balance-sheet made good? It is mentioned in the next, £164 6s. 6d. received towards that.
3813. Then it was compromised? Yes.
3814. Was any action taken to protect your members as provided by law for the balance? There was an action instituted against these parties, and it was settled by the solicitors by this amount being paid in. I think it was settled before I came into office.
3815. Was the whole of the amount made good to your knowledge? According to this, £164 6s. 6d.
3816. Then there was actually a loss of about £40? It would appear so.
3817. And on the opposite side, are there any law expenses in connection with that? I do not see anything on the other side.
3818. You are not aware that any other action was taken to make good the whole of that money as might have been? No, I am not aware; there was some settlement of the case that I do not remember exactly.
3819. You are aware that the Friendly Societies Act provides for criminal proceedings being taken? I believe they were instituted, but I do not remember how they resulted.
3820. Have there been any recent charges of defalcations against your Secretaries or Bursar? No.
3821. Do you think it is fair that the members who reside at North Shore should be deprived of all benefits because they wished to amalgamate with another Society of the same kind? The case was decided in the Courts against them.
3822. On a technical ground, was it not? Yes, I think so.
3823. They did not go into the merits of it, did they? Yes, I think so, but I really do not remember—it is some time ago.
3824. From that time has that Society ever received any portion of the funds to which they contributed? No, but they are still members of the body as country members. They wanted to join a Society out of ourselves, away from ours altogether.
3825. But it is called the Catholic Guild? Yes, but they are not in connection with us—we did not give them any authority.

3826. Your cash balance you say is £179: is that all you had in hand then to meet sickness and death? Yes; that is all.
3827. Then if there were five deaths at £40 each it would consume the whole of your cash? Yes, but we have a Bank overdraft.
3828. Yes, but in point of fact that is all the money you had? Yes; but of course we have property and so on, on which we could raise £5,000 if we required it. I may say that the reason that was so low was that we had always over a thousand pounds in hand, and the late Warden paid £1,000 off the mortgage.
3829. In 1874 you have informed us you had a credit balance of over £6,100. From that time to this, though you had money on mortgage and rents coming in, yet at the end of last year we find your total balance £6,590 7s.? Yes; that is roughly set down as the cost of the building.
3830. Do you consider that £450 or £500 as the result of seven years work is keeping your Society in a good position? It certainly would not be, but that is hardly a fair statement of it; the building of the hall and so on ran the Society into a good deal of expense.
3831. But you take credit for that? Just about this time we were thirty years established, and a great amount of death money had to be paid for old members.
3832. In 1877 your credit had dwindled down to £5,782, is that correct? That is correct; there must have been some loss in connection with the hall.
3833. Could you furnish us with particulars? As stated before, there were some books lost in connection with these defalcations.
3834. Then that £1,495 was probably just put in to balance matters? I do not know; I could make some further inquiries.
3835. Your laws provide that any person who shall be guilty of any defalcation or misappropriation of the funds shall be expelled, even if he repays it, and shall never afterwards be admitted or recognized; is that carried out? Yes.
3836. And has been in all cases? Yes.
3837. Are any moneys paid out of your funds for benevolent purposes? No, none.
3838. None for dinners or anything of that sort? No; there were some dinners lately went before the Court.
3839. Then do I understand that the amount set down for the hall in your balance sheet is the actual cost? Yes, up to the present time.

Mr.
T. J. Murray.
20 Feb., 1882.

The Commission then adjourned until Friday, 24th February.

FRIDAY, 24 FEBRUARY, 1882.

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., M.P., C.M.G., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
E. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,

JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

The examination of Mr. Thos. Joseph Murray was resumed:—

3840. The witness said:—In reply to Mr. Rubie on the last day of meeting I was not certain about the amount of law expenses in a certain case. I said I would say yes to the question that they were about £150 or £200; I found afterwards that the amount was only £35 6s. 9d., which was paid to Messrs. Ellis & Makinson. I also make this explanation of the £1,495 that was set down as loss in the balance sheet for the half-year ending 31 December, 1876. I explained before that I had just taken the secretaryship at this time and did not myself make out this balance sheet. I wrote to the person who assisted me to make it, and he says "The amount of funds for December,* 1876, was wrongly set down as £6,967 11s. 1d., whereas it should be £5,480 4s., a difference equal to the amount you want to account for." I presume this was made out from probably a wrong report being taken up. This would in no way affect the funds of the Society. Instead of stating £5,480 4s., the amount is £6,967 11s. 1d.; and this made us appear as if we had a loss instead of a credit, as it was £1,487 7s. 1d. greater than it ought to have been. Previous to this time there were some defalcations and books and reports were missing, so that probably the wrong balance sheet was taken. He says "You took the assets of the Society for the half-year ending 30 June, 1876, instead of the amount of funds." It is a clerical error.
3841. Mr. Langley.] Would you kindly refer to that and see if it is signed by the Auditors or not? Yes, it is signed by the Auditors.
3842. As correct? Yes.
3843. And you say they signed a balance sheet totally incorrect? It was a clerical error.
3844. But how can it be that when you put down £1,400 as loss, and you get two gentlemen to certify to it as correct? I presume they must have taken it for granted.
3845. Would you kindly mention the names of the Auditors? Thomas S. O'Connor and Mark T. Ronan. At this time some of the books were missing, and probably the balance sheet was made out by taking the report; and the gross amount was taken instead of the balance.
3846. Your assets here are £6,967? Thus there would have been no loss.
3847. What is the amount of assets you should have carried forward? That was the amount of funds on hand in June, £5,480 4s.
3848. In that report under any circumstances there must be some mistake, for the Guild Hall is represented as a portion of your funds, £4,950; and you had on mortgage £1,075; there was an amount due of £205 15s. 11d. by the Past Bursar and Secretary, which I presume you call funds, as it was repaid afterwards;

Mr.
T. J. Murray.

afterwards; and £80 15s. 5d. in the Savings' Bank; £2 5s. 5d. cash in hand, besides a lot of goods which I presume represent money, and which you would take as a portion of your balance? I think the balance is perfectly correct otherwise, and feel certain it is, with the exception of putting that down. This was a mistake against the credit of the Society, for we showed we had a loss, whereas we had not a loss. The whole thing is explained in this way, that this amount was put down instead of the £5,480 4s. It could have been put down with no object to defraud the public, but was simply a clerical error.

3849. But it is certified to by your Auditors? Well, they would have to answer for that.

3850. Mr. Smith.] I suppose that balance sheet after being received from the Auditors was submitted to the Council for approval? Yes, and submitted to the members.

3851. And they have overlooked this? Yes, as far as I remember.

3852. If that sort of thing has been done in the past, under the working of the present Friendly Societies Act, is it not possible it can be done again? I do not think it would be possible for it to occur now, in the present state of management of the funds; and I do not think it would have occurred at this time, but for want of knowledge. There was a kind of hiatus, owing to the books having been taken away.

3853. Is it not a fact that some of your books were missing? Yes.

3854. Then is there not a difference as between the amount claimed and the amount credited to the Society of some £50—how does that come about? I do not know, I presume it was left in the hands of the solicitors to settle. I feel certain at the time there was a desire to press this amount with the utmost rigour of the law, and they would not have accepted any settlement unless it was satisfactory to the Guild.

3855. You have stated in the report that it cost the Society in a law case £35 6s. 9d. when they were nonsuited? Yes.

3856. Do you know anything about law costs in a case of nonsuit; in such a case the party nonsuited has to pay the costs? Indeed.

3857. It must have cost the North Shore Lodge of your Society the same? No, it did not; it was not a Branch of our Society at all.

3858. Your own costs were £35 6s. 9d.? Yes.

3859. Then it must have cost them as much? I do not know; this Branch was not a Branch of our Society.

3860. But had it not been at one time? No.

3861. Then it was not in connection with the funds of the North Shore Branch of your Society? It was another Society that sued us.

3862. But was it not with regard to a portion of the funds of a Branch at North Shore which was connected with yours? Yes; but this Branch bore no expense.

3863. Did that Branch at North Shore which started as the Lane Cove Branch not receive from the proper authorities a warrant or dispensation to open over there? They did not receive a warrant to open at North Shore.

3864. Did that Branch of the Society which you say was the Lane Cove Branch receive a warrant to open over there? Where is over there?

3865. At North Shore, Lane Cove is North Shore? They received a warrant to open at Lane Cove, but instead of doing that they opened in the same room as an already existing Branch of the Society.

3866. Mr. Holdsworth.] This is a balance sheet or statement of accounts for December, 1881? That is the last one.

3867. In it I see you estimate the Guild Hall at £7,597 14s. 2d.? Yes.

3868. That is the amount that you really paid for it? Yes.

3869. You have a Savings' Bank mortgage for £2,000? Yes.

3870. Then £5,597 14s. 2d. has been paid, I take it, out of the funds belonging to the different Guilds? Certainly it must have been.

3871. You keep your accounts, I think, altogether? Yes.

3872. Then the Guild accounts are kept along with the ordinary accounts? Everything is kept in one fund.

3873. Have any of your members analysed them to see what sort of an investment this is for your Society; is there any properly appointed party to watch over this? I do not understand what sort of a person you mean.

3874. Is there any one who does this? I presume the same as any other Society.

3875. Is there any separate account kept by which you can see what the income and expenditure of the building is? No; all the accounts are kept together.

3876. The income last half-year was £260 rental? Yes.

3877. The expenditure would be, taking them out, insurance, interest, law expenses, were they on that? I do not know.

3878. The architect's fees were on that? Yes.

3879. And plumber £3 11s. 6d., was that on the building? Yes.

3880. And rates, £24 13s. 2d.? Yes.

3881. Making an expenditure of £230 against £260 rental, and leaving an interest of £30 on £5,597—Is that a good investment for the Society? You must calculate that we have saved rent amounting to £4 a week.

3882. And there is independently of that I see insurance (say £63) for the half-year in addition, so that would be nearly £100 on the £5,000 as interest? To this must be added the rent we save for meetings for four Lodges, and rent saved for Secretary's residence, as he lives in the building. I think the amount of £4 a week was paid previously for a room which was totally inadequate.

3883. Your sick pay I find was £475 6s. 6d., the Mortuary and Widow and Orphan Fund, £190? Yes.

3884. And chemist and doctor, £475 15s. 5d.? Yes, that is correct.

3885. What was paid to your Secretary? £47 10s.

3886. What was your total expenditure? £1,188 11s. 11d.

3887. Can you tell me what was your income proper for contributions, accouchement fees, entrances, and subscriptions? £1,202 11s.

3888. Then the income proper was £1,202 11s., and the expenditure £1,188 11s. 11d., and you say your rent was £200 a year which you saved; then had you had to pay rent you would have been £80 behind-hand that half-year? Yes.

Mr.
T. J. Murray.
24 Feb., 1862.

3889. Do you not think then it would be better to have these accounts kept separately, so that every member could have a bird's-eye view of the actual position of things? Everything is put down, and any one wishing as you have done could find out all particulars from the balance sheet.

3890. Do you think half-a-dozen of your members have done that? I am sure they have.

3891. Among the general body of your members? There are many who go in for calculating.

3892. Are you aware that the Friendly Societies Act makes special provision that you shall keep separate accounts? It was pointed out to me the other day; but our rules say we shall keep them in one fund. I do not think there would be much difficulty in keeping separate accounts.

3893. Do you think it would be advisable in future that the accounts should be kept separate? I do not know. I do not see any advantage in keeping the Widow and Orphan Fund and these things separate.

3894. But I mean keeping the Guild accounts separate from the benefit funds? I believe the clearer you keep the accounts the better, and have always thought we gave a clear statement of accounts myself.

3895. I think you said you had given no consideration to the question of having a graduated scale? No, I do not pretend to know anything of the question.

3896. Are you aware that a man of twenty is likely to live longer than one of forty? I should think so.

3897. Are you aware that an Insurance Company will charge you more at fifty than at twenty for life insurance? Yes, I am aware of that.

3898. Do you not think it would be more equitable if you were to carry out something of this principle? If it were shown to me that it was a benefit I should be glad to adopt it, but I have given no attention to it.

3899. Mr. Greville.] Speaking only from the experience of your own Societies, do you not think it would be a good thing that all Societies' accounts should be audited by an independent auditor? Yes, I do think so.

3900. And that that Auditor should be a Government officer? I think it would be an excellent thing. In connection with this subject, I may say it is very difficult to get men to keep and audit accounts, and sometimes you do not get very intelligent men.

3901. You gave just now as the cost of the hall and ground, £7,597 14s. 2d.? Yes.

3902. Your answer would lead the Commission to believe that that was the total cash cost? Yes, that is the total cash cost of the building and purchase of land.

3903. Are you clear on that point; have there been no deductions; is not the sum you have stated the ledger balance? I have not looked back, but since I have been in office everything has been put down, and that has been stated as the cost. I noticed some small deduction for the sale of old timber, but there were no deductions except that.

3904. And there have been no credits that have been paid to it? There has been nothing but this old timber.

3905. Then you cannot say for certain whether the sum mentioned is the cost or the sum at which the building now stands in the books? I think it is the first cost.

3906. Did you give the amount as it stands in the ledger? Yes.

3907. You do not take into consideration the present value? I do not. I believe it is considerably more.

3908. Do you not believe that if, like another Society, you had brought the present value of it, the account would show a considerable increase? Yes; the land cost something like £1,700, and it is now worth £100 a foot, and there are 45 feet, which would make it worth £4,500 for the land alone. Land further down the street has brought more.

3909. Do your rules require you to place all the money received into one general fund? I take it that the first rule says that.

3910. And did the Registrar pass that rule? He passed a rule without any comment that I remember.

3911. You therefore consider the Society justified in keeping only one account? Yes, it was commenced before I took office, and I continued it on.

3912. Much reference has been made to a mistake which was made in the balance sheet a few years ago, in which a large sum was put down for loss. Was that mistake likely to make the Society appear to its members in a more favourable position than it really was? No, it would appear in a worse position.

3913. Then the mistake could not have been inserted for the purpose of bolstering up the appearance of the Society? Certainly not.

3914. Mr. Abigail.] Your Society is a religious society? A religious benefit society.

3915. Does it dispense anything for charity apart from legitimate benefits? No, we give nothing for charity. I am speaking of course of my own time.

3916. If you will follow me—I am quoting from the preface—it speaks of the wide usefulness and success of your Society; had it been a success up to that time? That was the preface to a previous edition of the rules. I was not in the city at the time.

3917. If you turn to the next page you will read, "The constitution of the Society, in that it relates to subscriptions, payments to the scale of relief, &c., was established on the tables of eminent actuaries"; is that so? I must make the same answer to that as to the others. I was not a member at the time it was written.

3918. Does it apply to your Society? Yes.

3919. Now, can you tell us what was the contribution at that time certified by these actuaries? I may make a mistake in stating it I do not know whether there was any difference between the contribution then and now. It is fifteen years ago; since my time the contribution has been always the same.

3920. Then lower down it says, "The funds, as compared with the number of members, are unprecedentedly large." Can you say if that was so? I cannot. I should imagine it was true, or it would not be put there.

3921. Would these remarks apply to your Society in its present condition? They are not intended to apply to it in its present condition.

3922. Are you working under this code of rules? Yes, but that is a preface to a previous edition.

3923. Are your funds at the present time, "as compared with the number of your members and taken in consideration with your liabilities, unprecedentedly large"? It would take an actuary to answer that question. I do not know the funds of any other Society to compare them with.

- Mr. T. J. Murray.
24 Feb., 1882.
3924. Do the members of your Guild, in your opinion, reap greater advantages than other Benefit Societies? I believe they receive as great benefits as any other Societies; there are the temporal benefits, and they have the spiritual benefits, which we think others would not consider a benefit.
3925. On page 6 of the preface it says, "And once again, it is an open Society. The secret Societies, to belong to which puts a man at once out of Christian Communion, are day by day, by the crimes of which they are the means or the cause——." Have you in your experience any knowledge of Friendly Societies that would apply to? I have no knowledge of any Society beyond the Guild. I know nothing of that; it is an old preface, as I said before.
3926. Can any number of men following your religion establish a Branch without the authority of the Church or Chaplain? The rules somewhere state that twenty or twenty-five members applying for a Lodge to be established in any place, with the consent of the Council, should have it established.
3927. Do you think your Societies have relieved the State from burdens which would have come on it if such provision had not been made by the members? I believe itself it has relieved hundreds of families.
3928. Are you of opinion that the State should exercise a careful supervision over benefit Societies? I am.
3929. Would you favour annual audits by Government Auditors? I would.
3930. Were your accounts ever submitted to a Mr. Bass, a public accountant? Not to my knowledge.
3931. Are you of opinion that a periodical valuation of assets and liabilities of all Benefit Societies should take place? I should think it would be a very good thing.
3932. Do you think such should be done by members of the Societies or by Government officers? I think it would be more satisfactory and less liable to any mistake if there was a properly constituted Government officer.
3933. In your experience, are the men appointed to audit the balance-sheets fit to do so; is the work performed in a satisfactory and safe manner? Yes; since I have taken office there has been a most strict scrutiny at every audit.
3934. Do you attach much importance to correct annual returns being forced on the Societies? I think they are certainly very necessary.
3935. Are the returns sent in to you from your Branches, and from you to the Registrar, or do they go direct to the Registrar? I have had charge of the Sydney Branches, and have posted him a copy of our report.
3936. But the Act makes provision that annual returns of Branches shall be sent to the Registrar, setting forth their rate of sickness and death rate, and the manner in which their funds have been expended? I am not certain that I have sent them in always. I have sent in returns, and have always sent our annual reports to the Registrar.
3937. Do you examine the returns when they are sent in? The Sydney ones I do; but I have nothing to do with the country Branches.
3938. Do you find them correct? Yes, I have always found them correct.
3939. By whom are they audited? By the members of the Society.
3940. Does your experience favour Friendly Societies being allowed to sink moneys subscribed for sick and funeral benefits in building halls? I do not know how to answer that; it is a question I have not considered, and I really could not give a definite answer to the question.
3941. Following that up, I will ask can you state whether the Guild Hall has been a source of profit to your Society, taking all things into consideration? I do not think it has been a very great profit or any loss. If it were set down at the marketable value, there would be no loss on it.
3942. I see in one of your balance-sheets dated 1880 there is a separate account called the Scarf Account and Picnic Account? That was merely published to show the members how the funds of the picnic were appropriated.
3943. Have you thought sufficiently of the subject to state what in your opinion is a satisfactory amount per head to make the assets perfectly sound? I have not thought of that.
3944. What amount does your Society show? The number of members is 979, but I have not calculated it.
3945. How much of this is available for present requirements; that is, what is the amount you have in hand? £351 14s. 6d.; that was the amount of funds in the Bank on February 18.
3946. That includes calls upon it for deaths, sick pay, medicines, and other expenses? All that might arise; we have an overdraft at the Bank if necessary.
3947. So if more were required you would have to borrow it at interest? Yes.
3948. How many meetings do you hold? Sometimes one a week.
3949. And what would it cost if you rented a room to hold the meetings in per night? That is a calculation I should have to go into. Every second Monday and Tuesday are Lodge nights; every Friday night is sick pay night; and the Council meetings are held once a week. £4 a week was paid some time ago.
3950. Are some of your Lodges now not in a sound financial position? There are only seven Lodges in Sydney, and all the money from these goes into one fund. The Lodges in the country I have no knowledge of their accounts, because we have nothing to do with their funds.
3951. Have you provision in your laws for making levies to meet any extraordinary amount of sickness or mortality? I do not think there is, but am not certain on the point.
3952. Does your Council make it a portion of their business to consider the financial condition of any of the Branches? There are no Branches; the money all goes into one fund.
3953. Are you acquainted with James Bennet Hickey, of Victoria? No, I am not.
3954. He is chief of the Hibernian Catholic Society in Victoria? I do not know him.
3955. Do you think the liabilities of a Society increase as the ages of its members increase? Well, I have always understood that when a Society has been established about thirty years there is a greater drain on its funds than at the beginning.
3956. I think you said that you thought 1s. a week subscription was sufficient? 1s. 2d.; I fancy that would be enough.
3957. Is there any amount paid for any religious observances in connection with your Society? Yes, there is an amount paid to the Chaplain.
3958. How much? It is not a fixed sum; he gets 10s. for saying the funeral service over each member who dies, and for masses.

3959. Were you connected with the Society before 1876? I was elected on 29th November, 1876.
3960. Do you know if you have had any great differences with retiring officers of your Society in settling up their affairs? Never, since I have been in office.
3961. You were a member of the Society before you took office? Not very long.
3962. I see this report, dated 30 June, 1876, states that "the books were sent to the office of Mr. Bass, but he would have nothing to do with them. Mr. Joseph Carroll, special auditor, was then engaged, and he, after weeks of labour investigating the accounts, has furnished reports, which will be read to you, their publication at present being deemed inadvisable"? Anything I know is from hearsay, and I know nothing personally of the matter.
3963. You do not know whether Mr. Carroll's reports were ever published? No, I do not think they were ever published; there is a mention made of the matter in the report dated December, 1876.
3964. Then this report (for June, 1876) states:—"Your Council has met weekly since February; and but for the warm interest shown by all its members, but more especially the Warden, Bursar, Trustee Fitzgerald, and Councillor Costello, who procured an overdraft from the City Bank, the affairs of the Society would have been in a bad state ere this, and the erection of the Hall would have been stopped." Can you say anything of the reasons which brought the Society to such a state? I have no knowledge of the matter myself, and at the time I do not know that I was even in Sydney.
3965. William Brady is here set down as Warden; I suppose he could tell us? He was Warden at the time.
3966. Who pays the money in your Society? The Bursar.
3967. You have a guarantee, I suppose? Yes, there is a guarantee given.
3968. Is it given by a Guarantee Society or individual members? Individual members go security, I believe.
3969. What is the amount? I think it is fixed at £150.
3970. When you take members as security, do you take any means of ascertaining whether the member giving the security is able to pay? It has always been the rule to do so.
3971. Do you not think it would be better to insist upon a guarantee bond from a Society? If the Society were to pay it, but it would not be fair for the Bursar to pay for the bond, as he receives no salary.
3972. You do not pay him? No.
3973. Then, if he misappropriated the funds, you could not proceed against him? I do not know; he does not get any salary.
3974. Would you favour, in any new law, a provision making it compulsory to take a guarantee? Yes, I would.
3975. Mr. Smith.] You were not a member of the Guild when the land for building the hall was purchased? No, I was not.
3976. You know nothing about it? No.
3977. And nothing about the cost of the building? It was nearly erected when I joined.
3978. Do you know of your own knowledge that there was a report submitted? I could not say; it was pretty well all settled when I came in as Secretary, but I believe I did see the report at the time the law proceedings were going on. I do not think I ever read it.
3979. If it was not printed, of course the manuscript copy would be in your office? I presume it would be somewhere.
3980. In looking over this report (for June, 1876) there are two items under the head of assets, "Due by past Bursar and ex-Secretary, per special audit, £205 15s. 11d.," and "Subscriptions to be accounted for, £3 13s. 8d.?" Yes.
3981. Is it not a fact that they repudiated any liability? I do not know from my own knowledge.
3982. Could you name persons who would be likely to supply the information? Mr. Brady was Warden at the time they were suing these people, and it was he who pushed and pressed the matter.
3983. Mr. Abigail.] Were you in office at the time of Mr. McEugrove having some dispute with the Society? He has been making applications during my time, but the claim did not arise during my time.
3984. President.] I asked you on the last occasion for certain information in reference to the total amount of money paid on behalf of your District for sick pay and funeral donations? Yes; the following table will give the information:—

Year.	Mortuary.			Sickness.
1877	337	0	0	649	17	9
1878	609	19	0	670	0	6
1879	560	0	0	782	4	0
1880	726	0	0	843	0	10
1881	405	0	0	866	3	6

3985. And what amount has been paid on behalf of medical attendance and chemists? I will supply that to the Secretary; I have not got it here.
3986. Mr. Greville.] I think you said your mortuary rate for the last three half-years was exceptionally high? The mortuary for all these six years appears to be very high.
3987. But you said in your evidence at the last sitting that the rate for the last three half-years had been exceptionally high? Yes.
3988. Exceptionally high as compared with previous experience? I simply stated that from what I had heard other members say.
3989. Then what do you mean by exceptionally high? That a greater number have died than in previous years.
3990. Have you any reason for believing that it will be exceptionally high as compared with future experience? I do not think we ought to have any higher death rate than we have had; all the old members have died out.
3991. Then may it not be presumed that the rate of the last three half-years will no longer be exceptionally high? I do not think it will be so high for future years.

- Mr. T. J. Murray. 3992. And do you found that upon any calculation? I have made no calculation.
 3993. President.] Will you kindly furnish, as an appendix, the total amount of money expended on medical attendance and medicines, with the total receipts from all sources, extending over the last five years? Yes.
 24 Feb., 1882. 3994. Have you any suggestions to make that might be embodied in any future legislation? I do not think of anything at present; I have not given the thing a great deal of consideration.
 3995. Mr. Rubie.] In answer to Mr. Greville, you said you found in looking over the hall accounts some credits? I said one credit.
 3996. How much was it? I could not say exactly—it was just for the sale of some old materials. It may have been £300 or £400, but I could not say.

The Commission then adjourned until Monday, 27 February.

MONDAY, 27 FEBRUARY, 1882.

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
 E. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
 P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
 JOHN SLADE, Esq.,

JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
 F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
 P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
 E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. Jeremiah Crowley was sworn and examined:—

- Mr. J. Crowley. 3997. President.] You are a member of the Australian Holy Catholic Guild? Yes, I joined it in 1869.
 27 Feb., 1882. 3998. You are a very old member, then? I am not a member of the Guild now; I was a member some time ago, but am not now.
 3999. When did you cease to be a member? Twelve months since.
 4000. Why did you cease to be a member? I will tell you by-and-by; or, if you like, I will answer it now.
 4001. Answer it now? The District of St. Leonards, to which I belonged, was abolished, and the members there felt themselves put to a lot of inconvenience to come into Sydney to pay their subscriptions, and several of us sent in our resignations.
 4002. Did you hold office? I held office in the District, and in the parent Guild I was acting Secretary for a short time.
 4003. Was that in connection with the District? I held office in the District for some time, but in connection with the parent Guild I held office also.
 4004. Were you a member of the Guild when land was purchased for the hall in Castlereagh-street? Yes.
 4005. Who were the purchasers, do you remember? Mr. M'Mahon, of the Macquarie Bond, was one.
 4006. Mr. Brady, was he one? I do not think he was, but am not sure.
 4007. Do you know what was given for the land in Castlereagh-street? I only received notice to attend here on Saturday afternoon; and I do not know exactly, but I think it was £1,700 or £1,800.
 4008. Do you know who sold it? No.
 4009. Do you know that a larger amount might have been received for it than was received? I do not know that it was sold.
 4011. Did you ever hear that a larger sum might have been received for it than was received? I cannot say that I ever did.
 4012. Can you tell what was the number of members in the Society during the time you were Secretary? When I joined the Society in 1869, I was induced to join it because I looked about me and thought there was no other Society like it in New South Wales. I saw the rules were certified by Mr. Robert Thomson, of the Australian Mutual Provident Society, and I had sufficient confidence in him as an actuary, so that I joined it in preference to any other. The funds then averaged something like £9 or £10 a member. He certified the tables, and the number of members was about six or seven hundred.
 4013. Have you any idea of the expenditure of the Branch during any one of these years? I have not, but it was very slight; it was managed in the parish schools, and if it was continued to be so managed it would be the most prosperous Society in New South Wales; but when the Districts were amalgamated it increased the expenditure and lessened the interest of members.
 4014. Can you tell me what was the expenditure of the Guild? No, I cannot, as I handed over all the documents to my successor when I ceased to be Secretary.
 4015. Were you a member in 1875 and 1876? Yes, I was a member from 1869 until last year.
 4016. Have you any knowledge of a defalcation that was alleged to have taken place in 1875 or 1876? Yes, there was something of that kind; there were some errors in the making up of the accounts, and the previous Secretary said he would make good any deficiency as soon as it was made known.
 4017. Did he do so? He did.
 4018. Under pressure or voluntarily? He wrote to say he would make good anything, and there was more than he anticipated; but until he was satisfied that all these errors were established he was unwilling to pay until obliged to do so.
 4019. Were any proceedings taken against the Secretary? I believe he was threatened with a lawsuit, and the matter was referred to the Guild solicitors.
 4020. Was a writ issued? I do not know whether it went to that extent or not.
 4021. But the money was made good? The money was made good.

Mr.
J. Crowley.
27 Feb., 1892.

4023. Do you remember that the auditors audited the accounts and passed that balance sheet and certified to it as being correct? I have seen auditors do worse things than that, considering the kind of auditors there are.

4024. You remember that such was the case? Yes, but that does not substantiate the falsity of the accounts.

4025. You think, then, it was simply a want of knowledge or qualification for auditing accounts? Nothing else.

4026. Do you remember that in 1876 there was a special audit by Mr. Carroll? Yes.

4027. Have you a copy of that? No, I left everything with my successor.

4028. Then who has got a copy of that report? The solicitors I suppose would be the parties who would have it; the matter was referred to them, and they would have the report to go upon.

4029. Do you know the substance of the report—could you tell it from memory? I cannot, except that the ex-Secretary and Bursar were held to be responsible for some money, and both of them promised to make good any moneys that they were alleged to be deficient of in their accounts. In our Society the widow and orphan are concerned, and the highest officer, if guilty of any malpractice would be exposed, for the Society is as open as Port Jackson.

4030. You are not in a position to inform the Commission in reference to the Society since you left it? No.

4031. Do you believe the present Act is sufficient? If the Societies were worked according to the Act, and compelled to make annual and quinquennial returns, I believe half the Societies would be unable to go on; for within twelve months two Societies went over to North Shore and advertised that they would take members for 30s. and 35s., whereas if they came into the Guild they would be required to pay £10.

4032. What Societies do you refer to? One was I believe a Branch of the Oddfellows, and the other a Society I never heard of before, the Square Gardeners or something of that sort.

4033. Free Gardeners? Yes, that is it.

4034. Can you tell the Commission what, in your opinion, is the position of the Guild at the present time, and its financial position regarding its obligations to its members? Well, I have been for a long time thinking that the Guild, if it were localized instead of being one large Society, and divided into parishes or districts, and made self-supporting, would be in a better position in a few years.

4035. But what is your opinion in reference to them at the present time? Well, since I left the Society I have taken no interest in them, but I know they are poorer by two or three pounds a head, than they were when I joined them. But if the increased value of the hall, the great advance in the price of land in Sydney for the last few years, be taken into account, the Guild is now more prosperous than ever it was. An appraiser would now value it at more than double the Society's estimate.

4036. I understood you to say that the Guild, when you joined it, was worth about £8 or £9 per head? Yes.

4037. Do you know the value of the funds now? You have a return there.

4038. Would you think if it showed they were worth £4 a head, that their position was as good as when you joined? Why no, by no means, as the old members' claims become greater every year.

4039. Would you think it a good position if there were a loss on the half-year of £100, that is supposing they had to pay rent? Well, the hall is letting so well now that it will tend to raise the Guild to its former position, as it used to suffer a good deal for want of its being let.

4040. But supposing the expenditure has been £3,100, and the receipts £3,000, what would their position be? Of course if they did not increase their members they would soon go to the wall.

4041. The Guilds have a fixed contribution, have they not? A uniform contribution.

4042. Are you in favour of that, or do you prefer a graduated scale? I would prefer a fixed scale of contributions, and a large entrance fee according to age. The Guilds take members for twelve months, and if they are not sound at the end of that time they return them the money paid, less the expenses. There are certain guarantees in the Guild, one, the examination to which a candidate is subjected, that nobody but strong, healthy people are allowed into it, and without such guarantee no Society can be safe.

4043. Did you separate the accounts or keep them in one? At the time I was Secretary, all the funds of the Society were used and turned into bricks and mortar for the hall. The accounts had been kept separate, but when they wanted money to build the hall, all the available money was used for that purpose and the funds were turned into one.

4044. You approve of the practice of keeping the accounts separate? I do, because, if one fund fails, I do not see why the other funds should be saddled with it.

4045. You would keep the funds separate? Yes, I would. The original rules of the Guild were grand rules, but they have been modified over and over again by men who knew nothing about them.

4046. You do not regard the present rules as the same? The principle is the same, but there have been so many modifications.

4047. You are aware that the funds are kept in one account? Just now they are.

4048. And you disapprove of that? I do.

4049. And during the time you were holding the office of Secretary, did you find the Act in any way deficient in affording proper security to members of your Order? I know there was a large Committee or Council, and they thought that if they passed a resolution of any kind the majorities should rule.

4050. What was the contribution of the Guild? 14d. per member per week.

4051. Is that sufficient do you think to secure the benefits? Quite sufficient if they were in small Districts and there was a careful vigilance exercised. There would be no expense if they were in Districts. In the early days all the officers were honorary, and there were no expenses.

4052. Then 14d. in your opinion is sufficient for all purposes? Yes, considering the entrance fees that are charged, which are very large, in some cases being as high as £12.

4053. How old would that be? About forty years old.

4054. And you are quite sure that 14d. a week is quite sufficient to ensure all the benefits your Society provides for? Yes, if it is managed properly. The Society was established in 1845, and at the age of twenty-five was as profitable as at any period of its existence.

4055. Are you aware that the whole of the assets of the Guild at the present time are in the building? Yes, I believe they are.

4056. Do you think that is a proper state of things? I was not in favour of building it with Guild money.

4057.

- Mr. J. Crowley.
27 Feb., 1882.
4057. Do you think that is a proper state of things for a Society to be in? I should like to have the money otherwise invested.
4058. Have you anything to suggest for future legislation? I have had very little time to think about it. I have nothing to suggest.
4059. Mr. Smith.] You stated to the Commission that your connection with the Society dates from 1869? Yes.
4060. The Society then was in a good and flourishing condition? Yes.
4061. And with a credit of £8 or £9 a member? Yes.
4062. The number of members at that time? Was 600 or 700, I believe.
4063. How many Districts were there? Four or five.
4064. And each District managed its own affairs? Yes.
4065. But the whole of these Districts were managed by a Council, were they not? Yes.
4066. And the funds of the various Districts were kept separate, were they not? No, the Districts all paid their own expenses, and contributed so much besides to the general fund.
4067. Do I understand that each Society formed a District in itself? Yes.
4068. Each Lodge managed its own affairs? It managed its own affairs in its own District, and sent delegates to the Council.
4069. Then that was a subordinate Lodge? It was a District Lodge.
4070. And it sent delegates who formed the Guild Council? Yes.
4071. And that Council managed the whole affairs of the Guild? Yes.
4072. Then what proportion did the subordinate Lodges contribute to the Council? All their savings.
4073. After paying doctors and chemists, and so on, was the balance paid over to the Council? Yes.
4074. And at this particular time did these Societies make a balance as a rule? When I joined the Society there was a District called the St. Leonards District; we used to pay our savings, which went to the general fund, we have contributed to the Widow and Orphan Fund, and to the general fund; and whatever we had over and above our expenditure was contributed to these funds. We believe that from the St. Leonards District, from the time of its erection into a District in 1869 to its abolition in 1879, £160 of our money clear of all expenditure had gone into the funds of the Central Guild, and at the time we were abolished we had fifteen members, so that would give us £10 13s. 4d. per head. We were abolished on the ostensible ground that we were not paying, but these figures will show that we were paying as well as any Society in the country, small as we were.
4075. The list of Societies given here is that of the Districts? No, I do not know anything about Mount Carmel.
4076. Well the others, each of them formed a District within itself? Yes.
4077. And they formed the Council? Yes.
4078. And this Council abolished the District at St. Leonards? Yes.
4079. And you claim that you were entitled to some amount? We were entitled to £160.
4080. What was the fate of the other fourteen members? I know there are very few of them members now; all may have left for all I know.
4081. And did the Council provide for them in any way? Yes, by making them join St. Patrick's District.
4082. And if they did not choose to do that? They had to leave the Society.
4083. Then all these fifteen suffered in this way? I regard it as suffering, though perhaps some of them do not.
4084. Were any additional charges made on these members for joining St. Patrick's? No.
4085. We clearly understand that up to 1869 the Guild was in a flourishing position? Yes.
4086. And with an average sum of £8 or £9 per member? Yes, and I believe still it only requires management to make it what it was.
4087. Will you tell the Commission what has brought about the condition of the Society as it now stands, with reference to its funds and general management? I think with the way the Guild Hall is paying now it will be equal to what it was.
4088. But we simply want to know what has brought about the present condition of the Society? Well, I do not think I can answer that.
4089. Because you have admitted that it has been brought about by bad management and the direction of the funds into channels other than those for which it was subscribed? All I can say is that if it was managed as it was in the early days it would be as prosperous now as it was then.
4090. Well, you have shown that it was managed according to the principles laid down in the Act: now, during your connection with the Society that principle has been departed from, and you state that since then it has fallen into disrepute because it was badly managed, and we want you to state what the bad management consists of? Well, I could not really swear; I may think something is the matter, but I could not really swear what it may be.
4091. Well, to the best of your opinion; that is all we want? You have already said that I have said it was bad management. Having left the Society, I do not think the Commission would expect me to give full details. If the Guild were obliged to adhere to the workings of a Society under the Act there would be no necessity for the Commission. They did many things not in accordance with the Act, and one departure from the rules led to another, and so the management became generally loose.
4092. And it is your opinion that the Act is ample in itself to regulate the workings of these Friendly Societies? I believe if the Registrar, instead of doing as he does—take a guinea for every rule—provided that every Society should bring a certificate from an actuary that the contributions would ensure the benefits, it would be sufficient; and if these and the reports were laid annually before Parliament, the public would be cautioned as to the Societies that were not in a good financial position.
4093. Then you think if the Act had been fairly administered the position of the Society would have been better? Yes, I believe it would.
4094. Then, through the whole of your experience in connection with the Society, you have come to the opinion that if the Act had been fairly administered this particular Society would have occupied a better position financially? I have.
4095. Then you attribute the position it now occupies to the fact that the Act has not been fairly administered? Yes.

The witness retired and the Commission deliberated.

The

The examination of the witness was resumed:—

Mr.
J. Crowley,
27 Feb., 1882.

4096. Mr. Abigail.] Have you been a member of any other Society? No, I have not.
4097. Have you had anything to do with the returns of your Society for the Registrar? No.
4098. How are they compiled—by the various Branches? Each District sends in its returns for the year, and from these returns a balance-sheet and statement of income and expenditure are prepared for the whole Society and sent in to the Registrar.
4099. Then there is only one balance-sheet? Only one, representing the whole District.
4100. From your experience of the Auditors, do you think that the work should be performed by a Government officer? Well, I do not like to impose everything upon the Government, but would rather suggest that the Government should supply a form of account to each Society, and that this form, filled in annually, should be sent in to the Registrar. Then the accounts would be uniform, and the Registrar would see any defects in the Society.
4101. Then you think that the Registrar should examine the accounts and certify that they are correct? No. If from the Government forms of account were supplied to all Societies, these would be filled in and sent in to the Registrar, and he would be able to see whether these were solvent Societies or not.
4102. Yes, but what about examining the different accounts in the balance-sheet, who should do that, in your opinion? If these forms were sent in, he would see at a glance whether the Society was solvent or not.
4103. Now I want to know whether your experience of auditing has been sufficient to enable you to say that the Society should do it or a Government officer? Well, no doubt a Government officer would do it more efficiently.
4104. Do I understand you to be in favour of an actuarial certificate in the establishment of new Societies? Certainly.
4105. Would you favour a provision in any new Act for a periodical investigation into the affairs of Societies? I would; as it is provided for in the Companies' Act.
4106. Do you think the contingent liabilities of Societies increase as they get older? Well, there is an offset against this in the accession of new members.
4107. Have you thought it out what addition of new members is necessary to meet that? No, I have not.
4108. I see in your book you state the scale of tables of your Society in its early days was certified to; by whom? By Mr. Robert Thomson of the Mutual Provident Society.
4109. Were the contributions then the same as now? No, there have been modifications made by the Council, but I do not know the tendency of these alterations.
4110. That paragraph in this preface exercised an influence in inducing you to join the Society? I think that is one of the most modern codes of rules. No, it never influenced me.
4111. But the fact that Mr. Thomson had certified? That was the principal thing that influenced me. Of course I preferred a Society based upon religion if the benefits were the same.
4112. The Friendly Societies Act makes provision for dealing with any person who misappropriates the funds of a Society—are you aware of that? I am quite aware of it.
4113. And your laws also deal with the matter, making provision that any member misappropriating or using any funds, the third rule says:—"All moneys received on account of contributions, donations, entrance, fines, or otherwise, shall be applied towards carrying out the objects of the Society, and paying the expenses of management according to the rules thereof. Any officer misapplying the funds shall repay the same and be expelled, and shall never after be readmitted or reinstated." Can you say whether that law was enforced in the cases you referred to? Yes, they made ample amends for their fault.
4114. Mr. Langley.] You have just stated that these gentlemen made ample atonement: if the accounts show that they paid something less than £50 less than the special audit showed was due, do you believe they made ample atonement? I would not if there was £50 deficient, but I do not believe there was fifty pence.
4115. If it is stated in this account here that such was the case, you would not consider that making ample atonement? I would make them pay the last farthing.
4116. You stated that, over and above your working expenses or actual expenses, your profits were sent in for religious purposes or for the working of the Guild? It was sent in for the widow and orphan, and to provide mortuary expenses and sick benefits; not for religious purposes.*
4117. That is, the money was actually sent in for the widow and orphan and mortuary expenses? Yes.
4118. That money which you say was paid in by the St. Leonards District was amalgamated with the general fund of the Guild? Yes. St. Leonards was a Branch as much as St. Mary's or St. Benedict's.
4119. Were you one of the persons who took action against the Guild for the purpose of obtaining your due proportion of the money due? I took no action except protesting against the action of the Council.
4120. Did you take legal proceedings? No; it was a matter for Equity, and we could not afford it.
4121. Do you think that if the provisions of the Act had been carried out with due regard to the arrangement of your funds and the workings of your Society as you joined it, the money could have been taken from St. Leonards Branch and kept from them? It was not taken away from us.
4122. But it was kept from you? It was in the hands of the parent Guild. Every year we had to send the savings of our District to meet the Insurance Fund, and to make a reserve fund for anything that might be required.
4123. Were the members of your Society in any way consulted as to their wishes whether they were to be abolished or not? I am sure every one of us was opposed to abolition.
4124. I simply ask were you consulted? No.
4125. Then, without the consent of the subscribing parties to that fund, their rights as a separate District were abolished and you were attached to some other portion in Sydney? The Council resolved to abolish the District, and called a general meeting at which we were represented; and though we protested they abolished it.
4126. Had your District any voice in the management of your funds? We were represented in the Committee of Management or Council.
4127. But you stated that several alterations were made in your laws: when you joined, did your rules give you any right to a voice in the management of your funds? We were represented on the Council.

NOTE (on revision):—On Mr. Langley insinuating that the surplus funds of the Guild were devoted to religious purposes, I said when Catholics contributed to religion they did so above board: they never supported religion by robbing the widow and orphan. The managers of the Guild held the funds as sacred as he held the apple of his eye.

Mr.
J. Crowley.
27 Feb., 1882.

4128. You volunteered some evidence as to Lodges starting at North Shore; have you any personal knowledge of the facts? No.

4129. Then if the Constitution of one Order shows that the fees are higher than those of the Catholic Guild, how could you inform the Commission that they were taking less? I have my knowledge on the instability of Societies opened when they are paying fees equal to the Guild.

4130. But suppose one of the Societies charges higher? Then that will be so much to their advantage.

4131. Then how can you make that coincide with the answer you have given to the Commission that the Societies that have been established over there could not possibly carry out their obligations? Well, that was if they gave the same benefits as the Guild. They advertised to establish on half-fees.

4132. If the Registrar certifies such a rule? He never looks as to whether the contributions are sufficient to guarantee the benefits, provided you put your guinea down.*

4133. Mr. Rubie.] You have had a good deal of expense in the Guild in lawsuits for some time? The reports will show that.

4134. Do you know of your own knowledge? Yes, there were some law expenses.

4135. Do you think in any new Act these expenses might be done away with, by having a Court of Appeal composed of members of various Societies? I know one case in which the judgment of a Court of Arbitration was given against the Chairman of a Society, and the report was never acted upon.

4136. But I am referring to one in which the members of the Court should be composed of members of different Societies? Not unless the rules were uniform, as they would know nothing about the workings of the Societies.

4137. But would they not know more than a Judge, who knows nothing? Probably they would.

4138. Mr. Gelding.] Are you aware on what basis Mr. Thomson has certified that the scales laid down were correct? I should think upon the principle of actuarial science.

4139. Do you know whence he gained that knowledge? I know he was a Fellow of the Institute of Actuaries.

4140. Are you aware that other actuaries one and all certify that the tables of Friendly Societies as at present worked are thoroughly valueless? No, I am not aware of that.

4141. Then I presume if you saw a person who wrote himself actuary certify to tables you would believe they were quite correct? Actuarial science can be so demonstrated that they could come to the calculation.

4142. Do you believe he ever went into the question of the actuarial position? I think he did, and that he was paid for it.

4143. What amount was he paid? I am not aware.

4144. You are not acquainted with Friendly Societies in Great Britain? Except what I have read about them.

4145. Did you ever see the tables of the M.U. in Great Britain, the sliding scale? No, I have not.

4146. Are you aware that to insure the same rate of benefits we are receiving here, we should have to pay something about 2s. a week on an actuarial basis by even an actuary belonging to a Friendly Society? We are in a healthier country, and get more for our investments.

4147. Do you think there is such a great difference between the mortality in Great Britain and that in New South Wales as to warrant a man —? Well, in some parts of England it is very great, reaching as high as fifty in the thousand, while it is only fifteen a thousand at North Shore.

4148. What is it in Sydney? I do not know.

4149. Is it not equal to that of large towns in Great Britain? Unfortunately it is the last few years I believe.

4150. Have you paid any attention to the Friendly Societies Act; you said it would be perfect if it were properly worked? No; I said if its provisions had been enforced many of the Societies would be in a better position than they are now.

4151. That is in reference to —? The annual and quinquennial returns.

4152. Do you not think, in framing a new Act, before a Lodge was allowed to be opened it should send in its proposed rules, scales of payment, and benefits to be given to the members? I go thoroughly with you in that, and think it is quite indispensable to the working of a Society.

4153. President.] Have you any desire to supplement your evidence by any statement, or any suggestions to make? No; I might make a few suggestions. At one time I paid a good deal of attention to the working of the Societies, and I think they ought to be assisted by the Government; and that it is a pity that there should be such laxity in carrying out the Act.

4154. You highly approve of the principle of the Mutual Provident Society? Yes.

4155. And do you think the A.H.C. Guild is able to pay £40 on the death of a member for 14d. a week? But they do not die at once.

4156. But in case of death? A member joins sound and in good health, and the mortality amongst them is only three in a hundred, I think.

4157. Then in reference to the initiation fees, I understood you to say you were opposed to a graduated scale? I would have levies by means of which a prosperous Branch would help a weaker Branch.

4158. Then you have nothing further to add to the evidence you have given? No.

4159. If there is anything subsequently, you may write it out and give the Commission the benefit of it, and they will append it to your evidence? I will in a week or two.

4160. Mr. Gelding.] Did I understand you to say that your Society's sick pay was refused to a member if he was ill of a chronic complaint? We pay nothing for the first twelve months.

4161. He has to be in your Society twelve months before he is submitted to the test of a medical gentleman? No; he is submitted twice—on joining, and at the end of twelve months.

4162. Supposing that during that time he contracts any disease likely to be chronic, do you think it fair, considering he joined as a sound member, that he should be debarred from his benefits? Justice to the other members requires it. We must keep the law in all cases.

4163. But I ask you about the justice of it? The good of the many must be attended to.

* NOTE (on revision):—The Registrar's certificate is no guarantee of safety. He certifies to the legality, not to the soundness of the constitution of a new Society or the alteration of rules of an old Society.

William Brady sworn and examined:—

Mr.
W. Brady.

27 Feb., 1882.

4164. President.] Are you a member of the Australian Holy Catholic Guild? Yes.
4165. How long have you been connected with it? Over twenty years.
4166. What offices have you held? The Councillorship and Wardenship.
4167. In the District? Yes.
4168. What office do you hold now? None; only a member.
4169. Can you tell the Commission what number of members you have in connection with the District? I could not be exact, but about a thousand.
4170. Could you tell the amount of money paid last year for sick pay? I cannot.
4171. Could you tell us anything about the sale of the land in Liverpool-street? That was sold by auction.
4172. Was there not an offer made privately for fully £500 more than it fetched? Not that I am aware of.
4173. Was there a profit on the transaction? No, there was a loss.
4174. Do you remember what the amount of loss was? I think £1,400 was paid first, and a good deal of money was laid out, and I think it was sold for £1,300 or £1,500.
4175. During the time you were a member of the Society do you remember some defalcations occurring in connection with its management? Yes.
4176. Do you remember to what extent they were, and to what amount? I could not give any information except the audit. We could not tell what the defalcations were, but I think it was Mr. Carroll who discovered them.
4177. Have you a copy of his report? No.
4178. Do you know who has? I think the solicitors.
4179. Can you state the substance of it? No, not from memory.
4180. The officers took action to recover the amount? Yes.
4181. Was the amount recovered? The affair was handed over to the solicitors; the officers knew nothing about it.
4182. But was the whole amount recovered? I think so.
4183. Was not the amount over £200? No it was not.
4184. Does the balance-sheet show it was over £200? Not that I am aware of.
4185. Does this balance-sheet, of 31 December, 1876, show that? Yes, whatever the auditor put in it was put down. It was left in the solicitors' hands—at all events I had nothing to do with it except to bring the men to justice.
4186. Do you know anything about the balance-sheet of 1876, showing a deficiency of £1,495? That was a mistake.
4187. Can you explain that mistake? Of course I cannot, but the Secretary did.
4188. Are you aware that the same balance-sheet was submitted to auditors and approved of by them? I am not; I know nothing about the thing, because it was all in the hands of the Secretary.
4189. But as a matter of fact, as a member of the Society, and a leading member, were you not aware that the accounts were audited by Mr. Thomas O'Connor and Mr. Mark T. Ronan, and certified as correct? I never took the slightest notice of it, and if it was loss we should know it; but it must be a mistake in putting down the figures.
4190. But I suppose the report and balance-sheet were read to the meeting? Yes, but if I remember aright it was explained to the brethren.
4191. Are you aware that at the present time the whole of your funds go into one fund? I believe so.
4192. How long has that been the practice? I never knew it to be any other way.
4193. But were the accounts never kept separate and distinct? The accounts, when the report was brought up, were separated, showing the different amounts put away for various accounts, but I think it was always one General Fund.
4194. But were not different accounts kept? I do not think so.
4195. Then am I to understand that there was always one General Fund? Yes; but in the dividing of money there would be so much put down for General Fund, and so much for Widow and Orphan; but it all went into one General Fund.
4196. In your opinion, is the financial position of your Society as good now as it was ten years ago? I think so.
4197. Do you know what the accumulated funds are now? I do not, except from the report. I believe the hall now is worth double the money it was when it was put up.
4198. You take the assets of the Society at the present time——? To be better now than ever. If the hall was sold off it would bring double what is down there.
4199. Are you aware that the whole of the assets are in the hall itself? Yes.
4200. Do you know there is a very small sum of money available for general purposes? I do not know anything about that; I never go near them now.
4201. And do you believe the Society is as well managed now as when you were an officer? Well, there are always differences in a Society, but I think so.
4202. Are you aware of the contributions being uniform in connection with your Guild? Yes.
4203. And do you approve of that system? I think so long as it pays it is well enough.
4204. Do you believe 14d. a week is sufficient to secure the donation to 5-year old members of the sum of £40? I do not think it would stand the test at present if all the members did pay in; but there are a great many that are admitted but do not keep themselves good on the books.
4205. But they would not be entitled to the funeral donation, would they? A man may owe 14s., and if he dies he would be entitled to the benefit if he pays. When he is 14s. bad, 2s. 6d. would keep him good on the books.
4206. Then you think 14d. is sufficient to insure to all your members in case of death £40, £20 from the Widow and Orphan Fund, and £20 from the General Fund, and also a guinea a week in case of sickness? Yes, it has done so now.
4207. You believe it is sufficient? I think so.
4208. Have you had much to do with the Friendly Societies Act during the time you have been an office-bearer? No, not much.
4209. Have you any knowledge of its provisions? I have read part of it.
4210. Have you found any inconvenience from it? Not the slightest.
- 4211.

- Mr. W. Brady.
27 Feb., 1882.
4211. Have you found it afford all the support and relief your members would expect to find it afford a well regulated Society? I think so; it has seemed to work well.
4212. Have you anything to suggest for any future legislation that might be embodied in a new measure? No.
4213. Have you ever been connected with any other Society? I was in the Oddfellows.
4214. Many years ago? Yes, twenty years ago.
4215. You are not a member now? No.
4216. Mr. Abigail.] Are you master of the facts of Mr. M'Engrove, a member of your Society, having made some claim upon you? Yes.
4217. What were these claims? He was paid off like any other member; he was two years in the Society and he took 5s. a week, and then took his £20 as a final settlement. I do not see what claim he could have on us.

Mr. Edward Joseph Rubie sworn and examined:—

- Mr. E. J. Rubie.
27 Feb., 1882.
4218. President.] Are you a member of any Friendly Society? Of the A.H.C. Guild of St. Mary and St. Joseph.
4219. How long have you been a member? Since 1848.
4220. What offices have you held? I have been Chief Officer or Warden for about twenty-one years.
4221. Have you ever been a member of any other Society? Yes, I was a member of the Australian Benefit Society, and also of some Teetotal Society.
4222. And during the time you have been a member of the Holy Catholic Guild and an office-bearer you have acquired a great deal of knowledge and experience in the working of Societies? I have paid a good deal of attention to the workings of the Society, in order to work out a perfect Society if I could.
4223. And what is your opinion of the present general management of this Society? The management I believe for some years has been very lax.
4224. In what particular? In not carrying out the rules properly.
4225. Do the Societies fail to conform to the Friendly Societies Act? They might conform to the Act and yet not carry out their own rules.
4226. Are their rules not in accord with the Friendly Societies Act? Yes.
4227. Do you approve of the system of keeping the accounts as disclosed in the balance-sheets? I do not. I may state it is a deviation from that which I instituted, and which was carried on while I held office.
4228. What was the practice then? To keep the accounts separate in separate funds.
4229. What is your opinion with reference to the financial position of the Society at the present time, as compared with it during the time you held office? It is in a deplorable condition at the present time, and were it not for the great asset of the Guild Hall there would be scarcely anything.
4230. Do you approve of a Society providing so large a donation as £40 for members in case of death, when they have been five years members? I do not think the Guild provides for that; it is ten years I think.
4231. Do you think 1s. 2d. a week sufficient to secure the payment to a member at death of £40? No, I do not. I may state that the original tables of the Guild were formed by actuarial calculation on the Guild in Victoria by Dr. Gillies—just the same as going into an Insurance Office; they could insure their lives for five, ten, fifteen, or twenty pounds, and could have 5s., 10s., or 20s. a week benefits. Then a member only got benefits up to the age of sixty-five, at the end of which time he came on the Super-annuation Fund, and got so much a week.
4232. And would you prefer a graduated system such as you have indicated to that made in these rules? Yes, I prefer it, and the only reason it was deviated from was that the majority of members then did not like it; they wished for a uniform system and adopted it, rather against the wish of those who had paid any attention to the matter.
4233. Then I understand you are opposed to a uniform system of contributions? Yes.
4234. With reference to initiation fees, do you approve of a graduated system? Yes. I think a former witness stated that we had the opinion of Mr. Thomson. He was of opinion that we might initiate members up to thirty years of age for nothing. I assisted him in making out his scale.
4235. That is to say, that the younger members up to thirty years of age might be admitted free? I think so.
4236. Have you a copy of the scale? Yes, but not here; I can furnish it.
4237. Also Mr. Thomson's report? I think I have that, but I am not certain; but I think I can get it.
4238. What is your general opinion with reference to the present Friendly Societies Act—do you think it affords sufficient security to the members of the different Friendly Societies, and protection to the members? I think if an Act were passed simply for Friendly and Benefit Societies, giving the Registrar more ample powers to reject Societies that would not produce an actuarial calculation, such an Act would work admirably.
4239. Have you during your long term of office in connection with the Society found any inconvenience from the present Act? No.
4240. Do you think the Act is fully and justly administered? Not fully administered, because evidently the Registrar has not carried out some of the clauses in it; for instance, that of making the Secretaries furnish their reports—he has never carried that out, which I think is a most important thing to have carried out, and Societies which do not do it should be struck off.
4241. Then you think the fault has been in the administration of the Act? In a great measure.
4242. You are not at all satisfied with the present management, I gather? No.
4243. Nor with the way in which the rules are enforced? No.
4244. Nor with the way in which the funds are kept? No.
4245. Mr. Smith.] With reference to what the balance-sheet discloses—a loss on the half-year's business of some £1,495—do you know anything of that? No, it has occurred since I left office, and I have taken very little interest in the matter since.
4246. You have no personal knowledge of that? No, I did not know it existed until I saw it here.
4247. Do you think it possible for it to exist and pass auditors, and to be told afterwards it was a mistake? It seems to me most unaccountable that it should pass; I know both of them.

4248. Mr. O'Connor was a smart man? Yes.

4249. Do you think he was likely to pass an account like that? I have every reason to believe that it was a clerical blunder.

4250. Has it come to your knowledge that some of the Guild books are missing? I heard so, but I do not know it of my own knowledge.

4251. Then in the absence of these books it would be almost impossible to make a correct record of the proceedings of the Society? It would. What I understood was that there was a District book missing, but I have no knowledge myself of it.

4252. Mr. Abigail.] Are you in favour, in a new Act, of Government officers being appointed to audit accounts? Not if auditors of sufficient ability can be found by each Society.

4253. Would you favour a periodical valuation of the assets and liabilities? Yes, by all means.

4254. When members are expelled they forfeit the whole of their benefits? Yes.

4255. No matter how long they have been paying in? Yes, but of course in a new system of insurance I think such might not be the case.

4256. You are not of opinion that that is the fairest mode that could be adopted? No, I think in any new system we might take into consideration the desirability of having a certain proportion of the benefits refunded; in fact in our former mode of governing the Society such refunds were common.

4257. Mr. Greville.] Do you consider the Society was originally upon a sure foundation when passed by Mr. Thomson? At that time I did; but the light that has since come in, and the knowledge of working, and more especially of Insurance Societies, convinces me that they were not, though if the whole of Mr. Thomson's recommendations were carried out no doubt they would be so.

4258. Then they were not? Not the whole.

4259. And subsequently further deviations were made and the method of contribution was completely altered? No, not completely altered; the benefits, I believe, have been altered.

4260. And altered to the detriment of the Society? Yes.

4261. Mr. Langley.] In this balance signed by Mr. O'Connor and Mr. Ronan I see "It is impossible to make a proper audit"? I have never seen it.

4262. If that is true, do you not think it is a duty that the Government owe to the Friendly Societies, considering their importance, to prevent such a thing in future? I consider it no audit at all.

4263. If these special auditors could truly make this statement, do you not think it is the duty of the Government, considering the importance of the Friendly Societies, to try and prevent such a thing in future? Yes; no doubt when these gentlemen find a difficulty in getting the accounts into proper shape, it would be then the duty of the Government to step in, precisely the same as in Municipalities.

4264. Mr. Gelding.] Do you belong to any other Society? No.

4265. You still belong to the Guild? Yes.

4266. I see something there about secret Societies: can any one gain admission to the Guild other than members? No.

4267. How do they gain admission, by a sign? No; anybody can walk in, whether a member or not.

4268. Mr. Abigail.] Is nobody at the door? No.

4269. Mr. Gelding.] Nobody ever demands admission? Yes, I remember myself at meetings there were persons.

4270. Are you aware that in all other Friendly Societies the secrecy merely consists of a password and sign, so as to prevent strangers from gaining admission? I cannot say from my own knowledge, because I do not belong to any of them.

4271. Mr. Abigail.] Have you thought out the rate at which liability accrues as age gets on a Society? Yes, I have; I have worked the whole, and have tables of my own working, but they would be rather tiresome for gentlemen not acquainted with the matter to go through.

4272. What amount should Societies have in hand? At one time I thought £10 per head would be a fair average, and I think so still; that is at an interest of 7 or 8 per cent., but it has gone down and is perhaps not likely to rise again.

4273. And your experience would say that a Society with £2 or under per head was not fairly solvent? Decidedly.

The Commission then adjourned until Friday, 3rd March.

FRIDAY, 3 MARCH, 1882.

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
E. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,

JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. John Andrew Kean, President of the United Ancient Order of Druids, sworn and examined:—

4274. President.] What is your name? John Andrew Kean.

4275. Are you a member of any Friendly Society? I am.

4276. What Friendly Society? At present I am the President of the United Ancient Order of Druids.

4277. How long have you held office? This is the second term—the second year.

4278. Did you previously hold any other office? I have passed all the offices in the Order.

4279. And how long have you been a member? About seven years.

4280. Do you know the total number of members in your District? That is a matter concerning which the Secretary could better furnish you with particulars. I was not aware that you would ask me as to the actual number of members we have got. I should suppose we have about 2,000, but the Secretary could furnish you with that information better than I. The working of the Society I would, no doubt, be better able to enlighten you upon.

Mr.
J. A. Kean.
27 Feb., 1882.

4281.

- Mr. J. A. Kean. 4281. What is the amount of accumulated funds that you have? I must also leave that to the Secretary. You have had him here, and my evidence may conflict with his. He is virtually a man of figures, and if he has not satisfied you I should think you should invite him here again.
- 3 Mar., 1882. 4282. Of course I do not want you to tell us anything but what you know of your own knowledge—you are supposed to speak only of what you know. If you have not the information we require, you cannot give it to us; but you are bound under your oath to give us what information you can truthfully give. Can you tell me the amount of money paid on account of sick pay during the last year? That also is in the same position.
4283. What information have you that you can furnish to the Commission? I thought I was invited here to show you how Friendly Societies were working in Sydney. I have been a Forester and an Odd-fellow, and I must say from my knowledge of Societies that the Druids are all that can be expected of them; their funds are protected, and brotherly love is encouraged among the members.
4284. And is their financial position substantial? Yes.
4285. What is the amount of accumulated funds per head? I have already told you that the Secretary could inform you.
4286. But is it £5 or £3 a head? That matter belongs to the Secretary.
4287. How can you speak of the financial position of the Society unless you know something about its funds? I did know when I was there.
4288. We are asking you as a witness to tell us now? I know our Secretary is summoned to come here, and will give you all this information.
4289. You have made a statement that the Druids are a good Society and have a good financial position, but you tell the Commission you do not know the amount of the funds. Has the Society £10,000, or £5,000, or £3,000, or £1,000 to its credit? What is the use of my telling you what belongs to the Secretary?
4290. You said the Druids' Society was one of the best in New South Wales? I say it is managed on a substantial basis.
4291. And we want to know what you can tell us about its substantial basis—you are here to tell us, if you know anything; if you do not know anything, we will not ask you anything about it? I say the Secretary is the proper person to tell you.
4292. Have you any information at all to give to the Commission as to the management of the Society of the Druids? I have nothing further than I have said.
4293. You know nothing at all about its financial position? When I am placed at its head I particularly examine all matters, and sign what I am required to sign.
4294. Are we to understand that you know virtually nothing, but that you preside at its meetings? Yes.
4295. And the Secretary or other officers know about its financial position? Yes.
4296. Have you any reports or balance-sheets showing the financial position of the Society? I have not brought any with me. I was not summoned here as a Druid. This (showing the summons requiring his attendance before the Commission) does not touch on Druidism.
4297. You are summoned here as the head of the Druids? It does not say that here.
4298. There is no occasion for that. Your Secretary gave your name in. Can you give us any information with reference to the general working of the Society of Druids? I can give you information with regard to its general working, but not as to its financial working.
4299. Can you give us the number of members initiated during the last five years? If I had been summoned here as a Druid I would have come with Druidic documents.
4300. We shall have to summon you again. You must give us the information if you have got it in your possession. How long have the Druids been established in New South Wales? To the best of my belief seventeen years in Sydney.
4301. Do you know the amount of benefits paid by the Druids' Society to its members in cases of sickness? All these questions are for the Secretary.
4302. I must have you give me an answer to my questions. You are on your oath, the same as you would be in a Court. What is the amount paid into the Society? 13d. a week.
4303. What is the benefit? A pound a week, less subscription; in case of death, £25 to the widow of a deceased member, or £15 to a member in the event of the death of his wife.
4304. And are your contributions uniform in all your Lodges? Yes.
4305. Do you approve of uniform contributions? Yes.
4306. For all Benefit Societies? I must only speak for this one.
4307. But you have been a member of other Societies? I have.
4308. And do you approve of uniform contributions? I approve of this contribution as a uniform contribution.
4309. Do you believe that 13d. a week is sufficient to insure all the benefits you mentioned? When I speak for my own Society, I do. It is sufficient with careful management.
4310. How long is a person required to be a member of your Society before he is entitled to benefits? Twelve months.
4311. Does he receive medical attendance, medicine, and such like, before twelve months have expired, or soon after his initiation? Immediately after he is initiated.
4312. And the funeral expenses and sick pay are given twelve months afterwards? Yes.
4313. What scale of initiation fees have you? A graduated scale according to age.
4314. What is the limit of age admitted? Forty years.
4315. Have you many members in your District beyond the age of forty? The institution has advanced in years, and there are members in accordance with the age of the institution.
4316. Have you many beyond the age of forty? Yes, we have a considerable number.
4317. Do you know what proportion? I could not answer that exactly.
4318. As a matter of opinion, do you believe the Society to be thoroughly solvent? I do.
4319. And well managed? And well managed.
4320. Have you any idea of the cost of management apart from funeral and sick pay and medical attendance? That is a matter that belongs to the Secretary.
4321. And you cannot answer it? I cannot answer it—not very well, not satisfactorily.
4322. Do your officers summon members who are more than twelve months in arrears? When they are thirteen months in arrears,

Mr.
J. A. Kean.
8 Mar., 1882.

4323. Do you summon them to the Police Court? There have been instances.
4324. Do you as an officer approve of that course? No.
4325. What method have you of deciding cases of dispute between the members in your Lodges? There is a Committee of investigation, in accordance with the laws of the Order, to deal with matters of dispute.
4326. How do you find that to work? Well, we have not had many disputes, but in those we have had it has proved satisfactory.
4327. Have any of your members had occasion to resort to the Law Courts to settle matters of dispute between the Lodges and themselves? Not to my knowledge.
4328. The arrangement contained in your rules and Constitution for dealing with matters of dispute has worked well? It has worked satisfactorily. We are about revising the rules of the Order as they are now.
4329. What is the object of your revising the rules? Because the last five or six years have brought about a considerable change with the additional members we have got, and from past experience there are matters—many matters—which the officers and the members consider it is advisable to have altered.
4330. In what way do you propose to make this revision or alteration? There is a General Committee of members of the Order—from each Lodge of the Order—summoned.
4331. What is the nature of the amendments you propose? We have not determined yet; the matter is in contemplation.
4332. Is it to increase the contribution or the benefits? No, not to touch on the financial working of the Order at all.
4333. You are clearly of opinion that the sum of 13d. a week is sufficient to insure all the benefits that your Society at present pays? I have every reason to believe it is.
4334. Does your Society send in the annual returns to the Registrar as from separate Lodges, or do they go from the District? Well, I do not think that matter has been enforced by Mr. Oliver; it has been done, but I do not think it has been done lately.
4335. That is to say, separate returns have been sent in by the Lodges and then sent on to the Registrar? That has been done, but I do not think it has been done lately.
4336. Do you know the reason why it has not been done? I do not, further than I consider the Registrar of Friendly Societies has not enforced the power that belongs to him.
4337. How are your funds invested? Invested in Management and Funeral Fund.
4338. But how are they secured? They are deposited in the names of the trustees in the Savings Bank.
4339. You have no freehold property—no hall property nor anything of that kind? No.
4340. Have you, as an old officer of the Druids' Society, or have any of your officers, experienced any inconvenience arising from the present Friendly Societies Act in the working and government of the Druids' Society, or in the working and government of any of the various Societies with which you have been connected? We have never yet been brought to clash with it.
4341. Do you think it affords sufficient protection to the members of the various Friendly Societies, and insures to their members the benefits enjoined under the various rules of the Societies? I do not think it answers the purpose at all; one section of it will clash with the other, as far as my humble opinion goes.
4342. Can you point out the portions you believe to be defective? It would take me some some time to peruse it; but I have perused it, and in connection with other Societies I have had occasion to deal with it. I have been brought into contact with Mr. Oliver twice in connection with the Oddfellows.
4343. But during the time you have been an office-bearer in the Druids' Society have you found anything defective in the Act? I have found nothing.
4344. Do you believe the Act provides you with all the protection that you require for a Friendly Society? I do not believe it does.
4345. Do you think the Act has been properly administered? I do not believe the Act is what it was intended to be.
4346. Are you in a position to point out any defects in the Act? Not at present.
4347. I understood you to say you have no reports nor balance-sheets with you? Not in connection with the Druids.
4348. Mr. Abigail.] You are President of the Druids, Mr. Kean? I am.
4349. How long have you been a member of that Society? About seven years.
4350. How long have you been an officer of it? I have filled all the offices in connection with the Lodges, and this is the second term of my office as President.
4351. Were you President in 1880? In 1881 and 1882.
4352. Did you hold any office in 1880? Not in the District.
4353. Were you a member in 1880? Not of the same Lodge.
4354. Have you any doubt of that being a correct report issued by your Society (report handed to witness)? This is one of the reports issued.
4355. This is the report of an annual meeting of the Druids held in the Acorn Lodge-room, Parra-matta, on Wednesday, 21st January, 1880;—you were present at that meeting? I was. I represented my Lodge; I have done so for the last six years.
4356. I understand you have stated to the President of the Commission that the Druids are a well-managed Society? I do state so.
4357. And that their finances are satisfactory? Satisfactory.
4358. I find in this report an account of the names of the Lodges, the number of members, and the amount of their funds. I should like you now to follow me as I go down the list. There is one Lodge, called the Prince Alfred Lodge, with forty-two members; their funds are £6 Os. 3d.; that represents between 2s. and 3s. of an accumulated fund. Do you think that is a sound financial position? But the District Grand Lodge fully provides for a Lodge in that position. In the event of a member dying the District pays its liability.
4359. But suppose that Lodge had ten members who fell sick, does the District Lodge pay their sick pay? In the event of this Lodge being crippled the District Lodge comes to its assistance.
4360. But while the Lodge is in existence, and before it breaks up, does the District Lodge come to its assistance by voting sums of money to meet its liabilities? Lodges are like individuals—they may be weak this year and healthy the next.

- Mr. J. A. Kean.
3 Mar., 1882.
4361. There is a Lodge called the Belmore Lodge, with 147 members and £409;—is that sum of £409 of the Belmore Lodge available for the sick benefits of the Prince Alfred Lodge? Not at all.
4362. The £409 is the property of the Belmore Lodge, and used only for the benefit of its members? Exclusively for that Lodge, and vested in the hands of trustees.
4363. Take the Stonchenge Lodge, with sixty-one members and £46 8s.;—how long has that Lodge been in existence? That was in existence before my time; I have been a member for seven years.
4364. That Lodge has been in existence for seven years, and that is the amount of its Accumulated Fund? No; that Lodge has had its ups and downs; that was its condition for that year.
4365. This is the amount of its Accumulated Fund? But there have been some years when they have had more sick than in others, and this with members leaving may have placed them in that position that year.
4366. Then there is the Rose of Australia Lodge, with forty-five members; they have got £38 14s. 7d., or less than 18s. per member. I can find in this list nine Lodges that have less than £1. per head of an Accumulated Fund. This report is, I suppose, a correct report? Yes, of that year.
4367. And this shows that the total number of members in that year was 1,237, with a fund of £2,511 13s. 7½d.; that, you think, is a sound financial position? I do.
4368. Have you ever considered at what rate these Societies accumulate contingent liabilities? No, I have never given it a thought; I am not prepared to answer that.
4369. Do you think that a Society which pays its way annually is sound? I do.
4370. Without taking into consideration the accumulated liability? I do, because I attribute that to careful management. I said before that Lodges are like individuals—they have their ups and downs.
4371. In your experience, is the sickness in connection with these Lodges heavier with the older than with the younger members? It must be heavier with the older.
4372. So the older the Society is the greater is the drain upon its funds? I do not speak of the age of the Society; I speak of the members of the Lodge. The older members are more liable to be visited with sickness.
4373. From what fund does the District make provision for cases where Lodges fail in meeting their own engagements? There is a Management Fund.
4374. How is that Management Fund made up? There is a levy set apart for a Funeral Fund, and a levy set apart for a Management Fund.
4375. So much per head? Yes.
4376. Suppose these nine Lodges were to fail, and the whole of their members be cast upon the District, do you think the District could satisfactorily discharge all the responsibilities attaching to the position? If those Lodges were to close, the District would have to take them under its control, and place them under the working of the other Lodges, if they would receive them.
4377. Suppose they would not receive them? Then the Lodges would have to be responsible for them.
4378. What is the Accumulated Fund in the District? You have just stated it.
4379. This (referring to return dated 21st January, 1880) represents the total amount of the funds—has the District any fund of its own apart from that belonging to the Lodges? The District can have no General Fund but what belongs to the General Fund of the Order.
4380. Will you explain how the District would provide for those members? If a member joins our Order, there are rules and regulations for his guidance. He is told that he is entitled to these benefits, and that, in the event of his Lodge closing, the District would impose a levy on every member, per head, to meet its liabilities.
4381. Your laws give you power to make special levies to meet any claim or contingencies that may arise? It says any reasonable amount.
4382. What do you think a reasonable amount—have you ever discussed what is a reasonable amount in connection with the District—have you ever had under consideration the financial condition of any of these Lodges, and thought what may arise in this question of levying? It is a matter that has never been brought before me, and therefore I have not discussed it. If a Lodge was going to close, the matter would come before the officers of the District and would be dealt with. It has not come under my notice.
4383. Here is a Lodge—the Acorn Lodge—with thirty-three members and only £3 15s. in funds. You have had extensive experience of Friendly Societies? I have.
4384. Would your experience justify you in saying that this Lodge was in a satisfactory state? I say it may be that way one month and different the next. There may be liabilities out, which are not shown there, and which may have come in after that report was made up.
4385. But if that Lodge had any liabilities to come in, where would they have found the means to meet them? There may be thirty or forty members who fall in arrear, and when this matter is brought before their notice—that these liabilities must be paid—I mean to say that there are often members who through carelessness or through removing into the country have got into arrear, and immediately they are notified they pay up their liabilities, and this places the Lodge in a strong financial position. It may show to-day a considerable set-off, and a month hence it may be quite another thing.
4386. Are you aware that the annual report of 1881 sets forth the same facts as are disclosed in this report of 1880? I am not aware of it.
4387. Have you had anything to do with auditing accounts, or seeing accounts audited in connection with your Society? I was auditor of the Golden Gate Lodge one time.
4388. Is the work performed by the auditors generally satisfactory and reliable? Generally speaking.
4389. Would you favour, in any new Act, Government appointed auditors to examine into the accounts of Friendly Societies? I would. I maintain that Friendly Societies cannot be too carefully watched over.
4390. Does your Society send its returns in regularly? I have said before, that latterly the returns have not been sent in regularly, and that this is in consequence of the carelessness of the Registrar of Friendly Societies in not enforcing them.
4391. Do you think that in any new Act there should be a clause inflicting a penalty for non-compliance? I think there should be a general Inspector of Friendly Societies through the country, to watch and protect their members and funds.
4392. Are your Lodges very regular in sending in their balance-sheets? They must be produced every quarter.
4393. Was there anything said at that meeting I have referred to at Parramatta, about a Lodge not having sent in any balance-sheet? I do not remember; every Lodge has to send in its returns to the annual or semi-annual meeting.

4394. I find this report states that the Prince Alfred Lodge sent no balance-sheet in, and that last quarter's balance-sheet was signed by only one auditor. Have you any knowledge of that? I have no knowledge of that.

4395. In connection with your Lodges is it compulsory on the members to purchase and wear regalia? No.

4396. The officers, I suppose, wear regalia? Only the officers.

4397. Is that regalia expensive? Not very.

4398. Can you tell us what a set of officer's regalia costs? About £2 10s.

4399. Are the delegates paid at the annual meeting? Their Lodges pay them. The Lodge that sends them pays their expenses.

4400. At what rate? A very trivial rate—10s. per member.

4401. Per day? Per day.

4402. You stated that the laws of your Society have been sufficient to settle your disputes—did you take any part lately in instituting proceedings that resulted in two of the members of your Society being sent to gaol for their dues? Those proceedings were taken without our consent; some individual—the Secretary of the Lodge—took them. It did not meet with the approval of the Order.

4403. You are opposed to that power being given by any Society? Thoroughly opposed to it, because it breaks the principles of the Order, where there is any pretension to brotherly love and friendship.

4404. Are you of opinion that when a member gets so much into arrear the Lodge should have power to strike him off the books? The law fully provides for that. After a specified time he is suspended from all payments, and then he is suspended from the Order.

4405. Do the officers of the District propose taking any action against the Lodge that initiated these proceedings without their authority? We have no power to do so. Each Lodge governs itself. There is a Court of Appeal, and if they are dissatisfied they appeal to the Board of Arbitrators.

4406. But is it not competent to discuss and settle a question at a District meeting in such a manner as will control the Lodges on that question? There is a Board of Directors.

4407. And has that Board decided that a Lodge should not proceed at law for the recovery of dues? That is one of the things which are to be revised.

4408. Suppose the matter is sent on by a Lodge? If it is sent in a legal manner and discussed they will entertain it.

4409. And if it is entertained, and it is decided that they shall sue the members, that will have the force of law with the Lodges? Yes, because it goes to the various Lodges.

4410. Has anything been done with reference to a Druids' Hall? Some four years ago I was one who advocated the purchase of a piece of ground and the erection of a building for that purpose. That fell through after being twelve months in hand.

4411. No money collected was set aside for that purpose? No.

4412. Are you in favour of Benefit Societies investing in building halls? I look upon a Society as upon individuals; they have a right to have their own home if they can.

4413. But the funds are subscribed for sick benefits and funeral donations, and do you think that funds so subscribed, unless they are very large, should be invested in that way? If the institution is based on a substantial basis, I do not see why they should not invest their money to bring in a safe return in a safe investment.

4414. Do you spend any of the funds of the District or Lodges in testimonials, suppers, picnics, or so forth? No, those things come out of the individual pockets of the members.

4415. What arrangement have you in connection with clearances? Any member in the Colony of New South Wales can throw in his clearance free; a member coming from Victoria or South Australia has to pay 5s. Our Order is now established throughout the universe, and we hold relationship with each Branch of the Order wherever it may be—in America, England, Germany, or elsewhere.

4416. Are there any forms or ceremonies conveying penalties besides those that appear in your printed rules? None.

4417. If any of your members occupy public positions, do you in any way control their actions? As far as Druidism is concerned, when they come within the Lodge we have a perfect right to control their actions.

4418. Only in the Lodge? Only in the Lodge. When a member goes outside we have nothing to do with him so long as he pays his contributions.

4419. President.] You have nothing further to suggest to the Commission before you withdraw? I have nothing further to suggest except to say that the time has arrived when men and families with their little contributions at stake have a perfect right to be protected. I consider that there should be a Government Inspector, who should, by virtue of his office, be ex officio a member of every Friendly Society.

Mr. Henry Massey Makinson, solicitor, sworn and examined:—

4420. President.] Your name is—? Henry Massey Makinson.

4421. You are a solicitor? Yes; a member of the firm of Ellis & Makinson.

4422. And your firm were the solicitors in 1876 for the Friendly Society known as the Holy Catholic Guild of St. Mary and St. Joseph? Yes.

4423. And are still, I suppose? Yes.

4424. Do you produce any documents? I produce a special audit report; there are two reports, marked "A" and "B." There was an action brought by the Guild against Mr. Callachor, who was then Secretary, for neglecting his duties as Secretary—keeping the books—and to recover a sum of money the Guild had lost.

4425. Do you remember what the amount was? I do not think the action was brought for any special amount; it was an action for damages for neglecting his duties in book-keeping, whereby the Guild had lost money. The action was brought in consequence of these audit accounts, made by Mr. Carroll. When the action was brought Mr. Callachor paid into our hands the sum of £150 odd, which appeared in the final report of the auditor. It appeared that there was a sum of £159 mentioned there, which Callachor paid into our hands. Mr. Carroll made these two audit reports, and on these reports an action was brought by the Guild against Mr. Callachor, who then came and paid £150 odd into our hands to await the result of a further investigation. A further investigation was made by Mr. W. P. Manning, accountant, and the result of that was that Mr. Callachor authorized us to pay over to the Guild the £150 odd, which was the result arrived at as the amount of deficiency, and then the action was stopped.

Mr. H. M. Makinson.

4426. Did you not receive also a sum of money from another gentleman, who was also a defaulter? There were proceedings with which Mr. Winkle was connected, but the particulars I do not remember.

4427. Do you know whether there did not still remain a deficiency of some £41 9s. 5d. after the payment by Mr. Callachor? I do not remember now; but I remember there was an action to which we were a party, and if my attention had been directed to it I might have looked up the papers and told you. I see Mr. Rubie here; he was the Warden of the Guild at the time, and I dare say he could give me a reference that would set me on the track.

4428. You produce these two special audits, "A" and "B," made by Mr. Carroll? Yes. These I got in the action which was subsequently settled.

The documents were put in evidence and read. They were as follows:—

A.

To the Warden and Councillors of the Australasian Holy Catholic Guild.
Gentlemen,

I beg to lay before you my report upon the books and accounts of your institution, examined by me, for the two years ending 31 December, 1875, in pursuance of your instructions, and which is as follows, viz. :—

Cash-book.

From December, 1872, to December, 1875, I found that, with the exception of the six months from January to June, 1873, the additions were made in pencil, and the balances when struck appear in like manner. In the half-year ending 30 June, 1874, neither the receipts or payments were cast up, nor was any balance struck, although a balance of £103 19s. 2d. was carried forward to the debit of cash, which, however, should apparently properly be £113 19s. 2d., in consequence of an amount of £10 being added to the payments under the heading of "Sickness," but which is without any explanation, and is entered in pencil.

For half-year ending 31st December, 1874, the additions are in pencil, and in the following half-year the totals of receipts and payments are not shown, nor has any balance been struck, although an amount of £37 2s. 10d. is carried forward in pencil as being the balance of cash on hand at that period—this I find to be incorrect, and should properly be £41 13s. 1d.

The following items are entered in the ledger to credit of the several accounts here indicated, but do not appear in the cash-book, and will therefore be chargeable to the party liable for such receipts :—

June 27, 1874, credit in cash-book to T. Callachor, for interest, £7; but posted in ledger to his credit at £14. Difference	7 0 0
June, 1874, in ledger, credit of J. J. Daly	2 0 0
March, 1875, Michael M'Quirk	4 0 0
June, 1875, do.	4 0 0
June 1, 1874, Bega Branch	0 18 8
June 9, 1874, do.	0 9 4
December 31, 1874, Parramatta Guild.....	5 0 10

To the above will have to be added improper debit in cash-book, 30 June, 1874, as shown in second paragraph, page 1	10 0 0
Balance of cash short carried forward 30 June, 1875, viz., balance entered, £37 2s. 10d., should be as shown above, £41 13s. 1d. Difference	4 10 3

Total £37 19 1

From my investigation into the various books of the District Secretaries and District Bursars, I discovered numerous discrepancies between the amount of subscriptions, &c., received, as shown in the subscription and novices books, and the amounts for which the District Bursars give credit in their books, and will thus appear :—

	Short credit by Bursars. £ s. d.	Over credit by Bursars £ s. d.
Balmain, in seven instances	4 2 0	0 2 6
Newtown, in twelve instances	5 8 10	7 2 8
St. Patrick's, in twenty-five instances.....	11 19 10	4 8 2
Sacred Heart, in nineteen instances	6 17 0	4 4 0
St. Benedict's, in thirty-five instances	12 12 5	4 12 2

Balance 20 10 7 appearing to be short credited by Bursars.

I found the District Bursar's books wrongly cast up in thirty-five instances, and in many cases did not agree with the amounts entered in the cash-book as they should do. I infer from my examination that the practice of the Secretary has been to take for granted the amounts appearing in the District Bursar's books, without any attempt at checking the additions, but it appears to me to have been clearly his duty to have summed up both the District Secretary's and Bursar's books, and make them correspond, which would have rendered unnecessary the tedious examination of them in detail that has been gone through by me.

I notice an entry in the cash-book, under date 7 May, 1875, crediting Heydon with £7, but that name has been obliterated and the name T. Callachor, written in red ink, substituted, and the amount posted to the credit of Callachor's interest account, whilst the interest for six months on Heydon's account for half-year to 7 May, 1875, £7, has not been charged, and thus his account appears to be closed.

T. Callachor would appear to be indebted for principal £400, and for interest to December, 1875, £42. Thos. Winkle's account stands thus :—

Principal.....	£75 0 0
Interest to 25 December, 1875	6 2 6

There have been several incorrect postings into the ledger, amongst which will be found 30 June, 1875, to Savings Bank, £1,064 11s. 8d., instead of £1,064 8s., which arbitrarily reconciles a difference of 3s. 8d. existing between the Savings Bank book and the cash-book at that time, and this wrong posting was evidently made in order that the Guild ledger and the Savings Bank book should agree.

Sums of £25 on account of principal, and £2 10s. 6d. for interest, appear to have been paid by Thos. Winkle and posted to his credit in the ledger 20 July, 1874, but never appeared in the cash-book until 22 January, 1875.

The balance of cash appearing to be on hand 31 December, 1875, per cash-book, was £134 6s. 10d. to which will require to be added the amounts received but not entered in the cash-book and other sums as shown in page 2 of this report.

The

The following books are not forthcoming, viz. :—

St. Joseph's (Newtown), Bursar's book.
Sacred Heart novice book, prior to 8 June, 1874.

Mr. H. M.
Makinson.
3 Mar., 1882.

I would add, in concluding this report, that the books of the Guild have been kept in a most slovenly and unbusiness-like manner, and the manner in which the cash-book has been manipulated is in the highest degree discreditable.

I have, &c.,
JOSEPH CARROLL,
Special Auditor.

Sydney, 28 June, 1876.

B.

To the Warden and Councillors of the Australasian Holy Catholic Guild.

Gentlemen,

Since submitting my report upon the books and accounts of the Guild on the 28th of last month, I have made a careful examination of all moneys posted in the various ledger accounts for receipts independent of the subscriptions, from 1869 to 31 December, 1875, and compared same with the cash-book, and now give you the result as follows:—

1872.	March 5, credit of James Lyons	£9 0 0	} None of those amounts entered in cash-book.
	March 22, do do	9 0 0
	May 18, do do	9 0 0
1873.	May do Michl. M'Quirk	4 0 0
			£31 0 0
1872.	April 20, credited in ledger to J. K. Heydon, £10 10s., but in cash-book £10 only. Difference short credited		0 10 0
1873.	June, credited in ledger to Thos. Winkle	£3 18 9
	But in cash-book only	1 18 9
	Difference short credited		2 0 0
			£33 10 0
	Add—Amount at page 2 of my report sent in 28 June, 1876		37 19 1
			£71 9 1
	Add—Balance of cash on hand at 31 December, 1875, per cash-book		134 6 10
			£205 15 11

From the most diligent and painstaking examination of the Bursar's book, which, from the number of entries of moneys received that have been erased or struck out, and the difficulty of determining what payments should be allowed or disallowed, it has given me much serious thought to strike a balance in the Bursar's hands on the 31 December, 1875; however, I have done so, and feel satisfied of its approximate correctness in so far as it was possible to arrive at it, and I consider that to make good the above sum of £205 15s. 11d. that the Bursar's share is £46 0s. 4d., and the Secretary's share £159 15s. 7d.

I desire further to report that a sum of £27 12s. 6d., debited in the cash-book as paid into the Savings' Bank, 25 June, 1875, was not paid in until the 17th of July.

I annex a memorandum showing a number of items due for interest at 31 December, 1875, amounting to £101 11s. 6d., which were omitted in the Secretary's balance-sheet of that date, and exhibit the assets as £6,293 5s. 2d. instead of £6,191 13s. 8d., the amount shown.

I have only to add that it will afford me much pleasure to explain to any member of the Council any matter in connection with my reports that may be considered necessary.

I have, &c.,
JOSEPH CARROLL,
Special Auditor.

Mr. John Hugh Davies sworn and examined:—

4429. President.] You are a member of the Druids' Friendly Society? I am.

4430. What office do you hold? District Grand Treasurer at present.

4431. How long have you been a member? Ever since its formation in 1867.

4432. Did you open the first Lodge? I did; that is, in Sydney.

4433. What offices have you held during that time? I was District Grand President for three years at three different times, and I have held the office of District Treasurer since, with the exception of one year, in 1879.

4434. And you have a thorough knowledge of the workings of the Society? I have, 4435.

Mr. J. H.
Davies.
6 Mar., 1882.

- Mr. J. H. Davies.
6 Mar., 1882.
4435. What number of members have you in connection with the Sydney District? I think it is close on 1,800—I am not quite sure.
4436. How many subordinate Lodges have you? Twenty or twenty-one.
4437. What is the total amount of funds? That I could not tell you, unless I referred to the reports.
4438. What is the total value of the funds of the District? I think the funds of the District are about £1,200, as near as I can remember.
4439. For what purpose are the funds of the District applied? To the payment of funeral donations, and the management of District Grand Lodge.
4440. How is that fund supported and maintained? By levies upon subordinate Lodges, and profits arising from the sale of goods.
4441. What amount of money do you levy on the members of subordinate Lodges? The levy is fixed for six months, and is as occasion requires. There is one thing I might say—that we have a proviso that if the funds reach below a certain sum, the District is empowered to make a special levy on the death of each member or his wife.
4442. Is that an additional levy? Yes—it is the only levy we provide for.
4443. What has been the cost of management of your Lodges in the Sydney District? I have never made the calculation.
4444. Have you any knowledge of the amount of money paid on account of funeral donations during the last two years? I cannot tell from memory, but I should think it would be about £350 for the two years; but I could tell, of course, if I referred to my book.
4445. Did I understand you to say there were 1,800 members? I think it is about that.
4446. Would this report be correct, dated Wednesday, 21st January last year? Yes, for 1880.
4447. What number of members have you made during the last year? That I could not say; the returns do not go through my hands.
4448. If this report sets forth that there were 1,237 members for 1880, would that be correct? Oh yes.
4449. If it shows that the accumulated funds were £2,511 13s. 7½d., would that be correct? I have not the slightest doubt of it.
4450. And what is the general state and condition of these twenty Lodges, in your opinion? Very fair.
4451. Do you know the Prince Alfred Lodge? Yes.
4452. It has forty-two members according to this return? Yes.
4453. And the funds amount to £6 Os. 3d.? At that date; they have improved considerably since then.
4454. Would you consider that Lodge in a healthy state? No, decidedly not.
4455. What has been the improvement you speak of? Their funds have considerably improved.
4456. Do you know to what extent? No, I could not tell you.
4457. Would you consider Phoenix Lodge with fifty-two members and £13 Os. 5d. in a good state? No.
4458. Or Royal Oak, with sixty-seven members and £32 10s. 0½d.? Yes, I should, because they had then only recently been formed.
4459. And you think a Lodge just brought into existence with that amount of money is in a healthy financial position? Very fair.
4460. Can you tell from memory on what date the Lodge was instituted? I think it was opened in June, 1879.
4461. And the funds by the end of December amounted to £32 10s. 0½d.; you consider that pretty good? Yes, for six months.
4462. Then there is another, the Mistletoe, forty-two members, and £22 10s. 2d.; do you consider that in a healthy state? It was only just opened.
4463. And Western Pioneer, how long was that opened? It was opened on Queen's Birthday, 1878.
4464. With 101 members at that time, and £71 Os. 1d., do you consider that in a good position? Well, pretty fair.
4465. Then there is the Acorn, with thirty-three members; when was that opened? It was opened after the Royal Oak.
4466. With £3 10s. 1½d.? Very bad.
4467. Then the Olive Branch, with fifty-one members; when was that opened? All these Lodges you have named have been opened during the last three or four years, since we called ourselves the United Ancient Order.
4468. They have £15 2s. 5½d.; what would you consider that? Bad.
4469. The Pioneer is an old Lodge—the first Lodge? Yes.
4470. That had 129 members, at this date? Yes, I dare say it had.
4471. How long has it been opened? It was opened in February, 1867, by me.
4472. And at this time it had 129 members, with £671 2s. 3d.? Yes.
4473. You think the position of that Lodge is very much better than those I have referred to? Yes, and because they had a great many old members.
4474. The Prince Alfred was an old Lodge, was it not—they had forty-two members and £6 Os. 3d.; what do you consider that position? Very bad.
4475. And there are a number of Lodges in a similar position; you have seen the return yourself? Yes.
4476. What amount of contributions do the members pay? 1s. 1½d.
4477. And what benefits do you give? Medical attendance and a funeral donation.
4478. What is the funeral donation? £25 for a member, £15 for a first wife, and £7 10s. for the second.
4479. And do you think the contributions are sufficient to insure the due fulfilment of their financial obligations on the part of the Lodges? Well, hitherto they always have been. What my opinion is as to the equitableness of the amount given is another matter.
4480. But in view of the reference I have made to several Lodges here, do you believe the contributions are sufficient to guarantee the payment of the financial obligations of the Societies? Yes, because the District Grand Lodge are responsible, and they are empowered to levy accordingly.
4481. Do you know that the whole of the funds, including District Grand Lodge Funds altogether, amount to £2,511 13s. 7½d.? If that return says so, I have no doubt it is correct.
4482. And do you think this is sufficient to insure to your members the payment of the amounts of money promised to them? I do, with the proviso we have in our rules for making special levies.
4483. What is the limit of age to which you admit members? Forty now.

Mr. J. H.
Davies.

6 Mar., 1882.

4484. Did you admit members over that age? Forty-five and forty-six. No.
4485. And have you any old members? We have.
4486. Many? I should not think there are very many now; they have pretty well died off.
4487. And how many in the hundred would be the average of old members? I could not tell you that unless I went into the figures.
4488. Have you a very large proportion of old members? No, not now.
4489. What would be the proportion of persons over forty years of age in the Sydney District? I should not think there are more than twenty, taking the whole of the Lodges, if that number.
4490. That is about one to each Lodge? Yes.
4491. Have you any special method of dealing with matters of dispute between your members and Lodges? We have rules specifying that they shall be referred to arbitration.
4492. And how do you find that work? Very well so far.
4493. Do you or any of your Lodges go to the Law Courts to decide matters of dispute between members and their Lodges? In what way do you mean?
4494. Matters of arrears—arrears of contributions? Yes, they have.
4495. And do you approve of that? I do to a certain extent.
4496. When members are over twelve months in arrears? Yes.
4497. Do you pay your Medical Officer for members who are over twelve months in arrears? For the first quarter.
4498. You have no risk for the other nine months? No, except the member dies.
4499. But do your rules provide that any members eight months in arrears are unfinancial? Yes.
4500. And yet you are liable for the funeral donation? Yes; it is a decision of the Supreme Court.
4501. You would not pay your sick pay? In the same way; his contributions would have to be deducted. I remember the decision well.
4502. In the cases you have referred to, in which some Lodge has taken action against its members, what amount of contributions was in arrears? Some of them £8 or £9—several years.
4503. And do you think that is a prudent course to take? Decidedly not; I am quite opposed to it.
4504. But you think to the extent of twelve months there should be provision for Societies to recover against such members? I do.
4505. Have you during the time you have been connected with the Druids found any inconvenience from the working of the Act? I do not consider it is worked at all.
4506. Will you describe how you think it fails? I do not think the Registrar looks after the Societies at all.
4507. Then you are of opinion that the want of administration is the cause of great inconvenience? No doubt of it; though Mr. Oliver is very kind and obliging, I do not think the provisions of the Act have been put into force.
4508. Do you regard the Act itself as sufficient to afford protection to the various Friendly Societies? Yes, but I do not think it is a good one.
4509. Can you point out any particulars? I think the Melbourne Act is very much superior.
4510. What provisions do you refer to? The provisions for working the Societies and supervision over them, and the arrangements which the Registrar has to put into force before a Society can be started, in connection with the Melbourne Act, are much superior to ours.
4511. Does your Society make annual returns from each Lodge? Yes. I have always insisted on it; and they are sent through the District Grand Secretary, which I maintain is the proper thing to do.
4512. And, as a rule, have you found the returns correct? Well, as a rule, yes.
4513. Are you in favour of a graduated scale of contributions, or a uniform scale for all Friendly Societies? Well, I think a uniform scale of charges is the best, working better; but I am not in favour of a uniform rate of funeral allowance.
4514. Then you would be in favour of charging a young lad of eighteen or twenty years of age the same as a man of forty? It is very seldom you get men of forty to join a Friendly Society.
4515. Is there not a larger proportion joining between thirty and forty than any other ages? No, that is not my experience.
4516. But between thirty and forty is there not a larger proportion than between eighteen and thirty? No, I think it is the other way.
4517. Have you any possible means of giving us the list of ages of members who have been initiated during the term you speak of, or for five years? Oh yes, we could do it.
4518. Could you arrange to let the Commission have a copy? For the last five years; I will make a memorandum of it.
4519. I understood you to say you were not in favour of a uniform funeral donation? No, I am not.
4520. You would suggest, then, a graduated scale? According to the number of years' membership.
4521. What would you start at? £5, and I would not give any man over £20.
4522. At what period would a member be entitled to £5? At the end of twelve months.
4523. And graduated up to £20? Yes.
4524. How would you regulate the next three payments? I would make it £5 for every five years.
4525. And what would you do in the case of a member's wife? Oh, I would not give her more than £10 at any time; certainly nothing at all for the first twelve months; the wife and family have the benefit of a medical man and medicines.
4526. How are the funds of your District invested? In the Savings Bank.
4527. On deposit? Yes.
4528. You consider, generally speaking, that the Order of Druids—the twenty Lodges I refer to—are in a healthy financial state? I think the District as a whole is in a healthy state and well managed.
4529. Mr. Gelding.] I presume you have taken an interest in the workings of Friendly Societies in New South Wales? Not others.
4530. And you firmly believe that the 13d. a week paid by your members is quite sufficient to keep up the Society in a sound, healthy, financial position? I do; that is, for the benefits we give.
4531. You state that one of the safeguards of your Society is that should a Lodge fail to meet its engagements they can fall back on the District? Yes, the Grand Lodge takes them.
4532. I presume the members contribute to the Grand Lodge? Yes.

- Mr. J. H. Davies.
6 Mar., 1882.
4533. Then in the event of a few of your Lodges taking the onus of keeping up the rest, you fall on the members? All other branches.
4534. Can you tell us the average per head of the whole funds of your Order at the present time? I cannot; I have not the last return before me.
4535. It was £2 per head, I think, last year? I think it is more than that now.
4536. If you think your Society is very sound with £2 per head, I presume you think those who hold £10 or £12 per head have too much money? No, decidedly not.
4537. You are not in favour of a sliding scale? I am not, in contributions.
4538. And you think £5 for every five years' membership is quite sufficient to give for a funeral donation? I do.
4539. Is that funeral donation not given specially to bury him? It is.
4540. Do you think £5 is sufficient to bury him respectably? I think it is quite sufficient to give him if he has only been in the Order twelve months.
4541. I see that any members who open new Lodges have a bonus of £5 given them; do you think that right? It has only been passed lately.
4542. Does it work well? We have only had two occasions to put it in force.
4543. What fund does that come out of? The Incidental Fund.
4544. Then virtually the members have to give a bonus to members who open new Lodges? Yes, within the last six months.
4545. I should like to have your opinion about a Board of Arbitration: do you think it should consist of members of each Society, or should it be appointed consisting of members of the various Friendly Societies in the Colony? I think it would answer much better if it consisted of various members of Friendly Societies.
4546. Do you believe that, considering the great good that accrues to the Government from the establishment of Friendly Societies, all the rules should be registered free of cost? I have always maintained that.
4547. Would you give the Commission your opinion about the Government appointing a person competent to deal with Friendly Societies specially for that purpose, to be paid by the Government? I think it is the duty of the Government to do it free of cost. These Societies save thousands of pounds to the Government, and it is their duty to assist the Societies by keeping them together, and I think it is also the duty of the Government to appoint an auditor to audit the accounts once a year.
4548. To make them send in balance-sheets and audit them? That he should go round and audit the accounts himself.
4549. Are you in favour of the Government appointing an actuary to investigate Societies before they are allowed to register themselves? Yes, that is one of the principal things in Melbourne.
4550. Mr. Langley.] Is not that the case with new Societies? Yes.
4551. Mr. Gelding.] If the actuary thought the present Societies were not working well, should he not compel them to bring their Societies into proper working? No, I do not think so. He might advise them to do so, but it would be a great hardship to compel them to do so.
4552. I suppose you are aware that the Registrar in Victoria is only certifying to laws for five years, to see how they work? Yes.
4553. Would that do here? I think it is too short a time.
4554. Does it cost your Society much for regalia for members? No, not very much.
4555. What is the cost to each Lodge? Not more than £9 10s. or £10 10s., everything complete, but I am not quite sure; that is more in the Secretary's line than mine.
4556. I presume most of your Lodges pay rent for the rooms they meet in, do they not? I think so, but could not say for certain. Some of them do, and some I know do not. Where they meet in public-houses I think some of them do not pay rent.
4557. Could you inform the Commission the amount paid by members in accouchement cases? One guinea.
4558. Does that come out of the member's pocket or the funds of the Lodge? The member pays it.
4559. Mr. Slade.] Do you know of any instance in which the present Act has been injurious or has prevented healthy action in any of your Lodges? No, not that I am aware of.
4560. Do you know any case at all in which the Act has been in any way a preventive of success? Well, I know where action of the Registrar—I will not say it is the Act—but the action of the Registrar in not carrying out the provisions of the Act had a detrimental effect upon us.
4561. Do you mean us to understand that the present Act is nearly sufficient, but the administration is faulty? No, I do not think the present Act is sufficient; it is deficient in many ways.
4562. Can you point out any matters in which it is deficient? No, I cannot—not at a moment's notice.
4563. Do you think the returns are sufficient? The return is not a return at all—it is just a mere statement; it is not, I think a proper return at all.
4564. You think it should be more elaborate and more explicit? Certainly.
4565. If the returns were made so, the administration of the Act carried out in a proper spirit, do you think the present Act would be sufficient for the generalities of Societies? With a few amendments.
4566. Do you know of any Act that is better than this one? Oh, the Melbourne Friendly Societies Act is much better.
4567. In the matter of returns, are these better? Yes, most decidedly.
4568. Would you advise an assimilation of the returns and provisions of the Act in this Colony to those of the Victorian measure? Yes, but I should go to improve that; I should be very sorry to adopt the Act of another Colony without thoroughly ventilating it.
4569. Are you aware that the present Victorian Act had its origin in the results of a Commission that sat in Melbourne? I believe it had.
4570. Mr. Newland.] How long has the Prince Alfred Lodge been connected with the Druids of this Colony? I should think from memory about twelve years.
4571. Is there any special reason why the funds of that Lodge are so low? Yes, they have had a great deal of sickness.
4572. You have stated also that the funds are in a better position this year than formerly? Yes, better this year than last.
4573. From what cause has that been brought about? Not so many expenses and fewer funeral donations, and a large increase in numbers.

Mr.
J. H. Davies.
6 Mar., 1882.

4574. How have the expenses been curtailed? By our not having to purchase goods to such an extent as previously; we had a stock on hand.
4575. And would not that stock on hand be represented in your balance-sheets? No; I am sorry to say my predecessor, the secretary, did not take it into consideration.
4576. Have any Lodges left your Society since it was formed? Yes.
4577. How many? Two, I think.
4578. For what reason did they leave your District? Disagreement.
4579. Was there any special reason? Yes, they wanted an alteration in the regalia.
4580. Did they want to wear a more expensive regalia? They did.
4581. Mr. Rubie.] Are the printed scales of initiation fees in your Order acted upon? Yes.
4582. At the opening of new Lodges do you adopt half-fees? Yes, the rules provide for it.
4583. Then the printed scale of fees is not always stuck to? Except at the opening of new Lodges it is.
4584. Do your officers give security? Yes; at least I do, and I believe all Treasurers. It is provided in the rules that the Secretary and Treasurer both shall do so, but I should like to see the Guarantee Society introduced.
4585. I gather that you would be in favour of a similar Act to that enforced in Melbourne? Yes.
4586. And a graduated scale of benefits? Yes.
4587. Only funeral donations? Yes, that is all.
4588. Sick benefits would be the same? I was not asked as to them.
4589. And as to them? I think they should be graduated as well.
4590. Then you would have a standard payment? Yes.
4591. With the initiation fees graduated according to age? Decidedly.
4592. I also gather that you have had few disputes in your Order? Very few.
4593. Would you be in favour of a Court of Arbitration as a Court of final appeal; its members to consist of officers from various Friendly Societies? I have already answered Mr. Gelding to that effect.
4594. Mr. Langley.] You just stated you would make a scale of graduated sick payments? Yes.
4595. By age? No, by length of membership.
4596. Then may I ask how you would reconcile two cases of this kind: one, a man who has been in for twenty years and never drew sick pay; and another joining at eighteen, who had been thirteen months and over on the books of your Lodge, and had drawn sick pay every year up to the age of thirty? That would want a little calculation.
4597. How could it be fair to a party thirty-five years of age who had never drawn anything, that he should have less than one who joined at eighteen, and had drawn sick pay each year? I could not answer that without a calculation.
4598. Would it not be fairer to calculate what he has had? Certainly, that would have to be considered.
4599. You have stated that in your opinion your contributions are sufficient? Yes, to provide for the Sick and Funeral Funds—no other.
4600. But you stated afterwards that it was in connection with the power you had of making levies? Yes.
4601. Do you think it is a fair way of putting a statement before new members that your contributions are so much, without telling them that if your funds fail you will have to make special levies? When I have had the pleasure of addressing a meeting, that is one thing I have put before them.
4602. But do you not think it would be fairer to lay down a fixed sum to cover everything? No, I would rather have it on the present system.
4603. Then do you consider it is fair? I do.
4604. If this Act provides that you shall lay down a certain basis, and you make special levies outside that, do you not think the Act has been over-riden? No.
4605. Not if this Act provides for it? I do not think the Act does provide for it definitely.
4606. Does this Act allow you to do so? I do not think there is anything in the Act to prevent it.
4607. In any future Act do you not think it would be well that there should be laid down simply a few general rules, comprising what would cover the financial interests of members, leaving the details of the various Orders to be worked out by themselves? No, decidedly not.
4608. Then you would have the whole —? Under one Act. They should make rules for their own government, but have them under the Act.
4609. As far as the financial responsibilities of the Lodges towards their members are concerned, would that not be sufficient—leaving it to the different Orders to govern themselves by their own details? Yes, no doubt of it.
4610. Are you in favour or otherwise of the Government having a revising barrister to see that the financial engagements a Lodge takes upon itself are in accordance with the Friendly Societies Act? Oh yes, I think all the rules should go to a barrister before being registered.
4611. Are you of opinion that the Government should also provide an actuary, whose duty it should be to revise the returns of the various Lodges? I would go further, and say it should be done every year.
4612. Are you in favour of the returns of all your Lodges being attested by declaration or affidavit? Yes.
4613. Are you in favour of the whole of the returns of the various Orders being sent in through the governing body, or should the Lodges send in separate returns on their own responsibility? I consider they should go through the governing body.
4614. Do you not think it would be better in all cases that, whoever the Government Officer is, he should deal direct with the Grand Secretaries and Grand Officers, whatever they might be called, rather than that he should deal with the Lodge or individuals? I think all communications should pass through the Grand Secretary, to enable the Grand Lodge Officers to know how the Lodges are being conducted.
4615. I think you stated a little while ago that a Judge had decided in a case of yours that if your laws provided that after three months a member becomes unfinancial and has no claim on your funds, you had to pay them for twelve months? It was not in our case.
4616. But the inference I drew was that it took place in your case? No, we have never had a case of the kind come before the Courts.
4617. Then do you think if the parties, whoever they were, produced a copy of their rules, certified by the Registrar as in accordance with the Act, that would not debar any such decision? No, I do not. I think myself, and I tried hard when they were altered to have it struck out altogether.

- Mr. J. H. Davies. 4618. But in the face of a contract specially signed? Our laws provide that he shall not be expelled for twelve months.
- 6 Mar., 1882. 4619. But a man can be suspended without expelling him? Yes, at the end of three months.
4620. Do your laws expel him at the end of twelve months? Yes.
4621. You do not strike him off till then? No.
4622. In the case of your Lodge at Parramatta ———? The Ryde Lodge.
4623. Would you consider in a case of that kind that the laws of the present Friendly Societies Act were carried out properly, taking into consideration your registered rules? Decidedly not. I think the act of the Justices was wrong.
4624. Mr. Holdsworth.] The Druids, Mr. Davies, are a young Society, are they not? Yes, four or five years last January since the majority were brought into existence.
4625. Consequently your average on the balance-sheet would be less? Certainly.
4626. The financial healthiness of a Lodge would, I presume, depend materially on the age of the Lodge itself? It would.
4627. Have you ever met with a case where a Lodge has had more than an ordinary amount of sickness? I have.
4628. Has that exhausted the funds of the Lodge? It has.
4629. Would that account for the funds of your Order being so low? Yes, for one or two.
4630. Did I understand you to say you had the power of making a levy? Yes.
4631. You are in favour of the benefits being on a sliding scale, according to the time the parties have been members? Yes.
4632. Have you ever given any consideration to that subject? I have.
4633. Are you aware that from twenty to forty the average sickness is from four to five days per member per year? Something like that.
4634. From forty to fifty, seven to nine days? Yes.
4635. Fifty to seventy, twenty days? Yes.
4636. And over seventy, twelve weeks? Yes.
4637. Then do you think it just that when a man had started at twenty, and been in till he was seventy, that he should receive a larger amount? No, decidedly not.
4638. Would it not be so on a sliding scale? No, only for a certain time. We are a young Society and have not many old members, and it is not likely we shall have many for years to come. I do not suppose we have more than three members over fifty, and I do not think we have more than seven over forty-five.
4639. Mr. Abigail.] You state that your Society is a young Society, and that because they are young they have not a severe strain upon them? No, I did not say that; they have had very severe strains upon them.
4640. And yet the members are not aged? No.
4641. In your experience does the larger amount of sickness occur with young men? Yes, I think it does as a rule.
4642. I notice a paragraph in this report that the President examined you from, where you regret to state, from circumstances over which they had no control, a heavy strain was entailed on the Funeral Fund of the District amounting to £245—was that in consequence of young members dying? I could not say without my books.
4643. I observe in your rules that it is imperative on all branches to send balance-sheets to the District? Yes.
4644. For what purpose? For the District Auditors to audit.
4645. And they are audited as well by the subordinate Lodges? They have to be signed by the Auditors and Arch Druid.
4646. Do they find them tolerably correct? As a rule, yes.
4647. I also observe you make provision in your rules for the annual and quinquennial returns to be sent in to the Registrar? Yes.
4648. Do you send in quinquennial returns? We do.
4649. Who supplies the forms? We buy them at the Government Printing Office. I am, on second thoughts, not sure about the quinquennial returns.
4650. Are you in favour of a compulsory quinquennial return being rendered? Most decidedly.
4651. Your Society is what is known as a secret Society? The same as other Societies.
4652. If any Society, in the preface to its rules, has stated that secret Societies encourage crimes, does that apply to your Society? Decidedly not.
4653. You are not aware of any crimes being encouraged in connection with the Druids? I am not aware of anything of the kind.
4654. Do you think the association in Friendly Societies has improved the social and moral life of the members? No doubt of it, if a man acts up to his obligation.
4655. Do you think the fact of a man belonging to a Friendly Society cherishes a habit of self-reliance and promotes self-respect? It should do, but I am afraid it does not.
4656. Have you known any member of your Society to be the recipient of charity from the public Charities? Well, sometimes we send a member to the Infirmary.
4657. But I do not mean that? Well, no I do not; we should not allow it if we knew it.
4658. Are you in favour of Friendly Societies being empowered to build halls out of the funds subscribed for benefits? To a certain extent, yes.
4659. Without any consideration as to the amount they have in hand? I say to a certain extent; it all depends upon what they have in hand.
4660. What should they have before they spend any in that way? I think if they had a large surplus incidental fund they would be justified in thus investing it.
4661. Not out of any other fund? Decidedly not.
4662. Are you in favour of Lodges holding their meetings in public-houses? Decidedly not; I think it is the greatest curse that ever happened to a Society.
4663. Do you think it would be an advantage if the Government started a National Friendly Society? No, I do not.
4664. Have you known any cases of misappropriation of funds in connection with your Order? Not to any extent—not since we have been the United Ancient Order. 4665.

4665. Are there two Orders? In 1877 we assimilated our Order here with that in Melbourne, which was originally the Order of Druids. Our head office was supposed to be in London, and we had to pay a levy in England; but in 1877 we seceded from that and got a dispensation from Melbourne, though we are not responsible to them in any way.

Mr.
J. H. Davies.
6 Mar., 1882.

4666. Then there is no connection between you and any other body bearing your name outside the Colony? No, nothing at all.

4667. You are in no way connected with the Grand Lodge of England? No, not at all.

4668. Have you made any calculation to enable you to say what amount of funds a Society should have to make it fairly substantial? No, I have not; not yet.

4669. Do you think that the contingent liabilities increase with the age of a Society? Speaking in reference to Pioneer Lodge, I can say they have not increased.

4670. Can you tell us what the contingent liability of that Lodge, considering the amount you are likely to be indebted, and the benefits that have accrued to your members? I could not tell you.

4671. I understood you are in favour of Government actuarial supervision? I am.

4672. President.] Have you anything further to suggest to the Commission before you retire—any suggestion you think would be useful in future legislation? No, I do not think of anything.

4673. Mr. Gelding.] You have no connection whatever with the Grand Lodge in England? None whatever.

4674. Mr. Langley.] Is there in this Colony any Lodge connected with the Grand Lodge of England? None whatever.

The Commission then adjourned until Friday, 10 March.

FRIDAY, 10 MARCH, 1882.

Present:—

EDWARD GREVILLE, Esq., J.P., IN THE CHAIR.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,

JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. Arthur Walker was sworn and examined:—

4675. Chairman.] In what Friendly Society do you hold office? The Protestant Alliance, No. 1.

4676. And what office do you hold? President.

4677. Have you ever held office in any other Friendly Society? No.

4678. Are you a member of any other Friendly Society? No.

4679. Then the experience you can give us is that only of the Protestant Alliance Society? That is all.

4680. Have you studied the working of other Societies? I have, to a considerable extent, by their rule books, not from experience.

4681. How long have you been President of the Society, and how long a member? I am a member somewhere over nineteen years, I think.

4682. And President? This is my fourth year.

4683. Is this Society of which you are President the parent Society? It is the parent Society, but has no connection with the Protestant Alliance of Australasia.

4684. How many Lodges are working under you? Only the one.

4685. And what is the number of your members? 143 or 145 financial members.

4686. Can you give me the reason for your Society not amalgamating with the Protestant Alliance Friendly Society of Australasia when that Society was formed? There were difficulties in the way: which was, wanting the members to be examined by a doctor as well as their wives; and we objected to that and also to several of the rules. They wanted us to give up our title to No. 1, to which we refused to accede; and we also refused to be re-examined by a medical man; and we were in a sound financial position, and had no desire to amalgamate.

4687. If you had joined the Protestant Alliance Friendly Society, would it have involved increased contributions from your members? I think so, but am not in a position to say certainly.

4688. Can you speak of the financial position of your Lodge? I can; I have our Bank-books here with me. We have at the present time £1,419 16s., bearing interest in the Savings Bank. It bears 5 per cent. interest, and we received interest to the 1st January to the amount of £71 1s. 4d., making up that total. Then we have a Widow and Orphan Fund in connection with the Society; in connection with this there are twenty members paying 6d. a month; it gives from £5 to £15 on the death of a member, according to the number of years he has been in the Society. We have £195 13s. 1d. to the credit of that fund.

4689. Has the Society any liabilities beyond that of the widows' and orphans' claims? None whatever.

4690. What is the subscription? 1s. per week.

4691. Have you power to make a levy in addition to that if necessary? Our rules state that it shall not be less than 1s. a week, though I have power to increase it to any amount. There is a levy in case of death of 2s. on every member of the Society. If a member's wife dies I levy 1s. a member. These levies are only made in case of death.

4692. And is the effect of these levies to prevent the funds from diminution? Most decidedly, because we pay a large amount at the death of a member; we pay as high as £35; and we are now revising our rules, and are going to pay £40 when a member belongs to the Society for twenty years. That is not the law as yet, but it is in the hands of the Society.

4693. Then you are by degrees adopting a graduated scale? Just so.

4694. Am I to understand that your Society is becoming impressed with the advantage of a graduated scale? We have been impressed with that for many a day.

4695. Are you in favour of that? Most decidedly.

4696. Have you the arbitrary power of fixing the levy? No, it is fixed by rule.

486—T

Mr.
A. Walker.
10 Mar., 1882.

4697.

- Mr. A. Walker. 4697. Do your members ever complain about this levy being made while the funds are sufficient to meet the claims? Yes, some; that is the idea now that this Committee has been appointed about. Many of them complain about the matter, but I do not think we can do without it.
- 10 Mar., 1882. 4698. Are you of opinion that your Society is thoroughly financial and can continue to be worked under the present rules, even when it has a longer experience and your members begin to get older? I think we can carry on and increase our funds for years; in fact the interest of our money will pay two deaths a year; last year was a severe one, and we had five deaths.
4699. Have you found the Friendly Societies Act at all prejudicial to your working? Not by any means.
4700. In the manner in which it is worked have you found any defect? No.
4701. Will you kindly mention the benefits that are given by your Society? Doctor and medicine for each member, his wife, and family, immediately on joining; after being twelve months a member, he is entitled to 1 guinea a week sick pay; if he is registered to the Funeral Fund, if his wife dies he is entitled to £15 after the last twelve months; if he dies himself, his widow or next of kin is entitled to a certain sum according to the rules.
4702. Is there anything sectarian in the Society? Yes, we admit none but Protestants.
4703. And can any member be deprived of any of the privileges set forth in the rules for anything else than misconduct? Certainly not.
4704. If a person joined your Society being a Protestant and afterwards changed his faith, would he become excluded from the benefits? That is a question that requires a great deal of consideration.
4705. Have you ever had such a case? No. We have had a case of a Roman Catholic joining, and we returned him his money when he said he had made a mistake.
4706. But the case I put of a Protestant becoming a Catholic, have you had such a case? No.
4707. Is such a case provided for by your rules? No; there is a declaration in which he states he is a Protestant.
4708. Do the rules say he must continue one? No; that is a question that would prove a very knotty one to decide.
4709. Mr. Smith.] How long has this Society been in existence? Since 1861.
4710. You have only been identified with it nineteen years? Yes.
4711. Have you had many members call off during that period? Yes, a good many.
4712. About what number? I could not say from remembrance.
4713. Would it average four or five per year? Last year we had five.
4714. Have you had many members go bad on your books during that period? Yes, a good many.
4715. And have they shut themselves out from benefits? We have expelled them, according to our rules.
4716. How many have you expelled—could you give us a rough idea? I think about nine last year; they had been standing over for five or six years.
4717. Could you furnish us with a return showing the number of members initiated since 1861; the number who have called off during that period; also, the number of persons who have been expelled for not complying with the rules? Yes; there have not been a great many.*
4718. You have never put the law into operation with respect to persons who have failed to pay contributions? No, we declined to do so.
4719. As that is an important matter, and one that has engaged the attention of the Commission considerably, what is your opinion respecting that portion of the Act? I think it would be as well not to carry it out.
4720. Then the Commission is to take it as your opinion that it would be unwise any such provision in any new law? I would prefer to let them leave if they wish, as the Society gains by it.
4721. Then you have found no difficulty under the present Act in administering the affairs of your Society? Not the least.
4722. You send returns to the Registrar? Annually.
4723. Of course you are aware of the fact that you are to send quinquennial returns? Yes.
4724. Have you ever complied with that? Yes, and we are now preparing one.
4725. The total amount of contribution paid by your members per week is —? One shilling per member.
4726. That, with the exception of levies, covers everything? Yes.
4727. The Widow and Orphan Fund—is that a compulsory Branch in connection with your Order? No.
4728. Each member joining your Order can join that fund if he feels so disposed? Yes, by paying a small entrance fee and 6d. per month.
4729. What are the officers paid in connection with your Society? The Financial Secretary £10 and Assistant £5.
4730. Are any other officers paid? The Treasurer, a nominal sum, to bring him under the operation of the Act.
4731. Then you have not had to go into Court with any of your members? Never a case has gone into Court according to my knowledge.
4732. Mr. Holdsworth.] You are in favour of a graduated scale, I think you said? No, you must have mistaken me. I understood it was the funeral payments and not contributions.
4733. Did I understand you to say that you advocated £40 after twenty years' membership? Yes.
4734. And if a member died within twenty years, you would pay him some sum? Certainly; after twelve months, £20.
4735. Have you made any calculation what it would take per week to pay £40 after twenty years? No, I have not.
4736. If I told you it would cost 6½d. a week, would you think it correct? I think we are in a position to pay it.
4737. Are you aware it would cost over 6d. a week to produce that sum? Very probably it may.
4738. Then do you think you would be justified? Certainly, while we can show this Bank balance.
4739. Do you consider that the rates should be submitted to an actuary? I think it would be a very good thing.
- 4740.

* The Secretary writes that the number of members expelled is fourteen.—L.E.H., Secretary.

Mr.
A. Walker.
10 Mar., 1882.

4740. You said something about those who registered for the doctor; what do you pay for that? That is a mistake—it is the Funeral Fund.
4741. What do you pay for registering for the Funeral Fund? From eighteen to twenty-two, 2s. 6d. and 2s., and from that upwards up to forty, when a member pays 15s. and the wife 12s. 6d.
4742. Does the member pay anything else towards the Funeral Fund? A levy in case of death.
4743. Then that levy you consider enables you to give this high rate? Yes.
4744. Mr. Langley.] Have you any means of settling disputes between your members? Yes.
4745. In case of an appeal? It goes to an arbitration, five members to be appointed.
4746. If an appeal is lodged against the arbitrators? There is no appeal.
4747. Would you be in favour of a Board of Arbitration for all the Friendly Societies, or would you prefer that each Society should settle its own affairs within itself? I think it would be better for each Society to settle its own affairs.
4748. Do you not think from your own experience that there are times when the members of a Lodge may consider that they have been hardly treated, and would like to appeal to independent parties? Well, that is hard to say; I cannot answer for other people's opinions.
4749. No; but have you never known a case of the kind? Yes, we have had one.
4750. Are you in favour of giving members the power to appeal to the Civil Courts? I think not, both for the interests of themselves and of the Society it would be better to settle the matter in the Society.
4751. But as a final appeal, would you prefer a Board of Arbitrators rather than go to Court? Most decidedly I would, because they know the workings of Societies better than the Courts.
4752. You spoke a little ago about your members not wishing to undergo a medical examination; am I to understand that there is no examination? No; the question asked me was with regard to the matter of amalgamating with the Protestant Alliance of Australasia; and I said that we, being an old Society, considered we had no right to be re-examined by a medical man.
4753. Mr. Rubie.] Are your funds kept separate? No.
4754. The whole of the moneys are paid into one fund? Into one fund.
4755. Then you have no means of knowing exactly what may be credited to the Funeral Fund and the Sickness Fund? No, because the one payment is used for all purposes. The Widow and Orphan Fund is kept separate.
4756. You could not tell us what is taken from the General Fund besides the levies to pay the funeral donations? Am I to understand that you wish to know what amount is withdrawn from the General Fund of the Society to make up the amount of the death contribution?
4757. Have you made a calculation of the proportion? Yes, we levy 2s. on a member, which would be £14. Otherwise the fund is kept in globo.
4758. Would you ask your Secretary to give us the working expenses of your Society—what it has cost for salaries, postages, stamps, &c.? I have given that.
4759. But we want to know what has been paid to the doctor and other expenses; I suppose we will get that in the returns? Yes.
4760. Do your officers give security? There is only the one required to give it; that is the Treasurer.
4761. He gives security? He does not; I have tried to enforce it but without result.
4762. You have had no defalcations? Not that I am aware of.
4763. Mr. Newland.] I heard you call your Society the parent Society? Yes.
4764. What Branches have you? We have no Branches; it is the old Society. We never opened a Lodge, though our officers did assist a Society in Parramatta to open, but it was to be separate.
4765. I see you provide in your rules for the management of a Grand Lodge; have you a Grand Lodge? No, it was done in order that we might extend our borders; but it never was done.
4766. Mr. Slade.] Did you ever take the subject of a Superannuation Fund into consideration? Well yes, I have it now under revision, but all the officers put their faces against it.
4767. Are you of opinion that such a fund would be useful? I am sure of it.
4768. Have you found the present Act sufficient for your requirements? Yes, for ours.
4769. And has anything arisen during your practice that points to any radical defect requiring amendment at once in this Act? Not that I can speak about.
4770. Your practice of the Act has been sufficient? Yes, for us.
4771. Mr. Gelding.] What amount do you pay for chemist and doctor? £1 per annum to the doctor.
4772. What for accouchement fees? 1 guinea.
4773. Your Society is local? Yes.
4774. You have no Branches anywhere else? None.
4775. What provision do you make when members leave the locality and go far away, in reference to medical benefits and sick pay? If they go over 3 miles they can become country members by paying into the Society the amount less the chemist and doctor, receiving all other benefits.
4776. Did you ever exercise the power of raising the weekly contributions of a member? No.
4777. Never had occasion to do so? No.
4778. Do you bank all the moneys that are taken every Lodge night? No.
4779. What amount does the Treasurer generally hold in his hands? Well, supposing the doctor's bill were passed, if the Treasurer had sufficient money in his hands he would pay it.
4780. Then these two accounts do not properly represent the monetary value of your Society, as the Treasurer has money in hand? A few pounds he is supposed to hold—say £10.
4781. The Widow and Orphan Fund I see by the pass book is about stationary? Yes, there are very few members in connection with it? I do not think there are over twenty.
4782. Do you not think, considering the value of a Widow and Orphan Fund, that it should be imperative? You cannot make it imperative on young men joining who are not married.
4783. Mr. Slade.] Does that amount to the doctor cover the chemist? No, there is 8s. a year for that.
4784. Mr. Gelding.] In your opinion, is a purely local Lodge likely to be more healthy than if connected with those large Societies? Well I think so; of course it is not so convenient.
4785. You mean there are disadvantages attached to your Society on account of having no branches elsewhere? No; I do not think it is any disadvantage at all in a financial point of view. It may not be so convenient to members who move about from one point to another.

- Mr. A. Walker. 4786. I see you give money when children die? Yes.
 4787. What amounts are these? £3 under ten; under eighteen, £4.
 4788. Do they pay any contributions to insure this benefit over this shilling a week? None whatever.
 10 Mar., 1882. 4789. What entrance fee has to be paid to register these children? Nothing for the registration of children; only himself and wife.
 4790. Chairman.] Do you wish to supplement your evidence by any observations of your own? Not that I can think about. The only thing is, I may say that in our Society we use no regalia or anything of the kind.
 4791. Mr. Gelding.] What rent do you pay? 7s. 6d. a month.
 4792. You have never taken any steps to open any other Branches of your Society? No.

Mr. George Gibson sworn and examined:—

- Mr. G. Gibson. 4793. Chairman.] In what Friendly Society do you hold office? The Protestant Alliance Friendly Society of Australasia.
 10 Mar., 1882. 4794. How long have you been a member? Since its formation, ten years ago.
 4795. How many years have you held office, and what offices have you held? I hold office as Grand Master, my term of office will expire next Monday; as Deputy Grand Master I held office about six months; and Acting Grand Master while the Grand Master was suspended for a further six months.
 4796. And your present position is that of — ? Grand Master till next Monday.
 4797. Are you a member of any other Friendly Society? No; I am a member of a subordinate Lodge in connection with the Alliance, but not of any other Friendly Society.
 4798. Have you studied the subject of Friendly Societies independently of your own Order? I think I have.
 4799. What is the present number of members of the Protestant Alliance? About 3,000; the exact number could be told after the annual returns come in.
 4800. Is the Society increasing or decreasing in numbers? Increasing.
 4801. Would you kindly give the rates of payments for all your benefits? We have a contribution of 1s. a week, a levy from the Grand Council of 2s. a quarter for funeral members, and 6d. per quarter to the Incidental Fund.
 4802. Will you please give the benefits? The benefits are 21s. per week sick pay for six months; 15s. the second six months, and 5s. following; £15 at the death of a wife; £25 on the death of a member, and if he has been a member five years a further sum of £5, making a total sum of £30 after being a member of the Society for five years.
 4804. Have you to resort to them? We have never had yet, except that by our rules it provides for a Lodge Relief Fund; and when that fund arrives at the sum of £250 the levies on its behalf shall cease. I may say it has exceeded that sum, and levies on its behalf have ceased; otherwise the levies were 1½d. extra. The purpose of the fund is to assist Lodges that cannot meet their own engagements.
 4805. Do you find for ordinary purposes that the rate of subscription as fixed is sufficient? No, certainly not; that is, the rate of ordinary subscription is not sufficient without being supplemented by levies. I do not believe any Society can manage without levies.
 4806. At their present rates of subscription? Not without levies.
 4807. Then in your opinion the rates of subscription of most of the Friendly Societies is below that which is justified by the benefits promised? Yes, that is my opinion.
 4808. And that they are only therefore enabled to keep the fulfilment of their promises by means of levies? Exactly so, or increased contributions.
 4809. Having the balance sheet before you, can you tell me the amount of invested funds belonging to the Society? There is the sum of £3,418 2s. 4d., exclusive of £279 invested in the Protestant Hall, and £240 19s. 7d. current account at the Bank of New South Wales.
 4810. And how are these funds invested? £1,516 17s. 10d. in the Post Office Savings Bank at 4 per cent.; fixed deposit in the Post Office Savings Bank, £1,121 8s.; Bank of New South Wales, £275 12s.; and Lodge Relief Fund, £263 4s. 11d.
 4811. What does it average per member? Well, this would average about £1 per member or a little over.
 4812. Mr. Holdsworth.] That is merely the Funeral Fund? The Funeral and Contingent Funds.
 4813. Chairman.] And in your opinion is that a sufficient average for such a Society? Well, of course I am not an actuary, but I think it is; we increase each year. We had to the credit of the Society last year £2,999 odd, and have increased to £3,418; and have formed a Grand Council in New Zealand and allowed them £133, so that there has been a good increase during the year.
 4814. Can any member other than a Protestant be admitted? No person other than a Protestant can be admitted into our Society.
 4815. At any other stage of his existence or alliance with your Society does the question of religion enter? Never; when he joins he is asked if he is a Protestant, and signs a declaration that he is a Protestant; and, as you are aware, if he has stated anything untrue he is liable to be expelled.
 4816. Suppose a member entering as a Protestant, afterwards joins some other sect, would he lose his privileges? Yes.
 4817. Is that provided in your rules? Yes.
 4818. Has such a case ever occurred? Never to my knowledge.
 4819. Would he if he changed his religion lose all the benefits of the Society? Such a case has never arisen.
 4820. But according to your rules? My impression is he would.
 4821. How many Lodges are there under your rules? I think about forty; of course the Secretary can tell you more.
 4822. And what power do you exercise over these Lodges? The power we exercise is that if any matter occurs which they are unable to settle they refer it to either the Executive or Grand Council.
 4823. Do you give any limits to their subscriptions? No.

Mr.
G. Gibson.

10 Mar., 1882.

4824. Nor to their benefits? If at any time we find their funds are decreasing we instruct them to raise their levies.

4825. But do you allow them to start with a very low subscription if they think fit to do so? No; all Lodges are started with a shilling contribution and 2s. 6d. a quarter levy.

4826. Then you do assign a limit? Yes, we have a minimum.

4827. Do you favour a graduated scale in preference to a fixed? I certainly think a young man should not be charged so much as an old one; nor do I think a single man should be charged as much as a married man.

4828. Do you think that if the alterations indicated by you were made, it would tend to cause a large increase of members, of young men? I would not like to say that; but I think it could be tried, and that it would.

4829. Do you not think many young men are deterred from joining these Societies under the impression that they are made to pay for older members? Yes, I have heard such expressions.

4830. Do you approve of the present Act as it now exists? I approve of the Act in the main, but not of its administration.

4831. What fault have you to find with that? I do not think the Registrar is half strict enough; I think he should always impose the penalties provided by the Act for the non-forwarding of returns, but I do not think that he as Registrar has sufficient time at his disposal to look into these Societies.

4832. Do you think it would be advisable that there should be an actuary to examine the tables of the various Societies? Yes, and I think this Government should follow out what is done by the Victorian Government, and publish a tabulated statement of the results of each Society, so as to enable the public to judge which are going on properly and which not.

4833. Do you think the periodical returns should be made under oath the same as the Bank returns are? I do.

4834. Do you think that the Government should appoint some one to audit the accounts? Yes, I think the returns forwarded should be subject to audit.

4835. Mr. Gelding.] What is the cost of opening Branch Lodges in your Order? They pay on application £1 1s. for registering the Society.

4836. And the cost of books? About £6.

4837. And regalia? We never have it at the opening of Lodges. That is a matter which is optional with the Lodges; and many Lodges have no regalia, but where the officers have regalia the Lodges provide the same.

4838. Is it a general practice to admit all joining members at half-fees? Yes, half initiation fees.

4839. What is your opinion about that? I think it works very nicely; of course we stipulate that they shall not be over a certain age.

4840. Do you allow Lodges to revert to these half-fees again? Well, it has to be represented to the Committee of management.

4841. How often do you allow Lodges that privilege? Never more than twice after they have opened.

4842. What medical benefits do your members receive? Doctor and medicine for the member, his wife, and family under the age of eighteen years; and if a young man joins with a widowed mother it is allowed to her.

4843. Could you inform the Commission the average amount paid to the medical officer and chemist? In some Lodges it amounts to 16s. per annum, in others to £1, and in others to 28s.

4844. The 28s., I presume, is in the country districts? No, in the town.

4845. Do you not think that if a lot of the Friendly Societies were to amalgamate and get a dispensary up it would be a great advantage? I do indeed—I think it would be a grand idea, but it is the starting-point.

4846. What amount of sick pay do you give? A guinea a week the first six months.

4847. And funeral donation? £25 to a member and £15 for the wife; if he has been a member five years £30.

4848. Have you a Widow and Orphan Fund? No.

4849. Do the children get anything? No.

4850. Are you in favour of Societies keeping arbitration within their own limits, or of having a law to the effect that the differences shall be submitted to a Board of Arbitration composed of representatives of the different Friendly Societies of the Colony? I think it would be a good idea to have one member from each Society, to form a Board of Arbitrators.

4851. Do you think that there would be any difficulty in adopting the sliding scale in this country? I do not think there would be any difficulty.

4852. You think it unjust that young members should pay as much as old members? Certainly.

4853. You are aware that more than half-a-million members of Friendly Societies in Great Britain are under a sliding scale? I am not aware of it.

4854. You have not read of the operation of Societies in Great Britain at all perhaps? I have not.

4855. You cannot give the estimated value of the Lodge funds of your Society? About, yes; the amount at the end of the year from Lodges which had forwarded returns was £7,340 19s. 2d., making about £11,000.

4856. What would be the average per head? I could not say, but something over £3 per head.

4857. And do you think that is a good average for Societies to hold? I think it is a fair average; I do not think it is a good average.

4858. You stated that you thought if we were to follow in the steps of the Friendly Societies Act in Victoria we should be doing a great deal of good? No, I said I believed the Government should publish a tabulated statement as they do in Victoria, as to the position of each Society.

4859. Have you read the Government Statist's report in Victoria? I have glanced at it.

4860. Are you aware that he considers £9 or £10 a head average not more than sufficient? I read that such was his opinion.

4861. And that his intention was to make the Societies come up to that mark as near as possible? I believe so.

4862. Do you think it would be wise to follow in these steps, so as to make the Societies perfectly solvent? I believe they should be made perfectly solvent as far as practicable.

4863.

- Mr. G. Gibson. 4863. What is the value of the Protestant Hall at the present time? We have been offered £18,000.
 4864. What debt is on it? About £4,000.
 4865. What is the average income from it? I could not say.
 10 Mar., 1882. 4866. Does it pay interest on the amount invested? I think it does.
 4867. Are you in favour of separate Lodges building halls of their own, provided they have anything like decent funds at their command? I believe every Lodge should have a place of its own to meet in.
 4868. What is your opinion about meeting in public-houses? I think the law should step in to prevent it.
 4869. Yours is what is called a secret Society, is it not? Certainly not.
 4870. I mean no one can get in but your own members? Oh no; just the same as the Oddfellows.
 4871. You do not consider you carry on anything detrimental to peace and harmony or inimical to the laws of God? Our Society is conducted just the same as any other Friendly Society.
 4872. There is nothing immoral about your secrecy? No; we have no secrecy.
 4873. Mr. Slade.] In the Chairman's examination you stated that you served some period of the term as President in place of a suspended President? Yes.
 4874. Would you tell us the cause of his suspension? Drunkenness.
 4875. And did that suspended President take legal proceedings against your Grand Lodge? Certainly not; we took proceedings against him to recover possession of a collar held by him.
 4876. Have you a Superannuation Fund? No.
 4877. What is your opinion of such a fund? I believe it would be a wise thing to adopt.
 4878. Have many Branches of your Society dissolved or fallen off? No; I think about three.
 4879. Could you give the Commission an account of the causes of the breaking up? They were opened in districts where the population was migratory; those who remained took clearances into other Lodges.
 4880. Do you know anything of any defalcations in your Society? Yes.
 4881. Of what nature have they been? Embezzling money, to put it plain.
 4882. What positions did the parties hold? One was Secretary, but he returned the money and paid all expenses.
 4883. Any further cases? Yes, another was a Treasurer of subordinate Lodge, who returned the money. That is all that has come under my knowledge.
 4884. In these cases were the provisions of the Act sufficient to bring them to a reckoning? In one instance it was not, because the sum was larger than his bond.
 4885. Mr. Rubie.] What was the amount of the defalcation? £200 odd.
 4886. Mr. Slade.] What was his bond? Two sureties of £50 each.
 4887. Did you recover the amount of the bond or more? The full amount of the money he had embezzled.
 4888. Has the result of the admission of members at half-fees been that you have gained a larger percentage of old members than you otherwise would have done? No; the result has been that we have gained a larger number of young members.
 4889. Do you know of any cases in which your Branches have been unable to meet the claims upon them? Yes, in one.
 4890. To what extent? About £10, and that was occasioned by the miners' strike in the Southern District. We have a fund to assist Lodges which are unable to meet their engagements, as I before stated. I have given you the result of what was to the credit of the Grand Lodge this year, but am unable to give you the credit of subordinate Lodges because the returns are not in, and there were fourteen Lodges which did not have their returns in last year.
 4891. What became of the members left in that Lodge? They still continued their membership, and increased their levies in accordance with a suggestion.
 4892. What has been their career since? We have had no complaint whatever, and they are going on swimmingly. The money we give to Lodges is only a loan, which they have to repay.
 4893. Have your Lodges had to lower the rate of sick pay for a time? It has never occurred.
 4894. Not temporarily even? No, not even temporarily.
 4895. Has your Order any property except these shares in the Protestant Hall? No, not to my knowledge; the Branches may have.
 4896. Has any case come before you in which one of the Branches purchased any property which was afterwards the subject of litigation? There was no litigation about it, if you refer to the Lodge at Druitt Town.
 4897. You do not complain of the Act so much as its administration? No.
 4898. Mr. Newland.] If any of the members in your Lodges are not satisfied with the medical officer and get one who is not the medical officer of the Lodge, do you allow anything for it? No; but we give him the privilege of going to another Lodge and to another medical officer.
 4899. If you select a doctor who is not an allopath, would you recognize his claim to sick pay? We recognize none other than allopaths.
 4900. But according to the Medical Board of New South Wales a homœopath would not be on the list? Exactly so; we only recognize duly qualified medical practitioners.
 4901. Mr. Rubie.] Do officers of your Lodges give security? The Secretary and Treasurer do.
 4902. Then the gentleman whose defalcations were returned did not give security equal to the amount of money in his hands? Yes; by the rules he could only have £10 in his hands, but the Treasurer did not get the money from him, and hence it was left in his hands.
 4903. Then the other officers of the Lodge must have neglected their duty in not seeing that the Treasurer was paid over? No, that could be easily manipulated.
 4904. He was Grand Secretary, was he? Yes.
 4905. Then if I understand you aright, the Grand Council have simply to administer the levies received from the several Lodges as a Funeral Fund? No; they are placed to the credit of the Funeral Fund; and we have an Incidental Fund to which the Lodges contribute 6d. a quarter.
 4906. And have you found the Funeral Fund sufficient in all cases? Yes, it is increasing, having quadrupled itself during the last five years.
 4907. You are only a young Society? We have been established ten years.
 4908. Mr. Langley.] In case of future legislation, do you think it would be advantageous that the Act should lay down merely the financial basis upon which a Society should be formed, and leave it to the various Societies themselves to make their own rules for their own working? That is done now, and directions are given at the end as to what the rates should be.

Mr.
G. Gibson.

4909. There are a number of clauses in the present Act that are not carried out? Then that is the Registrar's fault for not seeing that they are.
4910. Do your trustees pay out all your money? We adopt a system which is, I think, a wise one. The Secretary produces an account to the Grand Master, and it is investigated and an order is signed for its payment, and a similar order goes to the Treasurer, so that he is doubly indemnified. Then he has to produce a receipt for the payment of the money. The same is done by subordinate Lodges.
4911. Does all the money of subordinate Lodges pass through the hands of trustees? All the money is placed to the credit of the trustees, and is paid by them.
4912. Mr. Holdsworth.] You were asked whether you considered the amount to the credit of your Society was sufficient; do you not consider that depends entirely upon the age of the Society? The amount I am giving you is exclusive of any liabilities, which are all paid.
4913. My question was whether, in considering whether a Society was sound or unsound with a certain amount of money at its credit, you must not take the age of the Society into consideration? Most certainly you must.
4914. Then you think a Society may with £3 per head to its credit be sounder than another with £7 or £8? Certainly; because they may have a large number of old members.
4915. And do you think 15 per cent. per annum increase of savings is good for a Society? I do.
4916. Mr. Smith.] Have you expelled many from your Order? There have been a good many, but I could not say how many.
4917. Could a return be got showing the number of persons expelled? Yes, that could be made out.
4918. Do many of your members leave the Society? No, because our rules provide that a member shall only owe 52s., and when he owes that he is expelled if he does not pay up.
4919. You are the first Society in the Colony that put the provision of the Act into operation in reference to suing for arrears? I believe not; there was an Order of Foresters that twenty years ago claimed that privilege; but it was lying dormant for twenty years until we took it up.
4920. You have had a number of cases of that character? No, we generally put it in a solicitor's hands before taking it to the District Court.
4921. Have you suffered defeat at the hands of persons whom you have sued? Never.
4922. You have not been mulcted in large expenses? No; we have a good solicitor who does not charge us much, a brother.
4923. Then you get law for nothing? No, because in every case we have had expenses given us by the Judge.
4924. From your experience in working your own Society and having to take these persons into a Court of law to recover, do you think it a wise provision? Certainly I do.
4925. And is it your opinion that in any fresh legislation that provision should be retained? Certainly.
4926. You think it is wise that all persons who fall into arrears should be summoned and made pay? I would not say indiscriminately, because there are many persons who join a Society and circumstances arise which render it desirable that they should leave the Society. You must trust the medical man a good deal.
4927. Then you would only put the law into operation where you had a young and healthy member leaving you? Not exactly.
4928. Chairman.] Have you any observations to make? In the English Friendly Societies Act it is provided that when the parent Society is registered, each subordinate Lodge is registered. We waited as a deputation on Mr. Oliver, holding the opinion that it was not necessary to register each separate Lodge. We argued the question with Mr. Oliver, and he said it was the practice of his office to charge each Lodge, no matter what Order they belonged to, a guinea for registering the rules. We can hardly see where the guinea comes in.
4929. Mr. Gelding.] Are not the Lodge rules distinct from the general governing rules of your body? No, not in our Society.
4930. Mr. Rubie.] Will you give us your balance-sheets? Yes, I am quite willing.
4931. And will you supply us with a dozen copies of your rules? Yes, with pleasure.

Mark Thomas Ronan sworn and examined:—

Mr.
M. T. Ronan.
10 Mar., 1882.

4932. Mr. Langley.] Were you one of the special auditors who audited the accounts of the Australian Holy Catholic Guild in 1876? Yes.
4933. In this balance-sheet, in order to make the accounts balance there is a sum of £1,495 1s. 4d. put in as a loss; can you give the Commission any information as to how it arose? That is the June balance-sheet, previous to the one I audited; I had nothing to do with it.
4934. Can you explain how that loss in the December balance-sheet arose? Well, I could scarcely think of the particulars now, it is a few years back, and not being thoroughly prepared for this—4935. Do you think it was a clerical error? I think not.
4936. Then to the best of your recollection you found there was a loss of that amount? There has been a loss, no doubt.
4937. Do you remember whether you attended the meeting at which that balance-sheet was produced and adopted? Yes.
4938. Was any exception taken, do you remember, to that item, or any alteration made in the balance-sheet after you submitted it? No, not that I am aware of now.
4939. But you are not in a position now to state how it arose? No.
4940. Mr. Holdsworth.] Will you compare these figures, £6,967 11s. 1d., in the December balance-sheet, with the balance as set forth in the June, and tell whether it was possible you could have substituted in your balance-sheet these figures in lieu of £5,480 4s.; is it possible you carried the total forward instead of the balance? I may say that this amount of £5,480 4s., the amount set down— I cannot give an explanation, not thoroughly, because we have actually explained it in the report.
4941. You know nothing about it then? No.
4942. Mr. Rubie.] But you believe there was a deficit of £1,400? I could not say that.
4943. Was it satisfactorily explained to you by the officers of the Society that there was a deficit? Yes.
4944. Mr. Slade.] When you prepared your report, to the best of your judgment it was correct? Yes.

The Commission then adjourned until Monday, 13 March.

MONDAY,

MONDAY, 13 MARCH, 1882.

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. John Francis M'Donall sworn and examined:—

Mr. J. F.
M'Donall
13 Mar., 1882

4945. President.] What Society are you a member of? The Holy Catholic Guild of St. Mary and St. Joseph.
4946. What office do you hold? None at present.
4947. What have you held? Warden for three years.
4948. How long have you been a member of the Guild? I think about five years.
4949. Have you held any other office? No other than Councillor, which you have to occupy six months to qualify you for the other.
4950. Are you a member of the Guild now? Yes.
4951. How is the Society managed in your opinion? Well, before I retired from office I drafted a code of new rules, with the object of having the Districts governed by separate Councils of their own, having distinct officers, and a governing body something on the principle of the Oddfellows.
4952. These rules have not been adopted? No, they have not.
4953. The funds of the Society are in one General Fund? Yes.
4954. All the levies go into one fund? Yes.
4955. And all the charges, cost of management—? All go from one fund, although according to the rules they are supposed to be kept separate.
4956. Do you approve of that system of management? No, I do not.
4957. The amount of contributions by each member is—? 1s. 2d. a week.
4958. Members who have been five years and upwards on the books receive at death, I believe, £40? The highest sum is £40; £20 from the Widow and Orphan Fund, and £20 from the Mortuary.
4959. And a guinea a week sick pay? Yes, for twelve months.
4960. And £10 or £15 in case of the death of the wife? Yes.
4961. And doctor and medical attendance the same as all other Societies? Yes.
4962. And are you of opinion that 14d. a week is sufficient to insure the members of the Society payment of these sums? I do not think it.
4963. You are of opinion that the sum is not sufficient to insure due payment of the amount of money that will be due on the death of the husbands? I think not.
4964. You have a uniform contribution in all the Branches of the Society, have you not? Those in the country have nothing to do with us.
4965. I mean in the Sydney District? Yes.
4966. And a graduated scale of initiation fees? Yes.
4967. Do you approve of a uniform scale of contribution? I have often taken exception to the small amount of the entrance money.
4968. I am speaking of contributions? That would all depend; I think there should be a gradation according to age.
4969. And you would favour that? Yes.
4970. Do you as a matter of opinion believe your Society, as at present in Sydney, is on a sound financial basis? I can hardly say that; it may be, I have had little to do with the finances of the Society; but lately there has been a great drain on the funds in consequence of old members dying off.
4971. Do you know the total amount of assets? I think it is between £6,000 and £7,000.
4972. That is, with the hall? Yes, and in cash.
4973. The cash is a small sum? Yes.
4974. And do you know the total number of members? I think between 800 and 1,000.
4975. During the time you were in office, do you remember some defalcations taking place? No, it was previous to my taking office.
4976. Do you remember the circumstances? No, I was not a member then.
4977. And they were settled previously to your taking office? Yes.
4978. And you can tell us nothing about them? No.
4979. On the balance-sheet that showed a loss of £1,400? No; I tried to obtain a number of reports preceding my time, but they could not be obtained—the books were not forthcoming.
4980. And you found a difficulty in getting what you sought for? I could not get it at all.
4981. And it was not properly managed? I believe not, for a number of years—not subsequent to Mr. Rubie leaving office.
4982. During the term of your office did you find any inconvenience in the working of the Friendly Societies Act? Yes, there is one, and that is the great delay there is in getting the rules passed. They have not only to pass the Council but the general body, and then to the Archbishop, who is the Patron, previous to being sent on to the Registrar; this necessitates great delay.
4983. But that does not apply to the Act, but to your own arrangements? No, simply to our own rules.
4984. But as far as the Act itself is concerned, do you know of any inconvenience? No, I have never found any.
4985. As a matter of opinion, do you believe the present Act affords sufficient security to members of Friendly Societies? Well, if we take the decisions of the Courts in reference to suing for arrears, I do not think so.
4986. You do not approve of that? No, I think a man should be cut off if he is in arrears for thirteen or fourteen weeks. I think when a man's time is up, if he fails to comply, he should cease to be a member.
4987. But are not members entitled to receive funeral donation in case of death if fourteen weeks in arrears in your Society? No, if a member dies, and is fourteen weeks in arrears, there is no money payable to him.

Mr. J. F.
McDonall.

13 Mar., 1882.

4988. And the same with his wife? Of course.
4989. You are sure of that? As far as my action as Warden is concerned, in cases where a man has died, and has been out of compliance, we have generally made a subscription for the widow, as the funds could not be touched.
4990. The Society's obligation ceases after fourteen weeks in arrears? Yes.
4991. And you are of opinion that any members over twelve months in arrears should be expelled? Yes.
4992. And you would not be in favour of that provision which provides for the suing of members? No, I would not.
4993. Is there anything you could suggest that you think would be an advantage that might be embodied in new legislation? No, I have not given any consideration to it at all.
4994. Of course we have heard from other witnesses how you settle your matters in dispute, and there is no use in going through it again; but if you have anything to suggest, if you will write it and send it to the Secretary it will be appended to your evidence? Yes, thank you; I have noticed placards for opening Lodges at a low premium—on terms under which I think they cannot last more than a few years.
4995. Mr. Gelding.] Have you studied the question of Friendly Societies? No, I cannot say I have.
4996. You have never entered into the question of the Friendly Societies Act? I have not.
4997. You are still a member of the Guild, are you not? Yes.
4998. Would you be in favour of the Government appointing a permanent officer specially to attend to matters relating to Friendly Societies in this Colony; do you believe that Mr. Oliver, considering the positions that he holds, can possibly give the attention that is needful to the Societies? That is a matter I could hardly answer, because I do not know what his duties are; and he and his clerk have always been attentive to us.
4999. You got your rules certified to without objection? I believe when the present rules were going through, exception was taken by the Registrar.
5000. He never took any exception to the amounts? No.
5001. Are you in favour of a provision, in any future legislation, that all Societies should have their affairs submitted to actuarial experiences in future legislation? I think it would be advisable.
5002. You believe that the present system of certifying to anything the Registrar may have brought before him is not what it should be—that is, if a Society offers £100 for funeral donation; you think these things should be looked into? I think so, yes.
5003. Have you formed any idea at all what the minimum contribution should be? 15d., I believe, is the least.
5004. You think that would be sufficient to insure £20 at the death of a member, and £10 or £15 at the death of a wife, and also a sum of money for the widow when the husband dies? Provided you had a gradation according to age.
5005. Then you are of opinion that a sliding scale would be the best thing? I think so.
5006. It is an important point this; I presume you are aware that this scale is carried out in Great Britain in Friendly Societies? No, I am not.
5007. But you believe it would be judicious to have it carried out here? Yes.
5008. You think it is not right that a young man of eighteen should pay as much as a man entering between thirty and forty? That is my opinion.
5009. Do you think it advisable to all members who may be dissatisfied to have recourse to law? I think not; I think they should submit the matter to arbitrators—that is the case in the Guilds.
5010. What is your opinion in reference to the question of going outside each particular Friendly Society—that is, of having a Board of Arbitration consisting of members of all the Friendly Societies to arbitrate; would you prefer that, or that each Friendly Society should have its own Board? I think it would be better that each Society should have its own Board.
5011. You said just now that you thought this opening of Lodges on half-fees was injurious? I think so; not just then, but in the course of a few years, when members begin to die off.
5012. I believe your Society has had very heavy drains upon it? Yes, for the last four years.
5013. And there is every probability, considering the great influx of population, that that drain will continue to increase instead of decrease? I could not say that; there are a lot of young members coming in, and the drain could not continue very long.
5014. Are not other members gradually getting old? Yes; I am speaking of the time I was in office.
5015. You had an extra quantity of old members? Yes.
5016. You do not attribute it to the small-pox epidemic? No; it has been a breaking up of the system in the old members.
5017. Your funds have been all put into one general affair, have they not? Yes, contrary to the rules; but it was impossible to alter it.
5018. How did the impossibility come about? There was no possible way of seeing what belonged to each fund.
5019. And did the Registrar certify to your rules knowing you were committing a breach of the law? I could not say; they were certified to before I came into office.
5020. Mr. Slade.] Have you found any difficulty in administering your Society under the present Act? No, I cannot say that I have.
5021. Have any wants in the Act been ever brought before you palpably? No.
5022. In your experience have you had any evidence that the present Act is insufficient? I have not read the Act through, and could not say that I would recommend any alteration of the Act in any particular way. I have had more to do with the rules of the Society, without referring to anything outside.
5023. Then so far as your experience goes, have you any reason to object to the present Act? I have not, because I have not read it through.
5024. Have any cases occurred by which you have been led to believe that it is not sufficient? I know of nothing, except that under the Act men have been summoned and compelled to pay after twelve months.
5025. Have you any other objection than that it grants power to sue for arrears of contributions? And that it allows the starting of Societies on a very low scale.

Mr. J. F.
Mr. Dohall,
13 Mar., 1882.

5026. Then you consider that any new legislation should provide an arbitrary scale of initiation fees That might be met by the Act requiring an actuary to certify to the tables before they become law.

5027. Are you of opinion that a Superannuation or Pension Fund would be valuable? I have not considered that matter.

5028. I mean a fund to relieve the Society from old members from going on the funds occasionally, and providing them a pension as long as they live? I have never given that consideration.

5029. Mr. Rubie.] About what time were the funds amalgamated? I could not say; it was before I went into office.

5030. Is the ledger account kept now? I could not say; I had the system altered when I went into office.

5031. Then how are the general funds of the Guild ascertained if there is no ledger account? I do not know, unless it is kept in one large book. When I went into office there was an account opened with every member.

5032. Have you any idea how many members there are in connection with the Society in Sydney? I think there are between 800 and 1,000.

5033. And according to your last balance-sheet you have only a small sum in hand? I was not there, and do not know.

5034. So that in reality the whole of the funds are invested in the hall? Principally in the hall. A little while back I caused £1,000 to be paid off the mortgage so as to reduce the interest.

5035. Have you any idea what the hall is valued at? I cannot say from memory—£5,000 or £6,000, I think.

5036. But its present value in the market? I could not say; no doubt it has increased in value.

5037. You have frequently had lawsuits of late? Yes, we had one case in connection with a Branch at St. Leonards; there was another that I know nothing about.

5038. Was this rule of arbitration enforced when this St. Leonards affair was taken into Court? Yes it was, I believe, referred to arbitration.

5039. Are you certain of that, because it has been sworn to the contrary? I know that a case in connection with St. Leonards was referred to arbitration.

5040. The case of the Branch itself—was that referred to arbitration? I could not say. There was one case in which we went into the District Court with a member of the late District of St. Leonards, who sued the District here for money to be paid into a Branch at St. Leonards that we did not recognize. They proposed arbitration about that, but as we did not recognize the Branch we refused. Permission was given to establish a Branch at Lane Cove, but instead of its being started at Lane Cove it was started at St. Leonards, where a District already existed; and then when we found it was started there and met in the same room, we refused to recognize it. A brother then applied for a transfer from the North Shore Branch to it, and we opposed it and declined to submit to arbitration, and they went to law about it.

5041. Mr. Langley.] Does your Constitution not state that disputes of the kind shall be referred to arbitration? Yes.

5042. Does it give the option to the governing body to say that it shall not go to arbitration? I think so. This is the rule:—"If any dispute shall arise between the Society and any of its members, or any person or persons claiming through or under any member under the rules of the Society, or the securities, administrators, nominees or assigns of any member, and the Council, or any councillor, or any officer, or any member of the Guild, such dispute shall be referred to and decided by arbitration."

5043. Then, may I ask you, taking that as a basis, do you consider that refusing to allow a brother the right of arbitration, and then going into Court and pleading that it was not arbitrated upon, is treating the member fairly? Yes; because this member who appealed had already joined the other Society and was not a member of ours.

5044. Is it a fact that the whole of the members applied to be transferred to the other Branch which you had illegally opened there? They did apply by letter.

5045. And though the room of a Branch Society was close to them, they were refused the right, and were still held to be members of a Branch on this side of the water? Yes, country members; they paid less.

5046. Now, as a matter of fact, looking at this as a mere Benefit Society, do you think this was fair? I do.

5047. To compel members against their wish to belong to their own locality? They already had a District, a Branch there, and were represented in the Council by two officers.

5048. There was a Branch which applied for establishment at Lane Cove, where I believe there is no room they could meet in, and there was a St. Leonards Branch; was the Lane Cove Branch properly organized when they applied to join? We did not know; we never recognized it.

5049. Was it properly established? I could not say.

5050. Did they obtain from the governing body a right to open? Yes, at Lane Cove.

5051. Then they must have been properly organized? No; as far as we were concerned it was not thoroughly organized; they applied to establish a Branch at Lane Cove, but they failed to do that. It was a move to get the funds into a Branch to be worked by one or two individuals.

5052. If the parties who had the working of the Society allowed the funds, in direct contravention of the Act, to be placed in one General Fund, do you think that the Act has been properly administered? I do not think so, because if the Act directs that the funds should be administered in a certain way and they are not so administered, it is not being properly carried out.

5053. You spoke about half-fees at entering. If a Society which charges 1d. or 2d. more than the Guild pay, allow, on the first night of opening a new Lodge, the admission of a certain number of members at half-fees, do you think that can be as detrimental as the rate of contribution? Yes, I think it would be objectionable, for you might induce persons to go in at a certain age when their age is much older.

5054. But if falsification is to take place, is there anything that will prevent any Society, no matter what its charges are, from being victimized? I know, of course, if they make false declarations they are liable to be expelled at once in our Society. I think half-fees are a mistake, as they will prevent a Society's funds from meeting the demands.

5055. But how will that affect members who are protected otherwise? If they have not got the funds they cannot find the money.

5056. 14d. is your scale? Yes.

5057. Then if a Society compels all its members to pay 15d. and allows thirty or forty members to join at half-fees, which do you think at the end of seven years would be in the best position? I am not prepared to say.

Mr. J. F. M'Donnell,
13 Mar., 1882.

5058. Mr. Holdsworth.] You believe that opening new Lodges on half initiation fees offers a premium for fraud? I would not go so far as to say that; but where a new Society is being formed the inducement is held out to bring persons in, and in five or ten years the results are seen.

5059. Mr. Smith.] You have 1,000 members? From 800 to 1,000.

5060. You have a fund of £351 14s., representing some 7s. 1d. per head? Yes.

5061. Do you think it possible for a Society to exist under such circumstances? Not unless the receipts are very heavy, as they are in the Guild.

5062. President.] You have nothing further to add? Nothing further to add.

John Felix M'Crory sworn and examined :—

5063. President.] What Society do you represent? The Hibernian Society.

5064. How long has that been in existence in New South Wales? I think about nine years.

Mr. J. F. M'Crory,
13 Mar., 1882.

5065. What office do you hold? That of District Secretary at present.

5066. How long have you held that office? About twelve months we were working as a Board of Management and subsequently as a District Board.

5067. Have you previously held any other office? I went through the inferior offices in my own Branch.

5068. And how long have you been a member? Since about 1876.

5069. How many Lodges have you in the District? Nine.

5070. What is the total number of members? About 425 financial members.

5071. What is the total amount of accrued funds for the nine Lodges? Two of them are only in existence two months—the others for some years.

5072. What is the total value of the funds and securities? Well, on the average for seven Branches it is £250 each Branch.

5073. You have no return to show the total amount of funds? No, not with me.

5074. Can you furnish the Commission with a balance-sheet showing this? Yes.

5075. Will you kindly do so? Yes, that is, the December returns. I have not the annual returns, as I have not seen them; they send them to the Registrar.

5076. You have not received them? I have received three.

5077. Will you on receipt of them kindly furnish the Commission with them? Yes, as soon as I get them.

5079. It is a sort of per capita tax? Yes.

5080. And what are the benefits your members enjoy for the payment of these sums? On being in a Lodge six months they get a pound a week sick pay, £20 on the death of the husband, and £12 on the death of the wife.

5081. Medical attendance? Yes, and medicines.

5082. For members and wives? Yes, and families—all under age.

5083. Where do you hold your meetings? The District meetings in St. Benedict's schoolroom.

5084. And the Branch meetings? At the various schoolrooms in connection with the Branches.

5085. Then your District embraces the whole Colony? No, there are other Branches which are separate, at Cootamundra, Wagga, and Albury.

5086. You have no control over these? No. This is the annual report of the Executive in Victoria. (Report produced.)

5087. Can you tell me what has been the cost of management of the Society during the past year? No, that I could not.

5088. What has been the cost of management of the District? I could not say exactly, but I could supply it hereafter. (Reports of proceedings, March, 8, 1881, August 5 and 9, 1881, and February 3, 1881, put in.)

5089. That is the total value of the District? Yes.

5090. Do you spend as much money as £198 in regalia? That is the head office.

5091. The Grand Lodge in Melbourne? Yes.

5092. Your Society is not registered under the New South Wales Friendly Societies Act? Yes.

5093. Your rules do not say so? They have been out of print, and these are the new rules just received from Melbourne.

5094. Are they the same as these? There is very little alteration.

5095. Your rules have been registered? Yes, the District has been registered; if necessary I can produce a copy of the registration.

5096. Your District is a Branch of the Grand Lodge of Victoria? It is formed by each Branch electing deputies.

5097. What connection have you with Victoria? Only by sending them the quarterage and sending a delegate to the annual meeting.

5098. That is the Grand Lodge meeting? Yes.

5099. And though your Society is governed by rules of this kind, you say they are registered? Yes.

5100. Do you believe the Registrar will register rules that have been registered by the Victorian Registrar? He has done so.

5101. You say they have been submitted for registration? They have to be approved by the District.

5102. And then they will be sent to the Registrar? Yes.

5103. What position does a member of your Society who is over thirteen weeks in arrears stand in? He is suspended from benefits.

5104. In case of death? In that case the claim has always been paid up to twelve months.

5105. Or the wife's death? I could not say about that; we have only had one case to my knowledge.

5106. And if a member is twelve months in arrears? He is then sent a note by the Secretary, and if the money is not paid legal proceedings are sometimes taken. 5107.

- Mr. J. F. M'Crory. 5107. Do you erase his name? No, I never did so.
5108. Have you ever taken proceedings to recover? St. Joseph's Branch did.
5109. With what result? They got four or five years' contributions.
- 13 Mar., 1882. 5110. Do you approve of that? No, I do not.
5111. Do you think it would be better to remove the name of a member? Yes, that is my opinion.
5112. You prefer that to the course of taking legal proceedings? Yes.
5113. Could you tell the Commission what is the total amount of money paid on account of funeral donations during last year and the year before? I can tell you what was paid by the District, but not what was paid before.
5114. Does the District pay the funeral donations? Yes, a levy being made of 1s. 6d. per quarter and 2s. 6d. as an initiation fee.
5115. What was the amount paid last year by the District? £60.
5116. That embraces all the Lodges you speak of? Yes.
5117. What amount was paid on account of sick pay during that time? That I cannot say.
5118. Can you tell me what was paid for medical attendance? The rate I can.
5119. But I want the total? No, the balance-sheets of the different Branches will tell you that.
5120. Can you tell the gross receipts for the year? No.
5121. You cannot tell the gross expenditure? Not from the Branches I cannot.
5122. Will you kindly furnish that to the Commission? I will furnish the balance-sheets to the Commission.
5123. When will you be in a position to furnish the information? By next Monday.
5124. What do you get from the Victorian Society for this capitation payment? It is only an interchange of membership—that is all.
5125. They take your members on the same terms and conditions? Yes.
5126. And for that you pay this capitation allowance? Yes.
5127. How have you found that to work? Splendidly; only yesterday I got a note from the Adelaide Secretary in reference to a gentleman coming over here, who is placed on the doctor's and chemist's list while here.
5128. Have you ever been a member of any other Society? Never.
5129. And during the time you have been an office-bearer of the Hibernian Society, have you found the Friendly Societies Act of New South Wales afford you and the members all the security you believe members of Friendly Societies should have? No, I do not think it is rigid enough—it does not give enough power to officers of Branches.
5130. What powers do you think they ought to possess? Well, in reference to Treasurers, I do not think it is rigid enough on Treasurers of Branches—they could almost do as they liked.
5131. Do you take a bond from your Treasurer? Yes.
5132. Of what amount? £100, and £50 from Secretaries.
5133. Have you Trustees? Yes.
5134. And do you take a bond from them? No.
5135. How are your funds invested? The balance-sheets of the Branches will tell you how their funds are invested. The District Funds are not invested, as they have not sufficient to invest at the present time. The Funeral Fund is £280 19s. 10d. Then we have money owing us by the Executive, which the Branches sent them as funeral money before we came into existence.
5136. And are all the subordinate Lodges entitled to funeral donation? Yes, all sending us the quarterage.
5137. And do they all conform to that regulation? Yes.
5138. The total amount paid is £60 for last year? Yes.
5139. And do you believe the Society to be in a good financial position? Yes, I believe it to be in a flourishing state.
5140. In a position to meet its financial obligations? Yes.
5141. And well managed? Yes. The cost of management is very small indeed; the highest salaries any of the Branch Secretaries get is £12 a year, and I, as District Secretary, get £15.
5142. Have you had any defalcations? Yes, we had one last October.
5143. Much? £22 11s. 4d.; it was a return sent in by St. Benedict's Branch; the return came in correct for March, and in June the Auditors found the Treasurer owed this amount, and he denied it. He refused to pay, and it was brought before the District Court and referred to arbitration; an appeal was made to the Supreme Court, and a verdict again given for us.
5144. That is the only defalcation you know of? Yes.
5145. And he has paid the amount? No, he has called a meeting of his creditors.
5146. What method have you of dealing with matters of dispute in your Lodges? If a dispute arises it is referred to a judicial Committee, and if their decision is unsatisfactory it is referred to the District officers, and then it can go to the quarterly meeting, and to the annual meeting, and to the Executive Directory, and then to the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge.
5147. And how do you find that work? Very well; by the new rules the officers of the Branch will try the matter first; there is a deposit of 10s.
5148. That is a guarantee that it is not a frivolous case? Yes, and if it is found so it is forfeited to the credit of the Branch Fund.
5149. What amount do you pay your medical man? 4s. a quarter, and 2s. to the chemist; that is, for the city Branches; Petersham and Burwood, 6s. 6d. for medical attendance and medicine; St. Benedict's 3s. 6d. medical attendance, 1s. 6d. medicine; Sacred Heart, 4s. medical attendance, and 2s. medicine.
5150. Is there anything you could suggest to the Commission that you think might be of service in any future legislation? Well, there are a few things, but I am not prepared just now to explain them, but will do so at the next meeting.
5151. Mr. Rubie.] You say you pay 6d. to the management? 7d.—that is per quarter; 6d. goes to the District, and 1d. to Melbourne.
5152. But what are the expenses of the District? Salaries, and all incidental expenses.
5153. And 6d. a quarter pays that? Yes.
5154. Mr. Newland.] I see in rule 2 the place of business is named as 170, Clarendon-street, Emerald Hill? That is the place of business of the Grand Lodge or Executive Directory.

5155. Mr. Slade.] Could you tell us what is the cost of regalia? A set of Branch officers' £11 3s.; Warden and Guardian, £2 2s. 6d.; members' collars, from 14s. 6d. to £1 10s. each. Of course it is not compulsory for a member to buy that regalia.
5156. How much does a set of District regalia cost? £12 12s. for four officers.
5157. All this, except members' regalia, is compulsory? The Branch regalia and District regalia are compulsory.
5158. And the only option is with members' individual regalia? Yes.
5159. Does this come from any special fund, or out of the general management expense? From the funds of the Society.
5160. Could you give the Commission an idea of the cost of opening a Branch in other respects? The opening of St. Mary's Branch at Burwood cost 17s. 6d.
5161. And what would be the value of books? A set of Branch books is £2 10s.
5162. What other expenses are there necessary? Doctor's inquiry fees and general forms.
5163. What is the cost of the stationery? Between £6 and £7, including books and everything.
5164. Mr. Gelding.] Have you a Widow and Orphan Fund? No.
5165. Who pays the delegates' expenses to Melbourne and back? The District.
5166. In Sydney? Yes, those of its own delegate.
5167. You say you pay a capita tax of 1d. per head for having reciprocity of clearances? Yes.
5168. Have you not clearances come from Melbourne here? Yes.
5169. Should not you have a capita tax from them also then? No, because we have Districts in Melbourne. It is that penny which keeps up the Grand Lodge; and the Districts in Melbourne have to pay it as well as us.
5170. Do you think it is right, considering that each Colony has its separate government, that a Society in New South Wales should be under the government of a Society in Victoria? It is not so—the government is here.
5171. How can that be, considering you have rules from there, and pay a capita tax? No, we have a voice just as much as others.
5172. Are you not of opinion that your Society would be better managed if you had the Executive in your own hands than in being connected with Victoria? I am.
5173. There is an entry here "Loan to Incidental Fund, £109 16s. 1d.," from the Funeral Fund; what is that for? It was money held in trust by the Executive Directory on behalf of the Orange and Bathurst Branches, and when we wrote at different times they would not give it us, but they took it out in regalia.
5174. Have you to apply to Victoria for dispensations to open Branch Lodges in New South Wales? Yes.
5175. And unless your rules are agreeable to the Melbourne Branch I presume they would not sanction them? If we want to propose a new rule here, we have first to submit it to Melbourne before submitting it to the Registrar here.
5176. I see there is a slight item over £4 per member; do you think that represents solvency on the part of the Society? My opinion is that it is perfectly sound.
5177. Have you had many members die during the last year or two? Only £60 has been paid away.
5178. Does your Society consist of many aged members? I do not think so; all the old ones seem to have gone off the hooks; it is mainly composed of young members now.
5179. Mr. Slade.] Can you give us information as to the amount of money spent in testimonials to deserving officers according to rule 30? It comes out of the members' pockets, and not out of the funds of the Lodge.

The Commission then adjourned until Friday, 17 March.

5180. President.] Have you the balance-sheets? As far as I could get them. (Reports produced.)
5181. What have you got? For twelve months, from six Branches.
5182. These are quarterly returns? These are quarterly.
5183. Have you any annual returns? No; the December balance-sheet is there, showing the capital of each Branch.
5184. What was the number of members in the St. Thomas, Petersham, Lodge, on 31 December last? Forty-three.
5185. What was the total value of the funds? £89 2s. 5d.

Mr.
J. F. M'Crory.
20 Mar., 1882.

5186.

20 Mar., 1882.
5186. How long had the Lodge been in existence? Between three and four years.
5187. What amount was paid for funeral donation? Nothing from the Branch; the District paid nothing on account of the Branch.

5190. What were the total receipts for the year from all sources? £107 17s 6d.
5191. What is the average age of the members? Well, the oldest member in the Lodge is about thirty-six, and the youngest eighteen.
5192. That would make a good average in favour of the Lodge? Yes.
5193. You consider the Lodge well managed? Yes.
5194. Do you consider that Lodge in particular on a good financial basis? Yes, I do.
5195. In a position to meet all its obligations? Yes.
5196. What is the next Lodge? St. Joseph's, Orange.
5197. What is the number of members? Eighty-three at the present time.
5198. What is the total value of funds? £371 0s. 1d.
5199. What has been paid during the year on account of sick pay? £58 1s. 8d.
5200. What has been paid on account of management? £50 3s. 8d.
5201. What has been paid on account of funeral donations? The District has paid it.
5202. What were the total receipts? £237 9s. 11d.
5203. How long has the Lodge been in existence? Since 1878.
5204. What proportion of old members have you in that Lodge? That I could not tell you, except by hearsay that they are between twenty and forty.
5205. Have you any one over forty? I do not think so, but could not be sure.
5206. What is the next Lodge? St. Benedict's, Parramatta-street.
5207. How old is that Lodge? I think it was opened in 1876.
5208. How many members has it now? 108.
5209. What is the total value of its funds? £161 2s. 5d.
5210. What has been paid during last year for sick pay? £60 3s. 4d.
5211. What has been paid for medical attendance and medicine? £106 4s. 11d.
5212. What has been paid on account of management? £53 16s. 11d.
5213. What is the total income? £362 5s. 8d.
5214. What proportion has been paid to the Funeral Fund from the Lodge? 1s. 6d. per quarter for the number of members.
5215. I see in the balance-sheet "Proceeds from demonstration on St. Patrick's Day"; does that go into the General Fund? Into the Incidental Fund.
5216. And if there is a loss how is it met? By subscriptions.
5217. Not from this fund? No; but they have had a reserve in the Bank to meet that for several years.
5218. Now in reference to Sacred Heart, how old is it? Since 1875.
5219. What is the total number of members? Ninety-one.
5220. What is the total value of funds? £234 5s.
5221. What amount has been paid on account of sick pay during the year? I only have the balance-sheets for three quarters; for them, £38 10s.
5222. What has been the cost of management during these three quarters? £38 10s. 3d.
5223. What has been paid on account of medical attendance and medicines? £82 17s.
5224. What is the total revenue for the three quarters? £228 14s. 10d.
5225. And you consider this Lodge a well-managed one? Yes, it is the Lodge I belong to myself.
5226. What has been the increase per quarter of funds? It has decreased from September to December by £10.
5227. Then we come to St. Michael and St. John's Branch; how old is it? I could not say for certain. I have only three quarters' returns for this Lodge.
5228. Is it an old Lodge? No, a new Lodge.
5229. Where is it located? Bathurst; it must be since 1878.
5230. What is the total number of members? Fifty-seven.
5231. The total value of its funds? £114 14s. 6d.
5232. The cost of management during three quarters? £11 14s. 9d.
5233. What has been paid on account of medical attendance and medicine during the three quarters? Only £13; they have dispensed with a doctor for six months.
5234. What has been the total income during these quarters? £84 9s. 10d.
5235. What has been the improved value of funds each quarter? The capital they had last year was £112 10s. 10d., and this year it is £114 14s. 6d.
5236. The next return is St. Joseph's; what is the age of that Lodge? It came into existence about 1874. I am a balance-sheet short of this Lodge.
5237. What is the number of members? Eighty-four in September last.
5238. What is the total value of funds? £124 19s. 7d. at that date in September. The previous year it was £133 14s.
5239. That is a decrease of £8 on the year? Yes.
5240. What have been the expenses on account of management during the three quarters you have there? £24 6s. 6d.
5241. What was the total revenue for these quarters? £211 19s. 11d.
5242. And you are of opinion that this Lodge, as well as the others, is in a good sound financial position, well-managed, and with economy? Yes, as far as I know.
5243. And that the amount of contribution paid by members in the several Lodges is sufficient to insure payment to the individual members of each Lodge of the funeral donation, sick pay, and other endowments? No, I do not; I think it is too low.
5244. What do you think would be a fair contribution? I think the contribution of every Society should not be less than 15d. a week.
5245. Would you be in favour of a new Act providing for a uniform rate of contribution from all members? Yes; for all Societies not to be less than 1s. 3d., because with the manner in which some Lodges pay their officers they cannot live by it except by making levies on the members.

5246. Have you any suggestions to make that might be of service—that might be embodied in any future legislation? No, I do not think I could assist you in any way.
5247. Mr. Smith.] Has it occurred to you that these balance-sheets show that these individual Lodges have been losing money on each year's transactions? That is on account of them never before being under a District and sending in their funeral money; and in addition to that there has been a levy.
5248. And if you had not made a levy they would present a worse condition? No, they would make a better one, as the District has taken the money from the Lodges. They took it away from the strong Lodges to help the weak ones, for the Funeral Fund.
5249. Was the levy of a uniform character? Yes, 10s. per financial member.
5250. And that levy was taken from the funds of each subordinate Lodge? Yes, after its amalgamation with the District.
5251. St. Benedict's Branch is the oldest you have in the Colony? No; St. Patrick's is the oldest.
5252. But that is not in the district? No; St. Joseph's is the oldest in the district.
5253. Where is it situated? St. Patrick's Hall.
5254. The whole of these returns as placed in show an average per member of £3 5s.? Some of the returns are incomplete. You have not the balance-sheets except for three quarters for two Lodges.
5255. And from your knowledge and experience you think that the average sum of £3 5s. per member is a good financial position? I do at the present time, because you do not reckon in the capital of the District in that; we have money belonging to the Branches for the Funeral Fund.
5256. Mr. Langley.] Are you acquainted with the Friendly Societies Act? Only as it deals with myself as an officer.
5257. Have you studied the Act? No, I have not.
5258. Do you think it is fair to members of Friendly Societies to be constantly recurring to levies which they know nothing about before they enter? No, I consider it a piece of injustice.
5259. Mr. Newland.] Could you by statistics form any average of mortality of members who are exposed to the influences of the weather or not? No, I could not, because I have not the death-rate in my hands; but I will write down to the head office and see if I can get the information.
5260. That is, in-door and out-door occupations? I will try and get it for you.
5261. Mr. Slade.] I see in one of those balance-sheets a donation to Dean Leonard, of the Sacred Heart; is he a member of the Society? No, he is not; it was taken from a balance left on account of a demonstration which belonged to the Society, and was held as a reserve for the purpose.
5262. Then the donation was from that fund? Yes, from that.
5263. Mr. Gelding.] I see in your balance-sheets that the Management Expense Fund has gone back in a good many of the Lodges; have the District officers taken steps to insist on the Lodges remedying that evil? Yes, they were written to.
5264. How do you account for the extra expense? I account for it by neglectful Secretaries not doing their work and getting other members to do the work.
5265. You do not consider the smallness of the contribution money has anything to do with it? No.
5266. President.] You have nothing further to say to the Commission? No; I will call a meeting of the District officers.
5267. Will you forward the balance of these returns to us? When I receive them.
5268. Will you furnish the Commission with an abstract of each of these Branches for the last twelve months? Yes.

James Robert M'Keown sworn and examined:—

5269. President.] What Society do you represent? St. Patrick's Branch of the Hibernian Australian Catholic Benefit Society.
5270. What office do you hold? Secretary.
5271. How long have you held office? Nearly two years.
5272. How long have you been a member? About eight years.
5273. Have you held any other office? Treasurer for four and a half years.
5274. Your Society is not under any District? No, except the Executive Directory in Melbourne.
5275. Not under the Sydney District? No.
5276. No connection? No.
5277. What is the total number of members? Sixty-eight financial; twenty-five unfinancial.
5278. Can you tell the number of members twelve months before that? Seventy-seven good on the books, and nine unfinancial.
5279. Then you have been decreasing? Yes, a little.
5280. What is the total value of your funds at present? £509 6s. 3d.
5281. And in 1880? £433 16s. 2d.
5282. What is the amount of money paid by the Society during last year on account of sick pay? £63 5s.
5283. And what during 1880? £162 7s. 6d.
5284. What has been paid on account of doctor and medicine? Medical attendance, £53 9s. 6d.; and medicine, £32 15s. 6d.
5285. And what during 1880? Medical attendance, £94 9s. 9d.; medicine, £37 6s.
5286. What was the cost of management last year? £35 13s. 2d.
5287. The previous year? £41 1s. 3d.
5288. What were the total receipts last year? £290 13s. 3d.
5289. What was the total income during 1880? £287 5s.
5290. What is the amount of contributions paid by your members? A shilling a week.
5291. A uniform contribution? Yes.
5292. And the initiation fees—are they uniform? Yes, according to age.
5293. That is a graduated scale? Yes.
5294. Have you many aged members in your Society? No, not many.
5295. What is the oldest? I could not tell you without the book.
5296. Have you many over fifty? About ten I should think.

Mr. J. F. M'Crory.
20 Mar., 1882.

M. J. R.
M'Keown.

- Mr. J. R. M'Keown.
20 Mar., 1882.
5297. Many young members? Yes, a good number.
5298. You have no idea what the average ages would be? I could not tell you from memory.
5299. How old is the Society? It was registered in 1868.
5300. Has it at any time had a larger number of members than now? Yes, I believe it has; it has been up to 110 I think.
5301. Have you found any inconvenience in the working of your Society arising from the Friendly Societies Act? No, not the slightest; we have always been the first to have the annual returns in, and I believe they have always been satisfactory.
5302. How do you invest your funds? In the Savings Bank.
5303. Have you Trustees? Yes.
5304. How do you settle matters of dispute arising? We have a Judicial Committee consisting of fifteen members, who are elected annually.
5305. And how does that work, does it give satisfaction? Yes, we have only had occasion to have one Committee sit, and that was on a member who was working and receiving sick pay.
5306. Do you believe a shilling a week is enough to insure the benefits your Society offers? I think so; we have never had occasion to have any levies.
5307. Mr. Gelding.] What benefits do you give? Sick pay, 20s. a week; funeral, £20.
5308. Any Widow and Orphan Fund? No, but there is £10 on the death of a member's wife.
5309. Do you allow your members any benefits in accouchement cases? No, just exactly what the doctor charges—a guinea—and that is paid by the member.
5310. How does your Lodge work with members who may leave the district and go up country? We give them a clearance that they can throw into any Lodge they wish. We are simply not under the District, but under the Executive Directory in Melbourne.
5311. And you think that 1s. a week is sufficient to insure all these benefits? Yes, I think so.
5312. Has it not occurred to you that the large average you possess is due to so many members going out of compliance? Yes.
5313. And if all your members were to keep financial, do you think 1s. a week would keep you going? Yes, because our mortality is so small.
5314. What is the reason so many members leave your Society; can you explain? I cannot; it is a certain amount of carelessness amongst the Irish that there is not amongst others; I find I have great work to keep them up to the mark.
5315. How long does a member cease paying contributions before becoming unfinancial? Fourteen weeks.
5316. And do you issue notices? Yes, every ten weeks.
5317. And does he have to pay for that? Yes, 2d.
5318. Have you ever studied the Friendly Societies Act? I have not given it the consideration I ought to have done, but I have noticed a few clauses in it—those relating to the annual returns.
5319. Do you believe the present annual returns are as perfect as they should be, to give all the particulars required to show the status of Societies? I think so; I fancy all the information possible is given in these returns.
5320. Do not you think that if the returns made you show the ages of members entering and the ages of those that died it would be an improvement, so as to allow the Registrar to compile proper statistics? Yes, perhaps it would; of course we always guard against old members coming in.
5321. To what age do you accept members? Forty.
5322. Do you accept them over that by clearance? Oh yes.
5323. Have you any limit to clearance members? No.
5324. Are your troubles settled merely by your own Lodge? Yes.
5325. In the event of that not answering, what other course is there? He can appeal to the Executive Directory in Melbourne.
5326. Have you ever considered the advisability of having a Board of Arbitrators from the various Friendly Societies to settle all the differences of members who may feel aggrieved? I think it would answer very well, because there are times when members think a great injustice is done them, and if there was anything of this sort an appeal could be made satisfactory.
5327. Have you ever had any cases of members going to law? Yes, we had one.
5328. I suppose you have given the question of Friendly Societies a good deal of consideration? Yes.
5329. Do you not think, considering their importance to the State, that they should not be compelled to pay for registering their rules? Certainly.
5330. You believe it is unjust to make them pay? I do.
5331. Do you think it would be advisable that the Government should appoint a permanent Registrar, who should have the sole control and overlooking of Friendly Societies' matters? Yes, I do.
5332. Are you in favour of a sliding scale of contributions? Yes, I am.
5333. You think it would work well here? Yes.
5334. You do not think there would be any difficulty? I do not think so.
5335. You think that these things are merely matters of pounds, shillings, and pence—that it is a hardship that a young man should pay as much as an old man? Yes.
5336. And you think a sliding scale would be the best system? Yes, I do.
5337. I presume you are aware of a good many Lodges having a levy system? Yes.
5338. What is your opinion of making members pay levies in addition to weekly contributions? I think it is an injustice, and it is owing to a great extent to bad management. Since the formation of our Society we have never had a single levy.
5339. You believe a member should have a fair list of charges put before him when he joins, and that he should not be compelled to supplement them? That is my opinion.
5340. Are you aware that these levies are considered to be the chief safety-valve of many Societies in existence? Yes.
5341. And that without them they could not exist? I think that is owing to bad management.
5342. I dare say you have seen placards about the streets offering half-fees to members joining a Society; would you give your opinion of that? I think it is out of rule that these things should be allowed.
5343. You believe that every member joining a Society should start on an equal basis? Yes, I do.
5344. What capita tax does your Lodge pay the Executive in Melbourne? 3d. per quarter per member.

Mr. J. R.
M'Keown.

20 Mar., 1882.

5345. And what are the benefits you derive from transmitting that amount of money? It is simply to keep up the connection and expenses of postage; we get this amount from each member in addition to the 1s. a week that we claim for his benefits.
5346. The member knows that when he joins? Yes.
5347. Is this connection between your Branch and Melbourne necessary? Oh yes.
5348. Could it not be done without you having to support that body down there? I do not know how we could do it, because if we are not in compliance we receive no information.
5349. Are you aware that some of the largest Societies in this Colony connected with great Societies in Great Britain receive all the documents, but pay no money towards the government? I was not aware of it.
5350. Mr. Slade.] I understood you to say your number of members is sixty-eight? Sixty-eight financial.
5351. And you said the management was £41? No, £35 13s. 2d.
5352. And the previous year there were how many members? Seventy-seven.
5353. And £41 was the expenditure? Yes.
5354. This 1s. a week comprises the whole demand you make on your members? Yes.
5355. The levies spoken of—are they taken from that? No, they pay 4s. quarterage, which goes to Melbourne.
5356. Then a member pays 50s. annually? Yes.
5357. That representing nearly 20 per cent. of your income, do you not think it large for the management of a Society? No, I do not, considering we have the rent of room, Secretary's salary, &c.
5358. Are you in favour of suing for arrears? No, I am not; I think it is very hard for the bailiffs to be put into a man's place because he cannot keep up his contributions.
5359. If any future legislation continued the right to sue for arrears, would you limit it to a year's subscription? Yes, because the Society is liable for his funeral money up to that time.
5360. In addition to the statement made to Mr. Gelding that the Friendly Societies Act seems to be incorrect, have you any other fault to find with the present Act? No.
5361. Is there any case in which the Act has acted prejudicially to the interests of your Society? No.
5362. Then the Act serves the purpose for which it was made? Yes, so far as I know.
5363. Do you find the matter of returns tedious or beyond the capabilities of your Secretaries to make out? No.
5364. Do you think if they were still more elaborate they would be within the capabilities of your Secretaries? Yes, I do.
5365. Have you anything like a Pension Fund for aged or permanently disabled members in your Society? No.
5366. Would you recommend the establishment of such a fund? I would.
5367. You consider it would be a relief to Societies? Yes.
5368. Have you ever noticed what members are the most liable to sickness in your Society? No, I have never given it any consideration.
5369. Have you ever taken any notice of the ages most fatal in your Society? Generally those over forty, from forty to forty-five.
5370. Does experience show that when members pass forty-five they run to a fair age? Yes, generally.
5371. Mr. Newland.] I see in your preface you state there is nothing of a secret nature, neither signs nor passwords being used, and that meetings are open to the members: is that so? Yes.
5372. How do you reconcile that with clause 11 of rule 105, where it says that any member making known the discussions of a Branch shall come under judicial tribunals? I know for a fact that any one could come into a meeting of a Branch; that is put in for members ridiculing the business of the Branch; there must be some business in which it would be necessary to keep matters secret.
5373. I see that if a member's wife deserts or does anything wrong she is not allowed any funeral donation; would it, if she became of another faith, be bringing disgrace upon the Society? Oh no.
5374. Mr. Langley.] Have you seen the Victorian returns sent in to the Registrar? No.
5375. With regard to sick pay, have you studied the question as to between what ages you have most claims for sick pay; amongst the young, middle-aged, or older members? Amongst the middle-aged, from thirty to forty.
5376. Then I presume in any graduated scale of contributions you would take your experience as the basis of contribution? Yes, I would.
5377. Then how would you overcome this difficulty in any graduated scale—because it could not go on the question of mere age? Those members between thirty and forty should pay something extra.
5378. Then you think members between thirty and forty should pay something more than those at forty-four and forty-five? Yes, according to my experience.
5379. Do you think it makes as much difference to a Society as to what its entrance fees are, as compared with the rate of contribution? No, I do not.
5380. Then, after all, it is your opinion that the contributions and not the rate of initiation is the mainstay of a Society? Yes.
5381. Mr. Smith.] You have had some cases in the Courts? Yes, at one time we had a number of cases.
5382. What are the circumstances which brought about the fact of your members going to law? Through their being in arrears of payment.
5383. Then you summoned a number of them for these arrears? Yes.
5384. Have you had any disputes? The Judicial Committee settle them.
5385. But have any of them gone beyond that? No, we have only had one occasion in which the Judicial Committee —
5386. Could you furnish the Commission with the reports of your Society for the last twelve months? Yes.
5387. In addition to filling up the return, will you give us a copy of the balance-sheet for the last twelve months? Yes.
5388. And will you supply the average age of the members now, and the ages of those who have died during the five years? I will try to do so.
5389. Mr. Gelding.] What is the Secretary's salary? £6 5s. quarterly.
5390. Does the Treasurer receive anything? £1 1s. a quarter.

5391.

- Mr. J. R. M'Keown. 5391. Any other paid officers? No.
 20 Mar., 1882. 5392. Would you be in favour, before Societies are started, of having their affairs submitted to actuaries and to abide by the result? Yes.
 The Commission then adjourned until Friday, 24th March.

FRIDAY, 24 MARCH, 1882.

JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
 F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
 P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
 E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. Thomas Cowlshaw sworn and examined:—

- Mr. T. Cowlshaw. 5393. President.] You are a member of the Australian Union Benefit Society? Yes.
 24 Mar., 1882. 5394. How long have you been a member? About twenty years.
 5395. What office do you hold? President.
 5396. How long have you held that office? Six years.
 5397. Have you previously held any other office? I was Secretary for some time.
 5398. For how long? For twelve years I think—about that time.
 5399. Is there any Branch connected with your Society? No.
 5400. Was there at any time? Never.
 5401. What is the largest number of members you have had at any time? Between 260 and 270; 263 we have at present; but whether we have had a few more than that I am not quite certain.
 5402. How many years has the Society been in existence? Forty-eight years.
 5403. Then it is one of the oldest Societies in New South Wales? One of the oldest.
 5404. What is the amount of monetary contributions paid by your members? 3s. a month.
 5405. A uniform contribution? Yes.
 5406. Has that always been the case? Yes, always 3s.
 5407. Never been more? No.
 5408. What benefits do you give your members? A guinea sick allowance, and from £7 10s. to £40 burial fees; and members' wives half that amount.
 5409. Then you have a graduated system of payment of funeral donation? Yes, according to the number of years; those twenty-one years members are entitled to £40.
 5410. Medical attendance you also provide? Yes, for members' wives and families; and medicines.
 5411. What amount have you paid during the past year on account of funeral donations? Burial allowance, £165.
 5412. On how many deaths? Five members and one member's wife.
 5413. What amount did you pay on account of sick pay? £195 13s.
 5414. What on account of doctors and medicine? £262, including doctor and chemist.
 5415. And what was the cost of management last year? £47 8s.
 5416. What is included in that? That includes everything in management; Secretary's salary, rent, Treasurer's expenses, postage, stationery, and printing. It comes to about 7½ per cent. on our income on money received.
 5417. How are your funds invested? They are invested in mortgage, £2,450; Savings Bank, £439 13s.; Treasurer, £23 3s. 10d.
 5418. What is the total value of the funds? £2,912 16s. 10d.
 5419. What was the total income last year from all sources? £668 0s. 3d.
 5420. What was the total expenditure for all purposes? £670 1s. 6d.
 5421. There was a loss on the year then? Yes, of £2.
 5422. What would be the average ages of the members of your Society? Well, I should say about half our members were over forty, and the other half under.
 5423. Would they average thirty-six years? Yes, I dare say they would, thirty-five or thirty-six.
 5424. Some of them are very old? There are very few now; there are no original members, but there are half-a-dozen or so members of long standing.
 5425. But you think the average would be thirty-five or thirty-six? I should think that would be about the average.
 5426. Have you found any inconvenience arising from the Friendly Societies Act? No.
 5427. Has it afforded all the aid and help you think the members of your Society are entitled to? We have never had any experience to require its operations to come in; I do not know that we have had any matters of dispute.
 5428. How do you settle matters of dispute? By Committee.
 5429. And has there been any appeal beyond that? I do not remember any.
 5430. Have you a uniform rate for admission or a graduated scale? Up to thirty, 20s.; above thirty up to thirty-five, 40s.; we do not admit over thirty-five.
 5431. Do many members become unfinancial in the Society? No, very few; last year we lost seven, and that might be about the average, or from five to ten.
 5432. And how many were admitted last year? Thirteen.
 5433. And you regard the Society in a sound financial position? Quite so; last year was a very heavy year in sickness, and the year before was an exceptionally heavy year, which has thrown our Society back; but except these two years our Society has been one steady increase right through; though there might be another instance of the same sort in its past history.
 5434. And have your funds accumulated from contributions and the general revenues proper of the Society? Yes.
 5435. Not from speculation or any other source? No, we do not go in for picnics. 5436.

Mr. T.
Cowlishaw.
24 Mar., 1882.

5436. Then you are of opinion that 3s. per month from members is sufficient to insure all the benefits your Society offers to its members? We have a scale when the funds get down too low of decreasing the payments under the rules; but under our rules I think it is quite sufficient.
5437. You believe that this amount will insure payment to your members of a graduated sum in case of death from £7 to £40? With proper management.
5438. And the payment of a guinea a week to sick members and medical attendance and chemist? I do; I do not know, perhaps in the first instance we did not supply medicines to families.
5439. But you say it has always been that? Yes.
5440. Never been a higher sum? No.
5441. That is the uniform rate? Yes.
5442. Have you any suggestions to make that might be of service, that could be embodied in any fresh legislation that might be necessary? Well, I do not know that I could make any suggestions, as we have never met with any difficulties—we have never had any trouble.
5443. You make out the returns I suppose? Yes, I believe so.
5444. And you regard your Society as in a thoroughly solvent position? Quite so; we have about £11 a member, and that ought to meet the liabilities.
5445. Have you have ever had any defalcations in the Society by any of the officers to your knowledge? No, not to my knowledge—never since I have been connected with it.
5446. And you have never known a Society to be in a position not to meet its financial obligations? Never.
5447. Mr. Smith.] Do you know anything of the early history of the Society? Yes, they had some difficulty when they commenced; that, I believe, was the public-house difficulty.
5448. Is it a fact that no benefits were given for a number of years after it was inaugurated? I may say that is not a fact.
5449. Then benefits were given? Yes.
5450. But to a very limited extent? I could have told you how much had I known of the questions I should be asked.
5451. The operations of the Society at an early age were confined to the city of Sydney, were they not? I do not think there were many people outside the city then.
5452. Do you supply medicine and medical attendance to members outside the city now? Yes, if they like to come for them.
5453. Do you supply them? Yes, we do within 2 miles, or we supply them no matter how far if they like to come in, but the doctor is not bound to go beyond 2 miles.
5454. Then in the absence of papers in connection with the early history of the Society, you are not able to give an opinion as to what they received? They received whatever the amount was according to rule.
5455. I think you told the President that that rule was relaxed? I did not say so.
5456. Can you supply the Commission with the original copies of the laws governing your Society? No; these are the only copies of laws governing it that are in existence. (Copy put in.)
5457. Mr. Abigail.] Can you give us any particular reason for the accumulation of this large fund out of such small contributions? It has been a gradual increase from year to year.
5458. Do the members of your Society as a rule take the full benefits guaranteed to them by the rules? That is a question it is impossible for me to answer; if I was sick I would not put myself on the funds; but the exceptions are so small that I do not think it would make any difference.
5459. I find that last year your expenditure exceeded your income by £2; can you tell me how the receipts and expenditure for 1880 came in? 1880 I said was a very bad year.
5460. Then you must have lost more than £2? We lost £120.
5461. Did you make any money in 1879? Yes; I may say for the last five years we are £80 deficient, that being nearly all in 1880.
5462. Do you make any levies? No levies.
5463. Under no circumstances? Not unless the funds get very low.
5464. What is the general character of your members; are not a great number of them shop-keepers and business people? I do not think so.
5465. I see that forty-one during the last five years have left the Society for reasons other than death; I do not imagine you could give us the length of membership of these members, could you? No, you might take them as ordinary average members, not new members.
5466. What would you consider the average length of membership? I should say about ten to fifteen years.
5467. Then we will say they were members of ten years' standing when they left; did they receive any refund in any way? No.
5468. So that the Society absolutely got the benefit of their payments? They might have been a loss to the Society; very often these members have been a great loss to the Society.
5469. Then I see that under the head of defaulting members you have 166 in arrears; now that 166 is not included in the 255 returned as financial? It depends on what you call arrears; if a man owes a month it is arrears, but the real sense is when a man is finable.
5470. Can you tell us if any of these 166 members returned as being in arrears are included in the 255 returned as financial; I want to know the total number of members who have a claim on the Society? 263 members have a claim of some sort or other.
5471. I want to know if these 166 members in arrears from one to six months have a claim on the funds? Of course; they are a part of the 263 members; the 263 are the whole of our members.
5472. How much per head do you reckon the medical attendance costs? 20s. a year.
5473. That includes medicines? Yes.
5474. You have had no necessity to make any reference to the Act to see whether it is satisfactory or not? No, we have had no necessity or trouble whatever.
5475. Have you made any calculation to know at what rate the liabilities accrue to members of these Societies per year, that is, the contingent liability? No, I have not.
5476. As the members get old, I suppose you think the liability becomes greater on Societies? No doubt about it.
5477. And a Society not making some advancement is not reasonably preparing for the evil coming upon it?

Mr. T.
Cowlshaw.
24 Mar., 1882.

it? Well, considering the position we are in, I should say if we did not advance for another ten or fifteen years the same as the last five, we would be justified in giving all we have been giving, as it would be nothing out of the funds, only being £100 in fifteen years.

5478. But if you had not this large surplus would you still consider the same thing, in view of the Society having gone back during the last five years? You want to know if 263 members started now whether they could receive the same benefits; I do not think they could.

5479. Mr. Greville.] Of the Societies into which we have examined, yours fixes the smallest contribution from the members, and yet it has an accumulated fund largely in excess of the average: can you assist the Commission in arriving at a conclusion as to how that state of affairs has been brought about? Well, I believe it is a great deal in the management of the Society with the rules that we have; there is a good deal in management and care in not admitting members that are likely to go on the funds. Of course we do get caught sometimes with all our care.

5480. But in your opinion, has that extreme care that malingering members shall not be put on the sick list ever been a hardship? I do not know that we ever excluded a member entitled to go on the funds from doing so.

5481. Have you rejected applications? I do not think so.

5482. Has particular care been exhibited in the management of the funds to cause this state of affairs? We have always invested our funds pretty well; we have never been unfortunate enough to lose any money by investments. We go in for mortgages, for which we get from 6 to 8 per cent., according to the market.

5483. Does it arise in any way from your Society having on its books in past years a number of members who never claimed the privileges of the Society? There has never been a member but has claimed the principal privilege, that is, the death allowance.

5484. But is it not a fact that when the Society was formed, and for many years afterwards, there were a number of men in good circumstances who did not require sick pay, and never claimed it? When the Society was formed, I believe every member of it required the assistance of the Society. Of course I am not speaking from personal knowledge now. We have now a number of men like myself—perhaps there are twenty-five—who would not claim the sick allowance.

5485. Then you cannot explain to me how this state of things has arisen? No, I could not, unless it is the way in which it is managed.

5486. Mr. Holdsworth.] Under the head of "Management," I presume there is an income of the year? Yes, £668 0s. 3d.

5487. Your numbers were 263, subscriptions 3s. per month or 36s. a year; that comes to £483; the difference being made up by interest on investments? Yes, that is so.

5488. You have a scale of benefits according to the amount you have in hand? Yes.

5489. And for many years now you have given the benefits of a guinea a week? Yes, for a great number of years.

5490. And I notice here that in addition to the general advantages of these very low rates you give a superannuation as high as 10s. a week? Yes, we have paid three for the last year or two.

5491. The question has been put as to whether you can account for the great advantages; is it not a fact that your members as a rule are an exceptional class of people selected from different Churches? The character of the members, I dare say, to some extent has something to do with our demands not being so heavy—not that they would not take it if they required it.

5492. They are a class of exceptionally moral people as a rule? I do not know that they belong to any particular Church; but I believe the class of people we have no doubt has something to do with it.

5493. Your legitimate income was £483 from members; your real income was £668; had you not had these large investments, in what position would your Society have been at the present time? The loss would have been very large.

5494. Is it your large investments that saved your Society? That is it.

5495. Then in the face of that, do you think 3s. a month is sufficient for a Society? Not without the rule for the less benefits.

5496. Do you not think, with the large advantages you offer—low contributions and high rate of benefits—it offers a very great premium for other people to join you? It does, but they do not come to us.

5497. Have you not thought that as your present members are growing older, and your expenditure has been greater than the income, notwithstanding the advantage of the large amount you have from interest, your Society in twenty years will be in a different position? I do not think so.

5498. Mr. Langley.] Taking the result of your last five years' working, and supposing you had no increment in the shape of interest, what amount of contribution would it be necessary to pay in order to carry on the Society? We should want about 4s. 2d. a month.

5499. Then taking your experience during the last five years, any Society being formed and offering the same return for the investment, you think it would not be safe to take less than 4s. 2d. a month? Well, if you formed a new Society they would probably be all young members, and the demands would be considerably less.

5500. But take them without assuming that they were all young members, but suppose they were of average ages ranging from eighteen to forty, do you think they could give the same benefits you give at less than 4s. 2d. per month? They could.

5501. And you have been unable to do it during the last five years? We have been unable to do it during the last five years.

5502. On what data do you assume that? On the ground that they would be nearly all young members.

5503. Mr. Rubie.] Your Society, I believe, has been in existence some forty-eight years? Yes.

5504. There were a large number of members left in 1856 and 1847 to go to California? I do not know that there were a great number; there may have been a few.

5505. A large number in proportion? We were not so many in numbers.

5506. Your funds were considerable then? They have increased considerably since then.

5507. But the Society was then in a very healthy state? Yes.

5508. And the accumulated funds, more or less, arose from members dropping out of the Society? No, I do not think so.

Mr. T. Cowlshaw. 24 Mar., 1882.

- 5509. That would in a great measure account for your increased funds? No, I do not think that had much to do with it.
- 5510. Then the rate of sickness and mortality must have been very small for a number of years to allow the funds to increase? Yes, our Society has been formed by young men; we do not admit them over thirty-five, and for one over thirty we have nine under.
- 5511. Do you give the same benefits to young men as to old ones? Yes, all receive the same benefits.
- 5512. And the young men pay less fees? There are only two rates.
- 5513. And do you think the increased sum of 20s. would be equivalent to giving larger benefits to a man at thirty-five than to a man at twenty? My own opinion about that is men between thirty and thirty-five should pay more.
- 5514. You would be in favour of a graduated scale of entrance fees? I think so.
- 5515. And graduated benefits? I do not know; it makes a good deal of confusion and unpleasantness.
- 5516. I suppose it never occurred to any of your officers to have an actuarial calculation as to your funds or rate of payments? No, it has never been required.
- 5517. Mr. Newland.] From your large experience, could you give the rate of mortality and average amount of sickness of your members for those engaged in light and heavy labour? Well, the larger portion of it would be those engaged in heavy labour.
- 5518. Could you give any statistics for the last five years upon that? Well, with a very slight exception I should say the whole of them were those engaged in what you term heavy labour; the majority of members are thus engaged.
- 5519. Am I to understand that you know very little of the workings of the Society in its early days? I have only been connected with it for twenty years.
- 5520. Are you aware that when first established members' wives and families did not receive medical attendance and medicines? I think I stated that.
- 5521. Mr. Slade.] Are you aware that at any time the benefits were decreased from the circumstances mentioned in your rules of the funds being below a certain standard? No, not below the standard.
- 5522. It has never passed below the standard at which you decline to give full benefits? No, of course it had to work up to that; not since I have been connected with it.
- 5523. What is the nature of your Superannuation Fund? We allow a member, according to rule, twenty-six weekly payments of a guinea and twenty-six of 10s. 6d., and then if he cannot work after that he receives 10s., and is allowed to do any light thing; of course he could not go and engage in any business where he could make enough money to keep him.
- 5524. Then it is a conditional superannuation and not a permanent one? Yes.
- 5525. Is he relieved from paying subscriptions? Yes.
- 5526. And does he receive medical benefits the same as another member? Yes.
- 5527. And the full amount of the funeral gift at death? Yes.
- 5528. Is there a Widow and Orphan Fund connected with your Society? No.
- 5529. Have you ever given the subject of graduated subscriptions according to age any consideration? Yes, we have had it before us once or twice.
- 5530. You have not decided to adopt it? No, we have not.
- 5531. Are you aware that some Societies very largely adopt that principle? I believe they do.
- 5532. With regard to the settlement of disputes, would you be in favour of an Arbitration Board, composed of representatives of several Societies, to settle disputes instead of the Courts of law? I think they should be settled by arbitration, and that Societies should not be subject to law proceedings.
- 5533. Then an Arbitration Board such as I have suggested, would that be an advisable Board as a final Board of Arbitration? I think so.
- 5534. Has your Society ever to your knowledge had occasion to find fault with the operations of the present Act? No.
- 5535. Do you know of any way in which it acted against your interests? No, none.
- 5536. Have you any reason to find fault with the administration of the Act? We have hardly had any occasion to look at it.
- 5537. Have the forms of return been considered sufficient? More than sufficient; if there were a few less columns you would get the information quicker and better.
- 5538. Has the Society ever considered that any amendment of the Act was necessary? We took the Act into consideration about eight or nine years ago; but they had so little interest in the matter that they took very little trouble over it, and it resulted in nothing.
- 5539. As a matter of opinion, taking your present position into consideration, would you consider that a Society that fixed the full benefits and a less number of members, with some £1,000 more to their credit, was in a better set of circumstances than yourselves? It would depend on how many members you had, and something on the class of them.
- 5540. Mr. Gelding.] What provision do you make for members who may leave Sydney and go into the country? We make no provision for them.
- 5541. Do you not consider it as a fact that your present good position is entirely owing to the sliding scale laid down by your Society for benefits given to its members; in other words, your scale being as follows—

	When the Capital of the Society amounts	And the deceased has been a Member
		1 year.	2 years.	7 years.	14 years.	21 years.
	£	£ s.	£ s.	£ s.	£ s.	£ s.
To	1,000	10 0	22 10	27 10	35 0	40 0
	750	10 0	20 0	25 0	30 0	35 0
	500	10 0	20 0	21 0	23 10	27 10
	400	10 0	20 0	20 0	22 10	25 0
when below	400	10 0	20 0	20 0	20 0	20 0

- do you not consider the good position of your Society is chiefly owing to this very severe sliding scale? No, I do not think that has anything to do with it.
- 5542. Are you aware that some Societies pay after one year's membership very nearly as much as you do after twenty-one years' membership? No, I am not.
- 5543. Do you not believe in a sliding scale of contributions, and that a fixed amount should be put to all benefits received? I do not think it is a good thing.

- Mr. T. Cowlishaw.
24 Mar., 1882.
5544. Do you believe it should extend to funeral donations as well? Yes, there is not the objection there that there is to the sick allowance; it is a settled thing, but the other might lead to disputes.
5545. Have you ever brought into operation these levies at death? Yes.
5546. Could you inform the Commission of any period within the last few years? Not within the last ten years, and I am well within the limit in saying that.
5547. I suppose the reason you do not make many members is on account of the Society being purely local? Well, there is a pretty good scope in the city of Sydney and suburbs.
5548. But when they leave you they forfeit some of the most valuable benefits? I do not think that tends to keep the members away; to a great extent I think it is the apathy of our members in not inviting others to join.
5549. President.] Can you tell the Commission how many members have passed through the Society during the time it has had an existence? No, I could not.
5550. Could you supply us with the information? I dare say I could give it you.
5551. Have you anything further to add to your evidence or any suggestions to make that would be of service to the Commission? No, I fancy not.
5552. And you are clear that 3s. a month is sufficient for all purposes to enable Societies to give benefits such as those given by your Societies? I think so; of course the claims of a new Society would not be anything like what they are in ours, as the majority of members would be young men.
5553. Would you favour, in any future legislation, a uniform scale of contributions from every Friendly Society? I do not know whether that would be advisable, because one Society might wish to give less or greater benefits, and if you fixed one scale they would all have to give similar benefits.
5554. Would you favour a graduated scale of benefits and a graduated scale of contributions of members according to age? No, I do not like a graduated scale of contributions; I think it is better to have a fixed scale. I think myself that a graduated scale of admission should be made according to the age of the member; our Society objects to it, but that is my private opinion.
5555. What do you think would be a fair premium for a man to pay at the age of thirty-five to insure at his death the sum of £40? It is not a thing I have thought very much of; it would take a little consideration and calculation.
5556. Do you think 6d. a week would cover the risk? I should think it would.
5557. That would be 2s. a month, leaving only 1s to pay the sick pay, cost of management, and all other risks, taking the average of your members at thirty-five? Yes.
5558. That would leave 3d. a week to pay this; would it be sufficient, do you think? I should not think so, but I have not given the matter any consideration.
5559. Then if you gave the matter further consideration, would you be of the same opinion that 3s. a month would be sufficient to guarantee all the benefits you speak of? Of course we do not take members at thirty-five.
5560. But you say their average age would be that? But they have contributed a lot of money.
5561. Do you think this £40 could be given for less than 6d. a week? Our experience is that it could.
5562. Could you go to an Insurance Company and do it? I do not know, I am sure, the charge made by a Company is not the cost; for instance, I hold a policy, and if I died to-day they would pay two-thirds of the premium back besides the amount insured.

The Commission then adjourned until Monday, 27 March.

Mr. Frederick Alexander Morgan examined on oath:—

- Mr. F. A. Morgan.
27 Mar., 1882.
5563. President.] What Society do you represent? The Captain Cook Tent, Independent Order of Rechabites.
5564. What office do you hold? Secretary.
5565. How long have you held that office? Since the 18th June, 1878, when the Tent was established.
5566. How long have you been connected with the Rechabites? About ten or eleven years.
5567. In New South Wales? Yes.
5568. What Tent were you formerly connected with? The Albury Tent.
5569. What number of members have you in the Captain Cook Tent? Between eighty and ninety at the present time.
5570. Can you give the number of members of the other Tents? No.
5571. Have you any knowledge of their position at all? I think I can give you some information from some returns I have here. The Albury Tent has twenty-one benefit members and six honorary members; the Captain Cook Tent has seventy-two benefit members and twelve honorary members. That is, of course, up to the end of last year in each case. The Crystal Spring has twenty-nine benefit and twelve honorary members; the Ark of Refuge, Balranald, has eleven benefit members.
5572. Is there not one at Lambton? No, that Tent has not been in existence for some years. Another Tent, the Hope of Chippendale, has six benefit and twelve honorary members. These returns are issued in Victoria, where our head quarters are, and are compiled under the Friendly Societies Act of Victoria, and therefore do not show the funds of the Tents.
5573. Can you supply information in reference to the funds of those Tents? No, I can only give you the funds of our own Tent.
5574. What accumulated funds have you? For our own Tent the total up to 25th December last was £255 3s.
5575. How long have you been established? Since the 18th June, 1878.
5576. What have been your total receipts from all sources during the past year? I sent in a statement to the Commission which would give all that information. The total receipts for last year were £235 14s. 11d.
5577. And what was your total expenditure for a like period? £139 17s. 1d.
5578. That includes the whole of your expenditure—management, medical attendance, sick pay? Yes.
5579. And funeral donations? The District pays that. 5580.

5580. What contributions do you pay? We pay none to the District except a portion of the initiation fee of each member.

Mr.
F. A. Morgan
27 Mar., 1882.

5581. What proportion? According to age. You will find the particulars on page 23 of the book produced—"General Laws for the government of the Victoria District Independent Order of Rechabites (Salford Unity) Friendly Society, and the District By-laws, 1879." The initiation fees are regulated according to age. Members admitted between the ages of sixteen and twenty years pay 10s. to the sick fund, which belongs to the Tent, and 2s. to the funeral fund, which goes to the district. The payments vary from sixteen to forty-five years as follows:—Sixteen and under twenty years, sick fund, 10s.; funeral fund, 2s. Twenty and under twenty-five years, sick fund, 10s.; funeral fund, 3s. Twenty-five and under thirty years, sick fund, 15s.; funeral fund, 4s. Thirty and under thirty-five years, sick fund, £1; funeral fund, 5s. Thirty-five and under thirty-six years, sick fund, £1 4s.; funeral fund, 6s. Thirty-six and under thirty-seven years, sick fund, £1 8s.; funeral fund, 12s. Thirty-seven and under thirty-eight years, sick fund, £1 12s.; funeral fund, 18s. Thirty-eight and under thirty-nine years, sick fund, £1 16s.; funeral fund, £1 4s. Thirty-nine and under forty years, sick fund, £2; funeral fund, £1 10s. Forty and under forty-one years, sick fund, £2 6s.; funeral fund, £1 16s. Forty-one and under forty-two years, sick fund, £2 12s.; funeral fund, £2 2s. Forty-two and under forty-three years, sick fund, £2 18s.; funeral fund, £2 8s. Forty-three and under forty-four years, sick fund, £3 4s.; funeral fund, £2 14s. Forty-four and under forty-five years, sick fund, £3 10s.; funeral fund, £3. In the last case, for instance, it will be seen that £3 10s. goes to the sick fund here, and £3 to the District in Victoria for the funeral fund; but, if we had a District here, of course the latter payment would go to the District here instead of to the Victoria district.

5582. This payment to the funeral fund of the Victoria District is in order to secure what? The payment of £20 on the death of a member.

5583. That is the only source of revenue that the funeral fund has? Yes, it is a proportion of the entrance fee which goes to the funeral fund. The laws give power to make levies, if necessary, but it has not yet been found necessary to adopt such a course.

5584. What is the total value of the funeral fund of the District? £9,516 8s. 2d.

5585. How many Tents are there in the District? 150.

5587. Then you have this fund of £9,000 to meet the funeral claims arising from the mortality among 6,000 members? Yes.

5589. What amount of money was paid by Captain Cook Tent during the year in sick pay? £6 10s.

5590. What was paid on account of doctor and medicine? £73 11s. 3d.

5591. And what were your working expenses? £38 16s. 7d.

5592. What amount of contribution do the members pay? All members pay to the general fund 9s. per quarter, that is the sick and funeral funds. Of course the doctor's fee is in addition to that. Our doctor's fee is 5s. for a single member and 6s. 3d. for a married member, which, with the payment in every case of 9s. to the general fund, makes a total payment of 14s. by each single member and 15s. 3d. for each married member. If the wives are included, an extra payment of 1s. is required in each case.

5593. Then you have a graduated scale of contribution? Only to the extent of making a difference between the married and single members, and then the difference is only as regards the doctor's fee.

5594. Are your Rules registered under the Friendly Society's Act of New South Wales? Yes.

5595. But your Tents are controlled by the District of Victoria? Yes.

5596. How many subordinate Tents constitute a District? There is no stated number; we could have a District with one Tent.

5597. Have you found the present system work well up to the present time? Yes. Of course if we had a District in New South Wales we would have the extra expense, which I do not think would be warranted by the smallness of our numbers.

5598. What proportion of your funds have been contributed to the District funeral fund up to the present time? The total amount paid to the District since the 18th June, 1879, in the shape of entrance fees to the funeral fund, has been £12 4s. 6d. Of course the first year there was more. I am only speaking of the Captain Cook Tent, and of the payments made up to the 25th December, 1881.

5599. How could that be correct if you have acted in conformity with this rule to which you called my attention, for I presume you have some members who are over forty years of age? Very few. You will see by rule 41 that the whole of the funds for the first twelve months after the starting of any Tent go into one general fund. There is then no division of the sick and funeral and contingent funds. Of course there is a good deal of expense involved in starting a Tent. At the expiration of twelve months from the date of establishing a Tent the accumulated funds are divided as follows:—Three-fourths to the sick and funeral fund, and the remaining one-fourth to the Tent contingent fund. It will therefore be seen that the figures I have quoted are only applicable to the period which has elapsed since the division of the funds at the end of the first year of the Tent's existence. Anything that was paid during the first twelve months would not be reckoned.

5600. You have not shown what proportion has been paid to the credit of the first year? The books show two items of £12 15s. and £1 6s. 6d. respectively, which added to the figures given before show a total of £26 6s. paid to the District since the starting of the Tent, to ensure participation in the funeral fund.*

5601. How long have your members to be in arrears before they are disqualified from participation in the benefits of membership? Sixteen weeks. 5602.

* NOTE (on revision):—As I had not all my books when being examined, I think the answer would be more explicit if made to read as follows:—I had better give you our first year's transactions, which were—receipts, £155 14s.; expenditure, £108 9s. 4d., the principal items in the latter being District, on account of funeral fund, £20 13s. 6d.; medical attendance, £31 14s. 6d.; goods, furniture, &c., £28 12s. The balance in hand at close of the first year's operations (£47 4s. 8d.) was divided according to general law, £35 8s. 6d. being credited to sick and funeral fund, and £11 16s. 2d. to tent contingent fund. You will thus see the total paid to District since the starting of the Tent to ensure participation in the funeral fund, is £32 18s.

- Mr. F. A. Morgan.
27 Mar., 1882.
5602. What happens after they are sixteen weeks in arrears? They are suspended for a further period of sixteen weeks.
5603. What do you do with them afterwards? They cease to be members.
5604. Has the Tent any liability on account of any member thus in arrears for sixteen weeks? The Tent is not liable for any benefit whatever on account of any such member. Of course if the member pays up he is reinstated, after having been suspended for a month after the date of payment from participation in all the benefits of membership.
5605. Has any one of your Tents proceeded against any of those non-paying members to recover the arrears of contributions? Not in this Colony—they have done so in Victoria.
5606. Do you approve of the provision contained in the Friendly Societies Act enabling Lodges or Tents to proceed against members for non-payment of dues? Yes; I have urged it in our own Tent, and have recommended that several of our members should be proceeded against, but the majority have always been against me.
5607. What method have you of dealing with matters of dispute between the officers and the Tent? A judicial Committee is appointed, as provided for in rule 96, to decide upon matters in dispute, although their proper functions are to deal with pledge-breaking cases, or any matter which cannot be settled by the Tent itself.
5608. Have you any appeal from that Committee? Yes, to the quarterly meeting of the Tent, and from that to the annual meeting of the Order.
5609. The decision of the latter is final? Yes.
5610. How have you found this provision work? As far as our own Tent is concerned we have never had any dispute to refer to them that has not been settled by the Tent itself.
5611. Has the same been the experience of other Tents? Yes, so far as I know.
5612. Then you think the contributions paid by your members sufficient? 14s. for a single and 15s. 3d. for a married member is sufficient to ensure the benefits of the Order to all who may have a claim. It has proved so, according to the annual reports of the Victorian District. I would myself prefer to see a uniform charge made in the Societies of (say) 1s. 3d. per week, which I think would be little enough for the benefits which Friendly Societies confer. Our rules are drawn up somewhat differently as compared with those of other Societies, and in connection with that I wish the members of the Commission to understand the question thoroughly. Under law 41, each member has to contribute not less than 7s. per quarter to the Sick and Funeral Fund. That is for full benefit members; but there is a provision for the admission of half-benefit members, who are entitled to half benefits only, and who have to contribute 3s. 6d. to the Sick and Funeral Fund. In addition, according to the 38th general law, each member has to pay a certain entrance fee, varying according to age, to the Sick and Funeral Fund. The portion of rule 41 applying to this matter, simply stated, is this: All our members throughout the Colony or throughout Victoria pay 1s. per quarter. The rule provides for the payment of an additional 2s., of which 1s. is for the Tent's contingent fund, the expenses of rent, salary, and so on, and 1s. for the District contingent fund and the management fund of the District. So that each one of our members pays 9s. per quarter, wherever the Tent may be established, and the balance of the quarterly subscription, which in our Tent is 15s. 3d. for married members, is made up by the payments that have to be made to the doctor of the Tent. That additional amount depends upon whatever arrangement can be made with the doctor, and the amount varies, for doctors can be got to attend a Tent's members at a cheaper rate in the town than in the country.
5613. I see you give the same benefits as other Societies? We give fuller benefits in some respects. For instance, we give full sick pay for twelve months at £1 per week.
5614. Then 10s. for six months? Yes. Rule 43 provides that any member in full compliance, who may "become sick, lame, blind, or infirm, and incapable of following any employment, if such incapacity is not occasioned by immoral conduct (notwithstanding that he may continue to carry on or conduct his business, trade, or occupation by his wife, children, or servants), shall be entitled to receive twenty shillings per week for full benefit, or ten shillings per week for half benefit, for the first twelve months; and if the sickness or infirmity shall continue for a longer period, he shall be entitled to receive the sum of ten shillings per week for full benefit, or five shillings per week for half benefit, for the further period of six months; and should he still continue sick or infirm as aforesaid, he shall be entitled to receive the sum of five shillings per week for full benefit, or two shillings and sixpence per week for half benefit, so long as such sickness or inability to follow his employment shall continue."
5615. During the time you have been in office in connection with the Rechabites, have you formed any definite opinion as to whether the Friendly Societies Act of New South Wales affords shelter and support to the members of the Friendly Societies in the Colony? I think it is comparatively useless, as far as I can see. It might be more useful than it is if it was carried into effect as it should be. It is the law, but it is not given the full force of law.
5616. Then your principal complaint is against the administration of the Act, and not against the Act itself? It might be amended and made more useful, but even as it is, it is not carried out. For instance: since our Tent was duly registered, which was in 1879, and although I have been continuously Secretary, I have never received any instruction that the return required under the Act had never been furnished, and I have never been afforded an opportunity of making such a return in the shape of an annual report or anything of the kind, although it is provided in the Act that that should be done.
5617. Do I understand you to say that you have never sent in the return required by the Act? I was never furnished with a form of return until the present year—until in fact this Commission was appointed. I was Secretary to the Albury Tent, and was never furnished with a form or anything of the kind until I wrote one year for a form to make out the return, and I was then furnished with it.
5618. Have you never received a form like this produced—"Annual return and statement of funds"? I believe that this year for the first time I filled up a report similar to that.
5619. You never, prior to this year, received a form of that kind to be filled up? No, although the Tent was registered on the 19th November, 1879.
5620. Have you any suggestion to make as to anything that might be of service to the Commission in recommending amendments in future legislation with regard to Friendly Societies? I should like to see a provision that quarterly payments should not be below a certain standard, whatever it may be that may be deemed sufficient. I think the payments should not be less than 1s. 3d. per week, to include all benefits of course; if it were deemed necessary they could be made much higher. That would be raising the fees which

Mr.
F. A. Morgan,
27 Mar., 1882.

which we at present pay. As far as the Rechabites are concerned, in other Colonies, such as South Australia and New Zealand, they give a higher rate of benefits than we do under our laws, and the scale of payments is much lower. They give, for instance, a funeral donation of £35 upon a payment of only 10s. per quarter.

5621. Are they not under the same District Lodge? They are under the same general head, the Salford Unity at home, but each District makes its laws as regards payments. In reference to suggestions for improvements, I may say that I think the returns should be more explicit. They do not at present afford an opportunity for properly showing the working of the Society. I think the Victorian returns might very well be copied in that respect. You may give fuller and more explicit information in those returns.

5622. Have you added many additional members during the past year to your Tent? I think about twenty-three.

5623. How many members have been expelled? None.

5624. How many members have ceased to be such since your Tent was started? During the three-and-a-half years that we have been in existence here, forty have left the Society for reasons other than death, viz.:—Four by clearance, twenty-seven by arrears, and two by resignation, and seven by expulsion. Expulsion indicates cases of pledge-breaking.

5625. Has your Tent, since its establishment, been at all times able to meet its financial obligations? Oh yes.

5626. As far as your knowledge goes, are the other Tents in the same position? Yes.

5627. Has any Tent ceased to exist in New South Wales in consequence of want of funds? No.

5628. Your Society is based upon total abstinence principles? Yes.

5629. No person is allowed to remain a member who takes intoxicating drink? No.

5630. Members violating their obligations in that respect are expelled? Not necessarily, if they are willing to re-sign the pledge; they are suspended, of course, but if they are willing to re-join they are at liberty to do so upon repayment of a fine.

5631. Do you reinstate them in full benefits? Not for a month after the payment of the fine.

5632. Then, after the lapse of a month, they are entitled to full benefits just as though they had never violated the pledge? Yes.

5633. Mr. Smith.] Have you a Widow and Orphan Fund? No; it was proposed at our last annual meeting, and a committee was appointed to inquire into and report upon the matter to the next meeting.

5634. Have you any Superannuation or Pension Fund? No.

5635. Mr. Abigail.] You are under the District Lodge, located in Victoria? Yes.

5636. Does that make you in any way amenable to the Victorian Friendly Society's Act? I do not think so.

5637. They have never had any communication with you officially? Well, the Victorian Registrar used to send annual forms to be filled up according to the Victorian Act, until I called the attention of the Victorian District Society to the matter, and pointed out that it was useless to send the forms to us as we were outside Victoria, and not bound to send returns to the Registrar of that Colony. The forms have not been sent since.

5638. Do you know Mr. William Bell, the Secretary of the Rechabites in Victoria? Yes.

5639. Would you favour, in an amended Act for New South Wales, the adoption of provisions for an actuarial investigation? Certainly.

5640. Would you be in favour of a periodical investigation of the assets and liabilities of the Societies? Yes.

5641. At what intervals—five years or more? I have never considered that particular point, but I should say that five or seven years would be quite long enough to allow the Societies to carry on without an actuarial investigation.

5642. Do I understand you to say that you do not think that the benefits offered generally by Friendly Societies can be safely given upon payments of only 1s. per member per week? Of course I am not an actuary, but basing my conclusions upon the reports I have read I should say that they cannot.

5643. Then you have read reports dealing with that phase of the subject, and upon those reports you have been led to that conclusion? Yes.

5644. Your Tent saved last year in receipts in excess of expenditure £95 17s.: was last year heavier in sick pay than previous years? No; our sick pay in 1880 was £20, and in 1881 £6 10s.

5645. Taking the total funds of the Lodge, what is the balance at present in hand? £265 3s. (?)

5646. You have seventy-two benefit members, and they are the only persons entitled to call upon your Tent funds? They are the only persons; the honorary members have no claim at all.

5647. What do they pay for the privilege of becoming honorary members? They pay an initiation fee of 5s., and a fee of 5s. per year.

5648. What part do they take in the Tent business? They can hold office, but it must be upon a two-thirds majority of votes in their favour; they may also be placed upon the doctor's list, upon payment of the doctor's fee. Several of them are too old to be benefit members.

5649. Do you consider the supervision at present exercised by the Registrar of the Friendly Societies sufficient? No.

5650. Do you consider that tabulated statements of each Society should be prepared and published each year by Government authority? Yes, it would be very useful.

5651. Mr. Holdsworth.] You make no levy upon your members to sustain your Funeral Fund? We make no levy.

5652. How is that? The funeral fund as established by the Victorian District has never required that a levy should be made.

5653. Then do I understand that you have accumulated sufficient capital to render the fund independent of levies? Yes. There has not been a levy made for nine or ten years to my knowledge.

5654. Then how have they accumulated this £9,000? I can only speak for the time during which I have been connected with the Society.

5655. You say that for members' wives in connection with the funeral fund there is a contribution of 1s. per quarter? Yes. There are very few, however, who take advantage of that provision.

5656. What is paid upon death of a member's wife? £15.

5657. You have read the last annual report of the Victorian District? Yes.

5658. Have you noticed what is the average sickness and mortality among the Rechabites as compared with other Societies? It is in that report, but I do not remember it exactly.

5659.

Mr.
F. A. Morgan.
27 Mar., 1882.

5659. Mr. Langley.] I understood you to say that 1s. 3d. per week was quite low enough as a contribution from each member, to secure the benefits promised by Friendly Societies? Yes.
5660. And that you would be in favour of that payment, but as the minimum rate? Yes.
5661. Then I presume you mean that 1s. 3d. would be the minimum rate that should be fixed? Yes.
5662. Have you seen the returns that have to be supplied to the Registrar of Friendly Societies in Victoria? I saw them some years since.
5663. And you have recently seen the returns that have to be furnished to the Registrar of Friendly Societies in this Colony? Yes.
5664. Which do you consider the best? The Victorian form, most decidedly. Even this return [produced], which is for five years, is not as complete and comprehensive as it should be. Even for our little Tent I found a difficulty in filling it in satisfactorily, so as to show what the transactions of the Society really were, and therefore I wrote a note, addressed to the Commission, and attached it to this return [Witness produced copy of form of return issued to various Societies by the Commission.] However, even that is far more elaborate and more comprehensive than the form of return issued by the Registrar in this Colony.
5665. Taking that return as designed, and the return issued by the Registrar of Friendly Societies in this Colony, and comparing each with the form of return issued by the Victorian Registrar, are you still of opinion that the latter is at the same time the most complete and the simplest? Yes.
5666. Do I understand you to say that, until this Commission was appointed, you never received from the Registrar of Friendly Societies in this Colony a copy of the form of return which by law has to be filled in and furnished every year? No, I never received any return until quite recently; the first I received was during the present year.
5667. How long is it since you were registered? On the 19th November, 1879.
5668. In any future legislation which may take place with regard to Friendly Societies, do you think it would be desirable to weight an Act of Parliament with a number of details which might properly be dealt with by the Societies themselves, or would you not think it rather more desirable that the Friendly Societies Act should lay down only a certain sound financial basis upon which every Society could be properly and safely carried on? I do think it would be better certainly; I think the simpler the Act is made the better it will be, for many reasons. A great many Secretaries, so far as I have been able to judge, are really not able to understand an Act like that in force at the present moment; at all events they do not appear to be able to understand it, and a simpler Act would be far better. It would also be better if the plan of the returns was so simple that no ordinary accountant could make a mistake in filling it up. That is why I think the present returns are practically of no use. You have to club so many items together that ought to be separate that the totals are misleading. Each separate class of expenditure should have a separate column, so that the returns would really show where the money had gone to. It can be lumped up now in such a manner that either intentionally or unintentionally the return can be made to mislead.
5669. Did I understand you to say, in reply to the President, that it would be more advisable to have your Society's head quarters here instead of being a branch of the Victorian Society with your head quarters in Melbourne? Yes, I think it would be better, not that we have found any serious inconvenience from having our head quarters in Melbourne, but because I think we should be able to extend our Order better in this Colony.
5670. Against any drawback which you may have experienced in that respect, have you not found a very great advantage in having for your Society one common centre, so that, no matter where the Tents are scattered, they have a bond of union, a free and ready interchange of members, and an influential central directing body? Well, it would not affect the interchange of members in any case whether we had a separate District or not. We have, or can have, now the freest interchange of members with all parts of the world.
5671. Is not your governing body in Victoria simply a District? It is a District, but affiliated with the Salford Unity at Home.
5672. Then you have received your warrant or dispensation from Victoria as representing the Salford Unity? Our dispensation is from the Salford Unity and the Victorian District combined.
5673. Then your only complaint is not arising from any actual disadvantage, but from a local feeling in favour of a District controlling body in this Colony for this Colony? Yes.
5674. In any case your Order here stands on the same footing as the Order does in Victoria? Yes.
5675. Mr. Rubie.] You have two classes of members? Yes, honorary and benefit members.
5676. I meant that you had full benefit and half-benefit members? Yes, we have a provision for half-benefit members, but it is availed of to a very small extent. We have only two half-benefit members in our Tent.
5677. You stated to the President that on the death of a member's wife the husband receives £15? Yes, if the wife is a registered member.
5678. Would a half-benefit member receive the same amount under similar circumstances? Yes, if his wife was registered for full benefits. In fact no member could register his wife except for full benefits.
5679. Then there are no half-fees in connection with the wives? No.
5680. You have a very large fund; how is it invested? It is invested in Bank deposits, at 4 per cent.
5681. In this Colony? Yes, in the E.S. and A.C. Bank.
5682. Then the funds belonging to the New South Wales Tents are all in this Colony? Yes. The District does not hold any funds on behalf of the Tents in this Colony, except the Funeral Fund.
5683. Then, in a certain sense, the Order in Melbourne gets the benefit of that money? Well, the whole of the members in the District get the benefit of that money, because we are in the Victorian District, although we are in New South Wales. Of course, if we separated from Victoria, we should get the whole of that Funeral Fund back, less any claims paid out of it.
5684. Do your officers give security? The Treasurer and Secretary give security.
5685. By Fidelity or Guarantee Societies? It must be satisfactory to the Trustees of each Tent, and must be not less than £25.
5686. Not necessarily a Fidelity Society? The District recommends that, and I think most of them act upon that recommendation.
5687. You have never had any defalcations? None have occurred during my experience.

5688. Mr. Newland.] Your general laws are registered in this Colony? Yes.

5689. Then, how do you account for the fact that at the end of the book you have produced, which comprises the general laws for the government of the Victoria District of Rechabites, and the by-laws of the Captain Cook Tent, Mr. Oliver simply appends this certificate:—"I hereby certify that the foregoing rules of the 'Captain Cook' Tent, No. 238 of the Independent Order of Rechabites, Salford Unity, at Sydney, are in conformity with law, and that the Society is duly established from the present date, and is subject to the provisions and entitled to the privileges of the Friendly Societies Act, 1873.—Dated this 19th day of November, 1879.—ALEX. OLIVER, Registrar of Friendly Societies"? I can only say that the whole of this book ("General Laws for the government of the Victoria District Independent Order of Rechabites, Salford Unity, Friendly Society, and the District By-laws") is registered as the law-book of the "Captain Cook" Tent, and was bound up with the names of the officers of that Tent. Another thing, all reference to the Friendly Societies Act of Victoria was left out, and the references made to apply to the Friendly Societies Act of this Colony. The whole book, in that specially amended form, was tendered for registration.

Mr.
F. A. Morgan.
27 Mar., 1882.

5690. Were these general laws and the by-laws of the Captain Cook Tent laid before the Registrar in the form in which I see them now? Yes.

5691. I see that one of the laws of the Captain Cook Tent sets forth the amount and mode of payment of subscription by full benefit members, and fixes the amount at 13d. per week? It says that "the weekly subscription of full benefit members shall not be less than 13d. per week." That is 14s. per quarter.

5692. How do you make up this 14s.? 7s. belongs to the sick and funeral funds, and 7s. to the management fund, out of which are paid the surgeon's fee and costs of medicine, &c.

5693. Mr. Slade.] In reference to those returns, which you mentioned as being referred to you, can you say whether the Society you represent has any modes of expenditure different from Societies in general? Not that I am aware of.

5694. Then, if those forms have sufficiently served the requirements of other Societies, can you give any reason why they should not be sufficient for the Rechabites? I referred particularly to this five years' return [the form of return issued by the Commission]. In this statement of five years' expenditure there does not appear to have been any provision for a Society like ours to show its expenditure in sick pay.

5695. But there is a column for sick pay? I did not notice that before.

5696. If you had, that would have enabled you to have furnished the statement as to sick pay in the form you thought necessary? Yes.

5697. You are aware there is a large number of Societies which have various modes of dealing with funds serving the same purpose, but differently classed and under different names, and that a form to cover every possible variety of income or expenditure that the fancy of the different Societies might provoke would be almost impossible? I am quite aware of that, but sick pay is an item of expenditure that must occur in the case of every Society, and that is why I noticed this peculiar heading, as it would practically shut out many Societies whose sick pay should be included here.

5698. Well, if that heading had been qualified by the words "in or not in a District," that would have met your objection? Yes.

5699. Have you any superannuation fund or system of pensions? No, but the District has a benevolent fund, from which payments are made in certain deserving cases.

5700. Have there been any instances, in your experience, in which the present Act has not been sufficient to meet the requirements of the Order? Not that I am aware of.

5701. Have you any fault to find with the present Act? I do not know that I could point out any particular error in the Act, but I think it would be productive of greater benefit if it was more strictly administered.

5702. Then your objection to the Act is that it is not administered in its integrity? Yes.

5703. What is the amount of contribution sent to Melbourne for the advantages of belonging to that District? 1s. per quarter per member for the Management District Fund. That is independent of the fee for the Funeral Fund, in return for which we get the amount of £20 paid on the death of a member.

5704. You are quite sure that Mr. Oliver, in certifying to the by-laws of the Captain Cook Tent, also certified to the general laws of the Victoria District as contained in this book? Well, he told me so, and he made a special point of the alterations which were made in my own handwriting to accord with the Act of this Colony.

5705. You will observe that the Melbourne portion of the book is called the general laws of the Order, and if you turn to Mr. Oliver's certificate you will find that he certifies only to "the foregoing rules of the Captain Cook Tent"? I see that that is the case.

5706. You will notice that no mention is made there of the registration of any rules of the Melbourne District? No, there is not.

5707. But you are still under the impression that Mr. Oliver registered the whole of these rules? Well, he gave me to understand that he did so. Mr. Oliver was very particular in noting that the scale of entrance fees was in the book, without which I think he could not have registered the rules, and as it happens that scale of fees is not in the by-laws of the Captain Cook Tent, but in the general laws of the Victoria District.

5708. Mr. Gelding.] In your 48th rule you have a very stringent provision that, although a member may have kept strictly temperate for a life-time, and has died in perfect good fellowship in the Order, if a friend or relative should introduce intoxicants into the house during the funeral the widow may be deprived of one-third of the funeral money? If the liquor is introduced with her consent.

5709. Will you turn up the rule on page 27 and read it? I see that rule 48, relating to "Intoxicating liquor at funerals," provides that—"If the nominee, wife, relative, or representative of a deceased member introduce any intoxicating liquor while the body of the deceased remains in the house, or if such liquors are in any way connected with the funeral, the Stewards shall not pay the remaining third of the funeral money, but shall immediately inform the Chief Ruler of the Tent, who shall lay the case before the Judicial Committee; and if it be decided that such intoxicating liquor was introduced without the consent or approval of the nominee, wife, relative, or representative, the remainder of the funeral money shall be paid, but if it be proved that the liquor was introduced with the consent of the nominee, wife, relative, or representative, the remainder shall not be paid, but shall be returned to the funds of the District. The same rule to be observed on the death of a member's wife."

Mr.
F. A. Morgan.
27 Mar., 1882.

5710. Do you not think that that rule is ultra vires? I never had my attention called to it in any way except this, that, in connection with the only funerals I have been connected with in the Order, the rule of cautioning the relatives that this law was in existence was always observed, and if, after that special caution, the rule was broken and the penalty enforced, I do not think it would be very great hardship.

5711. Do you think if you had the privilege of a District of your own that you could give larger benefits, instead of sending the money away out of the Colony? I have never gone into that matter, but it would have to be considered if we were to have a District established here.

5712. Do you not think it would be much better for your Society if you had a governing body here, and paid the 1s. per member for the purpose of keeping up that body, instead of sending it down to Victoria? I do not think it would be sufficient at present. There are not more than about 150 members in New South Wales, and the shilling contribution from them would not go very far towards paying all the expenses of a District and keeping up District chambers.

5713. But do you not think that that is one of the reasons why your Order is kept back here? I have stated so.

5714. With respect to juvenile branches, I see they are not a great success in this Colony? No.

5715. What is your opinion about initiating young men into these Societies at so early an age that they can hardly have any thorough mind of their own? When they are so young as that, they are only initiated into a kind of Band of Hope.

5716. At what ages are they initiated? From eight to sixteen.

5717. And what becomes of them at sixteen? At sixteen they are at liberty to enter the adult Tents.

5718. After medical examination? Certainly.

5719. Do they have any more privileges than if they had not previously been a member of a juvenile Society? The amount which they have subscribed during the time of their connection with the juvenile Tent, less a small amount deducted for expenses of management, is usually sufficient, if they have been any time at all in the Tent, to pay their initiation fees, and sometimes half-a-year's subscription in advance.

5720. I think you stated that the Funeral Fund for the whole Society was £9,000 for 6,000 members? Yes.

5721. Your accumulated funds are £255 3s., or an average of £3 10s. per head? Yes.

5722. If you add that average to the average interest that you possess in the accumulated Funeral Fund, that will bring you up to £5 per head. What do you think of that average; do you think it is a solvent one? I can only go by the reports of actuaries in giving an answer to a question of that kind.

5723. Then what is your opinion about this £5 per head, premising that you had your funds from Victoria? Our funds vary very largely, and we have been established so short a time that we have not had an opportunity of getting a large amount of funds. The present rate enables the Society to accumulate a very large fund, and we shall go on increasing so long as we retain the present membership. The last published returns of our District show the total funds to average over £9 per member, which is the proper way to look at our Order, and not take our particular Tent which is only recently started.

5724. What is your opinion about a sliding scale? I do not approve of it.

5725. Notwithstanding your experience of your partial sliding scale system, you say you do not believe in a sliding scale; then do I understand you to mean that you consider that a young man eighteen years of age ought to pay as much as a man forty years of age, and each receive the same benefits? The young man has the advantage of entering the Society upon easier terms. The elderly man pays a much larger entrance fee, and is not taken at all unless he is proved to be of sound health.

5726. Then the difference between them is in the scale of initiation fees? Certainly.

5727. Does your Society have any regalia? The officers wear regalia during the sittings of the Tent.

5728. What is the cost of the regalia for a Lodge? It is very small—about £4, or even less than that would be the entire cost of the officers' regalia.

5729. What do you pay for a dispensation to open another Lodge? £1 10s.

5730. You provide your own books, I presume? We buy the books from the District.

5731. What is the total cost of opening a Lodge? Between £9 and £10. That includes some property which is re-sold by the Tent to its members, such as rules and certificates of membership.

5732. President.] Candidates for membership are subjected to medical examination before they are admitted? Yes.

5733. What are the occupations of your members, as a rule? They include almost every known occupation.

5734. You make no difference between members of different occupations? None whatever.

5735. Occupation is no bar to admission? It is not.

5736. You are aware that in an Insurance Office occupation has a great deal to do with the "loading" of life policies? Yes.

5737. Some occupations are more risky than others, and more injurious to health and life? Yes.

5738. Notwithstanding that, however, your Society makes no distinction? No; a candidate has simply to be certified to by a medical man and approved of by the members.

5739. Do you think the present system of medical examination of candidates is sufficiently serviceable? Yes; our medical man has rejected several candidates because they were not in sufficiently good health.

5740. You think the system itself is efficient? I think it largely depends upon the medical man himself. Some are more particular than others—I have found it so. I have heard complaints that some medical men did not examine candidates with sufficient care to ensure the admission of only sound members.

5741. You are not aware of any such cases in your own Society?

5742. Mr. Abigail.] Have you had any information in reference to a Rochabites' Tent as existing in 1878? The one you refer to was not in existence in 1878.

5743. Have you any knowledge of that Society? No; at that period I was not in office.

5744. Mr. Langley.] At the time that you registered these rules and the Registrar appended his certificate, was the book in the same shape as it is now? The present copy is an exact copy of that which was certified to by the Registrar. This book has been printed from the certified book of rules.

5746. Mr. Abigail.] Are you in favour of funds which are being accumulated for the benefit of the funeral fund being invested in halls? That is a question which requires very careful consideration. I should not be in favour of such an investment, unless the Societies were very rich indeed; they should certainly hold in hand a sufficient amount to meet all likely demands. Mr. F. A. Morgan.
27 Mar., 1882.

FRIDAY, 31 MARCH, 1882.

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., PRESIDENT.

J. F. SMITH, Esq.,
E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,
E. J. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,

P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
J. SLADE, Esq.,
W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.,
J. GELDING, Esq.

Mr. Albert B. Fordham sworn and examined:—

5747. President.] What Society do you represent? The Independent Order of Rechabites.
5748. How long have you been a member? Ten years.
5749. In New South Wales? Principally in connection with the Victorian District, but about two and a-half years in New South Wales.
5750. What tent do you represent? The Crystal Spring Tent, No. 247.
5751. What number of members have you in your tent? At the present time we have about thirty-three.
5752. Is that the largest number you have had at any time? We have had as many as fifty-nine.
5753. What have been the receipts of your Tent from all sources during last year? The total receipts from all sources during last year were £107.
5754. What amount has been paid by your Society during the year for sick benefits in the shape of sick pay? We have paid £24 for sick pay only, and we have also paid £20 on account of the death of a member.
5755. What was the amount of your working expenses? Advertising, printing, postage, salaries, &c., amounted to £9 10s.
5756. What was your total expenditure last year? £117 19s.
5757. Then you have not made any profits? At the end of last year we were £4 1s. in hand.
5758. Then you did not increase your capital by any sum during the year; in fact you were worse off at the end than at the beginning? Well, yes, because we had £15 over from the previous year.
5759. Then you were £10 worse off upon the year's transactions? Yes.
5760. Can you give any reason that would account for that? No, I do not know of any reason, except that it would be the falling off of a lot of old members who left the Tent in arrears, previous to our being registered, and when we had no means of preventing it.
5761. How many members joined you during last year? That I could not tell from memory.
5762. Do you know how many left you? The number at the end of 1881 was thirty-one.
5763. What number of members have joined? Fifty-nine.
5764. And how many have left? Twenty-six.
5765. Then half of those who joined you have left again? Yes, through having broken the pledge, or some other cause.
5766. What weekly contribution entitles a member to all benefits? About 1s. 3d. per week we pay in Balmain. We pay 15s. 9d. per quarter.
5767. What are the benefits which your Society gives its members? A member, after being such for twelve months, is entitled to £20 at death if a full member, or £10 if a half-benefit member. He is also entitled to £1 per week sick pay during the first year of sickness, 10s. per week during the succeeding six months, and then 5s. per week as long as the sickness continues.
5768. Do you think 1s. 3d. per week sufficient to ensure all those benefits to members? I think so.
5769. Have you uniform payments? Yes, we have no graduated scale.
5770. Your Society is based upon temperance principles? Yes.
5771. Any member breaking his obligation is suspended? Yes.
5772. For how long? For three months, when he can be re-obligated by vote of the Lodge.
5773. Then as soon as he is re-obligated he is entitled to full benefits? Yes, on payment of 5s. fine for the first offence, and 10s. for the second. After the second offence it is at the option of the Tent whether the member be taken back or not.
5774. How do you determine? By ballot.
5775. Have you had many cases of that kind during your ten years' experience? No, very few. We have had more in this small Tent than in the large Tent of 300 members with which I was connected.
5776. What proportion of young men have you? They are nearly all young men, ranging from eighteen to twenty-three or twenty-four.
5777. What is the age of the oldest member you have? Until recently not more than twenty-seven, but two over forty I believe were recently admitted.
5778. Then the average age of members in your Society would be about twenty-five? It was about twenty, according to a calculation I made some time ago, but it is now about twenty-one.
5779. The ages vary from eighteen to twenty-four? Yes.
5780. Then there must be a large number at or near eighteen years of age? Yes, they are mostly of that age.
5781. Have you studied the Friendly Societies Act? No I cannot say that I have.
5782. You are not aware then whether the provisions of that Act are sufficient to afford security to the members of the Friendly Societies? I know that in relation to our own Order the security has been sufficient; our funds have always been able to meet the demands for sick or funeral pay.
5783. But not on account of sick? Not necessarily.

Mr. A. B. Fordham.
31 Mar., 1882.

5785.

- Mr. A. B. Fordham.
31 Mar., 1882.
5785. But in every case for funeral donations? Yes, in every such case we draw upon the District.
5786. What amount of money has been paid during the existence of your Tent to Victoria? About £250.
5787. Within two-and-a-half years? Yes.
5788. That is to ensure your funeral fees? Yes.
5789. Then of course there is the entrance money of new members—that is included in the £250? Yes.
5790. Those payments are based upon a graduated scale? Yes, according to the ages of members, from fifteen to forty-five.
5791. Then I understand that, as far as your knowledge goes, the present Act affords all the security which the members of Friendly Societies require? Yes, I think so.
5792. Can you mention any particular in which it might be amended with advantage to the Friendly Societies? That is a matter to which I have not given any consideration.
5793. Has your Society at any time sued any of its members to recover arrears in the payment of members? No.
5794. You are aware that the Act gives Societies the power of recovering arrears by legal process? Yes, I know that, but our Tent had not been in a position to sue defaulting members, even if we had been inclined, until within the past four or five months.
5795. Do you approve of that provision in the Act? Yes.
5796. Has your Society or Tent any liability towards a defaulting member after he becomes thirteen months in arrears? Not that I am aware of.
5797. To what extent would you permit members to go into arrears before the officers should proceed against them? Two quarters.
5798. Then you have nothing special to suggest which might be embodied in future legislation in dealing with the Friendly Societies Act? Nothing, except having a systematic entrance fee—I mean a uniform fee. I do not think a graduated scale of entrance fees or the half-fee system productive of good.
5799. You do not mean a uniform charge for admission? No, I mean a uniform rate of contribution.
5800. And that you would not give power to any Society to reduce its rates of initiation? Yes.
5801. You favour the principle of making young men of the age of eighteen pay as much as men of forty in the shape of weekly contributions? Yes, but the entrance fee should be graduated according to age.
5802. Only that you would not permit Societies to reduce the initiation fees to half-rates? No.
5803. Have you been a member of any other Society than the one you belong to now? No.
5804. How long has your Tent been registered? About five months.
5805. Then you have not yet made out any returns to the Registrar in this Colony? No.
5806. Have you done so for Victoria? Yes.
5807. What position will you be in now—will you have to do that still? No, only a certain part. The statistical part goes to New South Wales.
5808. You believe your Tent to be in a good financial position, notwithstanding that you made a loss of £10 last year? Yes.
5809. You had only one death during the year? Only one death during two and a half years.
5810. And you had to pay away only £24 in sick pay? Yes.
5811. Mr. Smith.] How do you account for the total amount of expenditure which you have given? The total is made up of surgeon's fee, £26; chemist, £7 3s. 6d.; payment to District, £8 14s. 3d.; registration fee, £1 1s.; advertising, printing, salary, &c., £9 10s. There was sick pay on account of the Ballarat Tent, £12 18s., but that has been refunded in the ordinary course.
5812. But that does not nearly account for the expenditure. Have you not any book or document in your possession by which you can show the expenditure of this large sum of over £100? Yes. According to the books the items of expenditure in 1879–80 were:—Surgeon, £22 12s. 6d.; chemist, £7 14s.; rent, £7 10s.; District (including goods, levy, and Funeral Fund), £39; advertising, postage, and printing, £3 9s. 7d.; furniture, £1; salary, 15s.; total, £82 1s. 1d. The items of expenditure in 1881 were:—Surgeon, £26 4s. 6d.; chemist, £7 3s. 6d.; District (including goods, levy, and Funeral Fund), £8 14s. 3d.; advertising, postage, printing, £4 1s. 7d.; salary, £1 10s.; sick pay on all accounts (including one death, and special vote £20), £57 14s. 8d.; registration fee, £1 1s.; rent, £3 18s.; expenses in juvenile concert, £5; from Extension Fund (a special fund for extending the Order given by the District), £2 11s. 6d.; making a total of £117 19s. A summary of the accounts shows that the total receipts from all sources for the years ending 1879–80, amounted to £97 7s. As we only commenced two months previous to the close of 1879, I include that period in 1880. Our total expenditure for 1879–80 was £82 1s. 1d., showing a balance at the end of 1880 of £15 5s. 11d. The total receipts up to the end of the year 1881 were £106 14s. 1d., which, with the balance brought forward, makes a total of £122. Against this the total expenditure for 1881 was £117 19s., showing a total balance in hand at the end of 1881 of £4 1s.
5813. Are the majority of your members single or married? Single. I dare say eight of our members are married. I would not say for certain, but I think there are not more than eight.
5814. You appear to have paid away a large amount for sickness—over £44 during last year? £20 was from the Funeral Fund, and £24 went for sickness. One brother must have been sick for three months before he died.
5815. Then you had only two sick members during the year, and one of those two died? Yes.
5816. Mr. Holdsworth.] This amount of £12 18s. that you paid for the Ballarat Tent will be refunded? Yes.
5817. And your funeral money, £20, was paid out of the common fund from Melbourne? Yes.
5818. Then out of the expenses that you have mentioned the sum of £82 will be refunded? The refunding of those amounts is already accounted for. For instance, the payment of £20 from the Funeral Fund appears first in the receipts and afterwards in the expenditure, so that the accounts as regards that item balance each other.
5819. The Rechabites have been in existence in New South Wales for some time, have they not? For three and a half or four years.
5820. Have you no record of the Rechabites in 1842? No.
5821. And no records of the Tents which existed eight or nine years ago at Wallsend? No.
5822. The only records you have are of the new Tents? That is all.
5823. You are in favour of a fixed rate of contribution? Yes.
5824. You think that a single young man of eighteen should pay just as much as a married man of twenty-five or thirty with two or three children? Yes.

5825. Can you give me any reason for holding that opinion? I think I could if I had an opportunity of fairly considering the matter. Speaking on the spur of the moment, I would say that the matter has been talked of in Tent and out of Tent, and the general opinion has been that a good deal of evil has arisen from these low fees.

Mr. A. B.
Fordham.

31 Mar., 1882.

5826. I am not talking of low fees: what I mean to ask is whether you consider it equitable that a young man of eighteen should pay the same rate of contribution as the man of forty? I think so. If you allow young men to join upon such exceedingly low rates, you will practically lay upon the shoulders of the older men the burden of keeping up the Tent for the benefit of the young members.

5827. Is that your experience in connection with the Rechabites? Yes.

5828. Mr. Langley.] You stated, in reply to the President, that you thought there should be some preventive of the practice of allowing members to enter upon reduced entrance fees and half-fees? Yes.

5829. Do you think it matters much what initiation fee you charge, so long as the rate of contribution is adequate to the carrying on of the Tent or Lodge? Not much difference, perhaps; but if you did not have a sufficiently high initiation fee, and sickness came upon those members who had joined under those exceptionally favourable conditions, they would become a drag upon the Society.

5830. What difference can the initiation fee make as compared with an adequate weekly contribution? I could not answer that question as to what difference it would make, but taken in conjunction with a small rate of contribution, the reduced rate of initiation would seriously prejudice the financial stability of a Society.

5831. Does it matter at all whether any initiation fee is charged at all, provided the weekly contribution is sufficiently high? That I would not be in a position to give a decided answer upon.

5832. Is it not self-evident that it makes no difference whatever whether you charge 10s. or 20s. as an initiation fee, provided the weekly contribution is sufficiently high? I think it does make a great deal of difference, but I am not prepared to deal with the matter without a little consideration.

5833. Is it not simply a matter of fact, shown by an ordinary calculation made by any person who understands figures, that it can make no difference whatever as to what the initiation fee is, provided the rate of weekly contribution for carrying on a Friendly Society is sufficiently high? It may be so.

5834. Mr. Rubie.] Yours is a Temperance Benefit Society? Yes.

5835. If a member violated his pledge, would he not be deprived of all his benefits? Only until he was re-obligated.

5836. How long have you been established in New South Wales? Only two and a-half years—that is my Tent.

5837. Then your accumulated fund cannot be very great? No, it is not.

5838. You are affiliated with the Melbourne body? Yes, until we get a District of our own.

5839. Then, if there were any serious defalcations in connection with the Melbourne body, you would have to suffer without having any voice in the matter? We have delegates appointed to represent us.

5840. But you have no direct control over the funds? We have no exactly direct control.

5841. Do your officers give security in all cases? Yes, it is laid down in the general laws that such should be the case.

5843. Are you satisfied with the manner in which the Society is worked in Melbourne? Decidedly.

5844. Mr. Stace.] Have you got any superannuation fund? No.

5845. What provision do you make for arbitration in disputes between members and the Society? The matter is referred to the chief ruler, from him, if necessary, to the district officers, and then from them, if necessary, to the Annual General Session.

5846. What provision do you make in your Society for the protection of minorities—say, in the case of the breaking up of a Tent by the decision of a bare majority? No Tent of our Order can be broken up unless it has less than ten members, or seven, I forget which.

5847. Well, supposing the number gets below that minimum, have they no means of falling back upon the head office in Melbourne for their benefits? We should, in the case of a Tent becoming defunct here, because I think we would be under the supervision of the Melbourne District, of which we form a part.

5848. Is there no fund in the Tents in Melbourne to meet the claims of minorities? I think not.

5849. Are you allowed to be represented in Victoria by proxy? Yes.

Mr. William Benton sworn and examined:—

5850. President.] What Society do you represent? The Grand United Order of Free Gardeners.

5851. How long have you been a member? About fourteen months.

5852. How long has your Society been in existence in New South Wales? Upwards of three years.

5853. What office have you held during the time you have been a member? Secretary.

5854. Do you hold any office now? No.

5855. What number of members have you in your Lodge? Eighty.

5856. What amount of contributions do you pay per week or per month? 1s. per week.

5857. What benefits do you give your members? £1 per week sick pay, after a member has been in the Lodge six months and should fall sick.

5858. Suppose you were to die, what funeral allowance would your widow receive? £30.

5859. Or if your wife died, what amount would you receive? £20.

5860. What is the total value of the funds of your Society, or of your Lodge singly? We have not been established long, and we cannot expect to have much. I almost forget the amount now, but I think it is about £60, including all the Lodge furniture, money in hand, and everything.

5861. What amount of money has been received by your Lodge during last year? £108.

5862. What amount of money has been spent in that time—paid away for all purposes? That I cannot tell, but the Secretary, Mr. Carroll, could.

5863. Who is the Grand Secretary? I have been the Grand Secretary since it was established.

Mr. W.
Benton.

31 Mar., 1882.

MONDAY,

MONDAY, 3 APRIL, 1882.

Present:—

J. DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., PRESIDENT.

J. F. SMITH, Esq.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
J. SLADE, Esq.,P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
J. GELDING, Esq.,

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. George Lucas sworn and examined:—

Mr.
G. Lucas.
3 April, 1882.

5864. The President.] What Society do you represent? I do not come here to represent any. I come here simply to say that I am not a representative.
5865. Have you not formerly held the office of Secretary to a Benefit Society? Yes.
5866. You are a member of the Free Gardeners' Benefit Society? Yes.
5867. Do you hold any office now? Master of the Lodge.
5868. Had you previously held any? Only the Secretaryship.
5869. What number of members have you in your Lodge? We have about 100 good members. There are three Branches of us.
5870. Could you give the particulars showing the financial position, and similar information in reference to those Societies? I could send it to you, but I am not in a position to give the information now.
5871. Will you do that? I will.
5872. Have you a copy of your by-laws? No, but I could send you one.
5873. You were District Secretary? I am not District Secretary now.
5874. How long has the Lodge of which you are a member been in existence? We were registered only in 1881, in June. That was the first Lodge. We were originally a Temperance Lodge, until we amalgamated to form the present Society.
5875. You were originally a Total Abstinence Benefit Society? Yes.
5876. What funds have you got? £70 11s. 8d. at the end of last year.
5877. Have you had any sickness in your Lodge during that time? Yes; we paid away £100 7s. 8d. last year on account of sickness.
5878. Any funeral donations? No; we only had one death, and the expenses of the burial have only been paid this year.
5879. What is the amount of contributions paid by your members? 1s. per week.
5880. Do you pay a uniform rate? Yes.
5881. What are the benefits that your Lodge gives its members? £1 per week sick pay, £20 at the death of a member, and £10 at the death of a member's wife.
5882. Do you give medical attendance and medicines? Yes.
5883. What amount was paid for medicines and medical attendance during last year? I think about £107, but I am not sure; I think we paid away £126 altogether in the way of management expenses.
5884. But you do not call medicines and medical attendance management? Yes, we do. We divide the 1s. a week—6d. going for the working of the Lodge, and the other 6d. going to the fund for sick pay and funeral donations.
5885. Have you previously been a member of any other Society? I was a Forester some few years ago.
5886. Are you of opinion that the payment of 1s. per week is sufficient to ensure the benefits that you speak of? I think so. As a rule we contribute 2s. as a quarterly levy, and that helps to pay for the Management Fund.
5887. Is that 2s. per quarter in addition to the 1s. per week? Yes.
5888. What amount of money was paid last year on account of management, such expenditure as printing, advertising, stationery, salary, &c.? I did not come prepared with information of that kind, but I think all the expenses, including the doctor and chemist, were covered by the £126 last year.
5889. What was the total amount of income? £270 16s.
5890. Then you have a credit balance of £70? Yes, £70 11s. 8d.
5891. What has been paid into the District from your Lodge? Nothing was paid last year. We pay something this year, but I do not know what it will be.
5892. What would be the contributions from the separate Lodges? Somewhere about £30.
5893. From the Lodges altogether? Yes; it is so much from each member as he joins.
5894. Have the three Lodges joined the District? Yes.
5895. You have found no inconvenience in the working of your Societies? None.
5896. You believe them to be well managed? Yes.
5897. And that the contributions are sufficient to meet all claims in cases of death or sickness? Yes. In the case of death each member right throughout the Society is levied upon, in order to make up the amount of the funeral donation.
5898. Have you studied the Friendly Societies Act? Yes.
5899. Do you think it affords sufficient protection to members of the Friendly Societies? I think it might be improved by a little alteration.
5900. In what direction? I could hardly tell you now. There are two or three clauses which might be altered.
5901. Do you favour the principle embodied in the Act under which the officers of a Lodge have power to sue members who fall into arrears? I do approve of it.
5902. To what extent are the members of your Society allowed to go into arrears before they forfeit their right to benefits? Fourteen weeks.
5903. They are then suspended from all participation in the benefits of membership? Yes.
5904. When they still continue to fall into arrears, what do you do with them? We have done nothing with them as yet.
5905. You have not been long enough in existence to have much experience of that kind? No.
5906. What method have you adopted for dealing with matters of dispute between members and the officers? We have a higher Lodge—the District Lodge. If the decision of that body does not give satisfaction, the parties have the right of appeal to the Grand Lodge in Victoria.

Mr.
G. Lucas.
3 April, 1883.

5907. Then you are a Branch of the Grand Lodge of Victoria? Yes.
5908. Do you send any capitation tax or other moneys to Victoria? No, because we are registered in New South Wales.
5909. Then all the funds are kept in New South Wales? Yes.
5910. With reference to the name by which your Society is designated—is the Society composed of operative gardeners? It is not composed of any one class in particular. There is nothing in the name.
5911. Are there no gardeners members? I do not think there is a single gardener a member.
5912. What is the average age of the members of your Society? I should say about thirty-five.
5913. Have you many young men? We have a good few.
5914. Ranging from what age? From eighteen to twenty-six.
5915. Have you many over forty? I do not think there are a dozen over forty.
5916. Have you a uniform or graduated scale of initiation fee? We have a graduated scale.
5917. You mean payment according to age? Yes.
5918. Have you a system of medical examination of candidates for membership? Yes.
5919. Have you a declaration to be signed by the candidates? Yes; there is a written form which has to be filled up by the candidate.
5920. Do you think the system of medical examination as it is carried out is sufficient for all purposes? I consider it is.
5921. Have you never known persons who were not of sound health passed by the doctors and admitted as members? We could never prove it, but we have had reason to believe that that occurred in one or two cases.
5922. Do you think the questions put by the doctor are sufficiently explicit? If the examination is an honest one, I think they are.
5923. Do you think the medical examination goes far enough? In some cases I do not think it does.
5924. Does the medical man in your Society get a special fee for the examination? No; the member is simply put on the doctor's list.
5925. Have you known any cases where medical men have refused to pass candidates? Yes; our doctor has refused two or three.
5926. Who is your doctor? Dr. Warren.
5927. During your connection with the Foresters, do you remember any case of refusal? No.
5928. Then you are of opinion that sufficiently rigid medical examination is made before a candidate is passed in order to ensure a Society against fraud? I think our doctor does his duty in the examination of candidates.
5929. Are you in favour of a uniform system of contribution, or do you approve of a graduated scale? I approve of a uniform system.
5930. Making all pay alike? Yes.
5931. Young and old? Yes.
5932. And you consider your total payments of 15s. per quarter sufficient to ensure full benefits to every member? Yes.
5933. Have you any suggestion to make which might be of service in future legislation? No.
5934. You think the present state of things pretty satisfactory? I am perfectly satisfied.
5935. Mr. Abigail.] The information you have given is based on eighteen months' experience? The majority of us were originally in another Lodge. We have, as a body, been four years in existence, and eighteen months of that time we have existed under the name of Free Gardeners.
5936. How long have you been a member of a Friendly Society? About eight years.
5937. While you were a member of the Foresters, did you give the working of the Friendly Societies Act any consideration? No; I suppose I was careless, like the majority of the members of Friendly Societies.
5938. Have you ever made any calculation which would enable you to form any opinion as to what should be the rate of payment to guarantee the benefits that a Friendly Society offers? I consider 15s. per quarter sufficient for any Lodge. You must remember that we only pay £20 on the death of a member, and £10 on the death of a member's wife.
5939. Upon what data do you form that opinion? Well, from the time the Society amalgamated up to December last I have been Secretary. We have £70 in one fund, and as we get 2s. per quarter from each member to meet any claims on the other fund, I consider that we are able to pay our way.
5940. Have you ever considered the rate of contingent liabilities accruing in connection with each member? No, I have not given that matter any consideration.
5941. Can you tell us what you think a Society should accumulate per member per year to place it in a sound financial condition? Yes.
5942. At what rate then? About 15s. per member.
5943. You think that an accumulation of 15s. per member, after all expenses are paid, would be sufficient to make the Society financially sound? Yes, I do.
5944. Do you think that Government should exercise supervision over the management of these Societies by having an official auditor? Well, I don't know. If there are auditors appointed by the Lodge they are as a rule the best men. In our Society the accounts are supposed to be audited by a city auditor, or public accountant, once in five years.
5945. Then the rules do not leave the auditing to the members of the Society exclusively? No; once in five years the accounts are publicly audited.
5946. Have you furnished annual returns to the Registrar? Yes.
5947. You speak of your Lodge having amalgamated, when was that? In December, 1879.
5948. With whom? With the Free Gardeners.
5949. Then, when the amalgamation took place, did all the members formerly belonging to the original Society join the other? With the exception of two or three.
5950. Any above the age of forty? Yes.
5951. Many? All the members of the Lodge who are now over forty.
5952. Can you tell me how many that was? About eight or ten.
5953. How many amalgamated altogether? Seventy-four.
5954. What would be about the age of the oldest member at that time? I could not say. When the Lodge was first formed, I am sorry to say, they took them in at any age.

- Mr. G. Lucas. 5955. What Lodge? The No. 1 Total Abstinence Benefit Society.
5956. Was there any initiation fee? 5s.
- 3 April, 1882. 5957. That was the only scale? The only scale.
5958. All parties of any age were admitted upon payment of 5s.? Yes, after the first meeting night. A Mr. Brown started the Lodge.
5959. In the new Lodges, have you fixed a scale of initiation fees? Yes. Under twenty-five, 5s.; under thirty-five, 10s.; under forty, £1.
5960. Do you admit any above the age of forty? No.
5961. What amount of funds did those seventy-four members have when they joined the new Order? Sixty odd pounds.
5962. How many members are there now? 100.
5963. And your funds have increased during the last twelve months only to the extent of £10? That is all.
5964. You now have a District of your own? Yes; I am District Secretary.
5965. What is the rate per member of expenditure for management of your District? Well, we could hardly form any idea. The District is only just formed.
5966. Have you any expenses in reference to regalia? We have an apron which costs about 2s. 6d.
5967. Is this compulsory upon members? Yes.
5968. Then the only levy you pay is 2s. per quarter per member? If a member dies every member throughout the Order has to pay some amount to make up the £20 which has to be paid.
5969. Is that in addition to the 15s. per quarter? That is only a by-law in my Lodge.
5970. How is it your Lodge makes a levy upon its members in the event of death—do the other Lodges do so? Right throughout the Order. It is supposed to be paid to the District as a levy, and then returned to the Lodge in which the death takes place.
5971. I suppose you have received returns to be filled up? I have not; I am not Secretary now.
5972. What salary do you receive as District Secretary? £5 5s. a year.
5973. Mr. Gelding.] Did your Lodge, when it belonged to the Temperance body, make application to any other Society to take it in? Yes, the Druids and the Oddfellows.
5974. What was the reason why the Druids or the Manchester Unity would not take you in? The Druids wanted more money than we had in hand.
5975. And the Manchester Unity? I don't think we ever got any reason from them.
5976. Did they not tell you that you must have sufficient funds in hand to be equal to what the total initiation fees would be if they were to join the Society? Probably.
5977. And your funds did not amount to anything like that sum? No.
5978. The majority of you were old members and you had very little funds? Yes.
5979. You were called a temperance body? That was only a name.
5980. I understand you to say, in answer to Mr. Newland, that your members pay 1s. per week regular subscription, 2s. per quarter levy to the District Management Fund, and that whenever a death occurs a special levy is made right throughout the Order to pay the funeral donation? No. We pay 2s. per quarter whether there are any deaths or not.
5981. There is an impression among the members of the Commission that you pay a fixed contribution of 1s. a week, and a regular levy of 2s. per quarter, and further, that when a death occurs each member of the Lodge is levied upon in order to pay the funeral expenses? No, the 2s. per member meets those levies. In my Lodge we pay 15s. per quarter, including the regular 2s. levy. In other Lodges the members simply pay 13s. per quarter, and a special levy is made whenever a death occurs. We have only commenced the practice in our Lodge this year.
5982. You are District Secretary? Yes.
5983. What is the strength of the other two Lodges? The Waratah Lodge has seventy-seven members, and the Olive Branch sixty-seven.
5984. Could you give any information in regard to the funds of either of those Branches? I could, but I have not got it with me now.
5985. Have you any Widow and Orphan Fund? No.
5986. Any Superannuation Fund? No.
5987. Have you ever studied the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act? No, I do not think I have.
5988. Would you give any expression of opinion whether it would not be beneficial that the Government should appoint an Actuary, and also a Registrar, who should take upon himself the duties of looking after these Societies? It is a matter of indifference to me. I don't care how it goes. I consider that if a Lodge is carried on as it should be—5989. You consider that you do not want anybody overlooking you? No, I don't mean that.
5990. You believe that so long as a Lodge looks after its accounts in a proper manner you do not require a Registrar of Friendly Societies? Oh, yes.
5991. Then do you think that the Government should appoint a gentleman qualified to undertake these duties, and that the Registrar should be kept for those duties alone? Yes, that is what I mean.
5992. Are the Free Gardeners very strong in Victoria? They have seventeen Lodges.
5993. How many members? I could not tell you from memory, but I could forward the numbers.
5994. Are they very strong in Great Britain? I believe they are very strong in Scotland.
5995. President.] What is the total number of members in the different Lodges, including your own? In one Lodge we have seventy-seven, in another sixty-seven, and 100 in our own.
5996. Then you have nothing further to add to the evidence you have already given, and no suggestion to make? No.
5997. And as far as your knowledge goes, you are perfectly satisfied with the present Act? Yes.
5998. There is a Lodge called the Thistle Lodge—is that identified with your Society? No. I believe there was some few years ago; I don't think it is in existence now.
5999. Mr. Langley.] Do you think it advisable to allow Friendly Societies that have so exhausted their funds as to go out of compliance with the parent Society to be able to start under a new name for themselves, and on their own account? No.

Mr. Peter Forbes sworn and examined :—

Mr. P.
Forbes.

3 April, 1882.

6000. President.] What Society do you represent? The Loyal Orange Benefit Society of Australasia.
6001. How long has your Society been in existence? Since 1876; but it was not a Friendly Society till 1880. These are the amended rules of the Society. (Rules produced.)
6002. Registered under the Friendly Societies Act of New South Wales? Yes.
6003. How many members have you? About 330 financial members, and thirty or forty non-financial.
6004. What office do you hold? Grand Secretary.
6005. How long have you held that office? Since the commencement of 1881.
6006. Previous to that, did you hold any office? I was Secretary to one of the subordinate Lodges.
6007. How long have you been a member of the Order? Since 1879.
6008. What is the total amount of funds at the disposal of the various Lodges? That is a matter I have not taken up.
6009. Have you never taken notice of the Grand Lodge funds? They have a total of £85 ls. 1d., at the end of December last.
6010. How is that made up? By three distinct funds—the Grand Lodge Contingent Fund, the Funeral Fund, and the Clearance Fund.
6011. What amount of money stands to the credit of the Funeral Fund? £68 0s. 2d.
6012. What number of members would be effected by the Funeral Fund? About 300.
6013. Is that the only fund that you have to draw upon to meet the payments that have to be made on the occasion of the death of a member of the Order? Yes. We have a Contingent Fund, £11 18s. 11d., and a Clearance Fund, £5 2s. Of course we have had only one year's working.
6014. What amount of contributions do your members pay? 8d. per week is paid by non-medical members, that is those who do not require medicines and doctor, and 1s. or 1s. 1d. per week by those who require doctor and medicines.
6015. That is under the new rules? Yes.
6016. How has the Society been managed during the last twelve months? Our income from all sources is as follows: We brought forward from 1880 about £16 17s., less £1 overdraft on the Treasurer; contributions, Funeral Fund, £86 15s. 10d.; Management Expenses Fund, £63 18s. 4d.; Clearance Fund, £5 19s. 6d.; altogether about £176. Our expenses have been: Funeral donations, £30; working expenses, £8 7s.; expenses of Grand Lodge, £51 19s. 7d.; making a total of £91 3s. 11d. Deducting that from the income which I have just mentioned it leaves a balance of £85 1s. 1d.
6017. Have you had any deaths in that year? Two.
6018. What amount has been paid on behalf of the several Lodges for sick pay during the past year? I do not know.
6019. Do you know the amount paid in your own Lodge? No.
6020. Cannot you tell the amount paid for medical attendance? No.
6021. I think your Society is somewhat in the nature of a religious Society? Yes; we only admit those who are Protestants.
6022. Is there any money spent in regalia? That would be from the Grand Lodge only. From the Contingent Fund they would have power to pay for regalia, but they collect no special fund for that.
6023. In the subordinate Lodges it is provided by the members themselves? The registered rules will not allow any use to be made of the funds in that way. The objects of the Society are, as stated on page 4 of our rules, "to raise a fund by entrance fees, and subscriptions of the members, fines, donations, and by interest on capital, from which shall be paid on the death of a member or member's wife, to his widow or children, the administrators, executors, or assigns of such member or his widow, or for the defraying of the expenses of the burial of a member, a sum of money which he or they may be entitled to by these rules. * * * for the relief of members in sickness, and for supplying medical attendance and medicines to members, their wives and families, and the necessary working expenses of the Society."
6024. What is the largest number of members you have had at any time? At the present time we have the largest number.
6025. What is the limit of age at which you admit members, and the scale of initiation fees according to age? Forty-five years is the limit of age, and the fees are according to the following scale:—Under 20 years of age, 5s.; 20 to 22, 6s. 6d.; 22 to 25, 8s. 6d.; 25 to 28, 10s. 6d.; 28 to 30, 12s. 6d.; 30 to 32, 15s. 6d.; 32 to 34, 18s. 6d.; 34 to 36, £1 1s. 6d.; 36 to 38, £1 5s. 6d.; 38 to 40, £1 10s.; 40 to 42, £2 2s. 6d.; 42 to 45, £2 10s. This is laid down for the subordinate Lodges, but they can charge more if they choose. Besides this, however, subordinate Lodges make a charge on account of the Funeral Fund, which, in the case of a man forty-five years of age, would really bring the fee up to £3 5s. On page 35 of our book of rules you will find it stated that there is a Funeral Fund "established to aid, strengthen, and unite the subordinate Lodges of the Loyal Orange Benefit Society of Australasia, in assuring members entitled to receive it the sum of £20, payable on the death of a member, and the sum of £10 on the death of a member's wife." Among the rules which regulate the fund is the following:—"All new Lodges shall join this fund, and pay initiation or entrance fees, in respect of the members enrolled, in accordance with the following scale:—Under 20 years of age, 1s.; 20 to 22, 1s. 6d.; 22 to 25, 2s. 6d.; 25 to 28, 3s. 6d.; 28 to 30, 4s. 6d.; 30 to 32, 5s. 6d.; 32 to 34, 6s. 6d.; 34 to 36, 7s. 6d.; 36 to 38, 8s. 6d.; 38 to 40, 10s.; 40 to 42, 12s. 6d.; 42 to 45, 15s.; with a uniform fee of 1s. on the registration of a first wife of each member. But under no circumstances shall any person be registered as a member of this fund whose age exceeds forty-five years.
6026. Members who do not register in these funds would not participate in these benefits? No.
6027. How many members were initiated last year? I could not tell you.
6028. Your Society has recently been brought under a proper footing with the Friendly Societies Act? Yes.
6029. Previously it was only partially a Benefit Society? Yes; but it did not work well at all, and we were compelled either to abandon the old scheme or reorganize.
6030. Have you many members over forty-five? I could not tell you.
6031. Then you do not know the average age of the members of your Society? No.
6032. Mr. Gelding.] There were only two or three strange Lodges that joined this Benefit Society? No, not as Lodges; just a few members from one of the Lodges started a Lodge under the new system.

Mr.
P. Forbes.
3 April, 1882.

6033. Do you think 1s. 1d. per week a sufficiently high rate of contribution to meet all the liabilities which the Society incurs? I think it sufficient where the Lodges are properly conducted, and where they do not waste their money in regalia or useless expenses.
6034. You have regalia in your Lodge? Only for the officers; the members find their own.
6035. What do you mean by spending money for regalia? I mean that money paid into a Lodge for sick pay should not be used for any other kind of expenditure.
6036. Who pays for the regalia for the officers? The Lodges did prior to the adoption of these rules.
6037. Are you aware of any other Society in which they make such payments out of the Lodge fund? Yes, the Sons of Temperance do it.
6038. What benefits do you propose to pay members? £20 on the death of a member, and £10 on the death of a member's wife.
6039. Have you any other fund besides the Funeral Fund? We have a Clearance Fund by which members may be relieved from one District to another, and not be going upon Lodges not responsible for them.
6040. You have, I think you said, about 300 members? Yes.
6041. Does each Lodge govern its own affairs? Each Lodge governs itself, subordinate to the Grand Lodge.
6042. How is the Grand Lodge constituted? By four members delegated from each Lodge.
6043. Are they paid? No; each delegate pays his own expenses.
6044. You are District Secretary? Yes.
6045. What salary do you receive? I received £6 for last year's services.
6046. Have you any other paid officer? Yes, the Grand Treasurer.
6047. What salary does he get? About £3 a year.
6048. Does he give a bond? Yes.
6049. Mr. Newland.] According to rule 16, "Every bonâ fide member who shall be qualified, as required by the General Rules and By-laws, shall in case of sickness or disability be entitled to and receive weekly pecuniary assistance, not exceeding the sum of £1 1s., according to the scale of his Lodge, except it be shown that such sickness or disability has been brought on by improper conduct; nevertheless, a Lodge may suspend benefits by a two-thirds vote of the members present at a meeting summoned for that purpose, after four weeks' notice has been given of such intention, but in no case without proper cause is shown; this rule shall not apply to members who shall at such time be entitled to receive sick pay." What is the object of such a rule as that? That is if the fund was insufficient to meet the demands made upon it, then of course it would become necessary to specially raise funds by contributions or that a lower scale of benefits should be paid. But that could only be done according to the Friendly Societies Act by a meeting specially convened for that purpose.
6050. Do you think it wise to have such a provision as this? If members had all been summoned to a meeting they would not vote for the sick pay to be reduced unless it was really necessary.
6051. Do you not think that this power might be abused by a few members of a Society endeavouring to get a vote passed when a man requiring sick pay had perhaps been contributing to the Society for many years? If a Lodge got into such a position that it could not continue to offer the same benefits they would have to do this, but you will notice that the rule itself states that it shall not apply to members who may at the time be entitled to sick pay.
6052. Would it not be better to have the affairs of a Society put upon a sound basis, so that there would be no necessity for this? Of course, but if an epidemic broke out in a District, and a number of deaths took place in a Lodge, very quickly there would be no alternative but to either suspend the law or raise the contributions.
6053. Would it not be better to make a special contribution? Well, they would have to do either one or the other. This law is only to meet an extraordinary circumstance.
6054. In rule 27 of the rules to govern the Funeral Fund, it is stated that "The appointed Trustees shall sign all cheques or orders drawn on the Bank for money, and shall also see that the amount at the Bank agrees with the statement of the Treasurer." Do they do that? Only if the money should be drawn from the Bank. They only have the power to sign cheques and draw money from the Bank for that particular purpose.
6055. Mr. Langley.] In the clause in which power is given by a two-thirds vote to suspend benefits without giving any reason for it, what protection is there? No body of men would suspend that unnecessarily. That would be injurious to themselves.
6056. But in this case there is no provision of that kind? It is left to the judgment of the Lodge. The Grand Lodge gives power to make rules in accordance with its necessities. It would be impossible for the Grand Lodge to make by-laws for every Lodge.
6057. But as the law now stands, a two-thirds majority can carry this suspension? The law gives that power, but you will not get two men out of every three to agree to suspend the benefits where there is no necessity for such a course.
6058. But there is the authority? Yes, but the adoption is not forced upon the Lodges. We have a Lodge filled up with men whom we presume have some reasoning power.
6059. The law only requires that there shall be a two-thirds vote, and there need be no reason given. Do you think it advisable that such a power should be given? Yes, I think such a power should be given to a Lodge to exercise under certain circumstances, as for instance, where an epidemic arises.
6060. Or where in any other case than that which you mention the same power should be given to a Lodge? No, I don't think that at all. Only under special circumstances should that power be exercised.
6061. Mr. Holdsworth.] Have you ever read the Friendly Societies Act? Yes, but I cannot remember its particular provisions.
6062. Is not that clause to which reference has been made copied from the Friendly Societies Act? Yes, I believe so.
6063. Mr. Abigail.] You have been in existence only twelve or fifteen months? Yes.
6064. You are in no way connected with the Loyal Orange Institution? No; our Society stands aloof from all.
6065. Was your scale of contributions arrived at upon any actuarial calculations? When the Committee were revising the rules they came to the decision that it would not be wise to register any particular amount of contributions, because the amount necessary for the country Lodges varied so much that it could not be be uniformly fixed. It was calculated that about 8d. per week would meet the necessary expenses in the working of a Lodge, and that that amount should be enlarged to 1s. 1d. for members requiring doctor and medicines.

6066. Did you have the assistance of an actuary? No.

6067. Are you of opinion that the Government should exercise close supervision over the working of Friendly Societies? I thought that that was done.

6068. But I mean by the Government appointing an auditor to investigate the accounts? I would not like to answer that question without consideration. As the representative of the Society, what I say would be taken as on behalf of the Society.

6069. I am asking you now to give an opinion based upon some fifteen months' experience of this Society's working, and your general knowledge and experience as a member of other Societies? Well, I think it would be a very good thing if the Government were to undertake the examination of the accounts. I speak, of course, only individually.

6070. Have you studied the Friendly Societies Act sufficiently close to enable you to say whether it answers all the purposes it was passed for? I would not like to give an opinion upon that.

6071. I ask you for your individual opinion? I have not found any difficulty.

6072. Have you had any occasion to visit the Registrar in connection with disputes, or anything of that kind? Only mere squabbles.

6073. No dispute of importance has arisen in your Society? Not as yet.

Mr.
P. Forbes.

F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,

P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,

J. SLADE, Esq.,

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.,

Mr. Robert Dixon Sippe sworn and examined:—

6074. President.] What Society do you represent? Wesleyan or Protestant Union Benefit Society.

6075. What office do you hold? Secretary.

6076. How long have you held that office? Five and a half years.

6077. How long have you been a member of the Society? Seventeen years.

6078. Have you previously held any other office? I occupied the position of auditor for several years, and I was once President one year.

6079. What number of members have you in connection with the Society? At present we have 136.

6080. Have you at any time during your experience had a larger number? No.

6081. What amount of accumulated funds have you? £2,118 2s. 6d. I have furnished the Commission with a return embodying all that information.

6082. How are your funds invested? In the Savings Bank. The whole of the amount, with the exception of £6 which is in the hands of the Treasurer, is invested in the Bank at 5 per cent. interest. We have a mortgage of £800 on a house in Crown-street.

6083. That is a portion of this £2,000 and odd? Yes.

6084. Is the money invested in the names of Trustees? In the names of two Trustees and the Treasurer.

6085. What was the total amount of contributions received during the year? Our year ended on the 21st October; our receipts from contributions, &c., amounted to £301 8s.

6086. Does that include contributions only or the whole of your income? The whole of our income, with the exception of interest.

6087. What amount did you receive on account of interest? £74 15s. 10d.

6088. What was the total amount of your expenditure for sick pay, medical attendance, &c.? The whole amount was £315 17s. 8d.

6089. So that if it had not been for the interest accruing your income would not have been equal to your expenditure? Not by £14.

6090. Was last year an exceptionally heavy year? The previous year we had nothing to pay for funeral allowance, and last year we had to pay £35.

6091. What were your receipts and expenditure last year? Our receipts included a balance in hand of £1,947 6s. 2d.; contributions, fines, &c., gave a total of £301 8s.; interest on deposit in Bank of New South Wales, on £1,755 5s., from September 30th to December 20th, 1880, £23 3s.; interest on deposit in Savings Bank of £1,910 7s. 6d., to September 30th, 1881, £49 2s. 10d.; interest on current account in Savings Bank to September 30th, 1881, £2 10s.; total from interest, £74 15s. 10d. Our expenditure included—funeral allowance, £35; sick allowance, £58 16s. 8d.; superannuation allowance, £26; medical attendance, £93 8s.; druggist's account, £52 8s. 6d.; Secretary's allowance, £30; Treasurer's allowance, £5; Treasurer's bond, £1; rent of room, £4 11s. 6d.; advertising in Advocate, £1 10s.; advertising, doctors, &c., £1 3s.; balance-sheets and printing, £4 6s.; stamps and stationery, £2 14s.; total, £315 17s. 8d. The assets of the Society consist of a cash balance in hand of £2,007 12s. 4d.; and arrears of contributions, £42 8s.; making a total of £2,050 0s. 4d.

6092. What amount has your Society paid during the past five years on account of sick pay? £330 10s.

6093. And how much on account of funeral donations in that time? £297 10s.

6094. What has been the cost of doctor and chemist during the past five years? The doctor has cost £501 13s. 3d., and the chemist £270 10s. 6d.

6095. What has been the cost of management during that period, exclusive of the cost of medicine and doctor? £261 14s. 10d.

6096. Have you any regalia? No.

6097.

Mr.
R. D. Sippe.
14 April, 1882.

Mr.
R. D. Sippe.
14 April, 1882.

6097. What contributions do your members pay per month? 3s. 6d. per month, with a levy of 1s. on the death of a member's wife, and 2s. on the death of a member.
6098. What sick benefits do the members receive? £1 per week during the first six months of sickness, and 10s. per week during the second six months. If the member continues sick beyond that period, he receives a superannuation allowance of 5s. per week for life, or for as long as he remains sick.
6099. What is the funeral donation? It is provided by our rules that upon the death of any member of the Society, his widow, executor (if any), or nearest surviving relative shall be entitled to receive from the funds funeral allowance in accordance with the following scale, viz.:—If he die in any year from after the first year's membership to ten years, £20; from within ten and fifteen years, £25; from within fifteen and twenty years, £30; and from over twenty years, £35, always provided the deceased has been a member for twelve months. After the expiration of twelve months from the date of his entrance, a member of the Society is entitled to receive funeral allowance on the death of his wife in accordance with the following scale:—If she dies in any year after the first year of membership within ten years, £10; if from within ten years and fifteen, £12 10s.; if from within fifteen years and twenty, £15; and if over twenty years' membership, £17 10s., which shall be applied to the purposes of decent interment, &c. It is always provided that if the accumulated funds of the Society should at any time be reduced to less than eight hundred pounds (£800) the funeral allowance shall not exceed in any case £20 on the death of a member, or £10 on the death of a member's wife.
6100. Have you many old members in your Society? I think we have about forty. We have some who have been members for twenty and twenty-five years.
6101. Would they average fifty or sixty years of age? They would average fifty years.
6102. What would be the general average, taking the whole of the members? I should think forty years would be the average.
6103. Are you of opinion that 3s. 6d. per month, with the number of advanced lives that you speak of, is sufficient to ensure the due payment to the members of your Society of the benefits which you promised? We have always been able to do so. We have had under our consideration the proposal to do away with the superannuation allowance, but we did not do it, as we found our funds increasing year by year.
6104. Have you, during your long experience of the working of your Society, found any inconvenience from the operations of the present Friendly Societies Act? None at all.
6105. Have you observed any way in which it might be amended with advantage to the Societies? No, I have not.
6106. Have you any suggestions to make in that direction? No, I have not.
6107. How do you settle matters of dispute? At Committee meetings. If the disputants will not accept the Committee's decision, the matter is referred to arbitration, but I have never known of such a case.
6108. Your Society has never, in your opinion, been in any other than a good financial position? No.
6109. What is the largest amount of funds you have had to your credit? We have now the largest amount we have ever had.
6110. How long has your Society been in existence? Thirty-six years.
6111. Mr. Langley.] In future legislation, do you not think it would be advisable to have the rate fixed definitely, instead of making levies? Well, a great many of the members object to pay the levies. I would rather it remain as it is myself.
6112. Do you not think that it would be more fair that members generally should know exactly what they would have to pay, instead of having these levies made from time to time? Of course members are supposed to read the rules before they join the Society, so that they can know before hand what they will be expected to pay.
6113. Is there anything in your rules stating what the levies shall be? Yest; they are fixed at 2s. and 1s. respectively.
6114. Mr. Rubie.] Would you be in favour of periodical audits by some competent authority outside the Society? I think every three years would be sufficient. To have such an examination every year would be very expensive.
6115. You have had no defalcations in your Society? No.
6116. And you have no Superannuation Fund? No; we have one fund for all purposes, and out of that we pay, in certain cases, a superannuation fee of 5s. per week for life.
6117. Do you not think that a calculation should be made to make these funds have a separate and well-defined basis, instead of leaving them so that levies have to be made now and then when your funds run low? But we do not depend upon the funds running low. There is a fixed levy, unless the fund runs below £100.
6118. You would rather have practically a fixed rate than place your funds on a basis, by actuarial calculation, in which each man should pay according to his age? I think so. I think it would be advisable to leave it as it is.
6119. Mr. Newland.] Do I understand that you are not in favour of a graduated scale of contributions? I am in favour of the present system in our Society—that is, a fixed rate.
6120. And you are not in favour of a graduated scale? No.
6121. Mr. Stale.] Have you ever tried any tables of graduated payments for admission? No, I have not.
6122. Is there any particular age at which you have noticed members of your Society fall sick more than at any other age? No.
6123. Have you noticed any particular age at which they die? Well, we have had deaths in our Society at various ages, between sixty and forty.
6124. Have you ever struck an average with the object of finding the age at which deaths are most frequent? No.
6125. Have any of your members done so? No.
6126. What is the average rate of sickness per member in your Society. I could tell by the balance-sheet, but it would take some time to do it. I think last year it was about 260 days for the whole of the members, which would be hardly two days per member.
6127. You say you have a kind of Superannuation Fund—I presume that after a sick member has received so many weeks sick pay he is put on the superannuation list? Yes.

6128. When they accept the 5s. per week, are they relieved of any further payment to the Society? Yes. They get all the benefits of membership without further contribution.
6129. Do they receive the benefits of doctor and medicine, and funeral allowance upon death? Yes.
6130. Have you any Widow and Orphan Fund? No. We tried twice to establish such a fund, but the members did not seem to care about it.
6131. Do you find any difficulty in sending in the present form of return to the Registrar? No.
6132. What is your opinion as to the efficiency of the present method of sending in returns—I mean does the form impress you as embodying all the information that you think necessary? I think it does. I do not think it could be better than it is. I think that this year they have made it a little better than it was last year.
6133. Then do you not think it could be further improved? I have not thought much about the matter, but I think the present form is pretty clear.
6134. Have you any fault to find with the present Act—does it oppress you in any way? No.
6135. Has anything come under your notice which would render a new Act or further legislation necessary? Nothing in connection with our Society.
6136. Mr. Abigail.] How many members have you admitted during the past year? Seven.
6137. As a rule, do all the members of your Society take advantage of all the benefits whenever they are entitled to them? As a rule they do.
6138. Are there any who do not? There are a few.
6139. You have 136 members, with an average age of forty—have you ever made any calculation as to the contingent liabilities of your Society? No.
6140. Have you ever been under the necessity of going to the Registrar for any matter in connection with your Society? No.
6141. Have you given the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act much consideration? Yes, I have read the Act, and I understand it pretty thoroughly.
6142. Are you of opinion that the Government should exercise a more efficient supervision over the operations of the Friendly Societies than they do at present? Yes, I dare say it would be some advantage if they would exercise greater supervision than at present.
6143. Do you think it would be of advantage to the Societies? It would not be to us, but it might be to others.
6144. Having such a large fund you consider that your Society is tolerably safe? Yes.
6145. Are you adding to your fund year by year? Yes.
6146. Did you add anything last year? Only £14 last year.
6147. Then the contributions did not meet the liabilities? No.
6148. Then, as a matter of fact, if you did not have this large fund you would be going to leeward? If it was not for the large fund no doubt it would just about square matters, but then we have had just the same rules from the beginning, and under these rules the funds have increased.
6149. Do you consider that a tabulated statement should be prepared and published by Government in reference to each Society throughout the Colony? I think it would be a very good thing.
6150. Do you not consider that the Registrar should strictly enforce the penalties against defaulting Societies as stated in the Act? I think it would be to the benefit of the Societies if those penalties were enforced.
6151. You think the enforcement of the penalties would keep them up to the mark? I think so.
6152. Mr. Smith.] Have you many members in arrears? I think that at the present time we have thirty-four.
6153. Have you expelled any of your members? One.
6154. Have you taken action against any of the defaulting members to recover the money? No; we have let them fall out of the Society, or have succeeded in getting the money from them by other means.
6155. But in cases where you have not succeeded in getting the money, have you allowed them to fall out? Well, I think there has been only one case.
6156. Do you approve of that portion of the Act which gives a Society power to summon its members? I think it is a very proper provision.
6157. Have you ever exercised that power in this Society? No.
6158. Notwithstanding the large number that you have in arrears you have never exercised this power? Well, when they are over six months in arrears they have to pay or fall out of the Society.
6159. President.] I understand that you have no suggestions to make? I have none.

Mr.
R. D. Sippe.
14 April, 1882.

Mr. George H. Green sworn and examined:—

6160. President.] What Society do you represent? The Sydney Marine Benefit Society.
6161. How long have you been a member? From the first—about nine years.
6162. What office do you hold? I have been Secretary ever since the first formation of the Society.
6163. How many members have you in connection with the Society? About 370 or 380 financial members.
6164. What were your total receipts from all sources during last year? I do not remember.
6165. Can you tell us from any papers that you have with you? I think I could from the balance-sheet. According to that document the initiation fees for 1881 were £24, and the contributions £939 8s. 6d. Then we have accouchement fees, £31 1s., books of rule 17s., and rent of cottages, £33.
6166. Is that some of the property that you have sold? Yes.
6167. What did the property realize? £3,000, but then there were expenses which reduced it to £2,919 15s.
6168. What was paid on account of sick pay? £477 9s.
6169. What was paid on account of funeral donations? £108 19s.
6170. What was paid on account of doctor and chemist? £379 6s. 6d. Then there was the Secretary's salary, £136 10s., and the salary of the other officers, £39 15s.
6171. What salary does the Secretary get? I find an office and I get £2 2s. per week.
6172. What is the amount that has been paid during the year for printing and advertising? £7 0s. 2d.
6173. Have you any rent to pay? Yes. The rent of the hall where we hold our meetings is £8 a year.

Mr.
G. H. Green.
14 April, 1882.

- Mr. G. H. Green. 6174. What is your total expenditure? Well, we have the income and expenditure made up in connection with different funds—the Sick and Funeral Fund, the Contingent Fund, and the investments in connection with both those funds.
- 14 April, 1882. 6175. Take the sick and funeral, and give the complete income and expenditure? According to the balance-sheet which is made up for the year ended 31st December, 1881, the expenditure on account of the Sick and Funeral Fund was:—Sick pay, £477 9s.; funeral donations, £108 19s.; Secretary's salary and rent of office, £136 10s.; salary to other officers, £39 15s.; doctor's and chemist's fees, £379 6s. 6d.; stationery, advertising, and printing, £7 0s. 2d.; Sydney Infirmary, £10; City rates and repairing cottages, £5 0s. 4d.; members' arrears voted, 12s.; rules and registering of rules, £11 1s.; rent of Society's hall, £8; property sold, valued at £2,000; Auditor's fees, £1 5s.; credit balance, £861 10s. 3d.; total, £4,046 8s. 3d. Against this the income was as follows:—Initiation fees, £24; contributions, £939 8s. 6d.; accouchement fees, £31 1s.; books of rules, 17s.; pence cards, £1 9s. 3d.; from rent of cottages, £33; doctor's and chemist's fees, £4 5s. 6d.; property sold, net, £2,919 15s.; interest £92 12s. Showing a debit balance, irrespective of property, of £58 4s. 9d.
6176. But in this you include the property? Yes; we had a property valued, as I have stated, at £2,000. We make up the total expenditure by including in that expenditure this property worth £2,000. It leaves a debit balance under this fund of £58.
6177. That is taking out the sale of the property? Yes.
6178. What did this property originally cost the Society? £825, or, with expenses, about £830.
6179. And it was sold for £3,000? Yes, less £75 commission and the lawyer's fees.
6180. How is the money that has been realized in this way invested? In the Savings Bank of New South Wales.
6181. Bearing interest? Yes, at 5 per cent.
6182. Then you have a Contingent Fund;—how is that subscribed for? Each member pays 1s. per quarter.
6183. Is it compulsory upon the members to pay that? Every member must pay 1s. per quarter.
6184. What is your income and expenditure on account of that fund? The expenditure on account of the Contingent Fund was:—Demonstration, January 1st, 1881, £99 10s. 10d.; design of Hall, and other expenses connected, £7 7s.; distress gifts, £10 10s.; wreck gratuity, £3; lent to member, £1 5s.; due to a sick member, £3 5s. 6d.; lent to Demonstration Committee, £20; emblems, insignia of offices, £17 3s.; Society's scarfs, £167 19s.; advertising, 13s.; balance credit, £126 4s. 1d.; total, £456 17s. 5d. The income for the year on account of this fund was:—Demonstration, 1881, £146 8s.; contributions, £74 18s.; received for scarfs, £31 5s. 6d.; banked for a sick member, £3 5s. 6d.; lent money returned, 10s.; fines, £2 9s. 6d.; good debts, scarfs, emblems, and rules, £183 16s. 6d.; interest, £14 4s. 5d.; total, £456 17s. 5d.
6185. The investments on account of the Sick and Funeral Fund are:—Savings Bank of New South Wales, £3,542 19s., and in Treasurer's hand, 9s. The investments on account of the Contingent Fund are:—Savings Bank of New South Wales, £175 9s. 8d.; in Treasurer's hand, £9 2s.; good debts, scarfs, rules, and emblems, £183 16s. 6d.; furniture, banner, &c., £50; bringing the total investments up to £3,961 16s. 2d.
6186. Then you have a credit balance of £126 to your Contingent Fund? Yes. Our total credit balance is £987 14s. 4d.; and the credit balance, irrespective of property, is £58 4s. 9d.
6187. To what is this Contingent Fund applied? Well, it is applied to different purposes now, but it was intended for cases of distress, and shipwreck gifts, and picnics and regalia. The other fund we never touch for such purposes.
6188. What contributions do your members pay? 1s. per week.
6189. What benefits do they receive? The rules provide that "All members of the Society shall at the expiration of twelve months from the date of entrance (and who have not been unfinancial during that time) be entitled to and receive in case of sickness the following benefits:—£1 1s. per week for the first six months, and 10s. 6d. per week for the next six months of such illness, and at the expiration of that time (the member having received the aforesaid benefits) the Society shall deal with his case as they deem necessary. Upon the death of any member who has been fully twelve months in the Society, and whose arrears have at no one time amounted to over 14s. during the fourteen weeks previous to his decease, there shall be paid to his widow, child (if of age), executors, or administrators, the sum of £20 as a funeral donation. Any member who has been fully twelve months in the Society, and who has not been in arrears over fourteen weeks, for fourteen weeks previous to the death of his wife, shall, on her decease, receive the sum of £10 as a funeral donation."
6190. Do they get a doctor and chemist? Yes.
6191. What amount of arrears is sufficient to disqualify members from the benefits you have mentioned? Rules 53 and 54 provide that "Any member allowing his arrears to exceed 14s. shall be unfinancial, and not entitled to any benefits of the Society; he shall have no vote or voice in the Society's proceedings, unless satisfactory reasons for allowing his arrears to exceed that amount are given to the Society, and accepted as satisfactory, in meeting assembled"; and that "Any member allowing his contributions to exceed 52s., the Society (by ballot), at a regular meeting, shall have power to expel him, and, if expelled, he shall not be eligible for re-membership until the expiration of six months from the date of expulsion." If a member is out of the Colony when his subscription falls into arrears the rules would not be enforced in this respect as they would be if he were in any part of the Colony.
6192. Do you have a medical examination of the persons seeking admission? Yes.
6193. Do you believe that those examinations are full and satisfactory? The doctors, so far as I know, have been pretty correct.
6194. Has there been any number of persons refused admission on the grounds that they were of unsound health? Many have been refused.
6195. Do you believe that 1s. per week is sufficient to ensure all the benefits that your Society promises? I think so. Our benefits are not so great as those of many Societies. I have no doubt that our Society, with its accumulated capital and a small weekly subscription, would be able to meet its liabilities.
6196. What is the value of your Contingent Fund that you speak of? The value stated in the balance-sheet is £456 17s. 5d., but that is not all money yet.
6197. In what form is it then? A considerable portion of it is regalia.
6198. Is the sum you have mentioned the total value? Yes.

6199. Then if the purchase of landed property that you speak of had not turned out a good investment your Society's position would have been very different to-day? That is perfectly correct.
6200. Your contributions and income from all ordinary sources would not have been sufficient? Well, notwithstanding the sale of the property we would have held our position. We would still have had a balance to our credit.
6201. Have you found any inconvenience in the working of your Society? Not the slightest. We settle our disputes with the aid of the Registrar of Friendly Societies, and we have always found him settle them satisfactorily. Sometimes the Society has lost, but it has been through the Society's own fault.
6202. Then whenever you have gone to the Registrar you have received perfect satisfaction? Yes.
6203. And you have no improvements in the present system to suggest? No.
6204. You have put in a balance-sheet showing your income and expenditure during the last five years? Yes.
6205. Mr. Smith.] The operations of your Society are entirely restricted to seafaring men, are they not? Yes.
6206. A great percentage of your members would be unmarried men? I think that over half our members are married men, but most of them were single when they joined the Society.
6207. Then the claims upon your Society for medical benefits would not be so great, seeing that half your members are unmarried, as they would be upon other Societies? Certainly, that is where we save a great deal.
6208. That is one strong point in your Society? It is.
6209. Have you had many of your members leave the Society? Very many in the first year. The next year we kept our own. Most of the members we lost the first year were single members. We had many cases of seamen going away and never coming back again. That is another strong point. Some of them just pay their initiation fee and a few weeks' contributions, then go away, and never come back again. However, during the last six or seven years we have pretty well kept our own in point of numbers.
6210. Do you lose many members in the way you speak of? Not at the present time.
6211. Then that state of things did not continue for more than three or four years? No; we lost most of the members during the first two or three years. We have, however, lost a good many in that way; but most of those who join us now are settled down in Sydney.
6212. They are seafaring men engaged on the coast? Yes.
6213. Then, in the early history of your Society, you made a considerable amount of money from the fact that a large number of your members left the Society? Yes.
6214. Have you any difficulty in working rule 76? Not at the present time; we did have.
6215. Is it still working in the same way? In the same way. These are new rules.
6216. So that all the rights and privileges that would accrue to one of your members under this rule are now given without difficulty? Without the least difficulty.
6217. Have you taken any cases to Mr. Oliver for his advice or decision? Three or four. We have frequently gone to him for advice. I think there was only one real case of dispute where he had to be paid for his trouble.
6218. If a member has a dispute, and is not satisfied with the Society's decision, you invariably refer him to Mr. Oliver? Yes.
6219. Have you had many cases of that kind? Only four or five.
6220. Have the members been satisfied with the decision? So far as I know.
6221. What charge was made? In the case of a dispute about a person receiving a funeral donation we paid Mr. Oliver £2. He went to a great deal of trouble and made that charge. That was, I think, the only case.
6222. In whose interest was Mr. Oliver called in? In the member's interest.
6223. Was the member charged with Mr. Oliver's fee? No, the Society paid the fee.
6224. You have had a number of demonstrations and picnics in connection with your Society? Yes.
6225. Have you lost by them? We have made a considerable amount by them.
6226. In every case? In two cases out of nine we have lost.
6227. Then on the whole you have been successful so far as those demonstrations were concerned? Very successful.
6228. Is the money thus made placed to the credit of this Contingent Fund? Yes.
6229. No portion of the contribution of 1s. per member per week is in any way touched for this purpose? No.
6230. How is your Contingent Fund made up—by gifts? Principally by the contribution of 1s. per quarter from each member.
6231. But apart from that, do you never receive gifts or donations from persons or from shipping companies? No. We never received a farthing in that way.
6232. Mr. Rubie.] You have got a very large fund in hand, I believe? Yes.
6233. What would it average per member supposing that you had a dissolution? I never made that calculation. I have already given the amount of the fund, and there are about 369 members, so that the calculation could be easily made.
6234. What is the amount of the funds in the total? £3,961 16s. 2d.
6235. I see you have a provision in one of your rules that if the funds go below £500 you can make a levy to bring the funds up to that amount again. I refer to rule 51, which provides that "If at any time the funds of this Society shall fall below £500, it shall be in the power of any regular meeting to make a levy to meet any deaths, until the funds increase above £500"? Certainly we could make a levy for paying funeral donations until the fund was again brought up to £500.
6236. Have you had much difficulty with members going on the funds and remaining on them, or, as it is generally called, malingering? No, we have had very little difficulty in that way. I do not think we have been imposed upon greatly.
6237. Has anything occurred to you to suggest with a view to future legislation on the subject of these Friendly Societies? There is nothing that I have thought of, except that the doctors should be made a little more strict.
6238. Would you be in favour of punishing a person criminally for taking the funds, or simply deprive him of all benefits. I could not answer that question. It would be impossible for me to know whether a man was sick or not.

Mr.
G. H. Green.
14 April, 1882.

- Mr. G. H. Green, 14 April, 1882
6239. But you have some governing body to determine the question? Of course, if we found a man trying to scheme on the funds we would go to the medical man.
6240. And you would act on his report? Yes.
6241. If the medical man reported that the member was scheming, what would you do? I would strike him off the sick pay.
6243. Would you be in favour of expelling such a person as that? If it was a flagrant case, I think I would.
6244. Mr. Slade.] It is provided in your Society that in cases of dispute between a member and the Society the member shall choose whether he refers the dispute to a Committee of the Society or the Registrar. Rule 55 says:—"If any dispute shall arise between any member, or persons claiming through or under a member, or under the rules of the Society of whatsoever kind, shall be referred to the Committee of Management, or otherwise to the Registrar of Friendly Societies; the complainant to have the option of choice by which his or her dispute shall be decided, and the decision so made by the Committee or Registrar (whichever decides the dispute) shall be binding and conclusive on all parties without appeal." Have you ever had occasion to use that rule? On one occasion, but we have gone to the Registrar voluntarily several times.
6245. Do you not think that it would be better, instead of appealing to the Registrar, to have an Arbitration Board consisting of one or more members chosen from several Societies, and to be the final board of arbitration, and thereby prevent Society disputes being dragged before the law courts? I believe it would be a capital plan.
6246. Mr. Abigail.] I find from this balance-sheet that in 1877 your gain was £9 19s. 8d, and in 1878, it was £10 and some few shillings, but in 1879 there was a loss of £32 9s. 10d. Are you aware of that fact? Yes; I could not say exactly from memory whether you have got the two funds together or not.
6247. In 1879 you lost more than you had gained in the two previous years? Yes, but at the present time we have taken a good deal of expenditure out of the Main Fund and put it on the Contingent Fund.
6248. In 1881, I find that your expenditure proper under the Sick and Funeral Fund was £1,183 13s., and your receipts for the same year under the Sick and Funeral Fund were £1,034 1s. 3d., showing a loss on that fund in one year of £149 12s. Are you aware of that fact; have you looked at this balance-sheet to see if it was so? I could not say without examining the accounts again.
6249. If that be true, do you think, in view of an actual loss, that the 1s. per week is sufficient to secure to your members the benefits that you promise under your rules? I imagine so. You can hardly judge by the accounts for one year only.
6250. Taking 1879 and 1880, your loss amounts to over £180, and that ought to be sufficient to enable you to come to a conclusion whether 1s. per week is sufficient to meet the legitimate expenditure of your Society. If you had not had that property, and the profits arising from its sale, what would the position of your Society have been? If we take the two funds together we have got a credit balance for the whole period. We could take from the Contingent Fund at any time if it had happened to be necessary, and thus relieve the Main Fund.
6251. But apart from the interest you receive, what would be the financial position of your Society? Apart from the interest, I am suspicious that the funds would not bear the demands made upon them, because we have more liabilities than any other Society in New South Wales.
6252. Then you do not believe that apart from the interest the contribution of 1s. per week per member would be sufficient to guarantee the large benefits which your Society promises? I do not believe it would.
6253. I see you pay your Secretary £136 10s.? That includes rent of office.
6254. Are you of opinion that the supervision exercised at present by the Government over the Friendly Societies is sufficient? I have not given that matter consideration.
6255. Do you believe that the Government should enforce sending in correct annual returns by the Societies? I understood that that was always done.
6256. Has your Society always done it? Every year.
6257. Have you sent in quinquennial returns? No, we have not done that.
6258. You never get returns from the Registrar? No.
6259. How is the audit carried out in your Society? Three members are elected.
6260. You never have a public accountant? No.
6261. Have the audits been found to be substantially correct? There might be a little discrepancy now and then, a few shillings, but nothing more.
6262. Have any of your officers at any time misappropriated funds? Never.

Mr. Otto Murer sworn and examined:—

- Mr. O. Murer, 14 April, 1882
6263. President.] What Society do you represent? The German Benefit Association.
6264. How long has your Society been in existence? About thirty years—since 1853.
6265. How long have you been a member? Fourteen years.
6266. What offices have you held? I have been on the Committee from time to time, and I have been Secretary since February last.
6267. How many members have you? 115 at present.
6268. Have you ever had a larger number of members? Five or six years ago we had a larger number, as many as 160.
6269. Have you admitted many members during the past year? Not more than five or six.
6270. What is the total value of your accumulated funds? We have about £1,300 in the Bank. There is the value of some furniture as well.
6271. What money is in the Savings Bank? It is in the Bank of New South Wales, part being current account and part on fixed deposit.
6272. What amount of money did you receive last year in subscriptions? During the first half of the year we received £241, and during the second half £198 15s.
6273. What was paid in sick pay during the year? £86.
6274. What on account of funeral donations during the whole year? £34 12s. 6d. 6275.

Mr. O. Murer.

14 April, 1882.

6275. What on account of doctor? £115 10s.
6276. What on account of chemist? £80 12s. 2d.
6277. What was your total expenditure? £179 for the half-year.
6278. You have supplied the Commission with a return showing your receipts and expenditure during the past five years? Yes.
6279. What contributions do your members pay? 1s. per member is paid by each member, except when a death occurs, and then each member pays 6d. per week extra.
6280. Only in case of the death of a member? Yes. The rules state:—"The Society pays for the funeral of a member who has paid six months' subscription, and also for that of his wife and children. The widow of a deceased member, provided that the latter has paid twelve months' subscription, receives the sum of £20, which expenditure shall be met by an extra weekly fee of 6d. from each member for three months. Members having belonged uninterruptedly twenty years to the Society are free from the above extra weekly fee of 6d.; and the widows or children of deceased members who have belonged uninterruptedly twenty-five years to the Society receive an assistance of £25."
6281. You have no branch Lodges? No.
6282. Your members are mostly Germans? All Germans, except a few natives of German parentage.
6283. Are you registered under the Friendly Societies Act? Yes.
6284. Do all your members have to pass a medical examination before they are admitted? Yes.
6285. Do you believe your medical officers make a sufficiently strict examination? I have never heard any complaint.
6286. What is the average age of your members? Ranging from thirty-eight to forty; that would be the average. We do not admit anybody over forty-five.
6287. Have you many members over forty-five? Yes, among the old members; there are about a dozen of them, I think. Some of them have been members for twenty years, and there are some among them who even started the Society.
6288. Do you believe that a subscription of 1s. per week is sufficient? Yes; we find we can work very well on that amount.
6289. Have you found the existing Friendly Societies Act afforded all the necessary protection in carrying on your Society? I never heard any complaint.
6290. Have you anything to suggest in regard to future legislation? We find the present Act works pretty fairly. I put the matter before the Committee at the last meeting with a view to my examination here to-day and it was considered that there were no suggestions that our Society could make.
6291. Your Society would not permit any other person than a German or a person of German extraction to become a member? Yes, certainly we would; but all members must submit to the rule that "the German language alone shall at all periods, now and to come, be used at the meetings. All minutes (protocols), speeches, discussions, &c., must be made in that language, and proposals or petitions in any other language can receive no attention."
6292. Mr. Smith.] Have you had many disputes in your Society? I do not remember one, beyond an occasional grumble at the payment of the levy of the 6d.
6293. Many of your members have left the Society? Of course, some of them have died or gone away.
6294. That was in the early history of the Society that you lost so many members? We have lost not more than four or five during the last two years.
6295. You are not connected with any Association in Germany? No, we are quite independent.
6296. Members who marry after their admission into the Society have to pay an additional fee? The reason for that rule I could never make out, except that if a member gets married he may have a family, and so the chemist is under no fixed contract. A single member is not so likely to require medicine as a member with a family.
6297. Then you have no fixed contract with your chemist? No; the chemist simply charges for all the medicine which he supplies to members and deducts 33 per cent. from the gross amount. We find that it works much better than the other system, and ensures the members receiving a better quality of medicine. Under the contract system the chemists supplied just as little as they could. The medicine account now comes to really less than under the fixed contract and we have no complaints about the inferior quality of the medicine.
6298. Mr. Abigail.] You think 1s. a week for each member is sufficient to meet all the legitimate expenditure of your Society? Yes.
6299. I find from the return which you have furnished for the last five years that your income has been £2,453 13s., and your expenditure £2,355 12s. 7d., leaving a credit balance of £98. Do you think a gain of £98 during five years is sufficient to meet the accruing liabilities of your Society? We have hitherto found that the present payment of 1s. was sufficient to make both ends meet, because whenever there has been any extra expenditure, such as the death of a member, it has been defrayed by the extra levy. It was suggested some time ago that the weekly contribution should be raised and the 6d. levy done away with altogether, but the members preferred to take their chance of having to pay an occasional extra 6d. per week than to pay a fixed contribution of 15d. per week.
6300. During the last year your loss was £35, do you know that? At times we have had a heavy loss, and at other times we have had a considerable gain. If there is any deficiency at any time it is only through an unusual number of deaths. For instance, we have had three deaths in one half-year, and that was something unusual. Of course that would swell the expenditure compared with the income. For years we had no deaths at all, or only one in a year.
6301. How many members were initiated during last year? Seven or eight.
6302. Have you ever made any calculation as to how much contingent liability accrues to each member each year? No, we have not made out that calculation; but as I have been in my present position only three months I have not had time to take that work in hand.
6303. Have you any doubt that there is a contingent liability accruing as the members increase in age? I am quite certain of it, unless we get younger members to make up for those that die off.
6304. Have you studied the Friendly Societies Act? Well, I have looked through it, but not being so well up in the English language I could not study it sufficiently well to make suggestions for improvements. As far as the working of our Society goes it meets all our requirements at present.
6305. Are you in favour of strict Government supervision over the Friendly Societies? Well, it would be immaterial to us, but I think it would be better if there was some control over the Societies.

Mr. O. Murer. 6306. For the examination of their accounts? We send in a report every year, from which our accounts can be examined.

14 April, 1882. 6307. You would not object to a Government officer every year examining your accounts? It would give some trouble, because all our books are kept in German. Any of our members has the right to examine the books.

6308. Have any of the members of your Society misappropriated any of the funds? No.

6309. Mr. Slade.] How do you explain that part of the 9th rule which states that the Treasurer "shall receive an allowance of $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. from the annual income to cover small possible losses"? The Treasurer receives no salary, and this is to compensate him for loss of time.

6310. The return that you have furnished contains no entry of the amount paid for that purpose? The amount for the last half-year was £2 19s.

The Commission then adjourned until Monday, 17th April.

MONDAY, 17 APRIL, 1882.

F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.
E. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.
J. GELDING, Esq.,

P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
J. SLADE, Esq.,
W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. James King sworn and examined:—

Mr. J. King. 6311. Mr. Abigail.] You are —? The Secretary of the St. Peter's Burial Society.

6312. Have you a copy of your rules? Yes (rules produced).

17 April, 1882. 6313. How long have you been Secretary? About five months.

6314. Were you Secretary at a previous period? Yes.

6315. In what year? 1874 or 1875.

6316. How long have you been a member? Ever since the Society started, in 1860.

6317. Do you give any benefits beyond the burial fees? No, only a bonus for members who have been in the Society for ten years. One of the rules provides that "the funds of this Society shall not be converted to any other purpose than as follows:—For paying donations at death of its members and working expenses, and two guineas (£2 2s.) be paid to the Sydney Infirmary annually, and a bonus to its members, as follows: For every adult member for every ten years' membership, the sum of two pounds (£2), to take effect from the commencement of this Society." The objects of the Society are "to raise and perpetuate a fund or funds by entrance fees, fines, subscription, levies, and interest on capital, for ensuring a sum of money to be paid on the death of its members, and division of profits," according to the rule just mentioned.

6318. Is your Society registered? Yes.

6319. What amount of subscriptions is paid by your members? Every member of this Society has to contribute to the funds as follows:—Each child under ten years of age, one half-penny per week; ten years and under sixteen, 1d. per week; over sixteen, 1½d. per week.

6320. And what are the benefits secured by these payments? Any member who is entitled to benefits from this Society, legally having a child born, has to register the child to the Secretary; in the event of the child dying within one month from registration, the member is entitled to the sum of £1 10s.; exceeding one month to ten years, £3; exceeding ten years to sixteen, £5; exceeding sixteen years, £8. To be entitled to these benefits all members must belong to the Society six months.

6321. What is the number of members who are now entitled to benefits when death occurs? I cannot say exactly, but I should say close on 400, old and young.

6322. What is the amount of your funds? £126 13s. 0½d.

6323. Do I understand that the parent secures the benefits for his children by paying the contributions you have mentioned? Yes.

6324. Then the parent only is enrolled as a member, and not the children? No, both parents and children.

6325. Could a parent enrol certain of his children and not the others? The parent is not compelled to enrol all his children if he does not like, but the parents must enter the Society themselves before they can have their children entered.

6326. What is the scale of entrance fees? The entrance fee for each member is according to the following scale:—Each child under ten years of age, 6d.; ten years, and not exceeding sixteen, 1s.; sixteen to twenty, 2s.; twenty to twenty-five, 3s.; twenty-five to thirty, 4s.; thirty to thirty-five, 6s.; thirty-five to forty, 8s. No persons are admitted above the age of forty years, unless they comply with the following: That they pay the yearly contribution for each year, or part of the year they are over forty years of age, together with the usual entrance fee.

6327. What is the usual average death rate of your Society? I do not know, but we have very few deaths compared to the number of our members.

6328. You have received from this Commission a return to be filled up? Yes.

6329. What were your total receipts last year? That I could not tell.

6330. Do you not prepare an annual balance-sheet? We used to do so, but since I have been away from the Secretaryship it has not been done. I went away about five years ago.

6331. Then you have not had any balance-sheet prepared during the last five years? I have not seen any.

6332. Do you ever send in returns to the Registrar? For two or three years we did, but that was all. Mr. J. King.
6333. When did you cease doing so? When I went away up country. 17 April, 1882.
6334. Then I understand that during the last four or five years, while you have not been Secretary, there have been no balance-sheets prepared, and no returns furnished to the Registrar? I believe that that is the case.
6335. Who prepared the returns when they were sent in? Three of us did.
6336. How is this sum of £426 invested? Most of it is in the Savings Bank. There is £403 7s. 1d. in the Savings Bank.
6337. Are you aware whether any investigation into the affairs of the Society, to ascertain properly its liabilities and assets, has taken place since 1860? We always make the books up every quarter.
6338. The books of receipts and expenditure? Yes.
6339. Did you ever give any consideration as to the contingent liability of the Society, based on a statement of the number of the children enrolled? No, we never take the numbers. We put down the names of those that join, their ages and when they join.
6340. Then in the 400 members enrolled you include children and all? Yes.
6341. The return you sent in to this Commission sets forth your receipts and expenditure under different headings during the last five years? Yes.
6342. President.] Have you had much occasion to refer to the Friendly Societies Act in the working of your Society? No; I never look at it. I am not well up in Societies at all. This is the only Society that I have ever belonged to.
6343. Have you never had occasion to go to the Registrar? No.
6344. Has any case arisen in connection with your Society in which the officers have misappropriated any funds? There was one case, a good bit ago.
6345. What was the extent of the misappropriation? £5.
6346. What position did the officer hold? He was surety for the Treasurer.
6347. How did he become possessed of the money? The Treasurer did not pay it.
6348. Then it was the Treasurer who used the money? Yes.
6349. Did you take any legal proceedings? No.
6350. Then the Society lost the money? Yes.
6351. Did you expel the member? He resigned.
6352. Mr. Gelding.] Do I understand you to say that you admit anybody to insure their lives, as well as children, up to thirty-five or forty on payment of 8s.? Yes; that payment is the entrance fee.
6353. Can people insure their children for the Burial Fund at any age? Yes, they can join the Society at any age.
6354. Do they receive the benefits, or only children? Yes, they receive benefits if they are in six months.
6355. Then it is not simply a Burial Fund for children, but everybody that likes can join? Yes.
6356. Can you give the Commission any information as regards the expenditure during the last few years? A few years ago we had a good amount of money, and the members hardly knew what to do with it, so they took £300 out of the Bank and divided it amongst themselves.
6357. What is the amount paid for burials last year? I could not tell you without going through the books.
6358. Do you not keep a regular debtor and creditor account? I could not tell you very easily; these amounts are not down in one column in our book (produced).
6359. Is that the way these accounts have been kept for years? Yes.
6360. And do you consider that a proper way? That is the way we keep the books.
6361. Well, could you give any estimate at all of the amount of money you paid last year for burials? I could not. I have been Secretary only for five months.
6362. How often do you balance your books? Every three months.
6363. Are they signed by Auditors? Yes.
6364. Then cannot you give us the result from the Auditors' balance? I can only see £3 paid for the last quarter.
6365. What were your receipts last quarter? £51 9s. 5 $\frac{1}{4}$ d.
6366. How much do you get a quarter for your duties as Secretary? £1.
6367. What is the meaning of this—"Messrs. Percival & King, making up balance-sheet, £1"? That is what we got for sending in the return to this office.
6368. What is your opinion, as a business man, as Secretary, of the manner of keeping this book? I think it is right enough. It shows all the money that has been paid in—everything that has been paid.
6369. Do you think that this is the proper form of keeping accounts of a Burial Society, or any other Society? That is the book as I got it from the last Secretary.
6370. Mr. Percival was Secretary to your Society? Yes.

Mr. William Dike sworn and examined:—

6371. President.] You are—? Secretary of the Sydney United Labourers' Benefit Society. Mr. W. Dike; 6372. Is your Society registered? Yes. 17 April, 1882.
6373. Under the Friendly Societies Act? Yes.
6374. How long has it been in existence? It was first established on December 13th, 1861.
6375. How long have you been Secretary? Close on two years.
6376. What is the number of members you have? 394.
6377. How many of them are unfinancial? At the end of 1881 there were 280 financial and 114 unfinancial.

6378.

- Mr. W. Dike. 6378. What is the amount of contribution? 3d. per week.
- 17 April, 1882. 6379. In return for that what benefits do you give? We give in the event of a member meeting with an accident 10s. per week for twelve weeks, that is if he has been twelve months in the Lodge. The rules provide further, that "the payment upon the death of a member shall be seven pounds (£7), but if he should be a good contributing member for five years the payment shall be ten pounds (£10), and if he continues a good contributing member for seven years, it shall be fifteen pounds (£15); and further, that the payment upon the death of a member's wife shall be £7; but before any member is entitled to his wife's funeral donation he shall register her name to the Funeral Fund, for which he shall be charged a fee of 1s."
6380. How is your Society managed? By a President, Vice-President, Secretary, Minute Secretary, and Directors.
6381. What was the cost of management during last year? £94 16s; but that is really an extra cost, because we initiated a scheme of voting by ballot, which ran into a considerable amount of money; we also gave £10 to the Infirmary; and through the holidays coming on we had the last quarter's salary included in the one quarter, which will make next half-year's accounts so much less.
6382. What amount has been paid for accidents during last year? £33 3s. 4d.
6383. What amount has been paid during the last five years? £142 12s. 9d.
6384. How much on account of death during the last year? £7.
6385. And during the last five years? £94.
6386. You have no doctor or chemist? No.
6387. Have your members any regalia? No.
6388. What is the amount of your accumulated funds? £956 2s. 1d.
6389. How is that invested? In the Savings Bank.
6390. In the hands of Trustees? Yes, three.
6391. What amount of money did you receive on account of subscriptions last year? £188 3s. 6d.
6392. Is that your total income? No. We had initiation fees to the extent of £39 9s., and interest upon the money, £93 13s. 4d. £274 7s. 10d. is the total amount of our income.
6393. What are your initiation fees? 2s. 6d., and if a member runs out and wishes to be admitted again he has to pay 5s.
6394. Is there any medical examination, or any limit as to age? No.
6395. Have you found any difficulty in the working of the Society? No.
6396. Have you experienced any attempts at imposition? Well, we have some very stringent rules, enabling us to deal with cases of that kind. I might also state that any member getting four weeks in arrears is fined 6d., and if his arrears should exceed eight weeks he runs out of the Society by arrears.
6397. Do you have many members leave the Society? Yes, through carelessness.
6398. What number left the Society during last year? Last quarter there were forty-six who had left.
6399. How many were admitted last year? 230.
6400. Have you found the Friendly Societies Act give you all the protection necessary to secure your funds and the due payment of the benefits you promise? Yes.
6401. Have you anything to suggest that might be of service in future legislation? No.
6402. And you are perfectly satisfied with the working of the Friendly Societies Act? As far as our Society is concerned, I have never heard any complaint.
6403. Did the Registrar demur to registering these rules? There was only one rule he demurred to, and that had reference to the funeral donations. He suggested the propriety of increasing the weekly contributions, but when I showed him the very stringent rules for compelling members to keep up their payments he saw the force of the argument and consented to the rules.
6404. Then you are of opinion that a contribution of 3d. per week is sufficient to ensure payment of the benefits you promise? Yes. In respect to age there is no limit, but the very nature of the occupation prevents any old man from joining. It is only able-bodied healthy men who could get a living at the calling.
6405. Mr. Smith.] Your members have to provide themselves with a doctor? Yes.
6406. Your laws demand a certificate in the case of sick members? Yes, from any duly qualified practitioner. At the Infirmary, last September, they refused to sign a certificate because we never made any donation, and we, recognizing the reasonableness of the objection, immediately voted £10 as a donation, and £6 to St. Vincent's Hospital.
6407. The members themselves have to pay for these certificates? Yes.
6408. Have you had any disputes with your members in Lodge arising out of Lodge matters? No.
6409. And you have never had to appeal to the Registrar? No; only on one occasion when I had some doubts as to the legality of an election.
6410. Mr. Abigail.] Has any of the funds you have now in hand arisen from the sale of properties? No.
6411. Merely accumulated funds? Yes.
6412. During the last five years, has the death rate been very heavy? Last year was the heaviest we have had for the last five years. Three old members died, and they were entitled to £15 each.
6413. Does the last period of five years bear favourable comparison with the previous? Yes.
6414. For the last five years you have added to your capital as subscriptions or contributions £420 19s., or, in other words, you have nearly doubled it in that time? Yes; I think it has more than doubled.
6415. Are there any members who meet with accidents who do not take their benefits? Yes; some die, and some are bad on the books.
6416. Are there any members good on the books who meet with accidents, but do not, in consequence of their circumstances, take the benefits? No; they all take the benefits.
6417. When these rules were registered, did you pay any fee? £1 1s.
6418. Do you give any money in the way of assistance? Yes, in the shape of distress gifts. There is a rule providing that "Should any member be incapable through sickness or other infirmity from performing any work or labour, as to require relief from the funds of this Society, the said member or members must be in compliance before his case can be entertained; and should he be clear on the books there shall be a Committee called of five from the Pence Book in rotation to investigate the member's or members' case. The Committee shall submit their report to the Lodge, which, if satisfactory, they shall vote any sum of money not exceeding 30s., and the said member or members shall not apply for further relief for three months from time of receiving the first."
6419. Have you had any cases of officers misappropriating funds? No.

Mr. W. Dike.
17 April, 1882.

6420. I suppose you have studied the Friendly Societies Act? Yes, so far as it applied to our own Society.
6421. Do you send in annual returns? Yes.
6422. How is the audit carried on? By three Auditors, quarterly.
6423. As a rule, do you find those audits correct? As a rule, yes.
6424. Do you think it would be any extra security to the Society to have their audit supervised by a Government officer? It just depends whether the members are competent to do it themselves.
6425. Would you favour a scheme of that kind in any future legislation? I do not think so, because in our own Society the members are so zealous that hardly anything can go wrong.
6426. But supposing it had been disclosed that many of these audits were unreliable, would it not be to the benefit of the Societies generally that they should have their accounts supervised by a competent officer? I cannot see what benefit that would be if you have in the Societies men who have a knowledge of accounts, and who are actuated by a sense of duty. If they were men who suspected each other, of course it would be better to have an independent person to supervise them. If I were an Auditor I should take it as an insult to have my audits supervised.
6427. Has your Society sent in a quinquennial return to the Registrar? No, we never do that.
6428. The Friendly Societies Act sets that forth? We have never been called upon to do that.
6429. Have you any doubt that it would add to the reliable character of the accounts of Societies if those accounts were supervised by a Government officer? If you had an outside party called in like that I do not think you would get men to act as Auditors. I should not like to think I was to be questioned and looked upon with suspicion.
6430. What fee is paid? The Auditors get 5s. each.
6431. Do you pay any of your other officers? The Chairman gets £8 a year, the Vice-Chairman £1 a quarter, the Minute Secretary £2, and I get £4 a quarter.
6432. Mr. Greville.] Is your Society composed entirely of labouring men? Yes.
6433. Do you hold your meetings in a public-house? Yes, I am very sorry to say we do. We have tried very hard to discourage the practice of meeting in an hotel, but up to the present time we have found it impossible.
6434. Do the majority of the members object to removing, or is it that you have not been able to find a suitable place elsewhere? We could not find a suitable place.
6435. Do you consider it objectionable to meet in a public-house? Most decidedly I do.
6436. Would you explain how it is that as there is no limit the practice has not proved prejudicial? Simply because only strong able-bodied men are able to follow the occupation. We do not encourage or ask any other persons to join us.
6437. Would you reject a man not in the best of health? No; we do not encourage it, although as long as a man is of good character we do not reject him.
6438. Do you find aged men seeking admission into your Society, seeing that they are debarred from entering other Societies if they are above the age of forty-five? Anything of that kind we should object to, and would use our own discretion about admitting them as members. We have refused members most decidedly.
6439. Mr. Holdsworth.] With reference to the question asked by Mr. Greville, is it not that the mere fact of your members belonging to the class of builder's labourers is in itself a sufficient guarantee that they are healthy, so long as they are capable of following their trade? Yes.
6440. Mr. Greville.] Is not your Society a shifting one—is there not a large proportion of your members who only remain in the Society a comparatively brief period? We had an exodus to Melbourne and Queensland, and a good number ran out through not keeping their payments up. If we allowed them an indefinite time to run no man would be able to keep the books.
6441. The floating portion of your Society is larger than that of other Societies? Most decidedly.
6442. And that may have contributed largely to your increased funds? That is really the secret of our profits. In five years 594 persons left the Society through arrears.
6443. Mr. Langley.] Looking at rule 17 of your Constitution, which says that any person of good character and sound health may be admitted as a subscribing member, do you think that alone is a sufficient guarantee for your members, provided that they were not of the kind that might be termed shifting population? Yes. I doubt if you could get a proposer and seconder for a person who was not in the trade.
6444. But may not a man be in a very dangerous state of health and not even know it himself? Yes, of course that is possible.
6445. A man might be suffering from heart disease? Then he could not carry a hod.
6446. In point of fact there is no precaution taken, and in the absence of a medical examination you could not guarantee that only persons of sound health were admitted? No.
6447. In the return which you sent in to this Commission, do you not see that you do not show in any place what your total receipts were? No; I did not exactly understand where to put the figures—in what column.
6448. Then if such mistakes as those can arise in an important document like that, do you not see that there is some force in Mr. Abigail's reference to the necessity for having the Society's accounts examined by a competent public officer? A mere clerical error of that kind would not convince me that it is necessary to have Government supervision.
6449. Would you be in favour of a board of arbitration consisting of the representatives of the different Societies to whom would be referred matters of dispute? I see no objection.
6450. Mr. Slade.] If they have any testimonials in your Society, does the cost come from the general funds or from the subscriptions of individual members? We have not had any.
6451. Do your rules contain a statement of the amount of the salaries? No; the rules state that the salaries shall be at the discretion of the members. "That all officers connected with this Society be paid such remuneration for their services as a majority of the members present may determine upon; and that no member shall be eligible for election to any office in this Society unless he be a good contributing member for twelve months, and be duly qualified to discharge the duties thereof, and clear of all fines in accordance with these laws."
6452. Mr. Gelding.] What salary do you receive? £16 a year.
6453. And what do you pay your Auditors? 5s. each Auditor.
6454. Then the Auditors have to sign the accounts? Yes.

- Mr. W. Dike. 6455. This book (produced) is a cash-book, is it not? Yes.
6456. The Auditors are supposed to check and sign the cash accounts? Yes.
- 17 April, 1882. 6457. Can you explain how it is that you are the only party who has signed the majority of these balance-sheets? That is only a private account of my own.
6458. Is that the only document they sign? Yes; it is signed by the Auditors.
6459. Do you consider that a fly-sheet like this, which may be lost, is a proper document for an Auditor to sign? Well, I should say so. At all events it has proved sufficient.
6460. In the way of book-keeping, do you consider that cash-book of yours, when only sometimes signed by the Auditor, and a fly-sheet, a proper way of keeping the debtor and creditor accounts of the Lodge? Yes, because when that balance-sheet is presented to the Lodge and accepted the money immediately passes into the hands of the Trustees.
6461. Are you a tradesman? No, a labourer.
6462. What is the maximum amount which the Treasurer is allowed to retain in his possession? Well, there is no particular check on the Treasurer. The present Treasurer is not keeping more than £10, and he has given a bond of £70.
6463. I see that everybody who does anything for the Society gets paid? Yes.
6464. I see by your cash-book that the Treasurer, for loss of time, received a special sum of money? That was for going over to Balmain to pay a man who had met with an accident.
6465. I presume you know that the success of your Society entirely depends upon this great quantity of members who join you and then drop out of the Society? No; that would be assuming that the initiatory money was the source of the Society's success.
6466. But what would be your position if everybody kept in? I believe we would be better off than we are now. Last year I had on the books 460 members.
6467. Out of that number you lost? Forty-seven; while if those forty-seven members had continued to pay their 3d. per week we should have been a great deal better off.
6468. You would have to take the consequences of death or accident among those forty-seven members? Yes, that is possible.
6469. What is about the average attendance of members on your meeting nights? Well, they just attend often enough to keep from being fined.
6470. Do you allow distress gifts to those who through unforeseen circumstances go out of compliance or meet with an accident? The man must be good on the books.
6471. What is the amount? 30s.
6472. I see there is an entry of £3 for compiling the balance-sheet, who received that? I did.
6473. What is the meaning of this 15s. for the Financial Secretary's loss of time? Having to go to the Registrar's on two or three occasions, to go to the Post Office to change post office orders received from members in the country, and loss of time in other ways.
6474. Mr. Smith.] Your Treasurer has to give a bond of £70? Two members, who meet with the approbation of the Society, and who must be known to be worth the money, have to give a bond of £35 each.
6475. Did it ever occur to you to take a fidelity or guarantee bond? No; we are very particular, and have to be thoroughly satisfied with the bondsmen.
6476. Mr. Abigail.] Are questions decided by the will of the majority? Yes, a mere majority is required.
6477. President.] Then I understand you have no particular fault to find with the working of the existing Friendly Societies Act? No.
6478. And you have no recommendation to make with a view to future legislation? No.
6479. I suppose you never really studied the Act with a view to suggesting amendments? No, I have not.
6480. So far as your own Society is concerned, you have found no serious difficulties arising under the present law? None.
6481. You have no proposals of any kind to lay before the Commission? None.
6482. You have no further explanations to give? No.
6483. And no addition to make to the evidence you have already given? None.

The Commission then adjourned till Friday, 21st April.

FRIDAY, 21 APRIL, 1882.

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. Augustine A. Fitzpatrick sworn and examined:—

6484. President.] What Society do you represent? Court Royal Oak, Ancient Order of Foresters.
6485. What office do you hold? Secretary at present.
6486. How long have you held the office of Secretary? This is the second time I have been through the Chair; I was Secretary seven years ago for three years, and resigned to go through the office of Chief Ranger. I have been about three and a half years Secretary now.
6487. How long have you been a member? Eleven years.
6488. And how long has it been in existence? Since 1847.
6489. And have you any copies of the rules or by-laws? Yes; I have brought a dozen (produced).
6490. What number of members have you? According to the last yearly balance-sheet the number was 187 financial, and there were fourteen or fifteen unfinancial. There are 199 on the books now.
6491. What was the total amount of receipts from all sources? We were pretty lucky; we received £622 17s. 9d., and the expenses were £583 4s. 8d., and independent of that we were allowed £80 10s. 4d. by the Savings Bank.
6492. On money invested? There is a deposit of £1,700 in the Bank. We had a total value of £1,865 10s. 1d. at the end of the year.
6493. What did you pay on account of medical attendance and chemist? Doctor, £137 18s., and chemist, £79 19s. 8d.
6494. What did you pay on account of funeral donations? £120.
6495. On account of sick pay? £127 15s.
6496. What was the cost of the working expenses? Officers and Auditors, £62 8s.
6497. What is included in that? Salaries of Secretary, Treasurer, Trustees, what we call woodwards, and what we call the junior beadle, or outside messenger, who delivers all summonses.
6498. Have you any other Societies working in conjunction with yours? We have a Widow and Orphan Fund, which it is not compulsory for members to join; there are twenty-six or twenty-nine in it.
6499. It is a fund established in connection with the Court? Yes.
6500. No member of another Court could join it? No.
6501. So it is actually a Society within a Society? It does not interfere with us.
6502. Have you any connection with any Grand Lodge or District? No; we have seceded from the District.
6503. What was the cause? I do not know. I think it was unnecessary delay in giving the burial money. Now we give half the donation at once, and the other half the first fortnight after.
6504. How many members did you admit last year? There were twelve during the year.
6505. How many left during the time? Four died, and I could not say from memory how many I struck off. There are 187 financial now.
6506. Do all candidates subject themselves to a medical examination? Yes.
6507. Is the examination of a searching and full nature? He strips and sounds you, and asks questions relative to your family; and we have a form which has to be signed.
6508. Have you had many persons seeking admission refused in consequence of the doctor refusing to pass them? One, to my knowledge.
6509. Only one? Yes.
6510. And are you of opinion that the inquiry made by the medical man is a full and satisfactory one? All the members I have brought to the doctor I have seen there, and I have been perfectly satisfied with his examination. The person who proposes a member has to go with him to the doctor.
6511. You are of opinion that it is a quite satisfactory medical examination? I think so.
6512. Have you found subsequently any persons who have been admitted have been proved to be of unsound health? There was one case here; I have heard members say that they thought he was consumptive before he joined. He had taken full time on sick pay nearly eighteen months out of the three years he was in the Society.
6513. And what amount of money is paid in the shape of contributions? A shilling a week, and a shilling every three months towards the Incidental Fund. A man going on the funds is not entitled to sick pay for twelve months, and up to two years £20 at death, and after three years £30. But if an accident happens we have made this fund so that we shall have the power of voting a small sum; and we are putting the superannuated members upon it.
6514. Then each member pays 14s. a quarter? Yes, 56s. a year.
6515. No levies? No; there are burial fees; we have revised our laws, and made it 1s. for a member and 6d. for a member's wife.
6516. You keep your Funeral Fund separate? Yes, in the books.
6517. And the Management Fund is kept separate? Yes, all are kept separate.
6518. And do you believe that 1s. a week is sufficient to ensure the benefits you speak of? Yes.
6519. What do you give in case of death? £20 on the death of a member, £15 on the death of a member's wife, and after three years £30 from the Society, and for 2d. a week extra £15 from the Widow and Orphan Fund.
6520. And supposing your members leave the city and go to the country, how do you provide for them? I have members in Queensland and Newcastle; if sick, they get a certificate from the doctor there, and I send the money, less the expenses.

Mr. A. A.
Fitzpatrick.

21 April, 1882.

Mr. A. A.
Fitzpatrick.
21 April, 1882.

6521. But suppose he requires a medical man to attend him and his family? He only pays 9d. a week to us, and the balance to another Court there, and they find doctor and medicine.
6522. Then you recognize each other? Yes.
6523. Though you are outside the District? Yes.
6524. Then you get over the difficulty that way? Yes.
6525. And you are quite certain that 1s. a week is sufficient to ensure these large benefits? Yes.
6526. Has your Society always been in a good financial position? Yes, though we had a great loss one year, over £800.
6527. You are sure this will pay the money? Yes. You must be off the funds for two years before getting full benefits again.
6528. What is the largest amount of funds you have had at any time? The most in the books is £1,958 17s. 6d., on 31st December, 1876, and I think it was that year we got the knock.
6529. Can you tell me what has been the gross expenditure of your Society during the last five years? I have not the returns for five years, but for the last four years it amounts to £2,829 13s. 5½d.
6530. Can you tell me what the gross receipts during that time have amounted to? £2,663 0s. 6d.
6531. You spoke of a serious loss in 1876—what was the cause? I see it was in 1879; the cause was old men dying.
6532. Can you tell us how many deaths occurred? Five members, four members' wives, and one child.
6533. And it was in consequence of the death of old members? Yes.
6534. And consequently old men? Yes.
6535. A long time connected with the Society? Yes. I am eleven years in, and I am only a young member. We paid £275 12s. 8d. for sick pay; to the Superannuation Fund, £36; funeral donations, £211 10s.; medical officer, £133 16s. 6d.; chemist, £103 7s. 7d.; rent, £8; officers and auditors, £61 0s. 3d.; stationery, printing, and advertising, £7 4s.; and the rest was incidental expenses.
6536. And the receipts were for the year £763 7s. 9d.? Yes.
6537. That includes two years' interest? Yes.
6538. What was the year's interest that should not have been included? £106.
6539. And the other year's interest? £97 5s. 6d.
6540. What would be the average age of the members in your Society? About thirty-seven.
6541. Have you many old members now in the Society? A good many.
6542. What number should you think? I should think fifty or sixty good old men.
6543. Over what age? Say forty-five and upwards.
6544. What number would you have over fifty? I could not say exactly; they do not come near us now.
6545. What proportion of young men have you? We have plenty of young men joining us.
6546. Those who have been admitted during the last year—are they young? Generally; about twenty-four is the average.
6547. You have a fixed scale of contributions? Yes.
6548. Do you favour that view? I do.
6549. For a young man to pay as much as an old man? Yes; in olden days they used to pay over-age fees, but we abolished all that.
6550. You have a graduated scale of charges for the admission of members? Yes.
6551. And you are in favour of a fixed scale of contributions? Yes; the same all round. When a member dies we allow the widow to join by paying 6d. a week, and give her doctor and medicine for herself and family under eighteen as long as she is a widow. That is a new rule in our Court, and we have four widows on the funds.
6552. What do you pay the medical officer of the Society for these widows and children? Just the same as a member.
6553. Then they become medical members? Yes; there is no sick pay.
6554. And you are quite clear that 1s. a week is enough to ensure all these benefits? Yes, though I think we shall no doubt get a little knock when the old men die, but we shall pull up again.
6555. How do you settle matters of dispute in your Court? Well, we have an Appeal Committee.
6556. Is their decision final? Well, he can appeal to the three nearest Courts if he thinks it is unjust.
6557. These other Courts are in the District? They are under the District.
6558. But the member aggrieved could ask them to adjudicate? Yes.
6559. Have you had any occasion to go to the Courts? No; if a member is out of compliance fifty-two weeks we strike him off the books.
6560. Have you had any defalcations in connection with any of the officers? Before my time, the Treasurer.
6561. To any extent? Forty odd pounds, I think.
6562. That is the only case you know of? I have only heard of that.
6563. Was it made good? No; I think he got to America.
6564. When your Court left the District, did they take with them the funds? I do not know; they were out of the District before I joined.
6565. You do not know the circumstances? No.
6566. How long have you been out of the District? I could not say.
6567. Your moneys are invested in Trustees? In Trustees, in the Savings Bank.
6568. Did I understand you to say that you had lent money on mortgage to some members? Yes; it was all paid back again.
6569. Have you found any inconvenience arising from the present Act? No. I give my balance-sheet at the end of each year; I never see any trouble with them.
6570. Do you believe the present Act affords sufficient protection to members of Societies? Well, if a member dies unfinancial I believe they can recover the money from the Court. I have read of a case in the Sons of Temperance where they sued for the burial donation and recovered it. We had a member in our Court who died unfinancial in the Receiving House; there was a widow and four or five children, and we gave £15 out of the Incidental Fund for that, and thus made her a present of half the amount.
6571. Have you any suggestions to make that would be of service in future legislation? Yes; I think any town member owing £1 in the Court should not be entitled to the burial fee.

Mr. A. A.
Fitzpatrick.
21 April, 1882.

6572. But could not your by-laws do that? No; I believe not.
6573. Is that the only particular? That is the only thing in which I see any hardship.
6574. What provision do you make for auditing your accounts? They are audited every three months.
6575. By members of the Order? Yes.
6576. And does this give satisfaction to the members? I have never heard any complaints. There have been some Secretaries where errors have been found, but I have never found any difficulty myself; the Auditors have no quarrel with me. In our Court the money is paid over to the Treasurer in the Court at the end of each meeting.
6577. But if the statement you make is a fact the auditing could not have been very active? I was an Auditor at the time; it was simply a matter of distribution—a clerical error.
6578. Would you favour a Government officer making an annual audit of the books of all Societies? Yes.
6579. And a uniform scale of contributions for all Societies? Yes.
6580. Mr. Gelding.] Is it not a fact that during the early period of your Lodge a great many seamen belonged to it? Yes.
6581. And owing to their leaving the Lodge it raised your balances? I don't know any seamen that have left the Lodge since I have been in it.
6582. What was the average amount per member twenty-five years ago, about the time you seceded? I could not tell you.
6583. Is it not a fact that five years ago you had an average of £15 per head? No, I do not think so; it might have been £13.
6584. Your average now is something under £10 per head? Yes.
6585. And do you think that is progressing, when you are losing your average nearly every year? Yes; but we do not; last year we picked up £120.
6586. But you have been losing year after year for some years past until the last quarter of last year? Yes.
6587. Do you think then, taking that into consideration, that 1s. a week is sufficient to keep up the stability of your Lodge? Yes.
6588. I see in your book here that the sum of £2 2s. was paid to Mr. Williamson for obtaining a certificate of registration of the by-laws; did the Registrar require you to do so? We paid the Registrar of Friendly Societies £3 3s.
6589. I see that when a member leaves your District and goes up country you allow him 3d. a week deduction in lieu of medical attendance? Yes.
6590. Is he allowed to join the medical benefits of any other Lodge? Yes, if he pays what they demand.
6591. Then he has to pay 15d. or 16d. per week, and you only pay 1s. in Sydney; do you think that is just? Yes.
6592. What does a member pay per week for medical attendance and medicine. I cannot say what we pay; we pay for the medicines, and the chemist allows us a percentage.
6593. You pay on the prescriptions? Yes.
6594. And what do you pay the medical gentleman for his attendance per quarter? It was £33 4s. for the quarter ending December, 1881; £36 10s. for the quarter ending 1st April, 1882; we pay 3s. 6d. per quarter per member.
6595. And the chemist runs it up to 6s. or 6s. 6d.? More than that.
6596. How many members have you in your Lodge belonging to the Widow and Orphan Fund? Twenty-six or twenty-nine; I could not say exactly.
6597. I see you pay members for doing any work that may be necessary for the Lodge? Yes.
6598. Is that a general principle attaching to your Branch? I do not think it is in the present by-laws.
6599. Do you believe in the principle of paying members to do honorary work? No; they do not pay the man who does the writing.
6600. How much do you get as Secretary? 8d. per member per quarter.
6601. Mr. Newland.] Could you give the average length of sickness at different ages? No, I could not.
6602. You could not give the average rate at the respective ages (say) between twenty and twenty-five, and twenty-five and thirty? No.
6603. If you went through your books could you give the average rate of sickness at different ages for the past five years? Yes, but it would take a lot of time and trouble to do that; I think when I show in my yearly balance-sheet every man that has been sick I do quite enough.
6604. Mr. Gelding.] I see you allow money on the death of a child; do members pay a registration fee? Yes, half-a-crown.
6605. Mr. Rubie.] I suppose your members are admitted by medical examination? Yes.
6606. Have you ever found fault with the manner in which the examination is conducted? No.
6607. Never had any admitted that you doubted had a right to be admitted? Not to my knowledge.
6608. Are you satisfied with the way in which it is conducted? Yes.
6609. Mr. Langley.] You have informed the President that 14s. a quarter is sufficient to pay the benefits your laws provide and leave you a good credit balance? Yes.
6610. It has done this in the past? Yes.
6611. If that is so according to experience, and an Actuary said it was impossible, would you place any reliance on his theories, as against your practical knowledge of what your order has done? No.
6612. Do you not think small working expenses and the careful management of a Society's funds have as much to do with the results as the scale of contributions and benefits? Yes; the smaller you get the expenses the better.
6613. Mr. Greville.] Where does your Court hold its meetings? At the "Swan with Two Necks," corner of George and Park Streets.
6614. Have you seen any ill-effects arising from holding them at a public-house? No; I have seen seventy or eighty men go in and pay their money without having a drink.
6615. Would you not rather favour holding them at some other place? We were in the Foresters' Hall, and they objected to that, as they are more central where they are. The Lodge has been in a public-house all its life, but once.
6616. I think you say you only knew of one instance in which your medical officer has reported unfavourably of a candidate. Yes.
6617. How many cases do you think have been submitted to that medical man? I could not tell you; he has been a long time with us now; seven years, I should think. 6618.

- Mr. A. A. Fitzpatrick.
21 April, 1882.
6618. Then during that seven years he has only rejected one? That is all I have ever heard of.
6619. And is he bound to fill in a form similar to that which is in use in Insurance Offices? Yes, he has a printed form to fill up.
6620. Mr. Abigail.] Have any of your financial members died and failed to get the benefits? No.
6621. None? Never.
6622. Are any of your members in such circumstances that when they are sick they do not go on the funds? Oh, some of them—plenty of them; some would be a week sick and never think of going on the funds; others would go on for two days.
6623. Have you expelled any of your members for being convicted before magistrates? No.
6624. I understand you give some donation on the death of a child? Yes.
6625. What is the amount? 30s.
6626. You have stated very positively that you believe 1s. is sufficient to guarantee all the benefits that you give? I think so.
6627. How do you arrive at that opinion? Well, it has done it all along; of course the last few years we have had a very great knock.
6628. Have you made any calculation at what rate the contingent liabilities are accruing to each of your members? No, I have not.
6629. Are you aware that in 1879 and 1880 you lost £304? We lost it in one year, 1879.
6630. You send in the annual returns to the Registrar? Yes.
6631. Did you send them in without any balance-sheet? Yes, I sent in a written form and he would not accept that, and then I sent in another.
6632. Have you any law that limits the amount of sick pay any one individual shall receive? Six months full pay, and twelve months half-pay, and he could not come on us again until he was off the funds two years.
6633. I find that in 1878 one member received £29 2s. 4d., and the same member in 1879 received £1 1s.; another received in 1878, £19 1s. 6d., and in 1879, £28 15s., making a total of nearly £48 in the two years? Yes; they can get twenty-six weeks at a guinea, and fifty-two weeks at 11s.
6634. And in the face of this fact you still think the subscription of 1s. is sufficient to guarantee all these benefits? I do.
6635. But not by means of calculation? No.
6636. Have you any notion how much contingent liabilities you have got on your 187 financial members? I cannot answer that.
6637. Do any of your members fail to get their benefits by leaving the Colonies? No.
6638. Will you look at the 48th rule; is it correct that when any member of your Court leaves the Australian Colonies his sick benefits are suspended? Yes, that is going right away; everything stops with us except the funeral donation.
6639. Have you had any case in which a member has been fined under rule XL? No, not to my knowledge.
6640. Have you had any case in which any members have taken your Society into Court to recover their benefits? No, not in my time.
6641. You have a rule on the question of arbitration for the settlement of all disputes? Yes; we have an Appeal Committee.
6642. And your laws make their decision final? Well, there is an appeal to the three nearest Courts.
6643. Would you favour in any new Act an Arbitration Board outside of your Society to decide finally on all questions of dispute? I would have no objection to that.
6644. I mean instead of going to law? Yes.
6645. President.] You have nothing further to add to your evidence? Nothing more.
6646. And no suggestions to make to the Commission? No.

Mr. Thomas Forsyth sworn and examined:—

- Mr. T. Forsyth.
21 April, 1882.
6647. President.] What Society do you represent? Ancient Order of Foresters; Court, Pride of Australia.
6648. What office do you hold? Secretary.
6649. How long have you held the office altogether? This term from January last, and previously about two years.
6650. How long have you been a member of the Court? Three years last February.
6651. How long has the Society been in existence? Since 1856.
6652. Are you under the District Grand Lodge? No.
6653. Were you at any time? Yes.
6654. What did you leave it for? To better our condition.
6655. And have you done so? Yes.
6656. Had you a dispute with the District? No.
6657. Did you take your funds with you? Yes.
6658. What amount of funds had you when you left? About £700.
6659. What amount have you now? A trifle over £1,100.
6660. What number of members have you? At the present time about 180.
6661. What number had you when you left the District? I could not say.
6662. Had you as many as now? No; about 140.
6663. What was the total amount of receipts for last year? Our returns were made out for 9th January, 1881; the total receipts were £422 19s. 7d.
6664. What was the total expenditure for a like period? £397 13s. 4½d.
6665. What was paid on account of medical attendance and chemist for last year? £164 10s. 7½d. to the doctor.
6666. And the chemist? Nothing; he finds his medicine.
6667. What was paid on account of sick pay? £133 12s. 1d.
6668. What was paid on account of funeral donations? £40.
6669. Is that for two deaths? Yes.
6670. What was the cost of management during the year? £40 8s.
6671. What is included in that amount? All salaries of officers, rent, postages, stationery, printing, and incidental expenses.
6672.

Mr.
T. Forsyth.
21 April, 1882.

6672. What contributions are paid by your members? 1s. a week.
 6673. Is any other charge made? None.
 6674. No levy or quarterly contribution? No; 1s. a week covers all.
 6675. You have a uniform contribution? Yes.
 6676. What are the benefits you give? A guinea a week for six months, 12s. 6d. the second six months, and 6s. as long as the sickness may last; £20 on the death of a member, and £15 on the death of a member's wife.
 6677. And how long do you allow your members to be in arrears to disentitle them to the benefits? Fourteen weeks.
 6678. And what action do you then take? Suspend them.
 6679. And if they still fail to pay? Erase their names when they go fifty-two weeks.
 6680. Have you ever taken any action to recover arrears? No.
 6681. And are you of opinion that 1s. a week is sufficient to ensure the payment of all these benefits you speak of? I am sure of it.
 6682. Is your Society now in a better financial position than when you left the District? Yes.
 6683. You said when you left it you had how much money? About £700.
 6684. And 140 members? Thereabouts.
 6685. And now 182 with £1,100? At the end of the year it was £1,076.
 6686. So you are £300 better off in funds with forty more members? Yes.
 6687. You have been away three years from the District? Yes.
 6688. But for one year they were responsible for the death donations? Yes.
 6689. Was any money paid by the District during that time? Yes, £15 for one member's wife.
 6690. How do you settle matters of dispute between your members and the Lodge? We have an Appeal Committee.
 6691. Is their decision final? As far as our Court is concerned; they can appeal further to the High Court in England.
 6692. Have you had any cases of the members going to the law Courts to settle matters of dispute? No.
 6693. You are in favour of a uniform contribution? Yes.
 6694. And a uniform contribution for all Friendly Societies? Yes, because it would be much easier worked than if worked on a sliding scale.
 6695. Have you had any defalcations in your Society by officers or members? Yes, in one way; it was an error, and not a wilful defalcation.
 6696. Have you balance-sheets to show the expenditure and receipts for the last five years in your Court? It is only the last two years that we have had printed balance-sheets.
 6697. Have you books to show the amount? I have a paper that will show according to the notice I received, but I have no books with me.
 6698. What amount has been paid for sick pay for five years? £485 2s. 5d.
 6699. What has been paid for funeral donation? £40 by us; all others were paid by the District.
 6700. Do you know how much was paid? I could not say; it was above £70; I can account for £70.
 6701. What was the cost of management during that time? £367 14s. 4d., including levies to the District, which were £186 17s. 10d.
 6702. What was the cost of doctor and chemist? £662 4s. 7½d.
 6703. Were there any other expenses for regalia or other expenses? About £25 for a banner.
 6704. What has been the amount received for subscriptions? I have not got that.
 6705. What is the total amount received during the five years? I did not make that up.
 6706. Can you tell from the papers you have here? No.
 6707. What reports have you got here? There are two annual reports.
 6708. Have you any books here? No.

Mr. James Root sworn and examined:—

6709. President.] What Society do you represent? Court Morning Star, Ancient Order of Foresters.
 6710. Where is the Lodge located? Waterloo.
 6711. What office do you hold? Secretary.
 6712. How long have you held the office of Secretary? Eight years.
 6713. Have you brought any copies of the rules with you? Yes (produced).
 6714. What number of members have you? 249.
 6715. Is that the largest number you have had at any time? No, some have gone bad; we have had more than that.
 6716. How many unfinancial members have you? Fifteen.
 6717. How many members did you initiate last year? That I have not got.
 6718. Have you held any other office? Yes, I have been all through the different degrees.
 6719. How long have you been a member? Sixteen or seventeen years.
 6720. How long has the Society been in existence? 1845 was the first opening of it; but I believe it re-opened in 1854.
 6721. What amount of subscriptions were paid during last year? £753 11s.
 6722. That is for both funds? Yes.
 6723. What is the contribution to these? 6d. to each, that is 1s. altogether.
 6724. What was the total expenditure during a like period? Sick pay, £228 14s.; funerals, £125; superannuation, £6 18s.
 6725. And what was paid for doctor and chemist? £231 15s. for doctor; and chemist, £90 2s. 6d.
 6726. What was the cost of management? £87 13s. 8d., including a large item for printing, £28, on account of having to get new rules printed.
 6727. What was your reason for leaving the District? There were one or two causes I could explain. They did not believe in our spending money on a new hall; that was the chief thing; but there was a bit of a squabble amongst the leading members.
 6728. What is the total value of your funds? £971 15s. 2d.

Mr. J. Root.
21 April, 1882.

- Mr. J. Root. 6729. What had you when you left the District? I am not prepared to say.
6730. Had you as much money? Our total was £902 4s. 7d.
- 21 April, 1882. 6731. How much did you draw out of the District during the first year of leaving? £110, the heaviest we have had since I became a member.
6732. How do you settle matters of dispute? I do not know that we have had any disputes to settle.
6733. But you have a provision made in your rules? We have an Arbitration Committee.
6734. Is there any appeal beyond that? Not that I am aware of; the next clause says there is no further appeal.
6735. How are your funds invested? In the Hall there are £483 12s. 3d., and a balance in hand of £45 2s. 9d.; in the Funeral Fund, £256 0s. 4d., and Sick Fund, £186 19s. 10d., in the Bank.
6736. Is the property in trust for the members of the Society? We have a ninety-nine years' lease, and it is vested in three Trustees.
6737. Have you had any defalcations in your Society? No.
6738. Your accounts are duly audited? Yes.
6739. By members appointed by the Court? Yes.
6740. And have you always found the audits accurate and correct? Yes.
6741. Do all your members undergo a medical examination? Yes.
6742. A searching examination? Yes.
6743. Have you had many candidates refused? Not lately; two or three years ago we had one or two; there is a trade our doctor will not pass, that is, the painters.
6744. But the Society is composed of all kinds of tradesmen? Yes.
6745. And do you consider it in a good, sound, financial position? Yes; we have always been able to pay our way and have a hundred or two by.
6746. And do you think 1s. a week is sufficient to pay all your rules provide? Yes; we have turned our Superannuation Fund into a Sick Fund, 1s. a quarter going into it, and there is a levy of 6d. on the death of a financial member, which goes to the Funeral Fund.
6747. Mr. Abigail.] You think 1s. a week sufficient to guarantee all the benefits you promise? Yes, with the additional 1s. a quarter.
6748. Have you made any calculation? No, I have not, but I have had practical experience.
6749. Have you gone into figures to ascertain how much is due to the members? No, I have not.
6750. Your conclusions are not the result of any calculations? No, but I have held office in the Branch for twelve or fourteen years.
6751. Taking your figures I find the loss amounted to £46 19s.; have you any doubt as to the correctness of that? No, I have not.
6752. And you received a certain amount from the District which, added to this £46, would make your loss £156 19s. Did you pay anything to the District last year? No.
6753. Have you in your book any debtor and credit account with the District? No.
6754. Can you state how much you have paid to the District since you were attached to it? No, I could not.
6755. There is no account kept in the books as between the Lodge and the District? We used to keep such an account, but we have nothing to do with them now.
6756. Have you studied the Friendly Societies Act? No, I have not.
6757. The result of your experience is not arrived at by calculation or figures, but is simply from observation? That is it.
6758. Mr. Langley.] The £46 19s. mentioned as an apparent debtor balance on your transactions covers regalia and books which are the property of your Lodge? Yes, and we have had such a year as we shall not have again.
6759. Your printing and regalia go into stock as an asset? Yes.
6760. And for all Lodge purposes it represents money? Yes.
6761. Mr. Gelding.] How do you account for the Management Expense Fund balancing so precisely in your last balance-sheet? I had to borrow from the Funeral Fund to make it up.
6762. You found that while the Funeral Fund gains money the Management Expense Fund goes behind? As I stated before, in our old rules we divided the funds differently from what we do now.
6763. And even now you do not find the division of your funds answers? We have had no trial yet, but this was an exceptional year throughout.
6764. Do you not think, in view of the Funeral Fund getting so rich, and the Management Fund going behind, that in framing a new Act Lodges should have power to reduce the amount now provided for in the Act, which is 6d? I think they should have that option.
6765. Have you any Children's Burial Fund connected with your Society? No.
6766. Widow and Orphan? We belong to the Widow and Orphan Fund attached to the District.
6767. President.] During your long experience, have you found the Act sufficient for the purpose of protecting your members? Yes.
6768. And affording you all the protection necessary? Yes, I believe so.
6769. Have you any complaint to make of the Act? No, and at our last meeting I submitted the matter to the Court.
6770. Do you always furnish the annual returns to the Registrar? Yes.
6771. Have you any suggestions to make that may be of service? No.
6772. Is that return (Commission's return) complete? Yes, except the signatures.
6773. Mr. Langley.] If your Constitution contains clauses in direct contravention to the Friendly Societies Act, do you think the Act is being worked properly? But we reckon it does not.
6774. If the Act says things must be done, and your Constitution says they must not be done, do you think the Act is properly worked? Well, that is the Registrar's fault; he should not pass it.
6775. Mr. Abigail.] Have you read the Act sufficiently close to know whether it protects the interests of your Society thoroughly? Well, I am not a book-worm.
6776. Are you aware of the provisions contained in it? I am going by the working of my own Lodge, and it is getting on as well as can be expected under the Act.
6777. But have you made yourself acquainted with the provisions of the Act? No, I have not.
- The Commission then adjourned until Monday, 24th April.

MONDAY, 24 APRIL, 1882.

P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
E. J. RUBIE, Esq.

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. Stephen Mallarky sworn and examined:—

6778. President.] What Society do you represent? I do not represent any; the Society I have been called for has been extinct for two years.

6779. What office did you hold in the Society? I was the originator and Secretary.

6780. What was the basis on which the Society was formed? Doctor, medicine, and a small weekly allowance in case of sickness; the usual benefits.

6781. Equal to the ordinary benefits? Superior, I believe.

6782. What funeral donation did you allow? I have a copy of the rules here (produced).

6783. What was the name of the Society? The Redfern Mutual Benefit Association.

6784. When was the Society instituted? On 6th November, 1876.

6785. And when was it dissolved? I should say about two years ago.

6786. What was the cause of the dissolution of the Society? Well, it amounted to this, that most of the members were exceedingly healthy and were paying their subscriptions regularly and getting no particular benefit. Our arrangement with the doctor was that he received 24s. a year for medical attendance for each member whether called upon or not; and extra for the chemist, whom we paid full rates to for dispensing all prescriptions, and he deducted one-third when he presented his bill. We were paying these expenses though the members were not falling sick, and they thought it was not worth while going on; accordingly they called a meeting to consider affairs, and agreed to divide the funds at the disposal of the Association and let the affair drop.

6787. And was the money divided equally? Equally among the members of the Association, deducting subscriptions not paid up.

6788. Do you know what amount each member received? No, I do not.

6789. What amount of funds was at the credit of the Association at the time of its dissolution? I should say £15, as a guess. On our dissolution we only had seventeen members. When I think of it there might have been double that money. I believe the largest share was £2 11s. That would have been the share of all if they had fully paid up.

6790. But there were a large number of members in arrears? Yes, and I think that is how the Society became dissolved.

6791. What amount of contributions did you pay? 48s. a year.

6792. No levies, or other expenses or charges? We never paid any levies, though they are provided for in the rules. The rules are based on the rules of the Australian Union Benefit Society, being almost a verbatim copy.

6793. And you paid contributions at the rate of 4s. a month? Yes.

6794. And the benefits you were to receive were? Doctor, medicine, and sick allowance, proportioned to the funds of the Association.

6795. 10s. 6d. a week if the funds were £400, and a member twelve months? Yes.

6796. 9s. if £300? Yes, and so downwards.

6797. And then I see a funeral donation provided for in case of death? Yes, from £10 to £40.

6798. What was the largest amount of funds you had at any time? I could not say.

6799. Did you ever reach £400? Never; we were only in existence three years.

6800. Your rules were registered? Yes.

6801. In 1876? Yes.

6802. And are you of opinion that 4s. a month was sufficient to ensure all the benefits here enjoined? Yes, I believe it would have been had we had an ordinary influx of new members; but we had no new members; during the three years we were in existence only three new members joined us, and we were losing by change of residence.

6803. Did all your members submit to a medical examination? All after the first in.

6804. But not the first members? They were received as passed.

6805. Were there any old men? None over thirty-six.

6806. And what was the limit of age at which you received members? Thirty-six.

6807. And was the Society dissolved under the 21st and 22nd sections of the Friendly Societies Act? Yes.

6808. You have no general knowledge of the working of Friendly Societies outside this Society? My knowledge is very superficial.

6809. Mr. Abigail.] You say you think 1s. would not be sufficient to guarantee the benefits without having a good number of young men joining? Yes.

6810. What proportion would you have considered sufficient? Well, 10 per cent. per annum.

6811. How do you arrive at that conclusion, by figures? No, merely a mental calculation of what I think.

6812. Have you made any calculation to ascertain at what rate the liabilities accrue per year per member to a Society? No, I have not.

6813. Was there any actuarial certificate when your Society was started? No, merely the opinion of the Registrar of Friendly Societies.

6814. Did he give an opinion on your table of rates? Yes, he gave me a personal one, and I believe his certificate states that the rules submitted to him are capable of being worked at the rates charged. I remember he gave me an opinion that our rules were liberal, and that the rates charged would do all that we professed to be able to do.

6815. That 1s. a week would give the benefits, and make provision for all liabilities that might accrue by age? Yes.

6816. Still you have never gone into the figures? No, I have not. It is a conclusion I arrived at in this way, that so many Societies are able to carry on with such a payment.

6817.

Mr.
S. Mallarky.
24 April, 1882.

Mr. S. Mallarky. 6817. While they have accumulated funds, have you ever known any Society that showed how much it had accumulated in liabilities? No, I have no knowledge of any of the Societies.
 6818. You simply conclude from general observation? Yes.
 24 April, 1882. 6819. Mr. Holdsworth.] Have you ever given any consideration to the question of Friendly Societies? I did on the formation of this Society, but not since; that was in 1876.
 6820. Of what character was the consideration you gave, merely that other Societies had done it, and therefore you could do it? Exactly.
 6821. You were three years in existence? Yes.
 6822. During that time you had no sickness? No.
 6823. No claims for sick pay? No.
 6824. Have you any idea what the average claim for sickness is, taking one Society with another? No, I have not.
 6825. Are you aware that the general average would exceed 17s. 6d. per member per year? No.
 6826. Then you are not prepared to give an opinion on it? No.
 6827. President.] Have you any suggestions to make that might be of service to the Commission? No; I have had no experience.

The examination of Mr. James King was continued:—

Mr. J. King. 6828. President.] What Society do you represent? The St. Peter's Burial Society.
 24 April, 1882. 6829. How long has it been instituted? Since August, 1860.
 6830. What amount of contributions do your members pay? There are three different classes: those under ten years of age pay $\frac{1}{2}$ d. a week; between ten and sixteen, 1d.; and over sixteen, 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.
 6831. What number of members have you? 384.
 6832. What accumulated funds have you? £426.
 6833. What is the largest amount of funds you have had at any time? Over £500.
 6834. And how has that amount been reduced? In 1879, £300 were divided amongst the adult members who had been a certain time in the Society; according to the time they had been in, they got a certain proportion. I produce a return showing how the money was divided:—

6835. Have you brought some books and papers to-day? Yes.
 6836. What balance was left after this £300 was drawn out? £200.
 6837. Were the whole of the members agreeable to this being drawn out? I believe so.
 6838. You are not aware that some of them objected to the funds being applied in this way? No; I do not recollect it. I produce the notice of motion that was given, dated 27th February, 1879; it is as follows:—

Notice of motion to be considered at the quarterly meeting to be held on the 27th February, 1879.—“That the sum of £300 be divided as bonuses to the adult members over sixteen years of age, from the time of entrance, ratably per year as the length of time they have been members of over twelve months, from 31st December, 1878.”

AARON GREEN.
JOHN GARDNER.

6839. The largest sum received was by Mr. Walker, £20 15s. 5½d? No, I think by me—£16 and some odd shillings, for myself and family.
 6840. But do you know that he received some £20 15s. 5½d? No; I believe it was divided amongst two or three different families.
 6841. Are these Walkers all the same family? No, there are three different families.
 6842. And you say you received the largest amount? I believe our family did; £16 11s. 6½d.
 6843. How do daughters receive,—are they members of the Burial Fund? Yes.
 6844. Mr. Percival also received £10 7s. 9½d.? Yes.
 6845. Mr. Gardner, £14 11s. 11½d.? Yes.
 6846. Is that the Mr. Gardner who gave notice of the resolution? Yes; it was he and his family who received the money.
 6847. Mr. Green, £4 14s. 9d.? Yes.
 6848. Was it he who signed the resolution? Yes. I produce a paper prepared by Mr. Guille, school-master at St. Peter's, showing how the money could be proportioned to each of the members; it is as follows:—

St. Peter's, 31st March, 1879.

I BEG to report to the members of the St. Peter's Burial Society that in accordance with the time each member has belonged to the Society, as specified in the papers placed before me, I have calculated the amount each person should receive to within one halfpenny; or, in other words, I certify that no person in the accompanying list receives a halfpenny more nor less than his or her equitable share of the £300 to be divided.

I have, &c.,
R. WILLIAM GUILLE.

6849. Is he a member of the Society? No.
 6850. You know the 16th rule? Yes.
 6851. It is as follows:—“This Society shall continue so long as five adult male members continue together, and that the funds of this Society shall not be converted to any other purpose than as follows: For paying donations at death of its members and working expenses, and two guineas (£2 2s.) be paid to the Sydney Infirmary annually, and a bonus to its members, as follows: For every adult member, for every ten

- Mr. J. King: ten years' membership, the sum of two pounds (£2), to take effect from the commencement of this Society." Do you think then this distribution of funds was in accordance with this by-law? Well, it does not say in the by-law, but they had so much money they did not know what to do with it.
- 24 April, 1882. 6852. But do you think in this distribution you were carrying out this by-law? No, but I think there is another by-law that by notice of motion we can alter our rules.
6853. Rule 24 reads:—"These laws rescind all former laws, and shall be in force from and after the time they are registered by the Registrar of the Friendly Societies in New South Wales, and no alteration shall be made herein, nor additional laws made, without the consent of a summoned meeting of the Society; notice of such intended alteration, or new law, must be given to the President, in writing, at least one month before the summoned meeting, at which it will be brought forward. The proposed alteration or additional laws shall also explicitly be stated in the summonses calling the meeting, and such alterations or additional laws, if passed by a majority of the members present, shall be in full force and effect immediately on being registered by the Registrar of the Friendly Societies in New South Wales." Is that the rule you refer to? That is all I can see.
6854. Then you admit that in dealing with this £300 you were not carrying out this 16th law? No, of course we could not; but I believe every member was agreeable to it; I never heard any complaint against it.
6855. Have you never had a complaint against it? There has been none that I have heard of.
6856. Do you think the people who received the sum of 13s. 3½d. were satisfied to see you get £16? Yes, I believe they were, because we had been in so much longer than they had; I had been in eighteen and a half years.
6857. What is the annual amount paid by each member? Each adult pays 6s. 6d. a year.
6858. And the Society took the risk all the time? Yes.
6859. And they still keep the risk? Yes.
6860. And you received this money? Yes.
6861. Have many left the Society? Yes, about thirty or thirty-two, during the last five years.
6862. Before the distribution, how many? I could not say exactly; not above ten.
6863. And how many since? There might have been twenty.
6864. Do you know why these twenty left,—was it because they disapproved of the division? No, it was not on that account at all; one party left because he owed us some money and he never paid it, and his family counts six members out of the lot.
6865. And you do not think any left in consequence of this distribution? No.
6866. Do you think it is a fair and honest thing to have a distribution of the funds of a Burial Society? Yes, I think so.
6867. Are not the funds subscribed for a special purpose? Yes.
6868. And do you not think it is a misappropriation to apply them to any other purpose? Not if all agreed to it. If I had been in Sydney I would have been in favour of it.
6869. Then you approve of it? I do.
6870. Were any other members away at the time? Yes, all my family.
6871. How many of them? Four boys and one girl.
6872. Then you have seven members of the Society? Nine. We were away, and did not participate in the vote.
6873. You were not asked if you agreed or not? No; we did not know anything about it.
6874. How long do you think Societies would last if they carried on their business in that way? I think we should last a long time the way we are getting money.
6875. You have £420 now? Yes.
6876. And would like another distribution? Yes.
6877. Have you had any alteration of rules during the last few years? Not since 1877.
6878. And this distribution took place in 1879? Yes.
6879. Did you apply to the Registrar for approval of this distribution? I cannot say; I do not know.
6880. Do your members undergo an examination before they are passed? No.
6881. You take anybody? We have a Committee who have to inquire into their health and honesty of character.
6882. And they are the judges of the health and constitutional fitness of the members? Yes.
6883. And do you pay money whether you get a certificate or not? We have the certificate of the death of a member.
6884. Do you belong to any other Society? No.
6885. Mr. Slade.] Did you take your laws into consideration at all in the matter of this division? I was not down here, and did not know anything about it until it was divided.
6886. Can you tell me whether you received a summons to attend that meeting? No, I did not receive one.
6887. Were you invited to vote by proxy? No.
6888. Did you hear of any other members voting by proxy who were absent? No.
6889. To the best of your belief the vote was taken by those present without reference to outsiders? Yes.
6890. Did you at any time see a summons sent to anyone else? No.
6891. Have you any personal knowledge of a summons at all? No.
6892. Did you see any advertisement in the papers at all? No.
6893. Have you in conversation with any of the members heard that they did? I never heard them say.
6894. Mr. Langley.] Your laws say that bonuses shall be paid to members ten years in the Society? Yes.
6895. Then if this says that any person who has been in from 1st December, 1878, should share in the distribution, do you think it would be in accordance with your by-laws? All adult members over twelve months in the Society.
6896. This action allows any one fourteen months in the Society to receive a bonus; do you think that is in accordance with your laws? I do not think there is any wrong in it; I never heard any one complain against it.
6897. But if your laws say you shall do one thing and you have done another, do you think you have carried the laws out? I think we have acted rightly according to our principles.

Mr. J. King,
24 April, 1883

6898. Have you acted according to your by-laws? No.
 6899. Do you not think this was giving an unfair advantage to old members as against new ones? No, I cannot see it.
 6900. Did it not give them a larger proportion of funds than they should have taken out according to your laws? No, I do not see it.
 6901. When you paid out that amount of money in 1879, in February, had you any funds left? Oh, yes.
 6902. Then how is it I find in the books, "Interest paid to a Mr. Percival," amounting to £3 in July afterwards? That is from Mr. Percival.
 6903. President.] Had he a mortgage? Yes, he had a mortgage.
 6904. Mr. Holdsworth.] Did you register these laws? I was Secretary at the time.
 6905. Did Mr. Oliver make any objection to them? Mr. Percival was authorized to get them registered.
 6906. How do you elect members; will you show me the rule? Rule 4.
 6907. How do you admit them; under what rule? Rule 7—"The entrance fee for each member shall be according to the following scale, viz. :—

						s.	d.
Each child under 10 years of age	0	6
10 years, and not exceeding 16	1	0
16 "	"	20	2	0
20 "	"	25	3	0
25 "	"	30	4	0
30 "	"	35	6	0
35 "	"	40	8	0

No person shall be admitted above the age of forty years, unless they comply with the following, viz. :— That they pay the yearly contribution for each year or part of the year they are over forty years of age, together with the usual entrance fee."

6908. That is only the fees; how are they elected? They are elected by the members present.
 6909. Can you show me the rule that says so? We meet once a month, and the proposal is made one month and the election takes place at the next meeting.
 6910. Did not Mr. Oliver object to anything of this sort? No.
 6911. If you have any disputes, how do you settle them? I do not know; it would go by the majority.
 6912. Did not Mr. Oliver call attention to the want of an arbitration clause? Not that I am aware of.
 6913. Are you aware that the rate you pay, 6s. 6d. a year for £8, is equal to what any Friendly Society charges to give you £20? I do not know.
 6914. Mr. Abigail.] Do you understand this 16th law to read that none but adult members shall participate in the division of any amount? Yes.
 6915. Did you receive £16 11s. 6d. for yourself? No.
 6916. Are the children you received amounts for adults? Yes; the youngest was about twenty, others twenty-two, twenty-four, and another twenty-six; I received for four children, or rather gave it to them.
 6917. How many members had you when you made this division? Well, there might be twenty more than there are now.
 6918. Then there were over 400 then? I do not know; I cannot say.
 6919. Had you as many as 384? Yes, I believe we had.
 6920. Do you know how many participated in the division of the £300? I never read the account, and only got it the night before last.
 6921. This sets forth that 129 participated in the division; how did you settle with the others? They were not sixteen.
 6922. And therefore were not considered in the resolution? No.
 6923. Do you know how many were present at the meeting? I do not know.
 6924. For your £5 17s., paying 6s. 6d. per year for eighteen years, you received £16 11s. 6d.? Yes, but not for my 6s. 6d., my wife paid the same amount, and my children had to pay the same as myself.
 6925. Can you say how much your family had paid in at the time? No, I could not.
 6926. Can you say whether any consideration was given to the actual liabilities of the Society when this division was made? I do not know; I could not answer.
 6927. You took the money when offered without asking any questions? Oh, yes.
 6928. President.] What is your Society principally composed of? Of working men.
 6929. Principally brickmakers, carters, and men living in the locality? Yes.
 6930. Is Mr. Gardner connected with your Society now? Yes.
 6931. Is he living in the district? No; at North Shore.
 6932. Mr. Burling? Yes; he is at St. Peter's.
 6933. What do you pay in case of a child's death? If under a month, 30s.; if over a month, £3, up to ten years of age; from ten to sixteen, £5, and over £8.
 6934. And have you had many deaths in your Society during the last five years? Not very many; three in 1877, four in 1878, four in 1879, seven in 1880, and three in 1881.
 6935. Does that include children as well as adults? Yes.
 6936. How much has been paid altogether? £84 in five years.
 6937. What other expenses have you had during that time? No heavy expenses except the bonuses.
 6938. What has been spent in bonuses besides this £300 during the last five years? £436 5s., including the £300.
 6939. How was that divided? According to the 16th rule.
 6940. Did you receive any part of that? Oh, yes.
 6941. Did any of your family receive that? My wife, one son, and one daughter.
 6942. Received bonuses? Of £2 each.
 6943. And all members of the Society receive the same bonus? Yes.
 6944. What have been the working expenses during the five years? The salaries, £23, during the five years.
 6945. What is paid to the Secretary? £1 per quarter.
 6946. And to the Treasurer? 2s. 6d. a quarter.
 6947. And Trustees? 4s. a year.
 6948. What other expenses had you? Rent, £9 2s. in the five years, and £10 10s. for hospitals.
 6949. What has been paid on account of postage, advertising, &c. About £4 1s. in five years.

Mr.

Mr. Thomas Percival sworn and examined:—

Mr.
T. Percival.
24 April, 1882.

6950. President.] What Society do you represent? Two; I belong to the Oddfellows and St. Peter's Burial Society.
6951. What office do you hold in the latter? None now.
6952. What have you held? Secretary, Trustee, and Chairman.
6953. How long have you been a member? Since its establishment on August 16th, 1860.
6954. How long did you hold the office of Secretary? From 1877 till 1881.
6955. Your wife and daughter also are members? Yes, all my children.
6956. How many? Six, besides my daughter.
6957. You were Secretary during the time of the distribution? Yes.
6958. What number of members were present at the meeting at which the motion was moved? Nearly all who had the right to be present; it is only the male members over eighteen who are allowed to attend.
6959. How many male members have you? About fifty-five; a great many of them were not entitled to be present, because they were under eighteen years of age.
6960. How many were entitled to be present? I do not think there were five members within the boundary but what were present at the meeting; and it was carried unanimously, because we considered we did not want so much funds.
6961. Can you show me a rule which authorizes you to make a distribution in that way? There is no rule for that purpose; it was done by a general meeting of the Society by summons.
6962. But was that amendment to the by-laws approved of by the Registrar? We never sent him notice of it; we simply passed the resolution.
6963. But do you not know you cannot pass a resolution in contravention of the rules registered? We did not pass a by-law at all; we have another £300 to distribute directly.
6964. Do you not know the Act does not permit you to do that? Yes; but as the members were unanimous we did not think it was worth while making a by-law of it.
6965. Then if they were unanimous to-morrow you think it would be a prudent thing to do? I think it would be very useful to some of the members.
6966. No matter what the law says? I did not think about that, the Act is so complicated.
6967. Does not the 16th rule provide that certain bonuses shall be given to members after working expenses? Yes.
6968. Have you received any bonuses? Yes.
6969. What amount of money did you receive in the shape of bonus or bonuses? I think I have received two.
6970. That is £4? And my wife £4.
6971. And your daughter? She is not old enough.
6972. And in addition you received this £10 7s. 9½d.? Yes.
6973. Is that all you received? Yes, that includes the lot.
6974. And there is £8 additional to that? Yes, £4 for myself and wife.
6975. You are aware of the 16th rule, which provides for these bonuses? Yes.
6976. And you will not tell the Commission that this distribution of £300 was in conformity with that? No, because I never sent; it was only by resolution that was carried.
6977. And you say that nearly all the persons entitled to be present were present? Yes.
6978. Was Mr. King present? I do not know.
6979. Was not he entitled to be present? Yes, if he was within bounds; they were all written to.
6980. Have you Mr. King's letter authorizing you to vote? No.
6981. Could you name any member we could summon who authorized you in writing to intimate to the meeting that he was agreeable to this distribution? I could not.
6982. Do you know any member who was agreeable? Mr. Joseph Ashton wrote saying he was agreeable, but that was afterwards; but it was a letter from him that was the means of bringing the matter forward.
6983. Have you that letter? No, I have not.
6984. Where is he to be had? Grafton—Harwood Island.
6985. And you are positive he wrote to you intimating he was agreeable to this resolution? Yes.
6986. Did he know the nature of the distribution to take place? Not the amount.
6987. And do you say that no one has the right to vote or to participate in the distribution except male adult members? Over eighteen years of age.
6988. Are there not a larger number of females than males? I think there is a majority of female children.
6989. And a meeting of twenty or thirty persons distributed the money? Yes.
6990. Do you mean to tell the Commission that only some twenty or thirty were entitled to be present? No more.
6991. And there were only about twenty there? I do not know.
6992. Do the minutes show the number of members present at the meeting? No.
6993. Was the roll called? No; I do not think it would be.
6994. You are of opinion that there were under thirty? There might have been thirty.
6995. And the Society had how many members at that time? I could not say that; I do not know how many there are now.
6996. Were there 300 members then? I could not say.
6997. Would there be 400 members? I do not think there would be.
6998. If Mr. King has stated 400, would it be correct? I should think so; he has gone through it lately.
6999. And do you think twenty or thirty persons would be entitled to pass such a resolution as this? I think so.
7000. Independent of your by-laws? I said it was wrong, but was overruled.
7001. Mr. Holdsworth.] You have said, I think, that it was only males over eighteen that were allowed to vote? Yes.
7002. Will you show me any rule which says who shall have the power to vote? We took the Friendly Societies Act for it.

Mr.
T. Percival.
24 April, 1882.

7003. You have no by-law on it? No.

7004. Have you any by-law which specifies how members shall be admitted? No. 6: "The duties of the Working Committee shall be:—To attend all meetings of the Society, and to inquire as to the character of all persons proposed as members, and to assist in the general management for the welfare of the Society. All officers to attend the usual monthly meetings, or be fined 6d., unless a satisfactory apology be received in writing."

7005. I want to know who has the power of electing members? Those present at the monthly meetings.

7006. Are they elected by the members? Yes.

7007. You have no by-law which says how members are to be elected or to show who are your real voting members? No.

7008. If you have any disputes in your Society, how are they settled? By a summoned meeting of the Society.

7009. But suppose a member objects to the decision of the majority? We must go to Court, I suppose.

7010. Did you register these rules? Yes.

7011. Did Mr. Oliver read them? I suppose so.

7012. Did he object to them? No; he kept me waiting about a fortnight, and then sent to me saying it was all right, and for me to come in and bring the fee.

7013. And those do not certify who are voting members, how members are to be elected, nor for any provision in case of dispute? No.

7014. The Registrar of Friendly Societies registered them without a word? Yes.

7015. Mr. Langley.] You have just stated that members under eighteen, though they may be adult members according to your rules, are prohibited by the Friendly Societies Act from voting? Yes.

7016. Then will you kindly read the 29th clause of the Act, and say how you come to give such a reply? That clause does not provide for a member voting, but that he shall not take office as Director, Trustee, or Treasurer.

7017. If that was an illegal distribution from your funds, are you aware that every member of your Society is liable to sue your Trustees unless you can show a quittance from them? I think we have got that.

7018. Have your Trustees received a quittance for the payment of that £300? No more than the receipts given in the schedule handed in by Mr. King.

7019. How long was it prior to the expenditure of this £300 that you had previously received a bonus? I got one in 1870, and another in 1880.

7021. At the time of the distribution in 1879 you had 150 members on your books? There were more than that, little and big.

7022. Then if twenty members have the right to vote your funds away in that shape, what guarantee is there for the remainder of your members getting their rights when they want them? They were not entitled to them according to the resolution passed.

7023. The resolution overrides the Friendly Societies Act? I am quite aware of that.

7024. Mr. Slade.] When that resolution was passed about that division was any law that you had in existence at the time taken into consideration? Yes, the one with regard to bonuses.

7025. And your members decided on that division believing the law gave them authority to do so? I believe most of them did, though I told them it was against the Friendly Societies Act.

7026. Were the members called together for the purpose of considering that? Yes, by summons.

7027. What form did the summons take? By circular, in which the business was set forth.

7028. And to whom did you send that? To all members who lived within 8 miles, and most of those in the country.

7029. Did you omit any? I do not think so.

7030. Are you sure you summoned any country members? Yes; I know I summoned Mr. Ashton.

7031. Did you receive any written instructions from any of the country members how they wished their vote to be taken? I do not think so.

7032. Did anyone send a proxy for anyone else to vote in their stead? We would not take it.

7033. The bonuses prescribed in your rules have been paid in all cases irrespective of this division? Yes.

7034. Was the division classed as bonuses under the 16th rule? Yes; they were put as bonuses to be given according to the number of years each member had been in as from sixteen years of age.

7035. In the regular bonus of £2 it was always supposed they were given according to that rule? Yes.

7036. Yes, then what was the impression of the members that they received their quota by the 16th rule? Yes, I said that they could not, and it was ruled that they could do what they liked with their money.

7037. Who were the Trustees at the time of the division? Aaron Green, Alice-street, Newtown; John Gardner, Military Road, North Shore; Charles Burling, St. Peter's.

7038. Not the three who are upon the rules here? No.

7039. Did they protest against the action? No; two Trustees made the resolution.

7040. Have there been any threats on the part of your members to take action? No; they want us to divide again.

7041. Were there any dissentients at the meeting at all? No, not one.

7042. Was there any protest, verbal or written, against the action taken? No.

7043. Are you aware that the Trustees are liable to be proceeded against? Yes.

7044. And yet you took part in this? Yes, and would again.

7045. Are you sufficiently acquainted with the Act to know that any such distribution as this is penal? I know it is not legal.

7046. Are you aware that the Act makes penalties for such a thing? Yes, but it must be done by the members.

7047. Can you tell us whether by resolution at any time the disability to vote for members under eighteen years of age was instituted? Yes, there is a resolution on the minute books.

7048. Does it exist in either your present or any previous code of rules? Yes, in the old ones.

7049.

- Mr. T. Percival. 7049. Could you produce a copy? I could not tell you.
- 24 April, 1882. 7050. Is it not rather that this disability has been the result of practice? We have never allowed them to vote until they were eighteen years of age.
7051. And really it is a mere precedent you have established? It was a late law.
7052. There is none at present? None now.
7053. And having had that clause of the Act pointed out to you, do you not see they had a right to vote? You will find that a person under eighteen years of age is not a full member of any society.
7054. Are the Trustees that you have given us the names of men who are in a social position to meet any claims that might be brought against them? I do not think so.
7055. Is the Society collectively able to refund the money if it is demanded by law? Yes.
7056. The 129 persons who shared in that division out of the gross total—did any of the remaining members protest in consequence of not receiving some share? No.
7057. Was there any claim by anyone else? No.
7058. Mr. Langley.] May I ask if they were all aware they were entitled to participate in it? All over sixteen years of age.
7059. That legally they were as much entitled as others? Some of the babies were not, I suppose, but I think they were.
7060. Mr. Gelding.] This notice of motion—you have had a deal of connection with Societies—do you think it is a legal notice; it is your writing? It is in my writing.
7061. This quittance of the amounts; there are a number of them signed by you? Yes.
7062. Is that the only legal quittance you have? I got a letter from them.
7063. Do you think that is a legal quittance of all these members, your signature being attached to the majority of them? I think so, because I received notice as to what I should do with the money, and I carried out their wishes.
7064. Your Society is very wealthy, is it not? Pretty well.
7065. Do you not think it would be advisable to pay some one to keep the books better than they are at the present time? We cannot get any one to do it.
7066. You got £3 for making out the return furnished by the Commission? No; £1 between three of us.
7067. Mr. Abigail.] Is this (produced) the notice of motion? Yes.
7068. What date was it given; the meeting previous to the night you decided it? I could not say.
7069. Have you been in the habit of receiving resolutions and dividing funds on the same nights that you deal with the proposals? Oh, yes.
7070. You deal with it the same night? Yes; we only meet once a month; but that would come before a special meeting on the quarterly meeting.
7071. Have you been in the habit when notices of this sort have been given—do you not enter it in the minutes? No.
7072. Well, I see that on December 5th, previous to this, there is no record of any notice of motion having been handed in? No, we do not do that.
7073. Are you aware that this thing purporting to be a notice of motion is dated the same night that you carried the resolution to distribute this £300? I do not think so.
7074. If the date on this and the date in the minute-book is the same? It must be so.
7075. You have no doubt you sent summonses? I am certain of it.
7076. Do you send summonses for special meetings without authority? Not without authority from the Chairman.
7077. Is there any record of authority having been given in your minutes? No.
7078. You do not take resolutions for special meetings? No; that was at the quarterly or a special meeting, I do not know, but it was handed in, and I gave it to the Chairman, and he authorized me to put it in the summons.
7079. I see you have been in the habit of nightly passing resolutions that certain members received their bonuses? Yes, that is when they become due.
7080. In 1876, was your Society in a flourishing state? Yes, it has always been in a flourishing state.
7081. I notice on 24th February a proposition to lend some £200 to a lady? It was not carried then.
7082. What security do you take when you lend money that way? Get the deeds—a mortgage.
7083. This is a correct record of the proceedings (the minute-book)? Yes.
7084. Are you aware that none of these minutes are confirmed for years past? They did not take that trouble.
7085. You do not think it necessary? No.
7086. You have been a borrower from the Society? Yes, and paid it back.
7087. And they took the deeds? Yes.
7088. When this division was made, did you consult the 21st clause of the Friendly Societies Act, as follows:—"And it shall not be lawful in any Society to direct a division or appropriation of any part of the funds or property thereof except for the purpose of carrying into effect the general interests and objects declared in the rules as originally certified unless the claim of every such member is first duly satisfied or adequate provision be made for satisfying such claim and in case any member of such Society shall be dissatisfied with such provision it shall be lawful for such member to apply to the District Court Judge of the District within which the usual place of business of the Society is situated for relief or other order and the said Judge shall have the same powers to entertain such application and to make such order or direction in relation thereto as he may think the justice of the case may require as hereinbefore provided in regard to the settlement of disputes And in the event of the dissolution or determination of any Society or the division or appropriation of the funds thereof except in the way hereinbefore provided any Trustee or other officer or person aiding or abetting therein shall on conviction thereof before two Justices in a summary way be liable to be imprisoned with hard labour for any term not exceeding three months"? Yes; I told them it was illegal without making provision in the by-laws.
7089. And notwithstanding you knew it was illegal you permitted the division without placing yourself in communication with the Registrar? I was the only one who objected.
7090. If twenty men told you to commit a robbery you would not do it? There was no robbery about it.
7091. You took your money with the knowledge that you were participating in an illegal act? According to the Act, I knew it.
7092. You had no doubt it was illegal? None.

Mr.
T. Percival.
24 April, 1882.

7093. You had been President several times? Yes.
7094. Did you press at the meeting with anything like enthusiasm your view that they were committing an illegal act? Only in the usual way.
7095. Most of the members did not consider the illegality so long as they got the pounds? That was all.
7096. They did not go into figures? Not the slightest.
7097. And you consider it not a robbery? No; it was their own money, and they could do what they liked with it.
7098. President.] How much money have you paid into the Society? I have been a member twenty-two years next August, at 6s. 6d. a year.
7099. And you have received two bonuses of £2 each? Yes.
7100. And this participation in benefits? Yes.
7101. And you have paid £7 3s.? And 2s. entrance.
7102. And they have had the risk all the time of your death, and they still have that risk? Of course they have.
7103. What amount has your family received, your wife and daughter? My wife has received the same as me, and has paid the same.
7104. And what has your daughter received? 13s. 1½d.
7105. Any bonuses? No.
7106. Not old enough? No; will not be until she is twenty-six.
7107. How did you adjust the amount of payment to the members who received their proportion of the £300, if your daughter received 13s. 1½d. and you £4 17s. 4d. How was the amount proportioned? According to the number of years a member had been in the Society over sixteen years of age.
7108. Those that had been in the Society fifteen years and nine months received nothing? They would get nothing.
7109. And what proportion of the members would there be who did not receive anything? More than two-thirds of them.
7110. And do you and your full members regard that as fair? We considered that the parents pay for the children, and that the children are not entitled to it until they can pay for themselves.
7111. The parents do not receive it? Yes, they do.
7112. For those under the age of sixteen? We take no children unless their parents are there.
7113. What arrangement was made in order to give to the persons who were fifteen years and nine months members of the Society their proportion of the distribution of this £300? There was none.
7114. The parents received nothing from this on account of the children under the age of sixteen if they had been paying contributions for fifteen or fifteen and a half years? No.
7115. And you regard that as equitable and just? I do.
7116. Was any provision made for them? No, none whatever.
7117. But there was no objection to taking their contributions? No.
7118. Do you know what number of children under sixteen you have in the Society? Over sixteen, 177; from ten to sixteen, fifty-two; under ten, 154.
7119. Mr. Rubin.] They are not allowed to vote until they are eighteen? No; they are not summoned to attend the meetings until they are eighteen.
7120. How many members then from the age of eighteen are entitled to vote in that 177? There may be perhaps fifty not entitled to vote, because a great many of them are females.
7121. Would there be 100 males over eighteen? No.
7122. Mr. Slade.] As so many of these names opposite the moneys paid are signed by you in their name, had you any authority for doing it? Yes.
7123. Could you produce any authority for doing it? No, but I could get them.
7124. Can you produce any authority for those you wrote the persons names against the summons? I can get every one of them if they are not dead.
7125. Have you any hesitation in stating that the whole of the moneys are paid? Yes, every one of them.
7126. President.] Do you not think it opens the door to a great deal of fraud to have money paid and received in that way without the parties coming to receive the money? It would not pay some of them to come and get the money.
7127. But does it not place an officer of the Society in a false position to have to sign for receiving moneys? I do not think so.
7128. Do you not see how improper it is? Yes, I understand what you mean.

The Commission then adjourned until Friday, 28th April.

FRIDAY, 28 APRIL, 1882.

Present:—

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

7129. The President made the following report:—In deference to the wish of the Commission, I waited on the Registrar of Friendly Societies, Mr. Oliver, the day following the last meeting of the Commission, and reported to him the evidence which was given before the Commission by two officers of the St. Peter's Burial Society, disclosing the fact of a distribution of the sum of £300 amongst a portion of the members of that Society in 1879, in contravention of their own by-laws and of the Friendly Societies Act. I learned from Mr. Oliver that they had not filed returns for the last five years as required by the Act; and that if they had supplied the information it would have shown that this distribution had taken place, but having failed to supply the usual annual returns the Registrar had no knowledge of this misappropriation.

28 April, 1882.

misappropriation of £300. The Registrar informed me he was powerless in a matter of this kind; he had no staff, and no power to proceed against the defaulters. I pointed out the 13th section of the Act, which, I believed, gave full powers to the Registrar to proceed against such persons as misappropriated the funds of the Society, as had been done in this case. He advised me to communicate with the Crown Law Officers, and I told him that I should instruct the Secretary to send a copy of the evidence taken to the Attorney General, and call his attention to the 13th section of the Act, which, in the opinion of the Commission, was sufficient to clothe the Registrar with sufficient power to proceed against members or officers of Societies who misapplied the funds, and asking him to cause the necessary steps to be taken to prosecute the offenders, as the evidence disclosed a most outrageous misappropriation of funds.

Mr. George Lillie sworn and examined:—

- Mr. G. Lillie. 7130. President.] You are a member of a Friendly Society? I am.
7131. What Society? The Protestant Mutual Benefit Society.
28 April, 1882. 7132. Have you any rules with you? One copy.
7133. How long have you been a member? Since its formation.
7134. How long has it been formed? Since 1876.
7135. What office do you hold? Minute Secretary.
7136. Not the general Secretary? There are two Secretaries, the Minute Secretary and the Financial Secretary.
7137. Have you any Branches? No.
7138. What number of members have you? I am not certain; I think about thirty.
7139. What amount of funds have you? I am not certain about that, but I think about £150.
7140. What benefits do you give? £1 a week for a certain time, and then it is reduced.
7141. What funeral donation? £20, and when they are a certain number of years in it is increased; the utmost is £30.
7142. What amount of donation do you give in the case of the wife's death? Half.
7143. What contributions do your members pay? 1s. a week.
7144. Is that the whole of the payments? Those who register for the doctor pay 6d. a quarter extra.
7145. That is 2s. a year? Yes.
7146. What amount of money have you paid last year for sick benefits? I cannot say; I only got the notice on Wednesday, and have been unable to see the Financial Secretary or Treasurer, who have the books. The meeting is held to-night, and I will obtain all the information.
7147. Have you any knowledge of the amount paid for funeral donations during last year? Only one during the whole time.
7148. That is £20, I suppose? £20.
7149. Have you any knowledge of the amount of money received in contributions and initiation fees? Not the total amount; no, I could not say; the Financial Secretary and I were to make out a return for the five years, but on account of my being away it has not been done.
7150. Where do you meet? Waterloo Chambers, George-street.
7151. How many members did you initiate the last year? I do not know that there were any; perhaps three or four; between 1st January, 1881, and the present time there have been only four or five.
7152. How many left during that time? I suppose about as many left or have been struck off.
7153. Do you believe the Society to be in a good financial position? I do not.*
7154. Do you believe the contribution of 1s. a week is sufficient to ensure the payment of all the donations and sick benefits you provide for? I think so, but the risk is too great for such a small body of members.
7155. Is the Society open for the admission of any person of good fame and character? No, only to Protestants.
7156. Of any nationality? Yes; it was originally that, but it was altered.
7157. Do you believe with the small number of members the contributions are not sufficient to ensure a sound financial basis? I think not.
7158. Do you believe the Society will live? A few deaths would exhaust all the funds.
7159. And the Society come to a state of collapse? Yes.†
7160. How do you admit your members, are they subject to a medical examination? Yes.
7161. A searching examination? Yes, by a doctor.
7162. Have you had any persons admitted whose health you were doubtful about? Not by the doctor.
7163. What amount do you pay per head for medical attendance? 16s. to the doctor.
7164. How much to the chemist? According to the medicines he supplies.
7165. Your contributions are uniform? Yes.
7166. Do you approve of that principle? I do.
7167. Making the old and young pay alike? Yes.
7168. What proportion of old men have you in your Society? The mean age is about thirty, over thirty.
7169. You have a number of young men then? There are a number of young men.
7170. And some over forty? Yes, some about fifty.
7171. Making an average of over thirty? Yes, the average is over thirty.
7172. Are the present funds the largest amount you have ever had? Yes; it is gradually increasing.
7173. Have you found any inconvenience arising from the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act? No.
7174. Do you believe it affords sufficient protection to the members of the various Societies? Well, I think the Societies do pretty well as they like.
7175. Do you think that is a good state of things? I do not; I think we ought to have an actuary to go round and investigate the books, to publish the result of his investigation.
7176. And you regard the present system as a most farcical arrangement? I do not say that.
7177. You say the Societies do as they like? Well, I suppose it amounts to that.
7178. The Registrar did not demur to the registration of your rules? No.

7179.

* NOTE (on revision):—I mean that there is not enough of members to keep it in a good position.

† NOTE (on revision):—There is provision for making a levy at a death if the funds are below a certain amount, so that there will be always money in hand in case of sickness.

7179. Did he suggest any alteration? He suggested a rule that we should settle all our disputes ourselves. Mr. G. Lillie.
7180. Have you embodied that? I think so; it is there. 28 April, 1882.
7181. The decision of the Committee would be final? Yes.
7182. Have you had any cases of dispute which you have had to submit to this Committee? One case.
7183. And was it settled to the satisfaction of the members and of the Society? I have heard nothing more about it. He was not satisfied, but he did not take any steps in the matter.
7184. Have you any suggestions to make that might be of service to the Commission? I do not recollect any just now.
7185. Mr. Gelding.] How do you reconcile only charging a member 6d. a quarter for medical attendance and chemist with having to pay so great an amount? We do not charge them, it is simply a registration fee, as there are some members who prefer their own medical attendant; and if a member does not register for medical attendance the Society does not have to pay the doctor for him.
7186. Are you an off Branch of the Protestant Alliance? No, we are independent.
7187. What rent do you pay? 3s. 4d. a meeting.
7188. Do you believe in isolated Societies like yours? I do not.
7189. You think union is strength? I do.
7190. Mr. Abigail.] You have some knowledge of other Benefit Societies I understand? I was in another Society.
7191. And you have seen their workings? Yes; I had a good deal to do with one.
7192. Do you consider the supervision exercised by the Registrar is sufficient? I do not.
7193. Would you favour a Government Actuary to scrutinize the accounts? Yes.
7194. I suppose in this small Society there has been no misappropriation of funds in any way? No.
7195. Mr. Gelding.] Are your meetings well attended? No.
7196. The members have no interest I suppose? No; they pay their money, and that is all.

7197. President.] Have you brought the papers with you, the balance-sheets? I have brought this return sheet (the Commission's return). Mr. T. Forsyth.
7198. Does it show the amount of money you received last year? Yes. 28 April, 1882.
7199. What was the amount of contributions received during 1881? It shows contributions and initiations.
7200. What do they amount to for last year? £436 18s. 1d.
7201. That is the receipts from all sources? All except interest.
7202. And what was received for Bank interest? £47 13s.
7203. What was the amount expended for medical attendance and chemist? The doctor finds his own medicines; £164 10s. 7½d.
7204. What was paid on account of sick pay? £133 12s. 1d.
7205. And what for funeral donations? £40.
7206. What on account of working expenses? Salaries, £17 18s. 4d; rent, £6 12s., including refreshments for Auditors; printing, &c., £10 2s. 4d.; and there is £3 15s. loss on demonstration; making a total of £38 7s. 8d.
7207. What was the nature of the demonstration which made a loss? A procession through the town.
7208. Do you often have demonstrations in connection with the Society? At odd times.
7209. And have you generally made losses? It is a loss at the time, but it is a gain to the Lodge?
7210. Do you apply the funds of the Society to demonstrations? Well, it was a loss, and was paid out of the funds.
7211. Are not the funds of your Society contributed by the members for a specific purpose, to provide medical attendance, chemist, funeral donation, and so on? Yes.
7212. And do you think it is in conformity with the Act that you should apply the moneys for any other purpose than that? Well, I opposed the vote myself, but it was carried.
7213. You disapprove of it? Yes; it is not in accordance with the Act.
7214. What has been the amount of money paid on account of funeral donations during the past five years? The first four years we were under the District; they paid £75 and we paid £40 for the last year; that will be £115 altogether.
7215. What has been paid on account of sick pay? £485 2s. 5d.
7216. What has been paid for working expenses? £166 4s. 7d.
7217. What has been the total amount of income during the like period of five years? £1,981 4s. 6d.
7218. Does that include interest? No.
7219. What was the amount received during the five years for interest on investments? £212 16s. 9d.
7220. Making a total income of —? £2,194 1s. 8d.
7221. What has been paid to the medical officer, including medicines? £662 4s. 7½d.
7222. What has been the total cost for all purposes during the last five years? £1,436 12s. 7½d.
7223. What is the total amount of funds now in hand? At the end of last year, cash, £1,076 12s. 9½d.
7224. In the early part of your Society you were attached to the Sydney District? Yes, four years out of the five.
7225. And do you find the position of the Society better now than when you left the District? Oh, yes.
7226. Improved in every way? Oh, yes.
7227. Do all your members undergo a strict medical examination before being admitted? Yes.
7228. Have you had any occasion to refuse candidates proposed in consequence of being unsound in health? It is left to the doctor.
7229. But have you any case within your knowledge? Yes, one.
7230. He was refused? By the doctor.
7231. Have you had persons admitted who subsequently proved to be in an unsound state of health? It has never been proved.
7232. Have you had any grounds to surmise that such has been the case? No.
7233. You believe all the members are in a sound state of health when admitted? If we go by the doctor.

Mr.
T. Forsyth.
28 April, 1882

7234. What has been the experience of yourself and the other officers? We have not had a deal of sickness; our losses have been more by accident; one member had his leg taken off, and others with broken legs; another had an injury to his back.
7235. Do you admit persons of all occupations? Yes, anyone.
7236. Have you found in the working of your Society any inconvenience from the present Act? Well, no.
7237. Do you believe it affords all the protection and shelter that the members ought to receive from the Statute? Yes, with that and our by-laws.
7238. Have you altered your by-laws recently? Yes.
7239. In what direction have they been amended? We increased our benefits from what we had when we left the District; we increased the sick benefits from £1 to £1 1s. for the first six months, and from 10s. to 12s. 6d. for the next six months.
7240. Mr. Abigail.] Do all the members take the benefits? Not all of them; like myself, I would not take the benefits, unless I was laid up in bed.
7241. Are many members in that position? In town there are over a dozen.
7242. That would assist the accumulation of your funds? I know where there have been two members laid up, and they would not take the benefits.
7243. Have any of your members been deprived of their benefits through any informalities in complying with the laws? No; of course they would be deprived of benefits while under suspension.
7244. But suppose a man falls sick and fails to send in a declaration at the proper time, does that deprive him of his benefits? If he can give good proof it was not through neglect it does not. We had a case of that sort a few weeks ago; a man was taken dangerously ill, and the certificates did not arrive; we went by the doctor's certificate, and gave him his benefits.
7245. Have you studied the Friendly Societies Act? I have read it through.
7246. You think it answers the purposes for which it was passed? We have never had any cause to try it.
7247. Do you send your returns in regularly to the Registrar? Yes.
7248. Duly audited? Yes.
7249. By whom? By members appointed by the Lodge.
7250. Have you seen the balance-sheets or examined them after they have been audited by these members? They have audited them in the Lodge-room in my presence.
7251. Do you find them tolerably correct always? Yes.
7252. No mistakes? No, there are no mistakes made.
7253. Do you think that style of auditing is sufficient, or would you favour a Government examination of accounts? I am not particular so far as that goes.
7254. But do you think it would be a protection to Societies to have a supervision of that kind? I believe it would be a benefit to Societies to have them properly audited every five years by an Actuary.
7255. You are in favour of an actuarial calculation into the affairs of these Societies? Oh, yes, because it greatly lies with the Secretary, the Auditors not being acquainted with the style in which the books may be kept; there may be many a little item with which they are not conversant.
7256. Have you had any cases of misuse of your funds at any time; have any of the officers misappropriated the funds of the Society? No, only the error I made mention of last week.
7257. Have you ever disputed the claims on the Society? No.
7258. Always paid the bills when sent in after due examination? I keep proper returns of members returned to the doctor, and so his bill has to agree with the accounts I keep.
7259. Mr. Holdsworth.] You said your Society has improved since you left the District; if your funds run low what provision would your members have? Under the circumstances, if we belonged to the District, we should have no run of sickness any more than other Societies; the District would suffer the same, and would not be in a position to pay us.
7260. Have you not known of cases where one Lodge has had a most unusual number of deaths, while others have escaped? I cannot say I have.
7261. Are you not aware that it can be seen in almost any lot of returns of Societies that some sections suffer much more severely than others? Yes.
7262. Well, what protection would your members have in such a case? They would have no more protection than what is provided in the by-laws.
7263. Then if you exhausted your funds they would be left out in the cold? Oh, that is an impossibility.
7264. Have you ever given any actual consideration to the matter of Benefit Societies, to the risks? I do not understand the question.
7265. Have you ever considered the question of risks in connection with Benefit Societies? No more than our own is concerned.
7266. You have not considered the question as to the advisability of centralizing bodies of men so as to divide risks equitably over as wide a field as possible? We found it was so expensive; that is the only consideration I have given.
7267. Wherein was it expensive? Levies.
7268. What were the levies for that were so expensive? Well, there were levies for the Funeral Fund, and levies for incidental expenses, and for the Superannuation Fund.
7269. Have you all these funds in connection with your own Branch now? We have the Sick and Funeral Fund, and the Incidental Expense Fund.
7270. Superannuation Fund? No, we provide for that in our rules.
7271. Mr. Newland.] Would there be any difficulty for you to give the average rate of sickness of your members between the respective ages for the last five years? I could not do it.
7272. Is your Society one of those I see is buying some property at Parramatta for a Friendly Societies' Hall? There is no Society in Parramatta doing that.
7273. I see the Societies have done so? The members of the Societies have done so.
7274. Using their own funds? Their own private money.
7275. They have no authority from any of the respective Lodges for buying this property? There were delegates appointed from the respective Societies empowering them to buy a piece of property and build a hall; but it was more amongst the members; it was not to be put in the name of the Society.
7276. But if the Society empowered the delegates to do this it would be answerable? No.

Mr.
T. Forsyth.
28 April, 1882.

7277. Mr. Slade.] You mean you gave the patronage of the Society? We will be put out of our own meeting-room by the Licensing Act, and we have to go somewhere.
7278. Did they pledge themselves to any outlay? No.
7279. Mr. Newland.] The Societies are not committed by any act of their delegates? No.
7280. Mr. Slade.] In your rules, have you adopted the principle of graduated payments? No, not for contributions.
7281. Have you made any special arrangements for superannuation? We have in the rules; a member is six months on the funds at a guinea, six months at 12s. 6d., and then 6s. a week; and a free member as long as the sickness may last.
7282. Do your rules give you power to sue for arrears of contributions? No.
7283. Have you ever done so? No.
7284. You mentioned in your balance a loss on demonstrations, how much was it? In the five years there were four, £19 14s. 3d.
7285. Did you at any of your previous demonstrations have a balance which would cover that if brought forward? I believe there was a balance some years ago, but it would not cover that.
7286. Did it go to the credit of the Society? I believe so.
7287. Then whatever balances there may have been in favour of the Society have been used by the Society? Yes.
7288. Was your separation from the Sydney District a friendly one? Yes.
7289. Did you have your funeral gifts guaranteed for a year and paid? Yes, and paid.
7290. How much did you draw? We drew £15; it was due just before that.
7291. Are you still attached to the General Order in the Colony? Yes.
7292. Are any of your members still attached to the General Widow and Orphan Fund in the District? Yes.
7293. Could you tell us how many? About fourteen.
7294. Then, with the exception that you do not pay levies or draw funeral gifts from the District, your position is the same as it was before? Exactly.
7295. Mr. Gelding.] Have you any more assets than are shown in this balance-sheet? No.
7296. Then virtually you had not over £2,000 to your credit at the end of the year? No.
7297. What did the Treasurer hold in hand on December 31st? About £70.
7298. I see the average gives about £6 6s. per member; do you consider that a good average to hold per head? I think so; we are always accumulating; it makes very little difference.
7299. You think it is immaterial? No, it is not immaterial, but if we have not got it we cannot hold it.
7300. Do you not think you should have a good average in hand in order to meet probable liabilities? That is why we left the District.
7301. And you have been increasing ever since? Yes.
7302. Mr. Smith.] Would not success have followed your operations if you had been attached to the District? No; it would have cost us £80 a year for levies.
7303. President.] Have you anything further to add to the evidence already given by you? Are you going to bring forward a new Act?
7304. In all probability? Well, our Lodge is of opinion that if such a thing was to take place it is only just that there should be some provision made to grant the Societies grants of land for building purposes. It must be admitted that the Societies are a great assistance to the Government, as many a man is kept out of the poor-house by his Society.
7305. You think then that the Government should make provision in any future measure that may be passed to provide either places of meeting or sites for halls, and by that method encourage the Societies? Yes, I think so.
7306. Have you anything to suggest in the way of legislation in the shape of an amendment that might be useful? No, not as far as our Lodge is concerned; we have had no occasion for anything of the sort.
7307. You think the present Act is sufficient for all purposes? For the present, and so far as our Society is concerned.
7308. You have nothing to suggest? No more than that.
7309. Mr. Smith.] You left the District in consequence of the District levying 2s. 3d. per member? In order to better our position.
7310. Will you point out how they benefited their position by leaving the District? By leaving the District we have been enabled to give better benefits than we did before, and have doubled our funds.
7311. And would that not have followed if you had continued to work under the District? Oh, no, we should have lost, this last two years especially.
7312. Then it was not in consequence of high levies you left the District? Well, it was in consequence of the levies that we left.
7313. What were the levies at the time you were leaving per member per quarter? I could not answer that for certain, but I think they were 2s. 3d. per member per quarter.
7314. Will you swear they were 2s. 3d.? No.
7315. You are not in a position to say what the levies were? Not to a certainty.
7316. Mr. Slade.] In regard to the matter of arbitration, would you favour the establishment of an Arbitration Board, composed of (say) the Registrar, with other members of Friendly Societies, to form a final Court of Arbitration to settle all disputes, instead of going to law? I do not think it would make any difference myself; they would both be expensive.

The Commission then adjourned until Monday, 1st May.

7318. What office do you hold? Presidentess.
7319. How long have you held office? Ten years.
7320. How long has the Society been established? Thirteen years.
7321. And how long have you been a member? Thirteen years.
7322. It is a total abstinence Society? A total abstinence Society.
7323. It is confined wholly to members of the Roman Catholic Church? Yes.
7324. What number of members have you at present? Either fifty-six or fifty-seven.
7325. Full members? Full members.
7326. Is that the largest number you have ever had? No, we have had as high as 100.
7327. They have left the Society? Some have left the Society, and others have got married and gone into the country.
7328. Others have broken their pledge I suppose? Very few.
7329. What contributions do you pay? 7½d. a week.
7330. And what are the benefits? 10s. a week sick pay, doctor and medicine.
7331. And what in case of death? £10.
7332. And what is the amount of funds at your credit at the present time? £55 19s. 2d.
7333. Have you any money in the hands of the Treasurer? £7 7s. 6d.
7334. What are the initiation fees? According to age—from 2s. 6d. to £1.
7335. What is the limit of age at which you admit members? Forty-five.
7336. Have you many members over forty? Yes, I think we have a good many.
7337. What would be the average age of the members? About thirty.
7338. Then you have a number of young people? Yes.
7339. What amount do you pay the doctor and chemist? The doctor for each person 13s. 4d. a year.
7340. And how much the chemist? Sometimes it is higher than others; we pay according to the medicine supplied. Sometimes £9, £7, and as low as £5 a quarter.
7341. Mr. Gelding.] Averaging about £7 10s. per quarter? Yes.
7342. President.] And to what limit do the benefits extend—do they go beyond the member? To the children as well as to the member. Suppose the father, the husband of a member who has a family, is not in any Lodge himself, it extends to the children.
7343. How young do you admit members? Fourteen.
7344. Have you many from fourteen to twenty? No, I cannot say we have many.
7345. Do all your members undergo a strict medical examination before admission? Yes.
7346. By a doctor? Yes; he gives a certificate that they are in good health.
7347. Have you had many candidates refused? Yes; during the last two years we have had four or five.
7348. Who is the medical officer now? Dr. McDonough.
7349. Has he been the medical officer for a long time? For four years.
7350. Have you any provision in your rules for settling disputes? Yes.
7351. How are they settled? By a Committee appointed for that purpose.
7352. And do you find that work well? Yes, very well.
7353. And do you believe your financial position to be good and sound? Yes.
7354. And that the money you pay is sufficient to ensure all these benefits? Yes.
7355. Have you ever found any inconvenience from inability to meet your obligations? No; we have always had money in the Bank.
7356. Have you ever had a larger sum? Oh, yes.
7357. How was it reduced? By sickness.
7358. How many had you in 1881 on the funds? I do not know exactly; but one or two might be ill for a long time. One person has had a good deal of money out of it—£15 in one year.
7359. Have you found any inconvenience arising in the working of your Society from the Friendly Societies Act? No, none.
7360. Do you believe it affords all the protection necessary for the good government of your Society? Yes.
7361. When was your Society registered? 13th August, 1874.
7362. That is the date of the registration of the present rules? Yes.
7363. Did you seek to get the rules registered? No; we had a gentleman Secretary who kept the books, and he got them registered.
7364. But your name is attached to them? Yes.
7365. Does the Rev. Dean Sheridan take an active interest in the Society? Yes.
7366. Was it at his interest the Society was established? Yes.
7367. And he is still the Director? Yes.
7368. Does he attend your meetings? Yes, and takes the chair and settles disputes when required.
7369. He has always given you the benefit of his countenance and advice? Yes, always, and does still.
7370. How often do you meet? Every Wednesday night, one week for a Committee meeting, and the other for the financial meeting.
7371. And the subscription has never been more than 7½d. a week? No.
7372. You meet in St. Francis' Schoolroom? Yes.
7373. Mr. Gelding.] Do you think that the average you have of £1 per head is sufficient to meet your future liabilities? Yes, I think so.

7374.

7374. Has the Society been progressing or going back? It has gone back rather lately on account of having so many sick.
7375. Do members forfeit their membership if they get married? Oh, no.
7376. What does the Secretary receive? £2 a quarter.
7377. What do you pay for rent? £5 a year for room and gas.
7378. Are you making any members now at all? Yes.
7379. Young people? Yes, two this quarter.
7380. Mr. Langley.] Do you think there should be any description of Government supervision of the Societies in order to control the expenditure? I do not exactly know; so far our Society has gone on very well without being under any control.
7381. But I am taking the Friendly Societies as a whole? Oh, yes, I believe that.
7382. Mr. Holdsworth.] Your Society was originally started on the basis of the Daughters of Temperance? Yes.
7383. Mr. Abigail.] I see that on January 1st you had £103 1s. 9d. in the Bank; was there anything in the Treasurer's hands at that date besides this? No.
7384. That represents the whole of your money? Yes.
7385. And now you have £55 19s. 2d.? Yes; it was reduced to that by having two quarters chemist and doctor to pay; two payments being entered in the one quarter.
7386. What were the doctors expenses then? About £10 generally.
7387. Do I understand that in the quarter ending April two quarters bills were paid? There were.
7388. But it was a just debt I suppose? Yes, but the Secretary did not bring the books forward in time.
7389. What I want to show is that since January you are £50 less than at that date? Yes.
7390. You account for that by the excessive sickness I understand? Yes.
7391. Is there any guarantee that the same sickness will not occur again? They seem to be very well at present.
7392. You have now about £63 as an asset to meet the liabilities on fifty-seven members; upon what basis do you arrive at the conclusion that 7½d. is sufficient weekly subscription to enable you to meet all the liabilities that are now due; have you made any calculation in figures? No.
7393. Have you had any actuarial assistance, or assistance from a gentleman well competent? Yes, we had the books made up by an Auditor, to whom we paid £8 8s.
7394. But did he estimate how much outstanding liability there was? I do not think so.
7395. He simply certified to the correctness of the accounts? That is all.
7396. So far as you know, no estimate has been made of the accrued liabilities? Not that I know.
7397. So you are entitled to pay any of them who may die the funeral donation? Yes.
7398. Then if six of your members were to die you have not got the money to pay the funeral money? Yes, but I hope that will not be the case.
7399. And you say one person has had £15 sick pay? Yes.
7400. And is still entitled again? No, not to the full amount, unless it is any new sickness.
7401. You have always paid all lawful demands? Yes, all paid.
7402. Have you Trustees? Yes.
7403. Are they female or male? Dean Sheridan is one, I am another, and Mrs. Hill, of George-street, is the third.
7404. And the money is lodged in the name of all the Trustees? Yes.
7405. Do you send returns to the Registrar every year? This is the first year we have been required to do so.
7406. You have never sent any returns before? Not that I am aware of; the Secretary was instructed to do all these things, and he may have done so.
7407. Have you sent returns in for this year? Yes.
7408. Have you read the Friendly Societies Act? No, I have not.
7409. You are not in a position to give an opinion as to how far it applies to Friendly Societies? No.

Mrs. Mary Ann Baker sworn and examined:—

7410. President.] What Society do you represent? St. Francis' Sisters of Temperance.
7411. What office do you hold? Secretary.
7412. How long have you held that office? Four years.
7413. What was the total cost of your Society last year? £123 19s.
7414. And the receipts were —? £82 9s. 4d.
7415. I notice your payment on sick account was £30 16s. 6d.? Yes; it amounted to a great deal last year.
7416. Was it larger than the previous year? I think it was; there were five altogether sick—that is £2 10s. a week for a few weeks; and then there were four.
7417. Have you many members on sick pay at the present time? No.
7418. Do you remember during the time you have been an office-bearer so large a sum? Oh, yes, one year.
7419. Do you remember the amount? No, I do not.
7420. Have you any returns showing the amount of expenditure for the last five years? No; we had a paid Secretary, and it was left too much to him.
7421. You do not know what the receipts have been? No; except by the Bank books and other books; we could not fill up every little item.
7422. You have had no defalcations? No.
7423. And do you think 7½d. a week sufficient to ensure all these benefits the Society gives? It has done so far. We had £150 a few years ago in the Bank, but so many coming in sick runs away with it.
7424. If a member of the Society breaks her pledge, how do you proceed? She is summoned, and if she promises to reform she is allowed to come in, but is suspended for three months from all benefits; and after a second offence we do not allow any benefits for twelve months.
7425. Mr. Abigail.] You stated that there had been years in which there was as much sickness as last year? Yes.
7426. And it may occur again? Yes.
7427. Because you have the same members of the Society and they are entitled to benefits? Yes, though there are two not now in the Society that were on the books very often.

Mrs. E. M.
Lawrie.
1 May, 1882.

Mrs.
M. A. Baker.
1 May, 1882.

- Mrs. 7428. Have many of your members forfeited their benefits by breaking the pledge? No, not many.
M. A. Baker. 7429. Have you expelled any members during last year? No.
1 May, 1882. 7430. You stated to the President that too much of the affairs had been left to a paid Secretary? The books were left in his hands; we always kept an account of the expenditure in our own books; the Vice-President kept a book, I kept a book, and the Treasurer had a book, and we put the items down one against the other.
7431. So that every precaution was taken? Yes; there was no loss.
7432. Five years ago you had £150? Yes.
7433. So during that time you have gone back very much? Yes; we have had one death, and she was a long time on the books.
7434. Mr. Holdsworth.] What do you pay per week to your members? 10s.
7435. And what at death? £10.
7436. What is the cost of the medical man? 13s. 4d. per year.
7437. How much for medicine? We pay the chemist according to the medicine he gives to the members.
7438. Your rent is a nominal amount? £5 a year.
7439. Are you aware that without rent or any expenses the real amount you pay in the shape of benefits is more than your subscriptions per year? Yes, latterly it has been so.
7440. Are you aware that your sickness is nearly three times what ought to be your average? Yes, we know that, and feel it in the Society.
7441. Are all precautions taken to prevent imposition? Yes; we visit them at different times, and speak to the doctor occasionally.
7442. Is it as easy to detect sickness with ladies as with gentlemen? I think it is.
7443. Mr. Langley.] Do you remember how many members you had five years ago, when you had this £150? No, I do not; I think we had eighty or over.
7444. On that number of members you accumulated the sum of £150? When we first joined there was no benefit for twelve months, and we accumulated the money by these subscriptions without any benefits.
7445. Judging from what has resulted to your funds since that, can you say still that you think 7½d. is sufficient? It would be if there was not so much sickness.
7446. But I am taking the case as you put it; from the operation of the Society up to the present, do you still think 7½d. is capable of carrying on your Society? Yes; we always keep the benefits up.
7447. But on the subscription alone? We have found it sufficient.
7448. Looking on the funds at the end of the first year and now, are you still of opinion that 7½d. is sufficient to carry on your Society on a sound basis? I think so.
7449. You state that in the face of the decrease of your funds from this £150 to £56? Yes; you see a death makes a great deal of difference.
7450. Do you not think as your Society gets older there is greater liability to sickness and death? Certainly.
7451. And yet, though you have been losing money since your first year ----? No, not since the first year, we increased for three or four years.
7452. But since then you have been losing money steadily? Yes.
7453. And though you admit it is likely sickness and death will increase, you are still of opinion that 7½d. a week is sufficient? I cannot give any opinion on that at all.
7454. How many benefits have you had, and what have they been? We have had three tea-parties.
7455. How much did you make by them? £25 by one; I cannot say what by the others; one we made very little by, only clearing the expenses by a few shillings; by the third I think we made £10.*
7456. Then that has to be added to your ordinary contributions? Yes.
7457. And even that has gone? Yes.
7458. Then with these facts before you, on what do you base the opinion that 7½d. a week is enough? Some of the members have had money out of the Society, and have left subsequently.
7459. Is that not likely to take place in the future as well as in the past? Yes, I think it is.
7460. Mr. Rubie.] Have you any provision in your rules for making levies? Yes.
7461. So that in case the funds went down you could recoup them by a levy? Yes.
7462. And I suppose you base your opinion as to the funds holding out from the fact that you get now and then some benefit from a tea-party? Yes, and we can keep them three months without benefits if the funds run short. It has never been done, but it can be done.
7463. Mr. Gelding.] By what rule are you allowed to make a levy? There is no rule, but we have a resolution to do it.

The Commission then adjourned until Friday, 5th May.

FRIDAY, 5 MAY, 1882.

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
E. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
B. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,

JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. Patrick Salmon sworn and examined:—

- Mr. 7464. President.] What Society do you represent? St. Francis' Brothers of Temperance.
P. Salmon. 7465. What office do you hold? Trustee.
5 May, 1882. 7466. Have you held any other office? Latterly I have taken charge of the contributions in the absence of the Secretary.

7467.

* NOTE (on revision):—£25 should have been £6 clear of expenses, and the £10 should have been £2 clear of expenses.

Mr.
P. Salmon.

5 May, 1882.

7467. How long have you been a member? Going on for fourteen years. I am the oldest member in the Society.
7468. It is purely a Temperance Society? Yes.
7469. Confined to your own communion? Yes.
7470. What benefits do you give? £1 a week, doctor and medicine.
7471. And what funeral donation in case of death? £20 on the death of a member, and £10 on the death of a member's wife or unmarried brother's mother.
7472. What is the amount of the contributions paid? 1s. a week.
7473. A uniform subscription from all the members? From all the members.
7474. What amount of funds have you in hand at present? At the end of 1881, £60 12s. 3d.
7475. And what number of members have you? Forty at the present time; we had more than forty at the end of the year, but they were nearly run out in arrears, and have since been struck off. At the present time we have forty financial members entitled to receive benefits.
7476. What was the expenditure last year for medical attendance, chemist, sick pay, and funeral donations? Doctor's fees, £39 18s.; chemist, £19; sick allowances and funeral expenses, £67 8s. 7d.; postage stamps, stationery, and printing, £4 7s. 11d.; advertising, 8s.; accouchement fees, £1 1s. We pay no rent.
7477. What is the total amount of your expenditure? £152 9s. 6d.
7478. What was the total amount of your income for the year? £109 15s. 7d.
7479. Does that include interest? No, the Bank book was not made up.
7480. Do you remember the amount? About £3, as near as I can remember.
7481. What is the limit of age at which you receive members? Forty-five.
7482. Have you many members over forty-five? We have a good few.
7483. How do you proceed against members who break their pledges? We give them two chances; first of all they are summoned to renew their pledge —
7484. And then are they reinstated to full benefits, or do you suspend them? After three months they receive full benefits.
7485. The rules are the same as those of the Sisters of Temperance? Yes, only the contributions and benefits are larger.
7486. What is the largest number of members you have ever had? About 120.
7487. And how do you account for so many leaving the Society? I could not say, but I know a good many like a drop of drink, and they break their pledges.
7488. Do you observe that there has been a great loss upon the year's operations? Yes.
7489. Has anything of the kind occurred in any previous year? Oh, yes.
7490. As bad a year for the Society as last year? Yes; the contributions were less in 1880 than in 1881, but in 1881 we had two deaths, or rather one death and one that we superannuated. He had been receiving £1 a week for six months, and then 10s. a week; at the expiration of twelve months he received 5s. a week. It is then optional with us to give him the superannuation money at once or to leave him at the 5s. a week. We thought it better in this case to give him the £20. This accounts for the £40 put down to funeral expenses last year.
7491. Do you think that 1s. a week is sufficient to ensure all the benefits your Society gives to its members? It has been up to the present.
7492. But do you think it is likely to be in the future? I do not think it is, because we are getting no new members, and there is more likely to be a greater amount of sickness in future, as the members are every year getting old.
7493. What number of new members did you have last year? Only one.
7494. How many did you lose? I think five, through running in arrears; that is, in addition to the deaths.
7495. Can you tell me the amount of the expenses of the Society for five years? £244 8s. 4d.
7496. That includes everything? No; there is medical attendance, £338 13s.; and medicine, £73 11s.; and there is £70 10s.; making in all, £726 17s. 4d.; and two deaths, £80; or a total of £806 17s. 4d.
7497. What was the amount of money received during the five years? £776 16s. 7d.
7498. That would leave a loss of £30 on the five years? Yes.
7499. Do you not think that goes to prove that the contributions are too small to give the benefits your Society has given? Well, it does.
7500. And especially when the Society is exclusively confined to one communion? Yes.
7501. Have you had any disputes in your Society? Very little; we are pretty well united. The only dispute we ever had was in reference to a fine which we inflicted on a member; he took us to the Police Court, and we gained it.
7502. Have you found any difficulty in working your Society arising from the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act? No.
7503. Do you furnish the annual returns? Yes, regularly.
7504. Do the candidates submit themselves to a medical examination? Yes.
7505. Who is the medical officer? Dr. Moffitt at present.
7506. And he makes a careful examination of all candidates? Yes.
7507. Have any candidates been refused? Yes.
7508. Mr. Gelding.] Do you believe it advisable to pay for the deaths of single young men's mothers? Well, we made provision in the rules for that, and I think it is advisable, as the mother of a young unmarried man is dependent upon him.
7509. What is your opinion of the average capital possessed by your Society at present, £1 10s. per head; do you think it sufficient to meet your future liabilities? I do not think so.
7510. You believe your Society is virtually insolvent? I believe it is, to tell the truth about it. From present appearances, I have no hope it will be successful in the future.
7511. I presume, then, you think these isolated Societies cannot possibly work well? Well, I do not know; Societies may differ from each other; ours is a Temperance Society, and it has members who are not faithful. In other Societies there is no such restriction.
7512. How do you manage with brothers of the Society who may leave the District in which it is established? They are country members.

Mr.
P. Salmon.
5 May, 1882.

7513. What do they pay? 9d. a week; the other 3d. a week goes for doctor and medicine for themselves, the 9d. meeting the sick pay and funeral expenses.
7514. I see according to your balance-sheets that you have been jumping up and down throughout the time of your existence? Yes.
7515. You do not think that is a healthy state? No, I do not.
7516. And the sooner it is wound up the better? I believe it will be wound up in spite of us, though I should be sorry to see it; but I cannot see any prospect of its being a success.
7517. How often do you meet? Once a week.
7518. Where do you meet? St. Francis' Hall.
7519. Mr. Slade.] Do you summon your members by post? Yes.
7520. Do you account in this way for so large an outlay as 2s. 2d. a member per year for postage? No; that includes stationery and printing.
7521. Do you think there is any chance of your Society remodelling their contributions to a proper amount and keeping along if they were recommended to do so? Well, I dare say they might; those we have at present seem to pretty well adhere to the rules, but it has not been suggested.
7522. Do you not think forty persons with sufficient subscriptions would be enough to form a strong Society? I think they would if the contributions were raised.
7523. Do you think 15d. a week would be a fair rate of contribution? I think it would be too much; the members would not like to have to pay so much.
7524. You went back £40 last year? That includes two deaths that we had last year.
7525. But as the money you received goes into one general fund, and all liabilities are paid out of this fund, it is income against expenditure, and you see you do not have income enough according to your Society's working. Do you think 14d. or 15d. would put you into a proper state? I think 14d. would be sufficient; that is my opinion.
7526. Mr. Newland.] What does a member pay for the registration of his wife? There is no such thing.
7527. Then a member's wife or mother is entitled to the benefits of your Society, no matter at what age, without any registration fee whatever? Yes.
7528. Could you tell what is about the average age of your members? Taking them on an average I should say about thirty; there are some forty-eight or fifty.
7529. Would fifty be the oldest? Yes, I should think so.
7530. Were any of your funds devoted to the building of St. Francis' Hall? Yes.
7531. Have you still an interest in the hall? There was a meeting called of all the members, and they unanimously agreed to give £100 to clear off the debt, with the understanding that so long as the Society was in existence they had the use of the hall and light for nothing.*
7532. And how long is it since you gave this? About seven years.
7533. Was your Society registered at that time? Yes, it has been registered thirteen years.
7534. Do you devote any of your funds towards any other freehold property? At no time.
7535. In the event of your Society not being able to meet its demands, would they have any claim on the Trustees of the hall? No, none.
7536. Mr. Holdsworth.] If I understand you right, where a member is single his mother receives the funeral money, and if the mother died he would receive the money? Yes.
7537. I presume the mother is always older than the son? Very likely.
7538. And as a rule the wife is not older than the husband? We make no difference in that respect.
7539. Have you ever considered how much you increase your risk by taking the mother instead of the wife? We never looked into it.
7540. You have been asked as to what amount is a fair average; have any of you ever given any consideration as to the actual risks? No, we have not.
7541. Mr. Abigail.] Your Society is a religious as well as a benefit Society? Yes.
7542. Do you, in the affairs of your Society, exercise any control over its members outside the Lodge? No, except in the quarterly communion meetings, when we summon them to attend the Church instead of the Lodge.
7543. But do you control their actions outside the Lodge; for instance, if a member is a public man are his public acts controlled by your Society? No, we have nothing to do with that.
7544. I see in the introduction to your rules it states your Society "has now stood the test of time, and has stood it well." Is that correct in your opinion? That is up to the time the rules were revised, in 1874; it did so up to that time.
7545. What funds had you at that time? I think we had close on £300; I know for the first three or four years we had as much as £250 or £300.
7546. So that during the last eight years you have gone about £250 back? Yes; we had about 120 members then, most of whom were then young men, and we had but few deaths for the first three or four years. When we first established we had a temperance organization, the meetings being held in the Church; we put our heads together and thought it would be advisable to have a Benefit Society in connection with the Society, and requested the Vicar-General to give us his approval, and he consented. That is how we formed the Society. For the first twelve months sixteen or eighteen of us stuck together, and paid our contributions and entrance fees until we had a fund to have a doctor for the benefit of the members who came afterwards. I had been paying into the Society for eleven months when I met with an accident, breaking three fingers, but I got no benefits.
7547. That is to say that a number of members entitled to benefits did not claim them? That was on the formation of the Society.
7548. Does that apply to members now? No, they do take them.
7549. I see you admit members up to forty-five? Yes.
7550. Have you ever admitted any up to forty-five? No.
7551. But there can be no question about the fact that for the last eight years you have gone back considerably? We have fallen back no doubt.
7552. You have stated that you have no hopes for the future prosperity of the Society? I have no hopes.
7553. Have you brought that before the members? No.
7554. Has it been brought before the members? It has been talked over with the idea of trying the workings of a temperance crusade, and we asked the Vicar-General what was his opinion; he gave us every encouragement, and said he would hold meetings.

7555.

* NOTE (on revision) :—Instead of £100 it should be £30, as that is all we ever gave.

Mr. P. Salmon. 5 May, 1882.

- 7555. It is a fact that for the last eight years Is. a week has not been sufficient? It has not.

- 7563. And they would disclose the fact that your Society has been going back? The same as you have seen them.

- 7567. Had they drawn benefits? Yes.

- 7575. Mr. Greville.] What is the amount paid annually to your spiritual director? £6 10s.
- 7576. It is a variable amount, is it not? No.
- 7577. Do you also pay for the masses said at the death of a member, or does that include it? Well, the member himself generally gets that done.
- 7578. But by your rules you have to pay it? I am not aware that we have done it.
- 7579. Your 13th rule says "the spiritual director shall receive from the funds of the Guild the usual honorarium for each mass," can you tell me whether that is complied with? I am not aware that it has been done; but if the members were united to pass a resolution to have it done they would agree to have it done.
- 7580. Do you know what "the usual honorarium" is? 5s. in these cases.
- 7581. But you cannot say whether this has or has not been paid? I cannot.

- 7584. When was your Society instituted? In 1852.
- 7585. Were you at any time connected with the District Grand Lodge of Oddfellows? We were.
- 7586. How many years ago? We became a neutral Lodge in 1861.

- 7590. And how long have you been a member? Twenty-four years.
- 7591. What number of members have you? Eighty-nine.
- 7592. Have you ever had a larger number than that? Yes; we are decreasing since we became neutral; we have been up as high as 120.
- 7593. How do you provide for members' clearances from your Society into the country? We are not in a position to give a clearance, as we are not acknowledged by the District.
- 7594. What provision do you make for such members? None; when they leave us they are no longer Oddfellows.
- 7595. What is the amount of contributions paid by your members? A shilling a week.
- 7596. And what is the amount of the initiation fee? According to age.
- 7597. Do you make any other charges on your members? We had formerly a Widow and Orphan Fund, but it was disconnected from ours, and it is now defunct.
- 7598. What amount of funds have you to your credit? £1,028 0s 3d.
- 7599. That includes the freehold property that you have? All that we are possessed of.
- 7600. There is £1,000 in freehold property? Yes, that is what we assess the value of our hall.
- 7601. What was your total income for last year? £279 9s. 7d.

- 7603. And you made a very small profit of 25s. 11d.? That is all.
- 7604. Do you let the hall for any other purpose? Yes, by which we have a "Building Fund." We let it to the Council of Education as a school, at a rental of £52 per annum. This is added to the general fund to make up the total.
- 7605. Is this Building Fund included in the total worth of the Society's funds which you have named? No.
- 7606. And what is the value of it? £110 16s. 8d.
- 7607. That is a separate fund, in addition to the £1,028 0s. 3d.? Yes, different from the general fund.
- 7608. And would it be available in case you require a fund for sick pay and funeral donations? Yes.
- 7609. What was the original cost of the purchase of the hall? We built the hall ourselves, and I think it cost something like £800. We pulled down a dilapidated old building, and the old materials were utilized,

Mr. T. Etherington. utilized, the contract being something like £700. The property is our own now, clear; though, to assist us at one time, we had to borrow from one of the Building Societies, but the money has been repaid, and the building is now our own.

5 May, 1882.

7610. How many members have left the Society during the last year? About four.

7611. How many have you initiated? None.

7612. Do you give the usual benefits to your members? Yes.

7613. Do all your members pass a medical examination? Yes; they must do so before they are initiated.

7614. And do you approve of your Society standing aloof from the general bodies? No; I have opposed it, and I am one of a deputation to wait upon the Druids to-night with a view to amalgamation. There are a good many of us who would be glad to go back, but we have always been beaten. The last resource is now that we must do something unless we go insolvent, because the finances are getting less and the members are getting older; hence we purpose to go into any Society that will accept us. Last meeting night I summoned the whole of the members to attend, with the view of seeing whether the Druids would accept us. The following letter has been written to them:—

Wednesday, April 19th, 1882.

Sons of Perseverance Friendly Society, neutral body, formerly of the G. U. O. of Oddfellows.
To Mr. HUMPHRY, Grand Master, Ancient Order of Druids.

Dear Sir and Brothers,

It was proposed, seconded, and resolved on meeting night, April 17th, 1882, being a special summons meeting night for the occasion, I have been requested to write to you to ask for information in reference to amalgamation with your Order. We are at present a neutral body from the Grand United Order of Oddfellows. We have about ninety-seven financial members; our average ages are about forty-nine years. I also enclose our last quarter's balance sheet for further information.

If you will kindly answer this note as soon as convenient, you will greatly oblige—

Your obedient servant,

THOMAS ETHERINGTON,

Secretary, Sons of Perseverance Lodge.

Residence, 38 Queen-street, Woollahra.

Our intention is this evening to wait on the Grand Master or Grand Secretary, with a view of getting some information.

7615. Have you had any conference with your members with a view of dissolving the Society? Last meeting night was in reference to the matter.

7616. Was there a proposal to sell the property? No; we could not in consequence of so many members remaining in the Society; we have a law that we cannot sell while so many remain together.

7617. But there was a desire to dissolve and sell the property? There was on the part of some, but the majority desired to see the Society progress if it possibly could do so.

7618. On what terms and conditions do you desire to join the Druids, supposing they are agreeable? I do not know.

7619. What has been the total expenditure in your Society for the last five years? £1,228 10s. 3d., excluding funeral donations, which I cannot give just now.

7620. Will you kindly furnish the Commission with the amount paid on account of funeral donations? Oh, yes.

7621. Can you tell me the total receipts for five years? No; I am not prepared with that, but I will let you have it.

7622. Can you tell the Commission whether the receipts for five years have been equal to the expenditure? Well, I believe it is rather under than over; the last five years we have been decreasing every way—the members have been getting less, and the finances have been less.

7623. The members have been growing older, and the liabilities greater? It must be so.

7624. Have you found any inconvenience arising from the working of the Act? No.

7625. Do you furnish your annual returns? Yes.

7626. Do you consider your Society well managed? To speak fairly, I consider we are not well managed; myself and the Treasurer are the only two who are representing our Society; I believe it would be better if we were amalgamated with some other Order.

7627. Will you send all the information in as soon as possible to the Secretary? Yes, with pleasure.

7628. What would the average age of your members be? About forty-nine years.

7629. Are there many of the old original members still in the Society? The majority of them are old members.

7630. Some sixty years of age? Some over sixty.

7631. Mr. Gelding.] You do not believe that isolated Friendly Societies can exist? No, I believe in amalgamation.

7632. Your Society has been going back since 1876? —

7633. I see ten years ago the value of your property was £300? That is very likely.

7634. Do you consider your property has risen in value to the extent of £700? Yes, I do, in that neighbourhood.

7635. You have only £30 tangible funds? That is all from the general fund.

7636. What special levies do you make? We have in a short quarter of six weeks 1s. 6d. a member; and 1s. 9d. in a long quarter.

7637. What is the meaning of the item "Travelling expenses"? We had a brother living at Balmain who was sick and another volunteered to go and visit him, and had his steamer fare paid by the Lodge.

7638. Is it a rule of your Branch to do this? It has never been done before.

7639. Have you considered the liability existent upon members being forty-three years of age? Well, there might be a liability.

7640. Have you ever tried any other Society? Not to my knowledge.

7641. You say that it was against your wish that you left the Grand United Order of Oddfellows? Undoubtedly it was; there is nothing like unity.

7642. Were the Grand United Order of Oddfellows willing to accept those who were against this proposition to secede? Well, we never divided upon that point; if we left the Lodge we should have had to throw up our contributions and leave it.

7643. The impression abroad is that your Lodge is very sound financially? You have the figures before you; you can judge for yourself.

7644. Mr. Smith.] You have not initiated any members for the last four years? I do not think we have, but I am not positive.

Mr. T.
Etherington.

7645. Do you think that is owing to the fact that you have adhered to a high scale of initiation fees? No; they have been as they are now for many many years.

5 May, 1882.

7646. You are aware of the fact that the largest Societies, such as the Manchester Unity and Foresters, take members at eighteen years of age for from 7s. 6d. to 5s.? I am aware of that.

7647. And you charge them a guinea? Yes.

7648. Has that not operated against your Society? I do not think so; the neutrality has operated against the Society.

7649. It is a fact that since 1879 your Society has been living on the rent of the building to a great extent? It has been a great assistance to us.

7650. In looking back I see you have gradually been losing money since 1879? We have been decreasing for years.

7651. A very large number of your members receive a sick allowance; they are frequently on the funds of the Society? Some quarters more than others.

7652. That would result from the fact that all your members are old members? They certainly are in the majority now; we have some young ones; some under forty, but not a great many, perhaps five or six.

7653. Have you had many disputes in connection with your Society since you seceded from the District? No, not any of any account; no more than the dispute between us and the District.

7654. Have you had to resort to litigation in any cases? No, not to my knowledge.

7655. Have any of your funds been misappropriated in any way? Years ago there was a brother of the Society that did place some of the funds to his own account, and had to suffer in gaol for it.

7656. Was that before or after you seceded? After.

7657. Was the hall purchased before or after you seceded? Before.

7658. Was the amount misappropriated large? About £120.

7659. Mr. Abigail.] Have you had any experience in any other Friendly Society than this? None whatever.

7660. When you were connected with the District, did you take any active part in the District work? No, I did not.

7661. So your experience is confined to your own Society? That is all.

7662. As an individual, are you in favour of Friendly Societies being permitted to invest their funds in building halls? Well, I think that if a Society gets a hall it is the first foundation to work upon, and it is one of the mainstays to uphold a Society.

7663. Would you permit them to use all their funds in this way, or limit them to a certain amount? Limit them to a certain amount.

7664. What percentage of the funds in hand would you limit them to? I should say about two-thirds, so as to keep a little in hand.

7665. You have no doubt your Society is not prospering? I do not see that it can possibly prosper.

7666. Are the benefits taken by the generality of the members, or is it confined to a few? Well, I do not think there are any particularly. There were one or two who tried a little to impose, but they were watched pretty carefully.

7667. Are any of them members of other Societies? We have members in our Society who are connected with other Societies such as Trades' Unions, but I do not know of others.

7668. Do you favour the principle of permitting members to join more than one Society? I say let him join as many Societies as he likes.

7669. You would treat it as an Insurance Society? Yes; the main thing is to see that he does not receive the sick pay unless he is sick.

7670. Are you in a position to say whether the supervision at present exercised by the Registrar is sufficient? I could not say.

7671. Do you consider that tabulated statements of the position of each Society should be prepared and published every year by a Government authority? I see no objection to it.

7672. Would you favour a Government inspection of the books and accounts of each Society? I think so.

7673. And supposing a Government officer found the Society going back for a number of years, would you have a provision in the Act to compel them either to raise their subscriptions or lower their benefits? We can make provision by adding a levy.

7674. Have you paid the Registrar any fees in any case? I do not recollect anything having ever been paid to him.

7675. Have you been called upon to consult him in any matters? No, none whatever.

7676. You send in your annual returns? Yes, I have sent them in every year.

7677. Mr. Greville.] Who assessed the value of your hall? I think the assessor connected with the municipality.

7678. But who assessed it for the purpose of entering it in your balance-sheet? I think it was done by the Clerk of the Municipality of Sydney.

7679. That is for the rates? Yes.

7680. And you have taken it at that? Undoubtedly.

7681. Who assessed it for the purposes of this balance-sheet? I think we have done so.

7682. When was this assessment made? Six or seven years ago, and it has become of more value since.

7683. What do you consider the present value of the property? It has risen perhaps 5 per cent. more.

7684. Where is the objection to your joining the parent Society, to which you were once attached? The objection is that we have a large number of members against us.

7685. And what is their objection? I have not heard it explained, and do not understand the reason.

7686. Would the District Lodge receive you back again? I think they would if we paid the demands we ought to have paid them.

7687. Then when you separated from them you were in their debt? Yes, and are so still.

7688. And can you tell the amount? I think I recollect seeing the bill; it is about £30.

7689. Do you believe the majority of your members would rather join the Druids now than go back to the District Lodge, simply for the purpose of avoiding the payment of these fees? It is very possible they would.

7690.

- Mr. T. Etherington.
5 May, 1882.
7690. Mr. Holdsworth.] You assign as a reason you cannot succeed that you are making no new members? No Society can prosper without young members.
7691. Do you not think a well-found Society should be able to provide for the protection of its members? Well, they cannot do so in all cases.
7692. Ought not a Society, if established on a correct basis, be enabled to make provision for the members when they grow old? They ought.
7693. Mr. Langley.] In any future legislation on the subject of Friendly Societies, do you not think it would be well to have a clause which would prevent a few members taking a Society away from the District, or Grand Lodge, as the case may be? Yes.
7694. Mr. Newland.] I see your rules were certified by the Attorney General in 1861; I presume that was the year your Society severed its connection with the Grand United Order of Oddfellows? In 1861 we became a neutral body.
7695. Had you the premises in Brisbane-street then? Yes.
7696. Was not the reason why you were expelled from the Order because you would not build up some windows fronting a lane? I believe there was an objection.
7697. You must have had the building then? No, that was an old building that we had, not the present one.
7698. Was that the reason you were expelled? Yes.
7699. Were you not re-admitted in 1871? I think we were.
7700. And you were then in connection with the District for two or three years? I think so.
7701. And were suspended because you paid no loaves? Yes.
7702. Seeing your Society had enrolled these rules in 1861, and that you rejoined the Grand United Order of Oddfellows in 1871, should you not have had new rules certified? No; these are the latest and only rules we are in possession of.
7703. Did you think it necessary when you became a neutral body again that you should get new rules or regulations? I do not think so; they would be of no service to us.
7704. I see these rules have not been certified by the Registrar at all? I think they were registered under the old Act.
7705. When you rejoined the District in 1871 did you accept the rules and regulations of the G.U.O.O.F? To my knowledge we have never had any other rules than these.
7706. When you rejoined the Order it was on the understanding that you would obey their rules and regulations? Undoubtedly.
7707. Then you were working under their rules? I never saw any other rules than these.
7708. Have you had a Widow and Orphan Fund in connection with your Society? We have.
7709. Is it still in existence? It has become defunct.
7710. How? The money was divided amongst the members of the Society who belonged to the Widow and Orphan Fund.
7711. How much was divided? I could not say.
7712. Was it £12? I do not know.
7713. Mr. Slade.] Did you ever take the subject of graduated subscriptions into consideration? No, I have not.
7714. What provision do you make for arbitration? We have a law.
7715. No arbitration Committee? Yes.
7716. Would you favour the establishment of an Arbitration Board comprised of representatives from the several Societies, with the Registrar for Chairman, to settle all disputes, instead of going to law? I think it is proper and just to act that way.
7717. Are your funds kept separate or paid out of one general fund? We have three funds—the Building Fund, the General Fund, and the Funeral Fund.
7718. Have you expended any money for testimonials in your Society? None whatever.
7719. Did you open negotiations with any particular Branch of the Druids? No.
7720. Only the Order generally? That is all.
7721. Did you take into consideration the financial position of that Order when you opened negotiations with them? We do not know it at the present time.
7722. Do you consider it necessary to take their position into consideration? I think it is very necessary to do so.
7723. President.] You have nothing further to add to your evidence? Nothing.
7724. Have you any suggestions to make? No, none whatever.
- The Commission then adjourned until Monday, 8th May.

7725. President.] To what Society do you belong? The Sydney Progressive Society of Carpenters and Joiners.
7726. How long has it been established? Eighteen years.
7727. What office do you hold? Secretary.
7728. How long have you held that office? Two years and three months.
7729. Have you held any other office? No.

7730. Have you brought any copies of by-laws? Yes (produced).
7731. What contributions do your members pay? 4d. a week at present, but there is a Revision Committee sitting, and they are about to raise it to 6d. a week; they have passed that already in Committee.
7732. That is the only payment you make? That is all, with the exception of 6d. a head on the death of a member.
7733. What benefits do you give? 10s. a week, and £10 on the death of a member if he is five years a member, and £5 if he is over twelve months a member.
7734. What other benefits do you give? Loss of tools, two-thirds of their value when new.
7735. There are no other benefits? No; but this loss of tools donation is not to exceed £10.
7736. Do you give any further benefits? No, that is all.
7737. You do not give any medical attendance? No.
7738. What amount of funds have you to your credit now? Something over £300; at the last quarterly balance it was £305, and we have had some £14 interest since then.
7739. How many members have you got? About 100 financial.
7740. Have the whole of your funds been made from contributions, or from picnics and so on? Contributions principally, though we sometimes realize on the Eight-hours Demonstration.
7741. But the whole of your funds, speaking generally, have been made by contributions? Yes, and by working the Society very cheaply.
7742. What were the receipts for last year? The total receipts, £131 5s. 1½d.
7743. What was the expenditure? £107 8s. 8d. last year; we had two members died, costing £20.
7744. Do you contribute much of your funds to strikes? We have to do it.
7745. You contribute this from the General Fund? Yes, but in very small sums, £5 and £10; we have given as much as £25; that is the most we have given at one time.
7746. Your by-laws provide for that, do they? No; I think it is done by a vote of the members.
7747. Have you had any desire to register your rules? I have not heard anything about it, though some time ago there was some talk amongst the members, but nothing definite has been done.
7748. How are your funds invested? In the Barrack-street Savings Bank.
7749. In Trustees? We have six Trustees.
7750. Have you had any defalcations? Not to my knowledge for ten years.
7751. Would it not be a greater security to your members to have your Society registered? No doubt, if it would not cost too much.
7752. You have no Branch Society? No.
7753. But members leaving Sydney? Leave the Society or send their contributions.
7754. A member of your Society would, if he went to Goulburn, lose all his contributions, I suppose? Well, a good many forward their contributions to me.
7755. Did many join the Society last year? Only eighteen last year.
7756. And how many left? Twenty-two went bad.
7757. What is the largest amount of funds you have had to your credit at any time? We have more now than ever before, some £56 or £57 since I took office two years ago.
7758. Have your candidates to be examined by a medical man? No.
7759. You take anyone? No; the member who proposes him has to certify to his health and good character.
7760. Do you have no medical examination? No.
7761. Have you found persons admitted who subsequently proved to be of unsound health? No, never.
7762. And no one has been refused in consequence of being in a bad state of health? No; every member is requested not to propose as a member one who is not a fit and proper person in every respect.
7763. Is there any age or bar to initiation? Yes, it is 3s. under forty, and 5s. over forty.
7764. Do you go beyond forty? Yes; I do not think there is any limit.
7765. You would take a member sixty years of age? I do not think there is anything to prevent such a man from joining, if proposed and seconded.
7766. There is nothing in your rules? There is nothing to prevent it.
7767. What is the object of increasing your weekly contributions? It is to raise the funds principally; we were about getting a banner, and I think that is the principal thing, and to recoup some of the losses we have had, such as the miners and carriers on strike.
7768. Then your Society is more a Trade Society than a Benefit Society? Yes, it is a Trade Society, though we give benefits.
7769. Are many of your members members of Friendly Societies? A great many—I daresay two-thirds or more.
7770. Mr. Gelding.] You have also other levies besides the 6d. of each member at death? Yes.
7771. I see the delegates are paid 1s. a week? That is for working the Society—the delegates to the Trades and Labour Council.
7772. How many delegates are there? Two.
7773. Mr. Slade.] Have you any provision in your rules for settling disputes? No, none.
7774. Has the applicability of present Act to your Society ever been considered by the Society in itself? Not latterly, to my knowledge.
7775. Is the money paid into one fund and from that disbursed? It is all in the Barrack-street Savings Bank.
7776. You do not keep a separate fund? No; we have one book, which we call the working book.
7777. Do you subscribe to support other trades out on strike? We vote the money out of our funds.
7778. To what extent? We voted £30 to the carriers, £50 to the Newcastle miners, £25 to the Seaman's Union, and we make an annual vote to the Sydney Infirmary of £5. For loss of tools there was, at a rough estimation, £241 2s. 8d. during five years; sick pay, £33; funeral donations, £51, during the same time.
7779. Is there no combination amongst yourselves by which they have a claim on your Society? None whatever.
7780. It is purely voluntary on your part? It is optional whether we give anything or not.
7781. Mr. Newland.] What expense is your Society under to the Trades and Labour Council? 2d. per member per quarter.
7782. Is it the intention of your Society to be registered? That I could not answer; I have not heard anything latterly in connection with it, but there is no doubt we will be registered.

Mr.
T. Comber.
8 May, 1882.

- Mr. T. Comber. 7783. Mr. Rubie.] Are you supposed to support members out on strike? No, we are not supposed to.
 7784. But by your 30th rule? Well, that has never been kept to; I have never known a member to be out on strike, but there is no doubt the rule would be carried out.
 8 May, 1882. 7785. Would there be an additional levy made then? No.
 7786. And would the funds you now pay be sufficient to support any number of men that might be on strike? I do not know; there never has been a case of the kind.
 7787. But suppose there were ten or twelve members, you would be bound to support them according to that rule? Yes, they would be bound to do it.
 7788. Would you exhaust the funds before you made a levy? I think they would make a levy before the funds went too far.
 7789. Mr. Holdsworth.] Did I understand you to say you did not consider this was a Benefit Society? It is reckoned a Trade Society, though we give benefits.
 7790. You give so much per week in case of sickness, and so much in case of death or death of a wife, you also give so much for loss of tools by trade; are you aware that these are classes of benefits specially provided for as things which constitute a Friendly Society? Yes.
 7791. Then, being a Friendly Society within the proper meaning of the word, do you not think it necessary it should be registered? It is not my place to say; I have to consult my Society.
 7792. You have a provision made here for strike allowance? Yes.
 7793. What number of members did you say you had? 100.
 7794. If a strike took place amongst the carpenters, I presume your men would be loyal and do as others did? I think they are too sensible to strike.
 7795. Then you do not think it would be possible for a strike to absorb all your funds within a month? No, I do not.
 7796. Is there any special provision in your laws by which you can levy in case of running out of funds? No, only in case of a death.
 7797. Then if you were to exhaust your funds you have no provision by which you could protect your benefit members? No; but before the funds were exhausted the members would either go back to work or there would be a levy made.
 7798. Mr. Greville.] Do the officers of the Society through whom the money passes give security? No; it is not taken through any officer, the money passes through my hands, and the cheques have to be signed by the Secretary and President before money can be drawn.
 7799. But do either of you give security? No; the money is placed in the Bank in 'Trustees' names, and no security is required.
 7800. Mr. Abigail.] The prime object of your Society is to protect members as far as their trade is concerned? Exactly.
 7801. The benefit part is a secondary consideration? Yes.
 7802. But do you think, taking into consideration the benefits you offer, that the small contribution of 4d. a week is sufficient to guarantee the benefits? We do not; that is the reason for having our rules revised now.
 7803. Have you had occasion to consult the Friendly Societies Act in any of its particulars? No.
 7804. Have you been brought in contact with the Registrar? No.
 7805. You cannot say how far that Act applies to your Society? No.
 7806. Do you propose in any future laws to provide for a guarantee from the officers through whose hands the money passes? No.
 7807. You know the Friendly Societies Act makes provision that such shall be the case? No; I have not read it.
 7808. Have any of your members entitled to the funds failed to get them? Not to my knowledge.
 7809. Do they as a rule claim the benefits when they are entitled to them? Some do and some do not; they have to be a week sick before they can claim the benefits.
 7810. But are any of them in business as masters, so that when they fall sick they do not take the benefits? Yes, they do; they are members just the same as the journeymen.
 7811. As a rule they take the benefits? Some do and some do not.
 7812. Mr. Smith.] You have just stated you proposed to increase your contributions; do you propose to give additional benefits for that? No; the only additional benefit will be that we shall give the book of rules away for nothing, instead of charging 3d. for them.
 7813. President.] You have nothing further to add to your evidence, have you? No, nothing further.

Mr. William Soderholm sworn and examined:—

- Mr. W. Soderholm. 7814. President.] What Society do you represent? The Scandinavian Society.
 7815. How long has the Society been in existence? Since 1879.
 7816. How many members have you? Twenty-five—that is, in the Sick and Benefit Society.
 8 May, 1882. 7817. Have you ever had a larger number? No.
 7818. What is the total value of your funds? The whole funds are £22.
 7819. What are the contributions? They were 9d., but are now 1s. a week; they were increased in order to put the Society in a better position.
 7820. What benefits do you give? Free doctor and medicine and a guinea a week during sickness; £7 10s. on the death of a member's wife, and £10 on the death of a member himself.
 7821. That is, I suppose, providing that he has been twelve months a member? Yes.
 7822. What was your total income last year? I could not say.
 7823. Do you know the expenditure? £19 15s. 7d.
 7824. Do you consider your Society in a sound financial position? I think we are.
 7825. And what is the age of your members? Eighteen and upwards; the oldest member we have is fifty-five years of age.
 7826. And is it exclusively confined to Scandinavians? Yes; none are admitted but those born in Sweden, Norway, or Denmark.
 7827. No British subject is admitted? No; only Swedes, Norwegians, and Danes.

7828. Have you ever had a larger number than you have now? No.

7829. Your Society is registered? Yes.

Mr. W.
Soderholm.

8 May, 1882.

Mr. John Fitzhenry sworn and examined:—

7830. President.] What Society do you represent? The Friendly Trade Society of Ironmoulders.

7831. How long has the Society been established? Since 1872.

7832. What office do you hold? Secretary.

7833. How long have you held office? Two years this time. I previously held it for twelve months.

7834. How many members have you? About eighty-five at the present time.

7835. What contributions do your members pay? 1s. a week.

7836. All pay alike? Yes, while working at the trade, if at other labour only 3d.

7837. What benefits do you give? When a man has been in twelve months we call him a free member, and if he falls out of work he receives 10s. a week; and in the event of his receiving an accident in the shop while working at the trade he receives a guinea a week for thirteen weeks and 11s. a week for the following eight weeks, and then the Committee or Society may give him a lump sum or what they think proper.

7838. Then what do you do in case of sickness? Nothing; but in the event of a member dying, if he has been a free member two years, the widow and orphans or executors receive the sum of £10.

7839. How is that made up? There is a levy of half-a-crown a member put on all round.

7840. In case of death? Yes.

7841. What is the total value of your funds at the present time? £531 5s. 10d. at the end of last year.

7842. And how has that been accumulated, from contributions only or from demonstrations? Well, from contributions only, though there was a pound or two accrued from the Eight-hour Demonstration, but nothing much, because it mainly goes in expenses. At times there are levies made to meet donations to those who are on strike. There is another item of expenditure—the Trades and Labour Council delegates, who receive a trifle for attending the meetings of the Council; and we support that body also, giving 2d. per member per half-year to it.

7843. I see you gave £44 10s. to the carriers on strike; was that made up by a levy? No, there was no levy put on the members for that.

7844. I observe your income for the year was £259 2s. 3d.? Yes, that is correct.

7845. And the expenditure was £182 12s. 11d.? Yes.

7846. That would leave a balance of £76 9s. 4d. on the year? Yes.

7847. After paying all these large sums to different Trade Societies, and donations, and so on? Yes.

7848. "Dispute donations, £2 6s. 6d."—what is that? If a member comes out about a dispute with his master—if a bad casting is made sometimes the master wants him to pay for it; and if he comes out in a case like that he gets 36s. a week instead of the 10s.

7849. There are also officers' salaries; who are the officers paid? The Secretary receives £2 a quarter. There are no fixed salaries, but for the last two years they have never been altered.

7850. What is the meaning of "Shop steward fees"? In each foundry there is one man appointed to collect the contributions from each member; he receives 6d. per night for bringing it up to the Club house, and is responsible for all such moneys received till paid to the Secretary.

7851. What is the "Advance to Moulders' Picnic Committee"? We wanted a fund to start on in getting up a picnic, and we advanced £15; it has been repaid since.

7852. The whole of these sums have been embraced, and still there is a profit of £76 9s. 4d.? Yes.

7853. Were the profits for the four previous years the same or as great as last year? No; the previous year there was a deficiency of £77 10s. 4d., the amount for idle donations being £142 1s., and a donation of £50 to the coal-miners on strike.

7854. That was in 1880? Yes.

7855. What is the previous year? Then there was a balance of £66 13s. 8d., although £111 9s. 2d. was paid for idle donations, trade being pretty bad.

7856. And in 1878? A balance in favour of the Society of £137 12s. 1d.

7857. That was 1878? Yes, 1878; we sometimes advance a member in distress a small loan if he finds two bondsmen, or we may make a gift to members.

7858. What is the largest loan you make? It has never been over £7.

7859. Have you 1877? There was a balance of £92 4s. 4d. in favour of the Society.

7860. Have you or your Society contemplated registering the Society? Yes; we have a Committee revising the rules now.

7861. With a view to registration? Yes.

7862. How is your money invested? In fixed deposits in the Commercial Banking Company, and also in the Australian Joint Stock Bank. There is a running account also in the Savings Bank. We have three trustees.

7863. Have you ever had any defalcations in your Society? No, never.

7864. Have you had any matters of dispute between the members and officers? There was one at one time about a pound that was paid in.

7865. How was it settled? There was a vote of confidence in the officer.

7866. And that settled the matter? Yes.

7867. You are aware that the Friendly Societies Act would not permit you to make these advances to strikes and so on? No, but the Trades Unions Act would.

7868. And you contemplate registering the Society under that? Yes.

7869. Mr. Smith.] Are you connected with any other Society of this character? No, not at present.

7870. You are not connected with the Victorian Society? No.

7871. The whole of your operations are confined to this Colony? Yes, but we have members out of the Colony.

7872. And are purely of a trade character? Yes.

7873. You have contributed to all the strikes that have taken place from time to time? I would not be certain; we may have; we are contributing to the present strike at Newcastle, and did to the last; to the Seaman's Union strike, the Carriers, and to the Typographical Society.

7874. Are you a member of any Friendly Society apart from this? Yes, the Grand United Order of Oddfellows.

7875.

Mr.
J. Fitzhenry.

8 May, 1882.

- Mr. J. Fitzhenry.
8 May, 1882.
7875. Are all the men in the various foundries members of this Society? No, not all; but I think the majority are.
7876. You do not recognize other iron-workers unless they belong to the Society? Well, we work hand-in-hand with them; we work in the same shops.
7877. But if this dispute arises between master and man, say, for instance a man makes some bad work, and the master wants him to pay for it, would you step in and assist him if he was not a member of your Society? I have never heard of a man yet who would stand a thing like that.
7878. He would leave his employment, I suppose? He would stand on his own dignity; it is reckoned a dishonorable thing in the trade.
7879. Is it within your knowledge that the majority of your members are connected with other Friendly Societies? I believe so; I know several who take a leading part in some of them.
7880. And this is purely a Trade Protection Society? Yes.
7881. Mr. Abigail.] You have, I see, full permission to make levies when your funds fail to meet the calls upon them? Yes; that is for the members only, not for outside of the trade.
7882. And if the levies then are not sufficient, you have power to reduce the benefits? Yes.
7883. So that according to your rules none of your members could suffer any injustice in that way? Just so; we work according to our means; but we have never had to act upon that rule.
7884. You have never had to make a levy? No, not to increase our funds.
7885. The primary object of your Society is trade protection? That is it.
7886. In carrying out this object, are you actuated by a spirit of fair play towards employer, as well as employé? Yes.
7887. In case of a dispute, do the members in that workshop have a vote in settling any dispute? They have no vote whatever, though they may come and give evidence.
7888. I see in your Auxiliary Fund Laws you make provision for giving an oppressed member £1 a week, 5s. for his wife, and 1s. for each child under twelve years—what is meant by oppressed? Well, if a man is working in a shop, and the master reduces his wages, and the majority of the members think it was uncalled for; if he makes a complaint, and it is decided he has right on his side, he may come out, and then he falls on that fund.
7889. Have you had any occasion to refer to the Friendly Societies Act in reference to your Society? No.
7890. You are not concerned with the provisions of it? No.
7891. Would you favour Government interference or supervision over Societies similar to yours, such as a Government Examiner of Accounts, and so on; do you think it would be beneficial? I do not think so; if the members cannot work it, I do not think the Government could better them.
7892. Your balance-sheets are audited by your own members? Yes.
7893. Do you ever call in outside assistance? No.
7894. Do you find them always correct? They have been in my time.
7895. Mr. Greville.] Is there any other benefit, such as is intended by the Friendly Societies Act, beyond that of the funeral donation? No, none whatever.
7896. Then the proportion of your funds which goes for benefits is very, very small? Yes, very small; I only remember the death of one member.
7897. So that practically all the funds of your Society go for Trades Union purposes? Yes; the idea is to accumulate funds, so that in the event of a disturbance we may be able to protect ourselves and to assist members when trade is dull.
7898. Are the members protected by the officers of the Society giving security? No; they are known amongst the members as honest men in life—in public life, and are elected; and it takes the whole of their signatures in a body to transact any business at the Bank.
7899. Mr. Holdsworth.] In your Society you have merely combined labour for the purpose of meeting capital on equal ground? That is it.
7900. By an "oppressed member" you mean any man who you consider has been ill-used by his employer? We do not combine to protect those who do not belong to us.
7901. You support him because his case may be yours at a future day? Yes, for if the master carries his point, it may be our turn next time.
7902. Mr. Rubie.] Is the levy of 2d. a member included in the 1s. a week? It comes from the funds.
7903. Mr. Newland.] This 2d. a week is a capitation allowance to the Trades and Labour Council? Yes; we call it the Sustentation Fund.
7904. Do you know what funds the Trades and Labour Council has? No, I do not.
7905. Mr. Slade.] The 1st section of Rule IV says,—“Should the members of any Branch or foundry leave their employment without having first obtained the sanction of the Executive Committee, such members shall not be entitled to the allowance provided in cases of oppression, except in cases where the employer forces such terms upon members which they are bound not to accept, and consequently have to leave through non-compliance of the same.”—To what extent does this go? It is winked at in a good many cases.
7906. Would it apply to a man leaving because he was unable from sickness, or unable to agree with his mates? No, not in that case.
7907. President.] Do your members prior to initiation or admission undergo any medical examination? No; they are simply supposed to be able to earn their living at the trade.
7908. You admit any person of good character who belongs to your trade? Yes.
7909. Have you had any reason for refusing members who sought admission to your Society for being of immoral character? We have refused members on account of their previous character—for dishonorable conduct as men in the trade, though it might not be immoral character; we have also refused those who stood aloof from it for years, and then tried to get in.
7910. Up to what age do you admit members? There is no particular age.
7911. Fifty or sixty would be no bar to a man's admission? It would be argued and discussed.
7912. There is no rule to prevent him from being admitted? There is no rule, but there would be a warm discussion.
7913. Do you propose in your revised rules to have a medical examination of candidates? No.
7914. I find you have paid no money away for death donations during the last four or five years? I only know of one case.

7915. Mr. Gelding.] If a member has occasion to leave the foundry through oppression and you consider his cause is right, do the other members belonging to your Society who may be in the same foundry strike work? As a rule every case stands on its own merits; if it gets serious we have an Executive Committee that watches it, and in every case where the laws are silent they legislate.

Mr.
J. Fitzhenry.
8 May, 1882.

7916. But under the 4th section of your 4th rule, which reads:—"Should the members of any foundry have occasion to leave their employer through an act of oppression, no other member of this Society shall be allowed to commence work in the said foundry while such oppression exists; and further, that should any member have to leave his employment through an act of oppression, no member of this Society shall be allowed to work in his place while such oppression exists; and, if in the same foundry, no other member working there shall be allowed to work at the same job; therefore, upon refusing, shall be entitled to the same allowance as the first who had to leave; and any member violating this law shall be fined or expelled, at the decision of the Executive Committee"—? That is the whole of them; but if a single member goes out there is a rule that no other member shall start on the same job as he was on.

7917. It is not necessary that every member of your Society who may be in the foundry shall leave the foundry at the same time? No, not unless ordered out by the Executive Committee.

Mr. Frank Forsyth sworn and examined:—

7918. President.] What Society do you represent? The Operative Bricklayers.

7919. What number of members have you? Last quarter 575, that is juniors and full. (Balance-sheet for quarter ending February 28th, 1882, produced.)

Mr.
F. Forsyth.
8 May, 1882.

7920. How long has the Society been established? There are no records any further back than eleven years.

7921. What are the contributions paid? 6d. a week full members, and 3d. juniors.

7922. What benefits do you give? There are no benefits, except in case of accident, when £1 a week is given, and in case of death, £12 to a full member, and £2 extra for every two years' membership over twelve months, up to £20, and £8 on the death of a wife. Juniors are entitled to half these amounts.

7923. Who are juniors? Those from sixteen to twenty.

7924. What is the total value of your funds at present? £1,200 8s.

7925. How is the £1,000 invested? In trustees—£50 each at different Banks.

7926. How many Trustees have you? Twenty, in addition to the two Savings Bank Trustees.

7927. Has the whole of this money been made by contributions? Yes.

7928. Not from any other source—from demonstrations or anything of that kind? Well, the demonstrations have been more of a loss than a profit. We have a picnic of our own, and £80 was voted for this.

7929. You pay your members for accidents? £1 a week.

7930. To what other purposes are your funds applied? Mutual benefit in case of a strike; they are not very particular about membership; there was £5 given last Lodge night to the widow of a bricklayer as a gift.

7931. Your Society is not registered? Not at present.

7932. Have you proposed to do so? Yes; a deputation waited on the Registrar in reference to it, but we have to get a yearly statement printed before it can be registered.

7933. Is it the general wish of the members to register the Society? Yes.

7934. Under the Friendly Societies Act? No, the Trades Union Act.

7935. Do you have any medical examination of your members? No.

7936. Most of your members belong to other Friendly Societies? Yes, the best part of them.

7937. Do you know what the expenditure was last year? No; this is the first balance-sheet that ever was printed. I have the book here.

7938. Will it show what the income has been for the year? Yes.

7939. Have you had many members join during last year? Well, there is always a lot joining and running out. Last quarter about forty ran out, and about the same were admitted.

7940. The contributions last quarter were £137 5s. 9d.? Yes.

7941. And propositions, £24 12s. 6d.? Yes; any members being admitted the fourth time have to pay £2.

7942. And what the first time? 5s.

7943. Mr. Gelding.] Did you submit the rules to Mr. Oliver when you thought about getting them registered? Yes.

7944. Did he express any opinion? He said they would come under the Trades Union Act.

7945. What is meant by "paying persons to watch jobs"? The delegates. The bricklayers are not allowed to work with non-Society men.

7946. And if a job is going on you pay a delegate to go round? Yes.

7947. And everybody who does anything for the Society gets paid? Everybody; the Secretary gets 3d. per member per quarter.

7948. Mr. Greville.] Are all of your members prohibited from doing any work upon a job if there is a man employed who does not belong to your Society? Yes, after Lodge nights. If he goes to work on Monday he is allowed to work till Friday, and if the party does not join, the Society bricklayer has to leave.

7949. Although there may be no other disqualification? No; we are not allowed to work with non-Society bricklayers.

7950. That rule is for the purpose of compelling all bricklayers to belong to your Society? Yes; we find it works very well.

7951. Mr. Smith.] Your Society is established to protect your own trade? That is all.

7952. And to carry out the eight-hour principle? Yes.

7953. And that is the object of Society men not working with non-Society men? Yes.

7954. Mr. Gelding.] What penalty is there levied against members who break this eight-hour rule? 5s. a day.

7955. Is the Society composed exclusively of members of your trade? Yes; though there are plenty of masons who get in, but if it is found out we turn them out.

7956. You do not admit any other than bricklayers? No.

7957. Do your rules provide for eight hours being regarded as a standard day's labour? Yes; I think our Society stands alone in that, because we are not allowed to work beyond it.

7958. If a member works beyond that is he amenable to your laws? He is fined, and if he does not pay the fine he is expelled.

7959.

Mr. F. Forsyth. 7959. Then members of your Society are only paid for the actual time they work? That is all; in summer forty-six hours, and winter forty-seven.
8 May, 1882. The Commission then adjourned until Friday, 12th May.

FRIDAY, 12 MAY, 1882.

Present:—

EDWARD GREVILLE, Esq., J.P., IN THE CHAIR.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,

JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,

E. J. RUBIE, Esq.

Mr. Samuel Withers sworn and examined:—

Mr. S. Withers. 7960. Chairman.] What Society do you represent, and what position do you hold? Independent Order of Royal Foresters. I am the Secretary.
12 May, 1882. 7961. How long have you held that position? For six or seven consecutive years; ten years altogether.
7962. Are you a member of any other Society? I am, sir.
7963. What Society? The Sons of Temperance.
7964. Of any other? Not Benefit Society, no.
7965. Have you studied the laws and workings of Friendly Societies otherwise than as they came under your notice as Secretary of the Royal Foresters? No, I have not.
7966. Is the Order of Royal Foresters a branch or portion of the Grand United Order? No, it is a local body.
7967. Is it subject to any other governing body? No; it seceded from the Royal Foresters.
7968. What was the cause of the secession? Well, as far as my memory goes, the Lodge then under the Royal Foresters was not satisfied with the management of the Supreme Court.
7969. Was it dissatisfied with the pecuniary management? It was dissatisfied with the amount of the quarterly levy upon us, and at the fact that we could get no correct statement from the Supreme Court what became of these levies, and so we decided to secede and start an Independent Order.
7970. And do you think there was just cause for that accusation? I do; I supported the resolution at the time.
7971. Are there not a large number of Lodges connected with the parent Society? I believe there are.
7972. Have you ever known any other Lodge make a similar complaint to that made by your Lodge? I have known them to make complaints; but they never withdrew, the same as we did.
7973. But were the complaints of a similar nature to that which your Lodge made, that the pecuniary explanation was not sufficient? Well, I cannot definitely answer for any other Lodge than my own.
7974. And did your Lodge apply elsewhere for an explanation as to the disbursement of the money you contributed to the Grand Lodge? It did, sir.
7975. And did the Grand Lodge refuse to give it? I do not know that they exactly refused, but we never could get any satisfactory explanation from them.
7976. And you are not aware of any other Lodge having considered it necessary to adopt a similar course? There is no Lodge except ourselves that has seceded that I am aware of.
7977. Do you now consider yourselves a parent Society, justified in issuing charters to other Lodges? Yes.
7978. Have you ever issued any? We have not, up to the present time.
7979. What is the number of your members? Fifty, at the present time.
7980. And you seceded in what year? In 1872.
7981. Is your number increasing or decreasing? Well, we are increasing, but not very fast.
7982. What is the total amount of your property? The total amount of funds is £542 8s. 4d.
7983. How is it invested? £530 11s. 5d. in the Savings' Bank, and the balance in the Treasurer's hands.
7984. To what claims are these funds liable? There is a sliding scale of funeral allowance; from one to five years he is entitled to £20, and a member's wife to £10; from five to ten years, £25; and £1 for every additional three years afterwards; the wife to £15 from five to ten years, and 10s. for every three years.
7985. And what other claim is there? Sick pay, a guinea a week.
7986. Is there any other? That is all, except medical attendance and medicine.
7987. Can you tell me what is the average age of your members? That I cannot state at present. I have not had time to get that information.
7988. What are the payments on the part of members to secure the benefits? Contributions, 1s. a week, and levy 1s. 3d. a quarter; that is on a sliding scale. When the funds are below £200, the levy is 2s. 6d.; between £200 and £250, 2s.; between £250 and £300, 1s. 6d.; and 1s. afterwards. There is now this 1s. levy, and 3d. for the Secretary's fee.
7989. Then each member pays 14s. 3d. per quarter now? Yes.
7990. Have you in your experience found that contribution to be sufficient? Quite sufficient, and it has left us a large margin.
7991. And you consider that the margin would be sufficient to meet the future claims on the Society's funds, though your members are daily getting older? I think so; since we seceded we have saved some £300.
7992. Have you ever considered the question whether a fixed subscription or one regulated by age is preferable? No, I cannot say I have.
7993. Have you ever had any disputes in your Society? None whatever.
7994. Have you had occasion to refer to the Registrar on any occasion? No.
7995. Can you say from your knowledge of the Act whether any improvement can be made in it? No, I could

Mr.
S. Withers.
12 May, 1882.

- could not; that is a matter I have not been able to bring before the notice of the members; for myself I do not know of anything.
7996. By your rules is your medical man bound to be qualified by law? Yes.
7997. Have you known him at any time to refuse candidates for admission? Yes.
7998. Many? Not many; I could not say more than two or three.
7999. That is out of how many candidates? I dare say some twenty or thirty.
8000. Mr. Smith.] How many years were you connected with the Royal Foresters? I am not in a position to state that. I know Court Royal Albert, which is the present Society, was formed out of the Grand United by two members, but when that was I am not in a position to say. I know it was several years.
8001. How many members did you have when you seceded from the Royal Foresters? I do not know that I could answer that question. I have not the books here that would show me.
8002. Had you more than you have at present? I do not think so; we were never stronger than we are at present.
8003. What amount of funds had you as a Lodge when you seceded? £154 11s. 3d., and there was a balance due to the Treasurer of £3 19s. 6d.
8004. That is when you seceded? Yes, in 1872.
8005. And you had then about fifty members? Between forty and fifty.
8006. What levies were you paying to the Supreme Court of your Order per member? As far as my memory serves me, it was 1s. per member per quarter.
8007. Was it in consequence of the high levies your Court seceded? It was partly that, and because we could not get any satisfactory statement from the Supreme Court as to what became of the money. They never seemed to have any money to their credit, and we could not get any satisfaction as to what became of the levies they received.
8008. Was it brought under your notice that there was any misappropriation of moneys? No, I do not say that.
8009. Do you know? I do not know.
8010. What number of members have you initiated within the last two or three years? That is a question I could not answer without going through the list. I should say about a dozen.
8011. What number of members left your Society through withdrawals or failing to pay their contributions during that period? I could not say exactly, but I do not think more than seven or eight.
8012. Do you have members take their clearances out of your Society? No, they cannot; there is no other Society for them to join just now.
8013. The other Orders of Foresters will not take them? No.
8014. There have been some seven or eight? They have run out and ceased to be members.
8015. You have never put into operation that portion of the Friendly Societies Act which allows you to sue members for non-payment of dues? No, we have never done that.
8016. Have you had many members die? There has been £45 paid for funeral allowances during the last five years up to December, 1881, and there have been two deaths this year—a member and a member's wife.
8017. Then you had not more than three deaths during the five years ending 1881? That is it.
8018. For which you paid £45? Yes.
8019. Have you any freehold property? No.
8020. Where do you meet? At the Presbyterian Schoolroom, Haymarket.
8021. What rent do you pay? 5s. per meeting night.
8022. Every accommodation is given you for that? Yes.
8023. What do you receive as Secretary? At present £5 a year.
8024. Is your Treasurer paid? Yes.
8025. What does he receive? 10s.
8026. Are any of your other officers paid? Not in the shape of money. They receive medals for services rendered to the Court.
8027. From what funds does this come? From the General Fund; a medal valued at 10s. for the Chairman, Secretary, Treasurer, and Woodward.
8028. That would be £2 paid for medals yearly? Yes.
8029. Do your officers hold office for a year? Yes.
8030. You give no pension or superannuation allowance to any of your members? No.
8031. Have you given gifts from your funds in any other shape than sick pay or funeral donations? Only in the shape of medals.
8032. Mr. Abigail.] You have stated you consider 1s. ample to guarantee the benefits you offer? I said 1s. and the levies.
8033. How often have these levies been made in your Society? They are made quarterly.
8034. And you have funds sufficient to guarantee all the benefits your Society offers? I think so, unless something extraordinary overcame us.
8035. Have you based that calculation on any actuarial principles? I came to that conclusion from the money that has accumulated, besides paying all our expenses.
8036. Are you aware how much you have received as interest during the last eight years? No.
8037. I find the amount is £144 8s. 11d.; that would assist you materially? Yes, no doubt.
8038. Have you made any calculation as to what are the outstanding or contingent liabilities of your members on these funds? No, I cannot say I have.
8039. What is your arrangement with your medical man—do you pay him? Yes; we pay him £1 per member per year.
8040. Have you ever had any difficulty with your medical man? We have had to change our medical officer lately.
8041. Why? Because he did not give general satisfaction.
8042. In what way? He did not please the members; it was more his manner than anything the members were dissatisfied with.
8043. Not dissatisfaction with the way in which he passed members? No.
8044. And you have never declined to pay any accounts he rendered? Never.
8045. Never kept them back for months? Never.

- Mr. 8046. Have you ever delayed the payment of sick or funeral benefits to any of your members? No, never.
 S. Withers. 8047. What time expires before the money is paid after a death? It is paid within twenty-four hours.
 12 May, 1882. 8048. Have any of your members made a habit of going on and off the sick list, in other words, loafing on the Society? No.
 8049. Are any of your members in such a way of business that when they fall sick they do not take the benefits? No; they generally take the benefits.
 8050. Do you know of any cases in yours or any other Society where the officers or members have improperly made away with the funds of the Society? No, none whatever.
 8051. Are you in favour of Government supervision of Friendly Societies, a Government officer being appointed to examine the accounts? Yes.
 8052. And would you make it compulsory to send in annual returns, and inflict a penalty for non-fulfilment? Yes, I think it is necessary to have a provision of that kind.
 8053. Mr. Holdsworth.] Have you any provision made for clearances if any members leave you? No.
 8054. You have made no arrangement with other Societies to accept your members? No, none.
 8055. How do you provide for a member who leaves your District? He goes on the books as a country member, and pays 9d. a week, and is charged with the levies.
 8056. Then by becoming a country member he saves himself 3d. a week, and the Lodge saves itself about 7d.? I have not calculated that.
 8057. Do you consider a single Branch or Lodge is as sound as where it belongs to a united body? No, I do not; I think it would be wise to extend the Order if possible.
 8058. Do you believe there is some truth in the old motto, that "Union is strength"? I do, certainly.
 8059. What is the greatest age at which you receive members? Forty.
 8060. How many members have you beyond that at the present time? About ten, I believe.
 8061. What is the oldest member you have? I should say somewhere about fifty.
 8062. No more? No, I do not think so.
 8063. You do not consider you have an undue proportion of old members? No, quite the contrary.
 8064. You have stated that you consider the contributions with the levies are sufficient to meet all purposes: do you judge that by the experience of the past? Yes.
 8065. You consider experience is about the best guide? Certainly.
 8066. Mr. Rubie.] Have you ever had occasion to levy the 2s. 6d.? Oh yes, until the funds reached a certain amount.
 8067. Mr. Slade.] Did you ever take the subject of graduated subscriptions into consideration? No.
 8068. Do you feel yourself in a position to give an opinion on that subject? No, I do not.
 8069. Nor upon superannuation for aged or permanently disabled members? No; we have never had occasion to take that into consideration.
 8070. Are you of opinion that it would be a good thing? Yes, I think it would.
 8071. What method for the settlement of disputes have you? A Board of Management, consisting of eight members.
 8072. Have you any superior body to appeal to, supposing the decision is objected to? No; the decision, according to the rules, is final.
 8073. Would you favour the establishment of an Arbitration Board, composed of members of different Societies, as a final Court of Appeal, instead of members or Societies going to law? I think it would be a good thing.
 8074. You are aware that members have been compelled to pay large amounts of arrears after being summoned to Court? Yes.
 8075. And do you think such a course of action is advisable? I do not.
 8076. If an amount is to be recoverable in this way, would you limit it to the subscriptions for twelve months? Yes, I would.
 8077. Do you favour suing for arrears at all? Oh yes, I do.
 8078. Have you ever taken any notice of the present form of returns to the Registrar? Yes.
 8079. What is your opinion of them—are they sufficient, or could they be amended do you think? I should think that depended on the information wanted.
 8080. Would you favour more comprehensive returns in future legislation? If they are necessary.
 8081. Mr. Gelding.] How long was your Branch Lodge in existence before it seceded? I do not know exactly; I joined in 1867, and it had been some time then in existence.
 8082. Are you sure one of the causes why you seceded was the bad management of the Grand Lodge? I am satisfied of that.
 8083. Did not the Grand Lodge furnish quarterly or yearly reports whereby you could see how the funds were used? No, they did not.
 8084. You have no Widow and Orphan Fund attached to your Order? No.
 8085. You consider, I presume, that being allowed to levy is a great safeguard for the solvency of your Lodge? Yes.
 8086. Do you not think it would be better that a member should know exactly what he has to pay a week, instead of having to run the risk of these levies? I cannot see that any better method could be adopted.
 8087. Are you aware that large Friendly Societies have a fixed rate of contributions which is not deviated from or supplemented by levies? I understood all Societies had levies.
 8088. I presume you are aware that the Savings' Bank interest is materially reduced at the present time? They are paying us 5 per cent. now.
 8089. I presume you have given attention to the workings of Friendly Societies? Yes, I have.
 8090. Do you think it advisable that there should be a person specially appointed to attend to Friendly Societies? Oh yes.
 8091. You believe the present system is not conducive to the interests of Societies? Not sufficiently.
 8092. Chairman.] Have you complied with the Act in making the annual returns to the Registrar? Yes, strictly.
 8093. Is there anything you would like to add to the evidence you have given? No sir, there is not.
 8094. Mr. Gelding.] Who was District Secretary at the time your Lodge seceded? I am not certain, but I think it was Mr. Hampton.

Mr. Henry Collyer sworn and examined :—

8095. Chairman.] What Society do you represent? The Sydney United Plasterers' Society; I am the Secretary.
8096. How long have you been Secretary? A year and nine months.
8097. And what is the main object of your Society? To pay money to any one receiving an accident, and to assist other trades on strike; and to assist in alleviating distress amongst our members or their widows by donations.
8098. Have you any Funeral Fund? We give £7 10s. on the death of a member only to his widow or nominee.
8099. Any Sick Fund other than for an accident? None whatever.
8100. Any other form of benefit? No, that is all.
8101. What are the payments made to secure these benefits? 6d. a week.
8102. Any other in the shape of levies? No, our rules forbid levies.
8103. And what are your accumulated funds? Close upon £200.
8104. And the number of members? 120.
8105. Is there any limit as to age? None whatever.
8106. Any medical examination? None whatever; it is a Trade Union, and not a Friendly Society.
8107. How many years have you been accumulating this Reserve Fund? Well, previous to 1870 we had several Societies, all of which broke up; but since then it has been pretty firmly established.
8108. What was the cause of the previous Societies breaking up? Insufficiency of members.
8109. Then there was an inability to meet the liabilities? There were not sufficient members.
8110. Then what did they do with the funds? Shared them amongst the remaining members.
8111. Did you know any instance in these previous Societies where a claim was made for funeral donation which was not complied with? No, I did not.
8112. Nor any claim for accident? No, I never knew it refused.
8113. I mean through there not being sufficient members to pay it? No, never to my knowledge.
8114. Could you tell us in any instance what the amount of funds was that was divided? I could only guess at it, but I should think the most was about £16 or £17.
8115. In each instance was there money to divide? Yes.
8116. Have you anything in the present rules to prevent a similar course being adopted by the Society? Yes; should the Society sink below a certain number of members, the whole of the funds are to be given, by law 42, to the Sydney Infirmary.
8117. What were your receipts for the last five years? £666 12s. 4d.
8118. And can you tell me how you have appropriated that? Accident pay, £31; funeral payments, £17 10s.; management, expenses, £66 18s. 11½d.
8119. Any other expenses? Yes, donations to sick members. There has been about £40.
8120. And what else? We vote £5 a year to the Sydney Infirmary.
8121. Anything else? We give to other Societies on strike.
8122. What funds have you in hand? £196 1s. 3d. is the exact amount.
8123. And how is that invested? In the Savings' Bank, in the names of three Trustees.
8124. Can you tell me how much has been given to other Societies when on strike? We pay 4d. a member each half-year to the Trades and Labour Council; and we gave the Seamen's Union £10; to the miners on strike in 1880, £20 2s. 6d.; to the curriers in 1881, £5; and £1 10s. was voted towards the expense of the Anti-Chinese Demonstration.
8125. Have you ever had any defalcations in your Society? No.
8126. Does the Treasurer give a bond? Yes, of £10, the full amount he is allowed to hold.
8127. Does any other member give security? The three Trustees.
8128. And to what amount do they give security? £20 each I think.
8129. During the time your Society has been in existence has there been any strike amongst the United Plasterers? Not calling for pay from the Society.
8130. Do you not think that by the payment to other Societies on strike you diminish the power of the Society to pay its own members if they are called upon to go on strike? No, because those we assist now would assist us then.
8131. Where is your place of meeting? The "Belmore Arms," Pitt-street.
8132. Have you found any evil results arise from meeting in a public-house? No.
8133. Do you allow intoxicating liquor to be brought into the room? No, nor yet smoking.
8134. What do you pay for the use of the room? 35s. a quarter.
8135. Do you observe most of your members take one or more glasses? No, I think most of our Society are teetotallers. At the last public-house we stopped at we got notice to quit.
8136. Why do you go to a public-house in preference to an unlicensed hall? Simply because we can get the night we want, and we get better suited for about half the money.
8137. Have you had any disputes in your Society at any time? No.
8138. What is your method of settling disputes? There is a Management Committee, whose decision is final.
- The Commission then adjourned until Monday, 15th May.

Mr.
H. Collyer.
12 May, 1882.

MONDAY, 15 MAY, 1882.

Present:—

F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P., IN THE CHAIR.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
E. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,

JOHN SLADE, Esq.,
JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,

E. J. RUBIE, Esq.

Mr. Lorimer Edward Marcus sworn and examined :—

8139. Chairman.] What Society are you connected with? The Independent Order of Good Templars.
8140. What is the date of its establishment? 1874, in this Colony.

Mr.
L. E. Marcus.
8141. 15 May, 1882.

- Mr. L. E. HARCUS.
15 May, 1882.
8141. Have you held any position in it? In this Colony I was Grand Worthy Chief Templar for two years, or Executive Head of the Order. In other parts of the world I have filled many other offices.
8142. What is the number of members connected with it? As nearly as possible 3,000, in New South Wales.
8143. What amount of subscriptions do you pay? The minimum is 1s. 6d. a quarter; we are not, strictly speaking, a Friendly Society.
8144. Do you allow any benefits? No.
8145. How is the Society managed? By an Executive Committee consisting of the eight principal officers of the Grand Lodge.
8146. You have no sick pay or funeral donation? No.
8147. No doctor or medicine? No.
8148. What is your Order for? Principally propagating the cause of Temperance; we are a Secret Society.
8149. What funds have you? I could not say exactly, but our assets exceed our liabilities by some £120, or it may be more.
8150. What is done with your funds? They are used solely for the advancement of the Temperance cause, and for the extension of the Order.
8151. In your Society male and female meet together in the Lodges? Yes.
8152. Do you think that system tends to promote morality? I think so; I know nothing definite to the contrary, although I have heard rumours that the mixing of the sexes in the Lodges has been injurious occasionally. I do not, however, believe that any harm has resulted on the whole.
8153. You have made a request to be examined before the Commission for the purpose of furnishing some information? A request has been made by the Executive Council that I should be examined.
8154. Can you state what particular suggestions you desire to make to the Commission in reference to this organization? We desire to urge upon the Commission the necessity of having some clause in any Bill that may be brought forward for the purpose of protecting the funds of such Societies as ours. Our Order is established for the purpose of improving the moral condition of the people generally, but there is, we are given to understand, no legislation at the present time under which we can get protection against the misappropriation of our funds.
8155. Have you any knowledge of any cases where the funds have been misappropriated? No, not absolute knowledge; I have heard of cases in which —
8156. Your object then is to shut the stable door before the horse is stolen? Yes.
8157. Mr. Rubie.] You said your Executive Committee or governing body was composed of the eight chief officers; do they belong to eight different Lodges? Not necessarily; they belong to the Grand Lodge, which is composed of representatives from the various subordinate Lodges, any third degree member being eligible for that position.
8158. Are there not the ordinary officers appointed? We have the ordinary officers.
8159. Would not the present Act give you protection, inasmuch as you are receiving money as a Society and voting it away for purposes named in your rules? The Registrar, I understand, says he has no power to register us under the Act; it has been so reported to the Executive Council by a Committee we appointed to look into the matter.
8160. Mr. Gelding.] I presume you would advise that, in any legislation enacted in reference to such Societies as yours, it should be provided that the male and female Branches should be kept separate? No; I should recommend an alteration in the rules giving the presiding officers more power to suppress anything like larrikinism. Personally I approve of the intermingling of the sexes in the Lodge room, believing that on the whole the presence of ladies has a good effect on the male members.
8161. What is your opinion with regard to Friendly Societies being mixed up with political, temperance, or religious bodies; do you not think they should be kept separate? No, I cannot say I do. I believe that the Temperance bodies at any rate should have their own Societies, as I consider, from what I have seen and read, that the rate of sickness is less amongst them than amongst other Societies.
8162. Mr. Rubie.] Where are your Lodge meetings generally held? In the ordinary Lodge rooms belonging to various Societies, and schoolrooms, either public or private. We have one hall of our own, which is to be opened within the next week or two at Lithgow. We do not meet in public-houses.
8163. Chairman.] I think you will find that your Lodges are entitled to registration under clause 17 of the Act. Will you supply in writing any suggestions you may have to make in reference to the Act and its operation? With pleasure.

Mr. William James Way sworn and examined:—

- Mr. W. J. Way
15 May, 1882.
8164. Chairman.] What is the name of the Society you represent? The Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners.
8165. And what is the position you hold? Secretary.
8166. How long has the Society been in existence here? As near as I can get at it, since 8th July, 1875.
8167. How long have you been Secretary? Three years last September.
8168. Does the Society partake of the character of a Friendly Society or of a Trade Union? Both, as much one as the other.
8169. In giving your evidence, can you speak from experience of any other Society as well as this? Yes.
8170. What Society? The Manchester Unity Oddfellows.
8171. Have you been intimately acquainted with the working of that Society? I have been Auditor at different times.
8172. Is your Society a parent Society? It is only a Branch of the parent Society in England.
8173. Do you owe allegiance to the English Society? Yes.
8174. Do you pay any contribution to the mother Society, and if so, what? Nothing; every Branch holds its own funds, but the money is equalized in each Branch throughout the world.
8175. Then what is the locality of the executive body to whom is entrusted the equalization of these funds to the General Executive Council? The Society is divided into sixteen Districts, which elect the Council. Manchester is the head office.
- 8176.

Mr.
W. J. Way.
15 May, 1882.

8176. Then if your funds became unequal to meet the claims upon them, how would the deficiency be made up? In the Colonies there is a District, and in case of any Branch being short of funds they would write to the District office, and we would order them to be paid.

8177. And would the District be reimbursed from England? No; we have the same power to give the money to the Branch wanting it as they have in the general office in England; and in America they have a District the same way. There is a general office and two District offices.

8178. What benefits do your members receive? 12s. a week sick benefit for twenty-six weeks, and 6s. as long as the illness continues; £12 per member at death; out of work benefit 10s. a week for twelve weeks, and 6s. for twelve weeks more, making £9 12s. in one year. Then there is an accident benefit; wholly disabled, £100; partially disabled, £50; and if the member loses his tools they are replaced to any amount not exceeding £20. If we are on strike he gets 15s. a week as long as the strike continues, and a member leaving his employment satisfactory to the Branch gets 15s. a week.

8179. What payments have the members to make to secure these benefits? 1s. a week, and 3d. per quarter.

8180. Are there any levies? No, unless there is a special mass meeting convened, and there must be two-thirds of all the members in favour of its imposition.

8181. Have you ever known a levy? Yes, we had one a little while ago for the carriers.

8182. What was the levy? We paid 1s. a week for a time, and then 6d. a week to support them, as a special levy.

8183. Are the rates of contribution similar throughout the Society? Yes, all through.

8184. In all parts of the world? Yes, excepting in the United States and Canada. In the former, when the Society was started, green-backs were at a big discount, 7 dollars being quoted to the £ sterling; hence here the subscription is 35 cents weekly, and in Canada 25 cents, the same benefits being received.

8185. In England are the contributions the same as here? Yes.

8186. Does it often happen that the Executive Committee are called upon to assist individual Lodges? No, very seldom; a balance is made up every year, so that if one Branch holds more money than another we equalize the amount right through the Society. In 1880 we sent away £73 to a Branch in Ireland from our Branch, and about six months ago I sent down £35 to the Port Adelaide Branch.

8187. What funds have you in hand? At the end of 1881, £368 17s. 9d.; at present we have £444 17s. 11d.

8188. How is it invested? It is in the Bank, £424 18s. 4d.; and the balance is in the Treasurer's hands.

8189. And what is the number of your members? 125.

8190. Have you any disputes in your Society? No.

8191. By whom are your accounts audited? By the members of the Lodge.

8192. Do you think it is sufficient to have the accounts audited by members of the Society? Yes.

8193. Have you known any Branch fail to carry out its engagements financially? No; you see the money is equalized every year—the whole Society helps the Branches.

8194. When you raised the money for the support of the carriers, was that reimbursed out of the General Fund? No, that came out of the members' pockets individually.

8195. And it was optional with them whether they did do so? No, we had a specially summoned meeting convened for the purpose.

8196. Suppose a Society was improvident in making contributions to other trades on strike, and by that means reduced its average at the end of the year, would the executive still make up the deficiency by contributions from other Branches? We cannot do that; if we make contributions to other Societies, we have to do it by special levy amongst our own members. If it is in our own Society, then it comes out of the General Fund.

8197. Mr. Abigail. Do you have a medical examination? Yes.

8198. Do you supply the benefit of a doctor and medicine? No.

8199. What do you pay the doctor? 5s. for each candidate.

8200. Are these the only laws you have? Yes.

8201. They are registered in England, I see? Yes.

8202. Have you taken any steps to register your Branch here? Yes, we applied just before the Trades Union Act came into force, but were refused.

8203. Do you propose to register your Branch under the Trades Union Act? Yes.

8204. You have a superannuation benefit? Yes, 8s. a week if you have been in the Society eighteen years, and 7s. for twelve years.

8205. And you have a Benevolent Fund? Yes.

8206. For what purpose is it used? Benefits to free and non-free members.

8207. I find that in 1877 the average is set down at £4 13s. 10³/₄d. per member, and in 1879 at £3 2s. 11¹/₄d., so that in these two years you went back £1 11s.; can you say whether since then you have advanced in your funds or decreased? We have increased; the reason of the decrease was that at the time the Manchester strike was on.

8208. That made a severe call upon your funds? Yes.

8209. I find amongst your benefits you have an emigration benefit? Yes.

8210. That is to enable members from England to emigrate to any other part? Yes.

8211. And you allow for that up to £6? Yes.

8212. Can you say whether the parent Society has based the contributions upon any principles of calculation? Yes, I think they carry out all the requirements; they have for the last twenty-two years.

8213. And you think that the amount as set forth in your rules is sufficient to guarantee all the benefits? Yes.

8214. Have you ever made any calculation as to what you are indebted to the members now? No.

8215. You simply take the year to year operations? Yes.

8216. You think if you meet your annual expenditure you are financial? Oh, we increase in general.

8217. Have you ever made a calculation as to how much you incur in contingent liability per year on your members? No.

8218. Do you think there is any liability upon those that have not been sick? No.

8219. Your laws provide for and guarantee a number of benefits to the whole of your members? Yes.

- Mr. 8220. Well, is there not a liability attaching to the Society for that? Well, if they claim the benefits they will get them.
- W. J. Way. 8221. Have you considered what your liability for death rate is? £12.
- 15 May, 1882. 8222. But considering the number of your members what is the liability? We have 125 members, and we have to give them £12 each.
8223. You said you had increased your General Fund since 1879, but in 1880 I find that there was a still further decrease, that the total worth of the Society's funds only shows £2 12s. 2½d., so that for three years there has been a marked decrease? I meant at the present time.
8224. Have you any authentic reports since then? No, not for the whole Society.
8225. Do you favour Government supervision of these Societies? We would as soon have Government supervision as not.
8226. Do you think it would be a protection to the Societies? No, I do not.
8227. Have you any knowledge of cases where the funds of your Society have been improperly used by any of its officers or members? Yes, I have read of it in the reports, but not in this country.
8228. The protection of the trade is a prominent feature in your Society? Yes.
8229. Have you ever considered our Friendly Societies Act? No.
8230. You are not in a position to say whether it answers the purpose for which it was passed or not? I think it would do so.
8231. But have you considered and studied its provisions? No.
8232. Then how can you say it would answer this purpose? Because it has carried out its effects wherever it has gone.
8233. Do you think the Act answers the purposes for which it was passed? I think it does, from what I have read of it.
8234. Could you make any suggestions for any new Act? No, all we want is to get registered and to have our funds protected.
8235. Mr. Smith.] Have many of your members availed themselves of that regulation by which you assist them to emigrate? There is only one I know of.
8236. To Australia? Yes.
8237. Have the members in England taken advantage of it as regards America? No.
8238. You only know of one instance? That is all, and he did not get it; the money was granted, but he ran out of the Society.
8239. Has your Council in England endeavoured to impress the members in England to take advantage of that law? No; the funds must amount to so much per member, and there must be a certain percentage of members out of work before the members are entitled to that benefit.
8240. Persons joining your Society must be carpenters or joiners by trade? Yes.
8241. Having served an apprenticeship? Of at least five years, except in America, where it is three years.
8242. Do your members as a rule belong to other Friendly Societies? A good many of them do.
8243. Then they do not use this specially for the medical benefits? No.
8244. More for the purpose of protecting their trade? Yes.
8245. You have only one Branch in this Colony? That is all.
8246. And that is situated in Sydney? Yes; we hold our meetings in the Protestant Hall.
8247. Do you have many members leave during the year? No.
8248. Have you ever endeavoured to establish other Branches? Not as yet, because we have had an uphill fight; there is a local Society here at the present time.
8249. What is the effect of that Society upon yours? They only pay 4d. or 5d. a week, and I do not believe they are as particular in taking members as we are.
8250. In the event of your membership running short and members leaving, what mode of winding up your Branch here would be adopted? In case we got too small to keep open, the District would take the funds.
8251. Where is the District situated? In Sydney at the present time, but it has been in New Zealand up till lately.
8252. How does this District come into existence? It is appointed by the Executive Council, though the members are elected by the votes of all the Branches in Australia.
8253. When do they meet? Once a month.
8254. Then all the business transacted passes through the District to head-quarters in Manchester? Yes.
8255. Mr. Holdsworth.] Has the number of members of your Society increased within the last two or three years? Oh yes.
8256. Taking all over the world I mean? Yes; we have increased the last twelve months over 1,000 members.
8257. This increase of members would reduce the average of your funds? It would to a certain extent.
8258. In case of a deficiency you fall back on other Lodges? Yes.
8259. And they can fall back on you? Yes.
8260. Is that not calculated to weaken you here rather than strengthen you? No; I think it strengthens us right through.
8261. Mr. Rubie.] Have the rules undergone any revision during the last few years? Yes, they were revised in 1880.
8262. Do you know whether the money payments underwent any actuarial calculation? Yes; there was an alteration of death benefits, which were made not to exceed £20, and the superannuation allowance was altered.
8263. By the same mode the actuaries make it compulsory that a certain amount of money must be invested every year to provide for these benefits? Yes.
8264. Would money advanced by you be recouped from England? Each Branch would audit its accounts at the end of each year; the money would be remitted from one Lodge to another.
8265. And by that means the actuaries would calculate that the Society will exist and be capable of paying all the benefits they promise to their members? Yes.
8266. Then the cost of the Executive must be very large? No.
8267. Mr. Newland.] What do you consider is the state of trade now in the Colonies? Very good.

8268. And for the last two or three years? Pretty good.
8269. And how comes it that in your report it is stated trade was overstocked? That was at the time the Exhibition was just finished.
8270. Do you think the trade was overstocked in 1879? I cannot say.
8271. Do you consider your members in the Colonies are placed at a fair advantage in strikes with members on strike in England? No, because it costs more to live here than there.
8272. In a strike out here your benefits would be merely nominal? We give the same amount of benefit, but the money would not go so far.
8273. Mr. Gelding.] I see you do not require your members to have a doctor's certificate only over thirty-five years of age? That is a certificate of birth.
8274. I see your average of funds is a fraction over £2 3s. per head? Yes, I dare say.
8275. Do you consider that a good average? Our rules say that when we go below £2 there is a levy to be made throughout the Society.
8276. If a member leaves the Colony does he get a clearance? Yes.
8277. In the event of any of your members being brought before the Courts for riotous conduct does your Society pay their fines? No, not in any shape or form.

Mr.
W. J. Way.

8280. Have you any rules? Yes.
8281. Did you bring them with you? Yes.
8282. What position do you hold in connection with the Society? I am Secretary of it at present.
8283. How many members have you? About 280.
8284. What subscriptions do you pay? We pay according to our work—a penny a day for every day we work.
8285. And what benefits do you allow? £1 a week for accident and £10 for burial.
8286. Any other benefits? No, that is all. In case of shipwreck of course we allow £10.
8287. Any superannuation benefits? No.
8288. How long does the accident benefit last? Twenty-six weeks.
8289. And nothing after that? No.
8290. You do not give any sick benefits? No.
8291. Are the members admitted into your Society by medical examination? No.
8292. Do you give any medical benefits? No, none at all.
8293. Or in the event of any of your members losing their tools? Yes, according to the value of the tools they lose.
8294. How is the Society managed? There is a President, Vice-President, Secretary and Assistant Secretary, Treasurer, three Trustees, and six members of Committee elected out of the general body.
8295. What amount of funds have you in hand? Over £2,000.
8296. How is the money invested? In the Sydney Savings' Bank.
8297. In the names of the Trustees? Yes.
8298. What amount does your Treasurer hold? He is supposed to hold £20 in hand.
8299. Do you take any guarantee from your officers? No; they are supposed to give a guarantee, but we never enforce it.

8301. Can you tell us what has been the total receipts for the last five years? No, I am not prepared with that.
8302. Nor yet with the funeral allowances? No.
8303. Can you say whether you have paid any funds away in assisting other trades on strike? Oh yes.
8304. You have received a paper to fill up? Yes, I have.
8305. Can you tell us the cost of management of your Society for the last five years? No, I cannot.

Mr. W. F.
Davison.
15 May, 1882.

Mr. James Joseph Donohoe sworn and examined :—

8306. Chairman.] What Society do you represent? The United Society of Boilermakers and Iron Ship-builders of New South Wales.
8307. Have you any rules? Yes (produced).
8308. What date was your Society established? About October, 1873.
8309. And what position do you hold? I am Secretary at present.
8310. What number of members have you? 230.
8311. And what amount of subscriptions do you pay? 6d. a week; and at the death of a member, if there is not sufficient money in the Contingent Fund, the members are levied 2s. per man; but if there is sufficient money in the fund, such as £15 or upwards, the levy is not necessary and is not enforced.
8312. And what other benefits do you allow? In the event of a dispute each member receives the sum of 20s. a week for himself, and if he has a wife and children, 5s. for the wife, and 1s. for each child under twelve years of age.
8313. Do you give any medical benefits? No.
8314. Funeral benefits? Yes, a funeral donation of £10.
8315. How long has a man to be a member to get that? It is not necessary to be a member any specified time; if he was initiated to-night and died to-morrow he would get the money.

Mr.
J. J. Donohoe.
15 May, 1882.

Mr. J. J. Donohoe. 8316. Are there any other benefits? A very small indirect benefit to distressed members; the Society can vote any sum, not more than £1 per fortnight, as a distress donation. The other benefits are given by the issue of subscription lists amongst the members.

15 May, 1882. 8317. But these lists are not supplemented out of the funds of the Society? No, they are private subscriptions.

8318. How is the Society managed? By its officers; there are President, Vice-President, Secretary, Assistant Secretary, Guardian, and Marshal, three Trustees, and two Auditors.

8319. Who receive salaries, and how much? The Secretary receives £10 a year, the Treasurer £5, the present President £2 a quarter, and the Trustees receive £1 per annum each, and Auditors 2s. 6d. each audit. I believe that to be correct, but it is given simply from memory.

8320. Do you wear regalia? No, not at present.

8321. Have you any provision in your rules which deprives members of the benefits if they fail to pay their subscriptions? The only provision is that every member of this Society pledges himself on his initiation to adhere to the rules as laid down there; and according to them no member is supposed to work with a non-Society man, under penalties to be enforced by the Society.

8322. But if a member fails to pay subscriptions, does not that deprive him of his benefits? If he allows himself to run into arrears he is expelled from the Society, according to the rules; but at times we find that we cannot always keep them financial; and if he is unfinancial at his death, and the Society is satisfied it is through no fault of his own —

8323. But your 14th rule makes provision that when a member is four months in arrears the Secretary shall be empowered by the Committee to erase his name from the books. Do you comply with that? Not at all times.

8324. Have you any Branches? One at Newcastle.

8325. And if a member leaves Sydney and goes to Newcastle, do you transfer him? Yes, by clearance card.

8326. But if he goes to any other part of the country, how does he come off? There are Societies in Adelaide and Melbourne with which we have arranged to take members from each other.

8327. I understand that the primary object of your Society is trade protection? Yes.

8328. Can you state of your own knowledge whether any of your members have joined your Society solely for the benefits attached to it? I could not say so of my own knowledge, but I have my own ideas about a good many of them.

8329. What is your impression? My impression is that there are a few, but they are in the minority. Of course the members of the Society as a body, for mutual protection, do not work with non-Society men.

8330. Can you tell me what has been paid for accident pay during the last five years? I could not say exactly. I have prepared the following memorandum of information for the Commission:—

8408. Your Society is not registered? No.
8409. Has it been contemplated to register the Society? Yes, but they do not see their way clear.
8410. Not under the recent legislation passed? No.
8411. And not under the Friendly Societies Act? No.
8412. Have you had any occasion to prosecute any officer for misappropriation of money? No.
8413. Do most of your members belong to other Societies? Yes, nearly the whole of them.
8414. And the principal object of the Society is trade protection? That is all.
8415. Simply to assist members of your particular trade? Yes. We have also given £119 to members for loss of their tools.
8416. What has been the cost of management during the five years? £485 7s. 5d.; the whole of the officers are paid.
8417. How do you proceed with members who are in arrear with their contributions? Well, that is left among ourselves—there is no rule for it.
8418. Do you expel or suspend them? Yes, expel them.
8419. How many members joined during the past year? That I could not say exactly; 181 have left in the five years.
8420. How many joined? I could not say.
8421. What is the total number of members now? 283.
8422. Has there been a proposal made in the Society to register under the Friendly Societies Act? Yes, but they did not seem to care about it.
8423. Did the majority decide against it? Yes.
8424. How often has that been brought before the Society? On several occasions; it has come from the Trades and Labour Council. The fact is both cannot work together.
8425. You mean the Friendly Society and Trade Society? Yes.
8426. Mr. Abigail.] Do you find the effects of your Society to be mutually beneficial to both employers and employed? Yes, our career since it has been a Society can tell any gentleman that.
8427. You think that your being joined together has prevented collision between them? On many occasions.
8428. When you have expelled a member for non-payment of dues, do you proceed further with him; that is, supposing he is in an employ, do you take steps to get him discharged? No, we never interfere with him at all.
8429. Mr. Greville.] Do members of your Society work with men who are not members? Yes.
8430. Mr. Rubie.] Do the Trustees of your funds give any security? No.

William Henson, Esq., M.P., sworn and examined:—

- W. Henson, Esq., M.P.
22 May, 1882.
8431. President.] You are a Member of the Legislature of New South Wales? Yes, one of the Members for Canterbury.
8432. What Society are you here to represent to-day? I do not know that I represent any Society; I have been Honorary Treasurer of the Sons of Temperance for some years.
8433. Is it in connection with the discharge of your duties there that you come here to give evidence? Yes, any information in connection with that I am quite willing to give.
8434. Do you hold any position in connection with that Society at the present time? I am still Treasurer of the General Fund of the National Division.
8435. You have made some statement in reference to a Benefit Society where members have been paying in for a long period of years, and when circumstances required that they should receive the benefits promised them the funds were not available? Yes. 8436.

8436. Will you state to the Commission the particular case you have reference to? Yes. A man by the name of John Cox was a tenant of mine for sixteen years; he died some seven years since, leaving a widow and five children; he had been for sixteen years a member of Court Friendship Royal Foresters, but on his death and from that time to this his wife has not received any benefits from the Lodge of which he was a member. I saw her this morning, and she informed me that she had never received any benefits, though she was entitled to £30.

8437. Do you know whether the husband at his death was financial? I could not say, other than that he received sick pay up to the time of his death.

8438. And you are informed by his widow this morning that though he had been dead seven years, she had never received the funeral donation? No, though she has retained legal assistance to obtain it. I believe her case was nonsuited, and having no means to carry the thing on she had to suffer.

8439. Do you know the grounds of the nonsuit? No, it was a technical point of law—not on the merits of the case.

8440. Is that the only case you wish to make special reference to? That is the only case I have any knowledge of, that I can speak about with any authority.

8441. Have you any suggestions to make to the Commission that might be of service in any future legislation? I do not know that I could make any suggestions, unless in reply to any questions that may be put.

8442. From your general knowledge of the Societies you have been connected with, do you think that the sum of 1s. a week is sufficient to ensure the benefits that most of the Friendly Societies promise to their members? No, I think not, as the amounts given by Societies differ; some give £25, and others £30, and perhaps more. I do not think 1s. is sufficient beyond the £20; that is in addition to the sick pay.

8443. You think that in a Society offering medical attendance to a member, his wife, and family, together with a funeral donation of from £20 to £25 for a member, and from £10 to £15 in case of the death of a wife, 1s. a week would be sufficient to ensure the payment of these benefits in addition to sick pay? Yes, up to £20 on the death of a member and £10 on the death of a wife, if the children did not receive benefits beyond the age of sixteen instead of eighteen.

8444. Do you know the amount paid to medical men for attending members of these Societies? I know that it differs very much in the city and country, but I can hardly say just now the exact amount.

8445. What do you think would be sufficient to cover the risk of a man thirty-six years of age, insuring his life for £25 at death without any other benefit? Well, I have never studied life insurance in that particular point, my experience has been in connection with Societies in which there has been sick pay and other benefits.

8446. Do you think the medical examination in connection with Societies in the admission of candidates for membership is sufficiently searching? Yes, as far as my experience has gone, I think the medical men act very fairly.

8447. You think then the medical examination is quite sufficient for all purposes to ensure a Society against loss by the admission of persons of unsound health? Yes, where there are rules laid down for the guidance of the medical man.

8448. Do you think the occupation or trade of members admitted has anything to do with the length of life? Yes, there is no doubt that there are some occupations which shorten life more than others.

8449. Do you think it is advisable to admit all trades and occupations at the same rate of initiation fee and contribution? It is essential that Societies should receive members from all grades, or else they would not meet the want.

8450. You would not make any distinction? No.

8451. Do you favour the principle of a graduated scale of contributions, or do you prefer a uniform scale for members of Friendly Societies? Well, I think that a graduated scale meets the case better than one uniform scale.

8452. Mr. Abigail.] Do you know where this Lodge was situated, this Court of Royal Foresters? No.

8453. Have you heard the names of the officers? I have heard the names, but have forgotten them.

8454. Have you heard anything of the financial position of the Society at that time? Yes, I heard their position was such that they were unable to pay funeral donations at the time this death occurred, and for some time afterwards.

8455. Are you aware whether they had suspended benefits by law in any way? No.

8456. This is the case I think you mentioned to Sir Henry Parkes? Yes.

8457. Have you any knowledge of any case in connection with that or other Societies where the funds have been misappropriated by any of its officers? No, I have no personal knowledge of anything of the kind.

8458. Mr. Greville.] Have you heard any cause assigned by the officers of this Lodge for the non-payment of the burial money? No, I never met with them about it.

8459. But was no reason assigned to the widow? No.

8460. Was her application merely met by a point blank refusal? She was told there were no funds.

8461. Mr. Holdsworth.] Is the Lodge still in existence? I believe so.

8462. Mr. Rubie.] And no reason was assigned except the want of funds? No.

8463. Do you think, considering the benefits these Societies confer on the working classes, that they ought to be under the supervision of some Government Department? I think it would be as well if they were, now that they are increasing and becoming so important.

8464. Mr. Gelding.] Are you of opinion that the Government should appoint an Actuary to look after the Friendly Societies? I think it would be advisable.

8465. Have you ever considered the question of arbitration; do you think it would be advisable for Societies to have their own arbitrators, or that they should be appointed away from the Societies? I think it would be better if the arbitrators were apart from the Societies, although there are some cases in which I believe it would be as well if they were in connection with the Society; but on the whole it would be better that they should be appointed from other Societies, if it would prevent resort to Courts of law.

8466. I presume you are of opinion that the Registrar of Friendly Societies should be appointed as in Victoria; his duties being to look after these and Trades Unions and Building Societies, without having anything else to do? Yes, I think they are becoming sufficiently important to warrant that.

8467. You are impressed with the belief that the sliding scale would be superior to the system now in vogue of having a uniform rate of contribution; you do not consider that fair? No, I think a graduated scale is the best.

W. Henson,
Esq., M.P.

The examination of Mr. James Donohoe was resumed :—

- Mr. J. Donohoe.
22 May, 1882.
8468. President.] You are Secretary of —? The United Society of Boiler-makers and Iron Ship Builders of New South Wales.
8469. You have already given evidence before the Commission? Yes.
8470. Can you tell the Commission what amount of money you paid during last year for benefits? For the last two years we paid £144 14s. 5d. on account of disputes; for sick pay we paid away £42; that was voted for a distress relief.
8471. Do your rules provide for a Sick Fund? No.
8472. What do you pay in case of death? £10.
8473. What have you paid during the last two years? The rule has only been in existence twelve months; we have paid £30.
8474. Do your members undergo a medical examination? No.
8475. What have you paid on account of trade allowances, strikes, and so on? £144 14s. 5d., as near as I can get at it.
8476. Your Society exists for the purpose of trade organization? That is all.
8477. Are you registered under the Act? Not yet.
8478. Have you proposed to be registered? It is under the consideration of a Committee at the present time.
8479. Most of your members belong to other Benefit Societies? I believe so.
8480. Has a proposal been made to register the Society under the Act? Not yet; we are comparing the rules with the Act, and there is a Committee now sitting.
8481. What amount of funds have you got? At the last audit, in March, 1882, we had £1,080 4s. 3d.
8482. How is the money invested? In two Banks.
8483. In Trustees? Three Trustees. There is a fixed deposit in the bank of New South Wales, and a current account in the Savings' Bank.
8484. You have no medical examination? No.
8485. And you admit any member of the trade, providing he is a respectable man? Yes, if he can do a day's work.
8486. How do you deal with members who get in arrears? They are first summoned by the Secretary, and then there is 1s. fine; and then, if they are about four months in arrears, we find a way of dealing with them.
8487. Is all the trade enrolled in your Society? Every boiler-maker in Sydney.
8488. No compulsion I suppose? Well, the rules prevent members of the Society working with a non-member.
8489. That is purely a trade condition? It is a trade condition.
8490. Have you found any difficulty in carrying out the rules? No, not now.
8491. I suppose at first there was some trouble? Yes, and there is occasionally a little trouble now.
8492. Did you make many members last year? About fifty I think.
8493. Many leave the Society? Well, the members of our Society travel about a good deal and draw clearance cards. We have a Branch in Newcastle; and this report (Commission's return) is only the report of the Sydney Branch.
8494. Mr. Smith.] Your Trustees have absolute control over your funds, have they not? Yes, they have.
8495. You take no bond or guarantee from them? No, we have had confidence in them.
8496. It would be possible for them to walk away with the whole of your funds if they chose? It is quite possible, but they are men who are well known.
8497. Mr. Abigail.] If any members failed to pay their contributions, would you take any action to prevent them being employed? Well, there is a meeting amongst the parties concerned and they pass certain resolutions, such as that they will not work in the shop with that man until he is good.
8498. Has that the effect on the employer of preventing him employing any but members of your Society? Yes, but we make it a rule that any man is allowed to work a fortnight before being asked for his proposition fee.
8499. But to continue in his work it is necessary and compulsory that he should join your Society? Quite so.
8500. I see by your balance-sheet that there is £977 in the Bank in the names of your Trustees; do you not think some provision should be made for these men to give a guarantee bond, so as to protect the Society against any chance of loss? Yes, I have thought so for a long time past.
8501. Would that principle apply also to the Treasurer? Yes, it would.
8502. Am I right in concluding that the combining of Societies was the means of passing the Act recently passed? I am under that impression.
8503. Have you any knowledge of the Friendly Societies Act? No, I have no knowledge of it at all.
8504. Are you a member of any other Benefit Society? I am a member of the Grand United Order of Oddfellows.
8505. Have you taken any active part in the working of that Society? No, I have not.
8506. Have you any knowledge of any instance where the funds of any Trade Protection Society have been misappropriated by any of the officers? No.

The Commission then adjourned until Friday, 26th May.

FRIDAY, 26 MAY, 1882.

Present:—

FRANCIS ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P., IN THE CHAIR.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
E. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,JOHN SLADE, Esq.,
JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,

E. J. RUBIE, Esq.

Mr. James Sheehan sworn and examined:—

8507. Chairman.] What Society do you represent? The Australian Holy Catholic Guild.
 8508. What position do you hold? Secretary.
 8509. What is the number of members? About 950.
 8510. What is the amount of subscriptions you pay? 2s. 4d. per fortnight.
 8511. And what benefits do you allow? A guinea a week to sick members for twelve months, and half-a-guinea if he continues to be sick for another twelve months, and then 5s. as long as he remains ill.
 8512. And is he allowed to do any light work while receiving that allowance? No, nothing.
 8513. How is the Society managed? By a Council and governing body.
 8514. How are they elected? Elected by the general body.
 8515. Representing —? Warden, Bursar, and three Trustees, together with other members.
 8516. Do any of the officers get paid? Only the Secretary.
 8517. What does he receive? £78 a year.
 8518. Can you tell us from your books anything about an error or deficiency said to have occurred in 1876? No, I am not conversant with that matter.
 8519. How long have you been Secretary? Since February last.
 8520. How long have you been a member of the Society? About twelve or thirteen years.
 8521. Were you a regular attendant at the meetings? Yes, I attended pretty regularly.
 8522. Do you know anything of a special audit having taken place in 1875 or 1876? Such a thing did take place, but I am not well acquainted with the circumstances of it.
 8523. Are you aware who made that audit? Well, I have heard it was a gentleman of the name of Carroll.
 8524. Do you know whether it was favourable to the management of the Society? I believe it was, from what I have heard.
 8525. Have you ever seen his report? No, I have never seen it.
 8526. If the special auditor concluded his report in these words, do you think it would show the Society to be well managed and satisfactory:—"I would add, in concluding this report, that the books of the Guild have been kept in a most slovenly and unbusiness-like manner, and the manner in which the cash-book has been manipulated is in the highest degree discreditable." Do you think that would apply to your Society? I could not say.
 8527. If it did, do you think it would be right to say the Society was well managed and its affairs were properly conducted? I could not say that it would be well managed.
 8528. That is the concluding part of one of Mr. Carroll's reports on your Society, while he further states:—"From the most diligent and painstaking examination of the Bursar's book, which, from the number of entries of moneys received that have been erased or struck out, and the difficulty of determining what payments should be allowed or disallowed, it has given me much serious thought to strike a balance in the Bursar's hands on the 31st December, 1875. However, I have done so, and feel satisfied of its approximate correctness in so far as it was possible to arrive at it, and I consider that to make good the above sum of £205 15s. 11d., that the Bursar's share is £46 0s. 4d., and the Secretary's share £159 15s. 7d." That shows that these two items were wanting in making up the balances; were you aware of that fact when this letter came in in which you state that the Friendly Societies Act had answered all the purposes of your Society, and that it was well managed and did not need any inquiry into? That was my impression in sending that letter. (Letter put in and read as follows):—

THE officers of the A.H.C. Guild, while anxious to aid the Commission in their labours, would respectfully point out that they have at great trouble furnished all information required in the first edition of the forms supplied to us. To fill in, even in an approximate manner, the annexed form, would entail such an amount of clerical labour, and would engross so much of our officers' time, which in the execution of their regular work would be more profitably employed, that we do not feel justified in undertaking such a task. With regard to the paragraph at the head of this sheet, we must admit we are somewhat in the dark as to what form our reply should take, but we think (and this remark does not of course affect the personnel of the Commission) that the whole business is a mistake, or else if there ever was any justification for the appointment of the Commission, that justification must be sought for in something utterly foreign to the experience of our Society, the existing law of the Colony having been found quite satisfactory. If this information (we allude to the erratic tabular forms enclosed) is insisted upon, the Commission might appoint a few clerks to attend, and every assistance will be given them.

We are, &c.,

RICHD. C. MEACLE, Warden.
JAMES SHEEHAN, Secretary.

May 15th, 1882.

This letter was written on one of the return forms issued by the Commission, and had the following note at the head:—"N.B.—The Commission would be glad to receive any expression of opinion, experiences, or suggestions upon, of, or for the present or any future law for Friendly and Benefit Societies."

8529. You were not thoroughly conversant with the contents of this special audit of Mr. Carroll's? I heard that it had taken place.
 8530. Did you know that this audit established the fact that the Society had been badly managed and some of the funds manipulated, when you said it was well managed? I was almost ignorant of the matter of the audit.
 8531. Had you known that such an audit and report as that had been brought in, you would not have concluded that the Society so spoken of was well managed at that time? No, not at that time, but up to the present it is.
 8532. You read the contents of that letter and know what it contains? Yes.

8533.

Mr.
J. Sheehan,
26 May, 1882.

- Mr. J. Sheehan.
6 May, 1882.
8533. It is not necessary to read it to you again? Oh no.
8534. You have no desire to withdraw any of the contents you have subscribed your name to? No, there is nothing objectionable in it.
8535. What is meant by "the erratic tabular forms enclosed"? It means that form of return.
8536. This form asks for the name and address of the Society,—how long it has been in existence; the average number of members in each of the last five years,—taking the number good at end of each quarter and dividing by four for the year; the number of weeks' sickness in each year; the number of members joined in each year; the accumulated ages of the joining members, being their ages added up for each year; the number of members, wives, and children, who have died in each year, giving their added ages; and the number of members at the present time, and their accumulated ages, in years only. Now, will you please to explain in what way it is "erratic"? Well, we filled in the first form that was sent out, at great personal inconvenience to us, and furnished all the information it was possible to furnish; and to go through that would necessitate a great loss of time on the part of the officers.
8537. I suppose you are perfectly aware of the objects of the Commission,—to inquire into the workings of the Societies with a view to bringing in a better Act; that being so, do you think the Societies should assist the Commission in their work? Well, without the assistance of the Societies the Commission would not be able to form any new Act.
8538. Are you aware that the Commission has full power to compel witnesses not only to attend but also to supply evidence, if they should deem it proper? I cannot say I am aware of that.
8539. Since 1876 you say your Society has been well managed. Can you tell us what progress they have made in their funds in that time? Yes; I dare say we are £1,000 better off now than we were in 1876. We have cleared off £1,000 of the mortgage.
8540. Have you had any occasion to consult the Registrar or the Friendly Societies Act? No, I do not think we have.
8541. Are your funds kept separate? No, they all go into one General Fund.
8542. Do you know that is contrary to the Friendly Societies Act? Well, our registered rules give us power to do it.
8543. But the Friendly Societies Act is in opposition to that, and no laws registered or not can override the Act under which they are framed? Well, it is a strange thing that they register the rules if they are not in accordance with the Act.
8544. Have you had occasion to consult Mr. Oliver on any matter affecting your Society? We may have asked his opinion about a rule.
8545. Do you think the Friendly Societies Act answers all the purposes of protecting and governing the Friendly Societies of the Colony? I think it is ample as far as we are concerned. There is only one matter—that of members being bad on the books. According to our rules a member can run for fifty-two weeks and then he goes off the books; but I am informed that under the Act if he dies within that time his widow can claim the amount.
8546. Have you had any case where you have erased a man's name and he has still sought to obtain the benefits? No.
8547. In the settlement of disputes do you think the present system is satisfactory in enabling members to go to the Law Courts for redress? No; it is anything but satisfactory to have these matters go into Court; they ought to be decided by arbitration, and the arbitrators' decision should be final.
8548. How would you form your Arbitration Board? According to our rules we have three, who are elected.
8549. You think the Board should be confined to the members of the Society? I think so.
8550. Are you in favour of a close Government supervision of Societies by an officer appointed to inspect the accounts? I do not think it would do any harm.
8551. Do you attach any importance to correct annual returns being sent in? Yes.
8552. Does your Society send in its returns regularly? Yes, I think so.
8553. Have you any suggestions to make that would be of benefit in framing any new law? No, I do not think so.
8554. Are you in favour of a special Registrar being appointed to supervise solely Friendly Societies apart from any other office? Yes; I could not be unfavourable to that, because I think it is very requisite.
8555. You think the Societies are of sufficient importance now to demand some step of that kind? Yes.
8556. Are you aware there is a statist and barrister appointed by the Government of Victoria to overlook and register rules? Yes; it would be a very good thing if there were a Registrar appointed specially for that purpose here, because the Registrar would take more interest in the rules when sent to him.
8557. Mr. Greville.] Do you understand that these returns have to be made? It is impossible for us to complete that return.
8558. Why should your Society find it more impossible than those Societies which have already done it? I cannot say.
8559. Will you point out the information required which you find it impossible to give? "The number of members, wives, and children who have died, giving the added ages." We are not in a position to give that; then "the number of members at the present time and their accumulated ages," I do not think we could give that; it would take a great deal of time to do it.
8560. Do you mean that it is impossible to give the information, or that it would take more time than you feel justified in giving? It would take up a considerable amount of time.
8561. But is it impossible? It is impossible in one respect.
8562. Where is the impossibility? "The number of members, wives, and children, giving the added ages"; there is no record kept of that.
8563. Do you not keep a record of the number of members who die in each year? Yes, we have that.
8564. And do not they show how many wives died each year? No.
8565. Do you pay anything for the death of wives? If the husbands are good on the books; but on the death of a wife direct we do not pay.
8566. And do you not keep a record of that? Yes, it is entered on the books, but we could not furnish the number of those who died who were bad on the books.
8567. But they are virtually dead and are treated as non-members? Oh no; because if they allow their arrears to exceed fourteen weeks they are bad on the books.

8568. You can furnish the Commission, can you not, with the number of wives who died who were good on the books, and that is all we want to know? Yes, but I cannot give you their ages.

8569. Chairman.] The question is, can you give the number of wives of benefit members who have died? I do not think I can.

8570. Mr. Greville.] Do you not enter that upon your books? It would be very unjust to ask me to do that, considering I have only taken office for a few months.

8571. Are your books kept in such a way as to show the number of wives who die? Yes.

8572. Then where is the impossibility of giving us the information? Well, it is impossible for us to devote the time to hunting over the books to find it out.

8573. Now, do you keep a record of the number of children who die? No, we allow no benefits for them, and do not keep any record.

8574. When members or their wives die do you enter upon the books their ages? No, we do not.

8575. Then you cannot give their added ages? No.

8576. But your answers lead me to the conclusion that you can give me the number of members and wives who died in each year for the past five years? We might be able to do that.

8577. Are your books kept in such a state that you are doubtful whether you can give a correct return or not? They are kept very well at the present time.

8578. Will you kindly point out any other request made which you term impossible? I do not think there is anything else impossible there.

8579. Then your objection is simply that it is not impossible to fill out and give the most of the information, but that it would take up too much time? Yes, I believe it would take up too much time, and then it would be a most unsatisfactory report. You could get the number of members, but I do not know about their accumulated ages.

8580. Is a member's age not entered when he joins? Yes.

8581. Then if you add the number of years from then up to the present time, you get his age very easily, do you not? Yes.

8582. Is it your intention to furnish the information to the best of your ability, or will it be necessary to serve a notice on you to bring up all the books for them to be examined here; which would you rather do; the information must be given, and we must insist upon obtaining it; which would you rather do? We will give the information as far as possible.

8583. Mr. Holdsworth.] You have an annual balance-sheet? Yes.

8584. That sets forth the number of persons who die? Yes.

8585. And the number of members' wives? Yes.

8586. You have had them for the last eight or nine years, have you not? I believe so.

8587. Would it not be possible then from these to supply the number of deaths? We could do that.

8588. Would that take such a large amount of time? It would take a considerable amount of time.

8589. Are you aware there is an Australian Catholic Young Women's Society? No, I am not, I have heard of it.

8590. Assuming there is such a Society, do you think you are as well qualified to keep accounts as female members? I think so.

8591. Do you think if a female Guild could supply the return asked for you could not do it? They may not have done it; they can always get a little assistance.

8592. I understood you to say it would be very hard to ask you to do this, as you had only been Secretary a few months? Yes.

8593. Would it not be possible to get those who were there before you to do it? I think that would be quite possible, and more justifiable.

8594. Are you aware that the Commission is called for the benefit of members of Friendly Societies, for their advantage? I am aware it was formed to inquire into their workings.

8595. Do you not think then as the Government of the country is prepared to spend so large a sum, the Societies themselves should render all the assistance in their power? Yes; a Society may think itself quite secure.

8596. Mr. Rubie.] I suppose all this information could be obtained from the books? Yes, I think so.

8597. The only thing is the matter of the time of the individual? Yes, it would necessitate a lot of time.

8598. That would be the only difficulty? Yes.

8599. And you think the individual should not be called upon to supply all this information without some remuneration? Yes.

8600. But the whole matter in the return can be furnished from the books? Yes, I think so.

8601. Mr. Newland.] Are you in favour of a graduated scale of contributions in your Society? We have found the present scale very satisfactory.

8602. Would you be in favour of a sliding scale? No, I do not hold with it.

8603. Do you not have levies in your Society? We have never had occasion for them, though we have power to levy.

8604. You pay a regular contribution fee? Yes.

8605. Are you aware that the salary of £78 is an unusual amount of pay for a Secretary of a Friendly Society? No, I am not aware of it.

8606. Have you any experience or knowledge of what is paid Secretaries of other Societies? I cannot say I have hunted after them to find out what they were getting.

8607. Have you any knowledge of what is paid to Secretaries of other Societies? I am not aware what is paid.

8608. You are not aware that that is a very unusual salary to pay? It is not unusual for the unusual amount of work you have to do.

8609. Mr. Slade.] If a witness from your Society has stated the whole cash balance of your Society to be £179, do you think that is a satisfactory and solvent state for the Society of the size of yours? Yes.

8610. Have you any idea what are your probable liabilities with such a number of members, the risk of sickness, for instance? No.

8611. How many members have you? About 950.

Mr.
J. Sheehan,
26 May, 1882.

- Mr. J. Sheehan. 8612. With nearly a thousand members and a cash balance of £179, do you still think it is a safe state of affairs? Yes, considering we have property.
- 26 May, 1882. 8613. Is that property of such a nature that it could be hastily realized for the purpose of paying the liabilities of the Society? If we were anxious to get rid of it I do not think we should find any difficulty.
8614. If a previous witness stated you had a cash credit at the Bank, if you required it, could you tell from that whether they thought it was sufficient? I was not aware that we had an emergency credit. Of course what we have to our credit at the Bank is our balance.
8615. Is there any other item in this return that you consider more than ordinarily difficult to make out? No, I think I have explained all the items.
8616. If the ordinary average of Secretaries have returned these papers to us perfectly filled up, do you think that argues better clerical information on their part than on yours? No, I do not think so; they may have furnished returns that are not accurate.
8617. Mr. Gelding.] I presume alteration has taken place in the management of your Society; there is better supervision lately? Yes, there is better supervision the last few years.
8618. Mr. Greville.] Have you had any experience in any other Society? No; this is the only Society I have had experience of.
8619. You said just now that the amount of salary allowed by your Society was not unusual considering the unusual labour involved: what labour is there attached to your office that is not attached to the office in other Societies? Well, other Lodges have their different Branch Secretaries, but in the Guild there is the one general Secretary who has to do the whole of the work.
8620. Is there any other unusual labour but that? No; it is principally a matter of work.
8621. Mr. Smith.] You have seven Lodges, have you not, in your Guild? We have seven Districts.
8622. They form the Council? The Council is elected through the Districts.
8623. You simply discharge all the duties in connection with the Secretaryship to the Council? To the members generally.
8624. The Branches have Secretaries of their own? No; there are District Secretaries, but they do nothing, simply taking the subscriptions on pay nights.
8625. There is the Branch of St. Joseph's, at Newtown, there is a Secretary there, is there not? Yes.
8626. He receives the whole of the subscriptions payable to that District? Yes.
8627. He does all the communications with you as Council Secretary, does he not? No further than personal communication.
8628. He makes up and supplies you with the balance-sheet for that particular District, does he not? No, he does not.
8629. He summons all members of his own Branch, does he not? No, he does not.
8630. Do you do that? I have to do anything I am instructed to by the Warden.
8631. That is your answer? If it is necessary to summon them, I have to summon them.
8632. Is it a portion of your duties to do that? Certainly.
8633. And do you call on the members of the various Branches, by circular or otherwise? By advertisement, and send notices out if necessary.
8634. Do you send them to the members or to the officers of the District? They must go to the officers.
8635. And it then becomes the duty of the officers to summon the members in accordance with the Warden's wishes? Yes.
8636. Would he not have to send a summons to each member? No.
8637. Then, how would he inform his members that he has a communication from the Warden or Council? As it happens the Secretary does not call the meeting at all—it is the Chairman.
8638. But do the duties devolve upon you or upon the others? They are not Secretaries at all, except in name.
8639. All business appertaining to the Branch, and having to be done by the Branch, is done by the Branch's officers, is it not? No, I cannot say it is.
8640. It is managed by the officers of the District, is it not? I have not to communicate with the members individually; in the matter of a fine I have to send a circular.
8641. How are you made aware that there is to be a fine registered against any particular member? Well, if they are fined for a special meeting, the officers of the District make a note of those who are absent.
8642. In each District there are records kept of what is done, are there not? Yes.
8643. The President and Secretary manage the affairs of their own District? They come to the Hall and manage them.
8644. Do the subordinate Secretaries furnish you with a report of the actual working of their own Districts? No.
8645. Do they keep any minutes of the proceedings at all? None whatever.
8646. Do you do the whole of that? I have to keep every account in connection with the Guild.
8647. Do you do the whole of that work, answer yes or no if you please? Well, if I said I did I would be implicating myself. They are appointed to do a certain thing, to take the money from the members; I have to keep the books and accounts, and everything in connection with the funds.
8648. I presume you are acquainted with the working of the Order? Yes.
8649. Well, what are the duties of the subordinate Secretaries to the various Districts? They have to assist to take the contributions of the members, and to attend all meetings, to take the names of those absent and present at the meetings.
8650. And then you are furnished with the records of those meetings? Yes.
8651. And you have to compile your records from those already made or taken by the subordinate Secretaries in the District? Yes.
8652. You deal with it finally? Yes.
8653. But a great deal is prepared by these subordinate Secretaries? Oh no.
8654. Is it not a fact that the Secretary in connection with the District of St. Joseph's, at Newtown, furnishes you with a record of the number of members good on the books, the amount of subscriptions due by them, and the business generally transacted in the District? No, he has never done so.
8655. Then do you visit Newtown yourself for the purpose of recording the whole of their proceedings as Secretary? No.

8656. How are their proceedings recorded? All they have to do is to take the contributions; they hold no meetings; all meetings are called by the Warden. At their meetings they simply take the contributions.
8657. Then there is no clerical work for subordinate Secretaries to do? None whatever.
8658. The whole is performed by you as Grand Secretary to the Grand Council, is that so? In the matter of fines, they have to attend to take the names of those who are absent or present in the different Branches, which I could not do.
8659. In reply to the Chairman you said your Society was well managed now: have you a balance-sheet of a recent date or any books to show that your Society is better managed? We have not issued a balance-sheet since the end of 1881; our next will be at the end of June; we have now to our credit about £397.
8660. Have you made many new members this year? Yes.
8661. About how many since the beginning of the year? About forty.
8662. Are they very young? From eighteen upwards; the average would be about twenty-three or twenty-four.
8663. Chairman.] As I understand it, the duties of these Secretaries of Branches are simply of a formal character—they receive the money and bring it to you? To the Bursar.
8664. You keep a cash-book? The Bursar does.
8665. Do you keep a register of the members? No, I have not a complete register.
8666. You have to make out all balance-sheets and furnish all reports? Yes, and conduct all the correspondence.
8667. I see your return states, cash in hand £203 7s. 6d.; money lent on mortgage and in the hands of the Secretary and Bursar, £1,309 6s.: what mortgage is that? I do not know what it was lent on I am sure.
8668. Did you make out that return? It is compiled from the balance-sheets.
8669. Can you not give us any information as to where this £1,300 is placed? No, that was in 1877.
8670. You cannot give any explanation of that? No.

Mr.
J. Sheehan.
26 May, 1882.

Mr. Richard Charles Meacle sworn and examined:—

8671. Chairman.] What Society do you represent? The Australasian Holy Catholic Guild.
8672. And what position do you occupy? Warden—the highest lay office in it.
8673. How long have you been a member of the Society? Going on for six years.
8674. You were a member in 1877? I believe so.
8675. Were you in any office at that time? No.
8676. Were you conversant with the workings of the Society at that time? I think at or about that period I became an Auditor.
8677. In the return from your Society there is an item of money lent on mortgage, and money in the hands of the Secretary and Bursar £1,309 6s.? That is some money that was outstanding on mortgage and came in during the currency of that half-year; it, together with what was in the hands of the Secretary and Bursar, amounted to that sum.
8678. What became of that money? It went towards reducing the debt on the Hall.
8679. You subscribed your name to that letter (see evidence of previous witness, question 8528)? Yes.
8680. You know the contents of it? Yes.
8681. Did you write that letter? I dictated it.
8682. Will you point out what portion of that return you refer to as being “erratic”? The accumulated ages of the joining members; the number of members, wives, and children, who have died in each year, giving their added ages; the number of members at the present time, and their accumulated ages.
8683. Do you think there would be any great difficulty in giving the accumulated ages of the joining members? We have not the requisite facilities for doing it.
8684. Are you aware the Commission has power to enforce it? Yes, you will find that we have that contingency in view.
8685. Where is the difficulty in giving the accumulated ages of the members at the present time? It is not so much the difficulty as the amount of trouble and bother—unproductive, from our point of view, of any good—that would be entailed upon the officers in doing it; and added to that, it is questionable whether we could give any data that would be of service.
8686. You take the ages of men when they join? Yes.
8687. Would it not be easy to take the number of years since they joined and you have it at once? Certainly, but as a matter of practice there is nothing to be gained by doing that.
8688. Thus there would be no difficulty in supplying that—it is only a question of labour? We have no official record of the ages; the papers are filed and entered; and it stands to reason that, unless you keep a record and utilized that record so that members could see that it would be of some service, it would be folly of us to do so.
8689. Do I understand you to say that there is no record kept in a book? There is no book in which that record is kept; the initiation paper is filed.
8690. So that as a matter of fact you have no book in which you record the joining ages of your members? No.
8691. Do you think that is a satisfactory way of conducting business? Yes, all things considered I think the less amount of clerical labour the better, especially when it will be productive of no benefit.
8692. Supposing that a member had been ten years in, and you found he had entered under a false age by fraud, how would you proceed to show he had done so? Well, we do not see it in that light. When a member joins there is an investigation Committee, and they can judge whether his statement as to age is correct, and as there is so little difference in the ten years from twenty-five to thirty-five it would be hardly worth a member's while to prevaricate.
8693. Then you state that your books are kept in such a manner as not to enable you to furnish the information sought for in this return? Yes.
8694. And do you consider that a good state of things? Yes, as all the information you ask for we have in our possession at the joining of a member.
8695. Supposing a witness has told us your books are so kept that the information can be supplied, what position does that place you in: Mr. Sheehan has told us that the information, except as to the ages of the wives wives and children, can be supplied, it only being a question of labour? Yes, the information no doubt is in the office where these documents are filed, but I said that we kept no book; what I mean by that is a record in which these things are detailed—at least not to my knowledge.

Mr.
R. C. Meacle.

8696. Do you reckon your Society has been well managed since you have been a member? Remarkably well.

8697. Has its progress been satisfactory? Quite.

8698. Have you any knowledge of a Special Auditor's report, dated 1876? I think that was previous to my joining; I know nothing about that.

8699. You have no knowledge of its contents, or what was found fault with? Well, I cannot charge myself to say I have; I may have seen it.

8700. I will read one paragraph:—"I found the District Bursar's book wrongly cast up in thirty-five instances, and in many cases did not agree with the amounts entered in the cash-book as they should do. I infer from my examination that the practice of the Secretary has been to take for granted the amounts appearing in the District Bursar's books without any attempt at checking the additions." If that is true, would you consider it a good state of things? I do not know what time that alludes to.

8701. To 1876? That was about the time I joined. I could not be very well conversant with the official routine of the Society.

8702. But since then you are conversant with the working of the Society? Yes.

8703. Has any case occurred since that time of misappropriation of any of your funds? None whatever.

8704. Any case where a member entitled to benefits has failed to get them? None that I am aware of.

8705. Have you had any disturbance occur during that time between any of your members? The only circumstance that I know of has been of quite recent date. That is, a member died, and at the time of his death he was in arrears; the widow made a claim on the Society he would have been entitled to, and the Society acting on the rules refused the application. Subsequently, however, a member acting on her behalf made an application to the Council for arbitration; that was granted, and the result was that they allowed her a portion of what she would have been entitled to, that is, £20. Her representative expressed his willingness to abide by that result.

8706. Was the amount paid? Yes.

8707. And she expressed her satisfaction? Yes.

8708. Are you in favour of disputes being settled by arbitration? Decidedly.

8709. And you would favour the award of the arbitrators being final? Well, from what I have seen of it in practice I think it would be advisable to make the award final and conclusive. If the matter went any further I do not think it would be productive of any good.

8710. Are you in favour of the Government exercising a strict supervision over Societies? I am totally opposed to that; I think the less Government interference you have with Friendly Societies the better for their own independence.

8711. Would you favour a Government-appointed officer making an annual examination of the books of Societies? No; I should be in favour of the present Registrar carrying out to the letter his duties with reference to the Societies. I believe under the present Act we have all that is required.

8712. But it makes no provision for an examination of the accounts of the Societies? Well, I do not believe in that; I do not think it would encourage that spirit of independence which is essentially necessary for the progress of Friendly Societies.

8713. If the appointing of such an officer brought about an improvement and a more careful keeping of accounts, would it not be beneficial? I think you would very likely deter many members from taking office if you placed a lot of difficulties like that in their way.

8714. Do you not think it would be an advantage to the Societies to keep men out of positions who were not competent to fill them? Speaking from experience, I never came across a Secretary who could not do all that was required in the matter of accounts.

8715. Are you aware that Mr. Joseph Carroll reports on the keeping of the books of your Society that they were kept in the most slovenly and unbusinesslike manner he had ever had the misfortune to examine? I do not exactly know what that refers to.

8716. It refers to the books? Well, if that were taken, it would be of too damaging a character for any person to rest under; the books he refers to are the District Bursar's books, and not the amounts received.

8717. But does it not prove that officers undertake the duties who are not competent to perform them? Well, I regard it this way; if a Society has a competent head it is his duty to see that the officers perform their duty. I believe they have the ability, and only need proper supervision. That has been my experience of it, as I have had a great deal to do with the books for the last four years.

8718. In these audits Mr. Carroll points out something like 140 errors of different kinds? I have nothing whatever to do with the period he refers to; my remarks are directed to the period of which I have some personal knowledge.

8719. You say the condition of the Society now is not that as referred to by Mr. Carroll? Most decidedly not.

8720. That being so, do you think there would be any harm or good arising from a Government audit; if the books were kept properly could it be injurious to the Society? Of course I would not attempt to say it would be injurious, but there is a vast difference between that and asking if it would be beneficial to them.

8721. Well, would it not be beneficial to Benefit Societies? Well, in my opinion, that is very problematical.

8722. Mr. Slade.] In answer to the Chairman you said you did not see the use of the information the Commission asked for? Yes.

8723. If I tell you that the information is necessary for us to compile a statement of the ages most fatal in Friendly Societies, would that alter your opinion? The answer I gave was in reference to the paragraph at the head of the Return.

8724. Does that paragraph say anything more than that the person to whom the form was addressed may be able to furnish information of value? I hold we were perfectly justified in giving our opinion.

8725. Do you think you were justified in characterizing the request for information in the somewhat offensive manner in which it is put there, as "somewhat erratic"? Well, that is the appearance it had to us, but it would be well if the Commission took the letter as a whole and not portions of it simply. We thought it would take a large amount of clerical labour and be of very little service; the concluding portion of the letter letter will give our views on the subject :—“If this information is insisted upon * * * the Commission might appoint a few clerks to attend, and every assistance will be given them.” There is nothing offensive about it. It would be unfair to ask our only paid officer to go through records for five years that he may not have.

Mr.
R. C. Meacle.
26 May, 1882.

8726. Is anything asked for that it is not the custom of Friendly Societies to keep? You are asking me a question on a subject on which there are very few men able to talk with authority.

8727. Are you aware that this sort of information is kept and furnished by all Societies? I am not aware of it.

8728. Do you or do you not do so? To the best of my belief we keep no official reliable record.

8729. Have you any means of distinguishing Thomas Brown of forty years of age from Thomas Brown of twenty-five; what means have you of identifying members of the same name? I do not know of any such instance.

8730. Do you not keep a record of sickness? Yes.

8731. What amount of labour would it be to fill that up? It has already been given.

8732. The rate of sick pay? That is supplied.

8733. Do not you keep a record of the number who join in each year? Yes, and it is already supplied.

8734. Is there any objection to give their accumulated ages? Well, in many cases the members would give their own ages.

8735. With regard to the number of wives and children who have died in each year; what difficulty would there be in adding to the age at which they joined the period that has elapsed since? That is very well in theory, but I look at it from a practical point of view; we do not take the ages of wives and children.

8736. Then the Secretary might have filled that up “Information not available,” would it have been any trouble? I think it would, as it would have been giving the information in an incomplete state.

8737. Do you see any difficulty in filling it up the same as the “Wandering Minstrel” Lodge, M.U., where no benefits are given to the children? The answer to this question is already contained in the letter.

8738. Would it have been any trouble to fill it up in the form? I think it is useless to show us that, when we object to it as useless from our point of view.

8739. Are you in a position to state all these matters you say have been supplied in your other return are in it; that is, the average number of members during the last five years and so on? I believe we have given the average number of members in each of the years; the number of weeks' sickness in each year I am not certain about, but the amount of sick pay in each year—and that is pretty well equivalent—has been sent in.

8740. As similar returns have been issued to all Societies and have been returned by some perfectly and clearly filled up, can you say that it is impossible for the general run of Secretaries to give us the information? I do not exactly understand the nature of that question.

8741. Is the particular mode in which your books and accounts are kept so much more difficult and technical that it makes the labour in your case so much more than in other Societies? I cannot say.

8742. Are you aware that many Societies give benefits for wives and children as well as members? I would not say.

8743. Presuming there are Societies that do so, I suppose you will see the necessity of putting the three headings there? It does not affect our case.

8744. The gentleman who has just left us says your cash balance is £390? I believe that, exactly.

8745. And you have nearly 1,000 members? Yes.

8746. Do you believe the amount of 7s. 9½d. a member, which that comes to, is sufficient to warrant the statement that your Society is in a highly prosperous and safe state? If I were to answer that question straight it might have a damaging appearance, so I had better give an explanation. I think our financial position as a Society of forty years' experience is equalled by very few Societies at present in the Colony; and that our members having the power to levy upon themselves in case of an extraordinary period of sickness, is an additional security, added to the large amount of money that we have invested in the freehold property; that is an additional security to the members that we are able to pay our way.

8747. If other Societies as long established as your own can give a record to the day of every member who has joined it, do you justify the expression that your Society is better managed than theirs? Yes, in view of the fact that there is no utility in the information, however elaborate it may be.

8748. If this Commission deems it one of its duties to compile, for the information of Friendly Societies, a table of ages of members and localities that are most fatal to life and most productive of sickness, does that justify your statement now? From my point of view, certainly.

8749. Mr. Newland. Are you aware that Friendly Societies in Great Britain are compelled to have valuations of their affairs periodically? I have no knowledge of the Societies in Great Britain, nor do I think it is absolutely necessary that I should.

8750. If Friendly Societies in Great Britain are compelled to have these valuations, do you not think it right that it should be so? I cannot say.

8751. Mr. Gelding. You believe in the free and easy government of Friendly Societies—let every one do as they please? Most decidedly not.

8752. Have you studied the Friendly Societies Act? I have read it.

8753. You believe it to be thoroughly perfect? I believe it would be worked satisfactory to us.

8754. Have you followed its provisions in all integrity? As near as any one can do.

8755. Who pays the money to your sick members? Our general Bursar.

8756. Have you any Trustees in your Society? We have three.

8757. Are you aware that the Act makes it a distinct portion of the duties of the Trustees to disburse all the money? They do so as a matter of fact; they give authority for it and the Bursar pays it.

8758. Do you not think it would be far better for Societies to carry on their operations without the privilege of levies? I think if they could be obviated it would be all the better; as a matter of fact, no levy has ever been made in our Society, although we have the power.

8759. I would like to ask your opinion of the sliding scale: do you think it just that a young man should pay the same contributions as an old man? Yes, I do, I think there should be no distinction.

8760. Have you any Widow and Orphan Fund attached to your Society? Yes, but it is a Widow and Orphan Fund in name only, as it is combined with the General Fund.

- Mr. R. C. Meacle,
26 May, 1882.
8761. As regards your finances, is not the apparent prosperity of your Society due more to the great rise in value of property than to the actual contributions paid in by your members? No, I have not considered the increase in value of freehold property as one of our stand-bys in case of need; and we have not added anything on to the value of our property beyond what it has actually cost us.
8762. Have you given any attention to the question of what is a fair average for Societies to hold to ensure something like solvency? No, I cannot say I have; I have an opinion.
8763. What is your opinion? My opinion is that any Society that can show £5 a head over 500 members is in a solvent state.
8764. Have you read anything in reference to the statistics of Societies in Victoria? No.
8765. Are you aware that the Government officials there state that nothing less than £10 is an approach to solvency? Well, it is a matter of opinion.
8766. You believe that the present system of having a Registrar is sufficient? I believe the Societies are supposed to send in certain returns. If they are sent in I think it as much as the Government has a right to demand.
8767. Has the present Registrar ever complied with the Act in sending returns to Parliament? I am not alluding to that; I mean as far as the Societies are concerned.
8768. Have you ever seen a return furnished to Parliament? I cannot say I have.
8769. Do you not think the rules should be registered free of cost? I do not think we labour under any great disadvantage in that; if we want the Government to do anything for us, we should pay them just as we would pay any private person.
8770. Mr. Rubie.] You keep no records of the ages of the members? I believe there is no official record kept.
8771. And therefore none of the wives and children? I do not think the ages of members' wives are asked for.
8772. Have you any form of application? Yes.
8773. Is there not on that form a column to be filled up with the name, age, and everything of that sort? No; there is the name, age, and occupation of the member, and whether married or single.
8774. But not the ages of the wives and children? I do not think so; I am not certain.
8775. Mr. Holdsworth.] I think you said you did not agree with a Government audit? I said I did not see that there was any necessity for it.
8776. Are you aware that in a balance-sheet of yours there is a sum of £1,495 said to be a deficiency? I know nothing whatever about it.
8777. This £1,309, is it not included in the price of the Guild Hall? No, it is a sum of money which was out on mortgage.
8778. Was it not spent in building the Guild Hall? No, the Hall was built then.
8779. Your accounts are kept all in one? In one fund.
8780. Do you think that is a wise course? I have seen no reason to doubt the wisdom of it.
8781. Do you not think it would be wiser to show what the profits or losses from special properties were? That could be obtained by any person scrutinizing the balance-sheet.
8782. But would it not be better to keep the accounts separate? I do not know—I could not say.
8783. Your Guild Hall, by the balance sheet, is estimated at £7,597 14s. 2d.? Yes.
8784. There is a Savings' Bank mortgage of £2,000, which leaves £5,597 14s. 2d., which has been spent out of your Guild funds? Yes, I believe that is how the money can be accounted for.
8785. By the balance-sheet it appears that the rental was £260 for the half-year, I presume that was correct? That is £520 a-year.
8786. The expenditure for the half-year was £230, leaving a balance of £30; is that a fair interest on £5,500, the sum spent on the Hall? You must remember that the main Hall is let, and that we have a house and the greater part of the front for our meetings.
8787. Would it not be wiser to keep the items separate? Yes, it might.
8788. It would be more easily understood by your members? I think not.
8789. You have spoken of being in a prosperous state, and I presume, if you have not such an amount of cash balance, you have any amount of funds available at any moment by means of your property? We could have an advance at any time upon it, or sell it straight off.
8790. Have you ever given any consideration to the question of graduated payments? I could not approve of it.
8791. Are you aware that the sickness of a man of fifty is more than four times that of one of twenty? I cannot say that I am, and I scarcely think it is so.
8792. You have the power to levy, and you look upon that as a safeguard in an extreme case? Yes.
8793. Mr. Smith.] Are you aware that in 1874 your Society numbered in this city 1,000 members? I am not aware of that.
8794. Are you aware that at that time they had in cash £6,000? No; and that is a period appertaining to which I can give no information whatever.
8795. It is not within your knowledge that they had a property in Liverpool-street, valued at £2,000? No.
8796. Making a total value of £8,000? No.
8797. Is it within your knowledge that they then paid the Secretary £30? No, I have no personal knowledge of the matter.
8798. Do you know that you pay your Secretary now £78 per annum? Yes.
8799. And that you provide him with a house and lighting free, in addition to that salary? Yes.
8800. Which is equal to about what per annum? I should imagine that the quarters and accommodation he receives is equal to about 7s. 6d. a week.
8801. Do you not think it is worth £120 per annum in all? Yes, and I think we are paying now what we are justly entitled to do to obtain the services of a man of any ability at all.
8802. Chairman.] Do you know that under the Act the tables of Societies have to be certified to by an actuary? Yes; that is, the tables of Societies about to be started, I believe.
8803. Were your tables certified to by an actuary? I could not say; it was before I was born.
8804. Are you aware that the Friendly Societies Act makes it imperative that the funds shall be kept separate under distinct headings? If the Act makes that special provision, how is it they allow us to make rules of a contrary nature; in answer to the question, I think I have read of that before.

8805. But your Society is not acting up to that provision? No, we have acted up to our own rules.

8806. It also states here that the Society shall every five years transmit to the said Registrar a return of the rate or amount of sickness and mortality experienced by such Society within the preceding five years, in such form as shall be prepared by the said Registrar? Our Society has never been furnished with the returns, and I am not aware that previous officers were acquainted with this section of the Act.

8807. Have you made any application for the returns? No.

8808. Do the Trustees and Treasurer give a bond? Not the Trustees, who are elected by the members; the only person who gives a bond is the Bursar or Treasurer.

8809. The Trustees give no bond? No.

8810. Do they hold the property? They do.

8811. You have nothing else to add by way of recommendation? I think the Act answers all the purposes for which it was passed, though it is capable of extension very much.

8812. Do you believe Benefit Societies are a saving to the State? Undoubtedly; and that is my reason for hoping that the State will have nothing whatever to do with our Friendly Societies in this Colony. I do not believe in State interference at all.

8813. Are you in favour of Benefit Societies being permitted to invest funds subscribed for sick and funeral benefits in building, places of meeting, without reserving a certain amount to meet their just liabilities? Decidedly not.

8814. About what amount do you think they should keep in hand? That would depend on the intelligence and energy of those at the head of affairs.

8815. Have you made any calculation as to the rate at which the contingent liabilities of a Society accrue to the Society per year? No, I have not; but I take the intelligent view that we have an average age amongst us that justifies us in looking at our position as a good one.

The Commission then adjourned till Monday, 29th May.

MONDAY, 29 MAY, 1882.

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
E. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,

JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
E. J. RUBIE, Esq.

Dr. Andrew Houison sworn and examined:—

8816. President.] You are a duly qualified medical practitioner? Yes.

8817. Registered under the New South Wales Board? Yes.

8818. I believe you are Secretary to the Board? I am the Secretary of the New South Wales Medical Board.

8819. Have you held that office long? I think about seven years.

8820. Is it a fact that the medical gentlemen passed a resolution in connection with the Board having reference to Friendly Societies? Most decidedly not in connection with the Medical Board.

8821. Are you aware of any resolution that has been passed? No, I am not. I suppose you are aware that the Medical Board is merely a Board of Registration, having nothing to do with medical men, their ethics, or anything of that kind.

8822. Are you aware of any resolution having been passed by a number of medical gentlemen, having to do with Friendly Societies? I am not, though I have seen something in the paper to that effect.

8823. Were you present? I was not.

8824. You have had large experience attending different Friendly Societies? I have.

8825. Do you think that the examination of candidates seeking admission, made by the medical men, is sufficiently full and satisfactory to protect the Societies? Speaking for myself, I can say the examinations have always been of a very stringent nature; generally speaking, I think they are not sufficiently strict. In some, the majority of Societies, the absence of some form for examination is a very great want.

8826. Of what Society or Societies are you at present the medical officer? There are several, but I would rather not give the names.

8827. But you are the officer of several Societies? Yes.

8828. Do you think the payments made to the medical gentlemen who have to deal with these Societies is sufficient and on a right basis? Decidedly not sufficient as a rule, and not on a proper basis.

8829. I presume you have not gone into the question of contributions and the payments made by members, as to whether they are sufficient? No, I have never gone into it practically, but it has struck me that the payments have not been on a proper basis.

8830. Not sufficient to secure the benefits? No, decidedly not.

8831. Are you prepared to make any suggestions to the Commission that would be of service in any future legislation? I should hardly like to do that—it is more a matter for an actuary. I should hardly like to commit myself to any statement as to the basis on which Societies should be constituted.

8832. In the performance of your duties as the medical officer of different Societies, have you found any inconvenience arising in giving effect to your prescriptions and advice amongst members or their families? In what way?

8833. Not due observance? Oh yes.

8834. More than amongst ordinary patients? Decidedly so.

8835. Have you found any attempts on the part of members to sham sickness? Decidedly—only too common.

8836. Do you think it is a wise thing for members to be permitted to join several Societies? I do not.

8837. Are you of opinion that it holds out an inducement for deception and practices of that kind? Decidedly.

8838. There is nothing that strikes your mind that you would like to give the Commission the benefit of in connection with the Societies? Well, I have hardly given the matter sufficient thought.

8839.

Mr.
R. G. Meacle.

26 May, 1882.

Dr. A.
Houison.

29 May, 1882.

Dr. A.
Houison.
29 May, 1882.

8839. Do the medical men, as a rule, give the same amount of attention to members of Societies as they do to their ordinary private practice? I think so, from my experience.

8840. Just as much attention and care is paid to them? As to their own private patients.

8841. And in the dispensing of prescriptions, what has been your observance? Where I can be sure that a thoroughly reliable chemist has been obtainable, and the Societies have been willing to pay a reasonable price for medicines, there has been no trouble. I may mention that in the case of several Societies that I have, the method of providing medicines is at so much per prescription; that is to say, the same drugs precisely are used as for the chemist's private patients, and the chemist reduces the charge by one-third; and at the end of the quarter, if reasonable expedition is used in paying it, a further reduction of $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. is made. By that means you may be perfectly sure of having a first-class article.

8842. Have you given any attention to the mortality amongst members? No, I have not.

8843. Mr. Abigail.] I would ask if in your knowledge the sick payments are promptly made in the Societies you represent? Well, in all cases, except, I think, two Societies, which are very lax in their payments indeed. In these cases, sometimes people who have been in destitute circumstances have been kept in some cases nearly a month without any payment at all.

8844. And that must necessarily be a great hardship? It has been a very great hardship.

8845. Have you ever known a case in which a sick member really entitled to benefits failed to get them? Not permanently.

8846. In the cases you refer to, does the delay result from a want of funds, or dilatoriness on the part of the officers? Decidedly the latter.

8847. You have stated to the President that you object to a man belonging to a number of Societies: would you limit it to one or two? I think two would be in reason. If he belongs to more, it is a great chance that he will in many cases be constantly on the funds.

8848. It would pay better to be on the Sick Funds than to work? Precisely so.

8849. Is the practice of members procuring weekly certificates general? No.

8850. Do you think it beneficial? I do.

8851. Have you known any case in any of the Societies you have been associated with where the officers have misappropriated the funds? No, I have not.

8852. Do you think the present arrangement between the medical men and Societies is established on a satisfactory basis, in the mode of their payments and the amount they pay? No, I do not.

8853. You think it would be more beneficial to pay them a lump sum? Well, the sum paid by a great many Societies now is much too low for efficient work. It cannot be done at the price that I believe some medical men are now tendering for Societies, and I do not approve of tendering for Societies at all. Some of them have tendered at as low a rate as 12s. per member per annum, and it is impossible to give efficient work for that.

8854. You think by a system of that kind the members would naturally suffer? They do suffer undoubtedly.

8855. From your experience, do you think the association of men together in Societies is beneficial to them? That is rather a difficult question, and one that I can hardly answer. I have not associated sufficiently with them to know that.

8856. Your visiting them does not give you an opportunity to know? I should fancy, theoretically, it would be prejudicial to their interests.

8857. Do you not think it enables them to get benefits they could not get as individuals? No doubt of that, but it removes the principle of self-reliance to a great extent.

8858. Do you think working-men with families, such as we find, could pay for their medical attendance if they were isolated? Decidedly not, but the question was as to the moral effect on the men.

8859. Yes, moral and social? No doubt socially it is a very great benefit, but morally, I am afraid it is not what might be desired.

8860. Mr. Greville.] Were you ever connected with Friendly Societies in Great Britain? No.

8861. Are medical changes frequent in Societies? I can only speak with regard to my own. The Societies I hold now I have held almost ever since I have been in practice; I do not change at all.

8862. But, from what you hear? Some of them are constantly changing.

8863. And these changes, do you think them prejudicial? Decidedly.

8864. And are they caused by the Society, or by the medical men abandoning their position? I could hardly say, but I believe from what I have heard from medical men who have held these changing Societies that they do not pay sufficiently well.

8865. Then it arises from the medical men giving them up? On account of inadequate remuneration. I believe so, but I cannot say positively.

8866. I want to know whether the various Societies often take the initiative in removing a medical officer? Very rarely indeed, I believe.

8867. I presume medical men often take these Societies for the purpose of getting into practice, so that the remuneration is a matter of indifference to them at the commencement? That is the fact.

8868. How are these frequent changes prejudicial? Just in the same way that frequent changes of your own medical man would be prejudicial to your own health. Naturally the one who has attended you for years past will be more competent to deal with the case, and in the course of a long experience in a Society you become acquainted with the constitutions of the various members.

8869. Then many young practitioners take the Societies for the purpose of getting not only into practice, but also for the practice itself? Precisely so.

8870. Do you ever find complaints made by the members of too great strictness on the part of the medical man in giving certificates? No, I do not.

8871. Is there often collusion between the officers and members to cases of malingering? Oh, decidedly.

8872. And do you think, as a general rule, that the medical officers set their faces strictly against it? Oh yes, I believe so.

8873. But has that not sometimes the effect of bringing them into collision with the Lodges? With regard to myself, I throw the Lodges on one side and do my duty simply.

8874. I have heard that medical men are not sufficiently careful, fearing what the members may say of them? Fortunately that is not my position.

Dr.
A. Housion.
29 May, 1882.

8875. Have you any idea that malingering is carried on to a great extent? It is of course extremely difficult in all cases to detect.
8876. Then after all the great practice of medical men, the funds are in this way largely misappropriated? Yes, in that way they are largely imposed upon—there is no doubt about that.
8877. Do you not think members' wives ought also to be examined when the husband is admitted, considering that on her death the husband can claim on the funds? Decidedly, in all cases with which I have to deal I have insisted upon it.
8878. And have you been able to carry your point? Always; that is, before the wife is registered on the Funeral Fund.
8879. And has that prudent act on your part saved the Society many calls which otherwise would have been made? Decidedly; cases of consumption have been detected, as well as other diseases in several cases, and the Society has been protected to that extent.
8880. Do you recommend that it should be a rule in all Societies for the wives to be examined? Decidedly.
8881. And would you recommend it for the children? Well, that is another matter. I would recommend that the question be put—"Are the children in good health?" In some of the examination forms, the Oddfellows especially, there is a question "How many children have you; are they in good health?" If that were done in all Societies it would certainly be some safeguard.
8882. Have you ever heard that the admission of members is performed by some medical men in a perfunctory manner? I believe it is.
8883. Is there any special fee paid for examination? Only in one Society with which I am connected.
8884. Do you not think a medical man should be paid a special fee for that special service? I think so.
8885. Are you supplied by the Societies with a series of questions to be asked the candidates? In some cases only, in others not. The Oddfellows and Foresters do, not the Sons of Temperance.
8886. Is there the same rigid examination given to candidates that there would be if an insurance policy was in question? No, the examination there is much more searching. Each examination in case of an insurance policy takes at least a quarter of an hour, generally twenty minutes. Of course the chief part of the time is taken in writing answers to questions which have to be put to the candidates; and I think, for the matter of that, some similar examination form is necessary in the case of a Friendly Society. I do not suppose any of us examine so strictly for a Friendly Society as for an Insurance Society, but if a special fee were paid it would be another matter.
8887. Do you see any reason why the examination should be more lax in one than in the other? No, except that there is a higher responsibility in the one. The examination, I may say, is a thorough one so far as physical condition is concerned.
8888. Is it the case that thirty or forty persons have been examined in one night at the opening of a Lodge? I have never heard of it, and I do not think it is possible to do it. It is possible by giving such an examination as I should not care to give.
8889. You stated that there is constant malingering on the part of members: what remedy do you propose? I am afraid it would be very difficult to remedy it.
8890. Mr. Holdsworth.] You consider it is preferable to pay the chemist for the medicine received, to the more common system of so much per head? Decidedly.
8891. Have you ever found it necessary to point that out to patients? I have pointed it out to the Societies and to the patients also.
8892. It has been a conviction of yours for some years? Yes.
8893. Are you aware that chemists as a rule insist upon members of Lodges taking bottles for medicines? Yes.
8894. Do you think that is right? I think so.
8895. Do you not think it would be better for a larger sum to be paid and for the chemist to find the bottles? That is a question for the Society to deal with; it is a great saving, the bottles cost 2d. each and are the most expensive part as a rule.
8896. You say the sick payments are not promptly met at times, and that there is much inconvenience suffered? Yes.
8897. Are you aware whether there has been any infringement of the rules at the time? No, not to my knowledge; I believe in a case—I have a special case in my mind now where the rule is that the money shall be paid weekly, where the payments have been delayed very much. In a great many cases great complaints have been made to me of the dilatoriness of the officers.
8898. Do you know this of your own knowledge or from hearsay? I hear members complaining.
8899. You say the medical men do not give that attention they ought to in some cases, on account of the low prices? That is hearsay.
8900. You consider the price too low? Decidedly.
8901. What would you consider a fair rate per annum? From 18s. to £1.
8902. Are not as a rule Societies supplied by tender? Yes.
8903. Then is it not the medical men who make the low prices? Decidedly.
8904. You are medical officer for Temperance and other Societies? Yes.
8905. Have you noticed any difference in the Temperance and other Societies? I have had more cases of brain disease in the Temperance Societies within the last twelve months than in all the others together. One case died a few weeks ago of disease of the brain, and I have two or three others. I believe in these cases they have been drunkards previously.
8906. Do you think it was total abstinence that caused the brain disease, or the effects of drink prior to them becoming total abstainers? I have not attended the cases sufficiently long to know, but I believe in the case that died, it was the result of previous drinking. Total abstinence could not cause brain disease.
8907. The question was asked whether you know of cases where forty or fifty persons had been examined in a single night? Yes.
8908. Have you ever examined members after a Lodge was formed, they having been admitted subject to being passed by the medical man? No.
8909. You stated that from 18s. to £1 would be a fair remuneration? Yes.
8910. Would that include medicine? No.
8911. And the medical men generally are more or less dissatisfied with remuneration of Friendly Societies? I believe they are.
8912. Do you not think a capitation tax would be better than a lump sum? Decidedly.

Dr.
A. Houston.
29 May, 1882.

8913. Mr. Gelding.] Do you not think the dispensers connected with Friendly Societies are as competent to dispense as chemists? Decidedly, but the question is are they supplied with as good medicines from the wholesale houses.

8914. Are you aware that there are certain chemists who keep bottles mixed up for Friendly Societies? I am not.

8915. What do you think is a fair rate to pay a chemist for medicine? I think that the rate of one-third less than the chemist charges ordinary persons. If a quinine mixture is ordered you cannot get it for nothing, as a drachm of quinine costs the chemist about 2s. 6d., therefore you cannot expect to get it for 1s. 6d., so that when a sum for each member is paid I am afraid in many cases the quinine is left out and something else substituted.

8916. You are not in favour of Societies combining together to form dispensaries of their own? No, decidedly not.

8917. And you are in favour of members attending at the medical gentlemen's own homes instead of at the Society's Hall? I am.

8918. Do you not think it is quite sufficient for a man to belong to one Society instead of even two? I do.

8919. You consider they are kept up not to keep men, but simply to give them sufficient money to support them without going begging? That is the chief object as I understand it.

8920. You have no doubt that the more money is dealt out the more likely they are to malingering? Yes. There is one thing with regard to the payments of Societies to medical men, and it is a matter I have spoken about; there is no fee payable for large accidents; a doctor has to attend any case, a bad compound fracture of the thigh for instance, and receives no remuneration whatever, when it probably requires a daily attendance for a period of at least three months. The following is the scale of extra surgical fees allowed by Poor Law Board in England:—

1. Treatment of compound fracture of thigh, £5.
2. Treatment of compound fracture or compound dislocation of leg, £5.
3. Amputation of leg, arm, foot, or hand, £5.
4. Operation for strangulated hernia, £5.
5. Treatment of simple fractures, or simple dislocations of thigh or legs, £3.
6. Amputation of finger or toe, £2.
7. Treatment of dislocations or fractures of arm, £1.

Allowed for—

5. Fracture of neck or thigh bone, or of malleolus externus.
7. Dislocation of shoulder, elbow, and wrist: fracture of humerus, or ulna and radius.

Not allowed for—

5. Fracture of tarsus, metatarsus, toes, or patella.
7. Fracture of elbow, carpus, metacarpus, fingers, or thumbs: fracture of clavicle, scapula, and acromion.—
Walsh.

8921. I presume you are seldom troubled with that? Indeed I am troubled with it.

8922. About accouchement cases, do you think they pay sufficiently to ensure that benefit? I do not think it is sufficient; they should pay more.

8923. And then they would get better attendance? No, I could not say that.

8924. What do you think they should pay? The lowest fee should be at least two guineas. In one Society the fee is charged according to the amount of work done. If instrumental labour is necessary a double fee is charged.

8925. Mr. Newland.] Do I understand from you that it is the young members of the profession who charge the low rate per annum? I only speak from hearsay; I only know such tenders have been sent in.

8926. Have these been from young members? I could not say.

8927. Mr. Slade.] Here is a form of certificate:—

MEDICAL CERTIFICATE OF HEALTH,

And declaration to be signed previous to any person being admitted a member of any Court in this District.

Name? Age? Residence? Occupation? Married or Single?

What is your wife's age? What has been the state of your wife's health?

What has been the state of your health the last two years?

What was the nature of your last illness?

Have you, or any of your family, been subject to fits?

Have you ever had, or are you subject to piles, ruptures, spitting of blood, asthma, gout, or rheumatism?

Do you know of any hereditary or constitutional disease to which you may be liable?

Have you been refused admission into any Society in consequence of ill health or otherwise?

Are you aware of any circumstance which, in justness or fairness you ought to communicate to the Society, either in regard to your own, or wife's (if any) state of health, which on reference to the rules of such might raise a question as to your eligibility?

Are you aware that if at any time hereafter it should be proved that the answers above given are not correct, you will expose yourself to the liability of being expelled the Society?

And I do hereby agree that this Declaration shall be the ground of contract between this Order and myself, and if any of the averments herein contained are not true, or used any kind of deception, or withheld anything the knowledge of which would prevent my admission into the said Order, I shall have deservedly forfeited all moneys paid by me to the same, and they will be justified in expelling me from the Institution. (Signed)

MEDICAL CERTIFICATE.

This is to certify that I have carefully examined Mr. _____ and am of opinion he is in good health, and I consider him a fit and proper person to become a member of Court and I am of opinion that his age is _____

Medical Officer.

Yes, we have been using that for the Foresters.

8928. Do you think it is a good form? I think it is a very good form.

8929. And the certificate at the bottom in which you give your certificate as to age? I do not think that is much to be relied on; it is a matter merely of opinion what a man's age is.

8930. Could the 6th question be satisfactorily amended by the insertion of the words "pleurisy" and "venereal disease"? It would then be more comprehensive.

8931. Do you think diseases arising from venereal causes as a first cause are common? Yes; syphilis is not mentioned here, and it is the cause of many of the diseases in this country.

8932. Would you be favourable to an Act of Parliament compelling all Societies to have a similar examination to that? I should like to see it more stringent even than that.

8933. If a medical man is attached to a Society for fourteen, ten, six, or four years, it should be taken as a proof that he considers the remuneration sufficient? Decidedly.

8934. And do you think a Society of 200 members, half of whom are single, and quarter country members, should pay £1 a year; would that be a fair rate? Decidedly, that is without medicines. 8935.

Dr.
A. Houston.
29 May, 1882.

8935. Do you think it necessary that an arbitrary form of contract should be made between a Society and the medical man? Well, I think it would be advisable; I always try to have such a contract. In one Society they wished me to pay visits to Petersham; I declined, and resigned in consequence. They re-elected me, and admitted then the distance which was to be 1 mile by land from the city boundary.
8936. At what age would you withdraw a member's children from attendance? The age at which the sons can join a Society themselves.
8937. That being as a rule 18, would you think it sufficient? Yes; as for the daughters, I could not say, but I think they should be allowed to remain in for a longer period.
8938. President.] What is the greatest number of members you have had to attend on in connection with the various Societies of which you are the officer at present? I have always 600 or 700.
8939. How long have you been medical officer for these Societies? In the majority of cases, ever since I have been in practice.
8940. What has been your average attendance on members? It has varied extremely; during the epidemic of measles and scarlatina it was very heavy. At the present time I think I pay ten or twelve visits a day for the Societies.
8941. Do you think it feasible to examine candidates and their wives after dark? That does not make much difference; it is not a question of seeing, but of hearing.
8942. But do not medical men, as a rule, prefer daylight for the examination of candidates? I think not, except in the case of colour-blindness, when that is a matter of the greatest importance.
8943. Would that not consummate itself in total blindness? Oh no; it may be very difficult to detect. A slight lesion of the nerve may cause it without affecting the sight in any way.
8944. Are you not aware that many medical men stipulate they must have daylight? I am not aware of it.
8945. Do you think provision should be made, in any new Act, to prevent giving benefits to members of Societies who may through their own misconduct bring on sickness or disease? Decidedly; in some Societies is specially guarded against; Court Royal Oak has the following as Rule 50:—"Should any member die from syphilis or any other loathsome disease, or disease brought on by his own misconduct, or have concealed any disorder or bodily infirmity he was afflicted with during his lifetime, such member shall be deemed to have forfeited all moneys paid by him and all benefits accruing therefrom; and his widow, nominee, executor, or administrator shall be entitled to no benefit whatsoever from the said Society."
8946. You think such a provision should be incorporated in any future legislation? Decidedly, although I do not approve of the wording altogether of that.
8947. You are quite strongly of opinion that such provision should be made? Decidedly.
8948. Is there any special sickness or ailment that you find operates more in Friendly Societies than among your ordinary private patients? Well, I think not; I do not keep any special return.
8949. Have you anything further to communicate to the Commission? There is only one matter; in accouchement cases some of the Societies say in their rules "in no case shall the medical officer refuse to attend." It seems to me that is rather hard; in one case, through a family trouble, I was unable to attend a confinement, and the man was sent to another medical man by me; he did not go, and on the following day when I called to see the patient I was told I was not wanted, the confinement was over. A complaint was lodged against me that I had refused to attend the case, and the result was that I was fined no less than £5 5s. In this case I was shown this note at the bottom of the rule "in no case shall the medical officer refuse to attend." I think that in any future legislation some more careful oversight should be exercised in the formation of the rules.
8950. Have you refused to pass many persons? Yes, a great many.
8951. What has been the percentage? I could hardly say that, except where there is some special form such as this of Court Royal Oak's.
8952. You have refused a good number? Yes.
8953. Mr. Smith.] You said that a large percentage of the sickness amongst the members of Friendly Societies you are attending results from syphilis: can there be any mistake about the answer? No, I believe I am thoroughly within the mark in saying that, although it is probably unknown to the members themselves, and we hardly dare tell them.

Dr. Thomas Bowerman Belgrave sworn and examined:—

8954. President.] You are a duly qualified medical practitioner registered in New South Wales? Yes.
8955. I understand you have had much experience as a medical officer? I have.
8956. Are you medical officer now to any Friendly Societies? Several.
8957. How many? Eight or nine.
8958. What number of members would there be altogether? I think not more than 350.
8959. How long have you been connected with these Societies? During the greater part of the time I have been here—eight years.
8960. And you have, since you have lived among us, taken an active interest in these Societies? Long before that. The firm I was connected with in London founded the principle of the Family Friendly Society. I allude to the late Rev. Theodore Williams and Dr. Holgate. It is about eighty-five years since they first established that principle.
8961. Have you frequently with your pen and your voice advocated these Societies? I have on many occasions.
8962. What is the average number of visits to the members of these Societies—the average daily attendance upon members and their families? Probably fifteen visits a day, besides from twenty-five to thirty consultations a day.
8963. What is your opinion with reference to the payments made to the medical men who happen to be the officers connected with these Societies? I think they are insufficient.
8964. Not sufficient to ensure good medical attendance? I do not think that, but a man once placed in the medical profession must live. Medical men have obligations to meet, and therefore they would probably take these Societies even if the payments were less than they are now; in consequence, however, of the inadequacy of the payments they are unable, in spite of their goodwill, to do justice to their position.
8965. What do you consider a fair rate per annum to pay a medical man? Well, the rate varies a good deal deal in different countries. In England I think the payments might be less than here. I think the payments here might be £1 per member per year, and either 30s. or £2 2s. for midwifery cases, with additional payments for important operations, such as fractures and surgical operations. In all cases there should be a kind of combination of clubs to provide apparatus and surgical instruments. The fact is the mechanical resources of surgery are very extensive now, and there is no single firm in the Colonies which does anything like justice to it. Before I came to the Colonies the hospitals were certainly most insufficiently supplied with surgical instruments, but in consequence of the persistent advocacy of Dr. Cecil Morgan and myself we have now a large and adequate supply in the Sydney Hospital. I am quite sure that the Friendly Societies of New South Wales might derive great advantage from availing themselves of the great improvements that have been made in surgical instruments.

8966. Do you think that medical men who are medical officers of Friendly Societies devote as much time to their Society patients as they would to their ordinary private patients? It may be thought otherwise, but my own opinion is that practically they do. Medical men, in their zeal for a case, lost sight of the question whether the sufferer was a private patient or a club patient, or a relative or a friend. I am speaking of the generality of medical men. The impression on their mind is such that fortunately their principal desire is to see the patient recover.

8967. If they are Society patients, the sooner the better to a certain extent? Yes.

8968. Do you approve of the present system of examining candidates? I think it is insufficient.

8969. Do you think that members' wives should be examined as well as the members, seeing that they participate in the benefits? Yes, undoubtedly they should; and indeed the children might also be examined.

8970. Do you think it would be wise to make provision, independent of the ordinary charges, to pay medical men for some such examination? I think in England it is done to a certain extent for a very moderate fee; in no case I have heard of has the fee exceeded 5s.

8971. Do you think it would afford greater security to the Societies if these examinations were made more searching? Yes; on the basis of the life insurance paper.

8972. Have you had occasion to refuse applicants? A fair number.

8973. What percentage? I would say I had probably refused to pass about 10 per cent. of the candidates.

8974. Have you found healthy men whose wives necessitated constant medical attendance? Yes, I have often done so.

8975. Have the prescriptions been made up to your satisfaction? On the whole they have been made up to my satisfaction so far as I have been able to ascertain, but not to the satisfaction of many of my patients.

8976. What has been the mortality among the members of your Societies? Very moderate indeed.

8977. Has it compared favourably with similar Societies in the old country? Yes.

8978. And the sickness? There has been a considerable amount of sickness, and especially among the men.

8980. Do you think provision should be made to prevent Societies being imposed upon in that way? I am quite sure it is impossible for the medical officers to guard the Societies against the tendency to intemperance on the part of the members. During the past few weeks I believe I have discovered a patient who has been intemperate for a month or six weeks. I had no legal evidence such as would satisfy a Judge that such had been the case, but I told the officers of the Club, and I think they discovered collateral proof. I believe the matter now is established that he had been drinking; and I have known similar cases occur several times.

8981. Do you keep statistics of the nature of the cases, &c.? No, only the names of the patients and the days of attending them, but no statistics as to consultations.

8982. Do you believe that the members of the Societies here are, as a rule, healthier than in the old country? Those who are temperate—yes. I think that among women there is a vast amount more of indefinite sickness than there is in England, and of a very incurable character and very obstinate indeed. It is not a sickness that has a name—it is an indefinite kind of constitutional debility.

8983. Are you aware of any cause? I think it is the climate.

8984. It does not arise from the habits of the people? I think not.

8985. Do you find a desire among members of Friendly Societies to be placed on the sick list when they are really not sick? In some few instances I have, but such cases are not very numerous.

8986. Do you favour the practice of one man being at the same time a member of more than one Society? No; I believe that such a practice is productive of cases of imposition. In England, at least in my neighbourhood, such a practice was not possible.

8987. Do you think that the payment of 1s. per week per member is sufficient to ensure the rendering of all the benefits that these Societies promise? I am quite sure it is not.

8988. Have you anything to suggest to the Commission that would be of service in any future legislation? I have, but I should be glad of having an opportunity of committing it to paper and handing it to you.

8989. Then will you do so and furnish it as an appendix to your evidence? Very good.

8990. Do you favour the practice of dispensing the prescriptions at a dispensary, or having them made up by a chemist or medical man? I think the Clubs themselves would derive very great benefit by having the prescriptions dispensed at their own dispensary. Such an institution might also keep a good stock of surgical instruments for the use of the medical men and patients.

8991. Do you believe it would afford greater security to the members if they had a united or joint dispensary? Yes.

8992. Mr. Smith.] You stated, in reply to a question asked by the President, that the prescriptions were made up to your satisfaction, but not to that of your patients? Yes, the patients have frequently complained to me of the prescriptions not being properly dispensed, but I never saw any evidence confirmatory of those complaints. The only confirmatory evidence has been where the prescription has been taken to a private chemist and there has been a difference, perhaps of colour in the medicines supplied, but not necessarily a difference in quality.

8993. Have you yourself discovered any difference, or is it your opinion that the medicines supplied to Lodge patients is of the quality that it should be? I think it cannot be, in the nature of things. We cannot rely so much upon the quality of medicines supplied by a druggist under the contract system as we could upon the

Belgrave.

the quality of medicines supplied from a dispensary under the control of the Clubs, where the element of profit would not enter so much into the transaction. I should think it not improbable that a druggist who had expensive medicines to supply would seek to have those medicines made up in the least expensive way, whereas a Club dispensary would not give the matter of cost so much attention.

8994. Have you in any cases in which you have had to prescribe an expensive medicine such as quinine, found the prescriptions satisfactorily made up, or do you think that, if you prescribed a 6-oz. bottle of such a medicine for your patient the prescription would be made up with medicine of the very best quality? That is a medicine we very frequently prescribe, and I have taken some trouble to ascertain whether that medicine has been made up, but I have invariably found that the prescription has been satisfactorily made up.

8995. Have you never found quassia bark substituted? Quassia is substituted, but I have never found an instance.

8996. You stated just now, in reply to the President, that you had noticed, as the result of your practice and observation, that the sickness that predominated among the male members of Friendly Societies had resulted from intemperance? Yes, either before or during the time they were members. That is a matter which very much affects the Temperance Societies, who very often have proposed as members men who are now temperate, but whose constitutions have nevertheless been shattered by their previous habits, and such men are frequent patients.

8997. Then would that statement apply only to the Temperance Societies? No, not exclusively so. The membership of Friendly Societies of all classes is productive of a considerable amount of good, and exercises a beneficial influence over the moral character and conduct of a man who becomes a member. I notice that the moment a man becomes a member of a Benefit Society and has something out of his home to think about and take an interest in, his general character improves. Men who become members of a Society, whether a Temperance Society or otherwise, usually become more temperate than they were before.

8998. You have had a large experience here as well as in England? Yes.

8999. Could you give us the benefit of your experience as to the moral influence which these Societies exercise over their members? I think the influence is most excellent. It contributes to a feeling of self-respect, habitual orderly conduct, and both in their family and in their position in society I think they become very much better men.

9000. Of course you have had an opportunity of seeing them in their domestic life? Intimately.

9001. You think that a better state of things results from the fact of the husbands being members of a Benefit Society? I am quite sure of it. I have had occasion to observe that where there are several brothers, living perhaps in the same neighbourhood, those who were members of Societies led orderly lives, and both they and their families lived comparatively comfortable, while the others, who were not members of any Benefit Society, and made no provision for sickness or death in their family, led less orderly lives and very often became paupers and dependent upon charitable assistance.

9002. Then the operations of Friendly Societies are a relief to the State? I am confident they are.

9003. Do you think that in these Colonies they should have greater protection at the hands of the State than they have had? I am sure they should, and such is the opinion of those medical men who have taken the matter up. The great diminution which has taken place in the number of persons receiving outdoor relief in England is, it is believed, due in a great measure to the patronage which the system of Friendly Societies has received in England. I believe the difference in the members of the relieved of the character I have mentioned has been upwards of 200,000 persons.

9004. Do you know of any competition existing among the medical profession here in reference to securing the practice of Lodges? There is competition among us, but it varies very much. The competition itself would not be any disadvantage to the Societies if the system of tendering were not adopted. At the present moment the custom is to let the doctors tender, and they therefore tender under one another. I think if the Societies were to adopt a fixed sum as being what they deemed fair remuneration for the medical services, they would be able to select a medical man not because he happened to be the cheapest but upon personal and professional merits.

9005. Is it within your knowledge that the younger members of the profession use these Societies as a means of gaining a practice? Yes, I believe that that is rather the rule than the exception in this Colony, and indeed it is in England also.

9006. How would that affect the Societies? Well, the poor rather like much attention, and they have not the means of discriminating very much in the matter of the quality of that attention. As a rule, therefore, I have noticed the working-classes prefer young men just entering upon practice, because they receive more visits and more personal attention than they would from an old practitioner, although the quality of the services in the case of the young man may not be quite as good.

9007. Has it ever been brought under your notice that doctors are often called to visit patients when their visits are not absolutely required? That is a thing which is every day taking place. It does not rise from any wrong intent, but from inability to discriminate a real illness from one that is of no consequence.

9008. In your extensive practice here with some eight or nine Lodges, has it come under your notice in any marked degree that syphilis is the primary cause of a great deal of the sickness existing among families? No, quite the contrary; I have been very much struck by the absence of syphilitic evils; in private practice, both among men and women, I meet with many more cases than among the working-classes.

9009. Of course you would have gained knowledge of this particular form of disease in the old country? Yes, I was assistant to Henry Lee, who was the principal authority in London for many years on that particular matter.

9010. Would you give the Commission the benefit of your experience, contrasting your knowledge of the population of these Colonies and of England? I think there is decidedly less syphilis here than there is in England among the same classes. I have come to that conclusion carefully, bearing in mind the fact that the Clubs do not permit sufferers of that class to consult the medical officers; nevertheless, in very many instances they do consult the medical officers of the Club and voluntarily pay for the medical attendance they receive. However, bearing all that in mind, I am confident there is very much less syphilis among the working-classes here than in England.

9011. Mr. Abigail.] I understand that the fact of men associating in Friendly Societies has a good influence upon them, morally and socially? Yes.

9012. Do you consider that Provident Societies in this Colony have been a success or a failure? A failure.

Dr. T. B.
Belgrave.
29 May, 1882.

9013. Why a failure? I have only eight or nine Societies now, but several of my Societies have failed because they had no funds. Some failed, some have been robbed by the Treasurers, some failed because of much illness, and some confessed that their rate of subscriptions was not adequate to the demands made upon them.

9014. Have the failures been of recent date? Yes.

9015. Would you give the names of the Societies that have failed through want of funds? When I say failed, I mean that they failed to pay the moneys that they promised to pay. One belonged to the Daughters of Temperance, the Princess Alice Lodge. The Native Rose Lodge, also belonging to the Daughters of Temperance, is not in a satisfactory financial condition. I will say this under correction, but a Lodge called, I believe, the Perseverance Lodge, of the Sons of Temperance, are not paying sick money now. Then the Hebrew Mutual Benefit Society are giving no sick payments now. There are others called the Loyal Love of Liberty Lodge, and Court Fortitude, from whom you ought to inquire; but I do not know to what Order they belong. Then there is another, Court Friendship, Royal Foresters, with which I am connected, and which is not in a good financial position. I do not wish to convey the impression that these Societies are absolutely bankrupt, but they find themselves not in a satisfactory condition. There is one comparatively new Lodge, the North Star Lodge of Oddfellows. They paid me only £3 last time, stating that they had had sickness and were out of funds.

9016. Mr. Gelding.] They belong to the Independent Order of Oddfellows, do they not? I believe so.

9017. Mr. Abigail.] Then the failure to pay had been in consequence of the Lodges not having sufficient funds? Yes, their funds have not been found to be adequate.

9018. Has an excessive amount of sickness been the cause of this lack of funds in these Societies? In the Princess Alice Lodge they become bankrupt every time they have a death.

9019. Then do I understand that your remark that Provident Societies have been a failure had reference to those you have mentioned and not to the general body? I should be very sorry to be understood as saying that Provident Societies as a body have been failures; I think quite the contrary; I think they have been one of the greatest agencies of modern times in alleviating pauperism.

9020. Do you know the names of any persons connected with defaulting Societies? I do not know that I could remember their names, but that information could be obtained from the police. There was a coloured man who was once Secretary to the Perseverance Lodge who took £50 of the Lodge funds. He was brought back by the police. After the police had gone to the expense of bringing him back, the Society, in order to prevent the matter becoming too public, condoned the offence upon condition that the defaulter entered into a written agreement to refund the £50 by monthly payments. The police were very indignant at such an arrangement, but the man was set at liberty, and very soon afterwards he again decamped. That Lodge, I was informed the other day, was not now paying sick money.

9021. Do you know of any other case? Yes; I think the Treasurers of the Native Rose Lodge have twice gone off, though it may be that I am confusing that Lodge with another. However, I know there were two female Treasurers of two Temperance Women's Lodges that I was connected with who took money from the Lodge funds, and that money was never recovered. I know one of the Treasurers was connected with the Native Rose Lodge, and I think both of them were. There was also a baker named Marshall, in Lower George-street, who bolted with the moneys of a Lodge that I was connected with.

9022. Do you know what the circumstances were? No, I do not; but the police I have no doubt could give all the necessary information in reference to those cases. There was another case with the Treasurer of the Miller's Point Lodge of the Independent Order of Oddfellows I think. The Treasurer becoming bankrupt the money was lost, but whether it was eventually recovered I am unable to say. At all events the Treasurer had in his possession upwards of £40 or £50 of Lodge money, and that I consider most improper. Mr. Moore, a gentleman well known in England in the medical profession, told me, as the result of his experience, that the stability of these Societies was very short-lived. We were discussing the principles upon which Clubs are founded, and their relation to medical men. I said I thought their relations with medical men very unsatisfactory. He said, "What does it matter? Every one of these Lodges fails in the course of fifteen or sixteen years. When they become old and young men refuse to join them, these Lodges fail." I believe that it is a fact in England that during the decline of life of the members of those Clubs they find that they have not sufficient stability without a constant accession of young members, and failing to get that they break up.

9023. Do these remarks apply to Clubs or to Sick Benefit Societies? I am speaking both of Clubs and Sick Benefit Societies, but the remarks did not apply to Family Clubs, which did not exist at that time, at least in those parts of the country where I was at that time.

9024. Then the remark applied to the state of the Clubs, not in the Colonies but in England? My friend's remark was applied of course to Clubs in England.

9025. Does that principle apply to large or small Orders? Chiefly small Orders.

9026. How many times was the Loyal Love of Liberty Lodge unable, to your knowledge, to meet its engagements? I cannot say, but I notice they always manage to pay their medical man ultimately, even though they have a difficulty in doing so.

9027. Do you know of any case in which a man has had to part with his little property which he had saved for a rainy day? Yes, I know one remarkable case which occurred at Balmain. The man had typhoid fever, and the Club did not pay him for several weeks. The sufferer, having no other means, was compelled to sell the little land he had in order to keep the household. After four or five weeks I believe the money was forthcoming.

9028. What is the name of that Club? I do not know. The name of the man I know, and I could subsequently furnish you with the name of the Club.

9029. Is that the only case? No, that is rather a common thing than otherwise, especially with some Clubs. The larger and well organized clubs pay more readily, but great difficulty arises from the patients or their friends being unable to find the Treasurer. In the first place, they can only attend to this business in the evenings. Where there is a large Society they can have a kind of office where the members can go to transact their business, but in small Societies there is often great difficulty in getting the money.

9030. In those cases it would only be a question of convenience? Exactly.

9031. Was it through want of funds in the Club that this man had to sacrifice his little property? It may have been negligence on the part of the officers in not paying the money promptly, or it may have been from fear of going into a house where there was typhoid fever.

9032.

Dr. T. B.
Belgrave.

29 May, 1882.

9032. I understand you to say that there are a great many loafers on Friendly Societies? No, not a great many, but several.

9033. How do they act? Well, if they belong to two or three Societies at the same time, they draw more money during the time they are sick than they would when at work. We cannot always discover this class of cases, even when there is no external evidence of physical disease. A man may complain of pain. Well, pain cannot be seen, and as we are not always able to discover whether any cause for the pain exists we are often at their mercy.

9034. Do you know that the Friendly Societies Act limits the benefit receivable by men to £2 per week? I was not aware of that, but even if that law were carried out it would not prevent men getting money from Trade Societies.

9035. Do you not know that most of the Trade Societies allow no sick benefits, except in cases of accident? I did not know that.

9036. Do you know of any cases where these Societies are made use of by rich men to get the benefits intended only for the poor? Not a few. In many cases when these men became members of Friendly Societies they were not in very good circumstances, but ultimately they became rich. I think the so-called Religious Lodges, such as the Catholic Guild and the Protestant Alliance, have many members who join those Lodges apparently with the view of promoting their religion, but really for the purpose of receiving benefits intended for poorer people. Mr. Theodore Williams and Dr. Holgate laid it down, in their first attempt to found these Societies, that any person receiving more than £3 a week should not receive medical attendance. There is a kind of compact on the part of the medical profession to assist the working-classes, but we maintain that the rich people are not entitled to these benefits.

9037. Is it not a mere matter of business with the medical profession? This is a concession, and not a pure matter of business.

9038. If a man joins a Friendly Society and pays all the dues, and if he happens to be a successful business man, is it understood that he should not receive the medical benefits for which he has paid and still pays? Medical attendance ought to be entirely separate from the provident portion of the objects of a Friendly Society.

9039. Ought to be, but is it? It is not; and it is an abuse that a man of large means should take advantage of social arrangements which are only intended for the poor.

9040. You say that if a man improves in his circumstances he should give up his position in the Benefit Societies? No. In the No. 1 Dayspring Lodges there are two divisions, in one of which the members subscribe to the fund which secures them medical attendance; and in the other, those who are sufficiently well off to pay for medical attendance do not subscribe to the Medical Fund.

9042. Has your intercourse with the working-classes led you to infer that there exists any widespread distrust as to the financial stability of existing Friendly Societies? I am sorry to say there is. They regard a Society in this light, that when it becomes old and is not largely recruited by the introduction of young members, it will not be able to stand the calls upon its funds, and must either continue to exist in a bankrupt condition or break up.

9043. Are you of opinion that, if these were by force of law placed on an actuarially sound basis, that membership would become more general among the working-classes? Yes.

9044. Do you think whatever popular distrust exists may in any degree be traced to circumstances other than those connected with the existing actuarial arrangements of Friendly Societies? No, I think not.

9045. Would you support an actuarial investigation by a Government officer? Certainly.

9046. Do you know whether the funds of Clubs have been employed for purposes of amusements, such as dinners, suppers, or picnics? I am unable to answer that question. I think that amusements of that kind take place frequently, but that provision is made for them outside the ordinary funds. On the other hand, I have heard that the profit derived from some of these amusements or picnics have gone to augment the Sick Fund.

9047. So that if these demonstrations are held, the cost of them is not defrayed from the funds of the Society? No.

9048. Do you think, notwithstanding all defects and disadvantages, that Club membership has saved many a life and preserved from dispersion and absolute ruin many families? I am confident it has.

9049. Have you found any exceptional advantage arising from membership in a Friendly Society by widows or the elder sons of fatherless families? Clubs, although they legally are not in any way connected with the widows of members, often look after them and give them a helping hand.

9050. Do you think that such membership has been a great pecuniary advantage to the State? I am confident it has. In England I know that such has been the case to a very considerable extent; and in this country, I am sure it has saved the country many thousands of pounds.

9051. Have you any knowledge of any other hindrances than those you have mentioned to the prosperity of Friendly Societies? Yes; I think it is a great drawback that so many of them meet in public-houses. The wives of many working men persuade their husbands not to join, because of the inducements to drink which they would have to encounter.

9052. Have you noticed any particular consequences in connection with the preliminary medical certificates? Yes; I have found that not one of the Friendly Societies I have been connected with here has supplied me with a properly designed certificate. In England that is not the case.

9053. What consequences have you observed to follow the practice of associating medical attendance with the other Lodge benefits? I have observed that the rich people have derived great service from the medical attendance intended only for the poor, and that there has been a feeling of dissatisfaction on the part of medical men.

9054. Here is the form of medical certificate, and form of member's declaration, in the Court Pride of Australia, A.O.F.

Name? Age? Residence? Occupation? Married or single?
 What is your wife's age? What has been the state of your wife's health?
 What has been the state of your health the last two years?
 What was the nature of your last illness?

Have

Dr. T. B.
Belgrave.

29 May, 1882.

Have you, or any of your family, been subject to fits?

Have you ever had, or are you subject to piles, ruptures, spitting of blood, asthma, gout, or rheumatism?

Do you know of any hereditary or constitutional disease to which you may be liable?

Have you been refused admission into any Society in consequence of ill health or otherwise?

Are you aware of any circumstance which, in justness or fairness, you ought to communicate to the Society, either in regard to your own or wife's (if any) state of health, which on reference to the rules of such might raise a question as to your eligibility?

Are you aware that if at any time hereafter it should be proved that the answers above given are not correct you will expose yourself to the liability of being expelled the Society?

And I do hereby agree that this Declaration shall be the ground of contract between this Order and myself; and if any of the averments herein contained are not true or used any kind of deception, or withheld anything, the knowledge of which would prevent my admission into the said Order, I shall have deservedly forfeited all moneys paid by me to the same, and they will be justified in expelling me from the institution.

Would you say that such a certificate as that would answer the purpose for which it is intended? Yes, I think this is very good.

9055. Would you suggest any addition to that? I think it would be desirable to ascertain a little more about the state of the lungs.

9056. Do you think it would be necessary to make any addition in reference to syphilis? It would be just as well to have it inserted.

9057. Do you think the rivalry of Lodges has promoted provident principles in New South Wales? It has among the people, although it has had the effect of diminishing the inducements they can legitimately offer.

9058. How do you think the funds of Societies could be effectually protected from fraud? No Treasurer should be permitted to keep more than £5 in his possession at one time. There should be a Bank in large cities—a kind of Industrial Bank, and this Bank should be open in the evening for the transaction of business, and people should be able to write cheques for less than £1. Many of the inconveniences I have referred to would thus be obviated.

9059. Do you think sick members really entitled to benefits occasionally fail to get them? Yes, I think so.

9060. In the Societies you represent, is it the custom to have weekly medical certificates? Not all of them, but I would recommend it. I have known several cases where that rule does not obtain.

9061. Have you noticed any serious results from no provision being made for extra payments, for fractures, dislocations, and important surgical operations? No payment whatever is made for these special operations, and many of these cases ultimately find their way into the hospitals.

9062. In your opinion—as a man of the world and a practitioner in medicine, have you noticed any connection between existing social demoralisation and pauperism, and neglect to make provision by insurance against accident, sickness, and death? I have noticed that people who are members of Friendly Societies usually make an effort to keep their family intact and to live properly, whereas those who have not these associations are much more careless.

9063. Have you observed this exclusively among the working-classes, or do your observations apply also to the more and most affluent classes? Well, in Ireland, where I resided for some time, the people have no Clubs, and consequently they are, in times of distress, completely dependent upon the State. The State in the British Empire is, I believe, freed from claims upon it to a very great extent by the prevalence of this system of Family Clubs; it teaches the people self-reliance and to depend upon themselves for assistance.

9064. Have you noticed many attempts to withhold sick benefits justly due on frivolous prettexts? I think so, in Societies where the funds were low.

9065. Have you studied the Friendly Societies Act? I have never seen it, and was not aware until this Commission was appointed that there was such an Act.

9066. Would you favour complete Government supervision over Friendly Societies? Certainly, even more complete than that which obtains in England.

9067. Mr. Greville.] Having had large experience of the working of these Societies both in England and New South Wales, do you consider that the management here is good? I think it is quite as good as in England.

9068. Do you consider syphilis any more prevalent among the labouring-classes in the Colonies than in England? I do not think so.

9069. Does that apply to the wealthier classes also? I think it does.

9070. Then you mean that syphilis does not prevail so much in the Colonies as in England? I believe it does not, but I do not think my observations would apply to Melbourne, if what I am informed about that city is correct. Early marriages are so much more the rule here, and medical men attribute the difference largely to that circumstance.

9071. Do you find in your experience that a large proportion of the diseases you are called upon to deal with arise in any way from syphilis, constitutional or otherwise? No, on the contrary, it is quite rare.

9072. You find that diseases arise very largely from intemperance? Yes.

9073. Then in your opinion syphilis is not the foundation of any very large number of cases? I am quite sure that it is not.

9074. Have you heard that in some Lodges the medical examination of candidates is performed in a perfunctory manner? Well, there was a discussion about that matter at the New South Wales Branch of the British Medical Association, when it was stated that examinations of that kind were made. A report to that effect was brought up, but the Society would not agree to it, and the report was sent back to the Committee. They drew up another report, but I believe that they came to the conclusion that the examinations were unsatisfactory and insufficient. The complaint is that a sufficient number of questions are not supplied to the medical men to submit to the candidates, but the candidates do not as a rule like what they consider an unnecessarily strict investigation, and desire that some kind of authority should be shown for putting these questions to them.

9075. Do you think it proper that in each instance this examination should be of a strict character? Perhaps not rigidly strict, but certainly stricter than they are.

9076. And that the medical men should receive a special fee for each case? Yes.

9077. Have you known any instance in which a Society itself has given its medical man to understand that he need not be strict in his examination of applicants for admission? I have, but not in these Colonies.

9078. Mr. Holdsworth.] Do you look upon Friendly Societies as Charitable Institutions or Insurance Societies? As Insurance Societies.

9079. Are not Friendly Societies based upon certain principles of calculation? They ought to be.

Dr. T. B.
Belgrave.

29 May, 1882.

9080. Then if an individual becomes a member of a Friendly Society and pays a certain subscription for a number of years for the purpose of receiving certain benefits in certain cases, is he not entitled to receive those benefits? Certainly.

9081. Then what becomes of the statement that if a member of a Friendly Society should happen to improve in circumstances and become a little richer, he should not avail himself of the benefits to which he is entitled by payment of his subscriptions. The two matters are distinct. Medical attendance is entirely different from the other benefits promised by Friendly Societies—in fact I do not look upon that as insurance at all. The Sick Fund I look upon as insurance, but you will see that that is entirely different from medical attendance, which is supposed to be secured in this way only for the benefit of the poorer classes who could not command medical attention in time of need, if it were not for some such system as this. I think the system will never be on a proper footing until the two matters are separated and properly defined. At the present time, one of the Temperance Lodges actually maintains a separate policy of insurance as distinct from the medical attendance.

9082. Are you aware that in the calculations under which contributions are levied upon members, a certain sum is put away for the purpose of securing medical benefits for the members, and the residue is allotted to the funds for sick pay and funeral expenses? I am aware that there is an arrangement of that kind, but I do not think it sufficiently well devised.

9083. That is another affair altogether. You spoke just now of the Dayspring having two separate funds. I am a member of the Dayspring. Are you aware that any member may register for the doctor and entitle himself to medical attendance by the extra payment of 1s. per quarter? Yes.

9084. Are you aware that if a member does not enter himself on the medical register the doctor loses the 1s. per quarter and the Lodge Fund gets the benefit of it? Then I pity the fund.

9085. Are you aware that there are a number of members who do not register? I think so.

9086. In the cases where members do not register I presume they go to a medical man as private patients, because they thereby ensure better attention? I do not know about that, but I believe that many of them do that from motives of honor. They decline to take advantage of an institution made to secure medical benefits only for the poorer classes who could not afford to procure them otherwise.

9087. Do you think there is any honor in a man not taking the benefits which he has secured for himself by years of payment of certain subscription to an avowedly Benefit Society? It is frequently done, however, by members of Lodges in this country, and I believe from just the motive of honor that I have indicated. I have been a member of Lodges at various times and entitled to receive payments, but I have not felt that I would not be justified in asking for them.

9088. Then do you think that if you had received those benefits you would have been guilty of a breach of honor? I did not need the benefits, and therefore I did not avail myself of them. If I had been in unfortunate circumstances I would have readily availed myself of the assistance to which my membership entitled me.

9089. Then you look upon a Friendly Society as a charitable institution? No, quite the reverse. I recognize just the difference between honor and the assertion of an individual right in connection with these Societies. There are many things to which one is entitled to as a mere matter of absolute right, but to which a man will, from a feeling of honor, not assert his right.

9090. You have referred to the Princess Alice Lodge of the Daughters of Temperance: are you the medical officer of that Lodge? No.

9091. Do they owe you anything? No.

9092. Are you aware as a fact that sick money is not being paid by that Lodge? I know one poor woman who had great trouble two or three times to get the money she was entitled to.

9093. Did she not get it in the end? Very likely.

9094. The Princess Alice is a very small Division? Yes.

9095. Do you think they should be allowed to form these small Divisions? No. I know one Lodge which has only five members.

9096. The Princess Alice Lodge has always been in difficulties when any of its members die? Yes.

9097. Then if provision was made for those particular cases, the Princess Alice Lodge would be in a good position? Probably they would.

9098. You say the Treasurer of the Native Rose Lodge absconded with the money, and you mentioned the Perseverance Lodge also. Do you know these things of your own knowledge? Yes.

9099. You mentioned as one of the difficulties connected with the working of small bodies that the members did not know where to find the Treasurer, as the Society would not have an office? Yes.

9100. Do you know anything about the actual working of Benefit Societies? I know that the Treasurer has to pay the money to the sick members entitled to receive it; but first of all the Secretary has to take cognizance of the application for payment from the funds, then a visitor is sent to inquire into the circumstances, and if the visitor's report confirms the application, an order is given to the patient's friends for the sick money, and the patient's friends then have to find the Treasurer.

9101. Are you aware that special provision is made for the money to be taken to the sick member? No.

9102. You spoke about certificates of examinations. You have had great experience I think in connection with these Societies? Yes, I have had great experience in New South Wales, and long experience in England.

9103. Would it not be well if the medical man supplied the Society with just such a set of questions as he thought should be asked each candidate for admission? I think that the form which was just shown me would supply all that is required. In this city we have a great number of persons suffering from affections of the lungs, and if questions relating to those complaints were included in that form I think it would suit admirably.

9104. Mr. Rubie.] I understand then that one of the difficulties among the medical profession is the fact that for a low scale of fees they often have to attend wealthy people who happen to be members of a Friendly Society? The members of the medical profession do not like it.

9105. Do you think it would be judicious if the heads of the different Lodges could meet those members of the medical profession who are interested, and see if they could not adopt some mode of regulating the payments to doctors upon some more satisfactory scale? I think that would be an excellent plan.

9106. Do you think from your experience of your medical brethren that there would be any difficulty in getting

Dr. T. B.
Belgrave.

9 May, 1882.

getting them to adopt such a plan? I think it might be done with great advantage through the medium of the New South Wales Branch of the British Medical Association. I know the parent Society in England has studied the question.

9107. Has the Medical Branch here given consideration to that question? Yes.

9108. Would they object to supply this Commission with the result of their experiences? No, on the contrary, I believe they would be very willing.

9109. Mr. Gelding.] Do you attach much importance to examinations? It is a guide to the Society, and the candidates see that it means something.

9110. If they wanted to get into a Society, could they not answer questions to suit themselves? A paper such as that which has been shown me would stop that. The applicants would have to strip, and the medical officer would have to examine them very carefully.

9111. I presume a great quantity of poor people in the city and elsewhere would have to depend upon the Government for medical assistance if they were not members of Friendly Societies? Yes, a very large number.

9112. By joining Friendly Societies they secure medical attention from private medical practitioners? Yes.

9113. Then although the medical profession only get a small amount per head from the Friendly Societies, it is virtually money in the medical men's pockets? It is undoubtedly.

9114. Is it not a fact that most of the medical men now in independent positions made a start with the aid of Friendly Societies? I think not, but rather the contrary. A medical man requiring means has to have recourse to these Societies, but the tendency is actually to the disadvantage of the medical man, both personally and professionally. If he is not able to ascend the ladder of success except by the aid of Friendly Societies, he will not do it that way.

9115. What do you think is a fair average for medicines? I should say that 12s. would be about the lowest, though I disapprove of the plan entirely in large cities. I think it would be much more advantageous for the Societies to have their own dispensary.

9116. Something like the Manchester Unity? Exactly.

9117. Do you think that such a dispensary would be sure to get good medicines, or that the wholesale dealers would give inferior medicines? Quite the contrary; I believe that a dispensary, if the management is equal to the business, has quite as good opportunities as any other establishment of getting good medicines. There should be a combination of Societies, and the members would be more certain of obtaining good medicines from such a dispensary.

9118. Do you believe in a man belonging to more than one Society at the same time? Certainly not.

9119. Under such circumstances, might not the money doled out to a member in the shape of sick pay be sufficient to keep him in a better position than if he were at work? Yes.

9120. And a temptation to malingering would thereby be offered? Yes.

9121. Mr. Newland.] You referred to the Loyal Love of Liberty Lodge as one of the unsuccessful Societies did you not? Yes.

9122. Do they owe you anything? No, I did not accuse that Lodge of anything of the kind.

9123. You stated that that Lodge had failed to pay its sick members? No, I spoke of the Perseverance Lodge.

9124. You mentioned it as one of the Lodges that had failed to fulfil their engagements? I mentioned it as one of the Societies that I thought inquiries should be made about.

9125. What made you leave that Society? I cannot say exactly now.

9126. Did you desire at any subsequent period to become its medical officer? Not to my knowledge.

9127. Did you not forward to that Lodge an application for the appointment, and stating that when you were previously the medical officer of the Lodge you were conducting Dr. Fortescue's practice, and consequently you had not been able to give that attention to the Lodge patients that you would be able to give if you were again appointed? I was not aware that I had applied at all, and I certainly cannot remember what I stated on the occasion.

9128. Have you tendered lately to become the medical officer of any of the Lodges? Yes, twice during the last two years.

9129. Did you tender for the Travellers Home Lodge? Yes.

9130. Do you remember the fee you tendered for? 16s.

9131. Was it not 10s? No, it could not have been. I rather think it was £1.

9132. I understand you to say that the examination of candidates need not be very strict, but it should be comprehensive? I mean that the examination should not be too strict, because if, for instance, the paper of an Insurance Society were adopted whereby to test candidates for admission to Friendly Societies a very large number would not stand the investigation. You must be much less strict with your candidates for admission to Friendly Societies, especially with working men, many of whom are engaged in industries in which they have their ribs broken or their figures distorted.

9133. Do you not think that the stake of the poor men in the Friendly Societies is as great as that of the wealthier men in the Insurance Societies, and just as necessary to protect? Yes, relatively, but if this absolute strictness were insisted upon, the Societies themselves would suffer, for they would be very much reduced in numbers in consequence of so many candidates being refused.

9134. Are there certain occupations, the followers of which should not be admitted as members of Friendly Societies? There are probably some. I think this is a very important matter. My own opinion is that the payments should be graduated. Stone-masons and drapers should pay a rate different from that paid, say, by butchers. Drapers are, in consequence of the floss flying about the shops, liable to certain diseases, such as consumption, and stone-masons also are liable to stone-mason's consumption.

9135. Firemen engaged on board steamers are not a very desirable class of numbers in point of health? I think that as a rule they would not be profitable members.

9136. I understood you to say that a large number of the members of Friendly Societies are men who have previously had their constitutions shattered by drink. Does not that statement cast a reflection upon the character of the examination conducted by the medical officers when those men have been candidates for admission? No, it would require very careful examination to discover the real nature of the candidates' constitutions, and besides, these Societies exist for them as well as for healthy men.

9137. Mr. Stale.] Have you any idea of the police regulations in reference to sickness? Not in this Colony.

9138. Do you know the proportion of their pay that they receive when they are sick? Two-thirds.
9139. Then if a man belongs to the Police Force and to the Friendly Societies, and receives from the former two-thirds of his salary and a guinea a week from the latter, would he not be likely to be under the temptation of becoming a malingerer? Yes, undoubtedly.
9140. Would it be etiquette for you, as the medical officer of a Benefit Society, to override the certificate of the police surgeon? No, but it would be my duty to state what I knew.
9141. Would you endorse his certificate without examination? No; but it would be wrong to place two medical men in that position. Each should state the result of his independent examination; and the disagreeable duty of determining upon what course to pursue should devolve upon the police authorities or the Benefit Society, as the case might be.
9142. In the event of the two certificates clashing? Yes.
9143. Do you not think that as a police constable's pay would, under the circumstances I have mentioned, be larger when sick than well, they are not a desirable class to have as members of Friendly Societies? I think there should be a limitation.
9144. Do you know that most of the Societies in England have special objections to constables belonging to them as members? I was not aware of it; but there is a law in the Police Service in England that constables should not be members of Friendly Societies.
9145. Regarding the term for which medical men are elected as officers of these Societies, would it not be better that, instead of being elected for a fixed time, they should continue to hold office as long as the Societies they were connected with were satisfied with them? Yes.
9146. What is your opinion of the practice of chemists refusing to make up the same prescription a second time unless it has been endorsed by the medical man? I think such a practice is necessary, otherwise many patients would be killed.
9147. If in some Societies they permit a chemist to do that, you believe such a practice is fraught with danger? Yes.
9148. You say that medical men lose in status by becoming officers of Friendly Societies? Yes; that is undoubtedly the case.
9149. Have not many of the most eminent medical men we have in New South Wales founded their position by their connection with Friendly Societies? They founded their positions in spite of it.
9150. Then am I to understand that the medical profession only use the Friendly Societies so far as they suit their convenience? No, some do it as a matter of duty as approving of the principle; others, young men, do it as a beginning, and all of us are more or less influenced by the desire to keep our hand in, and they retain their connection with these Societies, not for the sake of the gain, but for the sake of the work.
9151. Mr. Abigail.] From your examination to-day, do you think that this Commission has any desire to shirk any portion of the duty of inquiring into the working of Friendly Societies? From my examination to-day I think quite the contrary, and I believe the Commission has every desire to elicit all the information they can in order to have the Act made more perfect.
9152. President.] Do I understand that you approve of this provision in regard to the form of medical examination as set forth in the rules of the Order of Foresters which you have just seen? Yes.
9153. Do you think the form should include chest measurement, height and weight? I think chest measurement might be included, and there is no objection to have the other.
9154. Do I understand that the examinations in the past have not been as fully searching as they should be? Exactly, in the interests of science as well as of the Societies.
9155. You think that members' wives who participate in the benefits of a Society should be examined? Yes.
9156. You favour a graduated scale of payments for the admission of members? Yes.
9157. And a graduated scale of benefits according to the occupations of members? Yes.
9158. You believe that in order to ensure a Society being on a sound financial basis it is necessary to have sound principles embodied in its rules? Yes.
9159. You promise to furnish the Commission with a statement containing suggestions for improvements? Yes; I also wish particularly to state that I wish that too much importance should not be attached to the references I made to certain Lodges. As far as the Loyal Love of Liberty Lodge and the Perseverance Lodge are concerned every inquiry should be made. Court Fortitude is another.

The Commission then adjourned till Friday, 2nd June.

FRIDAY, 2 JUNE, 1882.

Present:—

F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Dr. Thomas James Pickburn sworn and examined:—

9160. President.] You are a duly qualified medical practitioner? Yes.
9161. Registered by the New South Wales Board? Yes.
9162. You are the medical officer of several Friendly Societies? Yes, I am still the officer of some.
9163. Of several? No; I was of a great many, but I have only two now.
9164. You have had a large experience in connection with these Societies? Yes, ever since I have been in Sydney.
9165. What is the largest number of members you have had under your care? The largest number was when I was connected with the Oddfellows, when I first came to Sydney. Then I had a large number of mixed Societies.
9166. Have you any idea of the gross number? I dare say I must have had from 1,500 to 2,000.
9167. What would be the average daily visits you would have to pay for a number like that? It would depend depend upon the season; during the time of an epidemic, from sixty to seventy visits a day, but usually about twenty.

Belgrave.

9168. Would that include consultations at your house? No, I might put down the same number for consultations.

9169. I presume you always made a careful examination of candidates? Yes, I made it a rule to reject a man unless he was a very good life indeed.

9170. Were there many cases came under your notice? Yes; certain trades I used to object to, such as plumbers, painters, and publicans.

9171. You regard these occupations as dangerous to health? Certainly.

9172. And therefore to the Societies? Yes.

9173. What has been the general mortality of the members of the various Societies under your care as compared with a similar number at Home? I think the mortality is very light indeed, but I have no experience of Societies at Home.

9174. Would it bear favourable comparison with the mortality of private patients? Yes.

9175. Have you preserved any statistics as to your visits in dealing with Societies? No; of course I have my daily journal or case-book, but that is all.

9176. Do you think the questions prescribed by the rules of the various Societies that the medical man has to put to candidates before they are admitted are sufficient? No, I think the majority of Friendly Societies have no form at all to guide the medical officer in his examination of the patients. As a rule it is looked upon as rather a matter of form, Societies themselves being anxious, not to get healthy lives, but increased members and increased initiation money.

9177. Do you think that feeling exists? To a very large extent. I have on several occasions been pooh-poohed for rejecting persons.

9178. Do you think it is necessary, seeing that the wives of members are participants in the benefits given that they also should undergo an examination? That is a very difficult thing to say, because if there is to be an examination it should be a perfect examination, and to this a large number of wives would object. No doubt it should be the case.

9179. You know there is a donation in case of the death of a wife? Yes.

9180. And in case of the death of a member? Yes.

9181. Seeing that in case of the death of a wife the husband would receive a funeral gift, would it not be necessary that the wife should have a certificate of health? There should be one, but there is so much difficulty in the way. The examination should certainly include the womb, which might be extensively diseased, but there would be very great objection to that, and it is not every woman who would allow it.

9182. But, where a Society provides medical attendance and chemistry to the whole of the children as well as the wife of a member, they participate in its advantages? Yes.

9183. Do you not think it is therefore necessary that they should undergo a medical examination? Well, there is an inquiry made of the candidate as to her health.

9184. Have you found a larger proportion of bad lives amongst members' wives than amongst the members? No, I do not think so, but a woman may have considerable disease of the kidneys or uterus, and we know nothing about it, without careful examination and tests.

9185. Do you strip candidates and measure the chest? I strip them, but do not measure the chest.

9186. You do not take the weight or height or chest measurements? No, it would take too much time.

9187. But do you not think, in order to have a full and searching examination, some provision of that kind should be made, and that the medical officer should be paid for the examination? Yes, I think so.

9188. Do you think it would be a means of serving the Society if a more searching examination was made? Yes, I should think it would, but at present it is looked upon as too much a matter of form. To make a thorough examination would take a quarter of an hour or twenty minutes, so for the sake of the Society and myself I make the broad rule, "a good life or no life at all."

9189. Do you think there is a disposition amongst the members to sham sickness in order to be placed on the funds? Yes, there is a very great readiness on the part of some to do that sort of thing, but it is a very small percentage.

9190. With regard to the salaries paid to the medical officers, do you think they are sufficient for the services required? That depends. The salaries vary, but, as a rule, I think they are very insufficient. The Oddfellows only give about 7s. per member, which includes attendance on the member and perhaps thirteen or fourteen children. But that is the cheapest of all the Societies.

9191. What do you think would be a fair sum per annum per member? I think £1 is a fair thing. I take no Societies under.

9192. And with reference to the dispensing of your prescriptions, have they been faithfully made up? It all depends on the chemist, and what he receives. There are some who give good things, and others who give rubbish.

9193. And you have found your prescriptions have not been faithfully dispensed in cases where the price was so low that the chemist could not do it? Yes.

9194. Would you favour a general dispensary? Yes; it would be cheaper, and members would secure good drugs.

9195. You feel strongly with reference to certain trades? Yes.

9196. Would you be in favour of disqualifying their admission absolutely, or would you create a special scale of contributions and benefits for them? I would disqualify them absolutely.

9197. You would not load them with a graduated subscription? I am looking at it from a medical man's light, employed by a Society.

9198. Have any complaints been made to you about want of attention on your part as the medical officer? I almost forget, but it is possible there have been.

9199. What has been your general practice with reference to attending members of Societies; have you given the same attention as to your ordinary private patients? Yes, as a rule. When you have a Society some time, you know your members and can tell whether you are really required at once or not. In all Clubs there is so much of the cry of "wolf" that it discourages a doctor.

9200. I presume it would be your desire to get your patients cured as rapidly as possible, so as to get them out of hand? Most decidedly.

Dr. T. J.
Pickburn.
2 June, 1882.

9201. Would you make any distinction with reference to surgical operations or cases of accident? Yes, I think accidents, such as bad fractures, should be paid for extra; otherwise one tries to shirk them and send them to the Infirmary.
9202. And you think provision should be made by the Societies to make exceptions under these two heads, so that the medical officer should receive some additional consideration? I think so.
9203. Have you ever read our Act? No, I never have.
9204. Are you prepared to make any suggestions to the Commission that might be of service for future legislation? I think that the medical officer's salary should be a better one; but the system of competition is bad for the Societies altogether; because some of them are only taken for a time until they can be thrown up. If it were a fixed good rate men would look upon them as worth having, but now they look upon them as "necessary evils," to be thrown off as soon as possible.
9205. I presume most of the medical men take Societies simply to create a practice? Just so; I built my practice upon Societies, but I have been very glad to drop them. The compulsory work is unpleasant in connection with Societies.
9206. You would not recommend any change in the present system of dealing with cases of accouchement? Yes, I think the ordinary fee is too little. I receive two guineas for one Society, and that is little enough. As it is I shirk a Club midwifery case—it is not worth while going to.
9207. You have a large private practice now? Yes, it has been built up entirely by Societies.
9208. They serve a purpose for a time? Yes, I suppose it is the case with most medical men. I took them when I first came at 14s. a year. I also took the Oddfellows.
9209. Is that the rate you had from the Oddfellows? They paid a salary, and there are 2,000 members.
9210. Mr. Smith.] Are you acquainted with the amount of contributions paid by members of these Societies to the various Lodges? Yes, I think so; some pay 1s. or 1s. 3d., and others 6d.
9211. Have you any knowledge of the benefits they are to receive for this? Yes; £1 or £1 1s. a week in case of sickness, and in the event of death a funeral gift of £15 or £20.
9212. Do you think the amount paid is a fair amount, seeing the large benefits they receive? No, I think the amount per member should be increased; some actuarial calculation should be made.
9213. Do you think that would put the Societies on a better financial basis than the present system? Yes, especially with some which pay only 6d. a week, such as the Daughters of Temperance, who are always more or less in a state of insolvency.
9214. Have you had much to do with female Societies? Yes, at one time I had five Branches of the Daughters of Temperance; and sometimes I had to wait six months for salary, and sometimes they did not pay their sick at all.
9215. You attribute that to the fact that they did not contribute sufficient for the benefits given? Yes.
9216. In your very large experience, what has been the principal cause of illness of members and the families of members? The actual members are seldom sick, and if the attendance were confined to them it would be very light indeed for the doctor; the chief work is in the family, children are very often sick, and when there is an epidemic the doctor's work increases tremendously.
9217. Have you in your experience discovered syphilis existing to any very great extent with Club patients? In the primary contagious form I have not seen it to a very great extent, because as a rule those cases seldom come to the Club doctor. If they get delirium tremens or venereal disease they are not entitled to our services.
9218. Have you had members come to you privately for that particular treatment? Yes, not only privately but ignorantly, thinking themselves entitled to the benefits.
9219. Do not all the illnesses result from that having existed in some form or other? Scarcely. It is very hard to answer a question like that; the taint is so delicate that it is hard to fix a particular illness on that taint. One does not see so much of it as at Home.
9220. Then you do not think it exists here to any great extent? No.
9221. The illnesses from which members themselves most frequently suffer, what is the cause; is it intemperance? Not actual intemperance perhaps, but the mistaken idea that so much liquor a day is good for them; dietary causes generally.
9222. Mr. Abigail.] Have you had any opportunity, in your extensive visiting of working-people's homes, to form an opinion as to whether Friendly Societies benefit them socially and morally? I am sure of it; it is a man's duty to himself and the State to provide for himself and his family in time of sickness and death.
9223. And you think the State should protect the Societies by seeing that their accounts are placed on an actuarially sound basis? Quite so, yes.
9224. Can you say whether it is a general practice to treat members of these Societies as if they were paupers? I am sure it is not, because like myself many medical men build up their practice entirely on Clubs, and we must treat them well for our own sake.
9225. I suppose a great deal of private practice arises from these persons? Yes, some.
9226. Do you find any impression with these people that if any serious case arises they would rather go to a private doctor than to a Club doctor? Yes, there is often that impression.
9227. Have you learned whether there is any popular distrust in the minds of members of the soundness of their respective Societies financially? I do not know anything of that.
9228. Have you known any case where members entitled to sick pay have not received it? Yes, more especially in cases where the Society has been so poor that they could not pay it. That frequently occurs amongst the Daughters of Temperance, as their fees are so low.
9229. That is a necessary consequence of paying small contributions and giving large benefits? Yes.
9230. Have you known any cases where the officers have misappropriated the funds? Not of my own knowledge.
9231. In reference to the Oddfellows, you stated that they give 7s. or about that: do you know how many members are attached to the medical part of the arrangement? I do not know now, but in my time there were about 2,000.
9232. And how many out of them were you called upon to attend? Well, there are three medical men who attend the whole; a popular man does all the work, and the others do nothing.
9233. They attend at the institute on alternate days, do they not? Yes; four days a week, I think.
9234. Do you think established Societies need a thing of this kind (document produced)? No, I do not think so; it is simply a try to catch members, not sound healthy lives. 9235.

Dr. T. J.
Pickburn.
2, June, 1882.

9235. In a case of that kind they would not be beyond any acceptance? Very likely the Secretary would give the doctor a hint.
9236. But if doctors acted on the same principles you say you go on, no matter what hints they got, they would not pass an unsound man? For their own sakes, not.
9237. But the keen competition amongst medical men leads to this sort of thing? I do not think so; a man who has got a Club is not likely to admit an unsound life; he does not consider the Society, but himself.
9238. You have no doubt that medical men generally give the same attention to members of Societies as to private patients? They must do so.
9239. Mr. Holdsworth.] I understood you to say that you had 1,500 members? Yes.
9240. You had an average of twenty visits a day and twenty consultations? Yes.
9241. That would be one out of thirty-seven and a-half? Yes.
9242. And make your fees almost nominal? Yes.
9243. Have you found sickness more prevalent in times of strike, and when work is scarce? Yes; when work is scarce men get sick, but I have had no experience of times of strike.
9244. Is it not a fact that some time ago the medical men of Sydney formed a sort of trade union, and fixed the price at £1? Oh yes, but it never came to anything.
9245. You spoke of the Daughters of Temperance: you attended some of them who keep along in a state of chronic insolvency? Yes.
9246. They were small Societies, I presume? No; some large Societies.
9247. Do you consider it is possible for any Society, at 6d. a week, to pay half-benefits, considering they have to pay full rates for everything else? No.
9248. Are you aware they have been altered lately? No.
9249. Reference was made to the half initiation fees of a particular Society: do you think the fee is a matter of any moment if the contribution were fixed at a suitable rate? No, I do not think it would be. I suppose Societies do this in order to raise their sinking funds.
9250. Do you approve of this system of introducing persons to raise the funds? No.
9251. Must it not destroy the object they have in view? Yes, I should think so.
9252. Mr. Langley.] Are you aware that this document refers to the establishment of a new Lodge? Yes, I am now.
9253. And that full benefits are not given until the end of six months? Yes.
9254. You spoke of the Oddfellows paying 7s. per annum to the doctor? Yes, that is what it comes to. They pay a fixed salary of £250 a year, exclusive of midwifery fees.
9255. Do you know any other Society that pays less than £1? Yes, I should say the majority do.
9256. May I ask what the Herald Benefit Society are paying now? 18s.
9257. From the answers you have given, it would appear as if you thought young doctors gave more attention to Lodge practice than those who have a regular outside practice? I think so, because they have probably more time for it.
9258. Then it would be more advisable to have young doctors than medical men having a large practice? Certainly. Those who have a large private practice have no time for Club practice.
9259. Are you aware that in nearly all cases in which doctors are called for there is great competition indeed? Yes, I believe so.
9260. Do you know that in some instances the doctors actually get their friends to canvass for them amongst the members? Yes, I believe so; that is bad for the doctors and bad for the Societies.
9261. What in your opinion would be a fair charge for medical men attending Clubs or Lodges requiring medical attendance? 20s. per member per annum, and I do not think it should be any less.
9262. Mr. Rubie.] Have you had any experience in other Colonies? No.
9263. Is any sickness of any particular nature more prevalent here than anywhere else? No, there is always a certain amount of mild typhoid fever.
9264. Are you obliged to give certificates to members before they declare on the funds? Yes.
9265. Have you had any application for certificates when you have been obliged to refuse? Yes, frequently.
9266. Are there cases where it is difficult for medical men to say whether they are malingering or not? Yes, in cases such as lumbago or chronic rheumatism.
9267. Could you suggest anything by which Societies might be protected from this? No, except that they should be carefully watched and kept strictly under the eye of the doctor.
9268. When they do not get certificates every week they may be on the funds a long time after they are well? Oh yes.
9269. Mr. Langley.] Do medical attendants of Lodges take strict care to take patients off the funds when well? Yes, most men are only too glad to go to work themselves.
9270. Mr. Gelding.] You stated to the President that a proper medical examination would take a quarter of an hour? Yes.
9271. Are your instructions not to give every candidate a proper examination? Yes; still there are many things, as the President suggested, such as measuring the chest and taking the weight, which no doubt should be done.
9272. But stripping the candidate, should not that be properly done? Yes, I make it the rule always to strip the candidates; sometimes they object and go away.
9273. You imagine that some Societies give instructions not to be particular? Yes.
9274. Could you name any Society that has given such instructions? Yes, there was a Society once which was forming and I had to examine the members; it was the Waverley Lodge of the Protestant Alliance.
9275. You mentioned the accouchement fees: I presume you are aware that the majority of persons who join the Societies are labouring men? Yes, the majority are.
9276. And if you attended a great number of them you would get no money at all? Yes, very probable.
9277. And is it not better to take these cases at a reduced fee than to get no fees at all? But I do not see why it is necessary to get nothing for medical attendance unless in the case of paupers, and these are not.
9278. What do you think is a fair thing to pay for medicines? I do not think it should be less than 10s. a year, while many only receive 6s.; and then there must be imperfect dispensing and very bad drugs.
9279. When you go away from Sydney the low rate does not apply, are you aware of that? I have no experience of that.

9280. Do you believe that examinations should be paid for? Certainly, it should take up a great deal of time if a form is to be filled up, showing the state of the candidate's health.

9281. Would you make the candidate or the Lodge pay for that? I do not know about that.

9282. Have you any faith in the candidate answering these long questions? I think their statements go a great way, and one verifies their statement by one's own examination afterwards. They answer the questions honestly as a rule.

9283. Were these forty candidates you mentioned all examined the same night? Yes, whatever the number was. I was told they did not want much time spent, as the candidates had to be initiated.

9284. Do the Daughters of Temperance undergo an examination? Yes.

9285. Not a very strict one? No, they naturally object to it.

9286. Mr. Slade.] Do you examine by any regular form, or by just such questions as suggest themselves at the time? Some Societies have a form—the Protestant Alliance have a very good form. Having got the personal statement, one goes on with the physical examination according to method.

9287. Have you seen the Ancient Order of Foresters' form? Yes.

9288. Do you approve of such a form as that? Yes, I think it is a very good form, though there is a good deal in it the patient does not know the meaning of; but it should be much more elaborate to be of any use. It is nothing more than a personal statement.

9289. Do you not think it is useful in drawing the medical man's attention to a line of questions he might otherwise pass over? Oh yes, I think so.

9290. Could you state what diseases are most prevalent and fatal in this Colony amongst the members of Friendly Societies; are they diseases arising from the peculiar modes of employment? No, principally accidents, diseases of the lungs, and fevers.

9291. As the death rate in Societies is eleven in the thousand, while the general mortality is twenty-two in the thousand, does that indicate that Friendly Societies' candidates are more healthy or better examined? Partly because they are a more healthy class, but principally the result of careful examinations.

9292. One thing is complained of, that members have to go to the medical man again for the renewal of a prescription? I think it is very necessary for the protection of the Society, and especially for the patient's sake.

9293. What is your opinion about bandages, leeches, and so on, should they be included in the pound? No, that belongs to the chemist's side.

9294. Regarding the examination of wives, do you think an affirmation by the husband under penalty would be sufficient? Yes, I think so.

9295. As many of the profession have stated that they consider the Friendly Societies' practice to be instructive I should like to have your opinion? Oh yes, there is no doubt about that; it gives a large field of experience which is most valuable.

9296. Your estimate of £1 per annum is on the supposition that all the members are married and have families? Yes, and I do not think it should be anything less.

9297. President.] Do you think that the kind of inquiry made by medical men when passing candidates for life insurance would not be a more full and searching inquiry? Yes, I think there should be some form of that kind.

9298. Which should be filed as an official document? Yes, I think so.

9299. And you think the medical statement should be part of the initiation? Yes, it would bind the candidate to what he has stated.

9300. Mr. Abigail.] If the life assurance system were adopted, do not you think it would debar half the men who join, who might have some trifling ailment that would not make them permanently sick members? I think it is the duty of a medical man not to admit a man with any organic ailment, however trifling.

Dr. William Edward Warren sworn and examined:—

9301. President.] You are a duly qualified medical practitioner? Yes.

9302. And have had a large experience in connection with the various Friendly Societies as medical officer? Yes, during the last five years in this Colony.

9303. Have you had any experience in the old country? No, I have in New Zealand.

9304. Had you a long experience in New Zealand? About eighteen months.

9305. What is the mortality here comparing the Societies with those of New Zealand? I should think they would be very much about the same.

9306. What has been the largest number of members under your care? I think the largest number would be about 600 members, without wives and families.*

9307. What would be your daily visitations to these members, their wives and children? Including visits outside and those inside, I should think twenty a day, or probably twenty-five.†

9308. With reference to the examination of candidates before admission, do you think the present system is full and sufficient to ensure the Societies against fraud? In some instances the forms are very good.

9309. Have you had occasion to refuse a recommendation to any number of candidates? Frequently.

9310. Persons who are unsound in health? Yes, and also those whom I knew to be intemperate.

9311. Do you make a rule of objecting to the admission of candidates on account of occupation? No, I do not think so; I have never objected to any one on that ground.

9312. But some occupations are injurious to health, and shorten life? Some are.

9313. You have never taken exception? I have never had an instance requiring it.

9314. What is your opinion as to the manner in which your prescriptions have been dispensed? In some instances they have been dispensed in an honest straightforward manner, but in other instances the dispensing has been simply disgraceful.

9315. How does that arise? I believe it is for the want of proper payment; it is not sufficient to ensure good drugs.

9316. Does it not place the medical officer of a Society in a false position if his prescriptions are not properly dispensed? Very, I frequently have to recommend patients to pay for their medicines. 9317.

Dr. T. J.
Fickbörn.

Dr. W. E.
Warren.

2 June, 1882.

*NOTE (on revision):—I find that I have attended as many as 800 members, not including wives and families.—W.E.W.

†NOTE (on revision):—Upon reconsideration, I believe that my average with 800 members would be about forty consultations and visits per diem.—W.E.W.

- Dr. W. E. Warren.
2 June, 1882.
9317. The prescriptions you speak of, have they been made up by chemists or by some large establishment, such as a dispensary? All the Clubs I attend get their prescriptions made up by chemists.
9318. Would you favour a general dispensary for all the Societies? Yes, that would be a good idea, or if they paid a good rate they would get good drugs.
9319. Would you favour having a more searching inquiry into the health of candidates than at present? I would make it compulsory on them all to have a proper medical form containing a personal statement.
9320. Somewhat similar to life assurance? Yes, but it need not be so full.
9321. With reference to the allowance made to medical officers, what would you consider a sufficient sum to ensure faithful attendance to members and their wives? I think about a fair thing would be £1 or £1 ls. a year.
9322. You are aware that it is done for a very much less sum now? Yes, very much less.
9323. As far as your knowledge goes, do you think the medical officers of Societies devote as much attention and care to patients who are members of Societies as to private patients? Yes, where they know there is a genuine case of illness; but in consequence of such a large number of Club patients applying for medical advice who are not in need of it, a medical man is more liable to slur over a case amongst them than if a private patient came to him; but in all genuine cases of illness there is as much attention given to a Club patient as to a private patient.
9324. Then there is a good deal of imposition amongst some persons? A great deal of it.
9325. You cannot give the Commission any information as to the comparative mortality between the number you have had under your control here and a like number in the old country. No, I cannot.
9326. Is there any special sickness that creates a greater mortality here than in the old country? I do not think so.
9327. You think the people here are as healthy, if not more so, than in the old country? Fully.
9328. And the same would apply to New Zealand? Yes.
9329. Have you found, during your experience as a medical officer, a disposition amongst some members to be placed on the funds when there is nothing the matter with them? Frequently.
9330. Is it wise to permit persons to be members of more than one Society? No, I find that in the majority of instances has led to malingering.
9331. And there has been a good deal of that kind of thing existing? I have seen it tried on a good many times.
9332. And in some cases it is impossible to detect it? Yes.
9333. Have you read the Friendly Societies Act of New South Wales? I have not read the whole of it, but I have read parts of it.
9334. You have also seen the rules of most of the Societies you have been medical officer of? Yes.
9335. Have you formed any opinion as to the financial basis of these Societies? From my own knowledge I know a number of cases where it has been insufficient.
9336. As a matter of opinion, do you think ls. a week is sufficient? I do not, but I think an actuary should be consulted on that point. From my knowledge I have formed the opinion that the subscriptions in a great number of instances are insufficient.
9337. You are aware of the benefits that are given? Yes.
9338. You are fully satisfied in your own mind that the contributions are not sufficient to ensure all those benefits? I do not consider them sufficient in a considerable number of instances.
9339. Have you anything to suggest that might be of service in any recommendations that may go from the Commission to the authorities? I think there ought to be some means adopted to ensure members getting sick pay, for in a great number of cases they do not get it.
9340. What is the reason? In some cases want of funds; in others, neglect.
9341. Are there any of the Societies under your control where the cause has been want of funds? No, they have gone bankrupt.
9342. What was the name of the Society? There was one called the Australian Total Abstinence Society; it merged into another, but they had to get rid of a number of old members, as they could not go on as they were.
9343. Any others? Yes, I know of one which was a woman's Lodge, a Temperance Society, also called the "No Surrender," and they had to haul down their colours. They had also to dissolve, as they could not carry on.
9344. Any other Society? I know of another Lodge. That was another woman's Lodge, which was in a critical condition about twelve months ago; it was called the Australian United Sisters' Benefit Society.
9345. Where were they located? I do not know. It was a small Lodge. I am very particular about putting people on the Sick Funds in every instance, but in some instances where I have done it, the officers have waited on me to ask me to take them off, as the Society was hardly strong enough to stand it. There is another thing I might mention. I have known one instance where the Treasurer of a Lodge has made away with the funds, and I heard of another last night. I will not say it was the Treasurer, but one of the officers of a Lodge called the Abou-ben-Adhem Lodge, I.O.O.F., succeeded in making away with some of the funds.
9346. Do you know the amount? I do not.
9347. Was it a considerable sum? They succeeded in recovering a good bit of it. The other one I heard of was another of the same Order at Miller's Point, in which one of the officers succeeded in making away with nearly £70. I do not know the name of the Lodge.
9348. You do not know the names of the parties? No, I do not.
9349. Are there any others? No, I do not recollect any other case. That second Lodge I mentioned I know nothing of, but I was informed of it by a patient last night.
9350. Then you think it would be necessary for officers of Societies to give a fidelity guarantee? Yes, a bond.
9351. So as to ensure the funds against members who might make away with them? Yes.
9352. Mr. Abigail.] In your connection with Societies in New Zealand, did you ascertain whether the laws there were similar to our own? No. I think they were about the same, so far as I recollect now.
9353. Did any agitation take place for an investigation into the Societies? I do not know.
9354. Are you aware that it has taken place since? No, I am not.
9355. Is there any particular cause for the sickness occurring in the Societies you attend? No; they seem to suffer from the prevailing sickness.
9356. If it has been said that syphilis was the prevailing cause of a large quantity of the sickness, would that that accord with your experience? No, though a good many suffer more or less from the effects of drink, but not more among Society people than amongst the general public.

9357. President.] You have nothing further to add to your evidence? No, nothing at present; but I may say that the British Medical Association Branch here have had a report drawn up to be submitted on this question. It is to be presented to the Branch this evening.

9358. Will you kindly send a copy to the Commission? Yes, that can easily be arranged. The following is the report, as furnished by Dr. O'Reilly:—

REPORT of the Committee appointed by the New South Wales Branch of the British Medical Association, to investigate and report on the medical working of Friendly Societies.

The following are the conclusions which your Committee, after careful consideration, begs to submit to you, acknowledging the valuable suggestions contained in the report of the former Committee:—

1. It recommends that a form of examination paper, similar to those used for purposes of life assurance, be furnished to each person proposing to join a Benefit Society, for presentation to the medical officer, in order to ensure a thorough report on each case, and that a reasonable fee be paid for each examination.

2. That medical benefits be confined to mechanics, labourers, journeymen, small traders, and to people with small incomes, as it finds that large numbers of people with considerable means—merchants, bank managers, members of Parliament, builders, contractors, &c.—at present avail themselves to a very large extent of the medical benefits intended for their less affluent brethren.

3. Your Committee recommends a uniform payment to the medical officer and chemist of every Lodge; that in the case of the former it should not be less than £1 per member per annum for medical attendance on each member, his wife and family, and that extra fees should be paid for fractures, dislocations, and surgical operations. It is also of opinion that the minimum midwifery fee should be fixed at £2. 2s., and that this fee should in all cases be paid through the Lodge. Your Committee is satisfied that the ordinary payments at present made to druggists are quite insufficient to secure patients being supplied with the best drugs. It recommends that distinct provision should be made for furnishing patients with expensive forms of medical and surgical apparatus.

4. It is not desirable to permit patients to belong to more than one Society, as the practice tends to encourage fraud, it being possible for a member of several Lodges to acquire sick payment in excess of his earned income.

5. Your Committee believes the subscriptions of members of several Societies to be not only insufficient, but considerably below what the insured are both willing and able to pay. It finds that, in consequence of the inadequacy of the weekly subscriptions, some Lodges become bankrupt. This usually happens after a struggle of some years, embittered by painful disputes and frequent injustice, e.g. the temporary discontinuance or diminution, from want of funds, of the sick allowance. The bankruptcy of a Lodge usually occurs at a time when many of the original or earlier members have become old and past work, and when no Lodge will accept them as candidates.

6. With a view to more perfect security, your Committee is of opinion that the Medical Officers' and Chemists' Fund, should be quite distinct from the Benefit Fund, particularly as it is desirable that every man should subscribe to the latter, while only a portion of the community is morally entitled to the former, it having been originated and continued for the exclusive benefit of those only whose incomes are of moderate amount.

Your Committee desire particularly to point out the advisability of the formation in Sydney and other large centres of population, of a Friendly Societies Bank (to be kept open every evening), into which all moneys should be paid, and on which it should be made legal to draw cheques for amounts less than a pound. Such an institution properly conducted might prevent the possibility of defalcations, and would be a most welcome convenience to the sick, who now frequently do not receive their payments during the time they are most urgently required for the purpose of medical comforts, &c., but during convalescence.

7. In order that the report of the Commission on Friendly Societies now sitting may thoroughly represent all the interests concerned, your Committee thinks it is very much to be desired that the Commission should be enlarged by the appointment of two actuaries and two members of the medical profession, and it would suggest to the Council the propriety of bringing the matter under the notice of the Government.

WALTER W. J. O'REILLY, M.D., Hon. Sec.,

New South Wales Branch, British Medical Association.

25th May, 1882.

Dr. Andrew John Brady sworn and examined:—

9359. President.] You are a duly qualified medical practitioner? Yes.

9360. Registered under the New South Wales Board? Yes.

9361. You have had considerable experience as medical officer to a large number of Friendly Societies? Yes.

9362. And you are still medical officer to some? Yes.

9363. What is the largest number of members that have been under your control at any given time? About 600, I should think.

9364. Have you had any similar experience in the old country or the other colonies? No.

9365. You have no means then of judging the mortality here as compared with that at Home? No, I have not.

9366. What has been the general mortality of the institutions under your control? I do not think it has been exceptionally high; it has been low comparatively, particularly in the Temperance Societies.

9367. What proportion of sickness has there been in the Societies as compared with your outside patients? Oh, there is usually much more in Lodges; at least they consult the doctors more than private patients.

9368. They consult him on all trifling matters, I presume? Some of them do.

9369. With reference to the examination of candidates seeking admission, do you consider the present means sufficient? No, I do not.

9370. Some examinations are anything but full? Yes.

9371. And they are short of what we ought to have? Yes.

9372. You have seen, in connection with some of the Societies, a personal statement of questions put to candidates? Yes, I have. I think they ought to be strictly enforced in all Societies.

9373. Should there not be a medical statement also filed? I think there might be a short medical statement, but I look upon the personal statement as being an important thing. A man goes to a doctor who may be subject to periodic attacks of rheumatism or some disease liable to recur periodically, and the doctor may not be able to discover it; but if these questions were correctly answered he would refuse him.

9374. Have you had occasion to refuse a large number of candidates? Yes, a considerable number; not a large number.

9375. What percentage would there be? Not more than about 5 per cent. of those who apply to me.

9376. And has that been principally on the ground of being unsound in health? Yes; heart disease, or having suffered from rheumatism, or a bad previous history. I have no doubt, if a strict personal statement were enforced, and they were given clearly to understand that they would be expelled if they gave incorrect answers, a larger proportion would be refused.

9377. What is your opinion with reference to members' wives; do you think they should also be examined? As I believe a member receives some payment for them when they die, I should think it would be desirable.

9378. What has been your experience with reference to the manner in which your prescriptions have been dispensed?

Dr. A. J.
Brady.

2 June, 1882.

dispensed? Some of the chemists do it very well, and others do not. I have had to complain of certain chemists, and to get the Lodge to change them; but there are two chemists now who have been dispensing for Lodges I have been attending for years, and I find they do it very well.

9379. Is it not a most serious thing for prescriptions to be given by medical men and imperfectly dispensed by the chemist? Undoubtedly, in some cases.

9380. I presume the price paid is the cause principally of the prescriptions not being faithfully and honestly dispensed? Yes, that is the case; they cannot give the medicines below a certain price and give the right thing. It is impossible to tell sometimes whether a compound mixture is properly dispensed.

9381. Would you favour a general dispensary for Friendly Societies? Yes, I believe they would get better medicines in that way, though it might not be always convenient for them to send to a central depôt, but the quality of the drugs would be better.

9382. The Oddfellows dispense their own drugs, do they not? Yes.

9383. And that is more likely to give general satisfaction than to have these cheap chemists? I think so.

9384. With reference to the allowance made to the medical officer, what would in your opinion be a sum sufficient to ensure faithful medical attendance to members, their wives and families? I think £1 a year would be a fair thing. That is the general opinion of the members of the profession.

9385. Members of the medical profession, young men coming to the Colony, have taken Societies to build up a practice? Yes, and do not care very much what they get them for.

9386. And many of our best medical men have been successful in that respect, have they not? A good many of them have.

9387. You consider £1 or a guinea a year would be sufficient to secure good attendance? Yes.

9388. What is your experience in visiting the members of these Societies; do you give them the same medical attendance and care as you would to your ordinary patients? Yes, when they are really ill I do. They often come when they do not require it, but when a person is really ill I make no distinction.

9389. I presume you favour the principle of Friendly Societies, men combining together to secure these benefits, if they are secured on a proper basis? Yes, I think it is a good thing, doing away with the pauper system that exists so much in England, though it is liable to abuse when rich men are in the Lodges.

9390. Do you find that the better classes who are members of Societies take the medical benefits? Yes, in some Lodges they do.

9391. But are there not many members of Societies who do not take these benefits? In some cases there are.

9392. Have you ever heard of any of the officers making away with the funds of the Societies you have had anything to do with? Yes, the first Lodge I got the Treasurer ran away with the funds.

9393. Much? £30 or £40.

9394. What Society was that? No. 2 Division Sons of Temperance.

9395. Any other Society? That is the only one I know of.

9396. Have you any suggestions to make to the Commission? Well, in reference to certificates putting members on the funds—

9397. I was going to ask you that. Have you found a disposition on the part of members to go on the funds when there is nothing the matter with them? Yes, very frequently.

9398. And the best medical man could be deceived? Yes, there are some diseases that are obscure, and you do not like to injure a man by accusing him of fraud.

9399. Do you favour permitting persons to be members of more than one Society? No; when the weekly pay is such that it equals a man's earnings, it is a temptation to him to go on the Sick Funds.

9400. And it holds out an inducement to imposition? Yes.

9401. And should be provided against? Yes.

9402. Have you anything further to add? I think sick certificates should be renewed every fortnight, if not every week.

9403. What has been your experience with reference to members receiving their sick pay? Except in one Lodge they have always received it promptly, and then that Lodge was in financial difficulties.

9404. What was that Lodge? A female Society.

9405. In connection with a Temperance Society? Yes.

9406. What was the name of the Society? Equity Division Daughters of Temperance.

9407. And were they subsequently in a position to pay? Yes, they are now paying their members as usual. There was a lawsuit over it.

9408. What was the amount of the lawsuit? I think £40.

9409. Have you ever heard of any member not receiving his sick pay? In this Society it was so.

9410. No other case has come under your observation? No, that is the only one.

9411. Have you anything further to add to your evidence? I think when men are on the Sick Funds they should be strictly looked after, and if a man is found drunk while in receipt of the funds he should be dealt with severely; and if he repeats the offence he should be expelled. One man kept himself sick by drinking within my experience; he was found out, but was not expelled.

9412. Do you think, in connection with what you state as a sufficient payment for a medical officer of a Society, that there should be any distinction made other than the guinea now paid for accouchement cases? I myself do not care for confinements at a guinea; I prefer to be without them, frequently asking them not to send for me. The general opinion is that it is too little.

9413. What do you consider would be fair to the profession and to the Society? I think two guineas; of course outside the Societies we never attend for so low as that.

9414. Do you also think it necessary to make any distinction between surgical cases and ordinary cases? Yes, I think there might be a small fee paid for them, as there are expenses connected with them in the way of instruments, splints, and so on, unless a Lodge provided these themselves; but I could hardly say what fee ought to be charged.

9415. In cases of accouchement you said I believe that two guineas would be a fair consideration? Yes, I think so.

9416. But suppose a member did not send for you in a case of accouchement, would you not be compellable to attend a wife after the accouchement? As medical officer if I were engaged to attend at the confinement it would be my duty if called on, to attend after the confinement, even if I had not been called to attend at the event.

Dr. A. J.
Brady.

2 June, 1882.

9417. With reference to the examination of candidates, have you been requested by any of the Societies to make a more searching or fuller examination than had been your practice previously? No, I have not. They have told me sometimes to be careful about admitting them.
9418. They have not expressed then a desire that there should be a more searching examination? No.
9419. Have they ever asked you not to be too exacting? I have found them asking me why I refused a man, as if they would have preferred that he should have been passed.
9420. You have not made occupation a bar to admission? I have not, but I have recommended Societies to consider whether they would admit a man who was a mason, which is an unhealthy employment, and they have admitted him.
9421. Plumbers and painters are generally unhealthy, are they not? Yes, but the Lodges would not be satisfied if we refused men on these grounds. I have found that Lodges preferred me to pass them.
9422. Mr. Smith.] If it was stated to the Commission that syphilis existed amongst members of the Friendly Societies to a very great extent, would that be a true statement? I do not think it exists to a great extent, but it does exist undoubtedly; I have two cases now under my care.
9423. Has your experience shown that it has been productive of a large amount of sickness amongst the families? No, I cannot say that it has been the cause of a large amount of sickness.
9424. Then in your opinion it would be confined to young men joining? I have had it occur in men who have been married for some years, but not to any large extent.
9425. What is your impression as to the moral effect of these Societies upon the members and their homes? I think they have a good effect.
9426. When contrasted with those who are not members? Yes, they are usually a more prudent set of men? It shows they must have some intention of providing for their families if they join these Societies.
9427. Mr. Langley.] In your experience, taking an equal number of persons outside a Friendly Society and those inside it, do you think syphilis exists any more amongst the members of Friendly Societies than it does outside? I do not.

Dr. Alfred Shewen sworn and examined:—

Dr. A.
Shewen.

2 June, 1882.

9428. President.] You are a duly qualified medical practitioner? Yes.
9429. Registered under the New South Wales Medical Board? Yes.
9430. You are the medical officer of some Benefit Societies? Yes.
9431. How many? Five or six, I think.
9432. What is the gross number of members you have under your control? Between 200 and 250, I think.
9433. Have you had any previous experience in connection with Societies? I had a few Societies in England for a short time only.
9434. Can you tell us what the mortality is here as compared with a like number of persons under your control at Home? I do not think I could give any accurate opinion on that point, as I had so few Societies in England, and for a short time only.
9435. What is the general mortality of the members of Societies under your care? I could not give you figures.
9436. Is their health good? It varies a good deal in different Societies.
9437. Is the death rate higher here than in the old country; that is, amongst members of these Societies? I had so little experience in England that I could not give any opinion. It is ten years since I was in England.
9438. What is the kind of examination that you put your candidates through before you pass them; is it a full and searching examination similar to that necessary in Insurance Offices? I do not go into so many particulars, such as the measurements of the chest, but, as a rule, the examination is, I consider, quite equal to that for life insurance.
9439. Have you had occasion to refuse many candidates? A good many.
9440. What would be the percentage of those you have refused? Not more than 1 or 2 per cent.
9441. And, as a rule, have you found the health of members of the Societies very good? The health of the members I have passed is very good.
9442. But those passed before you took charge? It varies very much in different Societies. Some Lodges are remarkably troublesome and unhealthy. The Lodges belonging to the Temperance Societies are a great trouble, and very unhealthy.
9443. How do you account for that? I think a great many of the members belonging to the Temperance Societies have been old drunkards.
9444. And it is principally arising from the fact that they were old drunkards? I think it is almost entirely the fact, if not entirely.
9445. Do you find a disposition amongst the members of the Societies you represent to be placed on the Sick Funds? Particularly with the women.
9446. They are anxious to be placed on the funds? Very much so.
9447. Do you find any attempt on their part to deceive the medical officer? Very much so. The greatest difficulty I have is to prevent imposition on the part of the Lodges I have consisting of the tectotalers.
9448. Do you think it a prudent thing to permit them to be members of more than one Society? I do not think a man should be allowed to receive the benefits from more than one Society.
9449. Do you find the better classes of people—I mean the wealthier classes—who are members participate in the medical and other benefits? Not to a large extent.
9450. Do you find many of them dispensing with the benefits? A considerable number do not partake of the benefits.
9451. They simply remain members to give countenance to the work, which they consider to be deserving of sympathy? So I presume.
9452. Have you heard of any officer or member making away with the funds? No, I have not.
9453. Have you ever heard of members on the Sick Funds having a difficulty in getting their pay? I have had one Lodge which has been unable to meet the demands upon it.
9454. What Lodge is that? The Princess Alice Division of Daughters of Temperance.
9455. Are they much in arrears, so far as you know? I do not know, but they have had to give members notice that they would be unable to pay them if they were placed on the funds.
9456. That is the only case that has come under your observation? That is all.

9457.

Dr. A.
Shewen.
2 June, 1882.

9457. With reference to the payments made to medical officers of Societies, what do you consider sufficient to ensure due and proper attendance from the medical officer? Personally I care very little what I am paid; I should keep them in any case, as I look upon them as a stepping-stone to a practice.
9458. It is not a question of remuneration? Not with me; it is but a means to an end.
9459. And you expect to make that out of members of these Societies? I have done so.
9460. And I presume that most of the medical profession who have come here are glad to get Societies as a means of assisting them to make a practice here? A great many medical men come here with scarcely any funds, and are glad to get Benefit Societies to keep the pot boiling; they not only do that but keep it boiling in the future.
9461. Then if it has been stated by a medical man that he and the profession generally regarded Friendly Societies as a hindrance to the profession, and as a necessary evil, do you agree with such an opinion? Oh no, I do not.
9462. You do not look upon them in that light? No, not at all, though at the same time I think they are capable of a great deal of abuse, as a great many people belong to Societies who should not belong to them; they do so because it is a cheaper way of getting a doctor.
9463. But many of the working-classes by their own perseverance, and sobriety and industry, have made their way in the world, and have grown with the Society; have come to be better off, and have not left the Society, your remarks would not apply to them? Oh no, I have defended these. The Australian Union Benefit Society consists principally of men who started this way, and who now are largely wealthy men.
9464. Your remark would not apply to them? No, not at all.
9465. Do you favour the principle of the working-classes combining together in this way? Yes, decidedly.
9466. And you think it is good for the members themselves and society generally? Most decidedly.
9467. It encourages a spirit of self-reliance and thrift? Yes.
9468. And has it a good moral effect on the people? I think so, decidedly.
9469. Have you read our Act that governs our Societies? I did not know there was one.
9470. You know the amount of contributions paid by the members of different Societies? It varies from 1s. to 1s. 3d. I think.
9471. Do you think from your experience that that sum is sufficient to ensure due fulfilment of the obligations of the Societies? I believe 1s. 3d. is quite sufficient.
9472. I mean to put them on a sound financial basis? I think 1s. 3d. would do.
9473. What do you think would be a fair consideration for medical services? I think about £1 a head; I do not think a medical man would be paid under that.
9474. Would it be worth his attention? Yes, it is worth while for the experience gained, but if he looks upon it as a matter of pounds, shillings, and pence, I think £1 would be a fair consideration.
9475. You do not think it wise that medical officers should be changed frequently? It is rather a good thing sometimes.
9476. But do they not become acquainted with the constitution and habits of their patients? I do not think there is very much in that. It does not take five minutes for a good medical man to find out the constitution, although there is a popular delusion to that effect.
9477. You do not place much faith in that? None at all.
9478. With regard to the prescriptions you have prescribed, how have they been dispensed; to your satisfaction or otherwise? I have heard patients complain, but personally I have had no cause to complain.
9479. How are your patients supplied with their medicines, by chemists or from a dispensary? The largest Society I had was the Oddfellows, where they had their own dispensary.
9480. Which is the most satisfactory mode? The dispensary decidedly.
9481. You think so? Well, the most satisfactory plan is one that two Lodges, at my suggestion, have taken; they have the prescriptions dispensed at a regular charge, and the chemist takes off 33 per cent.
9482. Is that as satisfactory as having a dispensary? I think so—quite as satisfactory and quite as cheap; and members have told me that it does not cost a penny more than paying so much a year per head.
9483. But is it not important that the prescriptions should be faithfully dispensed? Certainly.
9484. Would you favour a general dispensary for Friendly Societies? I think it would probably answer best.
9485. Would it afford greater security to the members? I do not think so, if the payments to the chemist were sufficient.
9486. Is it not a fact that some chemists are taking the prescriptions for a very small sum? I do not know; I do not even know what the chemists of my own Lodges get.
9487. Have you any suggestions to make to the Commission in addition to your evidence already given? There is one point I feel strongly about—that is, when Lodges fall down in numbers below a certain point they should be compelled to unite with some other Lodge; they should not be allowed to go on dragging on a miserable existence. The Princess Alice Division has been haggling with another Branch as to whose name they should take. They are simply bankrupt, and yet they will not join another Lodge. I think that is a very important point.
9488. Anything else that strikes your mind? No, I do not remember anything at present.
9489. You do not remember any officer or member making away with any of the funds? No, I do not recollect a single case.
9490. Can you tell the Commission of any speciality in the sickness that has troubled the members differing from that outside your private practice? No.
9491. Is there more sickness amongst members than amongst your private patients? No, except amongst the Daughters of Temperance, as I have mentioned.
9492. Mr. Abigail.] I want to ask you if you can trace the sickness in the Societies you are attending directly to syphilis? Not a large amount, certainly.
9493. Half the sickness? Oh no.
9494. You could not state the percentage? No.
9495. Can you state if it is more than you meet in your general practice? I think not.
9496. In framing any new Friendly Societies Act, would you have a provision preventing Societies starting upon an inadequate basis? Most decidedly.
9497. You are opposed to Societies being permitted to start without being on a sound basis? Most decidedly.

9498. Mr. Langley.] Do you think any Societies started with contributions of 1s. 3d. a week would be sound? I know one Society that I do not think was sound, but I think the fault was mismanagement.
9499. But, with anything like proper management, you think a Society based on contributions of 1s. 3d. should be sound? I think so; we have proved it in town.
9500. Mr. Gelding.] You stated you recommended two Societies to which you were medical officer to join together and pay a private chemist, charging full rates and getting 33 per cent. cut off. Are you aware of the relative cost to those Societies and to those in connection with the Medical Institute of the Manchester Unity? I do not know what the cost of the Medical Institute is, but I believe the cost of the system I mentioned was slightly in their favour, compared with the sum Societies generally pay to the chemist.
9501. President.] You have nothing else to add? Nothing, sir.

Dr. A.
Shewen.
2 June, 1882.

The Commission then adjourned until Monday, 5 June.

MONDAY, 5 JUNE, 1882.

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,	JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
E. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,	F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,	P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,	E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,
W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Angus Cameron, Esq., M.P., sworn and examined:—

9502. President.] You are a Member of the Legislative Assembly? I am.
9503. And Chairman of Committees? Yes.
9504. What Society are you a member of? I have been a member for the last thirteen years of the Grand United Order of Oddfellows, but I do not know whether I am a member now or not, as I have not been there for some time.
9505. Have you held office? All the offices in my Lodge, and for two years I was Grand Master.
9506. You have always evinced a lively interest in connection with these Societies? I have.
9507. You are aware of the benefits given by the various Friendly Societies to their members? Most of them; I could not accurately describe them all.
9508. The Society of which you were a member, you are aware of the funeral and sick benefits provided by their by-laws? Yes.
9509. What sum per week are the contributions? They have varied at times from 1s. to 14d.
9510. As a matter of opinion, do you think the sum paid is sufficient to secure the payment of all the benefits provided for by the Society? Yes, I think so. Perhaps the best answer would be that, during the whole of my experience of the Society and as far as I could learn, there never has been a case of repudiation.
9511. There has been no Branch of the Society failed for want of funds to meet its obligations? Not that I am aware of.
9512. None of them have dissolved in consequence of want of funds, as far as you know? I rather think there was one Lodge failed through the members falling off.
9513. Do you remember what the funeral donation is? It varies according to length of membership, from £10 up to £30 or £40, if you belong to the Widow and Orphan Fund.
9514. And the amount in case of the death of a member's wife? I think that goes as high as £25.
9515. And the sick pay is how much per week? £1 for the first six months; 15s. for the next six months, and a superannuation fee of 5s. as long as he remains ill.
9516. And there is also medical attendance and medicines for members, their wives and families? Yes.
9517. And you are of opinion that the sum paid is sufficient to pay all these benefits? I think so, with due regard of course to economy.
9518. Do you think any person at the age of (say) thirty-six could insure his life for (say) £40 at 1s. a week? I could not say.
9519. You are well acquainted with the present Act? Tolerably.
9520. Do you think its conditions are sufficient to ensure all the protection members of the various Friendly Societies require? I think not.
9522. Do you think the Act is thoroughly administered? No, I do not.
9523. Is there any other particular in which you think the Act might be amended? It is far too cumbrous and intricate; a much more simple measure would work more beneficially. These Societies which are formed by working men are unable to come up to the many petty requirements of the Act, which are not absolutely necessary for the protection of the Societies themselves.
9524. Do you favour a uniform or graduated scale of contributions? Well, I am rather in favour of a graduated scale.
9525. Making members pay according to their ages? According to their ages, the same as the entrance fees are now regulated.
9526. Has it struck you that candidates seeking admission into Societies have not received that medical examination they should receive? Very often.
9527. Are you aware that some trades and occupations are more injurious to life and health than others? I am.
9528. Would you make any distinction between these occupations and trades in persons seeking admission? I think I would.

A. Cameron,
Esq., M.P.
5 June, 1882.

- A. Cameron, Esq., M.P.
5 June, 1882.
9529. Would you do it by making them pay a larger contribution, or by lessening the benefits they should receive? I should imagine by the amount of contribution.
9530. Have you expressed a desire to be examined here? I never have.
9531. Have you anything to suggest to the Commission that might be of service in its recommendations? Not to any great extent. It has always struck me that the attempts made to assume a quasi-Masonic character necessitate, in the matter of regalia and books, a large expenditure which ought to be applied to the Sick and Funeral Funds. During the time that I had the management of the Order it was no uncommon thing for goods of a particular pattern to be made and shipped into the country, and then returned on our hands. Of course, as we had to pay for them, we were compelled to make the Lodges responsible to us, and this involved not only a useless waste of time, but an almost criminal waste of money.
9532. But was it not the practice of the Society to apportion a part of the funds for purposes of regalia? Oh yes; the money was voted by the Lodge as a lump sum.
9533. But the contributions are received for a specific purpose? I always understood so.
9534. To ensure the benefits? Quite so.
9535. And a portion has been voted for purposes foreign to that? If the purchase of regalia and books containing lessons for deciphering the pass-words are outside purposes, they certainly have.
9536. Would you be in favour of one general system of by-laws to govern the whole body of Friendly Societies, with reference to funeral gifts, sick pay and medical attendance, and all the different gifts provided for in a general code of rules? I am afraid, under existing circumstances, which characterize all the various organizations, it would be hardly practicable.
9537. Would it not simplify their working? Undoubtedly it would, if found practicable.
9538. You have nothing further to add? Nothing.
9539. Mr. Gelding.] What is your opinion about the Government appointing a special Department to look after the Friendly and Trade Societies of this Colony? I have not given the question a very great amount of consideration from that standpoint, but I would hardly see my way to be in favour of such a step.
9540. I presume you hold that the Friendly Societies relieve the Government very much of various expenses? Undoubtedly.
9541. Do not you think the Government might spend a little bit of money in properly looking after these Societies? I do, but I think it could be done without the appointment of a specific Department.
9542. Has there ever been a report submitted to Parliament during the existence of the present Registrar? Not to my knowledge.
9543. You have the idea that the Friendly Societies have virtually been allowed to do as they like? Pretty much I think.
9544. What is your opinion about arbitration; do you think it advisable after members have exhausted all the tribunals of their Lodges, Districts, and Orders, that they should be allowed to go to the District Court to try the cases there? It would be better if they could be settled by arbitration.
9545. I suppose you are firmly of opinion that a sliding scale would be a better system than what we have at the present time? It would be more equitable.
9546. You have seen the forms sent out by the present Registrar? Yes.
9547. Are you of opinion that the matter contained therein is sufficient to give the Government information respecting the workings of Friendly Societies? I could not say at this moment, as I have forgotten what the heads of information asked for are.
9548. You are not acquainted with the law in operation in Victoria, are you? No.
9549. Mr. Stode.] Have you taken the question of graduated contributions into consideration? I have not thought the matter out.
9550. Do you think a graduated contribution would be more advisable than a general fixed rate having regard to age? I think so.
9551. Do you consider the Act itself to be so faulty as its administration? I think the Act too intricate, and the administration of it by no means what it should be.
9552. Do you consider that if the returns as provided for by the Act had been compiled and were to hand, they would have furnished the information required by you in your motion before the House? I think not.
9553. Then do you consider the form in which the information is called for by the Registrar is faulty in not embracing the information you required? No, I cannot exactly say that. I think it is quite possible for the State to hamper the Societies too much by asking for too much petty detail.
9554. You think any attempt to make the management too intricate would result in possible injury? Yes.
9555. You think a simple short Act embracing a few fundamental principles is all that is necessary? Yes; the standpoint I would take would be that all the State has to do is so to legislate as to protect the individual members from being rogued in any way, as when it goes beyond that it has a tendency to hamper the freedom of the members themselves for good.
9556. Would you advocate any interference with the internal management of Societies from an actuarial point of view? If I did, it would be of a very limited character.
9557. Are you in favour of the appointment of a tribunal which would have the effect of preventing Societies from going to law? I would be glad to see all disputes referred to arbitration, and the Government might fairly be empowered to appoint a tribunal of two or three persons to act as arbitrators.
9558. In your experience of these Societies, have you found them as a rule honest and well-intentioned? Certainly, to a degree.
9559. And speculation and sharpening the exception, and not the rule? I never knew but one case, and I only know of that by report; it was before I became a member.
9560. What is your opinion of the health of members of these Societies? I think it is very good.
9561. Above or under the average? I could hardly answer that accurately.
9562. What is your opinion of the moral character of these people? Very high. It seems to me that the man who has the forethought to provide against a day of sickness and death has something to recommend him.
9563. In your experience of Friendly Societies, are you aware that the members are more prone to disease of a venereal kind than any other class of the community? Not that I know of, and I do not believe it.
9564. Mr. Newland.] You stated that the Society of which you are a member gave £1 a week sick pay for the first six months, 15s. for the following six months, and then 5s. as long as the member remained ill? Yes.
9565. Are you aware that the 5s. ceases after twelve months? I am not; if it is so, there must have been an alteration in the law since I took an active interest in the Society.

9566. Have you ever heard of a misapplication of the funds of the Society? No, except such as may be a matter of opinion; such as getting up a picnic, which I maintain is a misapplication, though others think not.
9567. Have you noticed any mismanagement in connection with their affairs? Yes, a great deal.
9569. Then you think they are mismanaged by having too many distinct bodies working under them? Not under them, but over them—too much administration. There is an Association in Sydney, I believe, composed of people of the German nation; they do not manage their business with any paraphernalia of regalia and so on. A member goes and pays his contribution; the Secretary sits there, and the man hands in his money and goes away, and there is no further expense.
9570. Mr. Rubie.] You stated that you had moved in the Legislative Assembly for certain returns through the Registrar of Friendly Societies, which you never got? That is true.
9571. Did you ascertain the reason? Yes; I waited on the Registrar and he told me that he was actually administering the Act with a loss of money to himself, that he could not get from the various Lodges or executive bodies the heads of information that I required.
9572. Considering that, do you not think it would be requisite to have somebody or some individual who would be looked up to as either Registrar or something of Friendly Societies, through whom all information might be furnished to the Government? I certainly do, but that is a different thing from forming a specific Department of Government.
9573. Would you be in favour of an Actuary or that the Registrar should be an Actuary, or that there should be a code of actuarial tables formed under the rate of which no Society should be registered? I think it would be a good thing if the Government took such action as would ensure to members that they were members of a financial organization.
9574. And that we should have some authority which would say "we will not register your Society, because your contributions are not sufficient"? Quite so. Many of the Societies are kept afloat by members coming and going. In the Daughters of Temperance, a Society which has done a great deal of good, young women have joined, and after being in a few years have married and gone away, and their contributions have gone into the general revenue.
9575. Then you think there should be some head? I think so, an officer under one of the responsible Ministers.
9576. And do you not think it would be requisite that the Registrar should have the power of sending an official auditor to inspect the books? That power might be vested in the Minister if any doubts arise as to his subordinate.
9577. But I mean in Lodges? Oh, certainly.
9578. A clause to that effect ought to be inserted giving the Registrar power to insist upon having the books examined? I think so, and I would guard that by insisting upon having a certain number of members to ask for it.
9579. Are you aware that in Victoria they have not only a Registrar but an Actuary? I am not aware of that, but I know they have a Registrar.
9580. Would you be in favour of such legislation here? Of any legislation that would place the Societies on a more solid footing than they now occupy.
9581. Mr. Langley.] I presume you are aware there is a Revising Barrister in Victoria, to whom all the regulations and by-laws are submitted? Yes.
9582. You stated that you were in favour of making the Friendly Societies Act of a less complex character than at present? I am.
9583. Do you think it would be sufficient if the financial portion of Friendly Societies' workings were laid down by law, and the details of the working were left to the Societies themselves? I certainly would not be in favour of legislating for matters of detail. The only duty the State has to perform is to see that members are protected from misappropriation and embezzlement.
9584. As to a Board of arbitration or reference, do you consider that it would be more advisable to have a Board composed of members of different Friendly Societies rather than a legal tribunal? I would be in favour of the appointment of men unconnected with the Societies at all.
9585. You spoke just now about Societies being of a quasi-Masonic character in the matter of regalia and so on; but suppose there may be Societies that can claim to have regalia of quite as long standing as the Masonic bodies, what would you do in that case? I would like to withdraw the expression, and say there is too much formality.
9586. Would you compel Societies who think it best to wear regalia to come under the Act, if they did not wish to come under it themselves? No, I would not attempt to legislate for anything so paltry as wearing regalia, but must express the opinion that it is a matter of taste and economy.
9587. Would you compel all Societies to come under the Act whether they wished it or not? Certainly those of a friendly character taking funds to provide against sickness and death should come under the cognizance of the Government, as far as their financial affairs are concerned.
9588. Mr. Holdsworth.] I understand you that it would be sufficient for the Government to lay down certain first principles, so as to protect the Societies from wrong? I have already said so.
9589. And in reference to regalia, you are of opinion that it would be wise for Friendly Societies to invest their money in a more profitable manner? Quite so.
9590. Mr. Greville.] You spoke of over-legislation as one of the defects which characterized the present Societies? I did.
9591. Does that exhibit itself in unnecessary laws being passed, or in unnecessary expenditure of the funds? Most assuredly in the latter.

A. Cameron
Esq., M.P.
5 June, 1882.

9592.

* NOTE (on revision) :—This answer, of course, applies only to the Society with which I have been connected. I cannot speak so positively with regard to others, although I believe the evil of over-government to be pretty general.

- A. Cameron,
Esq., M.P.
5 June, 1882.
9592. You spoke as if there were other defects, but only mentioned that one? Well, there are incidental defects springing from this, such as a conflict of opinion between the governing bodies and the passing of by-laws conflicting with one another.
9593. I gather that you consider that anything which concerns the financial position of these Societies comes properly under the cognizance of the Government? I think so.
9594. Then if so, should there not be an actuarial basis on which these Societies should be framed? I think I have already expressed an opinion tantamount to that.
9595. You admit that if the tables are not scientifically based the Society itself cannot work well? I have already admitted that.
9596. Mr. Abigail.] I understand that you would not describe the enforcing of the annual returns as a matter of detail,—you would enforce them? I think so.
9597. And properly audited accounts? Yes.
9598. And a scale of fees certified to as sound? I presume that would come under the head of the actuarial investigation alluded to by Mr. Greville at the starting of a Society.
9599. You have no doubt of the moral advantage accruing to members by joining Societies of this kind? None whatever—I think very highly indeed of them.
9600. Are you of opinion it is an immense saving to the State? Undoubtedly.
9601. Has it ever come under your notice that a good deal of loafing takes place? I have met occasional instances of it, but they are very few and far between.
9602. Such cases are exceptional? Very exceptional indeed.
9603. Do you think the working-classes have a widespread doubt as to the financial status of the Societies? No, I think the security they now possess arises from the fact that we very seldom hear of any cases of repudiation of a just claim. There may have been cases where members thought themselves hardly dealt with, but I have never heard of one clear case of repudiation.
9604. Have you gone into figures to know at what rate funds should accumulate in Societies with the accumulation of the ages of members? No.
9605. Have you any doubt that as age increases the liability increases? I have no doubt of it, though it is counterbalanced to some extent by the admission of young members.
9606. Do you favour the present system of the Registrar of Societies having no salary attached to his position? I do not; you never get things done unless you pay for them.
9607. You think he should have a salary and that the fees should not go into his pocket? I think he should have a salary without fees.
9608. President.] You have nothing further to add? No.
9609. Mr. Gelding.] Speaking about regalia, are you not aware that, with the exception of two or three suits provided for the officers of Lodges, the regalia is paid for by members themselves? Not in the Order to which I belong.
9610. Are they obliged to wear regalia? No, not obliged, but a motion has been passed in the Lodge of which I am a member, that every member shall wear a scarf according to his rank as he goes in; and the country Lodges have thus spent a good deal of money.
9611. Then your answers were simply applicable to Lodges like your own? Undoubtedly.
9612. Do you not think, considering the great saving Friendly Societies are to the Government, they should have their rules registered free of charge? It struck me at the time the questions were asked; I think the fees should be reduced to a minimum if not altogether abolished.

Mr. William Walker sworn and examined :—

- Mr. W.
Walker.
5 June, 1882.
9613. President.] What Society do you represent? I am Past Grand Master of the Protestant Alliance of Australasia.
9614. What office do you hold now? Past Grand Master.
9615. How long is it since you held the office? I was elected in 1879 and 1880.
9616. You are still a member of the Society? Yes.
9617. Have you expressed a wish to be examined here? Yes.
9618. On what point? That the registered laws are not being acted up to.
9619. Will you describe how? The laws distinctly state we should divide the Order into Districts; I did so, and got the opinion of the Registrar that this division was the only legal and binding one, and they denied it all.
9620. Has there been any misappropriation of money? Yes, several of them.
9621. But we must have some specific statement made? The first was when I was first elected, and was by the Grand Secretary, about £276.
9622. What was the Grand Secretary's name? John Bibb.
9623. Is he still employed in the public service? Yes, and the Society got all the money.
9624. He made the amount good? As far as we found out then.
9625. Have there been any discrepancies in the amounts since? I think so, but they refused to go by the laws and go over the accounts with me.
9626. You are speaking of the Grand Lodge officers? Yes.
9627. What action was taken by the Grand Lodge to compel Mr. Bibb to disgorge this money? I think we sent him a lawyer's letter and gave him notice that we should take criminal proceedings, and we got it in three or four different payments.
9628. Did you have any difficulty in the inquiry? The Auditors had to go through the books again. I saw that the balance-sheet could not be correct, as it stated that the amount due by Lodges to the Grand Lodge was £530, which was impossible (Report of Annual Meeting, March 5, 1879).
9629. You knew that amount must be wrong? Yes, or three-fourths of the Lodges must be unfinancial; so we had the Auditors go through the books again.
9630. And what was the result of that inquiry? That about £276 was wrong.
9631. And was that amount refunded by Mr. Bibb? Yes.
9632. Were there any other defalcations in connection with the Grand Lodge or private Lodges? Several in the private Lodges. 9633.

Mr. W.
Walker.

5 June, 1882.

9633. Can you name any of them? Well, in No. 25 I heard say their Secretary was wrong; I went and saw that the ledger was kept in pencil.
9634. During the time you were a Grand Lodge officer a communication was made to you that the Secretary of No. 25 had embezzled some of its money? Yes.
9635. And you paid several visits and found he kept the ledger in pencil? Yes.
9636. Do you know what the amount was? From memory I think I have heard them say something over £150; but I also heard it was nearly £300; but they discovered £150, I think.
9637. Was that money made good? Not that I have heard of.
9638. What action was taken by the Grand or subordinate Lodge to compel him to pay? The Grand Lodge did not interfere; I was there once or twice; one man brought up his book, which stated he had paid a guinea, and he had put it down 10s.; the Secretary paid the 11s. at once; the lawyers advised them not to go to law, as the books were kept so badly.
9639. Is there any other Lodge you know of? I think there were several Lodges which did not come under my notice.
9640. Do you know where the officers reside who it is alleged made away with these moneys? No, I could not; I heard one was in the Harbours and Rivers Department; the other one I believe is in Sydney, as I saw him the other day.
9641. What amount of funds have you to your credit now after all these peculations that have taken place? I looked for the balance-sheet this morning but could not find it? There is £4,398 in the Grand Lodge in the balance-sheet for 1881; the revenue for 1880 was £2,302 5s.
9642. And what was expended in that year? £1,398 10s. 5d., showing an accumulated cash balance of £2,999 15s. 1d.
9643. Now you wish to bring under the notice of the Commission something else, do you not? I take it that money paid in is the property of the members and has to be invested in accordance with the Friendly Societies Act, which in the 42nd clause is plain on the point that it shall not be in any joint stock company. Now we have had something over £1,000 invested for years without interest in this manner. The Grand Lodge has £279 in shares in the Hall, and the private Lodges have £1,257 invested in the same way, contrary to this clause.
9644. What action did you take under that clause—did you bring it under the notice of the Registrar? I am not aware that I did; I have consulted him, but have been told I must consult my solicitor.
9645. Have you objected to the investment of the money in this way? I always did; we were getting 6 per cent. some two years ago, and then it came down to 4 if I recollect right.
- The witness retired and the Commission deliberated.
- The examination of the witness was resumed.
9646. Will you read the answer you got to your objection to the Registrar in reference to the appropriation of money for Hall shares? I did not put that before him in writing, but simply said the laws were ignored. We ignore the whole of the registered laws.
9647. Have you anything further to add? Well, if you do not go into the question that we totally ignore the laws, I can have nothing further to do with the Commission.
9648. Have you anything to suggest to the Commission that might be of service in any future legislation? I do not think there is sufficient care taken in appointing Secretaries and Treasurers, and that has led to the accounts being in a disordered state.
9649. Do you approve of the present system of auditing the accounts? No, I do not.
9650. Do you think it would be a wise thing for the Government to appoint a professional Auditor? I think so, and have suggested that there should be a permanent head to the Friendly Societies. The laws are being ignored, and the Registrar says he cannot interfere.
9651. I suppose you have looked through the Act and see he has not much power, and that the Act is defective? Well, he says the laws are in accordance with the law.
9652. That is not an answer to my question—have you observed that the Act is defective? Not in any particular; it goes into the main points.
9653. And do you think the Act in its present shape is sufficient for the good government of Friendly Societies? Oh no.
9654. Have you any suggestions to make? I have just to state distinctly that the registered laws of the Society should be adhered to in every particular.
9655. Mr. Smith.] In the several matters you have brought before the Registrar, did you make any specific charge of misapplication of the funds? No, I went into the laws.
9656. But did you point out specifically the particulars in which the laws had been disregarded? No, I do not think so.
9657. Then you simply applied to him for an interpretation of the law? I asked what steps should be taken if the laws were disregarded, and he said he could not interfere—I must consult my solicitor.
9658. You have placed no specific charge before the Registrar? No.
9659. What year were you Grand Master? 1879 and 1880.
9660. What year did the Lodges begin to invest their funds in shares? Years before that.
9661. Mr. Abigail.] Were you a member when they commenced? I think so.
9662. When you were Grand Master did you point out that they were acting contrary to law? I think I did many a time, because the reply made was that they had already taken legal advice on it.
9663. While you were Grand Master did you not have to sign cheques for the payment of any moneys? Not for Protestant Hall shares.
9664. But did you not have to sign all cheques for disbursements? Yes.
9665. Did you refuse to sign any cheques? I never recollect doing it.
9666. If a cheque was produced with your signature? I would be satisfied.
9667. But you are satisfied you protested? Yes.
9668. Are you a member of Grand Lodge now? According to law I am.
9669. Do you hold the position and take your place at their meetings? I do not go to them.
9670. Were you deposed from your position? I was, illegally.
9671. By vote of the Grand Lodge? No.
9672. How then? By a band drawn together.
9673. Is there any record on the minutes? Yes, I have it here.

- Mr. W. Walker.
5 June, 1882.
9674. You have never attended any of their meetings since? Oh yes.
9675. And taken part in the proceedings? I do not know; I was at the annual meeting before last.
9676. In the matter of the misappropriation you referred to, where the amount was some £270, was the man mentioned charged with misappropriating the funds? I think so; he was to execute a mortgage.
9677. As an officer of the Order, when you became cognizant of this misappropriation you suppressed it? All the members knew it.
9678. You suppressed it from your reports? Yes.
9679. So you were a party to the suppression of a felony? The law says if he does not pay, it is a felony; but if he does pay, there is an end to it.
9680. Where does the law say that? It is rule 182 of our Society's rules.
9681. And you acted upon that law? Yes.
9682. And he refunded the money? In one instance; there were several other acts.
9683. By the same man? I did not say that.
9684. Several other cases? Yes.
9685. Can you supply the Commission with the names of the parties? Some Lodges at the outsides of the town I know.
9686. Are they of recent date? May be a year.
9687. And have you taken any action to bring them under anybody's notice? Most decidedly not.
9688. Why? Because I wanted to see whether these were the laws, and now I am told they are not the laws.
9689. But must that not be in opposition to all laws? Well if they do not pay after we have called upon them to do so. He asked for time and we gave it to him.
9690. Is this act you are now taking the result of any personal feeling? Not that I know of; I laid it before the Registrar in February, 1881.
9691. When were you deposed from your office? In September, 1880.
9692. The President of your Society when under examination referred to a previous President who had been suspended, and said the cause of the suspension was drunkenness (question 4873); does that refer to you? No.
9693. Has there been any other President suspended? No, not that I am aware of.
9694. And did the Executive take any proceedings against you for the recovery of property? Yes.
9695. And they succeeded, did they not? Yes, but they did not get the collar; I refused to give the collar up.
9696. Then you acted in opposition to the order of the Court? No, I paid the money.
9697. You paid the value of the collar? Yes.
9698. Then they virtually did succeed? Yes; they swore it was their property.
9699. Is there any portion of the Act which prohibits Lodges investing their funds? Yes, clause 42.
9700. Does that do so? Yes, in joint stock companies.
9701. And with the knowledge that the Society was doing an illegal act, you did not bring it specifically under the notice of the Registrar by laying a charge against them? I told him the laws were totally ignored.
9702. Did you tell him they had invested their funds in opposition to the Friendly Societies Act? I could not say whether I did or not, but I believe I did.
9703. Mr. Greville.] You spoke of a deficiency of £276 in the accounts of a certain Secretary? Yes.
9704. Were you the first to point out that deficiency? I said when we were at Newcastle that I would stake my existence that the balance-sheet was not correct.
9705. At the time you pointed it out had the balance-sheet been examined, submitted to the members, and generally received? No, it was submitted to the Auditors and signed by them.
9706. At the time you pointed out the error had it been audited? Yes.
9707. Submitted to the Council? Yes.
9708. And to the members generally? Oh no.
9709. But submitted to the Council and received as correct? Yes.
9710. And issued to the members as correct? Yes.
9711. What steps were taken by the Council when you pointed out the error? We did nothing at all. We came back to Sydney, when the Executive took it in hand; we had the books re-audited, and went through all these balance-sheets and found this deficiency.
9712. Then the audit for practical purposes was worse than useless? Yes, of course; it was not worth a half-penny.
9713. Were the Auditors paid for the audit? Yes.
9714. Can you tell what they were paid? £2 2s.; £1 1s. each.
9715. Were they members of the Society or independent of it? Members of the Society.
9716. Has it come to your knowledge that other audits have been performed in an equally neglectful manner? Yes, in connection with subordinate Lodges.
9717. Do you draw from that the deduction that the men who generally audit these accounts do it in an insufficient or a neglectful manner? They are not competent.
9718. Under these circumstances, do you not consider it would be right for the Government themselves to have these accounts audited? Yes.
9719. You spoke of another instance, Lodge No. 25, in which there was a deficiency of from £150 to £300? I heard so in the Lodge.
9720. Did it come under your own notice that the entries in the ledger were written in pencil? Yes.
9721. And were they in pencil at the time the Auditors examined the accounts? They never examined that book. He never brought to light the rough waste-book, or we could have perceived the receipts each evening.
9722. You say that the Auditors did not examine the ledger? In that particular Lodge—they stated so to me.
9723. When did they state so to you? In the Lodge, in my presence.
9724. At the time you examined the ledger, was that after the audit had taken place? Yes.
9725. In that instance also were the Auditors paid? I should think so.
9726. Is it within your knowledge that either of the Auditors who signed the balance-sheets has been again employed

Mr. W.
Walker.

5 June, 1882

- employed by the Society? No, I think not; fresh Auditors were elected; they were employed at the special audit.
9727. Do you think the manner in which these audits have taken place is a sample of the manner in which the accounts generally are audited? In nine cases out of ten. When I was Grand Master I used to visit many of the Lodges, and always had a look at the books; many of the Secretaries are totally unfit and the Auditors are the same, but there is pay attached to it.
9728. You complain that there has been an unlawful investment of the funds of the Order generally; when that investment took place did you raise any objection to it? No, I was not in the Grand Council when it first took place.
9729. Did you raise your voice against it at the time the investment was made? I did in the subordinate Lodge.
9730. But you were not a member of the Council? No, I do not think so, but I was a member of the Order.
9731. To whom was your protest given? It was given in several of the Lodges I visited.
9732. Will you state, as shortly as you can, where the investment transgresses the law? Because it is a joint-stock company.
9733. Then it was on that ground you protested? Yes.
9734. Are you aware that before the Lodges invested their money that way they took a legal opinion as to the propriety of it? No.
9735. Have you ever heard that such was the case? When I mentioned it in Grand Council I was met by the assertion that advice had been taken.
9736. And that they were justified in so investing their funds? So they said.
9737. Did you hear the name of the counsel who gave the opinion; do you know who was stated to have taken the opinion? No.
9738. But the opinion was taken by whom? I think the Trustees said they had done so.
9739. Then if that be correct, the Trustees acted under legal advice in doing that? Yes, if that be correct.
9740. Mr. Holdsworth.] If a wrong is done in your Society, is not some provision made to remedy that wrong? Yes.
9741. Did you adopt that course? I did in reference to the case of the Grand Secretary.
9742. Mr. Rubie.] You say that the whole of your rules are ignored? Yes.
9743. By whom? By the Executive.
9744. Your Society was formed as a Benefit Society? Yes.
9745. Do they not carry out the benefits? Not according to law.
9746. What particular law do they violate? It says the money shall be divided pro rata for the Funeral Fund, and each District shall take its own. That is not done.
9747. Is there any means of moving the members by a meeting? I took Mr. Darley's opinion once.
9748. But I mean in your own Society, cannot the members be called together to protest against it? They do not interfere—they think it useless.
9749. Then at that rate members must be aware of the fact and agree to it? No, that is not a fair conclusion.
9750. Is there any means of the general body moving its officers, supposing they violate the rules? The general body could dismiss them, but they are scattered all over the country, and you could not get them here.
9751. You have a great number of Lodges in Sydney, have you not? Yes.
9752. Could they not do the work? It would not be a meeting of the Society. Some years ago we called a meeting, and there was like a ministerial side and an opposition side, and three or four of us went to expense. Mr. Brown laid the case before Mr. Darley; and it cost me £6 8s. 6d., and I was not inclined to do any more.
9753. But this alleged misappropriation of funds, was that legal of the governing body? I think not.
9754. Your officers were in charge of this great amount of money for a certain purpose? I think so.
9755. And it was not till years afterwards it was found out? Oh yes, a great number of us have been kicking up a noise about it for years.
9756. But was it done by consent of the majority of members? Oh no.
9757. Then the Grand Council did it on their own account? I think the Executive did it.
9758. Have they not the means of calling in the money or disposing of it? I heard one of our Lodges had twenty shares, and all that was offered was £5 for them.
9759. The fact is that a loan was granted by the former members of the executive body? Not a loan.
9760. The present members disagree with them? A great number do because there is no return.
9761. But as it was done by their own officers, and there was no protest, it is one of those matters that must be taken for better or worse? I do not see it.
9762. Mr. Newland.] There are general meetings held every year? Yes.
9763. Is it not in the province of any Lodge to bring any business forward at these meetings? Yes.
9764. Have you ever moved your Lodge to bring this matter before the annual meeting of members—this misapplication of Lodge Funds? We called a monster meeting, and it ended so noisily that we went no further.
9765. Did you ever cause a notice of motion to be sent to consider this question? I cannot say, but I know it was carried in our Lodge that it was illegal, and advising the members to take it up.
9766. Has it ever been brought before the Executive? I have often mentioned it myself, and the reply was that they had taken advice on the matter.
9767. What position did you hold on the Executive? Grand Master.
9768. And by virtue of your office you could bring this forward? Yes.
9769. Is it in the province of the Grand Master to sign cheques? Yes.
9770. And you refused to sign a cheque? I did once, but I do not remember what for.
9771. No money was used for this purpose while you were Grand Master? Not that I am aware of.
9772. Mr. Slade.] Did any of the officers ever take action in the Courts by proceeding against the Trustees about these investments? No.
9773. Did it ever occur to you that the Friendly Societies Act gave every member the right to proceed against the Trustees in a matter like that? I was not aware of that, but how many of them could give the time and expense?

- Mr. W. Walker.
5 June, 1882.
9774. Are you not aware that the Act says any member of a Society may proceed against the Trustees? I dare say it does.
9775. The 42nd clause decides how the money may be invested? Yes.
9776. And could not any member have proceeded against the Trustees for investing in any other way than that there described? I think so.
9777. You say that one of the officers who misappropriated the money entered into a book (say) only half the amount received, and when discovered threw the balance on the table, and it was accepted? No, one night when I was in No. 25, I found the funds did not agree with the card of one of the members, and he gave the balance up.
9778. Mr. Gelding.] Have you a Lodge at Waverley? Yes.
9779. Were you at the opening of that Lodge? I do not think so.
9780. You are not aware that the first batch of members admitted underwent no medical examination? I am not aware of it.

The Commission then adjourned till Friday, 9 June.

FRIDAY, 9 JUNE, 1882.

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
E. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,

F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,
W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

[Prior to the arrival of the President the Chair was taken by Mr. Abigail, who is designated "Chairman."]

Mr. Alfred John Pinel sworn and examined:—

- Mr. A. J. Pinel.
5 June, 1882.
9781. Chairman.] What Society do you represent? Court Friendship Royal Foresters.
9782. What number of members have you? Nineteen.
9783. Have you had a larger number? There were some years ago about 120.
9784. Can you give us any reason why it is reduced to such a small number as nineteen? I am a new member, and cannot give the reason.
9785. Are you connected with a District? Yes, we are connected with the supreme Court.
9786. How much funds have you? None; we are just dissolving; it is our last meeting-night next meeting.
9787. You are going to dissolve your Society and join other branch Courts? Yes, by clearances.
9788. Can you tell us if any of your members entitled to benefits have failed to get them for any time past? Not that I know of. All members clear on the books, if anything happens to them it is the supreme Court which has to pay.
9789. But what about sickness? We have to pay that.
9790. How do you pay that? We had funds till about a fortnight ago, but if we lose our funds the supreme Court is supposed to pay the loss.
9791. Have you had any serious drain by way of sickness? Yes, we have lately had three at a time.
9792. What amount of contribution do you pay? 1s. a week, and 1d. for the Widow and Orphan Fund.
9793. Does your experience go to prove that 1s. a week has been enough to carry on the operations of your Society? It has till this last meeting or two.
9794. But the sickness you speak of has consumed the whole of your funds, surplus and all, and left you without any means? Yes.
9795. Have you any knowledge of a case in connection with your Court where a member died, and the widow being entitled to a funeral donation, failed to get it? No.
9796. John Cox was the name? In my books going back to 1876 there is no such name.
9797. Is there any at an earlier date? No, not in my books.
9798. But in any case I understand you to say that the Court would not be responsible for funeral donations? No, it is the District. We pay 2s. a quarter to the District for the funeral donation.
9799. What is the name of the District Secretary? Mr. Hampton.
9800. I suppose if such a case had occurred he could give the particulars? Yes, he would be the best person to go to.
9801. To what do you attribute the falling off in your Court from 120 to nineteen members? It was before I went into the Court they began to fall off.
9802. How long have you been a member? Three years.
9803. Have you studied the Friendly Societies Act? No.
9804. You are not in a position then to offer any opinion as to whether it answers the purposes for which it was passed or not? So far as I know I think it does, but it is a wrong idea to have small Courts with twenty or thirty members. Courts with fifty or sixty members can manage. That is the great fault of the Societies.
9805. Then in your opinion small Courts or Lodges cannot carry on satisfactorily and make due provision for the liabilities? It is impossible; there are too many expenses attached to them.
9806. What is the particular expense attached to the working of small Lodges? Rent, stationery, and quarterage to the supreme Court, Sick Fund, and doctor's fees.
9807. What have you been in the habit of paying the doctor? 4s. a member a quarter.
9808. And what do you pay the chemist? 3s.
9809. In your experience, has that amount of money gained to the members efficient medical attendance and good medicines? Yes, so far as I know; we have a good doctor and a good chemist.
9810. Who is the doctor? Dr. Belgrave.

9811. Have you had any cases where any of your members have been sponging on the funds of your Society, by making themselves appear sick when they are not so? No.

9812. You have had no complaints of the quality of the medicines? No, not so far as I am aware.

9813. Have you known any cases in connection with your Society or any other where misappropriation of the funds has taken place by any of the officers? No.

9814. Have you had any disputes in connection with your Society among the members? No, not since I belonged to the Society.

9815. And so far as this case of Cox's is concerned you can give no information? None whatever.

9816. Mr. Newland.] Has the Court any other books besides those you have? I have not got them in my possession.

9817. Are they in possession of the Lodge? I could not say.

9818. Chairman.] How is it the books are not in your possession? I have them since 1876.

9819. Mr. Newland.] How long has the Court been established? I could not say.

9820. Mr. Gelding.] You have stated to the President that you think Is. a week is sufficient. On what principle do you base that assertion, considering that your Lodge has not a penny to its good? Is. a week is plenty if there is a membership of fifty or sixty, but not in a small Lodge.

9821. To what do you attribute the dissolution of your Lodge? Because we have been unable to carry on, and several members have left and gone bad on the books.

9822. Chairman.] Do not the books disclose the addresses of the members? Yes, but they have left.

9823. And altogether the Court is in a thoroughly disorganized state? Yes.

9824. Mr. Gelding.] Brought about by the fact of members leaving and no new ones joining? Yes.

9825. Will the Grand Court grant clearances? They will.

9826. Free of cost? No; we have half-a-crown to pay I believe.

9827. Where is your Lodge held? At the Protestant Hall.

9828. What rent do you pay? 3s. a meeting night.

9829. Chairman.] To what do you attribute the want of attention on the part of the members? Some of the members would not bring new members in, they happening to be Roman Catholics, because the meetings were held in the Protestant Hall; they would rather be seen coming out of somewhere else than the Protestant Hall.

9830. The feeling was against the building and not the Society? Yes.

9831. Do I understand that the supreme Court will grant clearances to members irrespective of their ages, and that it is compulsory on other Courts to accept these members no matter how old they may be? The supreme Court is bound to take care of them.

9832. So the members can be at no loss? None at all; if they are sick the supreme Court is bound to take them.

Mr. Edward William Parsonage sworn and examined:—

9833. Chairman.] What Society do you represent? The Independent Order of Oddfellows, Miller's Point Lodge.

9834. What position do you hold? Secretary.

9835. What number of members have you? By the last returns, forty-five financial and nine unfinancial.

9836. How long have you held the position of Secretary? I think about eighteen months.

9837. How long has the Lodge been established? Since January, 1879.

9838. What amount of funds have you now? At the end of the year £112 5s. 4d.

9839. And what benefits do you give? Sick benefits, £1 a week; funeral benefits for males, £20, and females, £10.

9840. No benefits for children? None.

9841. And how is the Society managed? There are officers called the Noble Grand, Vice-Grand, Treasurer, and Secretary, with other subordinate offices.

9842. You have received a return to fill up? Yes.

9843. Has it come to your knowledge that any one of the officers of your Society has made away with any of the funds? No, no further than our Treasurer had a certain amount of money in hand that he could not pay when called upon. But the Society had a guarantee bond for nearly twice the amount, so we did not lose anything.

9844. But nevertheless the Treasurer did abscond —? No, he did not abscond; when called upon he could not give the money. He made a statement that when shifting he had lost some £20 out of his pocket.

9845. What was the amount he was found short? £36 odd.

9846. Did he give any explanation as to the other £16? No, not that I could say.

9847. Then did the Society take any steps against him? We wrote to the Guarantee Society claiming the amount, and we were advised to try and get it out of him, to give him as much time as possible; they could have prosecuted him. The Lodge was not in any way at a loss.

9848. Did you call upon him to pay the amount? I believe the Trustees did.

9849. Did he do so? No.

9850. Has he done so yet? Not the whole, he has paid £25 odd.

9851. Then you received the whole amount from the Guarantee Society? We have not done so yet, but can whenever we call upon them.

9852. Did you take any legal steps to compel this man to pay the amount, or to punish him for misusing the funds of the Society? No, we did not; we wrote to the Guarantee Society telling them this money was deficient, and we had an interview with the Society, who said they would like to get out of him as much as possible without prosecuting him.

9853. They were not particular about compounding a felony so long as they got the money? I cannot say.

9854. They did not urge criminal proceedings? No.

9855. They advised you to get as much out of him as you could, and to take no steps? They advised us to get as much money as we could without taking proceedings.

9856. Is this man still a member of your Society? Still a member, but is unfinancial.

9857. But he is still a member of the Lodge? Yes.

9858. You have taken no steps to expel him in any way whatever? No.

9859.

Mr.
A. J. Pindel.

June, 1882.

Mr. E. W.
Parsonage.

June, 1882.

- Mr. E. W. Parsonage. 9859. Have you studied the Friendly Societies Act? No, I have not; in fact I have not got a copy.
9860. In your experience as Secretary of your Society, have you anything to suggest in the framing of a new Act for the general benefit of Friendly Societies? There is only one thing I should like to see done, and that is that some uniform method could be adopted of keeping the books of Societies, as members are now elected into an office and do not know how to proceed with keeping the books, and they are left in the state their predecessor had left them, and they cannot work them up. I should like to see some idea get about that Lodges could have some system of keeping the books.
9861. That the Government should adopt a form of book for all Societies? Yes, I think so, because when Secretaries are appointed for only six months there may be a number of different ways of keeping the books.
9862. You find that the fact of different men keeping the books in different manners brings about a jumble in the end? Yes.
9863. Do you find the balance-sheets and audits are generally satisfactory? Yes.
9864. Would you favour Government supervision in the way of an examiner of the accounts of Friendly Societies? I would have no objection to it.
9865. Do you think it would be an advantage to have a competent man? Yes, I do.
9866. Would you be in favour of a provision in any new Act that no Society should be permitted to start without an actuarially based system of contributions; that is, an amount fixed by calculation that would render the Societies positively sound for any given time? Yes, I would.
9867. Mr. Langley.] Has your Lodge received from the party who was a defaulter any security for the money due to you? Yes.
9868. In what shape? A promissory note was given for the amount, indorsed by a gentleman of good position in Sydney.
9869. Then that covers the whole of the deficiency? Yes.
9870. If a statement has been made that any other portion of your funds has been made away with, is it true? No.
9871. Have not the whole of the funds been made good? Yes.
9872. Mr. Rubie.] Will that member be kept or expelled? If he does not meet his contribution by the end of the next quarter he will by the constitution fall out, being over twelve months in arrears.
9873. Then by the fact of his paying back this money you have condoned the offence of his keeping it? We have not done anything in regard to the member one way or another.
9874. You have not tried him in any way? No.
9875. Was it found out at the annual audit? Yes.
9876. Was it discovered then how long it was since he was a defaulter? It was not many weeks, I think.
9877. Mr. Newland.] Am I to understand that the Society had a guarantee from a Guarantee Society? Yes.
9878. How was it they did not pay the amount? They would have paid the amount had we compelled them, but of course the Lodge wished to try and help them as much as possible to get the money out of the Treasurer, and they were still protected, and could force them at any time to pay the full amount.
9879. Would compulsion have been necessary? No, I do not suppose it would if we had called upon them to pay the amount.
9880. Were they ever called upon to pay it? No.
9881. President.] What was the name of this defaulting member? J. J. Horan.
9882. What action did you take to recover the money? We informed the Society that this amount was deficient, and a deputation waited on them about it, and they advised us to assist them in getting the money without taking legal proceedings.
9883. But did the Society hold any investigation themselves? The members of the Lodge did so.
9884. In open Lodge? I believe so, but would not be positive about it.
9885. You were not present at any investigation? Not that I remember.
9886. This is the only case of defalcation you know of? Yes.
9887. Do you take a guarantee from all your officers? From the Secretary and Treasurer of £50 each.
9888. There has been no complaint in reference to the nonpayment of sick pay? No, none whatever.
9889. Has the medical officer been paid regularly? Yes.
9890. No complaint on his part? It may not have been paid at the time, the accounts being held over to be audited.
9891. How often do you have an audit? Every six months.
9892. Then you do not pay the accounts until after they have been audited at the end of six months? The Finance Committee pass the accounts every quarter.
9893. Do you think a half-yearly audit is a sufficient security to the Society and its members? I think quarterly audits would be better.
9894. In reference to the defaulting member, did the members accept the excuse of the loss of money? They had to accept it—they could not do much else. They knew he had been moving, and his explanation was that he had this money in his hip pocket and had lost it.
9895. Did the members believe that statement? I think there were some doubtful about it.
9896. But they accepted it? Yes, they had to make the best of a bad job.
9897. Do you consider your Society in a sound financial state? Yes.
9898. Able to meet all its liabilities? Yes, this term we have been adding greatly to our numbers and finances too.
9899. What amount of money had you over and above all your charges last year? The accounts were paid up last year, and there was a balance to the credit of the Lodge of £112.
9900. You cannot tell the Commission that was over and above on last year's operations? No, I cannot.
9901. Still it was sufficient and left a balance? Yes.
9902. Have you anything to add to your evidence? I do not know of anything.
9903. Mr. Abigail.] Is the contribution you pay fixed by the advice of any actuary? I could not say; our Lodge was instituted by warrant from the Grand Lodge of Victoria, and the amount of contribution is fixed in the constitution.

Mr. John Smart sworn and examined:—

9904. President.] What Society do you belong to? The Independent Order of Oddfellows, No. 12, Abou Mr. J. Smart, Ben Adhen Lodge.
9905. You are the Secretary? Yes.
9906. How long have you held the office? Eleven months.
9907. What is the financial position of your Society? Pretty fair just now.
9908. What is the amount of funds to your credit? £153 16s. 9d.
9909. What is the number of members? Fifty-three financial at the present time.
9910. How long has the Lodge been established? Three years next August.
9911. What had you over and above your expenses and liabilities last year? £100 in the Bank.
9912. But what was the credit balance on the year? I forget the amount just now.
9913. You had a balance, had you? Yes.
9914. You do not know the amount? No, not the exact amount.
9915. But you brought forward £100? There was £136 altogether from the time we started till the end of last year.
9916. Have you had any of the officers or members making away with the funds? Yes; the la Secretary and Treasurer both.
9917. What were the names of these officers? Bernard Carroll, Treasurer; and William Anderson, Secretary.
9918. What was the amount of their defalcations? The Treasurer's, £34; the Secretary's we could not exactly get at, but it was something like £8 or £9.
9919. And what steps did you take to recover these sums of money? They went to the Secretary and Treasurer, and got £5 from the Secretary and £24 from the Treasurer, and a promissory note for £10 more backed by Mr. Barnett in the Post Office, but both went insolvent before the note became due.
9920. You took no steps to prosecute them? No; the Trustees went to the Guarantee Society, who advised them to try and get what they could from them, as if they took it in hand they would show them no mercy.
9921. Did the Guarantee Society make good the balance? No; we have not received any of it.
9922. Is it the intention of the Society to apply for the balance? I did not know that they ought to pay us.
9923. £24 you received from the Treasurer? Yes.
9924. Out of how much? £34. We have also received £3 7s. 6d. out of the insolvent estate of Mr. Barnett.
9925. You have not applied for the balance? No; I do not think we were aware that we could do so.
9926. Are you not aware that you could still recover from the Guarantee Office? I was not aware of it, and I think the members are under the impression they could not.
9927. Have you, in consequence of these defalcations, had any inconvenience arise in the management of your Society? None whatever.
9928. Has the medical officer been paid regularly? I think so.
9929. How long after his account is presented does payment take place? Not more than a few days.
9930. Do the members of your Society who are on the Sick Fund receive their pay regularly? Some of them, but some who were on when the late Secretary was in office did not; he received the money and put it in his own pocket, but they have had the money since.
9931. No cause of complaint has arisen in that way? Yes, we did not know that until this affair came out.
9932. How often are your accounts audited? Generally the balance-sheet every quarter; the regular audit is half-yearly.
9933. And was the discovery made by the Auditors? No, some of the members had the idea things were going wrong, and there was a special audit.
9934. Who were the special Auditors? Mr. Cannon the Grand Secretary and Mr. Perry.
9935. And was it from the audit that then took place that the disclosures were made? Yes.
9936. And you consider the Society in a good financial position? Yes, I think so.
9937. And able to meet all its liabilities? Yes.
9938. All your members are subject to a medical examination before admission? Yes.
9939. You understand the Act, I presume? I am not very well up in it.
9940. You have read it? I have read a little of it, but have not studied it.
9941. Have you found any inconvenience in your Society arising from any defect in the Act? No, I do not think so.
9942. Your benefits are similar to those of other Societies? Yes, but not so large as in some.
9943. What do you give? 20s. a week sick pay.
9944. And funeral donation? £20 for a man and £10 for a woman.
9945. A fixed sum? Yes.
9946. It is not graduated according to the length of membership? No.
9947. And doctor and chemist? Yes.
9948. What are your contributions? 1s. 3d. a week.
9949. Covering everything? Yes.
9950. Have you anything to suggest to the Commission that might be of some service in any future legislation? I do not know of anything at present.
9951. Mr. Abigail.] You say you have not read much of the Friendly Societies Act? No, I have not studied it.
9952. In clause 13 there is full provision made for the punishment of fraud in any of the members withholding the moneys, and any two Justices may commit them for three months in gaol. Have you any doubt that the two parties named come under that clause? I have no doubt of it.
9953. Did they come before the Lodge to answer those charges? The Treasurer appeared, but the Secretary did not.
9954. Did the Treasurer make any excuse? No; he said he had made away with the money to meet little things that he owed.
9955. Is he still a member? No, they were both expelled.

- Mr. J. Smart. 9956. When the Guarantee Society told you that if the matter was left to them they would prosecute to the utmost, did that exercise any influence in preventing the Lodge from taking steps? I do not know.
- 9 June, 1882. 9957. Did the Trustees refer the matter to the higher Executives of the Order for their opinion? I think there was something, and that they came to the conclusion that as the Treasurer had promised to make everything good and had given his promissory note they were satisfied to do it in that way.
9958. As a member of a Society, do you think it beneficial that officers misappropriating the funds should be let off in this way? No, I do not think so.
9959. You think it would have a salutary effect if they were punished? Yes, I think it would be better.
9960. In connection with your Society, have you had any cases of members defrauding the funds by living on them? Not that we have known of.
9961. Are your members generally satisfied with the medical attendance and medicines supplied? Yes, I believe so.
9962. In serious cases they go to the Lodge doctor? Yes.
9963. Who is the doctor? Dr. Warren.
9964. Mr. Holdsworth.] You took a certain sum of money and a promissory note representing the deficiency? Yes.
9965. And you looked on that as a settlement of the claim? Yes.
9966. You considered that when you took that you exonerated the Guarantee Society? I suppose that was the idea.
9967. What Guarantee Society is it? I do not know; Mr. Smith is the Manager.
9968. Mr. Langley.] You stated that you believed this matter was referred to the executive officers? I think there was something brought before them, but I am not sure.
9969. May I ask when? After the affair was found out I think it was.
9970. Are you sure of that? No; it was not referred to the Grand Lodge officers.
9971. When any doubt was thrown upon the integrity of these parties, did it come before the notice of the Grand Lodge officers? I think the Grand Master and Mr. Perry were the only persons who knew of it.
9972. What steps were taken when it was first brought before the notice of the Grand Master? I believe a special audit was ordered.
9973. And was any reference made back to him about the result? I could not say.
9974. Do you not think, after a special audit was thus ordered, it was the duty of the officers to report the result to the Grand Master? I am not very well up in the working of the Order, but I should think it would have been desirable.
9975. Are your officers at present under guarantees also? Yes.
9976. Mr. Rubie.] Does your Lodge intend to apply for the balance to the Guarantee Society? I do not know.
9977. Mr. Newland.] What do you pay your doctor? 16s. a year.
9978. What salary do you pay the Secretary? £10.
9979. And Treasurer? £2.
9980. President.] You have nothing further to add? Not that I am aware of.
9981. Who was the Grand Master at the time you referred these cases to him? Mr. Langley.
9982. Mr. Langley.] Were you a member of the Lodge when Mr. Audet was a member of it? No; he never was a member of that Lodge.

The Commission then adjourned till Monday, 12th June.

MONDAY, 12 JUNE, 1882.

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.,

EDWARD GREVILLE, Esq.

Mr. William Harrison sworn and examined:—

- Mr. W. Harrison. 9983. Chairman.] You wish to give some evidence, I believe, Mr. Harrison? I am here because I want to give evidence in connection with the Protestant Alliance.
- 12 June, 1882. 9984. Are you still a member of that Society? I have not been for some time.
9985. To which Branch of the Protestant Alliance did you belong? Lodge No. 25, Young Australia.
9986. How long is it since you were a member? By my own desire I ceased to be a member about two and a half years ago; but the Society after that thought fit to institute proceedings against me in the Police Court, and recovered a verdict, for non-payment of dues, after my paying up and telling them that I should not be a member until I was satisfied about a certain matter; after that they put the bailiffs into the house.
9987. Did they recover the money? No.
9988. What then was done? There were no other proceedings.
9989. Did they take the bailiffs out? Yes.
9990. What was the amount? About £3 9s. I declined paying any further into the Society, and they sued me, after being one of its founders.
9991. Was it in consequence of any defalcations? Yes.
9992. In what way? I cannot give you any precise account. The books were never put into my hands. One evening the matter was brought before the meeting by the Secretary, who said it was a matter of two or three hundred pounds. They called upon the late Secretary for an explanation, which he refused to give, saying

Mr.
W. Harrison.
12 June, 1882.

saying he had not got the books. I insisted that there should be some satisfaction, as I found that there were some transactions unfit for a Friendly Society. One member said his money was not paid in according to the books; the Secretary threw down the money, and said he would pay it rather than make a bother. No doubt, if the member had died, the widow would not have had the benefit.

9993. Is that the only case? The past Secretary, Mr. Perry, would be able to give you further particulars on the matter.

9994. Was he the Secretary afterwards? He followed, and found out that some defalcations had taken place.

9995. Were those complaints investigated? By the Society, as far as my knowledge extended, at the meeting. I wished to know how it was, and the matter was to be put into the hands of a solicitor, but I fancy that the whole error was that the money was not found missing by the Trustees and the Auditors. I was informed that the Auditors took the books in pencil, and that the Secretary refused to give his pence-book up. Any man would know that was not right. Of course I protested, and I paid I think 16s. 6d., and said that until the matter was thoroughly settled I should not be a member any more.

9996. Are you aware that any inquiry was made? I am not. I was told that some notice was taken of it here. Some months ago I spoke of it to Mr. Farnell, and he told me if I wrote, the Commission would be glad to hear anything I had to say. My sole reason is that there should be safety, and that this should not happen again.

9997. Do the Trustees give any guarantee? I think there was a small bond given by the Secretary, but I do not think they came upon the bondsmen.

9998. Was there no guarantee from the Guarantee Office? I cannot exactly tell you.

9999. You are not aware whether there has been any subsequent inquiry since you left? Only from what I have heard.

10000. Is the Secretary you speak of still a member of your Society? I do not know.

10001. Do you remember his name? Yes.

10002. Have you any objection to give it? I would rather not, if it is not absolutely required of me. I am not in a position to say that the Secretary took the money; I only say that these defalcations took place, and they were discovered apparently by the Secretary, Mr. Perry.

10003. You are not prepared to say who made away with the money? Of course not.

10004. You say that as far as you know there was no inquiry made? Not up to the time I left.

10005. Not by the Lodge? I think they went to a solicitor. I thought they were bound to push the matter, seeing that there had been negligence. It is patent that if Trustees and Auditors take books in pencil there must be something wrong about it.

10006. Who were the Trustees? I do not know the names of all of them. I think Mr. Harie was one, but I am not quite sure.

10007. Do you claim to be a member of the Society now? I do not according to the rules. I think this matter of the books is worth the attention of the Commission. I was one of the founders of that Lodge. I had paid in for a number of years; they had had all my money and I had nothing, and at my age it is a disadvantage to take a man back. If I liked to leave, why should they not let me?

10008. Were there others left besides you? There were several.

10009. Was judgment obtained in any other cases? I think it was.

10010. Did you resign in writing? No, I told them the night I paid the 16s. 6d. that I should resign unless the matter was thoroughly settled.

10011. You regarded it a hardship to be subjected to those proceedings. Decidedly.

10012. More particularly after having intimated that you desired to cease to be a member? Yes, I told them it would be better for them to prosecute members who had robbed them, not members who did not wish to remain in the Society.

10013. Do you disapprove of the provision in the Friendly Societies Act giving power to sue? Yes; but if a man is a debtor then he might be sued.

10014. Do you disapprove of the present provision? Yes; I think it is quite against the friendly interest.

10015. I suppose you would favour the principle of a member twelve months in arrear being struck off? Most decidedly.

10016. Mr. Smith.] Was this matter of the defalcations cleared up before you left the Society? No; if it had been I should have gone on paying my contributions.

10017. Then you left the Society in consequence of that? Yes.

10018. Are you positive of the amount being about £200? No, I am not. I was told it was £200 or upwards.

10019. Was that at a meeting? Yes, at a Lodge meeting.

10020. Was a report brought up? I think a resolution was passed that the Trustees should go to a solicitor about the recovery of the money.

10021. How did the meeting become aware that there was £200 deficient? I think that the Secretary in going through the books found that the working expenses, the sick payments, had been much greater, and they had more in hand. He wondered how it occurred, and went through the books. In the pence-book and the Treasurer's book there were some payments in the one and not in the other.

10022. Then it was the Secretary or the Treasurer that discovered the defalcations? Yes.

10023. And he reported the matter to the Lodge? Yes.

10024. Did they insist upon a special audit? No, I think they simply gave instructions to the Trustees to get a solicitor. After finding on two occasions that no steps were taken, I paid up, and objected to have any further transactions with them until it was settled.

10025. With the exception of that was the Lodge in a financial condition? I cannot say that. The members were taken in at a very great age at first, which was certainly against the Lodge. Afterwards they took a large number of young members. If the money had been properly dealt with the Lodge would have been in a financial state.

10026. Have you had the opportunity of contrasting the working of that Lodge with any other Friendly Society? Yes, I belonged to another, and I think it is much more substantial.

10027. Are you a member of a Friendly Society at present? I am.

10028. What particular one? The Ancient Order of Foresters.

- Mr. W. Harrison.
12 June, 1882.
10029. How long have you belonged to it? About twenty years—rather more.
10030. You were a member of that when you assisted in establishing the other? I was.
10031. Was it established purely for benefit purposes? Yes, as far as my knowledge was concerned. There was one man who acted as Chairman, and we worked the Society on those principles.
10032. Do you think it a wise thing that a man should be a member of two Societies? I think so.
10033. Do you not think it is open to lead to very great abuses? Not if the officers do their duty.
10034. Have you ever found any instances? Not in the two more than one. They are very rare.
10035. Returning to the Society in which these defalcations took place; did any of the other members leave through that? I cannot tell you.
10036. Were there many others sued? Several others as well as myself.
10037. Mr. Abigail.] When you were sued, did you state to the Court the reasons why you left the Society? They had a solicitor, and they would not hear my reasons. I took the rules that I entered upon. Of course I simply said that that was my defence.
10038. Do not the laws make it optional with the Society whether they shall erase the names of members or not? Unless in particular cases, it says they shall be erased.
10039. What was the date of that meeting when it came out that the £200 was deficient? About three years ago last January.
10040. How long had you then been a member? About five or six years—since its foundation.
10041. Did you make any representations to the Registrar of Friendly Societies after that meeting? No, I did not.
10042. Are you conversant with the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act? I have read them, but I cannot remember many of them.
10043. Do you know that in the 13th clause of the second part of the Act provision is made for dealing with any cases of misappropriation of funds? No.
10044. Did you take any steps to bring it under the notice of the Council? No; seeing that the Trustees were aware of it.
10045. You contented yourself with protesting in the Lodge on the nights when the matter came up? Yes, so far as it went.
10046. Who took and handled the money? It was the Treasurer; I cannot tell you his name.
10047. Can you not remember the names of the Treasurer and the Trustees on that particular occasion? No; I had been away in the country some four or five years; but my payments had been made and sent in.
10048. In what month was that meeting? In January or February.
10049. How was it disclosed that there was a deficiency? The Secretary finding that there had been more sick pay than was shown on the books, wondered how it was.
10050. Did they bring up a balance-sheet? No; it was not quarterly night.
10051. It was a statement by the Secretary that he had found out a certain thing shown by the books? Yes; Mr. Perry wanted to get out of it. There was a nomination for Secretary, and I strongly objected to the former Secretary being appointed again.
10052. What was the name of the former Secretary? His name was Pettit.
10053. On that night you said you would not pay any more until it was cleared up? Not on that night. There are usually meetings once a fortnight. I left the book I had at the Police Court when they sued me, or I could give you the date.
10054. Who sued you? The Trustees, I suppose; the Secretary represented them.
10055. Where are the meetings of this Society held? At the Protestant Hall.
10056. How many members are connected with it? I cannot tell you that; about 150 members or more.
10057. Have you taken any active part in the working of the Foresters? Well, I have taken all the offices.
10058. Would you favour, in any new Friendly Societies Act, having an officer appointed to examine their accounts at given periods? Not at given periods.
10059. At what periods? Periods not known to them. No Society ought to mind its books being examined.
10060. Do you attach any importance to the sending in of annual returns? Yes, I think it is very important.
10061. Would you inflict a penalty for non-fulfilment? Yes, I think some slight penalty should be inflicted.
10062. Are you in favour of the Registrar having the fees charged as at present? I almost forget. I think at one time I did have some objection to the fees; some I thought rather arbitrary.
10063. Are you in favour of the fees going into the pocket of the Registrar or into the public Treasury? I think into the public Treasury.
10064. Mr. Holdsworth.] Did you know of this misappropriation from your own knowledge or from hearsay? Hearsay in the Lodge.
10065. And after discussing the matter for two nights you paid up and resigned? On the second night I paid up and resigned conditionally.
10066. You were a founder of the Lodge? One of them.
10067. Yet you took no part in clearing up this matter, which was mere hearsay? I could not. The Trustees were the parties. I could only urge upon them to do it.
10068. You say you paid up and resigned conditionally: then if you had thought fit a month after you could have gone back and paid again? Yes.
10069. Then you did not resign according to the Friendly Societies Act? I thought so.
10070. Did you think according to the ordinary principles of common sense that you had resigned? Yes. I thought according to the ordinary principles of common sense that if I refrained from paying my money that would be quite sufficient.
10071. Have you not heard of men drawing large sums of money from Friendly Societies and then resigning? No, I have not.
10072. You took no means to try and remedy the matter you complained of? I did what I could. I stood up against the re-election of the Secretary.
10073. Do you not think it would have been more just if you had stood to your post and tried to unravel it? Yes, but when you are fighting it by yourself they satisfy you by taking the matter out of your hands

Mr.
W. Harrison.
12 June, 1882.

10074. Mr. Langley.] How many weeks were you in arrear? About two and a half years.
 10075. Are all the rules the same? I cannot tell you that. The various Lodges may differ a little.
 10076. Are you aware that by the 14th rule it was compulsory that you should be expelled at the end of the thirty-ninth week? I think from reading the rules that I was not a member after the expiration of twelve months; I considered then that I was expelled.
 10077. Did you plead it in Court? I pleaded that word "shall" in Court. That was my defence.
 10078. And although this Constitution is so clear the case went against you? Yes, and they followed it up by putting the bailiffs in.
 10079. Do you think the Friendly Societies Act can be worth much if such a defence as that can be pleaded and rejected? I do not see how it can be.
 10080. You stated that you found the Foresters' control over the books was different? Yes, from my experience.
 10081. Do you consider that the control exercised by the Executive and their officers over the accounts is sufficient to guarantee it? A Government officer would be a still further check upon them.
 10082. Do you consider the control exercised by the Executive of the Foresters sufficient? No, or I should not advocate a Government officer.
 10083. Are you still a member of the Foresters? Yes, and I should be sorry to give them up.
 10084. How long is it since you were sued for that amount? About three months ago.
 10085. Do you think there was anything that could possibly vitiate such strong evidence as you gave in that case? No, I do not think so, seeing that the word "shall" was so definite.
 10086. Had you any other legal suit going on about then, in connection with anything? No, not just at the time.
 10087. Just prior to it? I had a heavy lawsuit going on previous to that.
 10088. Mr. Rubie.] Am I to understand that you, having paid your subscriptions, the Lodge summoned you for arrears? Yes.
 10089. And the reason you left was because of some defalcations that were brought forward? Yes.
 10090. Have you ever heard whether the Lodge prosecuted the matter? Only that I heard they saw a solicitor, and I believe he said the matter had better drop, or that they could not recover the money.
 10091. And the money was never recovered? Not to my knowledge. If a fair attempt had been made I should have been satisfied.
 10092. And you have never heard that it was cleared up? No.
 10093. Mr. Slade.] Would you favour the recovery of as much from the members of the Society as they are liable for before the name is removed from the books? Yes. I would even go as far as six months.
 10094. When you were sued for your arrears, was that before or after the other matters at the Supreme Court? After them.
 10095. Have you any idea whether your view of the case was refused on account of any doubt of your veracity? No, I have none.
 10096. Can you tell upon what ground it was decided against you? According to the Friendly Societies Act.
 10097. Mr. Gelding.] Did you belong to the medical branch? No, I did not.
 10098. Chairman.] You state that you were summoned for £3? I think it was £3 9s.
 10099. And you state that the contribution was 1s. per week? Yes, not belonging to the medical branch.
 10100. What do members pay who are in the medical branch? That depends upon the cost of the chemist.
 10101. What was it when you were a member? About 5d. or 6d.

Mr. Joseph Townshend sworn and examined:—

Mr. J.
Townshend,
12 June, 1882.

10102. Chairman.] What Society are you a member of? Waratah Lodge, Order of Druids, at Ryde.
 10103. You have written to the Commission, asking to give evidence? Yes.
 10104. What is the evidence you wish to give? I wish to state that about four years ago the Lodge was established, and I found on the next meeting there was a sort of party. On the next Lodge night there was a bill for this party, and we decided to make it up by collection. The bill was paid by collection, to the amount of £35; it was paid for in instalments. There were a few concerts, and members began to come in with their fees. All at once it began to give way; some were bad on the books, and some were taken to the Police Court for arrears of fees.
 10105. Were you one of them? No, I was not.
 10106. What do you wish to tell the Commission? About the last summoning case, where the Lodge gained a verdict, and a member was put into gaol. The Grand Lodge paid this money, which they wished us to pay, and we declined. They had a special steamer to instal officers.
 10107. Did they make a demand? Yes.
 10108. Did you pay it? No. There was a dispute as to who should pay this. Some said the Grand Secretary; some said our Secretary; and our Secretary said he must have £2 for doing this.
 10109. You complain of the charge of £35 for the formation of the Lodge? Yes.
 10110. What funds have you got in your Lodge now? I was Auditor on the 31st January. We had £71 12s. in the Bank.
 10111. How many members have you? We have had as high as sixty-four. At the present time there are twenty-four.
 10112. What is the average age of the twenty-four who are left? I cannot say. Forty is the highest they will take.
 10113. What contribution do you pay? 13d. a week.
 10114. What benefit do you get? In sickness, £1 a week and the doctor.
 10115. In case of death? That comes out of the District Funds.
 10116. Mr. Abigail.] Who rendered the account of £35? That was the bill that came in.
 10117. From whom? From the District.
 10118. Does that go to the District Funds, or is it divided among the officers? I cannot tell you. We get the bills, and we are supposed to pay them.

10119.

Mr. J. Townsend. 10119. Have you known any cases of misappropriation of funds in your Society? No. I charged a member with not giving me credit for 6s. 6d., but he said I was correct. He left office about that time.
 10120. Have you known many cases of that kind? No, only my own.
 10121. Have you known any cases of members being sick, or shamming sick, to get the sick funds? Yes, there was a case. I was appointed sick visitor; I found a brother sick, and the doctor declined to attend him, and he got Dr. Beattie from Parramatta to attend him; he wished to charge the Lodge and they declined to pay it; after a little bother the members got up a concert and paid it.
 10122. Mr. Langley.] Were the arrears of those members who were put into gaol at Parramatta to go to the Lodge or to the District? To the Lodge.
 10123. Mr. Gelding.] What were the items in the bill? Gowns, beards, and acorns.
 10124. What did the officers charge for going up to open that Lodge? It cost £3 for a special steamer.
 10125. And the majority of the bill simply appertained to the paraphernalia for opening the Lodge? Yes.
 10126. Did you think that amount excessive? We did.
 10127. Did you think you could do without those beards? Yes.
 10128. They did not enhance the stability of your Lodge—you could do as well without them as with them? Yes, we could.

Mr. John Watson sworn and examined:—

Mr. J. Watson. 10129. Chairman.] You are a chemist and druggist, Mr. Watson, are you not? Yes, I am.
 10130. And have been for many years? For about thirty years in the Colony.
 10131. Have you had large experience in connection with dispensing prescriptions for Friendly Societies? Yes, more or less during the whole of that time.
 10132. Are you chemist for any of those Societies now? Yes, for I think about fifteen of them.
 10133. What is the general average of prices paid per member in these Societies to the chemist? I have just drawn up a little statement that will show you:—

Scandinavian	No list

Average about 1s. 9d. per member.

The general average of the fifteen Societies that I dispense for amounts to 1s. 9d. per member per quarter.

10134. Do you think that is sufficient payment to ensure a proper dispensing of the different prescriptions? Yes.
 10135. And it will pay the chemist? It will pay him. There is no difference in the medicines I dispense for the Lodges, than if I dispensed for the Governor. I do not take them at so much per head. I enter every prescription in my books, and extend them at the same price that I would charge to an ordinary customer, giving them the advantage of prices a little less. The United Brothers' Lodge I have put down here at 500 members; I think it averages a little more than 500. I have taken the quarters ending the 1st July and 1st October, 1881, and the quarters ending the 1st January and the 1st April, 1882, making a year complete. Although there are 500 members, they are not all on the sick list. The amount for the first quarter is £61 9s.; for the second quarter, £56 11s.; for the third, £49; and for the fourth, £54 11s.; making a total of £221 11s., and I allow them a discount of 33½ per cent. off that. That total gives an average of 2s. 2½d. per member per quarter. Next is the Native Rose Lodge, with 162 members. I have had them only for three quarters. For the first quarter, ending on the 1st October, 1881, the amount charged was £4 10s. 9d.; the second quarter it was £8 15s.; and for the third quarter, £14 12s. 6d.; making a total of £27 18s. 3d., or an average of 1s. 1½d. per member per quarter. The Mariner's Rest Lodge has 106 members. The amount charged for the first quarter was £6 14s. 3d.; for the second, £8 1s. 6d.; for the third, £8 14s.; and for the fourth, £8 13s. 6d.; making a total of £32 3s. 3d., or an average of 1s. 6d. per member per quarter. The German Association has 126 members, and its quarters are one month later. The charge for the first quarter was £17 17s. 10d.; for the second, £23 12s. 5d.; for the third, £19 15s. 2d.; and for the fourth, £23 3s.; making a total of £84 8s. 5d., or an average of 3s. 4½d. That high rate is accounted for by the nature of the medicine their medical men prescribe. Then comes the Court Royal Oak, with 186 members: first quarter, £16 19s. 6d.; second, £17 18s. 2d.; third, £18 4s.; fourth, £19 18s. 4d.; total, £70; average, 1s. 10½d. The Royal Oak has 90 members: first quarter, £7 10s. 6d.; second, £7 2s. 8d.; third, £5 3s.; fourth, £6 12s.; total, £26 8s. 2d.; average, 1s. 5d. Travellers Home Lodge. This Lodge I have dispensed for for the last thirty years, with the exception of one quarter; they have 125 members.
 The

The charge for the first quarter was £13 14s. ; second, £11 19s. 5d. ; third, £10 17s. ; fourth, £8 15s. 8d. ; total, £45 6s. 1d. ; average, 1s. 10½d. Sons of Perseverance, 83 members : first quarter, £14 19s. 6d. ; second, £16 1s. 3d. ; third, £14 3s. ; fourth, £12 7s. 6d. ; total, £57 11s. 3d. ; average, 3s. 5½d. The next is the Excelsior Lodge, which I have only had for the two last quarters, for which the charges were £11 0s. 10d. and £11 16s., making a total of £22 16s. 10d., and an average of 2s. 5½d. The next is the Herald Benefit Society, 111 members : first quarter, £7 5s. ; second, £11 9s. 7d. ; third, £8 12s. 6d. ; fourth, £8 8s. 6d. ; total, £35 15s. 7d. ; average, 1s. 6½d. Loyal United Brothers, 146 members : first quarter, £12 4s. ; second, £17 12s. 6d. ; third, £16 13s. ; fourth, £14 19s. ; total, £61 8s. 6d. ; average 2s. 1d. Neptune Lodge, 84 members : first quarter, £4 13s. ; second, £2 14s. 5d. ; third, £4 6s. 6d. ; fourth, £4 0s. 6d. ; total, £15 14s. 5d. ; average, 11d. The Wyckliffe Lodge I have only had for seven months. There are 31 members, and their total charge amounts to £1 8s. 9d., making an average of about 6d. each. The Court Victoria has 52 members. The charges were : first quarter, £3 0s. 7d. ; second, £5 0s. 8d. ; third, £6 12s. ; fourth, £3 0s. 6d. ; total, £17 13s. 9d. ; average, 1s. 8½d. The last is the Protestant Benefit Society, 26 members : first quarter, £1 13s. 5d. ; second, £1 17s. 2d. ; third, £2 8s. 5d. ; fourth, £2 3s. 2d. ; total, £8 8s. 2d. ; average, 1s. 7d. Taking the aggregate of the lot, and dividing by the number of Lodges, that gives a general average of 1s. 10d. per member per quarter.

10136. Do you prescribe for these Societies the same kind of drugs that you do for your private customers ? I do not keep two sorts.

10137. You dispense them just as they are prescribed ? Just as I would any private prescription.

10138. Do you frequently have to provide cod liver oil or quinine and other costly medicines ? Whatever the doctor orders. Some of them prescribe quinine very freely.

10139. You have no substitute for those drugs ? No.

10140. Have you heard anything to lead you to believe that many of the chemists do not faithfully prescribe the medicines ordered ? I have heard it remarked.

10141. Have you had any personal knowledge of it ? I have not.

10142. What is the practice with regard to the members who come to you for a renewal of the prescriptions ? They must get an order for their renewal. They come with a prescription. I have my labels so constructed that I can keep their prescription, and I copy the original on the label. I also furnish them with slips or prescription papers with name of Lodge printed on each. Unless they have a fresh order they cannot get the medicine repeated—unless they have them they do not get it. They have to supply their own bottles.

10143. In addition to the members, you have their wives and children up to a certain age ? Yes.

10144. What has been the general average of sickness, as far as you know, among members of Friendly Societies, as compared with your private customers ? I cannot say—I have no mode of observation.

10145. You have not kept any statistics ? No ; I keep the books for a certain time—for some two or three years.

10146. Then the payments you have indicated are quite sufficient to satisfy your wants ? I am quite satisfied.

10147. It leaves a profit, I presume ? It leaves a fair profit.

10148. Have you anything to suggest to the Commission ? I do not see that there is anything I can suggest.

10149. And you have carried on this practice of charging the ordinary prices to these Societies and taking off a discount of one-third for a long time ? Yes ; I refuse to do it at so much a head. The same charge is made for all Lodges.

10150. Mr. Smith.] Do you not think that your position as a dispenser to such a number of Societies is an advantage over that of a dispenser with only one or two ? Decidedly ; but I do not depend upon the Societies only.

10151. And that enables you to take them at a low rate of profit ? I do not consider it a low rate. Out of the whole number I do not suppose in five years there is a remark made about my mode of dispensing.

10152. Mr. Abigail.] Have you any doubt that other chemists can dispense at the same average prices and get the same profit ? Most undoubtedly they can.

10153. You possess no particular advantage over any other chemist ? I do not consider that I have.

10154. Some Societies call for tenders for their medicines ? They do.

10155. And the tender is at the rate of so much per head ? Frequently.

10156. Is there any other form of tender ? I am not aware of any other form.

10157. You allow 33½ per cent. : have you known any other druggist to do it at a greater discount ? No, I do not know that there is another druggist besides myself who does it on same terms.

10158. Then the usual way is to tender at so much per head ? I believe so.

10159. Do you think that freight with so many objections that you would not entertain it ? I would not do it.

10160. What is the highest rate you have heard of as being given at the rate of so much per head ? I have no way of knowing that.

10161. Is there reputed to be very keen competition in the trade for supplying these Societies ? I believe there is, but I never ran after them ; they come after me generally.

10162. Mr. Holdsworth.] Was that year an exceptionally healthy one ? No.

10163. Is it a fair average year ? Yes.

10164. Mr. Rubie.] How long have you continued this practice ? For thirty years. The first Lodge I had was the Travellers' Home.

10165. Mr. Newland.] During those thirty years have you ever heard that any of those members had any difficulty in getting their sick pay ? No, I have not. I believe on one occasion there was some defalcation, some twenty years ago, but it had nothing to do with me.

10166. Do you ever experience any difficulty in getting your money ? I never had any difficulty. I always give them their own time, and they are always most punctual in coming up.

10167. Mr. Slade.] Have any of the medical men complained that the medicines have not been faithfully dispensed in other quarters ? Not particularly ; I have heard remarks.

10168. Would the substitution of other drugs be attended with danger ? It might retard the cure. For instance, they frequently prescribe opium liniment. They prescribe quinine again. That makes it pretty expensive. If they do not get it the patient does not know. On more than one occasion they have come to me with the prescription papers, and I say, "We do not dispense for this Lodge." If they come for it they pay for it.

10169.

Mr.
J. Watson.
12 June, 1882.

- Mr. J. Watson.
12 June, 1882.
10169. In the course of your dispensing, have you noticed that members of Friendly Societies and their families have been more troubled with venereal diseases than others? No; that is very rarely the case indeed. I have drawn attention to a prescription coming in of a suspicious character. I have asked, "Is this person entitled to such a medicine?" and I have heard no more of it.
10170. Can you give us any information as to the members of the trades which require the most medicine? No. I cannot tell you the trades of any.
10171. Mr. Gelding.] I suppose you know that the majority of the members of these Societies are working-men with limited means—Do you not think that many of your averages are very high for them to pay out of the funds—I suppose you know what they pay? I do not. I simply supply medicines and nothing else.
10172. What is your opinion of Friendly Societies dispensing their own medicines, such as the Odd-fellows? I cannot say particularly. Traveller's Home once broke off for one quarter, but came back to me again, and they are highly satisfied with the mode of treatment. There is no difference made between ordinary customers and Lodge patients, and they are taken in rotation as they come.
10173. I suppose you are not aware, with regard to the United Brothers, that paying you leaves them with only a few pounds in their hands every quarter? I have no way of knowing that.
10174. I assume that you are aware that people generally believe that if they go to a private chemist they stand a better chance of getting good medicine? I think they are better pleased.
10175. Although the medicine is quite as good as yours? I cannot say. I have my doubts; I have never been behind their counter.
10176. They have as good a chance of obtaining medicine as you have? They ought to. But there is one thing that makes people like to come to a chemist; at the other places they have a certain number of hours in the day, and the door is closed, after that time you cannot get any medicine; I have been told so.
10177. Mr. Langley.] Do you find as a rule that medical men have a preference for private establishments rather than public ones? I think they are rather in favour of private ones.
10178. Is it not in your knowledge that medical men prefer certain places, and that some of them are in the habit of getting a discount? I have heard that they do. I have been told of one medical man in particular that he got 25 per cent. I have always declined.
10179. If that statement is correct, would not medical men prefer a private establishment to a public one where they got no discount? I do not think it; I believe they have greater confidence in a private dispensary than in a public one.
10180. Do you not think it unwise to have a dispensary close at 9 or 10 o'clock at night? Most undoubtedly; if a person requires medicine he must have it. I have two assistants who reside on the premises.
10181. Chairman.] You have in these joint Societies 1,921 members—what would be the average of their families? I have no idea.
10182. There would not be less than (say) four in each family on an average—that would make 7,684 persons in all? Yes.
10183. And you received in that year £754 5s. 7d. from them? Yes.
10184. It shows the amount covering the risk of so many persons? Yes.

Mr. Arthur Robins sworn and examined:—

- Mr. A. Robins.
12 June, 1882.
10185. Chairman.] You are Dispenser at the Oddfellows Dispensary, Manchester Unity? I am.
10186. What is the greatest number of members you have to dispense for? Something over 2,000.
10187. What is the average number of prescriptions made up daily? I should say about seventy, take it all the year round, every day, Sunday and all.
10188. Are the prescriptions of a similar class to those dispensed by a private chemist? Yes, we dispense for all the doctors in the city.
10189. No matter what medical man, so long as he is duly qualified? That is the only restriction.
10190. Is the class of drugs dispensed by you equal or superior to those obtained in an ordinary establishment? It must be equal, because it is the best we can get.
10191. Quite equal to any to be got anywhere? Quite; we get it at the best houses.
10192. Do you import? No, but we get original packages.
10193. Has the present system given general satisfaction to your members? Yes, it has.
10194. Have you had any complaints from the members of the way in which prescriptions have been dispensed? I do not know of one; none have reached me.
10195. How long have you held that position? For four and a half years.
10196. What is the cost of your establishment, including drugs—the dispensing portion—the average per year? It has been about 4s. 6d. per quarter, including drugs and medical attendance.
10197. What proportion is paid to the medical officers? They get a stated salary, £250 a year each, three of them.
10198. What is the cost of drugs alone? It ranges from £75 to £112 per quarter.
10199. Have you any assistant? Yes, one assistant.
10200. What is the cost of your department? I cannot say; the departments are amalgamated.
10201. What are the salaries? I get £150, and the assistant gets £2 5s. per week.
10202. Do the patients have to provide their own bottles? Yes.
10203. Do you provide bandages and splints? Ordinary bandages and splints.
10204. Have you had any complaints from the medical officers? No; only one solitary exception.
10205. What was the nature of that? It was simply that the doctor did not know what he was saying.
10206. No complaints as to the manner in which you dispense the prescriptions? No. I could get certificates from any of them any day.
10207. Do you think it is more likely to give satisfaction to have a general dispensary than to have medicine dispensed by private chemists? Under some restrictions, I think it is.

Mr.
A. Robins.
12 June, 1882.

10208. Would it afford greater security to the members? I think so. We have no benefit whatever to reap by giving an inferior article.
10209. You are aware that certain chemists give large discounts? I am aware of it.
10210. You are also aware that some take them at so much per head? I am aware of it. I know of one that takes Lodges rather low.
10211. Is it likely to give more satisfaction to the members to tender at so much per head? I should think not.
10212. Were you assistant to a chemist in town previously? Not in Sydney. I was at the Hospital for a little while.
10213. You know nothing of dispensing medicines for Friendly Societies in private establishments? No.
10214. Mr. Abigail.] Can your patients get medicine at all hours in urgent cases? Yes.
10215. How long do you generally keep the members waiting for their medicines? The longest time is about an hour, I think.
10216. Is there comfortable provision made for them while waiting? Yes.
10217. A place that is sheltered from the weather? Yes.
10218. Have you known cases where the doctors have recommended a patient to go to the Institute in preference to a private establishment? I have heard of them.
10219. You get your drugs from Elliott Brothers? Yes.
10220. Have you any instructions that you are to get the very best? It is so stated in the laws.
10221. Are you in the habit of substituting one medicine for another? No. If we have not got it we give an order on A. J. Watt & Co., and they get it there.
10222. What system is adopted in paying Mr. Watt? I believe he charges the same as he would charge to private persons, taking so much off.
10223. Are the prescriptions he dispenses generally satisfactory to the members? I have heard no complaint.
10224. Does he dispense many? No, a very few.
10225. Is the Institute shut up during any hours in the day? No, it is open from 9 to 9.
10226. Suppose there is a number of members waiting at 9, I suppose you continue to dispense until you have finished? Yes.
10227. Mr. Greville.] Are the drugs you receive from Elliott Brothers the very best quality? Yes.
10228. Is any abatement made by them to the Institute? I believe there is some. Mr. F. Elliott, one of the firm, abates the whole of our goods himself.
10229. From your experience you say the drugs are of the very best description? They are the very best we can get.
10230. Do the public outside the Institute ever come to you to have their prescriptions made up? No.
10231. Do you find the members object to go the Institute because it has a sort of eleemosynary character about it? Some of them object; some would object to anything.
10232. Is the objection so great in some people's minds that they prefer to go elsewhere? I think not.
10233. Are all the members of your Institute bound to have their medicines made up at the Institute? No.
10234. What if they go elsewhere? They have to pay.
10235. Have you heard that some object so strongly to waiting that they prefer to take their prescriptions elsewhere? I have not heard of any.
10236. From your experience of prescriptions, do you think that the officers of the Institute prescribe less expensive medicines than they would to private patients? No, I think not. They have no restriction, and it would not benefit them.
10237. Mr. Langley.] Do you mean that you have the best drugs in Sydney? The best we can obtain in Sydney.
10238. Have you ever tried anywhere else than Elliott Brothers? No.
10239. Then how can you say? It is really the best in Sydney. There is nowhere else to go to.
10240. Have you ever heard of some medical men in Sydney almost making it a sine qua non that patients should go to places where they import their own drugs? No, not in Sydney.
10241. Have you ever heard it anywhere else? Yes.
10242. Do you not think that private individuals who import their own drugs are in a better position to supply first class drugs than those who are compelled to go to one house in Sydney and take what they can get? I think not. If they import them they must go to the same houses, and therefore the drugs must be the same.
10243. Are you not aware there are some specialties obtainable at private establishments before the wholesale houses get them out? I have not heard of them, but it is quite likely.
10244. Mr. Slade.] Is there any difference in the quality of the drugs made up by different houses? Many houses have a specialty.
10245. In applying to Elliott Brothers, do you specify the best kinds of the several drugs? Yes.
10246. Is not the strength fixed by the Pharmaceutical Society? Yes.
10247. So that a private firm could not get out different drugs to what Elliott Brothers do, except in the case of some specialty which other firms do not make? You cannot get better drugs than those you get from Elliott Brothers.
10248. Do you think customers could be more faithfully served in a private establishment? I do not think they could.
10249. Has it come to your knowledge as a dispenser that diseases of a venereal character are frequent? We do not do anything in that way.
10250. Mr. Gelding.] There is nothing connected with pauperism in the way you dispense your medicine? I do not see how it could be.
10251. With the exception of members finding their own bottles, they are treated the same as they would be at a private chemist's? Yes.
10252. And the labels are put on them, and they are put in paper and sealed? Not sealed. The only difference is that we write the prescription upon the label.
10253. And the packages you get from Elliott Brothers are unbroken, and bear the makers' names upon them? Yes.

- Mr. A. Robins.
12 June, 1882.
10254. You never substitute quassia for quinine? We should get nothing by doing so.
10255. What is prescribed is dispensed? Yes.
10256. You never keep members waiting longer than you can help? We get them off quickly for our own benefit.
10257. You believe that you dispense quite as quickly as private chemists do? Quicker, I think.
10258. Chairman.] How many prescriptions can you dispense in a day? I have done 110 by myself.
10259. How many could you do with the help of your assistant? About 220 I suppose.
10260. Your assistant is competent? Yes.
10261. What has been the greatest rush you have had at any time? During the last epidemic of measles.
10262. What was the largest number? I do not remember.
10263. Can you tell what was the largest number you have had during any given quarter? Something over 7,000 I think.
10264. What convenience have you for people who are waiting to get their prescriptions dispensed? The dispensary is a room about 16 feet by 12 feet; there is a partition up one side, and there is a long settle and a short settle.
10265. How many people can you accommodate in this place? About a dozen to sit down. People often leave their bottles and call again for them when they are made up.
10266. Has there been any complaint of people not being able to get their prescriptions dispensed? I have not heard of it. Of course at times people may have gone away while something had to be made up. If there is a decoction to make we tell them to call again.
10267. There has been no case of urgency where persons complained of not being able to get the medicine? No, none whatever.
10268. Mr. Gelding.] Do you not think that 2s. 2½d. per quarter per head for drugs is very great? It would be rather heavy.
10269. Mr. Newland.] Has there been no complaint made by the medical gentlemen of being underpaid, seeing that they are paid under 6s. per annum? They are always complaining of that.
10270. Mr. Smith.] Do you manufacture your own pills? Some of them.
10271. And the salves? Now we do.
10272. And blistering ointments? We purchase them—we do not make them.
10273. Do you use any patent medicines? None whatever; we do not go beyond the Pharmacopœia.
10274. Are they ever prescribed by the doctors? No.
10275. Do you ever prescribe mineral waters? No.
10276. Do you get them? No.
10277. Chairman.] You stated that the medical men receive £250 a year: have you had any difficulty in procuring good and qualified men at that salary? No; there are always several applying when there is a vacancy.
10278. And as a rule you have been able to secure the services of good men? Yes; we have a Bachelor of Medicine, and a member of the Royal College of Surgeons. We have now Dr. Durham, Dr. Hankins, and Dr. Norric as our medical men.

The following Progress Report was, after discussion, adopted:—

PROGRESS REPORT.

TO THE RIGHT HONORABLE LORD AUGUSTUS WILLIAM FREDERICK SPENCER LOFTUS, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., &c., &c., Governor-in-Chief of New South Wales.

May it please Your Excellency,—

The Commission appointed under the Great Seal of the Colony of New South Wales to inquire into and report upon the working of the Friendly Societies Act of 1873 and the condition and management of the Societies registered thereunder, begs to submit the following Progress Report:—

The Commission has, up to the present date, held fifty-two (52) sittings, at which eighty-one (81) witnesses have been examined, a list of which is enclosed herewith. These witnesses include the Registrar of Friendly Societies, his assistant, the principal officers of the various executive heads of the different Friendly Societies, as well as several officers of certain Branches, whose affairs, it appeared from the evidence taken, required some investigation. There are also in the list a number of the medical gentlemen of the city, whose experience in connection with the Societies makes their evidence upon the questions submitted to them of a valuable character; as well as several of the representatives of a large number of the Trade Societies of the Colony, and a number of other gentlemen, who it was understood were able to give the Commission some important information in reference to the questions laid before them.

Mr.

Mr. M. A. Black and Mr. Richard Teece, actuaries, of this city, have been summoned to give evidence during the present week, and it is anticipated that their evidence will be of a valuable character in showing the principles upon which the financial bases of Friendly Societies ought to be constructed.

From the evidence which is submitted herewith it will be seen that the financial position and modes of management of the different Societies have formed a considerable portion of the investigations of the Commission, while in cases where a decline in funds has taken place it has been its object, as far as possible, to ascertain the cause of that decline. The actuarial basis of the rates of contribution necessary to enable a Society with due economy to guarantee a certain rate of sick pay and funeral donations to its members will receive due consideration at the hands of the Commission, when witnesses skilled in such questions are before it. Some statistical information upon this subject has already been furnished us by Mr. W. Barnett Smith, of Mudgee, and it will be found in an appendix to his evidence. The desirableness of adopting a sliding scale of contributions, graduated according to the age of a member on his entrance into a Society, has been urged upon the Commission by several of the witnesses, and Mr. Barnett Smith has furnished it with a scale, calculated by himself, which he says is suitable for this purpose. This question will receive the careful attention of the Commission when it comes to prepare its final report. Another important question which has received the attention of the Commission is that of the most economical as well as most satisfactory method of enabling the disputes, which must arise in all Societies, to be settled. The witnesses are nearly unanimous in their opinion as to the impolicy of allowing these disputes to be the subject of investigation by the Law Courts of the Colony, a reference to arbitration being recommended in nearly every instance. There is a very large proportion of the witnesses hitherto examined in favour of the appointment of a Board of Arbitration, to be composed of representatives of the leading Societies of a beneficiary character in New South Wales. As, however, the Commission has not yet had an opportunity of deliberating upon this question, it is not at the present time prepared to recommend the adoption of this or any other definite proposal. The questions of the suitability of the present Friendly Societies Act to the purposes for which it is intended, and of the mode of its administration at the present time, have received careful attention, and it is more than probable that in a subsequent report specific alterations in the Act itself, as well as in the method of its administration, will be recommended.

In reference to the information to be gained from the actuaries who may be examined, it is necessary to state that forms of returns have been issued to the whole of the Societies in New South Wales of which the Commission has been made aware, with the view of obtaining full particulars of their workings for the past five years. A large number of these returns has been sent back filled in, and after classification will be submitted to an actuary for his report as to the soundness of the financial basis on which the Societies are constructed.

In view of the peculiar character of the Societies in the Hunter River district, and of the number of miners who are members thereof, it is intended to hold two or three meetings of the Commission at Newcastle, with the object of ascertaining the necessity or otherwise of a special financial basis for Societies composed, to such a large extent, of persons employed in what is usually regarded as a somewhat hazardous occupation.

Numerous cases of defalcation and fraud in various Societies have been brought under the notice of the Commission, and are now receiving careful attention at its hands. In one instance so glaring was the fraud on the part of the Trustees that the Commission brought the matter under the notice of the Honorable the Attorney General, who has informed the President that he will cause immediate proceedings to be taken against the Trustees of the Society referred to.

Dated at Sydney on the 19th day of June, 1882.

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. John Hampton sworn and examined:—

- Mr. J. Hampton. 10279. President.] You are District Grand Secretary of the Order of Royal Foresters? Yes.
10280. You have already been examined before the Commission? Yes.
10281. Have you any knowledge of a man of the name of John Cox? Yes.
- 19 June, 1882. 10282. Who was formerly a member of Court Friendship Royal Foresters? Yes.
10283. Could you tell us why his widow did not receive the funeral donation? Yes, they did not receive the funeral donation because they had not complied with the rules of the Order; they were suspended from all benefits.
10284. Was he not financial at the time of his death? I do not know; I believe he was, but I am not in a position to tell.
10285. Do you know that he received sick pay to the day of his death? That I do not know, but I believe he did.
10286. But would not a member who was suspended from all the benefits of a Society be suspended from sick pay? Certainly not. I think, Mr. President, I had better make a statement, and then I will answer any questions that may be put to me upon it. In 1875 the Society of Royal Foresters amended its rules, had a revision of the rules; slips of these rules were prepared by the printer and delivered to every Branch in the Order, amongst them Court Friendship. They had a certain time allowed them to consider these rules, and when this time had elapsed, Court Friendship requested further time, which was granted; at the expiration of this second period to consider these rules they requested a further time, but the majority of delegates of the various Branches considered the Court had had equal time to consider the rules that they had, and refused to grant any further extension, and came to the decision of immediately considering the rules. At the next meeting of the District, on the financial night when we met to receive the fees from the various Branches for the Funeral Fund, on the name of Court Friendship being called out, the representatives of that Court stated that the members of the Court had come to the conclusion not to pay any more quarterage to the District, in consequence of the indignities which they considered had been heaped upon them in not allowing them further time to consider these rules. This being only a verbal message the Supreme Court refused to take it, and directed me as Supreme Secretary to write to the President of the Court, informing him of the statement that had been made by their representatives, and requesting that a special meeting should be called of the whole body—there being 100 members whose interests were involved—before whom the case should be laid, and the result communicated to me. No communication was received in reply to my letter. The meeting of the Supreme Court was adjourned for a reply to this letter, but when the meeting was held, I stated in the minutes that I had complied with the request of the meeting and had sent a letter to which I received no reply. The Secretary of the Court who was one of the representatives handed handed to me a copy of the original resolution which had been passed, not to pay any more money until they had received what they considered justice from the Supreme Court. The District then directed me to write again requesting them to call another special meeting at which the District officers should attend. This I did, and the officers attended in accordance with the resolution, and remained at the meeting till 12 o'clock at night, but no steps were taken to rectify the misunderstanding. At the next meeting of the Supreme Court the result of this meeting was reported; several resolutions were brought forward with amendments, and it was resolved that in consequence of Court Friendship not having paid up all dues and demands, every member of the Court should be suspended from all benefits belonging to the Funeral Fund. This was communicated by me in a letter to the Court, and we had no connection with them; they intended to carry on, on their own footing, but unfortunately for them they had not been on their own footing but a few weeks when the Secretary's wife died, and they had to pay the funeral donation; they paid part of this first one; but then Mr. Cox died, and the friends of course made application to me as Supreme Secretary for the funeral donation. They not being in compliance with the District the money was refused; subsequently Mrs. Cox, through her solicitor, summoned me to the District Court for the funeral money, but on the case being called before the Judge it was proved that they were not a registered Society. The other Branches of the Society had registered themselves under the new rules, but Court Friendship having refused to adopt them was out of compliance, and was not registered, and the case was dismissed at once with costs, which have never been paid to the Society, as Mrs. Cox removed all her valuable property from her residence.

Mr.
J. Hampton.
19 June, 1882.

10287. That is the only reason you can assign? That is the proper reason.

10288. But you are quite aware that up to the time of Cox's death his widow received sick pay? I believe she did.

10289. And that he was financial on the books of his Lodge? Yes. I may say that the Branch to which he belonged is now defunct. They were afterwards registered, but six weeks ago a letter was received saying that after using all available means to raise their funds, their sickness had been so great that they were compelled to dissolve.

10290. Has any other similar case happened in connection with your District? Not one.

10291. Does it not seem a hardship to punish the widow and orphans because of a misunderstanding which existed between the Court and the District? It does not belong to us to pay; we do not recognize individual members; when a death takes place the Secretary sends the certificate of the death of the member, and the money is paid to the Branch to which he belonged. If the Court had had sufficient funds it would have been their place to have paid it.

10292. Then the District permitted the widow to suffer? The District had nothing to do with the Court, because they had refused to make the payments which support the Funeral Fund.

10293. Are you aware that the widow of the late Mr. Cox took steps to recover the sum of £25? I have stated already that I had been summoned for that money.

10294. And what position does the case stand in now? Simply that the Court is not in existence.

10295. Do not all Courts vest their funds in the District Lodge for the purpose of paying these funeral donations? Yes, quarterly—2s. per member.

10296. And simply because the Lodge and the officers failed to make the contributions this unfortunate widow is left without receiving the donation? It was done by resolution of the Court. They intended to separate themselves from the District altogether, and by resolution had done so.

10297. What becomes of the members of the Court now that it is defunct? They are dispersed among the various Branches.

10298. What status do they occupy in the various Branches? A similar position to that they occupied in their own Lodge.

10299. Was Mr. Cox a party to this? I do not think so; I believe he was sick at the time.

10300. The fact of his illness would preclude him from being a party to the non-payment of the usual contributions? Yes.

10301. And consequently made it a very great hardship to the widow? It is a very great hardship to her.

10302. Is it not the intention of the District Lodge to pay the widow? We cannot, because they were not in compliance at the time, though every step was taken by the District to bring them into compliance.

10303. You do not regard the case as an exceptional one? I should think it was a very exceptional one, because I have never known such a case occur before.

10304. Then would not that warrant the District Lodge in paying the money? We could not pay it if they were not in compliance.

10305. Seeing that the husband was financial and so sick as to be unable to be present at the meeting where the Lodge passed this resolution, and that death intervened, is the widow to be prevented from obtaining her rights? If the Society of which he formed a part had had sufficient funds they would have paid her out of their own funds, but they had not the money.

10306. Do you know how long he had been receiving sick pay prior to his death? Fully six months.

10307. He was an old member of the Society, was he not? About twelve years, I think; indeed I think I made him.

10308. For all you know he had been a good member? He had been a fair member up to that time.

10309. Mr. Slade.] How many members do you say there were at the time? There were upwards of a hundred.

10310. And there were two quarters due when they were suspended? No, one quarter was due; but before they became attached to the District again two quarters elapsed.

10311. Did they pay up the arrears for the two quarters? I am glad you have asked me that question. They never paid it up themselves, but one of the individual members of the Court made a cheque out himself on purpose to enable the Branch to become in compliance, and he has never been paid that cheque back again.

10312. But has the District received the two quarters' levies? They have.

10313. Mr. Newland.] Do you know whether the Court had carried a resolution not to pay their levies? Yes.

10314. Was it unanimous? Unanimous.

10315. Seeing that your District had been paid the arrears and levies, do you not think they should have paid this liability? It is not what I think, but the resolution they came to not to pay it.

- Mr. J. Hampton. 10316. Although they had received the levies? They did not receive the levies from Brother Cox, who was dead and was not a member.
- 19 June, 1882. 10317. But you have received the levies up to the quarter of his death? Previous to the suspension of the Court.
10318. And during the suspension? Not his levies.
10319. There were only one quarter's levies due on Brother Cox? There were two at the time.
10320. Mr. Gelding.] I presume you reinstated the Lodge when the two quarters' levies were paid? Yes.
10321. And did not that take all responsibility off any members who might have died during that period? The members thought not.
10322. As a matter of justice do you not think it should have been so? No, because they withdrew themselves.
10323. What was the reason the Supreme Court would not pay the back levies of this poor fellow that died? Because the Branch of which he was a member at the time he died did not belong to the Society.
10324. Do you think that was right and just? I do not think you should ask me for my individual opinion, and I refuse to answer a question as to my own opinion.
10325. Mr. Langley.] May I ask if at the time Cox died you held in your possession any funds in the shape of funeral moneys belonging to the Court to which he was attached? Of course the rule states that every Branch of the Order shall pay so much quarterly towards the Funeral Fund. The Court he had belonged to did so, and up to the time of their suspension they had received the benefits.
10326. At the time that Mr. Cox died had your Supreme body any money in the shape of Funeral Funds belonging to the Court to which he was attached? Not specially.
10327. Was there an amount contributed to the credit of that Court at all? I have already stated that up to the time of the suspension they had paid all dues.
10328. Then were there any funds to the credit of that Lodge? Certainly not—not specially.
10329. Then you mix the whole of your moneys up? Yes, certainly.
10330. When that Court was out of compliance did you make any special arrangements that any claims that had arisen between the two periods should be ignored? They specially understood that if any claims came upon us during the time of suspension they would not be paid.
10331. But after you admitted them did you stipulate that you would not pay any claim? It was understood that it was not to be done.
10332. Did you then know that this claim had arisen? Most certainly.
10333. And by passing such a resolution as that, the widow was debarred from suing the Lodge or the Supreme Court? No, she was not debarred, but she did it.
10334. But as she lost the case virtually she was debarred? She was, because the Branch had not registered itself.
10335. May I ask if when they paid their last moneys prior to this they were not registered? They were not.
10336. And yet you took their money at that time? Yes. Prior to the revision of these rules one single registration was sufficient for the whole body, but a new law had come into force whereby every Branch had to be registered, and their new rules had been accepted by the whole of the Society except Court Friendship, and they refused to take them.
10337. Has there been anything done from that day to this to compensate this widow for the moneys she has been deprived of? Not that I am aware of.
10338. Were these moneys subsequently paid in by that Lodge that would make up the amount of money due to this widow? No, it was not specially paid.
10339. But was sufficient money paid by them? No, they never pay sufficient money—they only pay a certain amount quarterly.
10340. President.] Were the usual quarterly payments made? Yes.
10341. Mr. Langley.] Could you not have stipulated that the Lodge should pay all claims that had been incurred in the interval of their suspension before receiving them back? We told them we could not pay them.
10342. Could you not have stipulated that you would not take them back unless they discharged these responsibilities? We did not think it was necessary.
10343. But could you not have done it? I cannot think it was necessary when they came back; they came back under the new rule.
10344. Could they have forced you to take them back? I think not.
10345. Then if they could not have forced you to do so, could you not have stipulated they must discharge the claims accrued during the interval? When we took them back it was on the consideration that they would have to abide by the laws of the Society.
10346. They then rejoined you on the same terms they went away upon? Except that they went away under the old laws, and came back under the revised laws.
10347. Mr. Holdsworth.] Your Funeral Fund is a General Fund? Yes.
10348. You have nothing to do with individual members? No.
10349. You do not keep a separate Lodge account for each Lodge? Only the receipts.
10350. You do not open a ledger account? No, certainly not.
10351. It is a Re-insurance Fund then? Yes, every member is registered on the Funeral Fund.
10352. The Courts re-insure their risks in your General Fund? Yes.
10353. This Court that you refer to re-insured their claims up to a certain time, and then by a formal resolution declined all connection with you? Yes, they passed a resolution to pay their own funeral money.
10354. And consequently they had no claim upon you? Not the least.
10355. Mr. Abigail.] How many members were connected with the Lodge and were returned the quarter prior to them declining to pay the amount? I do not know exactly, but more than a hundred.
10356. And at that time the Funeral Fund of the District was responsible for the debts for the whole of these 100 members? Yes.
10357. So as a matter of fact, if fifty of these members had died, then, you would have had to find the money to pay them? We should.
10358. So you were largely responsible to the individual members? No, not to individuals.

10359. If the Secretary of a Lodge makes a demand, you do not pay the money out on that demand? If he sends me the certificate of death, and they are in compliance, they receive the benefit.
10360. So at that time there was a large credit due to the Lodge—the responsibility was due for the whole of the 100 members and their wives? Yes.
10361. When the case was taken into the District Court against the District, was it dismissed on the merits of the case? No.
10362. They were not entered into? They were not entered into.
10363. You have stated that the District thought this was a hard case, but that in consequence of the largeness of your operations you were compelled to take what appeared to be harsh measures? Yes.
10364. Mr. Smith.] The fact of a squabble going on between the Court and the District over the registration of their laws deprived this man's widow of the money? That was the excuse the Court made for not paying the money.
10365. Is your District not responsible for the funeral levies for each member for twelve months after they give notice of cessation? No, the law says that if they don't pay up quarterly they and every member shall be suspended from all benefits. No time at all is allowed.
10366. Is that the ground of your objection? That is the ground.
10367. And did you raise that when the widow sued you? Yes.
10368. That the Society was not registered? No, certainly not; we should not have troubled ourselves about that.
10369. How long before Cox's death was the Society in good standing? He had never been out of good standing until that time.
10370. But how long before his death was it that they were out of compliance? About four months, I should think.
10371. Mr. Langley.] Was this quarterage of Cox's paid for the end of the quarter prior to the time he died? No.

Mr.
J. Hampton.
19 June, 1882.

Mr. Richard Teece sworn and examined:—

10372. President.] You are a member of the Institute of Actuaries? I am not a member of the Society.
10373. But you are an actuary? Yes.
10374. You are connected with the Australian Mutual Provident Society? I am Chief Clerk in that Society.
10375. Have you devoted any attention to the working of Friendly Societies? Principally theoretically. I have not been connected with the internal management of any of them.
10376. You have seen their by-laws and rules? Yes.
10377. You know the amount of contributions paid and the benefits given in return? Yes.
10378. Have you given the financial basis of the Societies any attention? I have.
10380. Do you think that a Benefit Society providing for its members in case of death £25, in the case of the death of the wife of a member the sum of £10 or £15, and also providing sick pay for six months or a guinea a week, reducing the amount to 10s. for the next six months, and to 5s. as a Superannuation Fund afterwards, to members who may be sick, together with medical attendance and medicine, not only for the member and his wife, but also for the family up to the age of eighteen, do you think 1s. or 1s. 3d. per week would be sufficient to insure all these benefits to its members? That would depend very much on the relative ages of the members in the Society.
10381. At an average age (say) of thirty-six years? I think not, possibly a contribution of that amount might be sufficient to provide the pure benefits spoken of, but the element of medical attendance and cost of medicines is one that is scarcely susceptible of calculation.
10382. I may say that the cost of the medical benefits would be somewhere about 16s. per member per annum, and about 6s. for medicines? Then I am quite certain it would not be sufficient—1s. 3d. would not.
10383. And you are quite satisfied a shilling would not be sufficient? Decidedly.
10384. What would be the cost in your opinion to insure payment to (say) 2,000 members of a funeral donation of £20, taking their average age at thirty-six? I should not like to answer that now; but if the Commission will state any specimen benefits concerning which they would like to have information, I shall be happy to supply the rates I think necessary to provide them.
10385. I may say that it is the intention of the Commission to refer the whole of the statistical information we have to yourself and Mr. Black, with the view of obtaining from you a joint report on the condition of these Societies; you would have no objection to undertake a task of that kind? Not the slightest.
10386. And you would be prepared to work in conjunction with Mr. Black? Certainly.
10387. What could a man thirty-six years of age insure his life for a payment of £20 for at your office? Well, we would not take a weekly payment, but I think, as far as I remember, it would come to 3d. or 4d. per week, because in our Society there are, in the majority of instances, profits accruing that do not accrue in a Friendly Society.
10388. In some Societies they have a graduated scale of donations, going in some instances as high as £50 if the member remains in the Society for a certain period of time? But I presume he is supposed to pay an equivalent contribution and not the same as one who receives an uniform sum no matter what time he dies.
10389. No, you are not correct in that? Of course similar benefits are provided in ordinary insurance offices, but the insured pays a contribution graduated to that benefit.

Mr. R. Teece.
19 June, 1882.

10390.

- Mr. R. Teece.
19 June, 1882.
10390. What has been your experience of the mortality in New South Wales as compared with older countries? As far as the mortality among assured lives has been ascertained we have found it very much less than in other parts of the world, so small indeed that I do not think it can continue at that rate; it is abnormally small.
10391. Have you found any great difference in the mortality among the different trades and callings of the working classes? Our experience has not been sufficient to be reliable in that particular, because we find that those trades which are generally acknowledged to be the most hazardous and to tend most to shorten life have with us been remarkably healthy ones, but I attribute that to the paucity of data with which we have to deal.
10392. What are the trades and callings that you take exception to as having a tendency to shorten life? Notoriously, publicans; and medical men are not good lives, plumbers, painters, and journeyman bakers, stone-masons to some degree, and millers. The butchers are everywhere regarded as bad lives, but they have been the best lives we have had in our Society.
10393. What is your opinion with the principle being applied to Friendly Societies that there should be a distinction made in regard to these occupations? In some cases I think it should be done.
10394. Would you favour the principle of loading them? I think so.
10395. Would you prohibit them from participating in the benefits derived? No, I would not do that under any circumstances.
10396. Would you favour the view of graduating the payments and benefits to be given to persons of these objectionable classes? If there was a Society composed entirely of one class of occupation it should certainly be done, and there would be no difficulty; but if there is only a small element of a particularly hazardous calling I do not think it would be necessary to make any modification at all.
10397. I presume you favour the principle of encouraging the working classes and others in joining together in this way? Certainly I do; I think every encouragement should be given to them.
10398. And I presume you understand the object of the Commission is to ascertain the real position of the Societies, and see that they are placed on a sound footing, so as to insure payments of the benefits promised? Yes, I do.
10399. Has any one of the Societies to your knowledge become defunct or been unable to meet its obligations? It has not come under my observation. I have never been consulted, and I do not know of any other actuary who has; and as we have never had a return submitted to Parliament in accordance with the Act, we cannot get information on the subject.
10400. What do you think is the proportionate mortality to the 1,000 among lives in New South Wales? Among adult lives in our Society and among assured lives generally it has only been about eight. I do not think it would be more than twelve or fourteen among adults.
10401. You have little knowledge of the sickness? No.
10402. You would know nothing of the working of Friendly Societies practically? No, nothing whatever.
10403. But you have always taken a lively interest in their success and prosperity? Yes, I have given a good deal of attention to the subject.
10404. I presume that if the statistical information—the returns that the Commission has had procured—are handed to you, you would be able to furnish the Commission with an exhaustive report of the position of the Societies? Certainly, if the necessary data are there.
10405. Seeing that wives of the members of the various Societies participate in the benefits, a funeral donation of from £10 to £15 being given at their death, do you think it necessary for them to undergo a medical examination? I think it would be highly desirable.
10406. You are aware that at present it is not the practice? I believe not.
10407. You would not in your office, take a member and his wife on their joint lives unless both underwent a medical examination? Not exactly; but I believe there was a Society started here some time ago which accepted members under these conditions, but it has disappeared for some time.
10408. But you think it is necessary they should undergo an examination? I see no difference between the case of a member and his wife; it is a question of degree only, a higher payment being given on the death of a member than on the death of his wife.
10409. In order to ascertain the true average of the ages of members it would be necessary to obtain the age of each individual member? Yes; I presume every member's age is given on entering a Lodge, so that if the date of his entrance is known, it is an easy matter to obtain his present age.
10410. In order to get the information the Commission is anxious to get from you it will be necessary to obtain information of that kind from the different Societies? Yes, the number of members at each age.
10411. Could you give the reason why it should be necessary to obtain the ages of the members in the way you describe? All the information and experience we have relating to sickness and death has been collected in respect of the ages of the persons under observation. The amount of sickness or liability to death of a number of persons will increase with the age, and we know therefore that the liability incurred by a Society which has old members is larger than that of one with young members who have been on the books for corresponding periods of time; the liability to death is also affected by the period of time the members have been on the books—the liability to die of a person who entered five years ago is greater than that of one now entering at the same present age. In every Society the average vitality of members on entering is very much greater than that of the general population, but after the lapse of five years it is no better. After members have been in an Assurance Society for about five years they are no better lives than an equal number picked indiscriminately out of the general population. To arrive at thoroughly reliable results you would want to know, not only the ages of members at the present time, but also the ages at which they entered. The Actuary attached to the Friendly Society's office in New Zealand has found that the Societies there show a rate of sickness much less than other standards. He attributes this to the recent selections of members, and thinks that when they have attained to the average duration of the Manchester Unity, they will show almost an equal amount of sickness. In Victoria things have shown that the sickness is a little less than it is in England.
10412. Then it would be necessary to give you the number that have left the Society as well as those who have joined? That is not so important; there is a desire on the part of officers of the Societies to bring forward this question as the one which is to set them right, but I do not think in an ordinary Friendly Society

Society any actuary, either in this country or in England, will be found in favour of taking this into account in fixing the element of contributions; it has only been done in one Society in England, the Royal Liver Society, but that is only a burial Society, and not a sick Society. Mr. R. Teece.
19 June, 1882.

10413. What would be a fair stand-by for a Society to have, supposing the members' average age was thirty-six? That would depend upon the age of the Society, and the time for which the average of members have belonged to it. Some might be solvent with £2 per head, and others insolvent with £10.

10414. A Society twenty years old? I could not say that.

10415. Mr. Slade.] Say a Society of 10,000 members, paying 5*s.* per annum, and averaging thirty-six years of age, could they pay a guinea per week and £20 at death? I am sure they could not.

10416. If a Society of such a number has done so of forty-five years, and has a large bank balance at present time, to what would you attribute their present position? That would not show whether their position was solvent or insolvent.

10417. Do you not think forty-five years or a life and a half should be considered a proof of the soundness of the transactions of these Societies? There is no proof, except an actuarial valuation.

10418. Are you aware that in all cases the actuarial estimate of what these Societies should have has been some 200 per cent. more than really what they have existed upon? I am not aware that it is so. A Society may exist a long time and still be in an insolvent position.

10419. Do you set any value at all on the experiences of these Societies? In this Colony certainly, if collected. I mean the experience relating to the amount of sickness and the number of deaths among the members.

10420. Suppose a Society could not furnish to you any reason for the success of its operations but simply a fact of forty-five years' existence, and, having paid all these claims which you say are excessive, have met all their engagements honorably, and have large credits in the Bank, would you not take that as something in favour of their system being sound? No, I would not attach any importance to that. I need not say that at the valuation of the Manchester Unity in England, in 1871, they had a fund of over three millions sterling, and yet there was a deficiency of about a million and a quarter, and they are now making up that deficiency.

10421. Are you aware that is not by an increase, but by a changed form of contribution? No, I think it is by an increase.

10422. Is it not rather a graduated subscription? No, they have been graduated many years—I know they were in 1853.

10423. Have you seen the calculations of the Ancient Order of Foresters? No.

10424. Are you aware that these graduated contributions are optional? That I do not know. I know there is no law to compel them to have graduated contributions.

10425. And are you aware that their rate of subscription is something like 50 per cent. less than what Ratcliffe says is necessary? It may be; if so, probably they are insolvent. The actuarial calculations are based on the experience of the Societies themselves, and if sickness in the future is to bear any fair proportion or relation to that in the past there can be no doubt about the actuarial calculations. I could understand it if an actuary followed the practice of taking assured lives, but if he used tables which represent the experience of Societies themselves it cannot be far out.

10426. Do you wish us to understand that the tables used are those of Friendly Societies? I know they are.

10427. What should you consider the average age at which members die? That will vary. If a man at a certain age—say a man at twenty—expects to live thirty years, or to the age of fifty, when he gets to the age of twenty-five he expects to live beyond fifty, and so on. The expectation of life varies with every year of life.

10428. But the record you have kept—what does that come to? I think our average has been very low.

10429. Would you think an average age of forty-seven and a quarter at death showed a healthy rate among the members? Yes, if they entered at young ages I should think so.

10430. This extends over a number of 200 members and a period of forty-five years? Well, the data would be too small to base any reliable calculations on at all.

10431. Do you think the occupations of persons who join a Society make a difference in the liability? If you have a large number of members of a hazardous occupation to influence the whole it would, but if they were only in small numbers I do not think so.

10432. Is not the class so largely insured with you largely drawn from clerks and people of sedentary occupations? No. We have a very large number of labourers and farmers, and graziers, and tradesmen of all kinds.

10433. Do you not think the Friendly Societies are much more largely recruited from the ranks of working-men? Yes.

10434. Would not their occupation be largely in favour of their health, and thus render it necessary to take less subscriptions from them? No, I do not think so.

10435. What is your opinion of the Ancient Order of Foresters' examination of candidates? I think it is sufficient, but I think you should have the family history a little more complete than that.

10436. Do you think diseases should be more specially mentioned than that? You want to know if the parents or brothers or sisters have been subject to any hereditary diseases, but I think almost an examination by a conscientious examiner would be sufficient.

10437. Mr. Newland.] When actuaries examine the tables of a Friendly Society, are they aware that when a member dies the liability of the Society to his wife ceases? If that were told them they would value it so; they would not assume anything.

10438. You see a member insures himself and his wife for certain sums payable at death, and if the wife dies the member receives the assured sum, but if he dies first all further liability in respect to the wife ceases? Well, if an actuary were told that he would value it so.

10439. Are you aware whether that fact has been taken into consideration? He would not be much of an actuary if he did not take it into consideration.

10440. Mr. Gelding.] I presume you have studied Ratcliffe's tables, have you not? I have.

10441. What is your opinion of them? I think they are the most reliable we have. I mean those contained in the Supplementary Report of 1872.

10442. I presume that you are aware that all the Manchester Unity men are subject to them at the present time? I do not know that. 10443.

Mr. R. Tecc. 10443. Have you ever studied the difference between the amount of money paid and the amount of money we pay here under our weekly contributions? No, I do not think I have given much attention to making comparisons between them.

19 June, 1882.

10444. You firmly believe in the sliding scale of system as put forth by him? I should think any other system very iniquitous.

10445. What extent of experience would you consider necessary to furnish actuaries with sufficient information by which to work to bring forward a report? I think if the experience for ten years of the Societies of this Colony were collected the data would be fairly reliable.

10446. You think that it would be sufficient? I think so.

10447. You would not consider the medical expense, and the expense of working the Lodge? No. We should confine ourselves simply to the benefits and the contributions necessary to provide those benefits.

10448. You are aware, I presume, that the Management Expense Fund is reimbursed by secession by members leaving the District? Well, I fail to see how it could be legally done; if there is a special contribution for each fund the advantage to the Society from secessions should be an advantage to the benefit portion of the Society, but there is not always an advantage from secessions; sometimes it is the other way.

10449. Do you place any importance on the initiation fees? No; if the graduated scale of contributions is sufficient for the benefits no entrance fee is required, but they are intended, I believe, to equalize the contributions of members.

10450. You are firmly of opinion that a sliding scale should be adopted in all Friendly Societies to place them on a sound basis? I think so; indeed it is so clear that I do not see any room for a difference of opinion of the point.

10451. I suppose you are aware that the statist in Victoria allows all the Societies five years as a sort of probation? Yes.

10452. Do you approve of that? Yes; I think a fair time should be given to Societies in order to enable them to reform themselves and to give valuers an opportunity of going through the work.

10453. I suppose you have not seen the report of the Manchester Unity of Victoria lately? I understand there have been no valuations done under the Victorian Act yet.

10454. You do not think there would be any difficulty in keeping books on this sliding scale? Not the slightest.

10455. Just as easy as the present arrangements? Just so.

10456. Mr. Rubie.] Are there any statistics in the Colony from which you could obtain the information you require? Not of sufficient extent—there are none in this Colony.

10457. In order to present a report to the Commission you would want statistics of Societies for ten years? No, I would assume some other experience. You could not get the experience now sufficiently accurately to construct a table upon. All you could do would be for the future to get the experience. I do not think you could go ten years back and get the information with sufficient accuracy.

10458. In adopting your own table of life have you adopted the Carlisle or Northampton table or is it based on the experience of Societies in this Colony? On the experience of twenty English and Scotch offices; this is admitted on all hands to be the largest and most reliable that exists.

10459. But would it not be better to take the average of the general population than even that of the Societies themselves? No; the experience of Societies of a kindred character is the best.

10460. Then as we have no data that can be relied upon here we should have to refer to something of that sort? We should have to begin anew.

10461. So the statistics which are acknowledged to be imperfect which the Commission has now got would be scarcely any use? Well, I think so, because you would have to have the statistics in reference to the ages of members in any event; but what you want to do is to know the number of people who are in receipt of benefits, the benefits to which they are entitled, the conditions under which they get these benefits, and the contributions to provide these benefits; you then value these by the tables representing the sickness which have been constructed on the experience of the past. To construct a mortality table or a sickness table is a different thing from valuing a Society after you have such a table. If you want to get what the probability of dying is of a number of people, you have to take all those at a given age entering at the beginning of the year. You have to take note of all who pass from observation during the year, and of those who die; by that means we get what is equivalent to the number of men living through the whole year; those who begin the year will not live the whole year, but we apply a modification to that to get the number of those who enjoy a full year of life, and out of that get the number who die, and that will give you the probability of each man dying that year. It is a cumbrous process to construct the tables, but when once done they are done for ever.

10462. Then we should have to get the respective ages of some very large Society, and take the average of each age? No, you would get the number of members at the various ages, and assume they are going to be sick or die in the same proportion as they have been sick or have died in the past. If a Friendly Society came to me I should assume Ratcliffe's last tables of the Manchester Unity, as they are the best that exist now, and until we get our own experience, which can only be got by degrees.

10463. Then in that case the statistics which we now have will be of very little use? I do not say that; we have a mortality experience of our own, and we have tables just as they have, but we think these the more reliable because we do not think we have sufficient data.

10464. You just now said that your average was more favourable than the general average of the Colony? Yes.

10465. And yet you assume after a man has been in your Society five years the average is the same? Yes. The reason is that a large proportion of members has recently joined our Society. During the first fifteen years we did not issue as many policies as we now get in a year; some of these go out and they are under observation only for a short time, but in the general population they cannot go out—they must die.

10466. Do not most Societies attach a great deal of importance to lapsed policies? Every policy which lapses in the Society is a loss to the Society. If every member who has joined our Society had remained in we should have been in a better position than we are now.

10467.

10467. Then until statistics have been obtained for about ten years we should not be able to get a perfect set of tables? I think not. You would have to adopt Ratcliffe's tables. Now they have in New Zealand five years' experience, and any one valuing a number of Friendly Societies from them would test his valuation by these tables and if there were great discrepancies he would investigate further to find out how they arose.

Mr. R. Teeco,
19 June, 1882.

10468. Of course in Friendly Societies they attach a great deal of importance to secessions because they are not responsible for any further payments? I think as a rule they are a benefit, but in very many cases they are the contrary. If a Society charges a uniform contribution, say of a shilling or thirteen pence a week, that might be too much to take from a man of twenty but not enough from a man of thirty-five, and if the largest number of secessions are among the young men the Societies would thus lose.

10469. Mr. Langley.] Following up that, are you aware that the heaviest claims for sick pay in the experience of some Societies arise between the ages of eighteen and thirty-six? I have heard so, and I conclude that is because they have not had a sufficiently extensive experience.

10470. Is there not this difference between an ordinary Life Insurance Society and a Friendly Society, that in the one case you are paying in until death without anything going out, the member receiving no benefit until death, while in the other case the principal claims upon the Society are probably those for sick pay. Does not that make the question of secession materially different? I do not think so. A man who insures his life in a life insurance office and goes on paying without dying sometimes comes to the conclusion that he has made a bad investment; but if he goes to a fire office and insures his property he does not make the same conclusion, and yet the cases are precisely analogous; and so in the case of those who get sick, they have the security that if they fall sick these payments will be made to them.

10471. Is there not a very material difference between the rate per cent. paid in a fire insurance and a life policy? There is a difference in this way, that when a man pays a premium for a life insurance policy at first he pays more than is necessary for the risk, in order that he may be charged a uniform contribution through life, while in a fire office there is always just the same risk; a man gets his equivalent in this way, that if after paying for a few years he wants to draw out he gets back the surrender value.

10472. Do all Societies base their surrender value on the same principle? I think so.

10473. May I ask if, as medicine and doctor form a very important factor in the benefits afforded by benefit Societies, you would not take that question into consideration in your tables? If it were understood that the contributions were to pay for this, of course it would have to be taken.

10474. Mr. Holdsworth.] Would the amount of sickness and the death rate materially affect the contributions? Certainly.

10475. Has your attention been called to the fact that the Temperance bodies, as a rule, have a lighter sick and death rate? Yes.

10476. So you would make a special difference in their rate of contribution? Well, I do not know. I would not unless I had the experience collected exclusively from these Temperance Societies, but I would equalize it subsequently on the valuation of the Societies; if I found any contributions I had fixed left the Society with a large surplus, I would arrive at the conclusion that it would be desirable to reduce them.

10477. It would have to be taken into consideration? Certainly.

10478. The number of members resigning you would not consider an important fact in the calculation? Not in a valuation.

10479. You would require certain statistical information on which to base your calculations? Yes.

10480. Do you imagine the sick or death rate here is greater than in England? I should imagine it was very much lighter.

10481. Reference has been made to the increase of the Funeral Fund. Do you think that is a safe system? It does not say anything one way or the other. I think it is safe if the contributions are sufficient for it.

10482. But the same contribution is given all the way through? A uniform rate for each age—that is where the error is. You may have several persons of different ages, and a uniform rate for these increasing benefits.

10483. But is it not necessary that there should be some proper calculation made? Certainly.

10484. Do you consider the experience of the Societies themselves of value if carefully collected. I do.

10485. For ten years I think you said? Yes. I think that would be of a valuable guide; the longer the experience the more valuable it will be.

10486. If some of the largest Societies in the Colony, numbering from twelve to twenty thousand, were to lay before the actuaries the experience for ten years, would it be sufficient? I should not like to answer that question unless I had the information before me.

10487. It would be, I take it, a very valuable basis? I think that would be valuable.

10488. I understand you are in favour of introducing a graduated scale of payments according to age? Certainly.

10489. I am safe, I imagine, in taking Ratcliffe's tables as they appear in Neison as correct, requiring £2 4s. 2d. to give £1 a week and £11 17s. 9½d. at the age of sixty? That would be correct, but they are calculated at 3 per cent.; a higher rate of interest could be assumed in these Colonies.

10490. You imagine we have not experience enough here to justify ourselves in forming a code of rules? I do not think so.

10491. Therefore you would recommend Ratcliffe's last tables? I would.

10492. Do you think in future returns provision should be made compelling Societies to set forth the ages of the members at their entrance, at the time of the various sicknesses, and at the time of death? They should be compelled to furnish returns in a form which any statist with a knowledge of the subject would provide for them.

10493. In 1871 it was declared that the Manchester Unity was insolvent, and that it required upwards of a million to make it up in Great Britain. Are you aware that a similar inquiry was made in 1843, or in 1844, and a similar statement was made? Yes; it has been notorious for many years.

10494. And they have lasted and every year have increased their surplus? Yes; and they might last for another fifty years, as long as they could continue to bring in a number of new members.

10495. You said you did not think it important to lose members. Are you aware that in one year the Manchester Unity lost 60,000? That is not very much out of half a million.

10496. In making your calculations I take it you would make them in the ordinary way—at what it would require for £1 at the death of a member, and £1 a week for sickness, and £1 at the death of a member's wife, assuming so many wives to so many members? Yes.

10497.

Mr. R. Teece. 10497. Are you of opinion there should be a distinct department in reference to this matter with a statist and actuary attached? I have thought of that matter, and my opinion is as follows:—The Commission are no doubt aware that in the matter of statistical information we are the reproach of the Colonies. We should be in a position to show everything we have which would give a fair idea of the social condition of the people, and one great thing would be the condition of these Friendly Societies, another the condition of the Building and Investment Societies; and if we had a Government department presided over by a Government statist who would be charged with the collection and arrangement of all these statistics, a most valuable department would be created, and one which is conceded to be necessary in almost every civilized community except this Colony. A barrister does not know anything of the statistics of Friendly Societies; and in Victoria the whole of the work of the department is done by Mr. Hayter, and his reports are models of their kind. In New Zealand there is a special department for Friendly Societies alone; and to each of these departments there is attached a gentleman who has a knowledge of actuarial science. It would be much better to have these things collected by men accustomed to the manipulation of statistics, so that all statistics should be collected by one department specially charged with them, and that the care of the Societies generally should be part of the work of the head of that department.

10498. That is, that there should be a Statistical Department? I think so.

10499. Are you aware that the number of members of Friendly Societies exceeds 80,000? I have heard so.

10500. And that there are 120,000 dependent upon them? Yes.

10501. Do you not think that makes them of sufficient importance to warrant the Government in providing a special department for them? Yes, I do; but I think it would be more advisable if we could have other matters in connection with it under the same department.

10502. That is, that the Statistical Department should have a special branch devoted to this? Undoubtedly.

10503. With so many persons interested in the well being of these Societies, is it not desirable that there should be some person appointed to whom they would go for advice in law matters? I think so; and I think it is important that they should be allowed to conduct their operations as cheaply as possible, as these persons cannot afford to pay large expenses. Before an Act was passed in England, which made it possible to have a valuation on the part of every Society in the land, it was stated in evidence that out of 20,000 Societies not more than 500 had consulted an actuary, and not more than 100 did so regularly.

10504. Would not such a department be a great saving to the State? I think it would.

10505. Creating habits of self-reliance among the people? Well, people look more to getting an equivalent for what they pay.

10506. Mr. Greville.] If you have not been consulted personally by any Society, do you know of any other actuary who has? I never heard of it.

10507. From the nature of your profession you understand something about the internal working and present condition of these Societies? I have not been connected with the internal working of any of them, but I know the main principles upon which they must be worked, and have had the opportunity and means of forming an opinion as to what these conditions must be.

10508. Are you aware of the legislation which has taken place in England, New Zealand, and Victoria? I am.

10509. Do you think legislation in this Colony might follow on the same lines? I do; I think they are admirable guides.

10510. Which do you prefer? They merely require special modification to meet the special circumstances of this Colony.

10511. Have you read the reports of the various Commissions? I have read the whole of the evidence given before the Commission in England.

10512. Have you read those of Victoria and New Zealand? Not that of Victoria.

10513. Have you obtained official data of the New South Wales Societies sufficient as to enable you to speak of their working? No; it is not accessible.

10514. Have you ever tested the rates of contribution? I have several times.

10515. Do you think the contributions sufficient? I do not think they are.

10516. I presume you consider it necessary that it should be made compulsory on all Societies to make annual returns to the Registrar? Certainly, and every Society should be compelled to register under the Act.

10517. Would you have the same form of return used by every Society? Yes, except in special cases. 10518. Do you think it would be prudent to allow all Societies to vary their rates of contribution and benefits, the same as Insurance Companies do, provided they did not go below a certain minimum fixed by actuarial calculation? Yes; I think they should have as much power as possible to fix their rates, but I am not quite sure about any compulsion in the matter—the principle of compulsion is repugnant to the British mind, but it would be an advantage to have the tables of contributions properly certified to as correct.

10519. Would you enforce an actuarial investigation every five years? Yes, I would.

10520. Would not the expense be an obstacle unless done by a Government officer? Yes, it would be.

10521. Then, if the Legislature determined to have more permanent supervision than at present, could not a set of tables for the use of valuers be framed by which the value of Societies could be calculated with little cost? Yes; if one or two Societies came to me now to ask me to value them it would cost me an enormous labour, but it would be very little more labour to value one or two hundred of them, because I should have to construct a lot of tables. This should be done by the Government for the use of valuers, and it would then take very little to value the Societies.

10522. Then you would have the set of tables I speak of provided as one of the first things to be done? Certainly; that would be absolutely necessary.

10523. Would you in framing these tables make allowances for withdrawals? No, I would not, though I do not know whether it would be worth while to construct tables showing the effects of withdrawals, but I would not take them into consideration.

10524. But they do form an important element? But if you took it into consideration you would assume it to continue, but if you did not continue you would have a lot of leeway to make up, because you would have anticipated the benefit of these secessions for all time.

10525.

10525. Still if in examining the accounts of various Friendly Societies in this Colony you found the deficiency of contribution was compensated for by the number of withdrawals, would you not then be justified in taking that into consideration? That would necessarily be so, because if at the valuation it appeared that the Society was solvent, and it had been assumed that the contributions were insufficient, that would show that for that Society the contributions were sufficient. Mr. R. Teece.
19 June, 1882.

10526. And if the experience of all Societies were to the same effect, that the contributions were below the proper mark, but that the secessions prevented the Society from becoming insolvent, any actuary would be justified in taking that into consideration? He would be justified in allowing the rates of contribution to be sufficient.

10527. In the English calculations, do you think that was taken into consideration? No, it was not.

10529. As an actuary you would take into consideration the circumstances concerning a man's life, and as to where he lived? Yes.

10530. And if you find that a Society depends on the state of the labour market, should they not be considered? I do not think so, because you cannot in establishing a Society take into consideration any disturbances that are going to occur in the labour market.

10531. In calculating tables for Societies in this Colony, might we not more safely adopt the experiences of New Zealand and the Australian Colonies rather than those of England? At present they are not sufficiently extensive; the only experience we have is the experience for five years of Societies in New Zealand.

10532. Ultimately, I presume, the Life Offices here will adopt Australian experiences? I presume they will.

10533. And so ultimately Australian Benefit Societies may be framed on Australian experiences? Certainly.

10534. How many years' experience would you require as an actuary? I think with the number of Societies there are in the Colony ten years of their experience would give you a fairly reliable table.

10535. Are you aware that in the Societies provision is made to level the apparent injustice by means of a sliding scale of entrance fees? I believe so.

10536. Do you consider the sums for each separate benefit should be kept distinct? Undoubtedly.

10537. Would you limit the age up to which sick allowance should be granted? I would. There comes a period when a man is unable to work simply because he is worn out, but it is not sickness.

10538. Looking at the funds of these Societies, what conclusion do you arrive at relative to the financial position of the majority of Societies in this Colony? I incline to the opinion they are not solvent.

10539. Would you restrict the amount of sick pay to be paid to each member? Yes; I think it should be considerably smaller than the amount of wage he is able to earn, so that no inducement should be held out for pretended sickness.

10540. Mr. Abigail.] When you applied to the Registrar five years ago, did you tell him what you wanted the information for? I think so.

10541. Did he offer to supply any information that he had? No; I did not press him. He could not tell me how many Societies were registered, and whether there were as many unregistered.

10542. Am I right in concluding that if you had been supplied with the information some valuable conclusions would have been given to the public? I was going to be paid, and should have gone on as long as I was paid.

10543. If application had been made to you for a form sufficient to base sound calculations on, would you have supplied it? Certainly.

10544. Are you of opinion that in making any calculation the contingent or expected liabilities in respect of the benefits would form an important consideration? Most important.

10545. Is it true that an actuarial investigation has generally set forth that Friendly Societies are not in a sound financial position? That is the fact.

10546. Is that on account of any ill-feeling towards these Societies on the part of actuaries? No.

10547. Have you ever heard that stated? Never.

10548. Some reference has been made to Mr. Ratcliffe's estimate of the Manchester Unity in England in his last report; are you aware that since he issued these reports every Lodge in Great Britain has come under them, thereby proving that they believed in their correctness? I knew that a large number had done so, and that nearly all actuarial valuations made since have been made with these as a basis.

10549. Now, in reference to secessions, I understand your reason for not taking them into account is that you do not believe they are any gain to a Society? They would be a gain to a Society with properly graduated contributions, but under present circumstances I doubt whether they are a gain.

10550. Are you in favour of an enactment that new Societies should base their tables on actuarial calculations? I think so.

10551. In getting the information to form a correct estimate, would it be necessary to have the whole of the expenditure of a Society? Oh, no; in forming a table of contributions it would be necessary to provide the benefits from it. If a new Society were going to start I should adopt Ratcliffe's tables, and give it to them in twenty-four hours, because I have by me a number of tables that I have made based on Ratcliffe's tables, with an increase of the interest from 3 per cent. to 4, 4½, and 5 per cent.

10552. But to ascertain the correctness of Societies in New South Wales, would it not be necessary to know how they spent their money? Yes, of course it would.

10553. Mr. Holdsworth.] You say we may take 4 or 5 per cent. as the interest payable here; are you aware that most of the money is invested in the Government Savings Bank? No; I understood a good deal of it was invested in Government bonds and mortgages.

10554. Mr. Rubie.] Do you not think that the success obtained by most of the Societies here of long standing has been through the large interest they receive? I do not think they have achieved success; the ability to pay their way does not prove that they are not in an insolvent condition.

10555. Another source of profit has been in connection with these secessions, the gain of the entrance fees? Yes, that might be so, if they were not taken from the members as some equivalent for the small contributions. If a uniform contribution is not demanded from members of all ages, it might be equalized by the entrance fees.

10556. Mr. Langley.] Have you ever seen the returns required to be sent in to the Government of Victoria? Yes.

- Mr. R. Teece. 10557. Have you seen the return sent in to our Registrar of Friendly Societies? No, I have not.
- 19 June, 1882. 10558. Do you think, for all statistical purposes and giving a sufficient amount of information, the returns which are called for in Victoria would be sufficient if adopted here? Generally, certainly.
10559. You consider they would be suitable to this Colony as well as to Victoria? I think so; I think they are admirable returns.
10560. Mr. Abigail.] Will you supply the Commission with a form of the information you require to base your calculations upon? Certainly.
10561. Mr. Smith.] If it were shown that a Lodge had existed for forty years, having five or six hundred members, a freehold property worth four or five thousand pounds unencumbered, and having a very large sum of money to its credit at the Bank, do you not think that would be proof in itself that the Society was based on a proper basis? It would not be any proof whatever; that could only be decided by ascertaining what their liabilities now are. I can name to you Societies which have gone on for many years with enormous funds, which have been transacting a business of an apparently most successful and brilliant character, but when the end came these funds melted away into nothing. The latest instance of this that we have was the failure of the European and Albert Offices, which were supposed to be two of the most successful Societies, though actually it was known they were insolvent. No actuary, however, had the courage to say so, because he knew if he did he would be prosecuted for libel.
10562. Then it would be necessary to get the liability of each Lodge as to the longevity of its members? Yes, you would have to know what liability they have in respect to the benefits they have to pay in future; a member may have been paying into a Society for five years and never have received a sixpence, but no man pays in his money for nothing.
10563. This is not fully borne out by the Friendly Societies in New South Wales? Perhaps not; it would be a fatal error to allow persons only to join who were in want of the benefits.

The Commission then adjourned till Friday, the 23rd June.

FRIDAY, 23 JUNE, 1882.

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., PRESIDENT.

J. GELDING, Esq.,	JAS. F. SMITH, Esq.,
E. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,	F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,	P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,	E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,
W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. Christopher Rolleston, C.M.G., sworn and examined:—

- Mr. C. Rolleston, C.M.G. 10564. President.] You are the Auditor General of New South Wales? Yes.
- 23 June, 1882. 10565. I understand you formerly held the position of Registrar General? I did, yes.
10566. During the time you held that office the Commission have learned that you took some interest in the calculations with reference to the basis on which the Friendly Societies were working? Yes; I inquired into the system in vogue, and collected the Quinquennial Returns which the Act of that day required to be sent in to the Crown Law Officers. I got them, and analyzed them in so far as I was able to do, and made a report to the Colonial Secretary on that analysis, together with such tables as I could prepare, and that Return was laid before Parliament. It will be found in Volume II of the Votes and Proceedings of 1861-2, page 1055.
10567. Do you remember the substance of the inquiry? There were only five Societies had sent in returns; the particulars will be seen by reference to that report.
10568. Have you given any special attention to the working of Societies since then? No, I cannot say I have.
10569. Then you cannot tell the Commission as to their financial position now? No; I have no means whatever of knowing it.
10570. Is there anything you would like to give the Commission the benefit of—any suggestions you might make? No; since the time I was Registrar General I have not followed it out at all, and I am not in a position to offer any observations that would be of any value to the Commission in connection with these Societies.

The Commission then adjourned till Monday, the 26th June.

MONDAY, 26 JUNE.

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,	P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
E. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,	F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,	P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
JAS. F. SMITH, Esq.,	E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,

Mr. James Prior, Secretary of the Rose of Petersham Lodge, Grand United Order of Oddfellows, sworn and examined:—

- Mr. J. Prior. 10571. President.] Have you the rules of your Society? Yes.
- 26 June, 1882. 10572. What office do you hold? I am Secretary of the Lodge.
10573. How long has the Lodge been in existence? About fifteen months.
10574. What number of members have you? As nearly as possible, sixty-five financial members.
10575. What are the initiation fees of your Society? I do not know from memory; it is stated in rule 96, page 53. 10576,

Mr. J. Prior.

26 June, 1882.

10576. From 16s. to 20s. ? Yes.
10577. Graduated up to 105s. from 39s. to 40s. ? Yes.
10578. Did you not at the institution of the Lodge accept candidates at lower rates than these ? Yes, at half these fees.
10579. Then you admitted some members between sixteen and twenty at 4s. ? Yes, and we have admitted members since the opening at half-fees, about six months ago.
10580. When did this rule come into operation ? I cannot say.
10581. I mean as far as your Lodge is concerned ? I was not in the Lodge then.
10582. But you say you have within the last six months admitted members at half-fees ? About six months ago we did, having applied to the Council for permission, and got that permission for a given number of weeks.
10583. Then you admitted persons six months ago at the age of forty for £2 12s. 6d. ? Yes.
10584. What are your weekly payments ? 1s. a week.
10585. By all members ? By all the members.
10586. Young and old ? Young and old.
10587. What is the value of the funds at present ? I could not answer that question ; the Treasurer has that book.
10588. Do you know the amount of income received last year ? For the half-year ending December the balance at the credit of the Society was £54 11s. 4d.
10589. What had been the receipts for the year ? £211 17s. 11d.
10590. And what the expenditure ? £157 6s. 11d.
10591. What would be the average age of your members ? They are mostly young men ; I should say it would not exceed thirty-two.
10592. Had you any deaths during the year ? No.
10593. Any amount of money paid on account of sick pay ? £4 13s. 10d.
10594. What was the amount of the working expenses ? £26 11s. 6d.
10595. Is this document (produced) the return you sent in ? Yes.
10596. What is the meaning of the sum under the head of management, £80, for 1881 ? That is the amount received and paid to the Management Fund.
10597. What benefits do you give for the shilling per week ? Medical attendance and medicines for the members, their wives and families, and £1 per week sick pay.
10598. And what the death of the member ? £20.
10599. And on the death of his wife ? £10.
10600. What do you pay to the District ? 2s. 3d. per member per quarter, but I think it varies slightly sometimes, from 2s. 3d. to 2s. 6d.
10601. The balance you have to go for management and sick pay ? Yes.
10602. And by paying this amount per quarter to the District you secure the payment of the funeral donations ? Yes.
10603. Is that the only contribution you make to the District ? That is the only contribution, except that they supply us with books, and so on.
10604. Have you been a member of any other Society ? Yes, of the Protestant Alliance.
10605. Are you still a member of that Society ? Yes.
10606. Mr. Abigail.] Upon what basis did they arrive at the conclusion that 1s. a week was sufficient to guarantee the benefits ? I do not know ; that was handed down to us by the Grand Council. They decide that, and the Lodges have nothing to do with it. There was a discussion on the point, and we went into the matter and found it was sufficient to guarantee all the benefits. I have a statement which I read before the Lodge in reference to that matter.
10607. You say the Council decided the matter of contributions, but they did not tie you down not to charge more than that amount ? No.
10608. You could charge as high as 1s. 6d. ? Yes, if we like.
10609. You have considered the matter ? Yes.
10610. How did they consider it to arrive at the conclusion that 1s. was sufficient ? They took the receipts and expenditure, and averaged the different funds.
10611. Did they make any allowance for the contingent liabilities attached to each of the members ? I do not see the drift of your question.
10612. When you arrived at the conclusion that 1s. was enough, did you in arriving at that set any sum apart to meet the contingencies of those who might fall sick ? Yes, we took that into consideration.
10613. What allowance did you set apart for that ? 22 per cent.
10614. The Council is responsible for all debts, I suppose ? Yes.
10615. Do you as a Lodge give any benefits on the death of a wife ? No, not unless there is dire distress.
10616. No amount on the death of children ? No.
10617. You give distress gifts if any extreme case comes before you ? Yes.
10618. And you took all that into consideration, and then found you had sufficient ? Yes.
10619. How long have you been a member of the Protestant Alliance ? About twelve years.
10620. You have taken an active part in the working of that Society ? Yes, in Victoria.
10621. Was a shilling a week found sufficient there ? A shilling a week and a shilling a quarter.
10622. Is that the uniform rate—do none pay as much as 16d. a week in Victoria ? I think there are two or three that I know of, but not many of them.
10623. Have you knowledge of how much per head the Government Officer in Victoria states that Societies should have to render them thoroughly solvent ? No.
10624. Are you aware that he says it should be £9 ? No.
10625. Do you think that could be attained by the payment of a shilling a week ? It would take a long while to do it.
10626. Have gone into figures to ascertain how much per year the contingent liability increases for each individual member ? No, I have not made any calculation to that effect.
10627. You are not aware that any actuarial opinion was taken to guide you to arrive at the conclusion you have come to ? No.
10628. Are you in favour of the Government exercising a close supervision over Friendly Societies ? Yes.
- 10629.

- Mr. J. Prior.
26 June, 1882.
10629. What do you pay in your Society for a doctor? We pay him a pound a year per member.
10630. What do you pay the chemist? 8s. per year per member.
10631. About what percentage is the management and other expenses in connection with your Society. What do you pay for rent, for instance? 2s. a meeting night.
10632. How many meetings do you have? Sometimes six and sometimes seven in the quarter.
10633. That will be twenty-six meetings a year? Yes.
10634. Do you pay your officers? None but the Secretary, who gets 2s. per year per member.
10635. What would the other expenses represent? The expenditure for the past year for the Management Fund is equal to 92 per cent. of the receipts; that includes medical attendance and medicine, levies, and goods.
10636. President.] You mean 92 per cent. of expenditure has come from that fund? The whole expenditure of the Lodge is charged to that fund, and the 8 per cent. left is the surplus. We have made 8 per cent. profit on the Management Fund, and have a profit on the other fund. The total amount received is £114 9s. 5d. for the Management Fund; out of that amount we have paid £105 16s. 11d., or equal to 92 per cent. of the receipts of that fund, leaving us a balance of £9 3s. 5d.
10637. You mean of what you have received for the Management Expense Fund you have expended 92 per cent.? That is it.
10638. And that includes nearly all the disbursements of the Lodge? Very nearly.
10639. Mr. Abigail.] What becomes of the other sixpence that goes to the Sick and Funeral Fund? It goes to the District, and for the payment of the sick money.
10640. Your accumulated surplus results from simply the ratio of sick during the year, lower than the general proportion? That is it; our expenditure out of this fund was 53½ per cent.
10641. Did you start with young members? I could not say; I have only been six months in the Lodge.
10642. Have you had sufficient experience to say whether you would favour a uniform system of book-keeping being made compulsory in all Societies? Yes.
10643. Would you favour a close Government supervision over them? Yes.
10644. Do you think Societies starting should be compelled to have an actuarial certificate of the sound basis of their contribution, supposing the Government paid for it? Yes.
10645. Mr. Holdsworth.] Did I understand you to say that you had a contribution of 1s. per week? Yes, I said so.
10646. Your funds are divided into two—the Management and the Sick and Funeral Fund? Yes.
10647. And 6d. a week goes to each? Yes, with one-half of the initiation fees.
10648. Out of the Management Fund you pay the medical man and for the medicines? Yes.
10649. And 2s. per year for each member to the Secretary? Yes.
10650. 20s. for the medical man, 8s. for medicine, and 2s. for the Secretary is 30s. in all, how do you pay that out of 26s.; do you make it up out of the initiation fees? Yes, and out of the fines, which are sometimes very large.
10651. Then if it were not for the initiation fees and fines your contributions would be too small? Yes, for the Management Fund they would.
10652. Thus you have to depend for the Management Fund upon extraneous sources? Yes, just so.
10653. Out of the 6d. a week that goes to the Sick Fund what do you pay? The sick and funeral money—the Funeral Fund is 2s. 3d. per quarter.
10654. Have you any idea what the general average of sickness in Benefit Societies is? No, I have not. I have tried to get the information, but could not.
10655. Would it surprise you if I were to tell you it is over six days a year, taking one Society with another? That is above the amount I should have thought it would have been.
10656. Assuming it at that, and that is a low average to pay, that is £1 per week and 9s. for the funeral money, how do you receive your fund, because it exceeds your contributions? We should have to obtain them from the half initiation fees and the interest on the money in the Bank.
10657. Your Society, I think you said, was eighteen months old? Yes.
10658. How long has a member to belong to your Lodge before he gets the benefits? Six months, I believe.
10659. Then only a certain portion of your members are entitled to benefits? Yes.
10660. And for the first six months none were entitled to benefits? No.
10661. Then do you think that your eighteen months' experience is sufficient to justify you in forming a scale under that of the general average of other Societies? Hardly so.
10662. Have you not taken a scale under what is supposed to be the general average of the Grand United Order of Oddfellows? It is the same as nearly as possible.
10663. You took the lowest scale they would allow you to take? Yes.
10664. Mr. Rubie.] Have you Trustees in your Society? Yes.
10665. What amount of funds are deposited in their names? All the funds are deposited in their names, with the exception that the Treasurer is allowed to hold £10 in his possession for pressing necessities.
10666. Have you any funds in hand? Yes, we have from £50 to £60.
10667. And you are only eighteen months established? Yes.
10668. How many members have you got? Sixty-five financial members.
10669. Does the whole of the initiation money remain in the Lodge or go to the District? It all remains in the Lodge.
10670. Mr. Slade.] Your rules divide the sum total of your contributions into two exact portions? Yes.
10671. And you pay 20s. to the doctor, 8s. to the chemist, 2s. to the Secretary, and 2s. District levies for management? Yes, 2s. or 2s. 3d.
10672. As far as your figures go, I can only make you to have some 8s. left after you have paid your dues, that is, two and a quarter days' sick pay per member; is that sufficient according to your average? We have had very little sickness to make an average by.
10673. Have you ever taken the question of graduated contributions into consideration? No, I have not.

10674. Are you in a position to give an opinion on the advisability of such a system? No; I have never gone into figures in reference to that matter.
10675. Have you considered the advisability of having a Pension Fund for aged or permanently disabled members? No.
10676. Mr. Gelding.] What did it cost to open your Lodge? I do not think I can give you that.
10677. Mr. Slade.] Are there any similar Societies to yours in the neighbourhood? Yes.
10678. Have you any idea of their rates of contributions? The Protestant Alliance charges 1s. a week and 1s. a quarter; that is the only one I know of. There is a branch of the Manchester Unity, but I do not know what their contributions are.
10679. Is there a branch of the Foresters there? Not to my knowledge.
10680. Mr. Gelding.] Do you think these half-fees are desirable? It is a desirable thing if the Lodge is low in funds, or if members are falling off, as it is a good way of inducing persons to join the Lodge.
10681. Did you join in the interim between the first half-fees and the second? No, I joined when they were cheap.
10682. The second time? Yes.
10683. Do you think it is justice to those who might have to pay the full fees that those who come in afterwards should pay only half fees? I do not know about that.
10684. What do you think about it? It is not just, I think.
10685. Do you not think a Society would be established on a more firm basis if they adhered to the regular scale? It is very often the means of keeping the Society together.
10686. What is your opinion of a Society that would collapse if it were not for these half fees—is it based on sound principles? It is based on good principles enough; but if you have not the members in a Lodge you cannot have the funds.
10687. What was the number of members at the commencement of the year? Thirty-five before the last half-fees began.
10688. Mr. Abigail.] Have any of your members entitled to sick pay failed to get it from any cause? Not to my knowledge.
10689. Do you know of any case where the funds either in that or other Societies have been misappropriated by other officers? No.
10690. President.] You have nothing to suggest to the Commission—no amendments in the present Act or anything of that sort? No.

Mr. Patrick Curran sworn and examined:—

10691. President.] You are a member of the Hibernian Australian Catholic Society? Yes, and have been a member for about ten years.
10692. You have written to the Commission asking to be examined? Yes; at that time I thought the Commission might do some justice to my case, but since then I have placed my grievances in the hands of a solicitor.
10693. What is the nature of the complaint you wish to make? The grievance I have first took place about June, 1880, when I protested against a certain amount of money illegally going out of the funds, and on that occasion I was fined heavily. I was told by the Chairman of the Division that I wanted to throw some dark shadow over the members' eyes, but I was not. There is a law if a Branch or number of Branches are about to form a District there shall be a specially summoned meeting of each Division, and if they unanimously agree that such should be done each member of each Division carrying such a proposal shall pay 2s. 6d. per head to form a fund for the District and to pay the expenses that might be incurred at the opening of the District. I protested against the illegal voting of £9 odd from the funds of the Lodge without ever making a levy at all.
10694. You objected to the way in which the money was spent? Yes; it should never have been taken from our fund.
10695. Then it should have been raised by levy? Yes. That was the first commencement of my grievances. I was fined heavily on that night, and the Chairman, when I said, "You will have to pay this back again," overruled me, and said their funds were great enough and they could pass the money.
10696. And has that been recouped by levy since? On the next summoned meeting of the Division they had the Registrar's letter to me, which I had received in reply to one I wrote to him, and I put this with my own appeal before the Judicial Committee against the fines; they saw by that that the Registrar said they could not vote the money out of the funds of the Lodge, and it was put in every member's summons immediately a levy of half-a-crown; and the members then began asking what it was for, coming to me for an explanation. I said, "You did not take any notice of me when I protested, but you now see the result." The fines were accordingly remitted, on account of the decision of the Registrar. That passed over; and then the Chairman refused to take an amendment from me when the vote was before them again, while I was a benefit member. Although the law says that any Chairman refusing to put to the vote a resolution proposed by a financial benefit member shall be liable to a fine; he declined to receive my amendment, and said I could vote against the resolution. There were other minor grievances from that time up to the special summoned meeting held on the 7th June, 1881. As I entered the room I presented my contributions to the Secretary, which he refused to take; when I asked him the reason, he said that he could not say, but it was by the instructions of the Chairman. On that night I owed 2s. legally, although 8s. 4d. was on my summons. I should have been willing to pay the half-crown levy if it had been collected in the proper way.
10698. Which were subsequently remitted? They were remitted before this, and other fines were illegally put on me again to the amount of £2 odd.
10699. What were they for? I appeared in the presence of Mr. Coonan to go and see how the District worked. They held their meetings at St. Benedict's school-room; they were claiming from the Division £94 for the Funeral Fund; this was brought before the meeting on three occasions, and refused each time by a majority of the Division, as some of us looked upon the District as having been illegally formed.

Mr.
P. Curran.
26 June, 1882.

- Mr. P. Curran,
26 June, 1882.
10700. I want to know why you were fined? I am coming to that. We went to the meeting to see how they were working, and sat there until about the closing. Everything in relation to the business was completed, and the Chairman was in the act of closing the meeting when Coonan and I and Kelly, we knew there was nothing to hinder us, passed out. The Chairman seeing us called us back. He told me to take off my hat, and the only words I spoke in that room were, "Out of respect to the regalia you wear I will." The result was such abuse as I never got from any man as that Chairman. I told him to respect his position, and he called me out of my name every way possible. I turned for the door with Coonan and Kelly, when I heard a step coming after me, and saw this Chairman with a stick in his hand held over my head. I told him that if he struck me I should return the blow, as I had done no wrong. I was presently surrounded by others, and had as much as I could do to get away. At the next meeting they fined me 2s. 6d., and conveyed the fine to my own Lodge, against which I protested. One or two meetings afterwards I received a letter summoning me to attend before the District meeting to answer some frivolous charge which I was supposed to have made against these officers. I did not attend, but wrote a letter to the District Secretary telling him that I could not think of appearing before such a body of men, and that all they could do they might do in my absence. They fined me two guineas, and transferred the fine to my own Lodge.
10701. Is there any rule giving the District power to fine a private member? Yes, if he commits himself at a District meeting.
10702. But you were not a delegate? No.
10703. The District had no control over you? No more than that if I had been deserving of a fine I could have been fined at that moment.
10704. You were fined two guineas, and that made you unfinancial? Yes.
10705. Have they since removed the fines? No.
10706. Are you financial now? No.
10707. Have you required the benefits since? Yes.
10708. And have had to incur expense? Yes.
10709. You have had to employ other medical men? I had to go to the Infirmary for out-door relief. On that night, the 7th of June, I was proposed for two offices, but the Chairman refused to take the nominations after refusing to take my contributions.
10710. You have protested against the fine and appealed against it? Yes.
10711. And you have the Registrar's opinion that they had no right to inflict such a fine? Yes.
10712. You have instituted proceedings against the officers of the Lodge? Yes; at least I have instructed Mr. Coonan, the solicitor, to do so.

Mr. Thomas Coonan sworn and examined:—

- Mr. T. Coonan,
26 June, 1882.
10713. President. } What Society are you a member of? The Sacred Heart Branch of the Hibernian Australian Catholic Benefit Society.
10714. You wish to give evidence before the Commission? I really do not know; I was brought here through some complaint that Mr. Curran had to make. Any questions that you may ask me I will answer.
10715. You were Treasurer at the time Mr. Curran was fined? Yes.
10716. And you were aware that Mr. Curran was made unfinancial? I believe that is the case.
10717. Has your District power to inflict fines of that kind upon members of the Society who are not members of the District? Yes, if we commit ourselves.
10718. Did he commit himself? I do not believe he did at the time he was fined; it was after the meeting was broken up.
10719. Did you see the Registrar's letter stating that the Society had no power to inflict the fine? No.
10720. Has Mr. Curran been a good member of the Society or a troublesome one? He has been a good member—a hard-working one.
10721. You remember the District being formed, when some £9 was voted instead of being called up by levy? Yes.
10722. Were you present? Yes.
10723. Did Mr. Curran protest against the payment of the money? Yes.
10724. It was contrary to the rules, was it not? I am not prepared to say.
10725. What was the result of his protest? The money was voted, and after a few meetings was paid away.
10726. Was there a subsequent appeal made to members to pay 2s. 6d. each? There was a levy of the money.
10727. That was to make good that £9, was it not? I am not prepared to say.
10728. Then you do not know much about the circumstances at all? No, I do not.
10729. Are you aware of any defalcations in connection with your Society? No, not that I am able to give.
10730. You have nothing more to state to the Commission on the subject? No.

The Commission then adjourned till Friday, 30th June, 1882.

Mr. Robert Webber sworn and examined:—

Mr.
R. Webber,
30 June, 1882.

- 10731. President.] To what Society do you belong? The Grand United Order of Oddfellows.
- 10732. What office do you hold? Secretary.
- 10733. How long have you held the office? Since January, 1881.
- 10734. What number of members has your Society? Forty-seven were good on the books at the end of 1881.
- 10735. Is that the largest number that you have ever had? Yes; it is the largest number that has been returned to the District.
- 10736. What amount of funds have you to your credit? £60 0s. 3d.
- 10737. Is that the largest amount you have ever had? Yes, since our Lodge was opened; we are only a new Lodge.
- 10738. And what contributions do you pay? 1s. a week contribution, and 2s. a quarter levies to the Contingent Fund.
- 10739. What benefits do you give? A guinea a week sick pay, doctor and chemist, and a funeral donation of £20 on the death of a member and £15 on the death of a wife.
- 10740. And are you of opinion that the sum you pay is sufficient to ensure all these benefits? Yes.
- 10741. Is the Society, in your opinion, well managed? Well, in my private opinion, it could be managed a little better.
- 10742. It is not so well managed as it might be? I think not, but very near; there are one or two improvements we might have.
- 10743. Do you pay much for rent? Yes; that is the great evil we have; we pay 35s. a quarter.
- 10744. Do you pay your officers? One officer only.
- 10745. Your funds are entrusted to the care of Trustees? Yes.
- 10746. Have you previously been a member of any other Society? About sixteen years ago I was a member of the Manchester Unity.
- 10747. You have had a good deal of experience then? No, I have not had very much, because I was only about eighteen months or two years a member of that Order, having to travel about during the war in New Zealand, where I then lived. I had no opportunity to learn anything.
- 10748. Have you found during your experience that the present Act is sufficient for the working of Friendly Societies? I have not had any time to study the Act; I have not paid any attention to it.
- 10749. Do all your members or candidates seeking admission undergo a medical examination? Yes, and a thorough examination.
- 10750. Mr. Gelding.] On what grounds do you base your calculations that 1s. a week and the levy is sufficient to give all the benefits? I have never entered into the subject at all.
- 10751. What do you pay the medical officer for attendance and medicines? 7s. per quarter per member.
- 10752. What do you get? 6d. per member per quarter.
- 10753. Each member pays a trifle over 1s. per quarter for rent? No, it is not 1s. a quarter.
- 10754. Did you admit members at half fees after the Lodge was opened? Yes.
- 10755. Have you recurred to it again? Yes, we did so once.
- 10756. Were the members of the Lodge falling off when you applied for half-fee system a second time? No.
- 10757. You had no occasion to do so? No, not any actual occasion; we did it for the benefit of the poor people or parties who could not afford to pay the full initiation fees.
- 10758. How long has your Lodge been opened? Since the 30th September, 1879.
- 10759. Have you ever had any other levies besides that 2s. a quarter to the Contingent Fund? We have had no levies except the management levies of the District.
- 10760. I suppose you pay the same levies as the other Lodges to the Grand Lodge? Yes.
- 10761. What do they amount to? Sometimes 3d. and sometimes 6d a quarter.
- 10762. Does that satisfy the management expense and the funeral levy as well? The funeral levy is separate from the contingent levy.
- 10763. What do you pay for the funeral levy? On an average 2s. a quarter.
- 10764. Is there any other fund you have to subscribe to in the Grand Lodge? No.
- 10765. Does your Lodge ensure benefits on the death of a child? Yes.
- 10766. What do you give them? £2.
- 10767. How soon do your benefits come into operation, as soon as the Lodge is open? After six months I think, but I would not say positively whether it is six months or twelve months.
- 10768. Just look at the rules, will you, please? Six months I find it is.
- 10769. Could you inform the Commission the number of members you had when the system of half initiation fees was first brought into operation? Sixteen on the opening night.
- 10770. And what was the number of members you had when you reverted to the half-fee system the second time? Thirty-one good on the books.
- 10771. At what period was that? December, 1880.
- 10772. Are you making many members now? Not many now.
- 10773. How do you account for that? I suppose there are not many people wish to join.
- 10774. Do you not think it would be an improvement to have a uniform rate of contribution for all these Societies? It would be a great deal better.
- 10775. Do you believe in the competition that goes on now in Friendly Societies? No.
- 10776. Mr. Newland.] Are you aware that one of your laws provides that you shall pay not less than 6d. per week to the Sick and Funeral Fund? Yes.

- Mr. R. Webber.
30 June, 1882.
10777. That would come to 26s? Yes.
10778. And you pay the doctor 7s. a quarter? Yes.
10779. And that would be 28s.? Yes.
10780. Then how can you pay this money? By raising a levy of 2s. per member per quarter to defray the contingent expenses.
10781. Are you aware that the initiation fees of the Grand United Order of Oddfellows are far higher than those of any other Society? When I joined they were less than the Manchester Unity, but in 1880 or 1881 the Manchester Unity lowered their initiation fees.
10782. The fees to join your Order are higher than most other Friendly Societies? I don't know the value of others.
10783. Mr. Holdsworth.] Your contributions are equal to 1s. 2d. per week? Yes.
10784. How old is your Society? Two years and nine months.
10785. Do you think that is any guide? No; I go by other branches of the Society, as well as my own, in saying that I believe the amount is sufficient.

Mr. George Brown sworn and examined:—

- Mr. G. Brown.
30 June, 1882.
10786. President.] What Society do you represent? The Herald Office Benefit Society.
10787. What office do you hold? Secretary.
10788. Is the Society registered under the Friendly Societies Act? No, it is not.
10789. Your Society is a very old one, is it not? It has been established since 1856.
10790. What amount of accumulated funds have you? £270.
10791. What number of members have you? 111.
10792. What are the benefits given by your Society? Medical attendance in cases of sickness to the members and their families, and sick pay ranging from 25s. to 15s. per week, and £15 burial fee on the death of a male member, with £10 on the death of a member's wife.
10793. What are the contributions paid? 3s. per month per member.
10794. All alike? Yes, all alike, single and married.
10795. What is the reason your Society has not been registered? The Messrs. Fairfax subscribe £100 per annum to our funds, and they do not desire any outside interference so far as the members are concerned.
10796. You receive £100 per year from the firm? Yes.
10797. That is a sort of subsidy? Yes.
10798. The persons comprising the Society are wholly those employed in the Herald Office? Yes; that is the condition of membership.
10799. No person in the trade outside could be admitted? None whatever; but there is a set-off against that: in the event of a man leaving, he gets back one-quarter of the subscriptions he has paid, less the amount absolutely paid to him as "relief" money.
10800. And that £100 given as a subsidy from the firm goes to swell your contributions? It does; we have a £100 fixed as a debenture in the Bank of New South Wales, £70 interest on that in the Barrack-street Savings Bank, and £103 cash in the Australian Joint Stock Bank.
10801. Is the money vested in Trustees? Yes, in two Trustees.
10802. Do they give you any guarantee? No—personal.
10803. No guarantee for your Treasurer? Only personal.
10804. Has any proposal been made to register the Society? No.
10805. How long have you been connected with the Society? Eighteen months, as Secretary.
10806. As far as your knowledge goes there is no proposition to register the Society under the Act? No, none within my recollection.
10807. Do you think Messrs. Fairfax & Sons would object to the Society being registered? I could not say.
10808. Would it not afford a greater security for members? I think so; but I think the reason is that Messrs. Fairfax would not care about any petty law suits that might arise; if such was the case they would forego all expenses rather than have the affairs of the office drawn before the public.
10809. How many years have they donated this sum of £100? It has graduated from £25 to £50; the £100 has only been given the last three years; the promise was that as we increased in number so they would increase their subsidy; so if we go on to 150 members, in all probability the Messrs. Fairfax will give us £150.
10810. Then with the growth of the Society they have increased the amount of the subsidy? Yes.
10811. Who is the President of the Society? Mr. Chas. Dixon.
10812. Have your funds ever been larger than what you have now? Never in the history of the Society.
10813. The wives and children of members receive medical attendance and medicines? Yes. I may say that the subscriptions are deducted by consent of the members from their salaries weekly, so that there are never any arrears.
10814. That is an arrangement in the office? It is an arrangement come to by agreement amongst the members.
10815. It is deducted from their weekly pay? Yes, by their consent, not by compulsion.
10816. Is every employee of the establishment a member of the Society? No; there are only 111 members, and I dare say there are 250 in the employ.
10817. Is each of the members subject to a medical examination? Yes.
10818. By the Medical Officer of the Society? Yes.
10819. Does he make a full and searching examination? Yes.
10820. Have any members been refused in consequence of being unsound in health? None whatever.
10821. Who is the medical man? Dr. Pickburn, of College-street.
10822. And he has never refused a single candidate? Never.
10823. Does he receive any special fee for examination? None whatever.
10824. It is included in his annual payment? Yes; we pay him 18s. a year a head. It was at his suggestion that we came to examine these members; we used not to do it.

10825. The practice now is to examine every person seeking admission? Yes, every person seeking admission. Any member joining from the beginning of this year Mr. Hugh George, the Manager, caused to join absolutely; that is, all new employes, but they have to pass the doctor; the members of the Society demand the privilege of insisting upon that, and the firm demands the other. They do not compel us even to admit a person, but they compel all new employes to join the Society, provided they can pass a medical examination. Mr. G. Brown,
30 June, 1882.
10826. And if not able to pass the doctor? That has never occurred.
10827. Does the privilege of joining the Society extend right through the office? Yes, from the editor down to the lad who is just out of his time—every person who draws a cheque from the firm as an employe.
10828. Are any of the editors or sub-editors members of the Society? There are three who voluntarily give a guinea a year. They are donors of a guinea, but they never draw on the funds, or doctor and chemist's account.
10829. What do you pay your chemist? We pay for the prescriptions per item, with 33 per cent. discount.
10830. Do you think 3s. a month is sufficient to ensure payment of all these benefits the Society provides? No, it is not.
10831. Do you think if you did not receive this donation from Messrs. Fairfax & Sons that your Society would have been sound? No, I do not.
10832. Do you think even with the sum of £100 so liberally given as a subsidy that it is sufficient to ensure the due fulfilment of all the obligations of the Society? Yes, I do; and I think we could save £60 a year out of that—that is, combined with the system of deducting the subscription weekly.
10833. Do you know what was the expenditure for last year? £313 1s. 4d.
10834. What was the amount received from all sources? We make two balance-sheets in each year; the first half-year of 1881 the receipts, less cash in the Bank £60 11s. 6d., were £213 2s. 6d., and the expenditure was £156 3s. 10d.
10835. What was the next half-year? The receipts were £202 2s. 8d., less £49 13s. cash in Bank, and £7 5s. 8d. cash in hand; the expenditure was £156 17s. 6d., the heaviest in the experience of the Society.
10836. Do these amounts include the £100 received from Messrs. Fairfax & Sons? Yes.
10837. Have you the present half-year's balance-sheets? Yes, balanced up till to-day; there is a £100 debenture in the Bank of New South Wales, and interest on same in the Government Savings Bank of £64 19s. 1d., and £3 5s. interest; and £2 10s. interest on coupon, due this half-year; the receipts of the Society are £92 2s. 11d.; cash in hand and Bank £43 5s. 2d.; the expenditure was £93 16s. 6d., and we have in the Joint Stock Bank £103 5s. 5d. absolutely our own.
10838. This clearly proves that the income of the Society is not equal to the expenditure? No.
10839. Has this occupied the attention of the Society? It has.
10840. Have the officers taken any steps to place the Society on a more safe and permanent basis? I found that with the subsidy from the firm and having the subscriptions at 3s. a month we could save £60 a year; but when it was left voluntarily to the members to pay their money to the Secretary the Society has been known to be absolutely six months in arrears.
10841. There are no arrears at present? No; there may be five or six shillings.
10842. But nothing to speak of? No.
10843. No other payments but the 3s. a month are made? That is all; we are empowered to make a levy for a funeral in the event of the funds becoming exhausted, but that has never occurred.
10844. Do you publish your balance-sheets? Yes, it is printed and circulated amongst the members.
10845. Do Messrs. Fairfax & Sons see the balance-sheet? Every half-year.
10846. Has their attention been called to the fact that the Society could not exist but for the donation they give to it? Yes, and they expressed a desire to help their employees.
10847. Have they received these balance-sheets you have read to the Commission? Regularly, since I have been Secretary.
10848. Is it proposed to take any further steps to raise the contributions? No, it is not.
10849. What is the average of the members of your Society? They range from twenty to sixty, and I might strike an average at about thirty-five.
10850. Are there many of the members at sixty years of age? Not above six.
10851. Many at twenty? Only one.
10852. Many at thirty? Yes, there are fifteen or sixteen at that age.
10853. Within what range of age would you have the largest number of members? From thirty to fifty.
10854. Would you have a larger proportion below thirty than above? No.
10855. A larger proportion above thirty? Yes, I should think so; I am only forming an opinion as to age; I have not the ages entered.
10856. But you do enter the age? No.
10857. It is not a question of age? No.
10858. You admit them at all ages? Yes, provided they can pass the medical examination.
10859. You do not apply the rule that age is a bar to the admission of a person? No.
10860. Any person even sixty years of age could join the Society if in a good state of health? No person could say that a member was in a healthy state at that age.
10861. If the doctor certified you would admit him? Yes, after submitting it to the Board of Management.
10862. There is no rule to prevent him joining? Nothing, unless the Board considered him ineligible.
10863. Would a man be ineligible if he was in good sound health? The doctor says he cannot say that any man at sixty is physically sound.
10864. At fifty then? Yes, we would admit him.
10865. Mr. Smith.] Are you identified with any other Friendly Society? None whatever.
10866. You know nothing of the workings of ordinary Friendly Societies? No; not sick Societies.
10867. Are many of your members also members of other Friendly Societies? That I could not say.
10868. You charge no initiation fee? Yes; 5s. uniformly.
10869. Are any extra fees paid to the doctor in cases of accouchement? Two guineas.
10870. Paid by the members? Paid by the members.
10871. Nothing is paid by the Society? No.
10872. The whole cost is thrown on the members? Yes.
10873. Have you had any disputes in your Society? Before I took office there were some.
10874. Of what nature were they? The unsatisfactory nature of the account books. 10875.

- Mr. G. Brown. 10875. How were they dealt with? A Board of Inquiry was appointed, but they could not get any satisfaction. There was no check upon the contributions paid to the Secretary further than that he signed a card, and the majority of the members had not these cards to produce, and so there could be no correct audit.
- 30 June, 1882. 10876. Did that involve a loss of funds to the Society? Presumably.
10877. Do the proprietors exercise any authority or control over the working of the Society? None whatever.
10879. Where do you hold your meetings? In the Herald Office.
10880. Are they held at night? No; on Saturday afternoons.
10881. Weekly? Once each half-year, for the election of doctor and chemist and all officers.
10882. There is no other meeting? None at which the general body of members meet.
10883. You are under no expense for a place of meeting? None whatever.
10884. Do you pay your Treasurer? £1 per annum.
10885. What is your salary? £12 per annum.
10886. Any other officers paid? No.
10887. Have you any regalia? No, nothing of that sort.
10888. And your printing I suppose is done free by the office itself? No; I get that done at Gibbs, Shallard, & Co.'s.
10889. You have no pension fund in connection with the Society? No, we have not.
10890. Have you any members permanently on your funds? No.
10891. Is there any scale as to the sick pay? Yes; you receive 25s. a week till you receive £20, and 22s. a week till it amounts to £25, 21s. till you have received £30, and so on down to 15s. You do not go below that.
10892. Have you ever had reason to complain of any of the members remaining longer on the funds than was thought necessary? No; the majority of members get their living by piece-work, and the consequence is it would not pay a man—no matter how indifferent a workman—to be dishonest in that respect. It would not be to his disadvantage to impose on the Society.
10893. Are there persons appointed by the Society to pay the sick pay? They receive it through the Secretary.
10894. You pay it yourself? It is paid through me; two trustees sign the cheques.
10895. What check have you over persons sick as to whether they keep within your rules? The doctor's certificate, and I visiting them.
10896. Do you think it would be an advantage to bring the Society under the operation of the law? I do.
10897. Has the matter ever been discussed? I have heard that it was discussed years ago.
10898. But not recently? Not recently, on account of the reason I have assigned.
10899. But that is only a matter of surmise? Yes, so far as my knowledge is concerned.
10900. Messrs. Fairfax & Sons have never expressed themselves as being averse to the operation of the law? Not to me.
10901. Have you heard it from other persons? No.
10902. Are you acquainted with the principles of the Friendly Societies Act? No.
10903. Have you given it any attention at all? No.
10904. Then you do not know whether its requirements would be suitable to your Society or not? Further than that in the abstract I believe they could sue and be sued.
10905. There would be no necessity for that sort of thing in your case? No, I do not think there could be under the new system.
10906. Mr. Abigail.] Can you tell us how much the Society has received from the Herald proprietors as a total? No, I could not.
10907. Could you form any idea? I could not tell from memory how the amounts graduated, from what date the various sums were given.
10908. How many years have they been given? Since 1856.
10909. They commenced with £25? Yes, and went on.
10910. You have received more than £270? Yes, I have received £150 during the last eighteen months.
10911. You said you had made a calculation that showed you would be able to save £60 a year? Yes, with the subscriptions kept back from the salaries.
10912. Then without this donation you would lose £40 a year? Yes, because out of 36s. contributed by the members 18s. is paid to the doctor, and then there are working expenses and medicines.
10913. Have you ever made an estimate what the chemist costs per year? It fluctuates very much.
10914. But you pay the doctor 18s.? Yes; and I have paid the chemist £14 per quarter, but this quarter it was only £6.
10915. You have never made an estimate of the annual cost? No.
10916. Do you think it is as low as 7s. per member per year? No, it is not.
10917. Would it be 10s.? More than that.
10918. Well, 10s. and 18s. would make 28s. out of the amount contributed? It would be more than that.
10919. Well, if you take say 30s. out, it leaves only 6s. for the sick benefit? Yes.
10920. Do you observe that the benefits you give are larger than those of Societies charging 5s. per month? I have heard so, but do not know it positively.
10921. The benefits are greater and the contributions less? Yes, consequent on the subsidy from the firm.
10922. As a matter of opinion, do you not think a Society of that kind should work on its own contributions? If it were a public one, yes.

Mr. G. Brown.

30 June, 1882.

10923. If the members leave the employ do they forfeit their membership? Yes.
10924. Would you be in favour of a Government officer to supervise all Societies of a friendly benefit nature? Most decidedly.
10925. The fact that, as you state, the books of the Society previous to your taking office were wrong, shows that there is some necessity for —? A more correct audit.
10926. Mr. Greville.] You spoke of there being “presumably” a deficiency? Yes.
10927. Was such an investigation made as to enable you to determine whether there was such a deficiency or not? Nothing definite could be arrived at, as there were no means of proving what had been received.
10928. Then, I presume, at that time the Messrs. Fairfax were not in the habit of allowing their paymaster to deduct the amounts? No.
10929. Was it in consequence of this presumable or apparent deficiency that the Messrs. Fairfax introduced that system? No, it was at my suggestion.
10930. Can you give the Commission any idea as to the amount to which the funds of the Society are benefited by persons leaving the employ without receiving benefits from the Society after contributing to it perhaps for years? Well, no, I could not answer that question.
10931. I presume in that establishment there are very few men who leave the employ? Very few.
10932. And therefore any benefit arising to the Society from men leaving would be very limited? I cannot see that there would be much benefit.
10933. Mr. Holdsworth.] I presume that occasionally men get too old to follow out their calling? Yes, there are several cases.
10934. Where they have left through old age? They have left with the option of doing what little they could. The Messrs. Fairfax give them what is called a “franc,” and a compositor to a very old age can earn a little, and he gets that together with a small pension from the Messrs. Fairfax.
10935. Then there is a system of superannuation in the Herald office? Only voluntarily.
10936. If a man gets too old to work he still remains on your funds? Not as a sick member.
10937. But on your funds in case he gets sick? Undoubtedly.
10938. There is provision made for a man however old he is? Yes.
10939. Then a man is not thrown out on the world when he gets too old to work? Certainly not, he comes down to 15s. a week, and goes on as long as he remains there.
10940. If a man becomes too old to work he would not be thrown on the world? No, but there never has been a case in which the Messrs. Fairfax did not superannuate him.
10941. In case a deficiency occurred in your funds there is no doubt the firm would supply it? I believe they would.
10942. They look upon the Society as part and parcel of their establishment? Well, if we desired to abandon the Society to-morrow I believe we could. They did not absolutely cause the Society to exist, but if we voluntarily agree to join together they agree to subsidise us.
10943. They treat it as part of their establishment? Yes, but entirely apart from the business.
10944. Is Mr. Watson your chemist? Yes.
10945. Then if he said the average was 1s. 6½d. per quarter, I presume he would be right? I do not see that at all.
10946. Mr. Rubie.] Have you had many deaths lately? I think there have been four during my term of office.
10947. How much was given on account of these? £15 in case of a male member’s death, and £10 in respect of a wife.
10948. Previous to your taking office the funds were reduced to a low ebb? There was no money at all, except the debenture of £100.
10949. Had a death taken place there would have been a levy made? I do not think so; I think the Messrs. Fairfax would have paid anything.
10950. You have a sliding scale of payments? Yes.
10951. Mr. Slade.] Who is Mr. Newman? He is the paymaster of the office.
10952. Regarding the moneys paid in, do boys of a lower wage pay the same as men? There are no boys in the Society; the youngest member is 20, but he has completed his apprenticeship.
10953. You made a statement to the effect that the reason the firm might object to registration was that they would not like the affairs —? That is my opinion.
10954. Are you aware that the Act gives you power to avail yourselves of its penal clauses whether you are registered or not? No, I am not aware of that.
10955. Have you made an average of your sickness? No.
10956. Mr. Gelding.] Do I understand that a member of your Society having received the full amount of 25s. a week can never return to that amount again? No.
10957. He has to go to the low scale, no matter how long he may be well in the interim? He keeps to the amount he has come down to.

Mr. Henry Austen sworn and examined:—

10958. President.] What Society do you represent? No. 3, Good Samaritan, Sons of Temperance.
10959. What office do you hold? Treasurer.
10960. How long have you been Treasurer? About thirteen years altogether; ten years without going out of office.
10961. What is the financial position of the Society? Not very good; in fact it is low.
10962. What number of members have you? Fifty-two financial—sixty-two on the roll.
10963. What amount of money have you to your credit? I do not think it is more than about £72.
10964. Your contributions are —? 1s. a week.
10965. And the usual benefits are given by the Society? Yes; £20 in the case of the death of a member, and £10 on the death of a wife; sick-pay a guinea a week for the first six months, 15s. for the next six months, and a superannuation of 7s. a week as long as a brother is ill.
10966. You have had a much larger number of members than now? We have had as high as about 230.
10967. Has not your Society a property at Newtown? No; it had though.
10968. What has become of that property? I hold it at present.

Mr. H. Austen

30 June, 1882.

10969.

- Mr. H. Austin 10969. As the mortgage or how? I hold it as my freehold.
 30 June, 1882. 10970. How was it sold? By the mortgagee.
 10971. Who was the mortgagee? I could not say. Holdsworth & Evans acted for them; I did know, but I forget.
 10972. What amount of money was on the building? £800.
 10973. What did it realize? £1,000.
 10974. You gave £1,000 for it? I gave more than that; I gave £1,000 at the sale, and then offered to let them have it back again if they could rally round and make it up; and I transferred it back again to them. We had a law suit coming on in connection with one of our brothers who was in the mad-house, and they said there was no other way of meeting the expense but to sell the hall, and I bought it back again, and gave another £100 besides, paying all expenses.
 10975. What became of the difference between the £800 and the £1,200 that the building fetched? There was money they had to pay to the Master in Lunacy, 40 odd pounds. We had paid £160 on account of this brother during the last five years, and had knocked off paying because the youngest girl became of age to work for her own living, and there were no children depending on him; but the Master in Lunacy came on us for back money. That is why they sold the hall back to me again.
 10976. What was that amount? I do not remember; I could not say exactly.
 10977. But about the amount? They had to pay I think about £47.
 10978. And that £47 was a part of the money over and above satisfying the mortgage? Certainly it was.
 10979. And what became of the balance? The trustees had it.
 10980. But you say they have now only £70 to their credit? About that.
 10981. Then you have lost money? Yes, we have, considerably. We have had very heavy sickness, and have two on the superannuation fund, and have only about fifty-two financial members. The doctor's bill every quarter comes to about £17. I have put a motion on the table to levy all the Lodge 3d. a week to put us in a better position again.
 10982. Then you think the sum you are paying now is not sufficient? No, not with this heavy burden upon us; we are not clearing our expenses, but are going back £12 or £14 a year.
 10983. When was the hall sold? I could not say.
 10984. Was it two years ago? Yes, about that. There was nearly £100 owing on the mortgage, and perhaps more than that.
 10985. And you hold the property now? Yes.
 10986. And you say the Society contemplates raising its contributions? Yes.
 10987. So as to increase the income? Yes.
 10988. Has any such resolution been tabled? No, it was to have come off last meeting, but I forgot the night, and there was no action taken.
 10989. Do you make any new members? Very few.
 10990. Many leaving? No. We tried to make a fresh start some time ago, and made ten or twelve members; with that exception we have made no new members for four years.
 10991. Does the Society still meet in the hall? Yes, in the small hall.
 10992. Do they pay rent? 5s. a meeting; fortnightly.
 10993. What do you pay your doctor per member? I think 5s. 8d. per quarter.
 10994. And the chemist? He finds his own medicine.
 10995. Does the hall pay a fair interest on the purchase money? Just now it does; but the first twelve months I was some £20 out.
 10996. It is used for other purposes than Temperance Societies? Oh, yes. I let it for any Society. The I.O.O.F. meets there, the Druids have been meeting there, the Good Templars, the Orange Lodge, and the Protestant Alliance all meet there.
 10997. Mr. Holdsworth.] Are you still paying for this member in the Lunatic Asylum? We have not paid lately, and looking at the Friendly Societies Act we see he cannot claim more than £200. We have talked it over, and have let it run on, to try and make the money up amongst ourselves so as not to let it affect the Lodge.
 10998. Does not that refer to £200 at the time of death? I cannot say; I think it would be a good thing if you were to take that into consideration in reference to brethren going out of their minds. I do not think when a man is the same as this man receiving all this money that the Master in Lunacy should come on the Benefit Society when a lot of men are trying hard to keep up the Lodge.
 10999. How long is it since that hall was begun? Fourteen years about.
 11000. Your division was then in a flourishing position, was it not? Yes; we levied some nine years ago 3d. each to try and get the hall out of its difficulties, but the members dwindled down to about fifty, and then we got up to sixty-two.
 11001. Was it not the building of that hall that created all the difficulties of the Division? It had a great deal to do with it.
 11002. You spent your funds and became involved? Yes.
 11003. And a run of sickness came and you had no funds? There is a great deal of truth in that.
 11004. You have made numerous efforts to get over the difficulties? I have a motion coming on next quarterly night to do so.
 11005. You have the power under your rules to levy in cases of emergency? Yes.
 11006. And you have exercised that power? No, I do not think so.
 11007. Mr. Abigail.] You have had legal advice? Yes; we saw Mr. Brown on the subject of the claim by the Master in Lunacy, and he said we had better pay the money.
 11008. Mr. Smith.] You had been paying this man sick-pay prior to his going into the Asylum? Yes; we paid a guinea a week for six months, and he got well and came on the funds four different times.
 11009. Then he had got down to the lowest scale of sick-pay allowed him? Yes.
 11010. And you were responsible for that man during the whole of his illness? Yes.
 11011. And the debt which you were asked to pay was only created under this low scale? Yes.
 11012. And under that you owed some £40? Yes.
 11013. You were in possession of funds during that period? Yes.
 11014. That was the only liability of any importance that you have had for years? Yes; we had several times six or seven members on the books. I think our Lodge, from what I can hear of the Sons of Temperance, has paid more money away for sick benefits in proportion to its members than any other I have heard of.

Mr. H. Austen,
30 June, 1882.

11015. Did the action of the Master in Lunacy in demanding this money bring about the selling of the hall? Yes; that is, the second time; they were trying to recover themselves to make up the money to me when this threatening letter came to them, and they decided at once to let the hall go again.

11016. Is there not a peculiar history connected with the management and disposal of this hall? No, I do not think so.

11017. Has not the management of this hall had to do with retarding the progress of the Society? No, I do not think so, any further than I believe in the first place we had seven as good men as we could possibly get as Trustees; but when they found that one after another kept dropping off, and that the work was left to them, they began to get tired and let the thing go; but as a Lodge we had good, honest, honorable men as Trustees of the hall.

11018. When that hall was built it was built under very favourable circumstances, was it not? It was built with a heavy mortgage, though we had at the time a good many members and things looked favourable.

11019. But the mortgage of £800 was not the original mortgage? Yes.

11020. Is no portion of that compound interest? Not one shilling of it.

11021. The mortgagee in that case was Mr. S. C. Brown? He was the agent for the mortgagee.

11022. It was from his office you got the money? Yes, he acted for a principal.

11023. He allowed the Trustees considerable latitude, did he not? He allowed them to run a long way back.

11024. Were not several attempts made on the part of the members before you became the purchaser to dispose of the hall? Yes, they tried for some time to sell it privately, but they could not get a customer.

11025. They could have got a customer, could they not, provided the Trustees had been willing to convey? No, I do not think so; there was only one person that I can remember that offered any money or made any inquiry about it at all. I was appointed to see one gentleman who had an idea of purchasing, and I told him what we wanted, but he would not come up to the mark.

11026. Did the Society place the property before the Government? Yes.

11027. Was that with the consent of the original Trustees or of the second batch of Trustees? With the consent of the Hall Committee and of the Trustees.

11028. They were not in the Colony when the bother took place? Not all of them.

11029. And it was through that that the building was not then sold? No, we got leave from them all to sell it; we offered it to the Government, but they did not accept it.

11030. Do you think from your experience of that Society that the action taken in reference to this building has had an injurious effect on the operations of your Society? Yes, I think it has, because it has caused them to fall out amongst themselves instead of trying to get the hall out of debt.

11031. And it has had the effect of causing a great number of your original members to leave the Society? Yes, it was the cause of perhaps more than half of them leaving.

11032. And you have never put the law into operation by summoning these persons for their arrears, but have allowed them to go? No, we have not, and that is where we have made a mistake.

Mr. Jacob Audet sworn and examined:—

11033. President.] What Society do you represent? The American Constitution of Oddfellows.

11034. Known as the Independent Order of Oddfellows? Yes.

11035. What office do you hold? None.

11036. Have you held office? I have not in that Society.

11037. How long have you been a member? About two years and a half, I think.

11038. Have you some cause of complaint against the Society? Yes.

11039. What is the nature of that complaint? Embezzlement, extortion of money, and doing away with Lodge's money unconstitutionally.

11040. Who has been guilty of embezzlement? A man of the name of Cavenagh, a Lodge Secretary.

11041. What Lodge was it? The Pride of the South. I do not belong to it now; I am an expelled member.

11042. What amount of money did he embezzle? When I found out something was wrong I brought forward a motion that an investigation should take place, and asked that the pence-books should be called in, and by them we found out, I think, that something like £80 odd was wrong; but they would not let me go on, and I suffered a great deal of abuse, they saying I was trying to bring the Order into disgrace. One night I was determined to go to a Magistrate and get a warrant, but he brought in £11 Os. 3d., and that was all the money we had of him.

11043. Was he Treasurer of the Lodge? Secretary.

11044. Do you know where he lives? I have not the slightest idea; he was a teacher with Mr. Cannon, of the Lyceum School.

11045. What other embezzlements were there—any other cases? The very first I found out I found that the expenses were so enormous that I cannot call it anything but embezzlement. The institution of the Lodge cost £48, when the things purchased could have been had for £20; that was by a man named Garcia, in Park-street. Other Lodges have made the same complaint, paying £50, £60, and up to £100, the night of opening the Lodge.

11046. Who received this £40 odd? Garcia, as expenses.

11047. He received it on the night of the Lodge being brought into existence? I think the night after the institution, when I was not there; he brought it forward at the first meeting at which I was present.

11048. What was the name of the Lodge you speak of? The Pride of the South.

11049. Is there any other case? Yes; a member was initiated the night before I was, and about two or three months afterwards it was found that he was subject to fits. A communication was made to the Lodge that this member was certainly in the Order under false pretences. A committee was appointed, and they exonerated him if he gave an indemnity that the wife should not come on them for the funeral money. I objected to that, and I kept on for two years, but such cliques have been formed and such disgraceful disgraceful things done that it was no use. Money has been voted away by several Lodges—the Golden Gate is one—and if any objection was made by me a charge was laid against me. Again, Mr. Cannon brought a charge against a man of the name of Wilkins, living in Albion-street; his sick money came to something like £8, and Mr. Cannon charged him with suffering from venereal disease. The Lodge moved in the matter, and the doctor gave evidence and said he had nothing of the kind, but the man left the Order. The initiation money in the Waratah Lodge came to £43, and it was stated that the expenses were £57.

11050. Is there anything else you wish to bring under the notice of the Commission? I wish to bring my case forward to show how I was dealt with through trying to bring about an understanding.

11051. But is there any other case of fraud or misappropriation of money? Money has been voted to officials that was not for that purpose at all, and we began to speak against it, but were powerless.

The Commission then adjourned until Monday, 3rd July.

MONDAY, 3 JULY, 1882.

Dr. Walter William Joseph O'Reilly sworn and examined:—

Dr. W. W. J. 11052. President.] You are I understand Honorary Secretary to the New South Wales Branch of the O'Reilly. British Medical Association? I am.

3 July, 1882. 11053. You forwarded a copy of a report from the Association to the Commission? Yes.

11054. Have you had any experience in connection with Friendly Societies as Medical Officer? Yes, for the first four or five years of my practice I had a good deal of practice with them; but since that time I have given up all my Lodges with the exception of one, which I now carry on.

11055. Then you have no Societies at present? I have one—Court Robin Hood of the Foresters.

11056. What payments do they make to you? £1 a year per member.

11057. That is without a chemist? They find their own chemist.

11058. During your experience as Medical Officer of several Societies have you found there has been a lack in the kind of necessary examination of candidates seeking admission, in having no proper form provided? Certainly there has been no proper form; the Foresters provide the best form I have seen, but the Temperance Societies have simply a book in which the medical officer certifies to the candidate's soundness.

11059. I see from the recommendations made by the Association that one of the first has a reference to a form for examination? Yes.

11060. In which you recommend that a form somewhat similar to that of Life Assurance offices should be adopted? Yes; but not quite so extended.

11061. Look at this form (produced) and see if you would recommend a form like it (a Life Assurance medical form)? Some of these might be left out with benefit, such as height of body, circumference of chest, and so on.

11062. Have not the height and weight something to do with health and long life? Yes, so have all these things, but still for a man entering a Lodge we do not consider it is necessary he should pass so strict an examination as in going through an Insurance office. To fill up one of these takes about half-an-hour, and that would be rather much to ask of a medical man for each of his Lodge members, especially as most of the Lodges pay no fee. We refer specially to the question in the first page of Life Assurance forms.

11063. Would you have any objection as Secretary of the Association to obtain from the Association a copy of a paper that you think sufficient for the purposes of examination for all Societies? I will lay it before the general meeting on Friday next.

11064. Will you kindly send us a digest of what you think sufficient? Yes.

11065. Then in reference to the second paragraph where you suggest that medical benefits should "be confined to mechanics, labourers, journeymen, small traders, and to people with small incomes," as you state also you find that a large number "of people with considerable means—merchants, bank managers, Members of Parliament, builders, contractors, &c.—at present avail themselves to a very large extent of the medical benefits intended for their less affluent brethren." Do you find that this at the present time—as contained in the paragraph—exists to a large extent? To a very large extent, and it has been the source of a good deal of misunderstanding between the doctors and the Lodges. Many men have joined a Lodge when they were men just entering life, and as they have got on they have become wealthy men, but they have kept in the Lodges and accepted the doctor's attendance. For instance, Lodge doctors have been asked to go as far out as Marrickville to attend a patient—a man who has occupied civic positions—I am telling this from hearsay.

11066. But we want what you know? Well, I know of merchants getting the Lodge doctor to attend their families, and it causes a great deal of heartburn amongst medical men that they should be compelled to attend these men who might receive the other benefits of the Lodge, and yet pay their own doctor's fees; they complain principally that these people give them more trouble than the ordinary Lodge members.

11067. But it is not a fact that a large number of the classes you mention here do not participate in the benefits? They avail themselves of the services of the doctor.

11068. But is there not a large proportion who do not do that? I do not know, but there are a great many men who receive medical attendance who are well off. I know a man in a Lodge who was able to sell a property worth £5,000, and who has the club doctor attending himself and his family.

11069. Then your Society regards these Societies as simply for mechanics, labourers, small traders, and journeymen? Yes.

11070. And not for persons better off in life? No.

11071.

11071. And you think it is a misapplication on the part of patients more fortunately situated in life? Yes; we hardly think it is right they should avail themselves of the medical benefits; we think it would be graceful on their part to retire and not expect the doctor's services. Many of these gentlemen have large families, and it is rather hard on a doctor if he has to travel a great distance and attend those families, when they might be able to buy him ten times out. Dr. W. W. J.
O'Reilly.
3 July, 1882.
11072. You are aware that there is no law or rule? Yes, we know that; we know we have to submit to it, but it would not be felt so much if it were not that this class of persons the doctors find most troublesome.
11073. I see in the third paragraph you recommend that there should be a uniform payment to medical men? That there should be not less than £1 per annum.
11074. Are you of opinion that £1 is sufficient to ensure attendance on members, their wives and families? Yes, we think it is; it is a fair payment if confined to the class we speak of, within a certain radius.
11075. You also recommend that the fee in cases of accouchement should be increased? Should be increased up to two guineas.
11076. Would you give the Commission the benefit of your opinion with the reason why there should be a fee of two guineas; is it because of the continual attendance? The medical men think the fee at present is too low, the maximum being as far as I know £1 12s. 6d. The attendance on a midwifery case occupies a good deal of time, and there is the after attendance at least for nine days, and sometimes that is continued for a month or two months, according to the nature of the disease which may set in afterwards. But the medical men think that two guineas is a reasonable fee, and I do not know whether you have it in our recommendations, but they thought if one guinea was paid by the member and one by the Society the two guineas would be a fair thing. It is owing to the time consumed in attending these cases that makes us think we do not receive sufficient remuneration for them at present.
11077. You are aware that the payments to medical men in connection with these Societies is regulated pretty well by the medical profession themselves, by the doctors who take the Societies? Yes, to a great extent that is quite true, but I do not think the Societies in the long run get the good they might do if they started with a uniform system of payment. If they gave such a thing as not less than £1 a certain class of medical men would tender for Societies who now hold aloof and allow young men to tender for Societies at a low rate. Some Lodges take them at 15s., 12s., and even as low as 10s. a year; the result is that the doctor in some cases looks upon it as an arrangement to make money, and patients belonging to that Lodge are not attended to in the way in which they should be, as the doctor thinks he has been cheated to some extent; that has led to a good deal of indifferent attendance on some of the patients, and a good deal of complaint on the part of the doctors. I think Benefit Societies would get better attendance and be much better treated if there was a uniform payment of a guinea or a pound a year.
11078. You are aware that it is not only the amount paid per annum that medical men take Societies for in starting their practice, but the collateral good which results in building up a practice? Yes, I am aware of this, that when I went in to take Lodges to get a standing I found after a time that my worst patients were my Lodge patients, because if I happened to displease them they were the most bitter against me, and it was to my advantage to give them up as soon as possible; I therefore gave them up all but this Lodge, which I have now at the high rate, and we work well together.
11079. But I presume some of the ablest and best men in the profession have commenced in this way with Societies? Yes, nearly all our men have done that.
11080. Indeed the best in Sydney? Yes, some of our very best men.
11081. And you are aware if a Society advertised for medical men to-morrow, there would be tenders at from 10s. upwards? Yes, there would be plenty of replies, but that sort of thing does not tend to promote the well being of Societies.
11082. Do all the members registered under the New South Wales Board belong to your Society? No, the majority in Sydney do belong to the Association; we number now about eighty-five members, some of whom are country members.
11084. You are of opinion that a medical man taking a Society for 10s. would not do justice? I do not see how he could, because he must have a large number of Societies to make it pay him. It does a medical man no good, nor the Lodges either, the slipshod way of prescribing and visiting that sometimes take place, and I don't think the doctor does justice to himself or the patient.
11085. Have you found that your prescriptions are faithfully dispensed? I have had reason to doubt this, because you would find the same prescription dispensed three or four times would vary each time in colour, in consistency, and in effect.
11086. Do you attribute that to the chemist being not sufficiently paid? I do.
11087. What would you consider a fair payment to be made to a chemist per head per year? I think the fairest way of paying a chemist is to take a percentage of the amount of medicine dispensed; for instance, medicines are dispensed at half-a-crown a bottle, and 25 or 33 per cent. might be taken off that.
11088. Who is the chemist to your Society? Mr. Rose, in George-street.
11089. Does he adopt that plan? No, he is paid 8s. per year per member, but the patients are constantly complaining themselves. I have not the means of verifying these statements at all times, because it would entail a long chemical analysis which I have not the time to do, but I do not think the system of paying so much a member works well. But in regard to this Lodge I may say they tried the percentage system with Mr. Watson, who allowed them 25 per cent., and I believe they found his account was in excess of mine, and that their funds would not stand it, so they had to go back to the old plan.
11090. What is your individual opinion with reference to members being permitted to belong to more than one Society? I do not think it is right. I think a man should belong to one Society only, because it has occurred to me that men who are earning about 30s. a week and belong to three Societies might come to me and get a certificate for each Society and thereby get £3 a week or double his usual income. It is to his interest to mangle, giving me some trouble and him no inducement to get well.
11091. Have you found during your experience a disposition on the part of many members to be placed on the funds who are not really sick? Well, in certain Lodges I have found it. I had a Lodge in which there were a good many lumpers on the wharves, and I found that they got lumbago and things of that sort when there were not many ships in the harbour loading.

- Dr. W. W. J. O'Reilly.
3 July, 1882.
11092. And you think the cure for that would be not to permit persons to be members of more than one Society? I think so.
11093. Do you think that in any new legislation that should be a provision? Yes, decidedly.
11094. You know the contributions paid by most members of the Societies? I cannot say that I do.
11095. Do you notice that you say in the fifth paragraph of your report that the members and Lodges of several Societies do not pay sufficient to place the Societies in a solvent position? Yes, I am aware of that, but I have no personal experience of what they pay.
11096. Do you know the amount of donations they make? I think it varies; I think it is about £15 in case of death.
11097. And up to £20 and £30? Yes; I think they are very liberal donations.
11098. What information did your Branch of the British Medical Association receive in order to cause them to place this recommendation in? A committee was appointed, consisting of about six members, and some of these had personal experience. Dr. Belgrave was one who was strong on that point, and he spoke principally upon that. I may say that in drawing up that report there was a divisional opinion as to how far we should go, and a first report from the committee was rejected, it being considered that it went outside of the medical bearing of the Friendly Societies, and it was considered that in drawing up this report we should keep strictly to the medical bearing of the case. That may account for some of us not knowing so much about the contributions, because it struck some of us that it did not quite concern us.
11099. I presume it is generally known that the contributions paid are scarcely sufficient to ensure all the benefits promised? I know they vary, but I could not speak positively as to that.
11100. Have you known during your experience of any cases of defalcation on the part of officers or members of the Societies? Not in my own Societies.
11101. In any of the Societies you have had to do with? No, not as far as I remember.
11102. Do you know anything of the financial position of the Societies you have had to do with as to their ability to pay? One Society I know—I think it was a Sons of Temperance Lodge—which had to amalgamate with some other Society in order to save themselves from insolvency.
11103. I find also that there is a recommendation from your Association that a Friendly Societies Bank should be established;—do you not think the present facilities granted by the Government Savings' Banks and the P.O. Savings' Bank are sufficient for the purpose? No, we do not think they are quite sufficient. We think it well to establish such a bank, for this reason: We know that in many instances the head of the family is taken sick, and delay has taken place in getting the certificate of ill-health sent in, and perhaps a week or so has elapsed before he receives his pay, so that the time he most requires it passes by. It would facilitate his getting his money if there was a bank at which these orders could be presented and paid. All moneys received by Friendly Societies might also be paid into this Bank. We consider this Bank should receive small sums, and should be open at night, so that when a Lodge has its meeting, and closes at (say) half-past 9, its Treasurer might go and pay the money into the Bank at once.
11104. Then it is simply to make payments of sick pay to members and of the funeral donations? Yes, and so that members themselves should pay their money in and get credit for it, and that all the financial matters could be carried on through this Bank instead of through the Societies.
11105. Do you think that would simplify the working of the Societies? We think it would.
11106. And afford greater security? We think so.
11107. Then you don't think the present arrangement with the Post Office Savings Bank meet the want? No, because, it would want somebody who would be well up in the working of Friendly Societies themselves, and I do not see that any of our other institutions could meet the want.
11108. You are aware that a shilling can be deposited there? Yes.
11109. So the smallest contributions might be paid in? Yes; but we recommend a Bank for carrying on all the operations of Friendly Societies only.
11110. And that they are to pay their contributions into this Society through their Bank? Yes, and to have a book in which they would have credit for their payments, and the Secretaries would be apprised that such and such members had paid their contributions. Then, in case of sickness, a man could get his certificate from the doctor, and it could be signed by the Secretary, and the money be paid at once.
11111. You also recommend, in order that this Commission should be in a position to be of some real service, two medical men and two actuaries should be appointed;—are you aware that we have already examined—I think you are the sixth medical man examined in connection with the Societies? We think that there are many things that would come up in reference to which it would be well to have medical men on the Commission, and that it would facilitate the working of this Commission, and that they would be able to elicit matters that men outside the profession would not be able to do.
11112. I presume that you are also unaware of the fact that one actuary has already been examined, and a second has been summoned and would have been present but that he is in South Australia? I am not aware of it.
11113. Do you think that medical men as a rule pay as much attention to Lodge patients as to their private patients? I think if they got better pay the patients would get better attention. A great deal depends upon who the medical man is, and upon the elasticity of his conscience, but I think, taking it as a whole, club patients do not get the attention private patients would.
11114. Have you any suggestions to make that might be of service beyond this report? No, I cannot say I have; that embodies pretty well all I wish to say.
11115. Mr. Smith.] Touching that question of the Bank business, do you know of its being in operation anywhere? It was stated at our meetings that such a system was carried out in Paris.
11116. Dealing entirely with the business of Friendly Societies? I could not say whether it deals entirely with the Societies.
11117. Is it a Government Institution or established by the Societies themselves? It is a Government Institution. I believe my recommendation would be that this should be a Government Institution.
11118. That would virtually supersede the business of Friendly Societies altogether? No, I don't see that, because it would only contain the money of each Society, the money being paid into and through this Bank.
11119. You have had no personal experience of the internal working of Friendly Societies? No, none whatever.
11120. You know there are governing bodies in connection with them known as Districts or Grand Lodges?
11121. Yes.

11121. And there are a number of subordinate Lodges which constitute these Districts? Yes.
11122. You know it is the business of the subordinate Lodges to meet once a fortnight and receive the moneys of their members? No, I cannot say I know that.
11123. And that it is not compulsory on the part of the member himself to neglect his work and to attend the meeting? I did not know it, but would infer it.
11124. Has it ever been brought under your notice that in numbers of cases the wives and children of members attend and pay the contributions, thereby saving a loss of time and salary to the member himself? Yes. I have assumed that from cases which have come under my notice.
11125. And that the Lodges themselves are generally situated in the localities where the persons reside? Not invariably, because I know I have very long distances to go to see some of my patients.
11126. But they are only exceptional cases? No, I cannot say so; many of them live as far as the Annandale Estate, and the Lodge room is in Castlereagh-street, while others live in Paddington and other places as far away.
11127. Do you know it is the business of the Lodges to receive the moneys from the members and generally watch over the interests of the Lodge? Yes.
11128. And see that the moneys are paid at the proper time to the sick members of that Lodge? I believe it is their business to do it; but I know that the wives of members have complained to me that none of the visiting members have been to them, nor have they received their sick pay.
11129. Do you know of any particular instances in which that has occurred? I could not answer that now. I could not give you the exact instances.*
11130. I understood you to say you had been many years the medical officer of Court Robin Hood? Yes, about eight years I think.
11131. Has ever an instance of that character been brought under your notice with a member of that Lodge? Yes, I have been told by the wives of members that they did not get their pay for a week afterwards, but I cannot furnish you just now with the particular instance; but once or twice in that Court it has occurred, and in some of the other Societies which I had I know it has occurred.
11132. Of course you are aware that all payments must be made on your certificate? Yes.
11133. Has not a difficulty arisen in obtaining your certificate? No, I am not aware of it. I do not know that the members at any time have had a difficulty in obtaining my certificate if they were entitled to it.
11134. You know that any neglect on the part of the medical man —? Yes, I know, but the instances I refer to have not been from any cause of that kind.
11135. You know that the laws of that Court and all other Friendly Societies require that the money shall be paid on a Saturday, and not later than 9 at night? No, I am not aware of that.
11136. With regard to recommendation No. 2 in this report, you refer simply to the medical attendance? Yes.
11137. That is the principal benefit to which you object? Yes.
11138. Is it not a fact that yourself and all the medical men who have to deal with Societies are receiving the annual pay per member for these persons you set out here? Yes, but we would gladly give up the annual pay and allow them to become private patients.
11139. Would you prefer a Society to make a distinction? No, but we would get over that difficulty; we do not object to these persons remaining in the Society; but we consider it would be graceful on their part to give up their medical connection with the Society; and of course if they do not avail themselves of the doctor's services they should not pay for them.
11140. Then you would not receive the annual pay for them? We would receive nothing from them.
11141. Has it ever occurred to you that the class of persons mentioned in this second paragraph are the most valuable members in connection with Friendly Societies? Probably they are.
11142. Has it ever been brought under your notice that these persons never receive any benefits other than the medical benefits, that is, if the members themselves are sick, suffering from accident or anything else, they never apply to the Lodge for the weekly sick pay? I can quite believe that.
11143. And that these men are the men who do very nearly all the work in connection with Friendly Societies? It is quite possible.
11144. They spend their time, they spend their money, and take no other benefit than the benefit I have now mentioned, namely, the medical assistance? Yes, that is quite possible.
11145. Is it within your knowledge that these members do not use the Society's chemist—they prefer to pay for their own medicines? Yes, I dare say some of them may do that, as also some of the "less affluent."
11146. Is it not a fact well known to the medical profession that numbers of these persons who are in good circumstances and do receive the professional attendance from the Lodge doctor, after having treated themselves or their families successfully, they are often the recipients of handsome monetary presents? I have never heard of it.
11147. You are not one of the lucky ones then? I suppose not.
11149. You know nothing of such an association? I do not.
11150. If such an association is established do you think it would in any way be in harmony with the recommendations as set out in paragraph No. 2 of your report? It would not be in harmony if such men belonged to an association of that kind. It depends upon what their contributions are. I do not know what the Society attempts.
11151. You say here, I notice, that you do not consider it wise for a man to belong to two Societies? Yes.
11152. Are you in possession of any experience you could give the Commission why that principle should be carried out in any future legislation? No more than that I remember one patient who used to get himself laid up. When the receipts were not more than £1 a week he used to come to me and try to claim to get on two Lodges; that put me to some trouble to see whether he was sick or not, and we had some difference of opinion as to his suitability for going on the funds.
11153. What do you receive from your Court in midwifery cases? £1 11s. 6d.
11154. Is that paid by the Court? The whole of the amount is paid by the Court; they pay me and have in some instances had to lose the amount or summon the members for it. 11155.

* NOTE (on revision) :—I believe the wife of a patient residing at Woollahra so complained.

- Dr. W. W. J. O'Reilly.
3 July, 1882.
11155. Are you aware that there are a number of Courts belonging to that same Order that pay two guineas for such services? I am not aware of it.
11156. Mr. Abigail.] Am I right in concluding that the reason of your Association adopting the clause about the Friendly Societies Bank was that it would prevent the possibility of defalcations? That was one object.
11157. And another that it would facilitate the members getting sick pay quicker than at present? Yes; those were two of the principal reasons which induced us to adopt the suggestion.
11158. In reference to paragraph No. 2, that so much has been spoken of, do I understand that your Association would like the medical attendance to be entirely separated from the provident portion of the objects of Friendly Societies? Yes.
11159. So you do not arrive at that conclusion strictly for the benefit of the Societies but for the benefit of the profession? Well, I think at the present time there is some such arrangement as that, because I know there are at the present time members of my Lodge who do not register for me and who do not employ me. Young men join the Lodge and keep off the doctor's list. Then when they get a little advanced in years they will register for the doctor, so I think we have a little cause for complaint.
11160. Are you aware that it is optional with a member to register for the doctor or not? Yes, he may or he may not, just as he pleases.
11161. Are you aware that the doctor's registration fees are about a shilling a quarter, and that by paying that amount the member can get the whole of the benefits without any additional payment on his part, that is, that his weekly contribution carries all the benefits if he pays this additional shilling registration fee per quarter; are you aware of that? No, I am not.
11162. In carrying out this you do not seek to save the sick funds—you would let those people take all the sick pay and funeral donations, but not the medical benefits. I cannot quite catch you there.
11163. Is your Society prepared to allow all the members, no matter what the financial position may be, to receive the sick benefits in money as well as the funeral donations? Certainly, but not the medical benefits, if the Lodge will receive such persons.*
11164. That of course is purely for the benefit of the medical profession? Yes, exactly so.
11165. Mr. Greville.] In so far as these Societies give amounts of money on the death of a member or on the death of a member's wife you recognize them as Insurance Societies? Yes.
11166. And I presume that the payment of £20 in one of these Societies would be of as much importance to that Society as that of £1,000 in the Mutual Provident? Well, I do not know; perhaps they would feel it more.
11167. Then do you not think it is of as great importance to these Societies that there should be as strict an examination on admission as to any large Insurance Company? Yes, it ought to be to a certain extent, but I do not think the examination need be quite so strict, because there are many men who might not be admitted to an Insurance Company who are well enough to go into an ordinary Friendly Society and get the benefits in which large sums of money are not involved.
11168. But if there is a payment made on the death of a member it is of the utmost importance that nothing but good lives should be brought in unless an extra risk be paid? Well, you would have a great many kept out of Friendly Societies in that case. If a man comes to me and I find that his father or mother have had consumption, I would admit him as a member of a Lodge, but I would not admit him as a member of an Insurance Society.
11169. You would admit him as a member of a Lodge knowing that the Society would have to pay £20 at the man's death? Yes, I would admit that man so far as the rules of the Societies hold at present; because if I took up any Society in Sydney and went through the Society, and submitted them to such an examination as this, one-third or one-fourth would have to be struck off the list.†
11170. Then one-third or one-quarter of the members of Societies are lives that would not be passed by Insurance Companies? Yes.
11171. Then do you not think that the sooner the friendly principle is separated from the commercial the better for these Societies? Yes.
11173. Demand and supply will govern the question? Yes.
11174. Struggling young men who wish to obtain a practice take the Lodges at a low rate? Yes, so as to get an introduction into practice.
11175. If the price was made as recommended here Lodges would be in a position that almost any of the medical men would go for them? Yes, a larger number of men would be found to choose from, and the Lodges would be better served if there was such a minimum.
11176. Do you not think in that case that those gentlemen who had been for a time in practice would be most likely to have the engagements? Quite possibly.
11177. And the young men would be out in the cold? Possibly.
11178. And thus the older members of the profession would be shutting their younger brethren out of the Lodges? That might be the case undoubtedly.
11179. You say the examination is not so strict as in an Insurance Society? No.
11180. Insurance Societies only cover one risk—that of death? Yes.
11181. And in Lodges it is for sickness as well? Yes.
11182. There are many risks that will affect the health that will not affect the life? I do not know.
11183. Are there not many complaints that are likely to prevent a man working that will not affect his life? Yes.
11184. And for these the Societies have to pay so much a week? Yes.
11185. Then do you not think the examination ought to be more minute? Yes; we think so.
11186. More so than for an Insurance Society? No; you cannot have it much more minute than an examination for an insurance office.
11187. I think I understood you to say that if you went through the Lodges with such an examination one-third would be thrown out? Well, perhaps that is too high; say one-fourth. 11188.

* NOTE (on revision):—Our Association suggests that these persons should not be allowed to join Friendly Societies, as their position does not place them in need of sick benefits, funeral donations, and medical attendance, as provided through these Societies.

† NOTE (on revision):—Nearly all the persons who join a Society join it for the purpose of getting the medical attendance.

Dr. W. W. J.
O'Reilly.

3 July, 1882.

11188. And yet the usual rule is to accept them on a medical certificate? Yes.
11189. And do you think as a rule the medical officer does not examine fully? We have a book by which we have to certify. If I am asked if in his present position the candidate is in a good state of health I must answer that without reference to the past or probable future.
11190. But if from want of knowledge the Friendly Societies trust entirely to the medical men, do you not think they should be more careful? Yes, and I think they are careful in the majority of instances, but we cannot go beyond our instructions. I have been looked upon with opprobrium because I refused to pass certain parties.
11191. There is an objection made that only certain classes should be allowed the medical benefits. If a person has paid for fifteen or twenty years regularly for a medical man, during which time he has had no sickness, do you not think he is fairly entitled to take the medical assistance from the doctor afterwards? Yes, he is quite entitled to take it; but during time what has he contributed? Say £20; and at the end of that time he can in many cases count his money by thousands of pounds.
11192. But do you think the amount of money a man makes has anything to do with a question of abstract right? No; we say we cannot refuse to attend these men, but we do not think it is right; it is availing themselves of that which is to a great extent a charity.
11193. Are not Friendly Societies based on certain calculations the same as Insurance Societies? I believe they are.
11194. Is there any charity in Insurance Societies? I do not see that there is.
11195. Is there any charity in paying for that which you expect to receive? Well, we do not think they do a graceful thing in continuing to receive this attendance from the medical men.
11196. In fact you keep strictly to the medical bearing of the case, the object being the advantage of the medical profession? No; we try to further the interests of the Society as far as possible. There was an inclination to go beyond this and take up the whole question, but it was not done.
11197. Mr. Rubie.] You desired to have it legalized by enactment that the rate should not be less than £1 per member? We thought it would be conducive to the interests both of the Societies and of the medical men.
11198. Do you not think this would be imposing a burden upon the Lodges when they can get served for less? I do not think they get served as well now as they would then.
11199. Were there not members of that committee medical men who are receiving less? I could not say that, but it is quite possible or even probable there were.
11200. Mr. Newland.] Do I understand you that it is the young medical men who go in for Lodges at a cheap rate? It is not entirely, but mostly confined to them.
11201. I should like to know if the names on this list (produced) are those of young men? Many of them are young men.*
11202. Many of them have been some years in practice? Nearly all are young men who have been in practice from one to five or six years.
11203. President.] You see that list of names and prices attached to them offering to take a Society of Oddfellows? Yes.
11204. You observe that the prices vary from 10s. to 20s.? Yes.
11206. Referring to that, does it appear that the lowest tender was accepted? No, not according to that.
11207. Then do Societies often pass over the lowest tenders? Yes.
11208. Mr. Newland.] In your answers to other members of the Commission in reference to the examination of candidates, are you aware that members of Friendly Societies can take out eleemosynary benefits alone to the extent of £300? No, I am not aware of it.
11209. Mr. Slade.] In the first recommendation in your report you complain that doctors are not paid for the examination of candidates? Yes.
11210. When the quarterly bill is tendered to the medical men do they make any difference for those who have been examined and admitted the week before, and those who have been on the list the whole quarter? In my Lodge I get my list furnished at the commencement of each quarter, and I do not get any new names until it is furnished again. As soon as I pass a member his name is not placed on my list. If a candidate came to me to-night and I examined him I would not get his name possibly until the 1st of October, although sometimes I may get a few names sent up to me.
11211. Do you not get so much per quarter for every member good on the books at the end of the quarter? That I cannot answer; I am furnished with a list of the members entitled to the medical benefits, but I do not know what their position is; I assume it to be good, and I attend to them.
11212. Do you not in tendering tender to supply every member good on the books at the end of the quarter? According to a certain list at so much per quarter.
11213. Does not that comprise all that are entitled to the benefits? No, because it is optional with the members to register for the doctor or not.
11214. If a man is examined by you his name would come on the next list the same as if he had been on during the whole quarter? No, I may examine him and he may never appear on my list at all.
11215. Regarding the second recommendation, do you think the medical profession have any better means of knowing the circumstances in life of people than any one else? I think their opportunities to know how they live are probably better than those of others.
11216. Then do you know of your own knowledge whether many of the mechanical and labouring classes are not much better off than the builder or contractor who employs them? I know a good many of them are well off, and that many of the builders and merchants and others are in a good position.
11217. I want you to say whether you do not know that many men who occupy positions in the exceptions you name are, though in that position, poor? No, we refer to people who are wealthy.
11218. In that position and wealthy? Yes.
11219. Can you give any reason why the law of contracts should not be as honestly carried out by the medical profession as in the case of other people? No, I cannot. 11220.

* Note (by the Secretary).—The list referred to purported to be that of a number of medical men who had tendered for a Lodge at prices affixed to their names, but as there were no means of proving it it was not allowed to go into evidence.

- Dr. W. W. J. O'Reilly.
3 July, 1882.
11220. Are you aware of the practice of the medical profession in connection with the Manchester Unity? No; I have only had to do with the Foresters.
11221. Are Drs. Norrie, Steele, and Durham gentlemen who are likely to do justice to a Society which has engaged them? Yes, I think so.
11222. And are you aware that they attend that Society for 6s. each member? Well if they do they are dreadfully underpaid.
11223. Are you aware of it or not? I am not aware of it.
11224. Their salary is £250 a year each? Yes, I know that, and men try to get out of the Manchester Unity as soon as they can.
11225. Are you aware that in applications for that Institute there is a large number of applicants, and that keen canvassing goes on to get the appointment? Yes, I know that; but I do not know that there are so many as for other Lodges.
11226. Do you consider that the number of fourteen applying is a guarantee that there are medical gentlemen willing to take a less fee than that prescribed in your report? Yes.
11227. Are you aware that the Manchester Unity at this rate are any more neglected than a Society which pays a larger sum? I will not say that, but I know I have a good many Manchester Unity private patients.
11228. Do you think it is in any way just to attempt to coerce Societies into paying £1 for what people voluntarily offer to do for 6s.? That is a question that I could not answer you straight out; we do not seek to coerce, but we think if Friendly Societies paid that amount at the end of twelve months they would be a great deal better off than they are at present. You know well enough that complaints against medical men are loud and long; and referring to the Manchester Unity they are constantly changing their medical men; and the reason is that their men are so dreadfully overworked and have such a lot to do that it is only men who are wanting a stepping-stone to practice who take it, and then they immediately throw the Society up. I do not think the relation of medical man to the Lodge patient should be such as that.
11229. With regard to the fourth resolution, have you anything in your own personal experience to show the Commission that the fact of a man belonging to more than one Society leads him to malingering? Yes, there is the one case I have already mentioned.
11230. If a man is of provident habits can you give any reason why he should not pay into two Societies and why he should not receive the benefits he contracts for? Well it is a temptation to him. If you insure a house worth £1,000 for £1,000 in three offices, you do not get £3,000 if the house is burned down.
11231. Are you not aware that if a man belongs to three Societies he has to pay into the three? Yes.
11232. So the benefits would have to be correspondingly shared by them? Yes.
11233. Then there is the fifth resolution which speaks largely of the repudiation and bankruptcy of Societies: have you any personal knowledge of that? Not beyond what I have already mentioned.
11234. Then do you consider that one case justifies such a statement as that? I am not responsible for the whole of that.
11235. Can you give us any reasons in support of this resolution that the doctors' and chemists' money should be secured before anything else? We have not made a resolution to that effect.
11236. Yes, the sixth resolution says, "With a view to more perfect security your Committee is of opinion that the medical officers' and chemists' fund should be quite distinct from the benefit fund, particularly as it is desirable that every man should subscribe to the latter, while only a portion of the community is morally entitled to the former, it having been originated and continued for the exclusive benefit of those only whose incomes are of moderate amount." Has anything come under your personal observation? No, not under my personal observation.
11237. Do you know of any cases where Societies have been imposed upon by irregular practitioners? No, I do not know of any.
11238. Are they not liable to be imposed upon by persons who do not know their profession? I believe it is the rule that these Societies cannot employ any but legally qualified practitioners.
11239. Have the Societies the same remedy to recover that the doctors have? I believe so.
11240. Have the Societies any means of knowing when they do not get the proper attendance they pay for? I do not know.
11241. Mr. Gelding.] Do you know any medical gentleman who ever travelled 10 miles to see a Lodge patient? I know we are not compelled to attend patients at a greater radius than 3 miles.
11242. You are thoroughly aware that no gentleman has a right to attend a patient more than 3 miles away? Yes, I think all the medical men know that, but some of these men that have had to be attended live at the extreme boundary. Of course, being well off, they live in the suburbs, but they have had to be attended.
11243. I suppose you are aware that it is only within a short radius of Sydney that these cheap rates for attendance exist? Well, the means of getting about in the country are not so good as they are in Sydney.
11244. Do you not think it would be advisable for the Societies to combine and get a public dispensary? I think they would get better served.
11245. Do you not think these large dispensaries can get as good drugs as any private chemist? Exactly so. You would be in as good a position to get drugs, and perhaps better than at present. I would place more faith in the drugs got from the Manchester Unity than those from some of the chemists.
11246. Mr. Slade.] Have you in your practice noticed whether there is a greater tendency to venereal disease in members of Friendly Societies than in the general public? No, on the contrary, I think they are rather freer from that disease than others.

Mr. Richard Stapleton sworn and examined:—

- Mr. R. Stapleton.
3 July, 1882.
11247. Mr. Slade.] To what Society do you belong? The Parramatta Branch of the Guild.
11248. What is the name of the Branch? St. Patrick's.
11249. What is the number of members? 112.
11250. What money has it to its credit at the present time? Our total assets in property and money are about £1,200 in round numbers, but it is really more than that because our land has increased in value.

11251. What is the nature of the property? Freehold—mowry in the Bank and on mortgage, and regalia.
11252. Is it invested in accordance with the Friendly Societies Act? Yes, the Act of 1867.
11253. What proportion of it is represented by regalia? About £100. The regalia, I may state, is mostly pure gold, of the intrinsic value of say £60.
11254. Have you had much sickness lately? Yes, the last half year.
11255. More than usual? Yes, heavier than usual, but no deaths.
11256. Could you give us any idea of the average age of your members? No, I could not; many members have died lately who joined the Society twenty years ago. We have a few old members, but the majority average twenty-five to thirty.
11257. What is the rate of your subscriptions? 13d. to the General Fund and 1d. to the Widow and Orphans.
11258. What benefits do you give for that? Exactly the same as the other branches of the Guild in Sydney.
11259. Has your experience in the Society led you to believe that the subscriptions are adequate to meet the benefits you offer? I have not studied that very much.
11260. Has it proved sufficient hitherto? Yes, more than sufficient.
11261. Have you any idea of making them any more? No.
11262. You have seen no necessity for that? No, but I have not studied the matter.
11263. Have you noticed any particular age or trade at which your members die sooner than others? No, our members are principally labourers and those engaged in out-door exercise, and are generally healthy.
11264. Have you taken any account of the average ages at which your members die? No; most have died of old age so far.
11265. Have any circumstances come under your notice in which the present Act has not been sufficient for your purposes? No.
11266. Have you anything to suggest to this Commission as an amendment of that Act? No; so long as the rules of the Societies are approved of; I think their actual working might be left to the members themselves.
11267. As far as you have seen the present Act serves all purposes? Yes.
11268. Have you ever taken the question of a Superannuation Fund into consideration? No; we allow them a pension.
11269. Have you a Widow and Orphan Fund connected with your Order? Yes; we pay a penny a week for it.
11270. And what are the benefits you get from it? If a member dies who is over five years in the Society, the widow receives £10; over ten years, £15; and over fifteen years, £20.
11271. Mr. Smith.] You are independent? Yes.
11272. Not connected with the Council in Sydney? No.
11273. And you are working the Lodge on its own basis? Yes.
11274. How much of your assets is cash? £320, and there is a cottage which we value at £474, for which we have been offered £650.
11275. Have any of your funds been misappropriated in any way by your officers at any time? No.
11276. Have you had any disputes with your members? Very few.
11277. What is the nature of the disputes? Of a local nature; such as members breaking the minor rules, and being fined, and objecting.
11278. How did you deal with them? Enforced the fines strictly.
11279. Have they the right of appeal? Yes.
11280. To whom? To the full council; and if that is not satisfactory they can appeal to a council consisting of the past and present councillors.
11281. And all these councils are connected with your Lodge at Parramatta? Yes.
11282. Then there is no appeal from that individual Lodge? No.
11283. Have any of your members taken their grievances into the Courts of Law? No; not at any time.
11284. Do many persons fall into arrears? About two a year on an average.
11285. You do not enforce the provisions of the Act? We are not registered under the Act of 1873, only under that of 1867.
11286. You are not working under the present Act? No.
11287. Do you contemplate registering your rules under the Act? When this Commission is finished.
11288. How long have you been working in this way? Since the rules were registered in 1867.
11289. Have you had any difficulty in working your Order? No.
11290. Are you acquainted with the present Act? In a general way.
- The Commission then adjourned till Friday, 7th July.

Mr.
R. Stapleton.

Mr. Stephen Murphy sworn and examined:—

11291. President.] What Society are you a member of? Of the Manchester Unity, the United Brothers Lodge.
11292. You have written to the Commission on several occasions asking to be present to give evidence? Yes.
11293. What was the charge preferred against you by the Lodge? Slander.

Mr.
S. Murphy
7 July, 1882.

11294.

- Mr. S. Murphy.
7 July, 1882.
11294. Slandering whom? Certain officers of the Lodge.
11295. And were you expelled? Illegally; they say I am, but I claim to be a good member now.
11296. You regard their action as being illegal then? Yes.
11297. What was the reason you did not come when you were summoned to give evidence? Well, I will tell you, and I hope this Commission will not be prejudiced against me until they hear my statement. Sometime ago I wrote to the Secretary and to Mr. Abigail, bringing the matter before them, and it was so long before I got an answer that I thought I would try the District Court again for redress; that was for the third time.
11298. What was the result in the District Court? The Judge told me he would not hear the case because the costs were not paid; and I argued that point with the Judge, and he said it was adjudicated upon before. I quoted the rules, and he said that as I had no solicitor I would not be able to argue the points of law that would be raised against me, and he would not hear what I had to say.
11299. And he nonsuited you? I was nonsuited each time.
11300. What was the nature of the mismanagement or fraud you complain of? I never said fraud.
11301. Well, then, the misappropriation of funds? No, I never said misappropriation. I ask that my papers may be read.

The Secretary then read from the papers forwarded by the witness the following portion of his statement:—

Plaintiff's statement, February 2, 1882.

I, STEPHEN MURPHY, plaintiff in this case, made application to this Court for redress (through counsel) against unjust expulsion from the Loyal United Brothers Lodge, No. 3592, O.O.F., M.U., at the June sittings of 1881, and claimed to be reinstated, but failed to obtain the redress I sought, as my counsel did not plead my case according to the instructions forwarded to my solicitor upon receipt of Sir George Lanes' written opinion. The consequence was that directly his Honor the Judge decided to go on with my case the defendant, Abraham Western Chapman, disappeared from the Court, having found out that he had not been summoned to produce the Lodge books of accounts and documents that I had instructed my solicitor to call for. My counsel then told me that unless I could serve the defendant with a subpoena to produce the books he could not go on with my case; that subpoena is now in my possession, and I was all the second day my case was on, 24th June, 1881, out of Court by my counsel's instructions hunting the Secretary up all over town, trying to find him but without success. While the plaintiff and defendant was out of Court the case was settled in some way. All I knew about it was that the first day's proceedings appeared in the Sydney Morning Herald of 24th June, 1881, wherein it stated that the case was adjourned, and no further report of the case has appeared since, and to this day I should never have found out what became of it, as I understood nothing whatever about law, and especially as my solicitor had sent me word in writing that it was a verdict for the defendant with costs in my case, but for obtaining a back number of the Daily Telegraph, last December, by which I was that his Honor the Judge had dismissed my case with costs, as I had not adduced sufficient evidence of unfairness to warrant him in disturbing the decision of the Lodge. Through the reasons stated I was unable to produce the books of accounts, and through being out of Court, as stated, I did not even have the chance of questioning any of the witnesses who were subpoenaed on my behalf; but finding that I could again appeal for redress to this Court, I set about preparing to plead my own case as I best could at this sittings, being without means to fee counsel, for I expended every penny I was possessed of, and even took a bill of sale on my furniture to bring the case on at the last June sittings, so as to clear my name from the stain put upon it, being arbitrarily expelled from a Benefit Society like a felon, and to regain the benefits of the Lodge for myself and my family, sick pay, medical attendance and medicines, funeral and superannuation money; and to make that provision for myself and family, I paid into the Loyal United Brothers Lodge my hard-earned contributions for nearly fifteen years. I am now prepared to adduce evidence of the greatest unfairness, and that I was wrongfully and in contravention of natural justice expelled without a hearing for inquiring after the Lodge Funds, and that the dispute about the said Lodge Fund was not decided in the manner directed by the 163rd General Rule of the Society, which directs as follows:—"All disputes to be settled in the following manner: 163rd Lodges shall have power to form committees to try minor offences immediately or as soon as convenient after the commission of such offence, when the penalty does not exceed 21 shillings. Such committee shall consist of not less than eleven members, together with the N.G., who shall preside, and shall be chosen in the following manner, viz.:—The name or number of each member shall be placed in the balloting-box, and the first eleven names or numbers drawn therefrom residing within 3 miles shall form the committee, each party may object to four members, seven to form a quorum. Should such committee find during their investigation of a case that it is likely to prove more serious than was expected, and subject the party or parties concerned to a greater penalty than they have power to inflict, it shall be referred to a Committee of the whole Lodge. In my case, as I am prepared to show, this rule was violated from beginning to end, and by a member of the Lodge, who helped to frame the General Rules of the Society—Alexander Kethell. The 226th general rule of the Society directs that every member of the Manchester Unity shall be subject to the General Rules of the Society. The 175th directs that only members guilty of disgraceful conduct shall be punished by expulsion, and they are to have a fair trial. I will now proceed to show that I, an honest man and a good subscribing member, was turned out of the Lodge for inquiring in open Lodge what became of the Lodge funds, the property of the members, by notice of motion on 30th June, 1880.

2. Will, the Secretary state, for the information of the members of this Lodge, the amount of fines that were enforced from the Noble Grand chair by myself and Past Noble Grand Robinson for the year 1879.

11302. What were the grounds of your expulsion? I made inquiry of the Financial Secretary on 24th May, 1880, as to certain sums of money I paid over to him as Noble Grand of the Lodge. The Secretary told me he could not answer me that night, but to call on that night fortnight, when he would have the Auditors present, and I could ask the question then. On the following Lodge night I attended and asked the question of the Auditors; but they would not inform me or try to inform me.

11303. What sums of money were these? Certain sums of money, fines from the Noble Grand chair for the year 1879.

11304. Imposed by you? Yes, and Mr. Robinson, who filled the chair after me—six months each.

11305. You asked what had become of these amounts? Yes.

11306. What was the amount? £4 Os. 6d., I believe.

11307. That is during the whole twelve months—your time and Robinson's? Yes.

11308. They amounted to £4 Os. 6d.? Well, there are two items; one for overdrawn sick pay. I should like to be correct, and will read the notice of motion:—

Are you prepared to answer the questions placed by me as notice of motion for last summoned meeting held on 30th June, 1880:—

- 1st. Will the Secretary state, for the information of the members of this Lodge, the amount of fines that were enforced from the N.G. chair by myself and N.G. Robinson for the year 1879?
- 2nd. Also the amount of fines received for non-attendance of members at summoned committees for the same year, and were these fines placed to the credit of the Sick and Funeral Fund, in accordance with the 23rd by-rule of this Lodge?
- 3rd. Will the Secretary also state the amount of cash that was overdrawn from the Treasurer and returned to him by myself and P.N.G. Robinson for the year 1879, and were these several amounts, together with the fine-book, audited at the last annual audit?

That was the notice that caused the row—because I could not get any account of the moneys I inquired after.

11309. Did you get any answer? Yes, two.

11310. What were they? One of the Auditors admitted he did not audit the fine-book, and the other absented himself from the meeting, while the third was in England. The Secretary acknowledged that he did not place the moneys to the credit of the Sick and Funeral Fund, according to the 23rd by-law of the Lodge.

Mr.
S. Murphy.
7 July, 1882.

11311. What was the upshot of that? I considered that I was only doing my duty as a past officer in bringing it under the notice of the Provincial Corresponding Secretary, and I did so under the form of a charge.

11312. What action did he take? He said he had an interview with the Lodge officers, and they were determined to bring the case before the meeting of the Lodge, and that I would have to attend and substantiate my charges.

11313. What was the charge? I will read it to you:—

Copy of charge to the P.C.S.

To John Gelding, Esq., Provincial Corresponding Secretary.

Sir,

Sydney, July 7, 1880.

I, the undersigned, hereby charge the Trustees, P.G.M. A. W. Chapman, P.G. W. H. Baker, and Brother Hincks; the Financial Secretary, P.G. W. H. Baker; the Treasurer, James Horan; the Assistant Secretary, P.G. John Hunter; the Auditors, P.G. Benjamin Dewson and P. Vice John Robinson, of the United Brothers Lodge, No. 3502, Independent Order of Oddfellows, M.U., with having knowingly and wilfully combined together and caused an incorrect return of the funds of the above Lodge to be sent in to the District Registrar of Friendly Societies for the year 1879, they well knowing that the Lodge Fine Book, the fines and refunded cash valued at £45 per annum, were not audited and accounted for at the last December annual audit of the above Lodge. In consequence of the above facts coming to light quite recently, three Auditors were duly appointed at the last summoned meeting of the above Lodge, held on the 30th June, 1880, to audit the Lodge books for the last two years, and find out where the fines are gone to. I have good cause to think that this kind of imposition has been going on for years, therefore I respectfully request that you will take immediate action in the matter, and bring the guilty parties to justice.

(Signed) STEPHEN MURPHY, P.G., U. B. Lodge.

P.S.—I am sorry to say that the Loyal United Brothers Lodge is governed by a powerful faction instead of the rules of the Order. Their motto is, might is right, and their object is to crush any officer or Brother who has the hardihood to stand up for the good and welfare and question any of their proceedings. It would be useless for me to bring this case in the Lodge, as the accused officers and their friends would quash it immediately.

(Signed) STEPHEN MURPHY.

You see I thought it would be for the Provincial Corresponding Secretary to bring the guilty party to justice.

11314. What was the result of that? I received a letter from Mr. Gelding, telling me I would have to attend a special meeting of the Lodge and substantiate the charges.

11315. Did you attend? I attended. I gave notice to the Noble Grand to lay certain books on the table. Contrary to the rules of the Society, where they state the Noble Grand, or Chairman, is to preside over all meetings, they put a private member there.

11316. Who was that? Alexander Kethel.

11317. Is he a Grand Lodge officer? Yes, and a member of the Lodge.

11318. Is it not a usage of the Society to place a Grand Lodge officer in the Chair? I was fifteen years in the Lodge and never saw him do anything before.

11319. You take exception to the Chairman, then? Yes.

11320. Then did the Lodge give you time and opportunity to make out your attack? It was not a proper meeting at all.

11321. I am not asking that. Did they give you ample time and opportunity to make out your case that night? They allowed me to talk a good deal.

11322. Now is that an answer?—Did they give you ample time and opportunity to make out your case—you can say yes or no? I had my case already.

11323. That is no answer to my question. Did they give you ample time and opportunity to make out your case? Well, I had time, but was not allowed to state my case before the Lodge.

11324. Did you not occupy two hours in making your case out? I had no case to make out.

11325. Did you not occupy two hours of the Lodge that evening in stating your case? No, I did not.

11326. How much did you consume? I was about two hours talking, but the Chairman would not allow me to substantiate my charge.

11327. Did you not go there to make out your case? I did.

11328. And you made an effort to do so? They would not allow me to do so.

11329. Did you say you spoke two hours? Yes, but the Chairman of that meeting would not allow me to talk on that question at all.

11330. What was the result of the meeting? I wanted to read out the names of the members whom I paid money for.

11331. That is not the result of the meeting. I want you to tell me that? I was not allowed to give my evidence; that was the result.

11332. What was the finding of the Lodge? They were all unanimously acquitted of the charge, amidst loud cheering, though I was not allowed to give my evidence.

11333. Then these persons were all acquitted by the meeting? Yes.

11334. How many members were present at that meeting? A good many; I dare say a couple of hundred.

11335. Then it was a very full meeting, was it not? Yes, it was a full meeting.

11336. Was it a larger meeting than usual? Yes.

11337. Very much larger? Yes.

11338. Had you ever seen as large a meeting as that before in connection with that Lodge? Really I cannot say. I believe that was as large a meeting as ever I saw.

11339. How many members supported your objection at that meeting? I do not know.

11340. Was it one, two, three, four, or twenty? I do not know.

11341. Did any members support your objections? Yes.

11342. Can you give me the name of any member who supported your view? No, I could not.

11343. You do not know the name of any such member? No, I do not.

11344. Well, you say the result was they were all acquitted of the charges? Yes, without the case being gone into. I was not allowed to make my statement before the meeting.

11345. Was not all that statement read to the meeting? No, it was not.

- Mr. S. Murphy. 11346. Was not that letter with your charges against these officers contained in it read to the meeting?
No, not all of it.
- 7 July, 1882. 11347. What part was omitted? There was a good deal of it omitted.
11348. How long have you been a member of this Society? About fifteen years. There was a good deal in that charge, and this is how they cut it short in the notice:—To hear a charge preferred by Brother Stephen Murphy against Brothers A. W. Chapman, Mark Hincks, and W. A. Baker, Trustees; W. H. Baker, Secretary; James Horan, Treasurer; John Hunter, Assistant Secretary; Benjamin Dewson and John Robinson, Auditors, with having knowingly and wilfully combined together and caused a formal return of the above Lodge.
11349. Is that not the usual kind of summons sent when a special meeting is called inviting the members to be present to hear a certain charge? Yes, but the nature of the charge should be in it.
11350. Then do you tell the Commission that at the meeting this charge written by you was not read out? I believe it was afterwards.
11351. What further action was taken afterwards? It was proposed that a charge be preferred against me for bringing a charge against them which I could not prove, and which they alleged to be slanderous.
11352. And that charge was preferred against you? Yes.
11353. By whom? By the Lodge; the right-hand supporter was the Noble Grand.
11354. What is his name? Robertson.
11355. Did he prefer the charge? Yes.
11356. Was the Lodge summoned to deal with the charge? Yes, there was the usual quarterly meeting.
11357. A summoned meeting? A summoned meeting.
11358. Were you present? I attended there the same as any other member.
11359. Did they go into the charge? I was there for a while, and was then told to leave the room.
11360. Was that after you were called upon to plead to the charge? Yes.
11361. And you pleaded not guilty? I pleaded not guilty of slander.
11362. Who presided on that occasion? Alexander Kethel.
11363. A second time? Yes.
11364. And the meeting decided the charges proved against you? Yes.
11365. And passed a resolution to expel you? Yes.
11366. Was it unanimous, or what was the proportion? I do not know; they merely sent me a document stating I was expelled.
11367. Did you get an intimation from them that you were expelled? Yes.
11368. Have you that document with you? No, I have not, but I have a copy of it. It is only a few words stating, "You are hereby expelled under the 13th resolution."
11369. What further action did you take on receipt of that intimation? I applied to the District, and wrote to Mr. Gelding requesting him to lay it before the District Meeting.
11370. Have you paid any dues since then? Yes.
11371. And did the Lodge receive the money? Yes, they had it impounded in the District Court, and I tendered my contributions to the Treasurer.
11372. And has he taken it? I offered him the cheque—the order for it from the District Court.
11373. But have you paid any money into the Lodge? Well, that is into the Lodge.
11374. Have you paid any money into the Lodge since you have been expelled? No, only that.
11375. What position are you in now with reference to your dues—are you in arrears? No; I have been told by Mr. Alexander Kethel that Mr. Gelding is the only obstacle in the way of my being reinstated.
11376. Have you anything to add to your evidence as to the misappropriation in your Lodge? I never said misappropriation.
11377. What did you say? I said there was an incorrect return of the funds sent in.
11378. But have you during your experience known any of the officers to make away with any of the funds of the Society? No, I have not.
11379. Mr. Smith.] In answering my questions will you kindly say yes or no, please? I will if I possibly can.
11380. From the time you have been a member and the positions you have occupied, you were fully aware what would follow in the event of your not establishing the charge you laid against the seven persons referred to? No, I was not; I never thought about such a thing.
11381. Were you aware at the time that, if you established your charge, it would cause these members to be expelled? No, I thought some of them would be censured though.
11382. Your charge was based upon a thorough knowledge of the books and accounts of that very Lodge, was it not? I do not very well understand that question.
11383. You were thoroughly aware that certain moneys in connection with that Lodge were not accounted for? Yes.
11384. You have a knowledge of figures, have you not? Yes, a little.
11385. Do you understand book-keeping? Not much.
11386. Did you understand book-keeping sufficiently to know that these moneys were not accounted for in the books of your Lodge? Well, in consequence of the Fine-book not being audited for years I based the charge a good deal on that, because if it was not audited how could it be possible for a correct return to go in for the District when certain books were not audited?
11387. And from your knowledge of book-keeping you discovered that the audits presented by the Auditors were not correct? Yes.
11388. And you charged them with returning to the District an incorrect return? Yes.
11389. And the loss as shown by that return would be a matter of £45? I reckoned it was £45 for that year 1879.
11390. Did you endeavour, before the special meeting to consider the charge, to show from the books and records that the position which you had taken up was a correct one? I did endeavour and have had two other officers examine the Fine-book with me, and they came to the conclusion that it had not been audited since 1863.
11391. And notwithstanding that, the persons charged were dismissed by the investigating Committee of that Lodge? Yes.

11392. Mr. Abigail.] When you made the charge against these men of knowingly and wilfully combining together, did you understand the meaning of the word "wilfully"? I did not—it was through ignorance on my part.

Mr. S. Murphy.

7 July, 1882.

11393. Was there a special audit after you made the charge of the whole of the books by any parties appointed by the District? By the Lodge there was.

11394. But were Auditors appointed by the District? Yes, after the Auditors had been appointed by the Lodge.

11395. Did the District Auditors examine the books? I do not know.

11396. Are you not aware that the special Auditors reported that there was no money missing in connection with the Lodge? I do not know, I am sure.

11397. Do you believe the Lodge actually sustained a loss in its funds by the action of these men? No, I never said that.

11398. Do you believe the Lodge lost these £40 you allude to, and that some one else benefited by it? No, I do not.

11399. You do not believe that any member of the Lodge has defrauded it by using the funds for his own purposes? No, not a shilling, as far as I am aware of.

11400. Then your action turned simply on the irregularity of keeping the books? That is it.

11401. But did you make yourself clear on that when you brought this forward? The words "wilfully combined" were there through ignorance.

11402. I understand you to say now that you have no knowledge of any case where the Society has lost one shilling through the wrong-doings of any of its members? Just so.

11403. Mr. Holdsworth.] Your impression was that the fines were not accounted for? That they were not placed to the credit of the Sick and Funeral Fund.

11404. You were not aware when you made such a charge that you were really charging them with fraud? That is the last thing I thought of.

11405. You object to the Chairman of the meeting as not being the legal Chairman? Yes.

11406. Still he gave you fair play? No, he did not.

11407. Did he not allow you to talk for two hours? Away from the point.

11408. You never knew Mr. Kethel to take the Chair before in matters of this sort? No.

11409. Do you not think it possible that this being a charge by one member against many, he was asked to take the Chair because he was a neutral person and could have no feeling in the matter? He was a member of the Lodge.

11410. There were two sets of Auditors appointed? Yes.

11411. One by the Lodge? Yes.

11412. And then by the District? And then by the District.

11413. They audited the books? No, I don't think they did.

11414. Auditors were appointed by the District? I believe they were.

11415. They reported that there was no money missing, did they not? Yes.

11416. Then do you not think after a Committee of your Lodge had inquired, two sets of Auditors had been appointed, and you had appealed to the Grand Lodge, that you got fair play? No.

11417. Then you appealed to the law of the country? Yes.

11418. And they decided against you? I did not get fair play there either.

11419. Mr. Rubie.] You were Noble Grand of the Lodge? Yes.

11420. When you brought the charges against these gentlemen? No.

11421. From your position you learnt that these books were not audited for a certain time? Yes.

11422. And that certain moneys paid in as fines were not credited to the proper funds, or were they credited at all? The Financial Secretary told me he did not place them to the credit of the Sick and Funeral Fund.

11423. From your position as Noble Grand you ascertained moneys were not credited? Yes, from the Secretary himself.

11424. He told you? Yes, in answer to my questions.

11425. Then, as head of the Lodge, it was your duty to cause an investigation by the members of the Lodge? I left the Chair in June, and did not see the balance-sheet till December.

11426. It was six months after you left office that you knew of this? Yes.

11427. Then did you cause any inquiry to be made by the Lodge, or make any proper report at all? I asked the questions previously referred to. (See question 11308.)

11428. Mr. Gelding.] You stated to Mr. Abigail that you did not when laying the charge know the meaning of the words "wilfully combined"? I did not.

11429. To whom did you give that charge? To you.

11430. What did I tell you at the time? You told me to take it away, or they would expel me.

11431. Did not the Grand Secretary advise you to withdraw these charges? Yes.

11432. Did he not tell you the meaning of these words that you put in that charge, and what would be the result if you did not prove them? He never did.

11433. You were in the Court when the case went on against you before Judge Cohen? Yes.

11434. Was not the book handed up to him showing him where these entries were made? In what book?

11435. In the Cash-book? They were never presented.

11436. No books were brought into Court? Not so far as I know.

11437. Was anybody along with the Provincial Corresponding Secretary when you gave that charge into his hands? The letter was posted.

11438. You served the charge personally, did you not? No, I sent it by post, and went down that evening for an answer.

11439. Who was there when you came in to see what the answer would be? There was some one there; I think it was either your brother or Johnson.

11440. Do you not know who it was? I am not certain.

11441. Was Mr. Schofield there at the time? I do not think so.

11442. Did not the Provincial Corresponding Secretary of the Sydney District tell you you would be obliged to lay that charge against the members in the Lodge? No.

11443.

Mr.
S. Murphy.
7 July, 1882.

11443. And that if you did not lay the charge, considering the gravity of the affair, the Lodge would lay a charge against you? No.

11444. You were Noble Grand during the time these defalcations took place you complain about? Who talks about defalcations?

11445. Well, misappropriation of money? Who said misappropriation of money—I said incorrect return.

11446. Will you inform the Commission who informed you that Mr. Kethel said that Mr. Gelding was a stumbling-block in the way of your getting back to the Lodge room? Mr. Kethel told me himself.

11447. President.] Did you receive a summons to attend the meeting to inquire into your charges at which Mr. Keppel presided? Yes.

11448. Did you receive a summons for the subsequent inquiry when a charge was brought against you? Yes.

11449. Were you summoned to attend the meetings after your expulsion had been confirmed? No.

The Commission then adjourned till Monday, July 10th.

Mr. Abraham Western Chapman sworn and examined:—

Mr. A. W.
Chapman.
10 July, 1882.

11450. President.] What Society do you represent? United Brothers' Lodge, Manchester Unity.

11451. Do you hold office in connection with the Lodge? Not at the present time, but I am Treasurer of the Order.

11452. You have held several offices in connection with the Lodge? Yes, I have gone right through.

11453. You are one of the oldest members in connection with the Society I presume? Yes, I have been a member about thirty-two years.

11454. Is your Lodge at the present time providing its own chemist separate from the Medical Institute? Yes.

11455. Can you tell the Commission about the average cost per member? We pay the doctor 3s. 6d. each per quarter, and it costs us on an average 6s. a quarter for medicine and doctor together.

11456. That is 24s. a year? Yes, for doctor and chemist.

11457. And you pay 3s. 6d. of that —? To the doctor.

11458. That is half a crown to the chemist? Just so.

11459. Do you find that a more reasonable mode for getting a supply of medicine for your members? It is not so cheap as the other Lodges that support the Medical Institute.

11460. What was the reason you adopted the present mode? Dissatisfaction with the arrangements of the dispensary and with the doctor.

11461. What number of members have you? Close on 500.

11462. What funds have you to your credit at the present time? I really could not tell you—the Secretary is outside.

11463. Will he be able to tell? I think so.

11464. Do you know what profits you made during the last year? Last year I do not think we made anything; we have had heavy law expenses in connection with this affair of Murphy's.

11465. Did Murphy have a fair trial and hearing of his complaints? Yes, decidedly so; we gave him his own way in everything; everybody pitied him for making just a fool of himself. Mr. Kethel was put into the Chair as being an uninterested party.

11466. When the case was brought before the District Court, Murphy against you as the Trustee of the Lodge, were the books produced in Court? Yes.

11467. And handed up to the Judge? Yes, I am positive of it—I took the books myself.

11468. Then in every way there has been a fair and impartial trial? In every way we gave him almost his own way in everything; it is only in extreme cases that men are expelled from our Order.

11469. Can you tell the income of the last year of your Society? No, but the Secretary has his books with him.

11470. The meetings at which Murphy's case was tried, were they summoned meetings? Yes.

11471. And there were large attendances? Yes, more than usual, because it created some stir.

11472. Would there be 200 people present? I dare say there might be.

11473. Your Society is managed on the same principle as other Lodges of the Order? Yes.

11474. And you are under the District? Yes, the Sydney District.

11475. Members leaving your Lodge take clearances and join any other Lodge? Yes.

11476. And all persons seeking admission are examined by your medical officer? Yes.

11477. Is it a thorough medical examination? Yes.

11478. Are many refused? I can only remember one case for the past four years.

11479. Have you made many members during the last three or four years? Mostly every Lodge night there are two or three made.

11480. Have you lost many? Not many.

11481. The benefits I presume are the same as in other Lodges? Yes, £1 a week sick pay for the first six months, 15s. for the next six months, and 10s. for the next six months, and then if two doctors certify, so far as medical treatment is concerned, they can do no good, we allow them 6s. superannuation.

11482. And the contributions paid are somewhat similar? Yes, 1s. 2d. a week.

11483. A uniform rate? Yes.

11484. How are your funds invested? We have £750 in the land in Elizabeth-street.

11485.

11485. Bearing interest? £250 bearing interest at 6 per cent.; the £500 was a gift and donation; we borrowed £2,000 from the Widows and Orphans Fund, which we have paid off; the rest of the moneys are in the Government Savings Bank.
11486. Was that £2,000 belonging to the whole body? Yes, to the Sydney District, not our own Lodge alone.
11487. Where do you hold your meetings? At the Oddfellows' Hall; we pay a levy of a half-penny a week for every member, which goes towards forming a Building Fund, amounting now to about £400.
11488. That embraces the District? The seven Lodges to which the hall belongs.
11489. Have you any idea of the cost of management of your Lodge? I could not tell; the annual return will I think show that the chief management expense of this Lodge is the medical benefit.
11490. Coming back to this matter of Murphy: you were present on the evening in which the inquiry took place? I was the first person who saw the letter he wrote—it was handed to me by the Corresponding Secretary of the District before the Lodge saw it at all.
11491. You were one of the gentlemen mentioned in the letter? Yes, he accused me as a Trustee with signing some return that was not correct.
11492. Was the money he speaks of—some £40—accounted for? We handed our books over to the officers of the District immediately the letter was sent to the Lodge. I attended the Lodge and saw Murphy there; I asked him if he intended that as a charge against the gentlemen named in the letter; he said yes, and I then cautioned him, and he said he could prove every word that was in the letter. I then said the best thing to do was to call a summoned meeting of the Lodge, and I moved that the books be placed in the hands of the District Officers, which was done.
11493. An audit took place? Yes, and we called a specially summoned meeting to hear the report.
11494. Were there many members of your Lodge who took side with Murphy? There were a few members of the Lodge who were inclined to think there was something in the matter, but when the Committee was called together and the books were put on the table, and Murphy was asked to name one item that was wrong, he kept us in for about an hour or two and we could get nothing out of him; at last he said there was £1 fine to a member of the name of Godfrey (who is now dead) for being drunk, and alleged that this had not been accounted for; we opened the books and showed him the Cash-book and Fine-book and showed where it was paid and entered; and that was all—he could not show another item; of course he had roundabout stories, but that was the only item he could show.
11495. What was the cost to the Lodge of law expenses? I think it cost us over £50, between £50 and £60, but that is not calculating men's time.
11496. Have you ever spent money on law expenses before? I have been thirty-two years a member of the Lodge, and that is the only case I can remember going into the District Court; there was a somewhat similar case that occurred in Maitland, but this is the only case I have seen in the Court in Sydney.
11497. During your long experience, have you known any defalcations to have taken place? I have.
11498. Of any magnitude? No. They were some years ago. I do not know of any within the last fifteen or twenty years, the members now have a better idea of looking out for a man who has something to lose than they used to have.
11499. You regard your Society as in a thoroughly sound financial position? I think so.
11500. And your contributions are sufficient for the purpose of meeting all your engagements? I would be glad to see them increased a penny a week more, and it is mooted already in the Lodge, as then we shall be standing on a sounder footing.
11501. Do you favour the principle of a graduated scale of payments? Yes, I think it ought to be adopted in all Friendly Societies; I think, considering what I have paid to the Lodge, I ought to be paying less than a young man.
11502. But what I want to know is whether you favour a young man, who joins at the age of (say) twenty or twenty-one, paying at the rate of (say) 9d. per week, while you being forty-five should (say) pay one shilling per week? Well, there is more liability for an old man than for a young one.
11503. I am speaking of the time of joining? Of course, I do approve of it, and it is generally adopted in England now, I believe.
11504. You approve of that instead of a uniform contribution? Well, yes, these Benefit Societies depend on the members and there may be difficulty in getting a Secretary, and you would create in this way a deal of difficulty to the Secretary, so that the question comes whether you could get a Secretary to do the work.
11505. But you think as a matter of fact it would be fairer and afford greater security to the Society if it was so? I think so.
11506. Have you anything further you would like to say to the Commission? No.
11507. Mr. Greville.] I understand you to say that your Society ceased to subscribe to the Medical Institute? Yes, we did.
11508. What was the reason? Dissatisfaction.
11509. At what? At the system adopted in it.
11510. What was the particular system? The members complained that they did not have the control over the medical officers that they should have. If a member had a complaint he would have to come to Lodge and make his complaint in the Lodge; and a committee would have to be appointed, and a copy would be sent to the Medical Board and they would investigate it. As it is now we have direct control over our own doctor.
11511. Are there many complaints? Well, the principle of that Institution I think is wrong, because they compel a doctor to be there from 10 o'clock in the morning till 12, which are the very best hours that a medical man has; but if the members went to the doctor's house the doctor could see them the same as their private patients.
11512. Then there were complaints against the non-attendance of the medical men? Yes, and also against the medicines.
11513. What were the complaints they made as to the medicines? They did not believe that the medicines were genuine.
11514. But these accusations that were made, were they ever decided? Yes; we wrote the complaints, and they were brought before the Board, but the last complaint was put in the waste-paper basket.
11515. Now, as to the quality of the drugs supplied, had you anything beyond the ex parte statements of the members? The drugs supplied to the Medical Institute come from Elliott's. He has been the contractor, contractor, and I think has been supplying them nearly from its formation—twenty-six or twenty-seven years ago. There are no means whatever of checking the medicines, the dispenser is the only one who takes them in, and we have no opportunity of knowing whether they are good or not.

11516. Then your Society or Lodge did not take any trouble to test the truthfulness of the statement? Oh yes; there were general complaints of the system, and they called several meetings. I was opposed to it, and did oppose it, because I did not like the idea of breaking away from the Institute, but when I saw that the complaints were so loud and long I went with it.

11517. Then there was a general dissatisfaction without thoroughly testing it? Oh yes, we found members who were not satisfied, but we could not go to the doctor and protest, but had to go to the Medical Board.

11518. Then your members are more satisfied with the present system? Decidedly.

11519. Mr. Langley.] And it is your own belief, after having opposed going away, that you are doing better by the present system? I never regretted anything so much as to have to stand up against the Medical Institute. I was one of its warmest supporters, but the Lodge I belonged to would rather pay 18d. a week than go back to the old system. The last month or two I find the members are better satisfied than they were.

11520. Mr. Rubie.] Among other things, Murphy alleges that he was not allowed to read a certain document, the charge that he sent to the Provincial Corresponding Secretary, that was another charge that was printed in the summons, and that he was not allowed to read his own? He was allowed to read every document the Lodge has, and every document in his own possession. He kept us from 7 or 8 o'clock till half-past 11.

11521. Then he was allowed every opportunity to prove his case? Every opportunity that could be afforded him.

11522. And you allowed him the books to refer to? Yes, they were laid on the table for him.

11523. Mr. Stade.] Did you ever take into consideration the advantage of a Pension or Superannuation Fund, independent of the usual benefits of a Society like yours? ———

11524. Have you ever considered the advisability of establishing a Board of Final Appeal to prevent disputes passing into the Common Law Courts: a Board composed, we will say, of several representatives chosen by the bulk of the Societies, to assist the Registrar in coming to a decision in all matters of dispute? Well, most of the Societies have a Board of Appeal.

11525. But I mean a Board past that? No, I would not; I should advise the executive body to defend any law case; let the District do it instead of the Lodge.

11526. Have you ever considered the bearing of the present Act on the Societies, as to whether it is sufficient for the purposes for which it was established, or not? I have not seen much come out of it.

11527. Have you considered any way in which it could be amended? I have not; the only real benefit I can see from the Friendly Societies Act is, that it enables registered Lodges to get an amount of interest for their money they would not otherwise do from the Savings Banks.

11528. What are the names of the medical officers of your Lodge? Drs. Harrison and O'Connor.

11529. Mr. Gelding.] Is it not a fact that your Lodge has not been able to save any money since they seceded from the Institute? Oh no.

11530. You did not bank any money last year, did you? No, but we banked £50 this quarter.

11531. How long is it since you banked any before? The year before last.

11532. Do you think that is a prosperous state of things? Well, what with law expenses, and perhaps an unusual amount of sickness, I would not take it that one or two year's going back is a sign of decrease in the Lodge.

11533. It has taken place since you seceded? No, only the last year.

11534. Is it not a fact that you lose two or three shillings a quarter through seceding from the Institute? Oh no.

11535. Do you know what the medical levy is? I do not; I think it is about 4s. 6d.

11536. Is it 3s. 6d.? It might be.

11537. Are you of opinion that 1s. 2d. a week will meet all liabilities and all levies? I would rather see it a penny more, but if you have a Lodge dissatisfied with the medical arrangements you lose a great number of members who will go bad on the books.

11538. What do you attribute the loss of members to during the past year; you say under the old system you lost a lot of members, and yet you have gone back now in the number of members? I suppose a good many have got in arrears.

11539. Do you not think you get as good drugs from the Institute as from any private chemist? No.

11540. Why not? Because there is a dispenser there who takes in all medicine going in, but at Watson's if a prescription goes there and there is any doubt it is referred to Mr. Watson; but in the old place the dispenser can put what he likes and there is nobody to check him.

11541. Do you not think if a dispensary was properly conducted it would be much cheaper and far superior to Lodges getting medicines at private chemists? Well, I prefer the system we have at present.

11542. Do you pay any of your officers for their services? Yes, the Secretary.

11543. And Noble Grand? Yes, a guinea a quarter.

11544. How long has that been in operation? Seven or eight years.

11545. What is it for? Visiting the sick.

11546. Do you think officers should have remuneration to defray travelling expenses for this purpose? I think it is not too much for him.

11547. What is about the average of members you have on the Sick Funds? On an average seven during the year round.

11548. You have very few on the low scale, have you? They are almost all receiving the full rate of pay. I think we have two superannuated members.

11549. You are Treasurer of the Order, are you not? Yes.

11550. Do you give a bond? Yes.

11551. What bond? The bond prescribed by the Act.

11552. Mr. Abigail.] About the quality of the medicine dispensed at the Institute; has it ever come under your notice that medical men recommend their patients to go to the Institute in preference to private chemists? I never heard one in my life do so. I went once to the Institute, in opposition to the doctor, and got soap pills instead of opium pills, and nearly killed my own wife. 11553.

11553. What means have you of detecting the quality of medicine supplied from a chemist that you have not got in connection with the Institute? Well, I don't suppose I could tell the difference; in fact I have none except what the doctor may say; if a doctor was attending me I should expect him to taste the medicine.

Mr. A. W.
Chapman.
10 July, 1882.

11554. Have you any complaints at all in connection with the medical attendance? Not under the present system.

11555. Has the chemist in connection with this Institute any pecuniary interest in using any bad drugs? I could not tell you.

11556. Are they competent men generally? They look for them, but we have had men there who would use spirits of wine if they could not get anything else.

11557. Are you on the Medical Board? I was for years.

11558. And was this carried on while you were there? Yes, and we dismissed them as soon as we found it out.

11559. What is the difference between their position and a chemist's shop; is there any one to overlook the chemist in his shop? A good chemist has his own reputation to keep up, and there is a great deal in that, but there are some of them I would not be satisfied with.

11560. You have had considerable experience in Friendly Societies; would you favour an annual audit of their accounts by Government officers? Well, I think it would be good—good for the Society as well as for everybody.

11561. Do you think it would be of advantage to Friendly Societies to have a uniform set of books? I could not answer that unless I saw them, but I think so, as what would suit one Society would suit another.

11562. Would you be in favour of a Government Department to manage all affairs affecting Friendly Societies? I think the less we interfere with Friendly Societies the better, beyond seeing that they pay a proper rate of contribution.

11563. Have you any doubt that Friendly Societies are an immense advantage to the State? Most decidedly they are, in more ways than one, because in the first place you instil into the minds of young men a saving habit, and their providing for their families and themselves in sickness or in old age, it is the first step towards making a young man saving.

11564. Have you ever made a calculation to ascertain at what rate per head a Lodge should increase its funds annually? No.

11565. Have you any doubt that members as they get older the liability of the Society is much greater? I have no doubt of it.

11566. So that a Society that does not add something annually is not doing as it should do? Well, it is not because a Lodge goes back one year that I would jump at the conclusion that that Lodge is on the verge of insolvency, but if it did so for two or three years they should do something, either by reducing their sick pay or raising their contributions.

11567. Are there not a large number of your members who are men in good positions and who do not take any benefits? There are a good number of these.

11568. What is the reason these members do not take the benefits? I could not tell you exactly; a great number joined the Society when they were poor.

11569. President.] Have you anything to add to your evidence? No, I do not know of anything else.

Mr. John Robinson sworn and examined:—

11570. President.] You are a member of the Oddfellows? Yes, the United Brothers' Lodge.

11571. And you are Secretary? Secretary.

11572. How long have you held that office? Since the beginning of this year or the latter end of last year.

11573. Are you an old member of the Society? About six years I think.

11574. Can you tell the Commission what has been the total income of the Society during last year? I cannot from memory, and have not the books with me.

11575. Then you have not got it, and no papers you have will show it? No.

11576. Do you know the profit your Society made? I know it was very small, not £7.

11577. Do you know what the total amount of the funds you have is? £2,949 14s. 1d.

11578. How is that invested? £1,916 19s. 6d. in the Savings' Bank, £500 in the land for the hall, £250 a loan to the Trustees of the hall, and £282 14s. 7d. in the Treasurer's hand.

11579. How many members have you? 480.

11580. That is, good financial members? Good financial members.

11581. Do you know how many members were admitted last year? Thirty-two by initiation, and thirteen by clearance, that is forty-five in all.

11582. And how many left? Eleven withdrew by clearance, and twenty-eight ran out by arrears, and there were seven deaths.

11583. The amount of funds you have stated at the disposal of the Lodge, does that include the total worth of your Lodge? Yes.

11584. Do you pay the funeral donation of the Lodge direct, or does it come from the District? From the District.

11585. Do your members pay a separate contribution to the Funeral Fund? No, we pay a levy to the District.

11586. How much? 1s. 6d. per quarter.

11587. Does the Lodge pay on behalf of all your financial members? Yes.

11588. What other levies do you pay to the District? The Widows and Orphans Fund.

11589. What is that? It was 6d. last quarter, but it is sometimes 4d.

11590. What other levies are there? There is a District levy, which was 9d. last quarter.

11591. What do you get in return for these? For the Funeral Fund levy, in the event of a member's death, the District pays the funeral donations.

11592. Yes, but the 9d., what is that paid for? I do not know why that levy is charged us.

11593. Is it for the management of the District? I expect that is it.

11594.

Mr.
J. Robinson.
10 July, 1882.

- Mr. J. Robinson.
10 July, 1882.
11594. What do the members get for the 6d. for the Widows and Orphans Fund levy? In the event of a Brother dying and leaving children under a certain age, a sum of money is paid out of the fund according to a scale calculated on the length of membership.
11595. What is the largest sum paid out of this fund? £30 out of this particular fund.
11596. How many years has a member to be a member of this fund to get that? Over twenty years.
11597. Then you pay 1s. 6d. to the Funeral Fund, 6d. to the Widow and Orphan Fund, and 9d. on account of the District Management Fund? Yes, sometimes the district levy is lower, sometimes only 6d.
11598. That is 2s. 9d. a quarter goes to the District? Yes.
11599. And what do you pay medical officers? We pay the doctors 3s. 6d. per member good on the books, and 1s. 9d. for any member that goes bad during the quarter, and 1s. 9d. for every new member as an examination fee.
11600. If he comes in during the last week in the quarter you pay the same? Yes.
11601. What do you pay your chemist? The last account was £51 17s. 6d.
11602. What does that average—how much per member? Both funds last year in round figures came to £600.
11603. That is an average of about 24s. per member? Yes, about 24s. a member.
11604. Who is your chemist? Mr. Watson.
11605. Does he give general satisfaction to your members? I never heard any complaints.
11606. Can you tell the amount paid on account of sick pay last year? £572 14s. 2d.
11607. What was the cost of management during last year? £175 5s. 2d.
11608. Was this large sum of £572 14s. 2d. for sick pay an unusually large sum to pay away on that account? No, I think we always go pretty near that; there are one or two very heavy amounts paid for sickness.
11609. You have on the average from £10 to £11 a week to pay for sick pay? It would pretty well average that, taking the whole year round.
11610. What is the average age of your members? I could not say that from memory.
11611. Have you many old men? Yes, a pretty good few.
11612. A large proportion of the 500 are they old? No, there are a great many young men about thirty-five years of age.
11613. Are there many over forty? Yes, a good many.
11614. Would there be a hundred over that age? Yes, there might be.
11615. Are there very many old members? Yes.
11616. And many of these would be sixty years of age? Probably they would.
11617. You were not in office at the time the matter of Stephen Murphy was brought under the notice of your Lodge? I was an Auditor.
11618. You remember the cause of this complaint? Yes, I have a slight recollection of it.
11619. Were you the Secretary the time the matter was brought into the District Court? No.
11620. You were not summoned to produce the books or papers? No.
11621. Were you present when the charge was investigated? Yes.
11622. Was there anything in Mr. Murphy's charge after you had investigated it? His charge was groundless as far as I can recollect.
11623. Was a fair opportunity permitted him to make good his charge? Most fair; the night he was tried they let him have just exactly his own way, taking the usual Chairman out of the Chair and placing another Brother in it.
11624. Would you like to have him back again? I should not care about it.
11625. Do you think the Lodge will be inclined to take him back? I am afraid not.
11626. If the expenses were made good would they take him back? I do not think so.
11627. You know the gentlemen who were charged with having knowingly and wilfully applied certain funds? Yes.
11628. From the investigation that took place, you are of opinion that Murphy had a fair opportunity of making good his case? Most fair; the Chairman allowed him every opportunity of stating his case.
11629. Were the moneys accounted for that were in dispute? I believe they were; there was only one amount, and that concerned a Brother who was fined two or three times, and Murphy said these fines were not in the Cash-book, but the book was submitted that night and the item pointed out as being credited in the books.
11630. You feel satisfied then that the whole of these sums, amounting to some £40, have been accounted for? I would not say for the amount, as I believe that was incorrect.
11631. But are you of opinion that the whole of the fines inflicted during Murphy's term of office, and that of his successor, were accounted for? I think so.
11632. Has there been any defalcation as far as your knowledge goes? No.
11633. Have you anything further to add to your evidence? No.
11634. Have you a general knowledge of the Friendly Societies Act? Yes.
11635. Do you think it affords sufficient security to members and officers of the different Friendly Societies? Decidedly.
11636. Do you think it is fully administered? I think so.
11637. Mr. Abigail.] You were one of the Auditors, I understood you to say? Yes.
11638. Were you appointed to examine into the books when Murphy made the charge? No.
11639. Did you audit the Fine-books? I believe the Fine-book was not audited.
11640. So he was right in that particular? If he stated that, he was.
11641. Was there a special audit into the books after Murphy's charge? Yes, there was, I believe.
11642. Who appointed the Auditors? The District, I think.
11643. Can you tell us what report they brought up? No; I know, however, that it was favourable to the Lodge, and to the effect that all the moneys received had been accounted for.
11644. At this meeting when Murphy was tried, were you present? I was.
11645. Was there a large number of members present? There was a very large number.
11646. How many supported Murphy's views, half? No, I do not think so. There were some in favour of him who thought he had got hold of something.
11647. Does Murphy's expulsion proceed from a personal feeling or a sense of wrong-doing? Well, all the Brothers concerned in the affair left the room during the time he was expelled.
- 11648.

Mr.
J. Robinson.
10 July, 1882.

11648. And Murphy left the room, did he not? Yes.
11649. Is that the custom in the Society? It was the first time I ever saw a man tried. I could not say.
11650. An accused Brother is present while he is being tried, is he not? He can state everything he likes in support of his case, and the other side the same.
11651. Were the books placed at Murphy's disposal when he was called upon to substantiate his charge? All were on the table.
11652. Was he forbidden to look at them? I think not.
11653. If he said he had no opportunity of referring to the books, is that correct? No, as far as I know.
11654. Can you give us the numbers for and against his expulsion? No; I was outside.
11655. Do you think the present Act gives every opportunity of assisting and encouraging Friendly Societies? I think so.
11656. Do you think it would be an advantage to have a Government-appointed officer to examine the accounts of different Friendly Societies? I hardly think so.
11657. Have the books in your Lodge been in such a state as to warrant you in saying that no oversight except that of the members would be required? I think not; Auditors are appointed every three months, and they examine and go through the books.
11658. Is it not a fact that they reported the books as correct when they had not audited the Fine-book? I believe so.
11659. Does that not show that the work has been done in a loose manner? I do not see much use in a Fine-book myself.
11660. But it records fines inflicted? Yes; and the money is transferred into the Cash-book.
11661. What led to Murphy's difficulty in seeing the moneys entered? I think it was his own fault in not understanding the books.
11662. Was it not reported that irregularities had taken place in the keeping of the books? I could not say.
11663. Is the book-keeping in connection with your Order uniform—have you one set of books? I do not know.
11664. Do you think it would be an advantage to have one uniform set of books for all Societies? I believe it would.
11665. Mr. Holdsworth.] The money is transferred each evening from the Fine-book into the Cash-book as a receipt, I presume? The Secretary does that at home; the amounts are entered into the Fine-book, and when they are paid they are put into the Cash-book.
11666. Still it would be necessary to audit the Fine-book to see that the correct amounts are put into the Cash-book? Yes, so long as you keep a Fine-book.
11667. Mr. Langley.] I presume on each occasion your fines were read out to the Lodge? Yes.
11668. Do you check your Pence-books? No.
11669. Then if there is an irregularity, it would as likely occur in transferring the amounts in the Pence-book as in the Fine-book? Just so.
11670. Mr. Gelding.] You heard the special Auditors' report read, did you not? Yes.
11671. And the only fault they found, was it not in reference to keeping the Management Expense Fund and the Sick and Funeral Fund in one book? I believe the report did recommend two books: the funds were always kept separate although in one book, and we have had the two books since.

Mr. James Perry sworn and examined:—

Mr. J. Perry.
10 July, 1882.

11672. President.] What Society do you represent? The Protestant Alliance Friendly Society of Australasia.
11673. What number of Lodge? No. 25.
11674. How long have you been a member? Nine years.
11675. Have you held office? Yes.
11676. What offices? Secretary and Master.
11677. What office do you hold now? None.
11678. During the time you held office, were there some defalcations in connection with the Society? I believe there were.
11679. Have you any knowledge of them? I have some slight knowledge.
11680. But have you any positive knowledge of the nature of the defalcations or the amounts? Yes.
11681. What was the nature of the defalcations? I could not state the exact amount; there was a special audit called, and the Auditors could not arrive at the amount in default, through the bad way in which the books had been kept.
11682. What was the amount supposed to be, as far as they could detect it? Something like £180, I think.
11683. Who was the officer or member who was guilty? The Secretary.
11684. What was his name? James Pettit.
11685. What was the result of the special audit? They could not arrive at any particular sum that was taken. I believe I was the discoverer in the first instance myself. I took the office of Secretary immediately following Pettit, and I found that the members were continually complaining of the amount of money I was suing them for; the Lodge was in a most successful career, for a young Lodge has no great outlay, and for the time I held office it struck me that there had been a very small amount accumulated, and then the special audit was called.
11686. Was Pettit called upon to explain? Yes.
11687. What did he do? The only reply was that he paid more to the funds of the Lodge than ever he had taken from it. We had legal opinions on the matter I believe.
11688. And what was the result? That they could not prove any particular amount, and it was better to let the case drop.
11689. Were any further steps taken by the Lodge to deal with Pettit? He was expelled.
11690. Then he is not now a member of that Lodge? No.
11691. Did he protest against the expulsion or take any action? He took no action whatever that I am aware of.

- Mr. J. Perry. 11692. Do you know of any other case of defalcation? No, I do not.
- 10 July, 1882. 11693. Do you know of any misapplication of funds in connection with the Grand Lodge? Yes.
11694. Has it been settled? Yes.
11695. Do you know the amount? No, not exactly.
11696. Have you any idea of the amount? I think it was about the same amount as in Pettit's case, but I am not certain.
11697. Did the officer make good the amount? Yes.
11698. And paid it? Yes, and more than the amount.
11699. What is the value of the funds of this Lodge now? About £1,080, I think.
11700. And what number of members have you? 210 I think. The amount I gave you is irrespective of the funds the Grand Lodge holds belonging to the Funeral Fund.
11701. Do you pay your own funeral donations? No.
11702. The Grand Lodge pays them? Yes.
11703. What do you pay to the Grand Lodge? 10s. a year.
11704. That ensures the payment of your funeral donations? Yes.
11705. And you have to your credit £1,100 independent of your share on the general funds? Yes.
11706. How is the money invested? In the various Banks, with the exception of 150 shares in the Protestant Hall.
11707. To the credit of the Trustee? Yes.
11708. Were the shares in the Hall taken up before you were a registered Society? I think not.
11709. What interest do you get on these shares? None whatever at present.
11710. What amount of money has been paid on account of these shares? £150.
11711. That is the actual value of the shares? Yes.
11712. And it is unproductive at present? Yes.
11713. Have you any other investment unproductive? None.
11714. The others all bear interest? Yes.
11715. And they are to the credit of your Trustees? Yes.
11716. Do your Treasurer and Secretary now give sureties? Yes, a bond in a Guarantee Society.
11717. Does the Society pay the premium? Yes.
11718. Have you had any defalcations since or before Pettit's case? None.
11719. Have you a larger number of members now than when Pettit was in the Lodge? No, not so many.
11720. What is the largest number of members you had at any time? About 320.
11721. What are the contributions? 1s. a week, and 2s. levy per quarter.
11722. That is 60s. a year? Yes.
11723. What do you pay your medical man? 16s. per member per annum.
11724. And what do you pay the chemist? 10s. per member per annum.
11725. And what do you pay on account of working expenses per year? About £45 in salaries, &c.
11726. What do you pay the Secretary? £15 a year, the Treasurer £10, the Assistant Secretary £5, the Auditors two guineas, and the doorkeeper 52s.
11727. Are there any other paid officers? No.
11728. The Chairman does not get paid? No.
11729. And what is the rent? The rent is 7s. 6d. a meeting.
11730. What have you paid during last year on account of sick pay? I could not tell you.
11731. Do you know what profit you made on the receipts and expenditure? Something like £130.
11732. Do you know the average ages of your members? No, I do not—I could not form an idea.
11733. Have you many old men? I think I am about the oldest now.
11734. Have you a good many young men? Yes, a large number.
11735. Do all your members undergo a medical examination? Yes.
11736. Have many been refused admission in consequence of being unsound in health? Only one, by our medical officer.
11737. Do you belong to any other Benefit Society? No.
11738. Do you think it a wise provision to permit members to be members of more than one Society? I could not answer that question, but I see no objection.
11739. You think it would be wise to permit persons to join one, two, three, or more Societies? I think so, if the Societies have no objection.
11740. Do you not think it would be an inducement to members to sham sickness, so as to go on the funds? I should think that would be the fault of the medical officer, though no doubt there have been instances where illness has been shammed.
11741. Have you had cases in connection with your own Society? I believe so.
11742. Have you anything further to add to your evidence? No.
11743. Have you any suggestions to make? No, I have not.
11744. Mr. Smith.] Taking the liabilities of a Friendly Society in consideration, do you think your Society is on a sound financial basis? I think so.
11745. You think that under ordinary circumstances it is able to meet the liabilities that its rules oblige it to meet?
11746. Have you found the present Friendly Societies Act in any way interfere with the progress of your particular Society? It causes great dissension at times in various Lodges.
11747. In what way? In reference to the registration of our rules. I believe it to mean that when our rules are once registered and distributed to the various subordinate Lodges that may originate throughout the land, these rules do not require re-registration. I believe it to be an injustice to receive the registration fee for them again, unless there is some by-law added by the Lodge.
11748. Do I understand you that if the Grand Council register the rules you think it should be sufficient for all purposes? That is certainly my own opinion.
11749. Do you think that in itself would be a relief to subordinate Lodges? I do.
11750. Were you a registered Society at the time of the misappropriation of this money? Yes.
11751. Did the Lodge take any steps to bring the matter under the notice of the present Registrar of Friendly Societies? Not that I am aware of.

Mr. J. Perry.
10 July, 1882.

11752. Do you think if the present Act had been more stringent in its governing principles such misappropriations of money could not take place? I have no doubt of that.
11753. And do you think it would be advisable in any new legislation that particular interest should be carefully guarded over? I think so; it could not be too strict, in my opinion.
11754. Did the appropriating of this money by Pettit extend over a very long period of time? Some two years.
11755. He was receiving contributions as Secretary, was he not? Yes, regularly every meeting night.
11756. Did he succeed in disguising from the Auditors of the Lodge the fact that he had not accounted for all the moneys he received? Yes, he did.
11757. Were the Auditors in the case the same all the time? No.
11758. You had eight audits during the whole of that period? Yes.
11759. They were not the one set of Auditors? No.
11760. And it is a fact that he succeeded in disguising the defalcations from the whole of the men who were appointed? There is no doubt of it in my mind.
11761. Were the men as a rule competent to deal with matters of figures? I think so.
11762. Do you generally find that to be the rule in a Society, that the men appointed as Auditors are the most competent to deal with figures? No.
11763. Has it ever occurred to you that a better system might be adopted in auditing the accounts? I do not think so.
11764. Does your system differ in any respect from the system generally in use? Yes, more than it did at the time of these defalcations.
11765. What are the particular differences? We have a book into which the nightly payments are entered to the credit of each member, which was never looked at; it was counted up and handed to the Treasurer, who gave a receipt for the amount, and the Auditors took it for granted that that was correct.
11766. Had the Treasurer no knowledge of the fact that this Secretary was applying the money to his own use? Not until I pointed it out myself.
11767. In the event of the Government establishing a Department with a Registrar for the purpose of working and protecting Friendly Societies, would you be favourable to the principle of any member applying to that officer for the appointment of two officers that might examine the accounts? Decidedly so; yes.
11768. Do you think such a principle would be a great protection to the members of the various Friendly Societies? No doubt of it.
11769. Your Society is based, is it not, on a religious principle? Yes.
11770. And none but persons professing the Protestant religion can become members? Yes, and their families also.
11771. Mr. Rubie.] Who was Master of the Lodge the time these defalcations took place? There were two or three at the time.
11772. Then one who said that the defalcations were £270, was he correct? I would not like to say.
11773. When you discovered these defalcations, did you report it to the Lodge? Immediately.
11774. Was there a special audit? There was.
11775. What was the result? They found that there was a certain amount deficient, but how much they could not say, because they found that the books were kept in such a disorderly state that there was no getting at the truth.
11776. How much was he called upon to make good? £150 or £180 I think.
11777. Did he make that good? No.
11778. Did he promise to do so? No.
11779. And it is not made good now? No.
11780. Mr. Slade.] Have any other deficiencies come under your knowledge besides this of Pettit's? Not that I am aware of.
11781. What was the Secretary's name in No. 25, who when being accused of incorrect entries threw down the money on the table? That was Pettit.
11782. Mr. Abigail.] Who was the lawyer the Lodge consulted who recommended you not to take proceedings? I believe it was Mr. Colyer.
11783. Were you present when it was discussed in the Lodge? Yes.
11784. Was any reference made to the clause in the Friendly Societies Act setting forth how those people should be proceeded against? No.
11785. Do you know that the Act lays down a clear rule by which the Trustees ought to have proceeded against Pettit for embezzlement? I do now, but did not at the time.
11786. How long is it since this took place? I believe it was 1876.
11787. Do you think a man who misuses the funds supplied by the members should be let off in this way? I think he ought not to be let off at all.
11788. Would you favour the using of a uniform set of books throughout all Friendly Societies? Yes, and I think they might be greatly simplified.
11789. Have you any suggestions to make to the Commission that would assist them in framing a new Friendly Societies Act of a more perfect character? No.

The Commission then adjourned till Friday, the 14th July.

FRIDAY, 14 JULY, 1882.

P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,
W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. James Munro sworn and examined:—

- Mr. J. Munro. 11790. President.] What Society are you a member of? No. 25 Young Australia, Protestant Alliance.
11791. Are you still a member? Yes.
14 July, 1882. 11792. Do you hold any office? Yes.
11793. What office? Treasurer.
11794. How long have you held that office? Five years and eight months.
11795. What funds have you to your credit on behalf of the Society? In January last the amount was £1,002 16s. 10d.
11796. That is cash, I presume? No; £150 is in shares in the Protestant Hall, the rest is cash.
11797. How is this balance invested? It is deposited in the Banks.
11798. To the credit of the Trustees? Yes.
11799. Who are the Trustees? Samuel James Hardy, Phillip Pring, and T. A. Harrieks.
11800. How many members have you in the Society? About 180 I think.
11801. Is that the largest number you have ever had? No.
11802. What has been the largest number? I could not tell; at the time the Lodge was first established there were over 200.
11803. And was there a larger number subsequently? No, I do not think so.
11804. Have you had any defalcations in connection with your Society? Yes.
11805. What has been the nature of them? They were by the Secretary who held office at one time; in fact I shall have to make a statement in order to explain the matter.
11806. Will you then make the statement? There was a Brother who held office as Secretary one time, and he came forward for office again nearly two years afterwards. I had been Treasurer one year while he held office, and still continued to be Treasurer of the Society, and while paying a sick member at one time this sick member complained to me that he had received a summons for more arrears than what he owed; I said that the only way to rectify that would be to have his pence-book compared with the ledger, as he said he was certain he did not owe the money, because he was credited in his pence-book with the amount he had paid and there was a deficiency of 11s. I got the pence-book and got the ledger and compared the book with the ledger, and found the dates were the same; the Brother was credited with 21s. on his pence-book and only with 10s. on the ledger. When this Brother came forward to be installed as Secretary of the Society I objected, and they wanted to know my reasons, and I gave as my reason that, while he was an officer of the Society before, he had held back some of the books belonging to the Society, and also that there was a discrepancy between the book of this Brother and the ledger; he wanted to know what the discrepancy was, and I produced the books showing that there was a discrepancy of 11s.; he took half a sovereign and threw it on the table, and said he supposed that made it right, and I said no, and he then threw down another shilling. I still objected to his taking office, and as the Brother did not have his bonds ready that night it was put off, and he was not put in office again.
11807. What was the amount of his defalcations? According to the Auditors' report—I took the trouble to look over it—his defalcations were £138 8s. 10½d.; but there were further discoveries made after that, that would amount to about £150 in all.
11808. What is that statement you have in your hand? It is only a matter of figures I went into, comparing the receipts of the evening as shown by the Treasurer's receipts with the ledger, and the difference shown. There are eleven takings on different nights, and I found differences in all of them. On December 23rd, 1875, £21 2s. 2½d. is credited in the ledger; the Treasurer's receipt on that night was £18 16s. 1½d., leaving a difference of £2 6s. 1d. On January 13th, 1876, according to the ledger, £14 19s. was received, and the Treasurer's receipt was for £12 12s. 4½d., leaving a difference of £2 6s. 7½d. On February 10th the ledger shows £24 16s. 10½d., and the Treasurer's receipts £22 10s. 6d., or a difference of £2 6s. 4½d. On February the 24th the ledger shows £19 10s. 4d., and Treasurer's receipts £17 14s. 11½d., being a difference of £1 15s. 4½d. On March the 9th there is £19 17s. 9d. in the ledger, while the Treasurer's receipt shows £16 19s. 9d., or a difference of £2 18s. On April 13th, in the ledger is £7 11s., while the Treasurer's receipt is for £6 13s. 6d., being a difference of 17s. 6d. On May the 11th £30 11s. 10½d. is credited in the ledger, but the Treasurer's receipt is for £21 19s. 7½d., making a difference of £8 12s. 3d. On April 27th there is £15 8s. 9d. in the ledger, while the Treasurer's receipt is for £12 4s. 6d., leaving a difference of £3 4s. 3d. On June the 22nd the ledger shows £44 10s. 1½d. as having been received, while the Treasurer's receipt is for £42 10s. 3d., the difference amounting to £1 19s. 10½d. On July the 14th I find £13 4s. 4½d. credited in ledger, the Treasurer's receipt being for £12 3s. 6d., or a difference amounting to £1 0s. 10½d.; while on August the 24th the ledger shows £21 0s. 6d. as having been received, the Treasurer's receipt being given for £20 1s. 3d., making a difference of 19s. 3d. These are a few items that I have extracted from the ledger and cash-book and receipts of the evening.
11809. You have not made up the sum total? No, that is not the total, and does not include the whole or anything like it.
11810. Was there any inquiry or investigation made upon these discoveries? Yes.
11811. What was the nature of that inquiry? The nature of the inquiry was, as I have stated, that Auditors were appointed to inquire into the whole of the state of the circumstances.
11812. That was the result—what was the character? There was a Committee appointed. I have a rough draft of what the Auditors reported here.

11813.

11813. Who were the Auditors? W. Foskett, W. B. Foster, and W. Buchanon. The following is their report:—

Mr. J. Munro.
14 July, 1882.

The Auditors appointed at the summoned meeting of No. 25, held on Wednesday, the 4th instant, to investigate the accounts in connection with alleged discrepancies in the accounts of the Lodge while Brother Pettit was Secretary, from July, 1875, to December, 1877, inclusive, have to report that they commenced the audit with a desire to make a thorough investigation into the accounts, but found so many difficulties in the way, through not having the whole of the pence-books, and the extremely careless and improper manner in which the ledger was kept, that they had to confine themselves to a comparison of the ledger, the cash-book, and the minute-book. The two latter, so far as the cash-book had been kept, were found to agree within a very small amount; but a very great discrepancy has presented itself in the comparison of the ledger with the cash-book and minute-book. In many cases we find that amounts paid by members have been carried to the total column without being entered in the fortnightly column, and in numberless instances the amounts paid by members are entered in the proper fortnightly columns, but are not carried on to the total columns; consequently we have not been able to make out a correct balance of the ledger. To do so would necessitate the re-entering of the amounts and a comparison of every entry in the pence-books, which would occupy two men at least a month.

11814. Is that the whole of their report? Not at all.

11815. Have you any more of it there? No.

11816. What was the recommendation? There was no recommendation at that time. The recommendation was that the Secretary be instructed to write to this Brother, requesting him to come forward, and either meet the deficiency or make a statement to the Lodge that might be approved or disapproved of by its members.

11817. Then the Auditors say the books would not enable them to arrive at an actual deficiency? Yes.

11818. Were all the pence cards called in? No.

11819. Would that not have shown how the money had been paid? Yes.

11820. And would not that have been a more effectual way of auditing? It is a process that has not been adopted generally in all Lodges, though it has been done once or twice in the Lodge I belong to; it takes a great deal of time, and the members neglect to send in their pence cards.

11821. Yes, but in a case like this where a large amount of money has been made away with, would it not have been worth while and trouble of the Auditors of the Society to have the whole of the pence cards called in, in order to arrive at some conclusion as to the amount of money that had been made away with by the Secretary? Yes.

11822. And would it not have been the means also to have enabled you to prosecute this Brother? Yes.

11823. Because the pence card is the voucher for the money received by the Society? Yes.

11824. Then the only way to have reached this Brother would have been to have called in the pence cards? Just so.

11825. Had he not given you the receipt, it would have been clear proof that he had received the money and misapplied it? Yes.

11826. That course was not taken, I presume? There was only one pence card checked, as I have stated already.

11827. That is the one you discovered yourself? Yes, and he complied with our rules so far that he threw down the deficiency of the money. The Brother who is a Secretary has a book for his own convenience and for taking the members' names and amounts of money paid. This book was destroyed or never produced to the Lodge by Pettit. If the Auditors had got this book there was no doubt about them coming to a conclusion at all, but it was never given up to the Lodge.

11828. But would not the next best thing have been the pence cards? Yes.

11829. That course was not taken? It was suggested.

11830. But it was not adopted? No, it was not.

11831. What was done by the Lodge—what was the final result of the inquiry? The final result of the inquiry was, after a good deal of correspondence had taken place between the Brothers and the Trustees, that a letter was written, stating that they wanted £150 from him; and he said he had not got it, until they began to think that the man was out of his mind.

11832. Did you take any legal opinion as to prosecution? Yes.

11833. What was the advice? Well, the Master stated to the Lodge one night that he had been speaking to a solicitor on the matter, and the advice he received from the solicitor was that he did not think it would be worth while going to Court with this man.

11834. Was he afraid he would not secure a conviction? I do not know.

11835. But the opinion which was expressed by the Master of the Lodge, was it an opinion that was received and paid for by the Lodge? No.

11836. Did they not employ any one? No.

11837. It was simply a conversation between the Master and some attorney? Yes.

11838. Were there not bondsmen on behalf of the Society? I think so, but I do not know that there were.

11839. To what amount was the bond, do you know? I think £25.

11840. Have they ever been called upon to make good this £25? No, not to my knowledge.

11841. Is it the intention of the officers of the Society to call upon them? I cannot say.

11842. The matter has never been mooted in the Lodge? Not since he was expelled.

11843. What is the object of taking a bond? To secure the fidelity of the man.

11844. It is simply to protect the Society against fraud? Certainly.

11845. Then why have you not seen that the bondsmen have been called upon to make good the bond? I am only one out of seventy, and if the half had been of the same mind as I am they would have lost all they had or had him prosecuted.

11846. But as a mere matter of business, would not you if you were similarly situated call on the bondsmen to make good any default? Certainly; but then there was the time that elapsed between the time that he was Secretary and this defalcation, and it might be held that this released the bondsmen.

11847. What length of time did elapse? About eighteen months, and it is probable that the sureties had handed him over the bond and had made themselves free from it.

11848. But you have no recollection of any attempt being made on the part of the Society to enforce the bond? None.

11849. Did you as Treasurer ever do it? No.

11850. What action did the Society take in reference to this member after the inquiry? They expelled him from the Society altogether.

11851.

Mr.
J. Manro.
14 July, 1882.

11851. That is really the only punishment he received? That is all.
11852. Did he protest against the expulsion or take it kindly? He sent a £1 note to the Lodge at that time to clear himself as he said, and wished to withdraw from it altogether, but it was not received.
11853. You mean the money was not received? No, it was not.
11854. That was declined and he was expelled? Yes.
11855. Have you had any further trouble with him since? No.
11856. How often do you have an audit of your accounts? Every quarter.
11857. Are there three or two Auditors? Three.
11858. And do you have an annual audit? No, not in addition to the quarterly ones.
11859. You say eighteen months intervened during the time of the defalcations to the time they were found out? All that.
11860. Then there were six audits during that time? I expect so.
11861. And the Auditors during this time failed to find out any of these defalcations? Certainly.
11862. I want to know if those six Auditors failed to discover the defalcations? I cannot say that; if they discovered it they never made it known, or made any report to the Society.
11863. And I suppose they reported to the Society that the expenditure and receipts were correct? They were correct as far as the books they saw were concerned.
11864. Do I understand you that the books would not show anything like the extent of the defalcations, that they were badly kept, so imperfect and misleading that they would not show it? Yes, the books that the Auditors received were perfect, but this one book was never brought before the Auditors.
11865. What book was that? The ledger.
11866. Was it absent at all the audits? It must have been.
11867. But what Auditors would bring up a report that the accounts were right without having the ledger? Well, the receipts of the evening are taken in the minute-book, and they take the amounts there, and the Treasurer gives a receipt for the amount the same night, all these are in different books; then there is the sick pay and so on entered into this book, and the Master's name is signed to every one of these sick payments. Well, here were the receipts of the evening, say £20, the Master has signed the book for £20, and the Treasurer's receipt is signed for £20, so that if the ledger was kept back I do not see what check there could be, and I could not say whether the Auditors knew that there was such a book in the Lodge—it was not produced by the Secretary.
11868. Then it must have been a most defective audit, must it not? They were competent Auditors.
11869. Who were they? Mr. Goodwin, Mr. A. Adams —
11870. Mr. Adams, the teacher? Yes.
11871. Who was the other, do you remember? Mr. Geo. Walker.
11872. Although three Auditors were elected, was it necessary for three to sit? Sometimes there were only two.
11873. But on each occasion they reported that they had examined the vouchers and books of the Society? They presented a report in the usual form.
11874. The President of your Society does not preside at these audit meetings? He is not compelled to do so, but he has to sign the balance-sheet.
11875. After it has been examined by the Auditors appointed? Yes.
11876. And it is submitted to the members of the Society and adopted by them? Yes.
11877. Would you favour a Government supervision and inspection of the books, receipts, and expenditure of the various Friendly Societies? Certainly.
11878. Do you think it would secure these Societies against fraud in similar cases to that which you have disclosed? Yes, if they were honest men.
11879. Do you not think that an expert would have been able to detect this peculation? Yes, I believe he would.
11880. But you had not an honest officer? The Auditors would have found it out if the books had been produced at the audit.
11881. But why did not the Auditors ask for this book? I do not suppose they knew there was such a book.
11882. And the Society had no legal opinion as to whether they could prosecute this member? Only what I stated.
11883. They did not employ any one? Not to my knowledge.
11884. And took no steps to prosecute him? No.
11885. Was the matter submitted to the Lodge? Yes, I submitted a motion myself that the Trustees take legal proceedings at once.
11886. What was the result? It was carried unanimously.
11887. And what was done? There were communications between the Society and Trustees, and after some time on a quarterly night again the original motion was rescinded.
11888. Have you any papers that bear on this matter? Yes, I have them here.
11889. Let us have anything bearing on the case? They are not directly on it, but here is a letter from Pettit:—

My dear Hardy, Wednesday.
Standing on Cook's River Dam waiting the coach, I scribble this to you. It seems you and I are to fight out 25 matters, willy nilly. Will you look at your registered rules before they meet to-night, and see that all their steps so far conform thereto, so that when you go on you will stand on sure ground, and also see if you can get £20 out of sureties, so as to reduce your claim on me to £130, and then look out how much of your funds you can spare to go at me for balance, and how much of that you are likely to get. I wish you joy of all you can get in cash, and if you put me in gaol, my loving relative, W. S. Harrison, can tell you that I am only going back there to finish my mat-making trade. When I had a £1 a fortnight ago I sent it and my resignation, which I am willing to give as a settlement of all claims, and I now send it to you, and I give you my word to repay you that amount on 1st April next, if you pay it for me; but I only do so as a final settlement, which if not accepted—and I don't see any rule why not—I may yet have to make you defendant for malicious slander, of which I am advised I already hold proof from your Secretary. This much you can do, you can make me lose my work, and that is what some of your members want, and under the circumstances that can easily be done; your first move will do that, as I cannot remain here under the approval of the party I named in my last to you as my patron. To stand in 25 and denounce the action of my wife I never will.

Fraternally yours,
J. PETTIT.

Address me to G.P.O.

11890.

Mr. J. Munro.

14 July, 1882.

11890. Are there any other letters? Not bearing much on this matter.
11891. Is there any further information you could give us on this matter? I think there is nothing else.
11892. Have there been any other defalcations of any account? Not in this Lodge.
11893. In any other Lodge that you have knowledge of? No; there were some defalcations connected with the Grand Lodge, I believe.
11894. Were they made good? I believe so. I was a member of the Council at the time when it was spoken of, but the Executive settled the matter outside the Council, the money being made good.
11895. Do you remember the amount of defalcations by the Grand Secretary? I could not be positive whether it was £176 or £276.
11896. It was not Pettit was it? No, but it was a man in the Government employ.
11897. Then you have nothing further to tell the Commission in reference to defalcations in connection with your own Lodge? No.
11898. And nothing in reference to defalcations in connection with the Grand Lodge? No.
11899. That is all that has come under your notice? Yes.
11900. Mr. Smith.] From the statement you have made, it appears that it was by the merest accident that these defalcations were discovered? Yes.
11901. Then it was quite possible for this man to have continued doing that sort of thing had it not been for the accident? He was out of office when it was discovered.
11902. But had it not been for that, he would have gone on in the office? Yes.
11903. And no doubt would have continued misappropriating the funds of the Society? Yes, I have no doubt of it.
11904. Is it your opinion that any of the checks used in your Society would have been of such a character as to prevent that sort of thing? Not while he held back the ledger.
11905. And you are convinced, with your experience in connection with the Society, that it would be wise to adopt a system by which the Registrar or some person authorized by the Government of the country should audit the books,—that there should be a system of auditing once a year? Most certainly.
11906. How long was Pettit out of office when you discovered this affair? About eighteen months.
11907. Did he not hand over all his books to his successor? No.
11908. Not the ledger? Yes.
11909. And did not his successor detect the defalcation? No.
11910. Is the ledger the book into which the subscriptions of members are carried? Yes.
11911. Well, after members had paid amounts, and they had not been carried on to their credit, would not anybody have been able to observe that —? I do not understand you.
11912. I understand you to say that members have paid amounts and have not been credited with these amounts in the ledger? Yes.
11913. Would it not be easy then for the successor, who had the books for two years, to have discovered the defalcations? He discovered it in this way: that in carrying the arrears forward, in summoning the members he might summon them for 18s., and the member find out that he only owed 8s.
11914. You send out circulars quarterly, with the amount of arrears on them? Yes.
11915. Was that adopted after the first three months he left office? Yes.
11916. Did any members complain of the amount of arrears set down against their names? I could not answer that.
11917. Could you furnish the Commission with a copy of the various Auditors' reports since Pettit went out of office? Well, the Auditors kept no reports; they merely take the books and the vouchers and see that they are correct, and send in the total worth of the Society.
11918. Do they not say they have examined all the books and vouchers of the Society and found them to be correct? Yes, they do that; but that is not a report.
11919. If they had done that for two and a half years, and the books showed £250 deficiency, would they have faithfully discharged their duty to the Society? I say they audited the books correctly that were laid before them.
11920. Were they not all laid before them? No.
11921. Is it not the Auditors' duty to see all the books laid before them? They might not have known there was such a book.
11922. But the ledger is a most important book? Yes.
11923. How did the Lodge deal with those members who had paid subscriptions, which were paid and not placed to the credit in the Secretary's book? A good many of the members grinned and bore it and paid the arrears, but there was one man by the name of Robinson, in reference to whom I moved myself, when it was proved that he had paid the money, that 5s. be placed in his book to make it up. That is the only case I know of in which this was done.
11924. But a large number of members must have paid their subscriptions twice over? Yes, I have no doubt of that.
11925. In the matter of security, do you not think it would be better to have a Guarantee Society as security, rather than taking that of individual members? That is the system we adopt now.
11926. Do you take one from the Secretary and Treasurer now? Yes, from both.
11927. You felt very strongly on this matter? I did.
11928. Are you aware that the 13th clause of the Second Part of the Friendly Societies Act enables you individually to lay an information against this man: it says that any person on behalf of the Society may summon a person against whom a complaint is made, to appear at a time and place to be named in such summons, and any two Justices present at the time and place mentioned in such summons shall proceed to hear and determine the said complaint in manner directed by the Act or Acts in force for the time being regulating summary proceedings before the Justices? I know that according to clause 39, in my way of reading it, I do not see but that the money could have been recovered easy enough if we had liked to go about it.
11929. Is Pettit the owner of any property? That I could not answer; in one of his letters he says he has neither money nor money's worth; if that is correct he has no property.
11930. You do not know whether it is his own, or whether it is vested in his wife? I do not know.
11931. The Lodge never authorized any person to take proceedings against him? The Lodge carried a resolution that the Trustees should do so.

- Mr. J. Munro. 11932. What particular reason did the Trustees give for not proceeding to carry out the wish of the Lodge? According to rumour this Brother had nothing to lose; the land belonged to his wife, and I believe it was from outside report that they did not care to throw away good money to get bad.
- 14 July, 1882. 11933. Was it pointed out to the Trustees that they were compounding a felony in a case of this kind? No.
11934. You are thoroughly in favour of the proposal that a close Government supervision should be exercised over the affairs of the Societies? Yes.
11935. The prosperity of your Society has been good? Yes.
11936. Is the sick list very heavy? Some quarters it is and others it is lighter.
11937. Would you favour a uniform system of book-keeping in all Societies? Yes, if it is simple and not too cumbersome.
11938. How much are you as Treasurer empowered to retain in your hands? £10.
11939. If you require more how do get it? From the Trustees.
11940. Mr. Holdsworth.] Were you Treasurer at the time Pettit was Secretary? For one year.
11941. During the period of his defalcations? Part of it.
11942. Did you sign the Treasurer's book when you received moneys from him? Yes.
11943. Did you ever tot it up to see what he had got? No; after counting the money I signed for the money I received.
11944. Mr. Rubie.] Is the Grand Secretary who was a defaulter still a member of the Society? I think not, but cannot say certainly.
11945. I suppose your Society is registered according to law? I believe so.
11946. And you act up in the Lodge according to the rules of it? Not altogether I don't think.
11947. How is that? Our rules for the present time have been drawn out for the establishment of Districts, and since these rules were drawn up and registered and Districts formed they have been abolished again, and we are not working in Districts and we are not working according to the laws, but are simply united to the Grand Executive.
11948. There is a District in Sydney, is there not? Well, we are not divided into Districts the same as the Oddfellows are.
11949. You have stated that you simply sign for the amount of money that you receive? Yes.
11950. This book the Secretary did not show to the Auditors, but did any one ever inspect it to see that he kept it right? Not while it was in his hands.
11951. Is not the Master of the Lodge supposed to do that? When I discovered this discrepancy and objected to the Brother being installed as Secretary, the Grand Master of the Order, then Bro. Walker, who was visiting the Lodge, called at once for the ledger, which was produced, and he found a deficiency in one night's takings of something like 11s., I think.
11952. And did the Grand Master take any action that night? No; he said as this Brother had been charged with this 11s., and the Brother then threw it down, and he then quoted a rule to show that when we received it we could not help installing him, but the Grand Master refused to instal him because his bonds were informal.
11953. Then were it not for the Grand Master being in the Chair he might have been installed? He might have been.
11954. And have continued in office? Not if I could have helped it.
11955. Is that Grand Master still a member of the Society? Yes.
11956. Does he hold any office? According to our books he is the immediate Past Grand Master of the Society.
11957. Is he financially good? As far as I know he is.
11958. You said just now you had 200 members when your Society was opened? I believe there was about that.
11959. And only number about 180 now? To the best of my knowledge.
11960. Did the most of them leave through death, expulsion, or what? A good many through allowing their arrears to run up and to the inability of getting the arrears, so that the Lodge deemed it necessary to have them expelled so as to save the Secretary a deal of trouble and labour.
11961. Then when a man at a certain time is bad on your books you expel him? Not always. If there is a likelihood of getting the money they try to get it.
11962. But in most cases you adopt that plan? The majority of men that have been at one time members of the Lodge and have left have been dealt with in that way.
11963. Mr. Newland.] I see in the balance sheet for the 31st July, 1881, that there is £53 7s. 6d. for regalia; also from 31st July to 31st January, 1882, £73 9s. 6d. for regalia—Does your Society require this large amount of money spent for regalia? I do not know.
11964. Do you think it is necessary for the proper working of Friendly Societies that such large amounts of money should be paid away for regalia? I would do away with it altogether.
11965. Mr. Gelding.] Were you, as Treasurer, present at the audits? Yes.
11966. Were the pence books submitted to the Auditors for examination? Only once or twice since the Lodge was started.
11967. Who kept them back? No one kept them back, but the members refused to give them up.
11968. But I mean the contributions that the Secretary takes down the money in? Yes, that book was produced.
11969. And did they tot that up and see if the arrears or advances were correctly brought up? I do not know.
11970. I presume that was where the chief defalcation took place? Yes.
11971. Do you not think the Auditors as men of business should have insisted on having the books submitted to them? They did insist on it, but Pettit was in bad health, and living at Cook's River, and I do not believe that there was a Brother but had the greatest confidence in him; and it was through that it was not insisted upon.
11972. And do you think the Auditors could possibly certify that things were correct, in the absence of a very important book like that? No.
11973. Then they were very lax in their duty? But they would be justified in certifying to the books and vouchers they received.

11974. Then if he had only produced one single book it would have been sufficient? I do not think that. Mr. J. Munro.
11975. Under what system do you pay demands made on you for sick pay—how are the orders made out? 14 July, 1882.
Well, if Brothers are sick the money is voted; and as soon as it is voted, an order is signed by the Master, the Secretary, and Deputy Master, and handed to the Treasurer, and he pays it on that.
11976. President.] You have nothing further to add to your evidence already given? Yes, there is a matter I would like to say to the Board, in reference to Friendly Societies. In my way of thinking as regards the working of Friendly Societies, and the amount of good they are doing, the Government should give them more protection than they have at the present time; there are great difficulties in getting members in arrears to pay up, and the amount of trouble and loss of time in getting out summonses causes many a one to get away out of the Society altogether, and the Society is at loss of a quarter's fees to the doctor and chemist, and those that stick hard to the Society have to lose this. I will instance a case. Two defaulting Brothers were sued at the Central Police Court a short time ago, and there was a verdict given against them, "levy and distress," and at the time the Trustees went to them they had no money, and there was a bill of sale for their goods, so that nothing could be got from them. An official of the Government made an extra charge on the Lodge for acting as bailiff of 10s. more, thus we were at the expense of the Court and of paying the bailiff; we gained the case and lost all the money. Now this is a matter I think the Board ought to consider and try to assist these Societies, that there should be some more ready method of getting at these members who are in arrears.
11977. Do you favour the provisions of the Act providing that members in arrears should be summoned for the non-payment of their arrears? Most certainly, if they are able to pay.
11978. Or would you prefer that matters of dispute or matters of arrears of contributions should be adjusted and settled by the Lodge itself? No.
11979. You are not in favour of the principle of arbitration being applied to matters of dispute? Not in financial matters.
11980. You think they should be summoned to Court? Yes.
11981. How long do you allow members to be in arrears before they become unfinancial? If a member exceeds fourteen weeks he is unfinancial.
11982. And are they, according to your rules, after they are fourteen weeks in arrears, liable to receive in the case of death the funeral donation? I think so.
11983. Over twelve months, I presume? Yes, and longer than that; cases have happened in Sydney where they have been over two years. There is another matter I would like to draw attention to, a matter that appeared in one of the daily papers, stating that sectarian Societies, not being able to meet their liabilities, were best out of the road altogether. Now I wish to instance a case which occurred in the Order to which I belong. Some time there was a Lodge opened at Trinity School near Miller's Point, and it dwindled down and was dissolved, as when the members got so small the Grand Council thought it wise to withdraw the Charter and have them distributed into other Lodges. It will be in the recollection of the members of the Commission that a fight occurred in Surry Hills where a man was killed; he was a member of this Lodge, and application was made for a funeral donation, and it was paid, and that proves that this statement which was made in the papers is wrong.
11984. What letter do you refer to? I could not tell the name now, but it is an important matter to show that sectarian Lodges do assist their members. Our Rules 34 and 49 bear this out. Then with regard to the registration of Rules, I think when the Rules have been once registered by the Grand Council and approved of, it is an imposition to make other Lodges pay £1 for their registration.
11985. Do you think that the one registration should be sufficient? Yes.
11986. Does the Grand Lodge adopt a set of Rules for the government of all subordinate Lodges? Yes.
11987. A uniform set of Rules? Yes.
11988. And they register these Rules? Yes.
11989. Is that all? Yes.
11990. Mr. Abigail.] The Rules of your Society make clear provision that members belonging to a Lodge failing shall be absorbed into other Lodges? Yes.
11991. They cannot lose their benefits? No.

The Commission then adjourned till Monday, 17th July.

MONDAY, 17 JULY, 1882.

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., PRESIDENT.

J. GELDING, Esq.,	JAS. F. SMITH, Esq.,
E. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,	F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,	P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,	E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,
W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

[Mr. Abigail presided until the arrival of the President, and is here designated as Chairman.]

Mr. Ed. McEncroe sworn and examined:—

11992. Chairman.] You have made application to be examined before the Commission, have you not; and have stated that you could give valuable evidence? Yes. Mr. E. M'Encroe.
11993. Are you a member of any Friendly Society? I am an honorary member of the Guild, having been deposed from the benefits of the sickness funds some nine or ten years ago, but I am still entitled to medical and funeral benefits. 17 July, 1882.
11994. What were the grounds of your being deposed from these benefits? In August, 1845, I became a member of the Society. I was elected one of the first Council, and served about a year on the Council. In 1847 or '48 there was a great exodus from this Colony to California, and in consequence the Secretary was

- Mr. E. M'Encroe. 17 July, 1882. unable to keep the accounts correctly. In May it was proposed to dissolve the Society until the Archbishop returned, which would not be for seven or eight months. In addition to the loss caused by members going to California, a large number of members resigned. I was going to resign, but was induced to withhold my resignation and to take on myself the duties of Warden. I found shortly afterwards that the books went into disorder.* 11995. Then in that year you were the Warden of the Society? Yes.
11996. What are the duties of Warden? To preside at all meetings; he is the first lay-officer and has to give decisions. The books were brought under my notice, and when I saw them I did the best I could to collect all the cards and compare them with the books, so as to set them right; the balance of money that was in the Bursar's hands could not be accounted for, but at the end of the year I was able to make out an account somewhat correctly, and it appeared that the number of members was about 100 or 110, and that the funds were about £300. The Secretary had gone to California, and I could not get his assistance in settling the accounts, and the gentleman who took his place was rather incompetent. I declined to take office again, and things went on favourably for some years, and by a reform in the taking of money, the accounts became more satisfactory. We found that a number of members had given a false return of their ages; a resolution was passed that they should be allowed to remain if the frauds were not discovered for twelve months after their admission. A resolution was subsequently come to that a member might be given £20, and be free from all further payments of sick-pay. In 1867 blindness came on me.
11997. Did you declare on the sick funds? Not for some weeks after.
11998. Who was the Guild Doctor? Dr. Gilhooly. I submitted to an operation by Drs. Fortescue and Jones, but after two or three weeks they found that the operation was unsuccessful, and they had another operation and I was laid up again, and at the end of six months I made application for the sick pay, not being able to do any business for a considerable time.
11999. Were you placed on the sick funds? I got thirteen weeks' sick-pay.
12000. What explanation was given why you did not receive the fifty-two weeks' at a guinea? I took myself off the books as I did not want it. I did not apply for it again until two and a half years from that date had elapsed.
12001. Will you tell us the bad management of the Society? In May I was deposed.
12002. For what reason? They assigned no reason, and I did not even get a notice; it was done without notice, the Council deciding to stop the weekly payments, and to give me the sum of £20.
12003. Did they inform you that they had received the full amount? No.
12004. Did you ever receive the fixed amount of £20 to free the Society of its liability to you? I did not hear of it for a month or so afterwards, and then I was told that if I did not take the £20 I would get nothing; then again, I had a claim for compensation which I made for £25.
12005. Did you get it? No, they refused it. Mr. Rubie was in the Council at the time, and he made application for me to the Council, and they refused it, though they did not dispute the services I had rendered.
12006. Did you take any legal steps to get what you considered your right? Yes.
12007. And how did that come out? It was in the Court, but there was no hearing—there was no decision upon it.
12008. Was it withdrawn? It was withdrawn, as they set up the defence of the Statute of Limitations.
12009. After that the Chaplain told them that you had a fair and just claim? Yes, for the compensation.
12010. What did they do then? They refused to pay me.
12011. Did you take any further steps? I then made a claim, waiving this for compensation, on the ground that I had not taken these steps before.
12012. The Society disputed your claim, did they? They could not dispute the claim.
12013. But they never granted the money? They would not satisfy the claim.
12014. Do any of their laws allow them to pay for services such as you rendered? One of the rules is for the Secretary, and I did his business, which does not belong to the Warden's duties, and I assisted a subsequent Warden, with an actuary, to see that the subscriptions were right.
12015. Who was the actuary? Mr. Thompson. That was in 1859.
12016. What was his report? He said that there were £10 per member, which he thought would do for the present, but they ought to have another examination in another five years.
12017. That is the cause of your grievance against the Society? That they deposed me in this way, acting with a discretionary power, as if it were imperative.
12018. Can you give us any information why they have gone back so much as not to have £3 per head? I could not, but before this they had good Bursars and good Wardens.
12019. Have you any knowledge of any cases of misappropriation of the funds of the Society? No.
12020. Are you conversant with the present Act? It has been read for me.
12021. Can you give the Commission any suggestions that will improve upon it, or do you think it is sufficient to serve all the purposes for which it was passed? The Society has been acting in contravention of the Act—that I know.
12022. In what way? The Act obliges them to keep separate accounts of the widows' and orphans' money, but it had been jumbled together into one fund, instead of being kept separate, as it was while Mr. Rubie was at the head of affairs. It was jumbled together when the hall was built.
12023. Did you receive fifty-two weeks, at 21s. a week sick pay? Yes.
12024. And fifty-two weeks at 10s. 6d.? Yes.
12025. And £20 to buy off all claims you might have against the Society, except the death rate? No, I did not accept it on these terms.
12026. But did you accept £20? I did, with a protest that I would have the resolution rescinded.
12027. Do you know that one of the laws make provision that a member may receive the sum of £20 as a final payment for all benefits? I do not think that, as the rule only refers to the sickness fund.
12028. Did you draft the rule yourself? Yes, but it only applied to the sickness fund. 12029.

*NOTE (on revision):—11994. Instead of "induced," I was prevailed upon. 11994. Instead of "went into disorder," were in disorder, with some disputed accounts to settle. 11995. Instead of "that year," the last eight months of it; was the first four months, 1859, Warden again. 11996. Instead of "funds," assets were about £300. Instead of "gone to California," he had left Sydney, and it was said he had gone to California. 11999. Which I took towards paying Doctors' fees, being under their advice about three months and not attending any business. 12008. Instead of the Act of Limitation, they filed several pleas. 12019. I have unnecessary law expenses in about the last ten years in cases that could have been settled amicably, or by arbitration, besides coach expenses for deputations going to St. John's College, that could have been avoided by meeting the Patron at the Vicar-General's Office or at the Presbytery. 12030. Instead of "it was," write there were several other cases in the Law Courts besides that one.

12029. What have you to suggest? I think there should be a system of arbitration—preventing persons from going to law for the settlement of disputes. In one case at North Shore, where £10 was sued for, there were £46 expenses, and then the Judge decided that he had no jurisdiction.

12030. Was that case in connection with the North Shore branch of the Guild? It was, but there have been other suits since.

Mr.
E. M'Encroe,
17 July, 1882.

Mr. James Collis Pettit, who appeared with Mr. W. C. Proctor as his solicitor, was sworn and examined:—
12031. President.] Are you a member of any Friendly Society now? I am not a member of any Friendly Society.

12032. You were of No. 25 Protestant Alliance Society? I decline to answer that.

12033. Were you Secretary of a Friendly Society? I have been.

12034. What Society was that? Of three (3) Friendly Societies. The Loyal Orphans' Crown, Manchester Unity, the White Rose Division Sons of Temperance, and I was a member of another Society. I was not in office.

12035. Were you Secretary of a Branch of the Protestant Alliance Society? I decline to answer that.

12036. Were you ever during your residence in Sydney identified with a Branch of the Protestant Alliance Friendly Society? I decline to answer that.

12037. Do you know a person of the name of Harrison? I do, a scoundrel, sir.

12038. Is he a connection of yours by marriage? He is my wife's brother.

12039. Was he connected with the Society of which you were a member? I must decline to answer that, but I believe he was a member of No. 25.

12040. Was a Mr. Monro a member of the Society to which you belonged? I must decline that.

12041. Was Mr. Perry a member of the Society of which you were Secretary? I decline to answer that.

12042. Do you know a Mr. William Walker connected with the Alliance? No.

12043. Was he not Grand Master of the Alliance? I decline to answer that; I doubt if there is such a Society in legal existence.

12044. Do you not know there is a body, a Friendly Society, registered as the Protestant Alliance Friendly Society? There is such a Society registered.

12045. You know it has an existence? The Protestant Alliance has an existence, but I understand there are two.

12046. You know that both are registered? I decline to answer that.

12047. Do you know of any Secretary or office-bearer of the Society of which you were a member charging you with a misappropriation of the funds? I have heard of such things.

12048. Was a charge preferred against you? I had a charge preferred against me five years ago.

12049. Was that investigated? It was, I believe.

12050. And what was the result? The Society was afraid to let me know, but I believe I was expelled. I sent them 10s., and it was returned to me, and that is the only evidence I have, and in making this charge against me I sent them a counter-claim.

12051. Do you remember what the amount was they alleged you had misapplied? Not less than £150.

12052. Are you able to explain to the Commission how they came to make such a charge against you? Perfectly.

12053. Will you do so? It would not have been made only that I went up for re-election and beat these parties who were appearing against me. Seeing that I could beat them in an election this claim was put in against me, and I put in a counter-claim, which was for letting people off sums they owed. Say a man owed £3 the Lodge would let him off at least one-half; that is one thing. Another thing was that the rules do not provide for any country membership, but say that every man shall pay 2s., and yet, in breach of the rules, the Lodge in my time and since my time carried out this system of concessions.

12054. Which Lodge is that? The Lodge that complained against me. You will understand that these concessions came up before my time by those who managed the affairs. Well I am not much of a book-keeper, but it appears to me that if I kept a cash-book I should show in it the amount of cash I took, but in the other book (or ledger) if he paid some of his amount and was let off the balance I should give him credit for the total amount that he had owed—that is, in the member's account book.

12055. Was it your practice to receive the cash? There have been occasions when I did not receive one shilling.

12056. But have you not on some occasions received the cash and taken a receipt for a sum of money—the receipts of the evening? I never left the Lodge without a receipt from the Treasurer.

12057. But have you not on some occasions accounted for a sum of money much less than the receipts of the evening? No, certainly not; my cash always tallied.

12058. Has there not always been a deficiency between the amounts you handed over to the Treasurer, and the amount which should have been handed over to the Treasurer? No, certainly not.

12059. Is it a fact that you took the members' money in the pence books in pencil? I may have done so.

12060. Is it true that you lost two members' pence books which would have shown the takings of the evening? No, I never lost any book.

12061. You never told the Lodge that you had lost certain books? I did not.

12062. Are you aware that an audit took place of the books of the Lodge? Every quarter.

12063. I mean a special audit? I know nothing of any special audit.

12064. It is quite true that a demand was made for £150? Yes, and my answer was a contra account.

12065. What is the nature of this contra account? These concessions to country members, instructed by the Master and others.

12066. Can you give the names of members who received concessions to the amount of £150? No, not at this lapse of time.

12067. Can you give the names of any members that you made these concessions to? Yes, two now.

12068. What would be the amount of the concessions made to these two men? £8 or £9 between the two.

12069. Who are they, and where do they live? One was William Gillam, then working for the Corporation, and another, Crawford, living in Davies-street, Surrey Hills; he was of some peculiar trade, and could not get work, and the Master said we were never to expel these members.

12070. Did you produce your cash-book at the audits every quarter? Yes.

12071. And the ledger? Yes, every book connected with the Society.

12072.

*NOTE (by Secretary):—See examination of Mr. James Munro, question 11,890.

Mr.
J. C. Pottit,
17 July, 1882.

Mr.
J. C. Pettit.
17 July, 1882.

12072. Did you write several letters to the trustees? Never.
12073. Do you recognise the letter produced* as being in your writing? I decline to answer.
12074. Is it your signature? I decline to answer; I do not recognise it.
12075. You still say you do not recognise this letter? I do not recognise it.
12076. And you decline to answer any questions relative to the contents of the letter? Yes.
12077. Now in 1875, on 23 December, the Lodge receipts of the evening, from information we have received, were £21 2s. 2½d., and the Treasurer's receipt is for the sum of £18 16s. 1½d., leaving a difference of £2 6s. 1d.? That would be a concession, I suppose; my attention was never drawn to it.
12078. But how could the Lodge receive that in cash and yet there be a concession? I decline to answer that; I do not know what you have there; I have never seen it.
12079. Then, on May 10, the receipts were £30 11s. 10½d., and the only amount you accounted for was £21 19s. 7½d., leaving a deficiency of £8 12s. 3d.—is that so? No. Do I understand that the Treasurer produces receipts for the latter amount as received from me?
12080. Yes? Then the difference is a concession; that book was never reckoned up in my time.
12081. But if the money was received? But it was not money.
12082. The Treasurer says it is? Never mind what they say; it never was received.
12083. You say that all these sums of money —? I do not know them.
12084. On January 13, 1876, the ledger shows £14 19s., and the Treasurer's receipt is for £12 12s. 4½d.—a difference of £2 6s. 7½d.; on February 10 the ledger is £241 6s. 10½d., and the Treasurer's receipt £22 10s. 6d.—a difference of £2 6s. 4½d.; on —? Do I understand you that the cash book shows that on the Treasurer's account book.
12085. The cash-book? Well, the Treasurer was unable to meet his accounts, and I can name the Treasurer, too.
12086. Who was the Treasurer? James Dummer, of William-street, Woolloomooloo.
12087. Then there are also the following:—

Date.	Lodger.	Treasurer's Receipt.	Difference.
	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
February 24.....	19 10 4	17 14 11½	1 15 4½
March 9.....	19 17 9	16 19 9	2 18 0
April 13.....	7 11 0	6 13 6	0 17 6
May 11.....	30 11 10½	21 19 7½	8 12 3
April 27.....	15 8 9	12 4 6	3 4 3
June 22.....	44 10 1½	42 10 3	1 19 10½
July 14.....	13 4 4½	12 3 6	1 0 10½
August 24.....	21 0 6	20 1 3	0 19 3

Do I understand you to say that the Treasurer made away with these sums of money? No, I do not say that, but I say that I brought up my quarterly statement one quarter and my books showed that he owed £6 or £7 more than he summed up, and he paid it at once. The correctness of my books brought out the incorrectness of his.

12088. What books had you? From memory it is rather awkward to say. I cannot recollect now.
12089. And what office did you hold? I must decline to answer that.
12090. Did you give members receipts for moneys paid as Secretary of a Society? I decline to answer that.
12091. Did you receive money from certain members in a Society in Sydney? I decline that.
12092. What is the practice of the Secretary when he receives money; to give a receipt, is it not? If they have their books there.
12093. Was a case discovered by Mr. Munro where you had received 21s. and only accounted for 10s.? Yes, and I handed up the 11s., and at the close of the meeting they told me that if I did not take it up they would drink it.
12094. Did you throw it on the table? I did.
12095. Was it taken up? I took it up again; the man died about ten days afterwards.
12096. Did he get the benefits? His friends would.
12097. What was his name? James Busby; he was a man who had had concessions.
12098. And he is dead? I have heard so.
12099. Were there any other cases of members of the Society producing these pence cards, and finding that they had not had credit for the amounts of money they had paid from time to time? The man named Harrison whom I was speaking of produced a pence book on the same night, and threw the pence book on the table, saying, "Here is an entry and an erasure, and I have no doubt if you look in Pettit's time you will find a great many like it." I replied, "If you look at that you will find it is not in my writing nor in my time."
12100. Where did this happen? I decline to answer that.
12101. Then is it a fact that there were a number of others besides Harrison and Busby? No; I know of no others.
12102. Was it not brought under your notice that there were a number of members who had paid contributions who alleged that the amount of the contributions entered in the pence books had not been accounted for? No, it is all the other way; there are none who have any prejudice against me except these few officers I beat in an election.
12103. Did not the members of the Society expel you? I have no knowledge of it.
12104. Have you not received any intimation? I have not; they would not do it; they are afraid.
12105. What members do you refer to? I mean Munro and Perry, and the clique.
12106. Of twenty-five? Of twenty-five.
12107. They were your brother officers at the time, were they not? I decline to answer that.
12108. Was not Mr. Hardy a trustee of a Society of which you were Secretary? I decline that.
12109. Was not Mr. Munro Treasurer? I decline that.
12110. Was Mr. Perry elected after you? I do not know what they might do, because I was living in the country; it is five years since I left Sydney.
12111. Where did the Society meet? I must decline to answer that; half a dozen places, I was going to say.
12112. And you are not now a member of a Society? Of no Friendly Society. 12113.

Mr.
J. C. Pettit.
17 July, 1882.

12113. What funds had the Society when you left it? I do not know what Society you refer to.
12114. The Protestant Alliance? I do not know.
12115. The Society of which you were Secretary? I cannot answer that.
12116. Do you know how the funds were invested? I must not answer that.
12117. Do you know who the trustees were? I must decline to answer that.
12118. Do you know what amount of money you paid into the Society? No.
12119. Do you know what amount of money you received as an office-bearer? No.
12120. I mean as payment? No, I do not.
12121. Did you receive payment? I must decline to answer that.
12122. Do the Society's rules provide for the payment of its officers? I must decline to answer that; I know several of the Society's rules are not workable.
12123. But this Society of which you were Secretary? Their rules are not workable.
12124. And you do not know the names of the Trustees? I must decline to answer that.
12125. Mr. Abigail.] Would the concessions you have referred to be made by the Secretary without a resolution of the Lodge? In some cases.
12126. To the amount of pounds? To the amount of pounds.
12127. And the Secretary would have power to grant such a concession without a resolution of the Lodge? Not lawfully, I admit.
12128. But it has been done? It has been done.
12129. Would the books show any occasion where resolutions had been passed? It may have been done, but I doubt if ever there was a legal resolution passed.
12130. You stated that when you were called upon to make good £150 you sent back a counter charge setting forth that the £150 was made up of concessions that had been granted by you to various members and officers.
12131. And the whole of that would make up the full amount of £150? And more, if wanted.
12132. Then men have come here and stated that you have actually pocketed £150? They have sworn a deliberate lie; not 150 pence, let alone £1.
12133. These concessions could and did come up night after night? Yes.
12134. How often did the Society meet? Fortnightly; at its commencement perhaps weekly.
12135. And at these meetings concessions were made ranging from 18s. to £8? Yes, by me, by my predecessor, and successor.
12136. And you positively assert that you never pocketed £1? Not 1 shilling.
12137. Mr. Holdsworth.] Do your books not show the amount of the concessions some way? No, only the difference between the cash received and the members' account, and the members' account was never gone into because it was too vast to do it. We sat up one night till we went to sleep over my predecessor's book.
12138. Do you not keep a cash-book and ledger in your Society? It is the ledger that does not tally with the cash receipts.
12139. There is a book in which an account is opened for each member? Yes.
12140. Then when a member paid 15s. and you gave a concession for 5s., would it not show cash so much, and concession so much? No. If I had known they were going to tackle me it would have been done though.
12141. Then your books nowhere show what the amount of these concessions was? No.
12142. And that is the way they carried on their business? Yes.
12143. How did your auditors manage then? They never looked at that book.
12144. Did you not, as a matter of justice, insist on the accounts being examined? No. When I had the cash taken from me, and took a receipt for it, I considered I was clear of all.
12145. Then you say the Treasurer's account will tally with your cash-book? Yes, except in the one instance where the Treasurer had to make it good.
12146. Then your cash account for each night will be found to correspond with the receipts of the Treasurer that night? Yes.
12147. Mr. Rubie.] These concessions must be very numerous? They were—too numerous. It came to be—"Oh, let so and so off, he has been out of work."
12148. Mr. Newland.] How long has the Lodge been opened? It was opened in August, 1873.
12149. Mr. Slade.] Were you one of the founders of this particular Society? No, this Mr. Harrison was.
12150. How soon after it was founded did you join it? I decline to answer that.
12151. Can you remember any of the names of those to whom these concessions were made? I gave two, and can give others.
12152. Can you inform the Commission whether any books are in existence in which such notices or entries can be found? No.
12153. Have you anything yourself in the way of written evidence to prove your statement? No.
12154. You alluded to one who came in a cab and got a concession. Who was he? James Service, corner of Burton and Oxford Streets.
12155. Can you remember any other name? I might if time was given me.
12156. Did you keep that ledger? Yes.
12157. Did you keep that ledger in pencil? I might, perhaps, explain that.
12158. Please explain it then. In that ledger if you find lead pencil marks they are easily explained. It is supposed if you take an office that you will hold it till a certain time to complete that term of office. Supposing I leave Sydney, and someone else does the evening's work, and the book was sent out to me, if I had not pen and ink I might put it in in pencil.
12159. You admit that there was a ledger that might have been kept in pencil? Yes.
12160. And if so, because you could not get pen and ink? Yes.
12161. Mr. Gelding.] You attended these audits, did you not? Yes.
12162. And did you produce at these audits the members' contribution book to be audited along with the others? Yes.
12163. Was it audited? No, they went to sleep over it.
12164. It was asserted here that the book was never produced? That is false, it was always there, but shunned as too big a job.
12165. Then you say the Auditors did not do their duty? No.

- Mr. J. C. Pettit. 12166. Do you wish to make any further statement to the Commission? Mr. Colyer wrote to me five years ago, asking me to send this £150, and has had the opportunity ever since of making me do so, but has never done it, and when he does, I am prepared to meet it.
- 17 July, 1882. 12167. Did you write to the Trustees, and tell them they could not possibly obtain the money from you, and that they had better go to the sureties and get £20 from them, and reduce the matter to £130? I have had property to satisfy the judgment ever since.
12168. Did you write to the Trustees to tell them that? I never wrote to them to my knowledge.
12169. But did you ever write to any one of them to that effect? I must decline to answer that.
12170. Did you write to say that they could not get anything from you as you had not anything? No, I could not say that.
12171. Is it a fact that you wrote to them that they were trying to get you out of your employment? I must decline to answer that.
12172. Did you write it to any one of the Trustees? I decline to answer.
12173. Have you anything further to say to the Commission? No.
12174. Mr. Abigail.] You say you have property to satisfy any judgment? Yes, I had five years ago.
12175. President.] Have you now? Yes.
12176. Mr. Abigail.] With the knowledge that these people have charged you with robbery, have you any intention to proceed against them? I may. I am giving them time to proceed against me.
- The Commission then adjourned till 10 o'clock on Tuesday, the 18th July, to meet at the Court-house, Newcastle.

TUESDAY, 18 JULY, 1882.

(Held at Newcastle.)

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,

JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. James Reid sworn and examined:—

- Mr. J. Reid. 12177. President.] What Society are you a member of? The Manchester Unity.
- 18 July, 1882. 12178. How many years have you been a member? Somewhere near twenty years.
12179. What office do you hold? Provincial Corresponding Secretary for the District.
12180. How many Lodges have you in your District? Seven at present.
12181. Is that the largest number you ever had? Well, we did have eight, but the eighth was only opened and closed again.
12182. What was the reason of its being closed again? On account of the colliery at which it was established closing.
12183. And what became of the members? They ceased to be members. I advised them to keep their money through the other Lodges, but that did not seem to suit them.
12184. And what was the date of the establishment of your District at Newcastle? 1859—that was when we branched away from the Hunter River District.
12185. Your District does not embrace the Hunter River District? No, not now.
12186. Did it until 1859? Yes.
12187. What is the gross number of members you have now? About 600.
12188. Do you know the total value of the funds of the District? Yes.
12189. Will you tell the Commission? Yes. Ever since I took office I have divided the funds into Management Fund, Sick and Funeral Fund, and Widow and Orphans' Fund—up to December the Management Fund, £47 7s. 9d.—we do not keep a heavy fund in that, as we only levy the members for it according to our wants; Funeral Fund, £481 Os. 5d.
12190. What amount have you for the Widow and Orphans' Fund? £837 2s. 4d.
12191. What do you pay your members' wives on the death of a husband from the Widow and Orphans' Fund? It is according to a sliding scale.
12192. Up to how much? Up to £20; from £5 to £20.
12193. According to the number of years the member has been in the Society? Yes.
12194. What funeral donation do you pay from the Funeral Fund? £20. I produce the rules giving this information.
12195. What are the contributions paid by the members of the various Lodges in the district? 6d. to the Sick and Funeral Fund, and some Lodges pay 1½d. to the Management Fund, and others 2d.; and to the Widow and Orphans' Fund a penny a week.
12196. That is 9d. a week? Yes.
12197. But what I want to know is what the contribution paid by your members every week is? About 8½d. or 9d.
12198. What other benefits do your subordinate Lodges give? 20s. and one Lodge 21s. a week sick pay.
12199. For how long do you pay 20s.? Some Lodges six months.
12200. And after that time what is the sum paid? I am not sure whether it is 12s. 6d. or 15s.
12201. Do you know what your own Lodge pays? I forget.
12202. I understand that the highest contribution paid by the Lodge is about 9d. a week? Yes.
12203. Including everything? No, not the Doctor.
12204. What do you pay for the Doctor? 6d. a week besides.
12205. That would make 15d. a week? Yes.
12206. Then some pay 14d. and others 15d.? I must explain that in most of the Lodges very few members require to pay for the Doctor as they are connected with the collieries which have their own Doctor, and they do not require to have the Lodge Doctor and so do not need to pay for him.
12207. Do you know the amount of money paid on account of sick pay during last year? No I could not tell that.
12208. Do you know the total amount of contributions received during the year? No I only keep my own accounts.
- 12209.

12209. You could not say what were the total receipts for five years? You have it in the return. Mr. J. Reid.
12210. Can you tell from that (Report and Proceedings of the Grand Annual Movable Committee for 1882) what the receipts have been for last year from all sources? According to this report it is £1,621 14s. 1d., that is for subordinate Lodges. 18 July, 1882.
12211. Can you tell what was the total expenditure for a light period? £1,681 13s. 1d.
12212. Then according to that the expenditure is in excess of the income? Apparently it is at that rate; of course I do not keep any account of subordinate Lodges' workings.
12213. But that return was made up by the District I presume? No it is made up from the returns of subordinate Lodges.
12214. You have no means of telling the Commission what was the income and expenditure of previous years? No not for subordinate Lodges.
12215. You have no knowledge whether the District were in a better position the year before last than last year? I think so, but the only means to get that would be to get the Secretaries of subordinate Lodges here.
12216. What has been paid on account of medical attendance? I could not say.
12217. And you cannot tell the amount paid in the separate Lodges for such pay? No; that does not come under my notice.
12218. What do the subordinate Lodges pay their medical officers? 6d. per week per member.
12219. There is no tender then? No he is simply appointed at the rate of 6d. per member per week.
12220. What do you pay your chemist? That amount includes all medicines.
12221. Are you of opinion that the sum paid by the members of your subordinate Lodges is sufficient to meet all the requirements and demands of the Society? Well I believe in my opinion that the sick pay is too high for the amount of contributions paid.
12222. Do you think that it is a healthy indication to find that the income for last year for the District has not been equal to the amount of the expenditure? It does not look like it.
12223. Are you of opinion then that it is necessary to have a higher contribution? For the same amount of benefits I am decidedly.
12224. Then you think the contributions are not equal to the amount of benefits paid by the District? No I think the benefits are larger than the contributions will pay, that is in the Sick and Funeral Funds especially.
12225. Do your members pay a uniform contribution? Yes.
12226. Do you approve of that system? The Friendly Societies Act compels us to do so, and our laws compel us to divide the funds equally.
12227. Your by-laws compel you to do that? No, our constitutional law.
12228. Are you of opinion that it is a fair and equitable principle that a young man should pay as much as an old man per week? It has been carried on ever since our Order has been established here, and I do not know whether it would meet with the approbation of members or not to alter it.
12229. What is your own opinion? We regulate that according to the initiation scale, making the older members pay a higher initiation fee.
12230. Do you favour the principle of a uniform contribution, or do you favour a graduated scale of contribution according to age? In my opinion the graduated scale would be most equitable, but it would cause a great deal more labour.
12231. Has very much money of the funds of the Society been spent in regalia? No, not much money has been spent in this way.
12232. About how much? We have purchased, I think, one banner for the last eighteen years, and that is about all our expenditure.
12233. Was that from the funds of the Society? Yes.
12234. Do you not think that is a misapplication of the funds of a benefit Society that the contributions which are provided for the purpose of paying sick benefits and medical attendance —? That has nothing to do with the Medical Attendance Fund at all.
12235. But the contributions come for the management of the Society? Yes, we pay 1½d. or 2d. a week to the Management Fund.
12236. And you take the money out of the Management Fund? We levy each Lodge so much per member per year.
12237. But if any Lodge or member or number of members fail to pay the levy, would they not become financial? Yes, if they failed to pay any levies they would become unfinancial.
12238. What mode have you for recovering arrears of contributions from members of subordinate Lodges? When a member runs into arrears he is unfinancial at the end of three months.
12239. And he is not entitled to medical attendance or sick pay? No.
12240. But in case of death he would be entitled to the funeral donation? No, to no benefits whatever.
12241. Supposing he is twelve months in arrears do you take any further action? No; we have done so simply because the member is out of the Society altogether.
12242. You have not sued any of your members at the Police Court? No.
12243. Do you approve of that principle? No, I do not.
12244. How do you settle matters of dispute between the members of subordinate Lodges and your District? We have never had any; of course our rules give us guidance how to carry on by appeal to different Courts.
12245. Have you had any defalcations by officers or members of subordinate Lodges, or members of your District Lodge? Not that I am aware of; not since I took office.
12246. Not for twenty years? Yes, I believe there once was a defalcation in one of the subordinate Lodges, but I do not know anything of my own knowledge respecting it.
12247. Do you consider your District well managed and subordinate Lodges well managed? Well, I think so.
12248. Have you admitted many new members during the last year? Not last year.
12249. Have many left the Societies? Yes; we occasionally lose members through leaving the District and going away.
12250. I suppose there is a good deal of that in this District? Yes.
12251. What would be the average ages of members in your District? That I have never studied.
12252. Are there are many old men in connection with the Lodges? Not many much older than I am.
12253. How old are you? Fifty-three next month.
12254. Are there many about your age? There are a good few.
12255. Old members of the Society? Yes, old members of the Society.

- Mr. J. Reid. 12256. Are there many young men? Yes, a great many young men; in fact, in the half-year ending July, 1881, we had a good many young men made then.
- 18 July, 1882. 12257. How many? Forty or thereabouts, and they would be on an average twenty-one or twenty-two years of age.
12258. You have had long experience in connection with the working of the Society? Yes.
12259. Have you experienced any inconvenience from the present Friendly Societies' Act in the performance of your duties and in the working of your District? No.
12260. You have not experienced any difficulty? No.
12261. No inconvenience? No.
12262. Have you read and do you thoroughly understand the Act? I have not read all the clauses of it.
12263. How are your funds invested? In the Savings' Bank.
12264. To the credit of Trustees? Yes.
12265. Bearing interest? Yes.
12266. Do your officers in the subordinate Lodges and District Lodges give guarantees of fidelity? Yes.
12267. Bonds, or from a guarantee office? Bonds.
12268. As a matter of opinion, do you believe the present Act affords all the security and protection the Society and members require? Yes, I think so.
12269. Does your District hold any freehold or leasehold property? No.
12270. Have you had any demonstrations or picnics outside the general working? We have had them.
12271. Have you lost money on them? No.
12272. You did not run any risk then of losing the money of the Society? No.
12273. Where do your subordinate Lodges meet? One at the "Hunter River Hotel," another at the Junction, Burwood, another at the "Travellers' Rest Hotel," Wallsend, another at the "Northumberland Hotel," Waratah, another at Adams Town, and another at Minmi.
12274. Do you think that it is desirable that Friendly Societies should meet at public-houses? We cannot better ourselves.
12275. Is there no school or School of Arts where you could hold your meeting? No, not always.
12276. Does it not offer a great temptation to men to drink in these public-houses? No, I do not think so; it might do so in some places, but I know in the Lodge I belong to I never see any members loitering about either in entering the Lodge-room or leaving it.
12277. Where does the District meet? We move in rotation from one Lodge-room to another.
12278. Could you not often get a place like this (the Court-house) to meet in? We have never asked for that.
12279. Has any proposal been made to remove their places of meeting from public-houses? We have no other places to hold them in.
12280. But has there been any move made for that purpose? There has, where there have been places to meet in. The Lodge at Waratah meets in the Northumberland Hall, belonging to a building society.
12281. Do you not think it would be better if they met away from the hotels? I believe it would if we could get places to meet in.
12282. The moral influence would be better, you think? I think so; but as I say it is not the same here as in Sydney; we have not the conveniences here that they have in Sydney.
12283. Is there no place in Minmi, no hall or school-room? There is a public school.
12284. Do you not think you could get the use of that? I cannot say.
12285. Have you ever tried? No.
12286. Have you anything further to add to your evidence? No.
12287. You have nothing to suggest to the Commission that would be of service to them in case it was necessary to recommend fresh legislation for Friendly Societies? No.
12288. Mr. Langley.] Are the fees for initiation the same as in other places? Yes, you will find the initiation scale on page 10 of the rules, though there has been some slight amendment to it since these rules were printed.
12289. Then the scale of initiation you handed in is not what you are charging now? No, that would have been altered but for the fact of the constitutional laws being under revision, and we are waiting until that revision is finished.
12290. Then that is not your scale, really? No.
12291. Do you initiate any persons at that scale? No.
12292. How long is it since you ceased? About two years, I think. On account of the constitutional laws being revised we got slips with the alteration of the initiation scale on them, and supplied them to the various Lodges to be pasted over that.
12293. Is your scale greater or less than this? Less than that, but it does not alter the fees to the older ages.
12294. The President asked you a little while ago about the regalia, and you said the only thing was a banner. Do not all your subordinate Lodges provide themselves with regalia? Yes, but in the majority of cases the member purchases that out of his own private pocket.
12295. But there is a certain amount of Lodge regalia? Yes, for the officers.
12296. May I ask if all members of your Lodge pay 6d. a week for Doctor and medicine? No.
12297. Suppose that there was no colliery Doctor, and that each member of your Lodges had to pay for Doctor and medicine, what do you think would be a fair rate of contribution per week? We could not get a medical officer below the 6d.
12298. But take the total per week? 15d.
12299. That is, in your opinion, the lowest that should be contributed? That is the lowest we can do it for.
12300. Mr. Slade.] Your 39th rule, page 11, says—"And neither he nor his representatives shall be entitled to any benefits, sick pay, or any other sums insured on behalf of the members so offending until after the expiration of three months from the date on which the member again brings himself into compliance." Is that rule carried out? Yes.
12301. Then after a man has paid up everything is he refused all sorts of benefits for three months afterwards? Yes, that is after a member has been unfinancial.
12302. Then after he has paid up he is still refused the benefits for three months? Yes.
12303. Have any of your members ever objected to that? No.

Mr. J. Reid.

18 July, 1882.

12304. Has it ever been tried in a Court of Law whether you can support that law? No.
12305. On page 18, the 16th Funeral Fund rule is as follows:—"That it be imperative on all members within 3 miles of the Lodge-room to attend the funeral of any deceased member, or his wife, under a penalty of not less than 2s. 6d." Is that carried out? Not now; that law is rescinded with us. In some of our Lodges it is carried out.
12306. It is no longer penal then if they do not attend? No.
12307. Mr. Newland.] Do you have a medical examination of members' wives? Yes.
12308. I see that according to rule 35, maximum sick pay is to be 21s., and the minimum not less than 5s.? Yes.
12309. Is it within the province of any Lodge to lower its sick pay at any time? No, only after the lapse of some weeks.
12310. Then it is not left optional with the Lodges what their sick pay shall be so long as it does not exceed 21s.? That is only in reference to the sliding scale.
12311. Then it is not optional with the Lodges? Yes, there is only one Lodge in the district at 21s.
12312. What do the others pay? 20s.
12313. None less than 20s.? No.
12314. I see on page 18 that you have authority to examine the books and accounts of every Lodge? Yes.
12315. Have you ever done so? I have not been required to do so.
12316. What salary do you receive? £15 a year.
12317. Mr. Gelding.] You have had two or three questions asked you about rule 39. Is it not the case as soon as a member brings himself into compliance he is entitled to the medical benefits? Yes.
12318. It is simply the sick pay and other donations he is deprived of for three months? Yes.
12319. The reason why you did not alter your District rules, and amend this 38th rule especially, is that the general rule shall be under consideration for two years? Yes.
12320. Could you explain to the Commission any reason why your average funds per head have gone back 5s. 2d. during the year? Yes. It is on the Sick Fund that we have lost.
12321. As your members are getting older the average number on your sick funds continues to get greater every year, does it not? Well, I cannot say whether it is every year or not.
12322. But it is going that way is it not? It will lead to that.
12323. Have you studied these statistics of the Manchester Unity for the past year? No I have not had the time.
12324. If I told you that in the mining districts the sickness is greater than in any other district what will you say to that? I could not deny it.
12325. And do you think then, considering that, that 1s. 3d. is enough to keep up these benefits? I said no before. I think it requires more to pay 20s. a week.
12326. Is it not a fact that there is very great competition among the Friendly Societies in this district? Yes.
12327. Could you explain the competition that is going on at the present time? I do not think I need explain much, but in the first place the first competition we have to work against is the colliery Societies, because when a man joins the colliery he has to join the Society, and we have got that to compete against us.
12328. What do they pay into these colliery Societies? 6d. per week.
12329. And what benefits do they get? 15s., 10s., and 7s. 6d.
12330. And what in case of death? £20, the same as we pay, and £12 10s. for a member's wife. I am speaking of the colliery I am about myself.
12331. Would you give us the name of the Secretary of that Society? Mr. George Jones, Glebe, Burwood, Newcastle.
12332. Would you explain to the Commission any other great competition that is going on now with other Friendly Societies? Yes, I can say that the Grand United Order lately competing against us.
12333. In what way? In the lowness of their initiations.
12334. What do they do? The way they do it is, in opening a Lodge they set apart so many nights and initiate the members at a half-rate, and after a Lodge has been opened for six months perhaps application has been made I presume for leave for a certain number of nights more to initiate at this half-rate again.
12335. Is there any other Society does that? I saw in the Morning Herald recently that the Independent Order is doing the same.
12336. Do they resort to the same system? Yes, the same system of half-rates of initiation fees.
12337. Does any other Society do it? Well I think they all do it, but these are all I know of.
12338. President.] In the colliery Society you pay no initiation money into the fund? It is simply that when you start to a day's work you become a member of the Society on the first pay-day.
12339. And when you leave the colliery you leave your money behind you? You can or you may continue to be a member.
12340. Does your District Treasurer get pay? Yes, two guineas a year.
12341. How often are your books audited? Every six months.
12342. Do you think that is sufficient to keep up the status of the Society and to see that nothing wrong is going on? Yes, I think so.
12343. How many auditors have you? Three.
12344. And do you publish the result every six months? Yes.
12345. And issue it to each of the Lodges? Yes.
12346. Mr. Holdsworth.] Has each of your collieries a Society connected with it? Yes.
12347. Could you supply us with the names of the Secretaries of each of these? No, I could not.
12348. Could you tell us where we could get them? The way to get at them would be to address a letter to the Secretary of that fund to each particular colliery.
12349. Do miners have any special risk? Yes.
12350. Risks that other men have not? Yes.
12351. That would account for the sickness being greater? Yes, of course.
12352. You might naturally look for greater sickness among miners than among the ordinary classes? Yes they are subject to accidents.
12353. And they would require a larger contribution to meet that particular risk.
12354. You have been a long while in the mining districts? Yes.
12355. Last year the sickness was above the general average? Yes, I think so, very much.
12356. Was there any great strike on last year? No.

- Mr. J. Reid, 12357. Do you think the demands on a Society are affected any way by a strike? It would not do for me to say that.
- 18 July, 1882, 12358. Do you think that being out of employment injuriously affects individual members of Societies? We chiefly depend on our medical officer for that. We do not pay sick money without we receive a medical officer's certificate.
12359. In reference to the increase of sickness last year, do you think that one or two years would be any guide for a Society? No, I think it would not; it is scarcely right to take one single year for it, because it might happen that we might have more sickness in one year than in another.
12360. You say that there is great competition among different Societies initiating at half-fees? Yes.
12361. They only pay the initiation fee once, I take it? That is all.
12362. Then the only real effect would be the loss of the interest of the money each year? Yes, but you must remember on account of this low initiation scale there is an inducement for members to go to that Society that perhaps might go to another.
12363. But do you think that this leads to a looseness in the introduction of members? I believe it does.
12364. And it is calculated to produce a certain amount of fraud and misstatements? It is no fraud as long as they are made aware of it.
12365. But would men make misstatements in reference to it? They have to be examined by a medical officer.
12366. Can you say whether their contributions are higher, or as high, as yours? I cannot say.
12367. If they were higher, would that not compensate for the low initiation fee? I do not think they are.
12368. Are any members of the Societies benefited by joining the Societies? Yes.
12369. And would not anything which induces them to join these Societies be a service to the people? Yes, I suppose it would, looking at it in that light.
12370. Do you consider that people joining these Societies is an advantage to the State? Yes.
12371. Mr. Langley.] You have stated that the Independent Order of Oddfellows have been initiating at half-fees? Yes.
12372. Do you know that of your own knowledge? I saw it in the paper either Saturday or yesterday.
12373. Since you got your summons to attend here? Yes.
12374. Did you see it before? No, though I have been told of it.
12375. President.] Do all your members, prior to initiation, undergo a medical examination? Yes.
12376. Have many candidates been refused on account of being unsound in health? We have had some, but I cannot say for other subordinate Lodges besides the one I belong to myself.
12377. And the wives of members also have to undergo an examination? Yes, before they are registered they have to have a certificate from the medical officer.
12378. In case the wife's health is not sound, what position is the member in? He is in the same position, but his wife is not registered to the Funeral Fund, and where she is not registered we do not pay the benefits should anything occur to her.
12379. Do many of your members belong to more than one Society? Yes.
12380. Have you found many of the members shamming sickness in connection with the Societies in order to get these payments? I could not say that.
12381. But has it not come under the knowledge of the medical officer? No.
12382. It has not been reported to him at any time? If it has it has not been reported to the Lodge.
12383. Do you think it is wise that persons should be permitted to be members of more than one Lodge? Well, I am a member belonging to the Manchester Unity, and, joining the colliery, I am compelled to join a Society of the colliery. I might have been paying to the Manchester Unity for ten or twelve years, and I do not think it would be reasonable or right for me to give up my membership simply because I might only be six weeks in that colliery.
12384. But would not that be met by making it so that the sick pay should not exceed one guinea a week? The members would not like to pay to a Society without receiving the benefits.
12385. But you would be in no worse position. They would be paying the full amount of contribution into both Societies, and not receive medical attendance from one? Yes, they have to pay 6d. for a Sick and Funeral Fund, and 6d. for a Doctor too.
12386. You do not favour then the view that the law should make provision that the members should not be permitted to join more than one Society? No.
12387. Do you not think that it holds out the inducement for a great deal of fraud? It might do so, but I cannot say whether it has done so or not.
12388. Do you not think it would pay a member to be able to get his three guineas a week, if he is ordinarily earning only 30s. or £2? It might be an inducement, but I do not know of it being done.
12389. You received a return from us recently, asking you to furnish us some information? Yes.
12390. Did you understand the information required? Yes.
12391. What is the occupation of most of the members of your Society? The majority belong to the mining population.
12392. And the risk to life and accident is greater than in other trades and callings? It is the general opinion that both miners and mariners have a greater risk attached to them, simply on account of accident, not of sickness.
12393. And you have paid in connection with your Lodges a good deal more money on account of sick pay than you would in other trades and callings? I cannot say that we have. I could not give you the information, because I have never had anything to do with it; it is more for the subordinate Lodges.
12394. Do you think a higher rate should be charged to these occupations than to men following the ordinary occupations? Our Societies would not work so agreeably if that were adopted.
12395. You have nothing further to add to your evidence? No.
12396. And nothing to suggest to the Commission? No.
12397. About this demonstration on the 28th of May, 1881? Yes.
12398. Do you have these every year? No.
12399. It showed a deficiency? Yes.
12400. How was it made up? From the surplus of a previous demonstration we had.
12401. Did the proceeds go to the General Fund? No, we keep them separate.

- 12402. This shows there was £16 some odd shillings to your credit? But there is a deficiency of Mr. J. Reid. £3 15s. 9d. to make up.
- 12403. How will you make that up? Out of the next demonstration we have. We lent it from the 18 July, 1882. Management Fund, and will pay it back next year.
- 12404. And you have the demonstration with the general concurrence of the District? Yes.

Mr. John Somerville, sworn and examined :—

Mr. J. Somerville.
18 July, 1882.

- 12405. President.] What Society are you a member of? I am a member of two Societies.
- 12406. What are they? The Manchester Unity and the Order of Druids.
- 12407. How long have you been a member of the Manchester Unity? About twenty-two years.
- 12408. Are you still a member? Yes.
- 12409. And how long have you been a member of the Druids? About seventeen years.
- 12410. Do you hold office in the Manchester Unity? Yes.
- 12411. What office? In one of the Lodges I am Treasurer, and I am Grand Master in the District.
- 12412. What Lodge are you the Treasurer of? The Loyal Junction Lodge.
- 12413. What number of members have you in that Lodge? Thirty-seven or thirty-eight.
- 12414. What amount of funds have you to your credit in connection with the Lodge? In the Lodge alone we have £617, that is, at the end of last quarter.
- 12415. And how old is that Lodge? Twenty-four years.
- 12416. What would be the average ages of the members of that Lodge? I could not say.
- 12417. Are they young or old men? Partly both; there are no very old men; I could not say what the average age is.
- 12418. Do you know the amount of contributions received during last year? I could not say that.
- 12419. Could you tell me the amount of money paid on account of sick pay or funeral donations during the year? No.
- 12420. Has there been any defalcation in connection with your Lodge by any officer or member while you have been a member? No.
- 12421. What contributions do you pay? 6d. a week to the Funeral Fund, 2d. to the Management Fund, Medical Fund 6d., and a penny to the Widow and Orphan Fund. Members who do not require the doctor do not have to pay more than 9d.
- 12422. Do you approve of members being permitted to join more than one Society? Oh yes.
- 12423. Do you not think it holds out an inducement for fraud? No, my experience shows me different. Those belonging to two Societies are not so suspicious as those belonging to only one.
- 12424. You do not think there is an inducement for a man earning 30s. or 40s. a week to draw his three guineas if he belongs to three Societies? No, the Doctors are a safeguard against that.
- 12425. Have you found any sham sickness at all? Not to any extent.
- 12426. But you have found the Doctors deceived sometimes, have you not? That I could not speak of.
- 12427. Do you favour the principle of a uniform contribution, in preference to a graduated scale contribution? No, that is one of the greatest errors we have got—admitted old men at the same rate as young men.
- 12428. Then you are in favour of a graduated scale? Yes.
- 12429. Members paying in proportion to their ages? Yes, the younger a man enters the Society the smaller should be his contribution.
- 12430. Is there much competition in this town among Friendly Societies? Yes, a great deal.
- 12431. Is it injurious, or has it worked to the general good of Societies? It has caused a great number of the Societies to raise the amount of sick allowance above what the contributions will warrant. That is the only bad effect I have seen.
- 12432. What do you think is a fair allowance for sick pay? I think 15s. a week, and £15 on the death of a member, and £10 on the death of a member's wife, is as much as our present contributions will warrant us in paying.
- 12433. Is that what your Society pays? No, we pay £1 a week.
- 12434. That is higher? Yes, higher than I would recommend.
- 12435. You think the contribution is insufficient to secure the payment of these amounts? Yes.
- 12436. You are of opinion if that amount has to be paid, a larger contribution should be paid? Yes, either that, or there must be a smaller sick allowance.
- 12437. Are you an office-bearer in connection with the Druids? Yes.
- 12438. What office do you hold? Treasurer in one of the Lodges.
- 12439. What number of members have you? Seventeen.
- 12440. What funds have you? £104 at the last balance, independent of our District Fund. That is, the Lodge money is £104.
- 12441. Have you had a larger number of members? Yes.
- 12442. Many? Oh yes.
- 12443. How many more? Speaking from memory, I think we had at one time about 120.
- 12444. And that is reduced to seventeen? Yes, through the defalcations of the Secretary.
- 12445. What was the nature of the defalcations? We could never find it out; he burnt the books and destroyed the papers.
- 12446. You have no idea of the amount of money? No, we had nothing to trace it by.
- 12447. Did you take any action against him, by prosecuting him? We got a solicitor's advice. He was a defaulter in the municipality here.
- 12448. What was his name? George Tribe. We waited to see if they got a conviction; then when we found they could not we dropped it.
- 12449. You do not know what the Society lost? We could not tell.
- 12450. Was it a large sum or a small sum? My opinion is that it was a good round sum. But it had been going on some long time.
- 12451. Is there any other case of defalcation you know of? No, not in connection with the Druids. We have a trifle, a bill in connection with the District, that we expected was paid in England, and we find it is not paid, but it only amounts to a trifle.

12452.

* Mr. J.
Somerville.
18 July, 1882.

12452. Under £20? Yes.
12453. That is the District Secretary, was it? Yes; he has left the district, and we do not know where he is.
12454. What contributions do you pay into the Druids? Sixpence a week for Sick and Funeral Fund, the same as the Manchester Unity.
12455. And do you get the same benefits? No; the sick benefit is only 15s. per week.
12456. I presume the claims for sick pay arising from accident are very large in connection with the Societies? They are large, but not particularly so.
12457. Is your Society of Oddfellows composed principally of miners? A large majority of them are miners, but there is a good number that would stand as miners in your books that are not miners now, having gone into business throughout the district, but the great majority are miners.
12458. And it is the same with the Druids? Yes.
12459. From your experience, then, do you believe there is a larger risk in connection with the occupation of a miner than with an ordinary tradesman? It would be hard to tell that; I could not give an opinion on it.
12460. Are they not more subject to accidents than other tradespeople? I could not say.
12461. You cannot speak of the mortality amongst miners? No, no further than I have seen returns from other sources.
12462. During your long connection with Benefit Societies I presume you have read the Friendly Societies Act? Yes.
12463. And know its provisions? Yes.
12464. Have you read its provisions? Yes; the great fault is to allow so large a scale of benefits to be paid out of so small a contribution.
12465. You think the amounts paid are too small to ensure these large payments for sick pay? Yes.
12466. And do you believe the present Friendly Societies Act affords all the protection and shelter that the members of the various Societies have a right to expect? Well it is not properly administered.
12467. You believe the administration is defective? Yes; we have great experience of that in this district at the present time.
12468. Have you anything further to add to your evidence already given, or have you any suggestions to make that would be of service to the Commission? No, I have no suggestions to make; I am perfectly satisfied that amendments could be made in our general rules, but I do not think they would be of benefit in an Act of Parliament; my experience is that the Districts are too large, and that the Districts should be left to work themselves.
12469. What is the position of the District Lodge of Druids? You will have to get the Secretary for that.
12470. Is it in a good position financially? Yes.
12471. Who is the Secretary? Mr. Jones, check weighman of the Lambton Mining Company; his address is Mr. John Jones, Burwood, Newcastle.
12472. Mr. Langley.] From your experience of the working of Friendly Societies would you advocate an audit by a Government official annually? No; I would be in favour of the present system of sending in returns, but would compel the Societies to send them in regularly under a penalty.
12473. Would you have them attested or sworn to? They should come from the members, not a Government official.
12474. But would you have them officially attested? By whom?
12475. By the auditors or officers of the Lodge? They are so now.
12476. Have you ever found in your connection with Friendly Societies that mistakes have been made in the returns? There are apt to be mistakes because they are too complicated.
12477. Then if the accounts are too complicated do you not think it would be a good thing for a Government official, say once a year or two years, to examine the returns? No; it would be an injury.
12478. In cases of disputes would you be in favour of the Board of Arbitration, or would you prefer that all cases should be dealt with by the Courts of Law? After they have exhausted their own laws I think the same as it is now would be the best.
12479. Would you prefer the Police Court rather than a Board of Arbitration as a final Court? Yes, after they exhausted the laws, because it would cost less.
12480. But do you not think if there was a Board of Arbitration connected with the various Friendly Societies and composed of members of each Society, that it would come cheaper than going to a Court of Law? No, I think it would be cheaper done in the Courts of Law.
12481. Mr. Newland.] During your experience has it come under your notice that the Lodges have suspended their sick pay? No, I have known it to be reduced, but not suspended.
12482. Reduced for any lengthened period? No, not to any great period of time under my observation.
12483. Has it been frequently reduced? No, I only know of two cases since I came to this District.
12484. What cases were they? There was one twelve years ago, and there was the Druids when the defalcations I spoke of took place.
12485. Have you ever heard of any defalcations in any of the other Societies? I have heard of them, but have not known of them in my own experience.
12486. Mr. Gelding.] You have been a good many years connected with the Grand Board of Management of the Manchester Unity? Yes.
12487. Do you not think after a member has exhausted (say) the Lodge District, and the highest tribunal there is, he has got all the natural justice he can expect, and that he should not be allowed to go into a Court of Law? No, I have seen cases where I believed he did not receive justice.
12488. You believe then without a Board of Arbitration belonging to the Society, picked from the members of various Districts, who can know nothing of the case personally, a member does not get justice from them? Not in all cases.
12489. You belong to the Junction Lodge, do you not? Yes.
12490. Are you aware whether a large amount was paid during the past year for sick pay? Yes.
12491. Do you know the amount? I could not give it from memory.
12492. Was it £244 11s. 3d.? If that is in the report I'll vouch it is the case.
12493. You had 141 members good last December? Yes.

12494. How comes it that the sum paid for sick pay happens to be so large? We had three cases of long standing sickness, that is one reason; we had an old man, a butcher here, who was laid up for about two years, and we had a larger amount of sickness last year than we have had for a very considerable time.
12495. Have your members increased or decreased? We have gone back and forward; we have been higher than that; I think we have been as high as 149.
12496. What does it cost to open a Druids' Lodge in this locality for regalia, and so on? I could not answer that.
12497. Do you go in for economy? Yes.
12498. Do you not think Lodge officers could very well do without beards, scarves, and all this business? Yes, it is a great drag on the Society; I would go to the full extreme and have nothing whatever.
12499. President.] Have you anything further to add to your evidence? No.
12500. Does your District contribute to the Sydney District or is any capitation made at all to the Sydney District? No, only to the Board of Management.
12501. What is the amount paid to them? I could not give it from memory, but I think it is about 8d. a year they pay per member.
12502. That is from the District to the Board of Management? Yes, I believe it is only 6d. now.

Mr. J. Somerville.
18 July, 1882.

Mr. Richard Bailey sworn and examined:—

12503. President.] What Society are you a member of? The Ancient Order of Foresters, Court Robin Hood, No. 2487.
12504. Are you the Secretary? I was up to the end of last quarter, the 30th June, in this year.
12505. How long had you held office? About eighteen months.
12506. How long have you been a member of the Court? Something over two years; three years, I believe.
12507. What number of members have you in that Court? 104 financial and unfinancial.
12508. When was the Court established? On the 1st August, 1853.
12509. What amount of subscriptions do your members pay? 1s. a week for subscription, and 1s. a quarter for superannuation.
12510. What are the benefits given by your Court? Sick benefits, £1 a week for the first six months, 8s. for the second six months, and 5s. a week afterwards as long as the illness continues.
12511. What funeral donations do you pay? On the death of any member who has been initiated twelve months, and is financial, his widow, child, or relative, receives the sum of £20, as allowed by the District Funeral Fund, and on the death of the wife of a member, who has been admitted twelve months and is financial (provided she has been registered to the Funeral Fund), such member receives the sum of £15 if he presents, if required, a certificate of his marriage or satisfactory proof thereof.
12512. What is the total value of the funds of your Court? I think about £1,200.
12513. That is the independent funds of the Court apart from the District? Yes, there is cash in the Savings' Bank to the amount of £1,124 16s. 3d.; Court property, £30; and £25 owing by the regalia trustees, making in all £1,179 16s. 3d., that is till June the 30th of this year; it is slightly more now.
12514. Is the money invested to the credit of trustees? Yes.
12515. Do your officers, Treasurer, and Secretary give a bond? The Treasurer gives a bond of £10, but they do not require any bond from the Secretary.
12516. Does the Secretary receive the moneys at the meetings? Yes.
12517. And hands over the amount to the Treasurer at the close of the meeting? Yes.
12518. And does the Secretary give no bond? They never require any from him.
12519. Have there been any defalcations in connection with the Society to your knowledge? Not that I am aware of.
12520. What do you pay your medical officer? 30s. for each member per annum.
12521. That includes medicines? Yes.
12522. Do all the members participate in the medical benefits? Yes.
12523. There is no special registration fee? No; the shilling a week entitles them to all benefits unless in the case of country members, who only pay in 9d. a week, but get no medical benefit.
12524. Can you tell me the total receipts from all sources for last year? £419 18s. 5d.
12525. Now can you tell me the expenditure for last year? £432 18s. 8d.
12526. That makes a deficiency of about £13? Yes, but that includes an item which we paid out of our own funds for a funeral donation, and which we should have received from the District; this has to be recouped.
12527. Then in this gross expenditure you do not include the funeral donations that have been paid by the District? We have only had one, and that has not been recouped yet.
12528. That would leave you with a credit of £8? Yes.
12529. Do you think that is sufficient, looking to the future and seeing that the members are growing older? I think not.
12530. Do you think 1s. a week is a sufficient contribution to provide the benefits that are promised? No, the mistake is in paying the doctor so much, and the members have it in contemplation to get him to reduce the amount or get another doctor.
12531. What has been the cost of the management of your Society? The cost total for the last five years has been £160 1s. 5d., that is, £23 6s. for 1877, £39 3s. for 1878, £35 11s. 6d. for 1879, £29 12s. 3d. for 1880, £32 8s. 8d. for 1881.
12532. Is there much money spent in your Court in connection with regalia and Lodge furniture? Very little; there has been no money spent in this way for the last five years; the regalia was purchased eight or nine years ago, and resold to the members.
12533. Do you favour the principle of a uniform contribution, or do you approve of a graduated contribution of paying according to age? I think the uniform scale would be the best.
12534. You think it is more equal than a graduated scale? I fancy so.
12535. But is it fair as a matter of equity that a young man should pay the same as an old man? I imagine that one should try and help the other.
12536. How do you deal with matters of dispute between your members? We have an arbitration committee of twelve appointed, and they settle them.
12537. Do you approve of that rather than going to the Law Courts? I think so.

Mr. R. Bailey.
18 July, 1882.

- Mr. R. Bailey,
18 July, 1882.
12538. Do you approve of the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act which provide that you can recover arrears? Certainly.
12539. Have you had occasion to do it? No, but we have threatened them; I believe it is a good principle.
12540. You have a quarterly audit in connection with your books? Yes.
12541. How many auditors have you? Three as a rule.
12542. Would you approve of a Government officer being appointed to investigate (say) every year the books and documents of each Society? I think it would be a very good plan.
12543. All your members undergo a strict medical examination? Yes.
12544. And the wives of members? No, not the members' wives; but the member has to make a statement giving the nature of the wife's last illness, and whether she is now suffering from any particular complaint.
12545. Do you publish in your balance-sheet the names of members who receive sick pay during the quarter? Yes, and the amount they receive.
12546. Have you been connected with any other Society besides this? No other Society.
12547. Do you understand the Friendly Societies Act? I have never read it.
12548. Do you favour the principle of permitting persons to be members of more than one Lodge? Yes, I think so. I think a man should have the right to be a member of as many Lodges as he can pay into.
12549. And would you give him the right to receive benefits from all these Societies? Yes.
12550. You would not limit the amount he was to receive? I do not know; if he was a member of four or five Societies, I think the amount should be limited.
12551. If it was not limited, would it not hold out an inducement to fraud? Well, it might in some cases.
12552. Do you pay your officers? Yes, the Secretary and Treasurer.
12553. And you know of no case of defalcation in connection with your Society? No.
12554. And you feel quite clear that the contributions are not sufficient for the benefits that are paid? I think they are sufficient, only we pay the Doctor too much.
12555. What is your Court principally composed of—miners, labourers, mechanics, or what? We have a mixture of all sorts, but have no miners, or only one; they are principally business men and farmers.
12556. Have you anything further to add? No, I do not think I could give you any further information.
12557. Mr. Holdsworth.] I notice your contribution is equal to 13d. a week, which is 56s. 4d. a year? Yes.
12558. That has to be divided into three parts? Yes.
12559. 18s. 9d. is set aside for sick pay? Yes.
12560. Does that meet your sick pay? We keep our funds all in one, and do not divide them.
12561. Then there is 37s. 6d. and two-thirds for all other expenses, out of which you pay 30s. for the Doctor? Yes.
12562. Only leaving 7s. 6d. to pay for the management and everything else? Yes.

Mr. David Beveridge sworn and examined:—

- Mr. D. Beveridge,
18 July, 1882.
12563. President.] What Society are you a member of? Two, the Foresters and the Protestant Alliance.
12564. How long have you been a member of the Foresters? Fourteen years.
12565. What Court? Court Friendship, No. 4,584.
12566. Do you hold any office? Secretary.
12567. How long have you held that office? Over ten years.
12568. What is the date on which the Lodge was founded? 20th June, 1868.
12569. What is the number of members in the Lodge? 111.
12570. Is that the largest number you have ever had? Yes.
12571. Did you admit many members last year? Yes.
12572. Did you lose many? Yes, we have lost a good many the last three years.
12573. What is the cause? Non-payment of dues.
12574. Can you tell the Commission what the amount of contributions last year was? £237 7s. 5d. to the Sick and Funeral Fund.
12575. What to the Incidental Fund? £54 5s. 4d.
12576. Now what has been the expenditure for the year? £172 12s.
12577. What is the total value of the funds of the Court? £461 3s. 9d.
12578. What do you pay your medical officer? We do not pay him through our Society.
12579. You have no doctor? Yes, we have a doctor, but he is paid through the colliery.
12580. Do all the members of your Lodge work in the colliery? No, but they pay the same through the Society.
12581. That is a considerable saving then to your Lodge? Yes.
12582. Does that include the chemist as well as the doctor? That includes chemist and all.
12583. Have there been any cases of defalcation in connection with your Society, as far as your knowledge goes? Not this many years.
12584. Do your Secretary and Treasurer receive some small payment? Yes.
12585. Do they furnish a bond or guarantee? No.
12586. Neither the Treasurer nor Secretary? No.
12587. Are the moneys invested in the names of Trustees? Yes.
12588. What is the nature of the investments? It is in the Bank.
12589. Bearing interest? Bearing interest.
12590. Do you favour the principle of a man being a member of more than one Society? I do; I consider that one Society is too little for a working man.
12591. Would you limit the number? Yes, to two.
12592. I presume your Lodge settles matters of dispute, the same as other Courts under the Foresters? Yes, by an Arbitration Committee.
12593. You pay a uniform contribution? Yes.
12594. Do you approve of that principle, or would you prefer a graduated scale? I have heard many arguments on the subject, and it might suit in certain localities to have a graduated scale, but it would not suit in all.

Mr.
D. Beveridge.
18 July, 1882.

12595. And do you personally approve of it? No, I do not.
12596. Do you hold any office in the Protestant Alliance? I hold the secretaryship.
12597. What Lodge is that? The Black Diamond, No. 19.
12598. Have you got many members? Thirty-six now.
12599. Is that the largest number you have ever had? No.
12600. What is the largest number you have had? Eighty odd.
12601. What is the cause of the numbers being reduced so? Non-payment of dues.
12602. Any defalcations amongst the members? No.
12603. Any defalcations in connection with the Lodge? None whatever.
12604. What amount of funds have you got? About £37.
12605. And how old is the Society? Nine years past.
12606. And it has only accumulated £37? Yes.
12607. Have they had large funds at their disposal? Yes; it is through sickness.
12608. What amount have they paid last year for sick pay? Somewhere over £100.
12609. Have they any of their members permanently on the Sick Fund? Not at present.
12610. What are the members of the Protestant Alliance Lodge principally composed of? Working men who work in the colliery, and tradesmen.
12611. And the contributions paid by the members of the Protestant Alliance—what would they be? 1s. a week, without the doctor.
12612. And yet the funds are not equal to meet the amount of your outgoings? Well, a levy has been put on to try and raise the funds of the Society; they used to pay 9d., but seeing that a certain amount of sickness has fallen on that Lodge they have increased their contributions to a shilling a week for six months.
12613. You do not regard the Society as being in a good financial position at the present time? Not that individual Lodge.
12614. What are the ages of the members in the Lodge? They vary from eighteen to forty-eight.
12615. Would you approve of a Government officer being appointed to inspect the books of the various Friendly Societies? I certainly would.
12616. Do you think it would afford greater security to the members? It would be more satisfactory to the public and to the members.
12617. Do you approve of the provisions of the present Friendly Societies Act, which provide that members in arrears may be summoned for those arrears? Yes, I do.
12618. Have you ever in connection with either of these Societies taken that step? Not at the present moment, but I have instructions to do it.
12619. In the Protestant Alliance Lodge? Yes.
12620. Not in the Foresters? No.
12621. Do you publish in your quarterly returns the names of members who get sick pay and the amount they receive? Yes.
12622. You have paid a great deal of attention to the working of Friendly Societies? Yes, I have.
12623. During your experience have you paid special attention to the present Friendly Societies Act? I have.
12624. Have you found it in every respect sufficient for the good guidance and government of Friendly Societies? I am satisfied with the Act if it was carried out properly.
12625. Do you think it has been administered properly? As far as I know; it has been administered to my satisfaction in anything I have been connected with it.
12626. Have you any suggestions to make to the Commission? No.
12627. Nothing to suggest that may be of service in future legislation? The only thing is, seeing the increase of population in this district, that the Government ought to allow the Societies something towards their expenses.
12628. You are of opinion that they are a blessing to the State? Yes.
12629. And that it is the duty of the State to encourage the Societies? To encourage the Societies.
12630. Do they encourage a spirit of thrift and saving amongst the working classes? Yes, decidedly they do.
12631. Mr. Smith.] You are the only Court of the name Friendship existing in the Foresters under the New South Wales district? Yes.
12632. Do you know of any other Court of Foresters existing by that name? Not in the New South Wales District.
12633. If it went forth to the public that a Court of Forestry known as Court Friendship went insolvent it would be untrue? Yes; there is another Order of Foresters not connected with the Sydney District, which is termed the Royal Foresters, and they may have taken the name Court Friendship.
12634. Mr. Newland.] What is your reason for saying you think you should be allowed the privilege of joining more than one Society? Well, if a working man has a large family, if he happens to get sick, a guinea a week is not sufficient to keep his wife and family.
12635. Would it not be preferable to be allowed to double the benefits in one Society? That has been tried, but it does not seem to work well.
12636. Has your Society ever suspended its sick pay at any time? No, not the Foresters.
12637. Mr. Gelding.] You said the present Friendly Societies Act was quite competent to meet all the necessities connected with Friendly Societies at the present day? Yes, I think so.
12638. Do you carry out the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act in conducting the business of your two Lodges? As far as I am concerned I do.
12639. Who pays your sick pay? The Treasurer.
12640. Do not the Trustees do it? No.
12641. Are you aware that there are clauses in the Act which say that the Trustees shall do all the work? Our Registrar says the Secretary shall inform the Treasurer of the amount to pay.
12642. Do you not think that if the Act was made more simple it would be far better? I think it is simple enough to meet all requirements.
12643. Do you not think that clauses 43, 44, 45, and 46 should be amended, seeing that the Secretary and Treasurer do this work, and not the Trustees? Well, that might be altered, but the Act gives a Society power to make laws and by-laws to amend that.

- Mr. D. Beveridge. 12644. And you think the Act is so perfect that it does not want altering? I am quite satisfied with it, as long as it is administered rightly.
 18 July, 1882. 12645. President.] Are these (produced) the general rules that govern all the branches of the Protestant Alliance in Australasia? Yes, it is one general code of rules.
 12646. Are you aware of any defalcations taking place in connection with the Grand Lodge of the Protestant Alliance or any private Lodge? No.
 12647. You have nothing further to add to your evidence? No.

The Commission then adjourned until 2 p.m. on Tuesday, 18th July.

TUESDAY, 18 JULY, 1882.

(Held at Newcastle.)

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
 P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
 JOHN SLADE, Esq.,

JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
 P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
 W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. Thomas New sworn and examined:—

- Mr. T. New. 12648. President.] What Society do you represent? The Ancient Order of Foresters.
 18 July, 1882. 12649. What Court? Court Hunter.
 12650. What office do you hold? Secretary.
 12651. How long have you been a member of the Society? Twenty-five years, but not in Newcastle; in Maitland and Newcastle.
 12652. In the District? Yes.
 12653. You have held various offices? Right through—the whole of them.
 12654. How many members have you in your Court? 101; ninety-seven financial, and four unfinancial.
 12655. What amount of funds have you to your credit at the present time? £220 2s. 4d. last December.
 12656. What was the amount of subscriptions received last year? £290 9s. 9d.
 12657. What was the amount of expenditure for that year? We have been belonging to the Sydney District, and have had to pay our District levies; the total expense for the five years amounts to: Sick pay, £392 2s. 9d.; District levies, £225 13s. 3d.; working expenses, £90 15s. 8d.; and doctor and medicine, £464 14s., or a total of £1,173 5s. 8d.
 12658. What have been the total receipts during the five years from all sources? £1,393 8s. 2d.
 12659. What contributions do your members pay? A shilling a week.
 12660. A uniform contribution by all alike? By all alike, except country members, who only pay 9d., as they do not get the medical attendance or medicine.
 12661. What do you pay the doctor and chemist? 6s. 6d. a quarter to the doctor, who finds his own medicines.
 12662. What are the benefits? A guinea a week for six months, 10s. for the next six months, and then 6s. as long as the member lives.
 12663. And the funeral donation, what is that? £20.
 12664. And on the death of the wife? £15.
 12665. Do you think a shilling a week is sufficient to ensure all these benefits? If you had a thousand pounds in the Bank to start with it might be sufficient, but not as we are; I think a guinea a week sick pay is too much.
 12666. You are clearly of opinion that it is insufficient to ensure these large benefits? I think so; there are two or three dragging on us for a long time, and they are taking the money away.
 12667. What would be the average ages of your members? Well, I should think they would be thirty-eight or forty; there are a good many young members, but there are several old ones.
 12668. Have you had many members join during the last year? Four or five; we had two proposed last night.
 12669. Did many leave last year? I think three fell out for non-payment of dues.
 12670. Have you had any defalcations in connection with any of the officers of your Court? None at all.
 12671. Do your Secretary and Treasurer receive payment for their services? The Secretary does; the Treasurer receives 5s. a quarter.
 12672. Do they give any bonds? They have not done so yet, but we shall have to do so.
 12673. Your leaving the District, was it your own act or that of the District? Our own act.
 12674. What was the object of leaving the district? We should have done it some time ago, as we had a Court at Armidale, and it is expensive bringing the members from there to Sydney.
 12675. You regard the cost of going from this part of the district to Sydney as being very great? Yes, it has been very great; it has cost us £20 this last year.
 12676. You are not a member of any other Friendly Society? No.
 12677. And never have been so? No, never.
 12678. Are you strongly in favour of a uniform contribution in preference to a graduated scale? Yes.
 12679. Would you be in favour of a Government officer being appointed to inspect the books of the various Societies or Lodges every year? I have nothing against it; but in country places like this so many Secretaries are appointed that he would have a job to find out the particulars.
 12680. Do you think it would do good? If the Government had an annual return I think it would do.
 12682. What is your Society chiefly composed of? There are a great many miners round the District, and a great many mechanics.

12683.

12683. Are all your members or candidates subject to a medical examination before they are admitted? Mr. T. New.
Yes.
12684. And members' wives as well? Yes.
12685. Do you publish in the quarterly returns and balance-sheet a list of names of members who have been on the sick list? No; on the annual balance-sheet we publish the amounts but not the names.
12686. Do you approve of a person being permitted to be a member of more than one Society? I would if he were an honest man.
12687. What is your opinion about it? I always understood that a member could not receive the benefits.
12688. But he can? I do not think it is right.
12689. Do you think it holds out an inducement for fraud and deception? I believe if a member is a member of one Society it is sufficient.
12690. Do you find miners more subject to accident than other tradespeople? Sometimes they are, and sometimes they are not; we have a good number of miners in our Society; probably forty-five out of the hundred.
12691. And has there been more sickness amongst them than amongst the others? Yes.
12692. Arising principally from accident? Yes, but we are all subject to accident.
12693. You have read the Friendly Societies Act? Yes.
12694. As a matter of opinion, do you consider the Act sufficient for all purposes—for the good government of Friendly Societies? There is one thing; if a Society should prosper and get some money they should be allowed to put it to the best advantage.
12695. You think in the matter of investments the Act is rather too restrictive? I think it is.
12696. Your Lodge has no freehold property? No.
12697. Where do you meet? The "Hunter River Hotel."
12698. Have you no place you could meet away from a public-house? We had a hard fight to go to the Protestant Hall, but got defeated.
12699. Do you not think it would be better to go to a public hall than to a public house? Yes; though we can keep quite away from the bar.
12700. There is nothing further you would like to add to your evidence? No, I think not.
12701. And no suggestions you would like to make? No, I do not know of anything.
12702. You said the Lodge was instituted when? On 10th June, 1876.
12703. Mr. Newland.] Have you been in connection with Friendly Societies other than in the mining districts? Yes, eighteen years in Maitland.
12704. Do you see any difference in the management or sickness here from other places? We have had a great deal of sickness during the last three years.
12705. Is it greater in the mining districts than elsewhere? Well, there have been accidents happening in the mines, but there is not more bodily sickness.
12706. There is more sick pay paid? Well, I was four years in Maitland, Secretary there, and we paid a great deal of money there in sickness.
12707. But the money paid for accidents is called sick pay? Yes, but you cannot call it any more sickness happening.

18 July, 1882.

The examination of Mr. David Beveridge was resumed:—

12708. President.] The Commission understand you can give some important evidence with reference to Colliery Benefit Societies? I can.
12709. Are you a member of any of the Colliery Societies? Yes.
12710. Which one? The Accident Fund, Wallsend Pit; but it does not come under the Friendly Societies Act in any way whatever.
12711. It is simply an Accident Society? Yes, that is all.
12712. For the employés in the pit? Yes.
12713. What do they pay? There are no fixed amounts—it is according to call.
12714. What does the amount usually come to weekly? It comes sometimes to 6d., and will go as high as 1s., or as low as 3d.
12715. What are the largest amounts paid towards assisting any of the employés in the pit? 20s. a week for twelve months.
12716. And what funds have they got in connection with the Accident Fund? They have no funds.
12717. It is simply a voluntary contribution? Yes, every fortnight they each pay the call; there might be as much as £70 in hand.
12718. Do they provide any doctor? No, a doctor being occupied in the colliery we have no necessity to provide any doctor.
12719. Then it is almost a Society outside the other Societies? Yes.
12720. Simply a sort of Mutual Aid Society amongst yourselves? Yes, and for men who are too old to go into the ordinary Benefit Societies.
12721. And do the whole of the employés contribute towards this fund? Yes; there might be one or two exceptions to the rule, but taking it generally the majority of them do pay.
12722. And is it every fortnight that a call is made? Yes, a Committee is appointed to see the amount of money is required.
12723. Have they rules? Yes.
12724. Printed rules? Yes.
12725. Will you send us a copy? Yes, with pleasure.
12726. Then do the members of the Sick and Accident Fund who happen to be members of Friendly Societies also receive the sick pay from them and this money? Yes.
12727. Does the proprietary of this colliery subsidize the Sick and Accident Fund? No.
12728. Do they subsidize the Sick Societies? No.
12729. Then they do not in any way contribute? No, not in any way.
12730. And they do not in any way encourage the habits of the men by giving them some subsidy? No.
12731. Has any application or appeal ever been made to them? Yes.
12732. And they have refused? Yes, several times.

Mr. D. Beveridge.

18 July, 1882.

12733.

- Mr. D. Beveridge.
18 July, 1882.
12733. Then I understand you have also a fund for providing medical attendance and chemist? Yes, alone.
12734. Apart from the Sick and Accident Fund? Yes.
12735. The proprietors do not contribute towards that fund? No.
12736. It is simply sustained by the members themselves? Yes.
12737. Are there a good many accidents occurring in connection with the occupation of a miner? Yes.
12738. Some of these resulting in death? There have been three deaths during the past three weeks through accident.
12739. And you say an appeal has been made to the proprietary, and they have never shown any disposition towards assisting the miners? No, they have not.
12740. And what is the condition of the funds of these different Societies—are they in a healthy state? As far as I am concerned they might be down this fortnight and up the next; it is the call that puts them up.
12741. I presume the majority of miners belong to some Society or other? Yes, all the miners very nearly belong to one Society or another.
12742. Are a large proportion married men with families? The biggest proportion of them are married men with families; there might be one-third young men.
12743. In connection with this accident fund you speak of, have there been any defalcations at any time? No.
12744. If there is any balance of funds, how are they invested? They do not keep any; they only keep a certain amount in the hands of the Treasurer to go for change and so on during the fortnight. They do not keep any funds in hand the same as a Friendly Society.
12745. They have no fund except the amount of the call? That is all.
12746. If there are several accidents they have to make a large call? Yes.
12747. Is that the principle that governs the whole of these collieries? All except one.
12748. Which is that? The A. A. Co.'s.
12749. What do they do? They have a Sick and Accident Fund.
12750. You are not a member of that? No, each colliery has a separate rule for itself.
12751. I suppose these Societies work in connection with the Trades Protection portion of your Society? No.
12752. Then a strike would not affect it? Not one iota.
12753. Then must an accident happen to him when engaged in a particular work in order that he may receive the benefits? Yes.
12754. If he fell off the coach between Wallsend and Newcastle would he be paid? No.
12755. But if he met with an accident in the pit he would be entitled to be paid from this fund? Yes.
12756. So it is entirely restricted to the colliery operatives alone? Yes. I should like to say that Societies composed of working-men such as those in a colliery cannot be carried on the same as those in a township, as a man in business may be able to look after his business to some extent even if he is sick, but a working-man when he is sick cannot go and earn a day's living, but has to throw himself on the Society, thus causing the expenses of a working-man's Society to be heavier than those of Societies in a township.
12757. All the members of your Society are working-men? Yes.
12758. And not like those in the city? Just so.

Mr. Henry Rushton sworn and examined:—

- Mr. H. Rushton.
18 July, 1882.
12759. President.] What Society do you belong to? The Sons of Temperance.
12760. The Grand Division or a subordinate Division? Both.
12761. What office do you hold in the Grand Division? Grand Worthy Patriarch.
12762. Are you Grand Worthy Patriarch of the Grand Division here? At the present time.
12763. That is No. 2? No. 2 Grand Division, Hunter River.
12764. What office do you hold in the subordinate Division? None at present.
12765. How long have you been connected with the Sons of Temperance? About sixteen years.
12766. What number of members have you under the Grand Division? I could not say at present; Mr. Asher, our Grand Scribe, will be able to give you that information.
12767. And the benefits you cannot tell? He has all that prepared for you, I believe.
12768. Has there been some secession of the Grand Division by one of your Lodges? Yes.
12769. Do you know all the circumstances connected with that? Most of them. I visited the Lodge once or twice in connection with the matter.
12770. Were not some funds applied for some purposes of law expenses? After the secession took place we found that they had paid their costs out of the funds of the Division.
12771. And how were the funds paid on the other side? They were paid by the National Division in Sydney.
12772. What number of members seceded? About thirty, I think.
12773. What was the cause of the secession? Objecting to some action of the National Division in Sydney—that was the reason they stated; it was in regard to some levies which they said were illegal.
12774. As far as you know, what is the general character and position of the Sons of Temperance in your jurisdiction? Generally speaking, with the exception of one or two, I think they are in a very fair and prosperous condition; the worst of them is the Star of the West Division at Wallsend; I mean financially when I say that.
12775. But financially, all the other Divisions you consider in a good position? Yes.
12776. Are you increasing in numbers? Yes.
12777. Through your District? Through our District.
12778. Have you lost many members during the last year? Not within the last year, but a few years ago we lost a few, but we are making that number up now.
12779. You are not in a position to tell the Commission what has been paid on account of sick pay? Not through the Grand Division.
12780. Can you tell in connection with your own Division? Yes; for the five years the sick pay was £408 4s. 7d. 12781.

12781. What was paid on account of funeral donations during that time? £90.
12782. Can you tell what the total expenditure was for the five years? No, I do not think I can, but these returns have been furnished to the Commission if I mistake not. The total amount received for sick and funeral donation in five years has been £606 6s. 9d., and the total expenditure £708 6s. 7d.
12783. That is the Division you say is not in a good financial position? Yes.
12784. What have you to the credit of that Division? About £40.
12785. And how many members? Sixty-nine.
12786. Have you had any defalcations in connection with any of your officers? No, none that I know of.
12787. What contributions do your members pay? 7½d. a week.
12788. What benefits do they get for that? 15s. a week.
12789. And medical attendance? Yes; but the doctor is paid through the colliery; every person working at the colliery has 6d. a week stopped from his wages, so the doctor is paid in that way; the members of the Division pay 7½d. a week.
12790. Who makes the payment to the medical man? The proprietor of the colliery—it is left in the Bank, and is paid to the credit of the doctor.
12791. Then do all your members work in the pits? Nearly all of them.
12792. But those who are not working in the pits, how do they get medical attention? They pay the doctor through the Division.
12793. That makes about 1s. 1½d. a week, including the 6d.? Yes.
12794. Do you think that is enough? No, I do not.
12795. You do not think the contributions are sufficient to ensure all the benefits? No, I do not, especially in a mining district.
12796. You regard mining as a risky occupation? Yes.
12797. As the employes are more subject to accident than other people? Yes.
12798. That has been your experience? Yes, and I have been twelve years in a coal-mining township.
12799. Otherwise they are a healthy body of men? Yes, but they are more liable to accident; a person may be sick in a country place and recover in a few weeks, but a man meeting with an accident in a pit is thrown on the Lodge for five, six, or eight months, as the case may be.
12800. Has your Lodge taken any steps to raise the contribution? We raised them to try and enable us to pay £1 a week, and we went back again and lowered the contribution, finding it impossible to do it—that is to pay the £1 a week—on account of the number of accidents some of our members had met with.
12801. What would be the average ages of your members? About thirty-five years in our Lodge at Wallsend, as we have a large number of old men; in fact I think I must be mistaken in saying that; I would I think be wrong in saying forty.
12802. But you are not able to give the Commission the particulars of the matters in dispute between you and the Division I referred to? You could get the particulars more fully from the Secretary to the Grand Division.
12803. Has there been much competition amongst the Friendly Societies here? A great deal in the mining townships.
12804. What has been the nature of that competition? Lowering the fees for a certain time.
12805. Has that had a good or bad influence on the Societies? I could hardly say what the result has been.
12806. They have not lowered the contribution fees? Yes.
12807. But not the contributions? No.
12808. You have nothing further to say? No.
12809. Can you give us any information in connection with the Sick and Accident Funds in connection with the collieries, how they are sustained, and how they are worked? There is a Society formed by the miners amongst themselves; the fund which they have established is not for any person who may fall sick, but for those who may meet with an accident in the pit or about the pit. They are generally allowed £1 per week, and the contributions to meet the funds are regular, according to the number of accidents that occur; some weeks it may be 3d., some 6d., some 9d., and some 1s., and sometimes even 2s.; according to the number of accidents, they meet the demand by making a levy upon the whole of the members of the fund. In case of a death through an accident, a levy of 1s. 6d. upon full members, and 9d. upon half members is made; and the amount thus raised is paid to the widow or relatives of the deceased.
12810. That is by a call? Yes; the night previous to the pay the committee of management meets and reckons up what their expenses will be, when they make a levy on each member, and directly the man receives his pay he goes to the Secretary and pays his contribution.
12811. Is there not another Society in connection with the pits which provides medical attendance and chemist? No, only the one I refer to where the 6d. per week is stopped from them.
12812. It is compulsory? It is compulsory; they never receive that 6d., but it is kept from their pay and paid to the doctor and chemist after their usual pay is paid.

Mr. Alfred Asher sworn and examined:—

12813. President.] What Society do you represent? The Sons of Temperance.
12814. What office do you hold? Grand Scribe.
12815. How long have you held that office? About four years.
12816. And how long have you been connected with the Sons of Temperance? I think about fifteen years.
12817. Have you had any other connection with any other Friendly Society? None.
12818. What is the total number of members in connection with your Grand Division? 475.
12819. What would be the total funds of these Divisions? £3,293 8s. 9d.
12820. How are these funds invested? I have no idea.
12821. The Trustees? Oh yes, every Lodge has its Trustees.
12822. Can you tell what has been the total expenditure for the last five years? £4,733 13s. 8d.
12823. What has been the total income for the five years? I can only give an estimate of that, because there are one or two Lodges which have not sent in complete returns, and of course the estimate for expenses is the same. There has been an income of about £6,000.

12824.

Mr.
H. Rushton.
18 July, 1882.

Mr.
A. Asher.
18 July, 1882.

- Mr. A. Asher.
18 July, 1882
12824. What are the contributions paid by members under your jurisdiction? Well, each Division makes its own by-laws, and they charge whatever contributions they like. In most cases I think it is 6d. a week.
12825. Does that include medical attendance? No, that is always charged separately. In the Lodge to which I belong we pay 6s. 6d. a quarter in advance to the doctor.
12826. That is in addition to the 6d. a week? Yes.
12827. Do you think that is sufficient? I do not think it is. Of course I am speaking now from my own experience of my own Division.
12828. What benefits do you give for this contribution? £1 a week sick pay for the first six months, then 15s. for the next three months.
12829. And a funeral donation? Yes; but we have a general Funeral Fund for the whole Order.
12830. To which you pay a capitation allowance? Yes; it has been 1s., but I think it is now 1s. 6d. per member per quarter.
12831. That ensures your funeral donations being paid? Yes, that is it.
12832. Can you tell the amounts paid separately for funeral donations and sick pay during the five years? It was £1,517 14s. 11d.; the medical, £1,326 12s.; exclusive of doctor and benefits, £1,836 6s. 9d.
12833. Does that include the cost of management? Yes, everything is included in that.
12834. Does your Grand Division pay its officers? Yes.
12835. Do your subordinate Divisions pay their officers? The two Secretaries in most cases are paid.
12836. Do they furnish a bond of fidelity? I do not think so.
12837. Do they in connection with the Grand Lodge? No.
12838. Do the Trustees give any guarantee? No.
12839. Have you had any defalcations in connection with any of your subordinate or Grand Divisions? No, I do not think so; I do not know of any in my position as Grand Scribe, but as a member of my own Lodge I think I could say there have been.
12840. What has been the extent or nature of them? This Lodge to which I belong severed its connection with the Grand Lodge of which I am an officer. Those who were members of the Grand Division wished to remain members of the Order, and reorganized the Division and elected fresh Trustees, and had them registered, and the old Trustees entered an action in the District Court against them, and paid the expenses of the lawsuit out of the funds.
12841. You regard that as a misappropriation? I do.
12842. Not a defalcation? No, a misappropriation.
12843. Was there any protest against the money being applied to pay these expenses? No, simply because it was done while they were severed from us; we subsequently amalgamated again, and there was a committee appointed to go through both sides' accounts, and it was found that they had paid certain moneys for this lawsuit.
12844. How were the expenses paid on your side? By the head of the Order—the National Division.
12845. Do you know what the amount was? Nine or ten guineas.
12846. What was paid by the National Division? £36.
12847. They have amalgamated again you say? Yes, but they have not acknowledged the Grand Division by sending in returns.
12848. What number of members have you? About ninety.
12849. Are they all disaffected in this way? No.
12850. Only a small portion? Yes.
12851. You do not know of any defalcations in connection with any of the Lodges or Divisions? No, I do not.
12852. How have the Divisions under your jurisdiction been generally managed? Of course there is a set of officers appointed for the half-year, consisting of the Worthy Patriarch, Deputy Secretary, Financial Secretary, Treasurer, Chaplain, and Doctor.
12853. Do you consider the management good? I think so—yes. Of course I have no experience of the management or working of any other Friendly Societies, so I cannot compare them.
12854. Do all your members undergo a medical examination prior to admission to the Lodge? Yes.
12855. What are most of your members—what are their occupations chiefly? They vary according to the locality in which the Lodges are situated. In Newcastle they would be a little of everything; at Waratah they would be principally labourers, with a few miners; at Wallsend they would be very nearly all miners; and as you go up the country they would be agricultural labourers.
12856. Has there been any proposal made to increase the weekly contributions? Not that I am aware of.
12857. Do you think that the weekly contributions should be on a graduated scale or of a uniform character? I am in favour of a uniform scale.
12858. Do you approve of the conditions—conditions contained in the Friendly Societies Act—empowering the officers of Societies to recover arrears of contributions from their members? I certainly do.
12859. Have any of your Divisions taken action against your members? None that I know of. The Division to which I belong passed a resolution once to do so, but I think the officers were afraid to carry it out.
12860. Do you approve of matters of dispute being settled in your Lodge, or by the higher Courts of your Order, rather than go to Courts of Law? I do.
12861. Do you favour an Arbitration Board to deal with matters of dispute? Yes, I do.
12862. And their decisions to be final? Yes.
12863. Would you favour a Government Inspector to be appointed to go and investigate the books? I would, most decidedly.
12864. How often are the accounts of your Lodges audited? Every quarter, I think.
12865. Is there anything in connection with this secession you would like to state to the Commission beyond what you have stated? I do not think so.
12866. What would be the average ages of members under your jurisdiction? I am sure I could not say—I have no idea.
12867. Have any of the funds been invested in any other way than in the Banks? Not that I am aware of.
12868. There is no freehold property? Yes, at Singleton and Raymond Terrace.
12869. Is that the property of these Lodges? Yes.

12870. Is that included in the amount you speak of? Yes.
12871. Where do most of the Divisions meet under your jurisdiction? Not in public-houses, generally in schoolrooms or halls.
12872. Where do they meet? Newcastle, in the Congregational schoolroom; Waratah, in the Northumberland Hall; Wallsend, in the School of Arts; West Maitland, in the Masonic Hall; East Maitland, in the Temperance Hall; Morpeth, I don't know; Singleton, in the Temperance Hall; Tamworth Division, in the School of Arts; Raymond Terrace, in the Temperance Hall.
12873. Have you increased in number during the last year? No.
12874. Has there been a falling off in numbers? Yes.
12875. Many? There is a falling off of nearly 200 in five years.
12876. Have you got last year's and the year before? Yes.
12877. What was the number in 1880? 517.
12878. And what in 1881? 388; but then of course there are two Lodges whose returns I have not got; I think they have about 100 members, making a total of 488.
12879. You have no later date than that? No.
12880. But there has been a falling off of upwards of 200 in the five years? Yes.
12881. Have there been many joining your Divisions during the last four months? Yes, in some of the Lodges; the falling off is caused principally by Divisions that are broken up.
12882. Dissolved? Yes.
12883. What has been the cause of their dissolution? Want of interest.
12884. Not want of funds? No.
12885. There has always been sufficient funds? Yes.
12886. What has become of their members? They have divided the funds and gone out of the Order.
12887. That has arisen from want of interest? Yes; in most cases the Divisions are in sparsely occupied localities, and the members living a long distance away are unable to attend their Division meetings.
12888. Have you anything further to add to your evidence? No.
12889. No suggestions to make to the Commission? No.
12890. Mr. Holdsworth.] Did not one or two of your Divisions break up and divide large funds? Yes.
12891. Did not one divide a very large amount recently? Not to my knowledge.

The Commission then adjourned till 9:30 a.m. on Wednesday, the 19th July, 1882.

WEDNESDAY, 19 JULY, 1882.

Mr. Edward Claridge sworn and examined:—

12892. President.] What Society do you represent? The Grand United Order of Oddfellows.
12893. Have you brought a copy of your rules with you? Yes (produced).
12894. What office do you hold? I am Treasurer of the Honeysuckle Lodge.
12895. How long have you held that office? About twelve years.
12896. How many members have you? We have 202, of whom about forty are unfinancial.
12897. When was the Society instituted? August 6, 1868.
12898. What amount of money have you to your credit? £755 9s. 6d.
12899. What amount of contributions do your members pay? 1s. 1½d. a week, if they pay to the doctor; if not, only 7½d. a week.
12900. Are there many of your members who only pay 7½d. a week? No, not many.
12901. Then the majority of members pay 13½d. a week? Yes.
12902. The members that only pay 7½d. a week who are members of your Society are also members of some other Society, where they get medical benefits? No, they mostly live out of the district, and some of them object to the doctor because they do not like him, and for frivolous things like that.
12903. What was the total amount paid last year for sick benefits? £136 18s. 4d.
12904. And what did you pay on account of medical benefits? £163 7s. 6d.
12905. What was the total expenditure for last year? £32 19s. 5d., exclusive of what I have already given you.
12906. Your District pays the amount of the funeral donation? Yes.
12907. That is not charged against you? No.
12908. Can you tell us now what the total amount of income was for last year? £456 0s. 1d.
12909. What was the total expenditure? £416 3s. 6d.
12910. That leaves a profit of about £40? Yes.
12911. What has been the total amount paid on account of sick pay and other benefits for five years? £442 5s. 4d. on account of sick allowance; then medical benefits, £621 13s. 9d.; and working expenses, £136 7s. 11d.
12912. Do you know what was paid on account of funeral donations during the five years? We have lost four members, three wives, and two children, making a total of £127.
12913. That was paid by the District? Paid by the District.
12914. What were the total receipts for the five years from all sources? I have not got that information with me.
12915. What benefits do you give? £1 a week for the first six months, 15s. a week for the next six months, and 5s. for the next twelve months.

Mr.
E. Claridge.
19 July, 1882.

12916.

- Mr. E. Claridge.
19 July, 1892.
12916. What amount of funeral donation do you give? According to a graduated scale.
12917. What is the highest amount? £30.
12918. How long has a man to be a member to get that? Ten years.
12919. What do you give in case of the death of a wife? £10; and if five years a member, £15; and if ten years, £20.
12920. Do you think 13½d. is sufficient to ensure all these payments? Yes.
12921. Do you consider your Society in a good financial position? Yes.
12922. And able to meet its financial obligations? Yes.
12923. And 13½d. is quite sufficient to ensure these payments? Yes.
12924. Have you had any defalcations by officers or members of your Society? We had a little at first starting; we were in difficulties, and we had one member who did away with a trifle; but it was under £5.
12925. Did he make it good? No, he absconded.
12926. How long ago is that? Thirteen years ago; at the formation of the Lodge.
12927. That is the only case you know of? Yes, that is the only case we know of.
12928. Your members pay a uniform contribution? Yes.
12929. Do you favour that principle rather than a graduated scale of payments? Yes; we have always found it work very well.
12930. And you are personally in favour of it? I am personally in favour of it.
12931. You settle your matters of dispute in the same way as other Lodges of the Order? Yes.
12932. Do you favour the principle of allowing a Lodge to take members in arrears into a Court of law? We have never done it; we do not care about using the power, as we think it is against the spirit of our institution. If a member is not able to pay his contribution the other members sometimes endeavour to make it up for him, and sometimes let him run out.
12933. Then you disapprove of the principle? Myself I do, and the Lodge does too.
12934. You do not favour the principle of going to the Courts? No.
12935. How long has a member to be in arrears before becoming unfinancial and not entitled to sick pay? In fourteen weeks he becomes unfinancial, and is then a month before he is good on the books again or entitled to benefits.
12936. What would be the average ages of your members? They are nearly all young members; the oldest is about fifty.
12937. Are there many at that age? No, only one or two.
12938. Have you increased your number of members during the last year? Yes.
12939. Have you lost many members during the year? No, not many.
12940. Have you made a larger number than those who have retired? Yes.
12941. And they are principally young men? All young men.
12942. You have quarterly audits of your receipts and expenditure? Yes.
12943. Are competent persons chosen to make the investigation? Yes, as competent as we can get in our own Order.
12944. Would you approve of the Government appointing an officer to go round visiting all the Lodges and inspecting the books and accounts? That is according to whom the expense would fall upon; if the Lodges or Districts had to bear the expense it would come too heavy; but if this officer was to be paid by the Government it would be very desirable.
12945. Is the cost of management of these Societies and of keeping and sustaining all the different Courts very expensive? Not very.
12946. The management and government of Friendly Societies is not very expensive? Not very.
12947. What do you mean by "not very"? We keep within strict limits, and most of the officers do the work almost gratuitously.
12948. Do you pay your Secretary? Yes.
12949. And Treasurer? Well, he gets a nominal sum.
12950. What do you give your Secretary? We have increased our members now, and have raised the salary to £20 a year; in previous years it was much less; before last quarter he did not get above £3 a quarter.
12951. Does he give a bond? Yes.
12952. The Treasurer the same? Yes.
12953. How many Trustees have you? Two.
12954. Are the moneys invested in their joint names? Yes.
12955. For the Society? For the Society.
12956. You have no freehold property? No.
12957. All your assets are in money? Yes, in the Government Savings' Bank.
12958. Do all your members undergo a medical examination? Yes.
12959. And their wives as well? Yes.
12960. And their children? No.
12961. You register the children to the Funeral Fund? Yes.
12962. What do members pay who desire to register their children? A shilling.
12963. Is that all that is required? Yes.
12964. What amount do you pay in case of their death? If the member has belonged to the Order for not less than six months, £1; if over twelve months, £2.
12965. Do you think then that with all these benefits you speak of 13½d. is sufficient? Yes, I am quite sure of it, because every fund has increased.
12966. The members are daily getting older? Yes.
12967. And you are sure that the payments are sufficient for the next twenty years? No; I say for what I have experienced; I cannot say for the next twenty years. I do not think it would do for the future; it makes us rich on account of having so many young men.
12968. But they will get old? Yes; and unless they keep adding young members I do not think it would be sufficient.
12969. Have you insured your life in any Insurance Office? No.
12970. Have you any idea what you would have to pay over this amount of 13½d. a week? Yes, I think so.

12971. What do you think it could be done for? I am sure I could not say.
12972. Could you do it for 6d. a week? No, I do not think they could.
12973. What is your Society principally composed of—miners or tradesmen? Tradesmen and labourers; we have only about a dozen miners in our Lodge.
12974. Who is the medical officer? Dr. Knaggs.
12975. How long has he been the medical officer? About eight years.
12976. How much do you pay him? Sixpence per member per week. That covers everything.
12977. That is 26s. a year? Yes.
12978. What radius does he embrace in visiting your members? 2 miles.
12979. 2 miles from town or from the Lodge-room? Both; we are close together.
12980. Where do you meet? The "Black Diamond Hotel," Blane-street, Newcastle.
12981. Is it desirable for Friendly Societies to meet in public-houses? No.
12982. Have you taken any steps to provide another meeting-place? No; the staircase from the Lodge-room is outside the hotel altogether, and it is away from the public-house.
12983. But has it not a bad influence to meet in public-houses? Yes, I dare say it has.
12984. Do you spend much of your funds in regalia? No.
12985. Does it cost much to open a Lodge under your Constitution? Oh, no.
12986. About how much? The expenses of the officers, according to the distance it might be; 10s. or £2.
12987. Each Lodge or each member? Each Lodge.
12988. Do you get a warrant or charter? A warrant; I do not know what they charge for that.
12989. You do not know what the total expense would be? No; very small.
12990. What have you paid for regalia? Regalia, £2 18s., and testimonials, £2 10s.
12991. Has that been paid out of the funds? Out of the Management Fund.
12992. Then your members provide their own regalia? Yes.
12993. And that is for officers' regalia? Yes.
12994. Mr. Abigail.] Do you divide your funds? Yes, we have a Management Fund and a Sick Fund.
12995. You do not spend money for any other purpose than that set forth in the rules? No.
12996. Were you Deputy Grand Master in 1880? Yes.
12997. Were you present at a meeting in George-street, Sydney, in February of that year? Yes.
12998. Do you recollect a matter being brought forward about the Newcastle Lodge having spent £30 out of the funds of that Lodge for a dinner? Yes.
12999. What view did the meeting take about that? The views were conflicting. The City of Newcastle Lodge said that the money was received from an excursion.
13000. Did not the meeting on that occasion condemn the action of the Lodge for having voted the money from the funds of the Lodge to spend on a dinner? Yes.
13001. Did they inflict any fine on the Lodge? No, I do not think so; I do not recollect it.
13002. They simply contented themselves with condemning the action? Yes. It was this way: they said they had received the money as profit on an excursion, and had placed the money in one of the funds and took it out again. It was contended that after it had been placed in the funds it should not have been taken out again.
13003. The amount was actually made in this manner? So they told us.
13004. Was there any documentary evidence? We had the word of one of the members who was on the Committee.
13005. Has your Lodge ever resorted to the system of half-fees in admitting young members? Yes, I think we did once.
13006. How long ago is that? A long while ago.
13007. You said very positively that you believe this 13½d. a week is sufficient to meet all the requirements of the Society? Up to the present time.
13008. Does it make any provision for contingent liabilities—the increasing ages of the members? No.
13009. Have you any doubt that the liabilities increase with the age of your members? No, I have no doubt of it at all.
13010. That is not taken into consideration? No.
13011. You simply go by the fact that you are paying your way and adding a little to your funds? That is all.
13012. Have you ever gone into figures to see how much that increase ought to be every year? No, I have not.
13013. You have not ascertained at what rate your liabilities increase? No.
13014. Have you ever had any cases come under your notice where members have spent their contributions at the bar, instead of going to the Lodge-room to pay them? No.
13015. Do you think it advisable to adopt the system of half-fees? No, I do not.
13016. Mr. Newland.] Did not a large proportion of the members of the City of Newcastle Lodge protest against the misuse of these funds for the dinner? Yes.
13017. And they sent the protest on to the General Meeting? Yes.
13018. President.] You have nothing further to add to your evidence? No.
13019. Have you any statement or suggestion to make to the Commission that might be of service? I should like to make a statement with regard to the sick allowance. The Act says that a member shall not receive more than 20s. or 21s. a week —
13020. No, that is the old Act, not the present Act. Do you approve of persons being permitted to be members of more than one Society? Yes, we consider two guineas a week is little enough, but that it is as much as ought to be paid, and we would limit the sum to that amount.

Mr. Henry Sneesby sworn and examined:—

13021. President.] What Society do you represent? The City of Newcastle Lodge, Grand United Order of Oddfellows.
13022. When was your Society established? January 1st, 1855.
13023. What office do you hold? I have been Secretary four and a half years now.
13024. What is the number of members in your Society? 280 on the books.

Mr.
H. Sneesby.
19 July, 1882.

13025.

- Mr. H. Snecsbey.
19 July, 1882.
13025. How many are financial? Thirty-two are unfinancial.
13026. What amount of subscriptions have you received during last year from all sources? £737 17s. 5d.
13027. What was the total amount of expenditure for a like period? £714 11s. 5d.
13028. What has been paid for sick benefits for the past five years? In 1877, £216 12s. 8d.; 1878, £243 14s. 6d.; 1879, £221 14s. 6d.; 1880, £203 14s. 7d.; 1881, £269 8s. 8d.; making a total of £1,155 4s. 11d.
13029. What has been paid during the five years for funeral allowance? £316.
13030. What proportion of that has come from the District? None at all.
13031. How long is it since your Lodge left the District? Five years this month.
13032. Then all that sum has come from your own funds? Yes.
13033. What amount have you paid for medical attendance? £1,102 18s.
13034. What has been the cost of management for five years? Including the Sub-Committee of Management levy the amount is £258 2s., or an average of £51 12s. 4d. per year.
13035. That includes salaries and everything of that kind? Salaries and everything; rent of room and printing.
13036. What were the total receipts for the five years? £3,594 14s. 4d.
13037. What was the total expenditure for the five years? 2,832 4s. 9d.
13038. Leaving a profit of over £700? Yes.
13039. What amount of money has been spent on account of regalia and testimonials? None at all; there has been nothing spent, but we have given donations to various cases of distress amounting to £51 4s.
13040. Has that been taken from the funds? Yes, and given in cases of distress, either to members or others.
13041. How do you recover the arrears of contributions due by your members? The law has never been put into force up to the present time; when he becomes unfinancial he is called upon, and if he cannot pay he is struck off the books.
13042. You do not approve of the provision in the Act allowing you to go to the Small Debts Court? No.
13043. What is the highest sum you pay in case of death? £30.
13044. And on the death of a member's wife? £20 is the highest; that is provided he has been a member ten years; but our Funeral Fund laws will explain that.
13045. What are the contributions that your members pay? For full members, or those paying to the doctor, 13½d. a week; non-medical members, or country members, 7½d.
13046. And do you think that is sufficient to ensure payment of all the Society's obligations to its members? It has been up to the present time.
13047. Do you think it is large enough to ensure payment? As far as my experience goes it is.
13048. Have you had any cases of defalcation in your Society by any of its officers? We have.
13049. What has been the nature of them? There was a Secretary some ten or twelve years ago, and we found a defalcation amounting to something over £100; it was principally the fault of the members of the Lodge, who were too idle to go to the Lodge and pay their subscriptions, but if they met the Secretary in the street would give him the money, and he absconded; we did not follow the law, as he got away before we could prosecute him.
13050. Is that the only case you know of? The only case I know of, though I have been twenty-two years a member of the Lodge.
13051. Do your officers receive payment—the Secretary and Treasurer? Yes.
13052. What salaries do they get? The Secretary now gets £4 a quarter, and the Treasurer, £1 per quarter.
13053. Do they give a guarantee bond? Yes. I am under a bond of £80, I think it is.
13054. And the Treasurer? I think he is under a bond too, but I do not know the amount.
13055. Do all your candidates seeking admission undergo a medical examination? Yes.
13056. And members' wives? Yes.
13057. Have you found many persons refused on account of the doctor not passing them? Only two or three within the past five years.
13058. Are you of opinion that the medical examination is of a satisfactory character? Our medical officers have always given us satisfaction in that respect, as far as my knowledge goes.
13059. You have quarterly audits? Yes.
13060. By two or three Auditors? Two Auditors.
13061. Chosen by the members? Chosen by the members.
13062. Would you approve of the Government appointing a public officer to investigate and inspect the books of all Friendly Societies every year? Yes, I would have no objection to that.
13063. Have you read the Friendly Societies Act? I could not positively say I have read it through, but I have very often looked into it for information with regard to the working of my own Lodge.
13064. Do you find it affording all the security necessary for the good government of Societies? As far as my knowledge goes it does; there are some things in it that the officers of our Society would wish to have altered.
13065. What is the nature of these? With reference to the disabilities a Society labours under, two or three of the oldest members of the Lodge are of opinion that we have no power to lend money in any other manner but that set forth in the Friendly Societies' Act of 1874; whereas if we could have lent money on house or other property being good security, our funds would have been much increased thereby; as it is the Banks receive the benefit of our money.
13066. Is that the only particular in which you think the Act should be amended? Yes, that is all that has been pointed out to me; our notice has been so short that we could not call a meeting of the whole Lodge to consider this; if we had had a month it would have been beneficial.
13067. Are you of opinion that the present Act is fairly and reasonably administered? To the best of my knowledge and belief it is.
13068. And you have no suggestions to make to the Commission? I have no other suggestions to make for the reason I have just stated; want of time to consider the matter.
13069. You have nothing further to add? Nothing further.
13070. Mr. Smith.] How many years were you connected with the District? Twenty-two years.
13071. Have you made greater progress as a neutral Lodge than you did under the old system? Yes, I consider consider we have, because we have a funeral fund now ; we have paid £316 out of it, and still there is an accumulated fund of £362 2s. 9d. to its credit.

13072. I suppose the matter of economy induced you to leave the district? Yes, the members were dissatisfied with the way in which the money was being spent. We were paying a levy of 2s. or 2s. 6d. a member, and they were opening Lodges so far away that it cost too much for travelling expenses, and the members of the Lodge considered that these expenses could be considerably lessened, and that our quarterly levies should not have been so heavy, and when the money was paid to the District there was none of it belonging to them.

13073. As an old and experienced member of that Society, do you think the present government or management of your Society is cumbersome and expensive? No, I do not.

13074. I am speaking of the District? We are only subject to the Sub-Committee of Management, who levy us 3d. per quarter for each member.

13075. Do you approve of the principle of governing Societies in this way—do you believe it to be a cheap mode of government? Yes, I believe it to be as cheap as it can be done.

13076. Notwithstanding that you have left the District? I am not speaking of the District now.

13077. I am asking, from your knowledge as a member of long standing, as to the cost of the governing bodies of your Society? In reply to that, I think the District itself is rather expensive, and that was the very reason we seceded.

13078. Mr. Abigail.] What is the nature of the bond you give—is it a Guarantee Society? No, two bondsmen go security for me.

13079. Are they members of the Society? They are.

13080. Do you think that system preferable to having a bond from a Guarantee Society? I think it equally as good, if the man is able to pay the bond, if he should be called upon to do so.

13081. Do you think it is likely they would push it against their own members? They would certainly enforce the bond.

13082. Does your Lodge send its annual returns direct to the Registrar? Yes.

13083. Have they ever sent in a quinquennial return, as set forth in the Act? I do not think there has been any such return.

13084. You know the Act makes provision for such a return? Yes.

13085. It has not been done by you? No.

13086. When a member has been paying his contributions for a number of years to your Society and is unable to continue them, do you give him any consideration? We have never done so up to the present time, though we have made him good on the books.

13087. But in the case of those whom you have struck off, you have never given them any consideration? We have never done that.

13088. Do you think that is fair to the member? Well, perhaps it may not seem fair, but he enters the Lodge with a knowledge that he will be served in this way if he does not comply with the rules.

13089. Has your Lodge ever made any votes for dinners, or things of that sort? There has never been but one social gathering since I have been in the Lodge. It occurred in this way: our Lodge got up an anniversary celebration and it took the form of a steam trip. There was £39 made over this trip, and they took £30 and had a social gathering.

13090. But the funds of the Lodge arising from the contributions of the members did not lose anything? Not a penny.

13091. Did the annual meeting condemn the Lodge for that? There was some doubt about it but it came to nothing, as they could not say anything after the explanation.

13092. Does the central body possess the power of controlling your actions, or voting censures if you committed wrong? Yes.

13093. And inflicting fines? No, I do not think so.

13094. They have power to censure, but not to interfere with your financial arrangements? That is all.

13095. Mr. Newland.] Which of the rules produced are you governed by? The latest edition. I brought the others because they contain the Funeral Fund rules.

13096. Do you not know there is a great deal of difference between them? Yes.

13097. And you do not accept these later rules? Yes; but the others contain the Funeral rules, and that is why we retain them.

Mr. George Buckley sworn and examined :—

13098. President.] What Society do you represent? The Grand United Order of Oddfellows.

13099. What is the date of the establishment of that body in this District? December 5, 1867.

13100. What office do you hold? Secretary to the District, and also private Lodge Secretary.

13101. How long have you held the office of District Secretary? Eight years.

13102. What is the number of members you have in the District? 1,656.

13103. What number have you in your private Lodge? 126.

13104. Financial members? Yes.

13105. What was the amount of receipts in your Lodge last year? £240 17s. 3d.

13106. What was the total expenditure on account of benefits, management, and medical allowance? £168 4s. 2d. and £37 8s. 8d., making a total of £205 12s. 10d.

13107. And leaving a profit of £35? Yes.

13108. What is the name of the Lodge? The Miners' Refuge.

13109. Located where? At Waratah.

13110. Are the members principally composed of miners? Yes.

13111. What amount has been paid on account of sick pay during the last five years? £562 13s.

13112. What amount has been paid on account of Funeral donation? £105.

13113. And on doctor and medicines? £113 14s.

13114. And on account of management? £218 1s. 11½d.

13115. Making a total for the five years of £894 8s. 11½d., excluding £105 for funeral donations, which is recouped from the District.

13116. And the receipts have been—? £1,180 0s. 1d.

486—2 Z

13117.

Mr.
H. Sneesby.
19 July, 1882.

Mr.
G. Buckley.
19 July, 1882.

- Mr. G. Buckley.
19 July, 1882.
13117. Leaving a profit of £280? Yes.
13118. All the Lodges pay the same contributions? Yes.
13119. Have you one general system of by-laws for the private Lodges? No, each separate Lodge has its own By-laws, which must be in accordance with the general laws. (By-laws produced.)
13120. With reference to your District Lodge, what is the total value of the funds? Up to December 31, 1881, £1,943 ls. 3½d.; at the present time about £1,990.
13121. Can you tell what amount of money has been received for the five years by the District Lodge? £4,259 15s. 3½d.
13122. What has been paid during that time for funeral allowance? £1,465 0s. 3d.
13123. What has been the cost of management? £1,783 3s. 10d.
13124. What is the total expenditure? £3,263 ls. 1d.
13125. And the total income was—? £4,259 15s. 3½d., leaving a balance of £996 13s. 11½d.
13126. What amount of levy do you receive from each of the subordinate Lodges? It is variable; for the last two years it has been 1s. 6d. per quarter.
13127. That is the amount paid now? Yes.
13128. Has it been more? Yes, it has been 2s. and 2s. 6d.
13129. What does it cost to open a new Lodge? It all depends on the distance away from Newcastle.
13130. What is the cost of the necessary machinery? £5 to £6.
13131. And the travelling expenses of the officers? We generally appoint some qualified person living in the town, to save expense.
13132. But if you have not any qualified person you send an officer? Yes.
13133. And the travelling expenses are paid? Yes.
13134. By the District or by the Lodge? By the District.
13135. Then the only charge against the Lodge would be the £5 or £6 you referred to for machinery? Yes, that is all.
13136. How long have you been connected with the Order? Ten years.
13137. You have had a good deal of experience? Yes.
13138. Have you found that the present Act affords your Society all the protection necessary for the good government of the Societies? Yes, I think so; I have never heard any complaints about that.
13139. Has it been fairly administered do you think? I think so, as far as my knowledge is concerned.
13140. Do you as a body suffer any disabilities from the present Act? Not that I am aware of.
13141. Do you know of anything that affects the free action of the Society? No, I do not.
13142. Have you any suggestions to make that might be of service? Well, there is one thing, and that is in reference to book-keeping; there should be something done to have one style throughout the whole of the Society.
13143. One uniform system of book-keeping? Yes.
13144. Would that simplify the duties? I think so, because while you are travelling about you attend a Lodge and examine the books, and if you find half a dozen systems of book-keeping you get bothered.
13145. As Grand Secretary, do you approve of persons being permitted to join more than one Lodge? No.
13146. Do you approve of the provisions in the Act for subordinate Lodges to sue their members for arrears of contributions? Yes.
13147. Have any of your Lodges availed themselves of that provision? Not to my knowledge.
13148. Has the matter been brought under your notice? Yes.
13149. And no action was taken? No action was taken.
13150. Would you approve of a Government officer being appointed to investigate and inspect the books and accounts of Friendly Societies every year? Yes, I think it would be a very good thing.
13151. You have nothing to suggest to the Commission? No.
13152. Do you consider that the amount of contributions paid by members of your subordinate Lodges is sufficient to ensure the payment of the obligations the Society incurs? I think so; I have always found that they have made it sufficient.
13153. No Lodge has dissolved for want of funds in connection with your District? No.
13154. Have there been any defalcations by members or officers in your District? Not in my term of office.
13155. Do the officers of the District give bonds for the due performance of their duties? Yes.
13156. How are the moneys of the District invested? In the Savings' Bank of New South Wales.
13157. To the credit of the Trustees? Yes.
13158. And the Secretary and Treasurer give a bond? Yes; also the Lodge Secretaries and Treasurers.
13159. And you are firmly of opinion that the amount is sufficient to ensure all the benefits your Society gives? Yes I am, from what I have seen in the Lodges.
13160. As a rule, what would be the average age of the members in your District? I know in my own Lodge the average age is thirty-one, but I could not say for the District.
13161. And you still think that 13½d. is enough, notwithstanding that your members are daily getting older? Yes, because we have young members coming in as we are getting older.
13162. Can you tell the Commission how many young members you admitted last year? Well, I believe three-fourths were under twenty-five years of age.
13163. Can you tell how many members you have lost during last year in the District? In 1880 we had 1,680 members; in February, 1881, we passed 250 away to open a new District at Bathurst; and the number now, in December, 1881, is 1,652, so that we made a large increase.
13164. Mr. Abigail.] You stated that the Friendly Societies Act has answered all the purposes necessary: have you ever had occasion to refer to it or to the Registrar on any question affecting the working of your Society? The only thing was in connection with Lodges being registered under the Act, and he sent me a communication stating what Lodges had been registered.
13165. You said you were positive about the 13½d. being sufficient? Yes.
13166. Have you made any calculation on which to base that opinion? No, only from past experience.
13167. In that do you calculate the contingent liabilities caused by the increasing ages of old members? Yes, with old members getting older and young members coming in all the time.
13168. What percentage do you allow? I could not say—I have not gone that far.
13169. You have never made any actuarial calculation? No.
13170. It is simply drawn from your experience of the present goings-on? Yes.

- 13171. Without any estimate of future liabilities? Yes.
- 13172. Mr. Holdsworth.] Does the £5 or £6 which you stated as the cost of the Charter include the set of books? Yes.
- 13173. President.] You have no further suggestions to make? No.

Mr. G. Buckley.
19 July, 1882.

Mr. Alexander Wilkinson sworn and examined:—

- 13174. President.] What Society do you represent? At present I am representing the Grand United Order of Oddfellows.
- 13175. How long have you held office in the Society? From 1854 until last June twelvemonths; that is about twenty-seven years.
- 13176. You are an old member? Yes.
- 13177. We have already got from some of your officers the particulars of the constitution of your Society, and the contributions paid by the members and the amount of benefits given by your by-laws; but I understand you have some suggestions to make before the Commission that might be of service to them? I have; I produce a tabulated statement in detail which shows the workings of the Lodge from 1873 till 30 June, 1882:—

Mr. A. Wilkinson.

ALEXR. WILKINSON,
West Maitland, 19 July, 1882.

- 13178. You have examined and compared that with the books of your Lodge? Yes. I may say that in addition to the shilling a week we pay half a crown a quarter, which helps to pay the doctor. I have also to make the following suggestions to the Commission:—

President Lodge, No. 1,056, G. U. O. O. F.,
West Maitland, July 19, 1882.

In response to the invitation of the President of the Royal Commission appointed to inquire on the matter of Friendly Societies, I submit the following for their consideration:—

It is considered by the members generally that their Societies are Benevolent Institutions, and not Insurance Companies, and that the financial laws necessary for the former are not applicable to their management, and that if they fulfil the duty of relieving distress in their own day, it is as much as can be expected of them, and that they very properly leave to future generations the task of providing for future requirements. But the fact is that, in addition to their purely charitable objects, these Societies hold out to candidates for initiation the assurance of certain sums of money to be paid at the deaths of members and wives, together with a weekly stipend during incapacity for labour through sickness, and these engagements are entered into in consideration of a stipulated periodical payment. This of course constitutes an Insurance Society, and the natural laws which influence the average amount of sickness and the rate of mortality demand unconditional recognition in framing laws to accomplish the objects proposed. It unfortunately happens that the great bulk of the persons who are likely to join these Societies do not possess sufficient arithmetical knowledge to properly investigate this subject for themselves, yet it is of the most vital importance to the future interest and welfare of their fellow-men.

These Societies are self-governed, and it is only, therefore, by the voice of their members alone that any improvements can be carried out which are absolutely necessary to save a number of existing Societies from ruin. There can be no doubt that a majority of the members would cheerfully take the necessary steps to place these Societies in a healthy financial position if they could clearly comprehend the nature of the facts which demand the necessity for immediate reformation, but the labyrinth of signs and figures which meets them at the outset leaves an impression on them that the science of vital statistics is a sealed book to them.

The true object and mission of these Societies is to afford a competent support and complete independence during periods of sickness, incapacity, and disease, however protracted. To accomplish this, and in order that the objects may be faithfully carried out, it is necessary—

First—That the rates of contribution for the assurance of any specified benefit must be determined from a knowledge of average liability.

Second—To secure an equitable as well as secure principles, the rate of payment for each benefit must be graduated in accordance with the ages of members at the time of entrance.

Third—The number of members must be sufficiently large, over which the joint liability exists, to ensure a reasonable approximation to a working average liability.

Fourth—Legislative protection to the funds, and their regular and judicious investment.

Fifth—A quinquennial return with a view to the adjustment of any irregularity which the preceding conditions may have failed to provide for.

Expectation

Mr.
A. Wilkinson,
July, 1832

Expectation of life.	Mr. Neison.	Manchester Unity.	Whole population.

40 "	29 "	26 "	26 "
50 "	22 "	20 "	24 "

In order to assure the payment of any given sum on the death of a member, it is necessary that the periodical contribution should on the average, with interest, be equivalent to the sum assured.

The rate of contribution for a given stipend during inability to follow employment in consequence of sickness can with equal certainty be determined.

When an actuary knows the age of a candidate for membership his table of sickness shows what is the average amount experienced from that period to death, the amount of liability for this item is thus discovered; the Expectation of Life Table furnishes the period over which the contribution may be anticipated to extend. The total in-payments with interest must be equivalent to the ascertained liability.

ALEX. WILKINSON.

13179. I gather that you are strongly of opinion that the present mode of governing your own body, with the small contributions paid, and they being of a uniform character, is not sufficient to meet all the requirements? No, it is not.

13180. What has been the increase in number of members during the last five years? In 1876 there were sixty-one good and five bad; now there are ninety-three good and thirteen bad. During the last five years we have had three deaths.

13181. Have you added to your funds during the last five years? Only by interest.

13182. If it was not for the interest accruing, you would be in arrears? We are £5 worse now than we were five years ago.

13183. Simply because the contributions are not equal to the requirements? Yes.

13184. Do you think a Society that provides a graduated sum to be paid at the death of members up to £30, after they have been in for ten years, and to £20 for the wives of members of ten years' standing, with the other benefits derivable from your rules—do you think that 1s. 1½d. a week is sufficient to provide all these payments? I do not think it is; we give 1s. 2d. as it is.

13185. You are quite clear that it is not sufficient? It is quite on a wrong principle altogether.

13186. Would you favour the principle of a graduated payment according to age, as being more equitable? I would.

13187. A young man joining at twenty should pay less than a man joining at forty? Just so.

13188. Then you would be of opinion that most of the Societies are formed on a wrong basis? I am quite of opinion that nineteen out of twenty are in a state of insolvency at the present moment, and I will give you an instance of it. I have here a return of the Sydney District, to which we belong; our Lodge is about eighth in age, and we possess more than three times the amount of value that the others have. Taking the whole District, with £2,019 as a reserve fund, it is only £2 14s. 7d. per member. Why every one of them is insolvent. It is outside the Society to present sick gifts altogether, and it was that which led me to withdraw from office in the Society, because they got a lot of young members in who would spend the money in this way. One man got a sick gift of £2 when he had only paid eight weeks' subscriptions.

13189. That is a departure from the rules? Yes, but there was a majority, and what could you do? I was Trustee for twenty-eight years, and gave it all up in consequence of these votes.

13190. Do the rules provide that, by a vote of the Lodge, they can make away with the funds of the Lodge in this way? No.

13191. It is in violation of the by-laws? They are silent on the point; it is a violation of the laws of insurance, but it is through such irregularity as this that the Societies are becoming so bad. There is another thing,—that Lodges will take members for three months for half-fees, and formerly you had to be a member twelve months before you got benefits, but now it is six months.

13192. Do the Lodges of different Orders in the District unfairly compete with each other? Yes, they have tried it only lately in Maitland, and have reduced the time to six months instead of twelve.

13193. And admit them at half-fees? No, the entrance fees have been lowered, but I do not look at that; I should like to do away with them, and charge a fair contribution.

13194. You do not look at the matter of initiation fees as a matter of great concern? No.

13195. What would you, as a matter of opinion, consider a safe financial basis for Societies to be placed on, as far as accumulated funds are concerned? That would require a great deal of working out. In the first place, I would want the age of each member, and, to calculate the number, the expectation of life and average sickness for that man's life.

13196. But from your knowledge of the District and members, and the long experience you have had, what would you think is an approximate amount of money sufficient to insure them against any future liability and contingency? That is according to time; we should at least have double the amount we have got.

13197. And then your Lodge is in a better position than any of the others? Yes; and there is another thing that several of the Societies registered under the Friendly Societies' Act experiences; there is a great deal of speculation going on.

13198. Has any matter of defalcation come under your own notice? No, not for years—not since this Act came into operation.

13199. Do you think the present Act is an improvement upon the previous one? Yes, but it would be a greater improvement if there was a table by which the Societies should abide.

13200. Do you think that, in future legislation, provision should be made for a table showing the basis on which new Societies should be established? Yes.

13201. Do you think a Government Officer should be appointed to make an annual inspection of the books and vouchers of the Societies? Well, I should recommend a quinquennial one, but perhaps an annual one would be of great service; there is a great difficulty in getting officers of any intelligence at all to manage these affairs, and they are quite at the mercy of the Secretaries.

13202.

Mr. A.
Wilkinson.
19 July, 1882.

13202. How are the funds invested? In the Savings' Bank.
13203. Bearing interest? Yes, the ordinary interest.
13204. To the credit of trustees? Yes.
13205. Do your officers receive pay? No; the Secretary does, £5 a year, and the expenses of stationery and postages.
13206. Do the Secretary and Treasurer give a bond or guarantee to the Society? Well, I insisted upon them doing so, and I see by the minutes that they have done it. At the commencement of 1854, I was elected Treasurer, but I would not accept the office until they received my bond; I gave it with the consent of the Lodge; and warned them on my resignation of the necessity of both Treasurer and Trustees giving bonds according to the Act; and I see by the minutes that it has been done.
13207. How many Lodges have you in this Hunter River District? We do not belong to the District, because there are a great many mining people in Newcastle, and they are more liable to accident; and, since our refusal to join, the City of Newcastle Lodge has withdrawn from it because the drain was too great on their funds. Four or five Societies have either broken up or have merged into others.
13208. The miner's occupation is more risky than others? Yes, I think so.
13209. Do you think that, in applying the principle of insurance to Friendly Societies, a man's occupation should be taken into consideration? Yes, decidedly; more particularly where there is a whole community engaged in mining.
13210. Do you think the medical examinations are sufficiently full and searching? No, I do not; I am sure they are not.
13211. Are you of opinion that many persons have been admitted into Societies that would not have been admitted if the doctor had done his duty? Yes.
13212. Do you approve of persons being permitted to join more than one Society? I do not, because if they get ill and draw £4 or £5 a week, they do not get well, and will not get well.
13213. You have seen a good deal of imposition? Yes.
13214. And you think if they are permitted to join more than one Society the amount of benefit to be received should be fixed? Yes.
13215. What amount? I should say a guinea a week.
13216. And you believe there has been a great deal of imposition practised in connection with Friendly Societies? I am positive of it.
13217. Do not the wives of members undergo a medical examination? No.
13218. Do you not think it necessary? It is necessary, and this is recognized by certain questions that are asked of candidates, but it is done in such a way that the members do not know what they are doing; there should be a declaration made that they and their wives are in a good state of health.
13219. Seeing that your Society gives a funeral donation on the death of the wife, do you not think it necessary to have an examination? Certainly.
13220. What amount is paid to your medical officer in connection with your private Lodge? £2 a year for married, and 7s. 6d. a quarter for single, and it is for that we levy this 2s. 6d. a quarter I spoke about. Thus all we have is 12s., to give all these benefits, out of which working expenses have to come, from a contribution of 1s. per week.
13221. Who is your medical officer? We have two, Drs. Morson and Blackwell.
13222. That sum paid includes medicine? Yes.
13223. What radius do they visit? 3 miles from the Lodge room. There is another thing presses very hard on Societies. For instance: A person who was a member of the Manchester Unity allowed himself to become bad on the books, and some time afterwards he lost his sight, and came down here, and they gave him a sick donation. He brought two or three actions against them; whereas, if they had acted up to the laws he should have been expelled. There was £120 costs to the District.
13224. Are you in favour of private Lodge disputes being dealt with by the higher Courts? Yes, all disputes should be settled amongst themselves, and not go to the Law Courts at all.
13225. Do you favour the principle that the officers should have power to recover arrears of contributions? Yes, although we have never acted upon it, because we think it better to let them go.
13226. Do you think it is a good provision? I think so.
13227. How long has a member of your Society to be in arrears before he is suspended from benefits? Thirteen weeks.
13228. Then, after he has been thirteen weeks in arrears, he is suspended from benefits for another eight weeks? Yes, I think so.
13229. You have already told us you are in favour of a graduated scale of payments? Yes.
13230. And of not taking the initiation fees into consideration? No, I would leave that out.
13231. And you are in favour of a Government inspection of the funds? Yes.
13232. And are opposed to interference on the part of the law Courts? Yes; the Societies themselves should deal with them.
13233. The decisions of the Superior Courts should be final? Yes, because they are removed from any feeling that might actuate the members of the Lodge.
13234. What Lodge was it that spent so large a sum of money in law expenses? It was a district; the branch was up at Gunnedah.
13235. And you are entirely opposed to any such steps as was taken by that Lodge? Yes, though it was forced on them by some legal gentleman trying to get up a case.
13236. Looking over this annual report of the G.U.O.O.F., I presume you have gone through the returns of "number of members," "number of persons sick in connection with each of the Lodges," "amount of sick pay paid," and "total worth of the Lodges"? Yes.
13237. Have you not been surprised to find the large number of members, and the small amount of money to their credit? I have, very much so.
13238. And many of these Lodges are of old standing? Yes; we are eighth on the list, and we are twenty-nine years' old.
13239. Does this not go to prove that the contributions must be very inadequate? Yes.
13240. There is the Traveller's Home, a Lodge with 133 members, and £336 8s. as the total worth of funds; is that an old Lodge? Yes, it is older than our Lodge by some three or four years.
13241. What would go to prove the opinion expressed by you that the older a Lodge got the worse the funds were? Yes.

Mr. A.
Wilkinson.
19 July, 1882

13242. The members become older, and consequently a greater burden to the Society? Yes, and its funds can only be recouped by having a lot of younger members joining them; and in this report the Lodge is recommended to take members at a reduced rate on purpose to get them to join.

13243. You observe that some £95 3s. 2d. was paid for sick pay by this Lodge? Yes.

13244. And the proportion of the 133 members was fifteen on the sick funds? That is a large proportion.

13246. Are you aware that in connection with many of the Societies it is a rule that no member shall go on the funds for a shorter period than a week? No, I am not aware of it; I do not think there is any such provision as that.

13247. Were these declarations on the funds for two or three days, a preliminary kind of sickness leading to something more permanent? No, these names do not occur again.

13248. Have you a Widow and Orphan Fund? No, it is a District affair, and we do not contribute to it.

13249. What is the cost, as far as your experience goes, of opening a private Lodge in connection with the District? About £10, if they come up from Sydney.

13250. Does that include warrant, charter, and all? Yes; I think ours was about £11 odd. There are several Lodges of the Order in this District, and they do not average more than twenty-five members in each Lodge. There is a Sons of Temperance Lodge in East Maitland, and I think their funds have gone down. A second Lodge in West Maitland got some £500 from a bazaar in West Maitland, and they have about £17 per head, with seventy-four members.

13251. That is in a better position than most of the Societies? Oh yes; it may be that being Sons of Temperance, and steady sober men, they are not so liable to sickness as men who drink.

13252. Where does your Lodge meet? At Mr. Why's, a private house; that is another thing—it is very bad for lodges to meet at public-houses.

13253. Do you think it leads to intemperate habits? I am certain of it. In Maitland none of the Lodges meet in public-houses.

13254. Have you ever heard of members going to pay their contributions who have paid them at the bar instead of in the Lodge-room? No, but they may have spent money extra.

13255. Have you anything further to say? No, except that there should be an article giving Societies power to adjust their own differences, a graduated table, and inspection of books.

13256. Mr. Abigail.] Are you aware that, under Part II of the Friendly Societies' Act, provision is made for new Societies submitting an actuarial table with their application to the Registrar? I noticed that, but it is never done.

13257. Then the Registrar is not administering that portion of the Act? No; the members of these Societies do not understand anything about that—it is Greek to them.

13258. Can you tell us the reason that they accumulated funds in years past—such large sums as you have in hand? There were ten or twelve of us who never drew anything from the funds. Through us a good many joined, and left off after a time when the gold-diggings broke out, and we got the benefit of their contributions and entrance fees. Then we had a judicious investment of the funds, and made collections to defray expenses on other occasions.

13259. So, if all legitimate demands had been met and taken, you would have been in a different position? Oh yes; a member would not then go on the funds unless it was absolutely necessary.

13260. Mr. Newland.] Seeing you have taken such a great interest in the working of Friendly Societies' have you endeavoured to have your views brought before the general body? Yes, I have; but I found I was talking over their heads.

13261. Have you ever sent your suggestions to the General Annual Meetings of the Order for consideration? Some years ago I did, and drew up a code of rules, and was presented with a testimonial.

13262. How many years ago is that? It must be fifteen or sixteen years ago.

13263. Mr. Holdsworth.] You consider the initiation fee a secondary consideration? Yes, I do.

13264. And it is only really worth the interest it will produce? Yes.

13265. The contribution is the great object? Yes, that is the sole object.

13266. Have you noticed the sickness increase when there is a want of employment amongst the people? Well, in Maitland there has not been much of that kind, but for any excuse they like to go on the funds.

13267. Do you think the present mode of government of these Societies is a proper one? No; I think there should be a general mode—and I think there should be only one in a town or district, as the greater the number of members the greater the security.

13268. Mr. Gelding.] You are aware that a good many Lodges have seceded from the Districts in your Order? Yes.

13269. Do you believe that it is advantageous to them? Decidedly not; this Lodge wants to secede, or to become neutral, but I am strongly opposed to it—in numbers is our security.

Mr. John McFadyen sworn and examined:—

Mr. J.
McFadyen.
19 July, 1882

13270. President.] What Society do you represent? The Rose of Australia Grand United Order of Oddfellows.

13271. How many members have you? 178.

13272. When were you instituted? November 18, 1868.

13273. What is the total value of your funds? On 31 December last year they were £526; they are considerably more since.

13274. Are you connected with the Sydney or Hunter River District? The Hunter River District.

13275. How long have you been an office-bearer in the Society? About ten years.

13276. How long have you been connected with the Society as a member? About twelve years.

13277. What amount of contributions do you receive weekly? 7½d. a week; that is for sick and funeral benefits.

13278.

Mr. J.
McFadyen,
19 July, 1882.

13278. And what for medical? 6d. to the medical fund.
13279. That is altogether? 13½d.; occasionally we make a levy to work our own management expense fund.
13280. What were the total receipts of your Lodge for last year? Sick and funeral, £328 8s. 3d.; management fund, £41 11s. 8d.; or a total of £369 19s. 11d.
13281. What was the expenditure during that time? Sick pay for the year, £296 9s. 8d.; doctors, £13 16s.; expenditure for management, £16 19s.; or a total of £327 4s. 8d. The amount for management is salaries alone.
13282. You do not include the rent and other things? For that year postages, printing, &c., £3 6s. 2d.; repairs, rent, &c., £4; making £7 6s. 2d. to be added to the other.
13283. What was the amount received for five years from all sources? £1,626 16s. 5d. for sick and funeral, and management, £243 7s. 2d.; and £52 10s. 6d. for doctor.
13284. What has been the total expenditure during the five years? Funeral, £150, this we receive back from the District fund; sick pay, £1,365 15s. 8d.; management, £77 5s. 6d.; printing, &c., £33 9s. 11d.; rent, £24 6s. 6d.
13285. Have you spent any money for regalia or testimonials? No; there is £2 2s. 6d. for refreshments to officers when there have been special meetings.
13286. Have you made many members during the last year? Yes.
13287. Many new members? I could not say exactly the number of members, but perhaps nine or ten.
13288. Have you lost many by removals? No, we stand about the same.
13289. Do I understand that the members of your Lodge receive medical attendance from the collieries? Yes.
13290. Is the money deducted from their pay by the proprietors? No, it is voluntary.
13291. Is that the general practice in connection with all the collieries? Yes.
13292. It is not stopped from the fortnightly wages? No.
13293. And does that also secure medical attendance for the wives and children? Yes.
13294. Have you had any cases of defalcation in connection with the officers or members of your Society? No, never.
13295. How are the moneys to the credit of the Society invested? In the Building Society, as a fixed deposit.
13296. What Building Society? The Northumberland Building Society.
13297. What rate of interest do you get? Six per cent.
13298. What amounts are invested? £550 now, but when our return was made up it was only £500; we have been getting 6 per cent., but it will be 5 per cent. now.
13299. You have paid a large amount for sick pay during the last five years? Yes.
13300. Is the mining occupation more risky than other occupations—are miners more liable to accident than others? I dare say they are.
13301. You find that a number of accidents occur in connection with these collieries? Yes.
13302. Which make the members unable to follow their occupations? Yes, but there is a large number of men.
13303. What is the total number of men employed in the collieries? 260 at Lambton, and it used to be 360; at Wallsend, one of the largest, there are 550; I could not say how many at Minmi; 450 at the A. A. Company.
13304. You do not know the total? No.
13305. You have no idea what are employed at other mines? No.
13306. Would there be over 2,000 in the whole of the collieries? No, there is supposed to be 1,800 in the district.
13307. And are most of these persons employed in the collieries members of the different Benefit Societies? A very large number of them are.
13308. But they are all provided with medical attendance? Yes.
13309. Is it a matter of compulsion for employes to pay to the doctor? No, but they themselves make it compulsory.
13310. Do you think the amount you pay in the shape of contributions is sufficient to ensure the benefits the Society gives to its members? Well, scarcely; but taking all things into consideration, the young Colony, the number of members who join and leave again, the Society has an advantage that is incalculable to those who are unacquainted with it.
13311. And you profit in that way? Very considerably.
13312. Have you any suggestions to make to the Commission in reference to the working of Friendly Societies? The only suggestion I would like to make is that I would like to see a calculation made as to what it would take for a Society to sustain itself, but the actuaries do not take into consideration the migratory character of the people in a new Colony. I would also like to see an Inspector appointed to superintend these Societies, in order that there might be a check on them; and further, I believe it would be beneficial, so far as any knowledge I have had of the working of Societies is concerned, that one system of book-keeping should be adopted; it would make the Societies better, and could be utilized to very great advantage, as in remote parts where people are not so close, it would simplify the duties of the Secretaries.
13313. Are the moneys you speak of invested to the credit of the Trustees? Yes.
13314. Do your officers receive any pay? The Secretary, that is all.
13315. What salary does he get? £3 15s. a quarter.
13316. Does he give any bond? Well no, the Treasurer gives one, because the money is handed over to him at the table as soon as it is taken every night.
13317. Any matters of dispute arising are settled by the higher Courts, after the Lodge has dealt with them? Yes.
13318. You have no further suggestions to make? No.
13319. Mr. Abigail.] When you were about investing your funds in the Building Society, did you apply to the Registrar to see if it was in accordance with the Friendly Society's Act? We could read it in the Act without applying.
13320. That you can do so? Yes.
13321. Is it not clearly in opposition to the clause "Investment of Funds"? Well, I did not think it was illegal.

- Mr. J. M'Fadyen.
19 July, 1882.
13322. But reading that 42nd clause what do you think now? I scarcely see that it is illegal now.
13323. What security do they give you? We have the security of the Directors.
13324. You have a receipt? We have the personal security of the Directors and Trustees.
13325. You do not think it is illegal? I scarcely think it is.
13326. Have you any special security except the receipt given you for the deposit of the money? No.

NOTE.—At a subsequent sitting the following letter was received from the witness, and it was ordered that it should be printed with his evidence:—

John Davis, Esq.,
Sir,

Referring to Mr. Abigail's question in reference to obtaining the sanction of Mr. Oliver as to investing of Fund in a Building Society, I may state that such mode of investment has been inserted on the annual returns of the Lodge to Mr. Oliver.

Newcastle, 19 July, 1882.

I am, &c.,

JOHN McFADYEN.

The Commission then adjourned till 2 p.m. on Wednesday, 19th July.

Mr. George Maher sworn and examined:—

Mr. G. Maher.
19 July, 1882.

13327. President.] You are a member of the Guild? I am Warden.
13328. Of the District? Of West Maitland Branch, St. John the Baptist.
13329. How long have you held the office? Getting on three years.
13330. What is the total number of members in the District? 107.
13331. Is that the largest number you have ever had? We have had 108, but some have left and gone to the Sydney Branch.
13332. How many Lodges are there in your District? One in Morpeth, one in East Maitland, and one in West Maitland.
13333. What is the total number in the three Lodges? I am not in a position to tell you that, but I think make up as much as we are; probably they make another hundred.
13334. What is the total amount of subscriptions received by your Society during 1881? I am hardly in a position to answer that question, but the Bursar would be able to tell you.
13335. Can you tell what amount has been received for five years? No, I have not got that down.
13336. You cannot tell then what has been expended during that time? I cannot; I produce a document giving the information I have prepared.

13337. What contributions do your members pay? 14d. a week.
13338. What are the benefits? A guinea a week when sick for twelve months; 10s. 6d. for the next twelve months, and then 5s., with the option of settling up and getting so much to pay them off.
13339. All the members pay one uniform contribution? Yes, but country members, who do not get the doctor, pay 4d. a week less.
13340. What do you pay your doctor? £1 per head.
13341. Do you pay a chemist? No; he supplies the medicines himself.
13342. That includes medicines as well as attendance? Yes; we have to find our own bottles to get the medicines.
13343. You cannot tell the Commission what the total value of your funds is? At the last balance we had £1,103 14s. 6d.
13344. What amount of funeral donation do you give? At the death of a Brother when he has passed his noviciate we give the wife £30, and if he is over five years a member, £35.
13345. Have you a Widow and Orphan Fund? It is included in that.
13346. Do you give any additional sum to this? No, that is the full amount.
13347. What do you pay to your members in case of the death of the wife? In case of the death of a wife £12 is paid to the Brother.
13348. Do I understand you to say that this £1,103 is the fund of your own private Lodge? It is, of our own private Lodge.
13349. Can you tell what funds the other Branches have got? No, I do not know anything about it.
13350. How long has your Society been established in Maitland? Since July 6, 1863.
13351. Do you make many new members? Sometimes we might get six in the half-year.
13352. Have you lost many members? We have lost some who allowed themselves to get bad on the books, and we have had to expel some in cases of drunkenness and things of that sort.
13353. The Society is confined to members of your Church only? Yes.
13354. Up to a certain age? From eighteen to forty-five.
13355. How are your funds invested? We have £150 lent on mortgage; all the rest of our money is in the Savings Bank, except a small current account.
13356. To the credit of Trustees on account of the Society? Yes.

13357.

Mr. G. Maher.

19 July, 1882.

13357. Are your Secretary and Treasurer paid? The Secretary is.
 13358. What is his salary? £20 a year.
 13359. Does he give a bond of fidelity to the Society? I do not think it has ever been required.
 13360. Does the Treasurer give a bond? No.
 13361. Have you had any defalcations or misappropriations of money by any of the members of the Society? Not during my connection with the Society.
 13362. Do you consider the amount paid by the members is sufficient to ensure all the benefits your Society provides? I think it is sufficient the way we are going on; we are making money every year, notwithstanding that we pay every call upon us at the first meeting.
 13363. No portion of your funds is spent for any purpose but that which is provided for by the by-laws? No, none whatever.
 13364. What would be the average ages of the members of your Branch? We have a great many young men, and seven or eight old men that have been members since the establishment; if they were left out the average would be thirty or thirty-five.
 13365. What is the Society principally composed of? There is scarcely a miner in our Lodge; principally tradesmen in the town and farmers' sons round the district.
 13366. Do all the members of the Society who happen to be sick or to have met with an accident participate in the benefits? All the members after they are twelve months in the Society, up to which time they are only considered as novices.
 13367. What I wish to know is whether members who are better off in life participate? They have as much right to have it as others.
 13368. And they take it? And they take it as a matter of fact.
 13369. Are you in favour of a uniform contribution being paid by members of Friendly Societies? Yes, I think it is a very good thing; it has worked very well in our Society.
 13370. Do you approve of young and old paying alike? That is a question that requires more consideration than I have been able to give to it; I think there should be some difference.
 13371. Then you favour the principle of a graduated scale of payments? I do.
 13372. According to age? According to age.
 13373. Where does your Branch hold its meetings? St. John's School, West Maitland.
 13374. Do you pay rent? We have had the free use of it from the Bishop, it being a Catholic school.
 13375. Have you or your Society taken advantage of the Act to recover arrears of contributions from your members? If they let themselves go bad on the books for twelve months we strike them off; we do not sue them.
 13376. You do not approve of that provision? No, we do not.
 13377. And you are of opinion that the amount of contribution paid by your members is sufficient to ensure the payment of all benefits provided for by your by-laws? Yes, we are in a position to pay anything likely to come against us for some time.
 13378. Have you read the Friendly Societies Act? I have not.
 13379. Have you or your Society or its officers laboured under any disadvantage arising from that Act, as far as you know? Not that I am aware of; we have not had any trouble.
 13380. Have you any suggestions to make to the Commission for the good working of Friendly Societies? Only in that matter you referred to, in reference to graduated scales.
 13381. Would you be in favour of a public officer being appointed by the Government to investigate and inspect the books of Societies once a year? Yes.
 13382. All Societies? All Societies, to keep them up to the mark.
 13383. Mr. Langley.] Do you know that the investment of money on mortgage is illegal? No, I do not think it is.
 13384. Mr. Abigail.] Are you aware that the 32nd clause of Part III of the Act makes it imperative that the Treasurer shall give a bond? I am not aware of it.
 13385. Can you say whether your Society has made any progress in its funds for the last five years? Yes, considerable.
 13386. Can you give us the amount? We have made about £400 during the last five years.

Mr. Michael Murray sworn and examined:—

13387. President.] What Society do you represent? St. John's Guild, West Maitland.
 13388. What office do you hold? Bursar or Treasurer.
 13389. How long have you been a member? The Society was established on 6 July, 1863, and I joined two or three years afterwards.
 13390. You are the same Branch as Mr. Maher? Yes.
 13391. What amount of money has been received during the past five years? I have not that, but I will make it up and send it you.
 13392. I suppose there is no special information you can give the Commission in reference to the working of your Society? I do not know; the Society works very well; it is in a safe and sound position.
 13393. And you are of opinion that the contributions are sufficient to ensure all the benefits your rules provide? I think so; yes.
 13394. How do you settle matters of dispute between the members and officers? We never have any disputes.
 13395. But you make provision in your rules? If an officer transgressed, he would be brought before the Council the same as any other member.
 13396. And their decision is final? If there was a case that there was any difficulty about, they could call the past and present Councils together.
 13397. There is no appeal beyond that? Not unless they went to the Law Courts.
 13398. Do you approve of the officers of Societies taking the members to the Law Courts to recover arrears of contributions? No, we never do that; if a member allows his contributions to go for twelve months he is no longer a member of the Guild; we never go to law about contributions.
 13399. Do all your members before initiation undergo a medical examination? Yes.
 13400. Do you think the examination is sufficient to ensure the Society against fraud? I was at one time

Mr. M. Murray.

19 July, 1882.

Mr. M.
Murray.

19 July, 1882.

time of opinion that the doctors were not careful, but I believe our present doctor is very careful; he has rejected some. I know one he rejected, and in fact two, and one went to another doctor, and was accepted for the Oddfellows. We have had doctors who were very careless.

13401. Do you favour the principle of permitting a man to join more than one Society, and to receive benefits from more than one? Well, I should like to consider before giving an opinion; I do not know that there is anything wrong in it if the man pays his subscription to all.

13402. But suppose he is a working-man receiving 30s. a week, and can receive four or five guineas a week when ill, is he likely to get well soon? That is it—it might lead to fraud; but if he were an honest man he could not do this.

13403. Would it not open the door to a great deal of fraud and danger? It would, but it could not be practised without the connivance of the medical officer.

13404. But could not they sham rheumatism or sciatica? They might do that.

13405. Do you think it would be better to fix the amount members should be entitled to receive by statute? I do not know I am sure, but I think it would; but at the same time it would be a hardship to a man to pay the full amount if he did not get the amount back again.

13406. It would be fairer to the Societies, would it not? I think it would.

13407. Has your Society suffered from disabilities under the present Act? No, not to my knowledge.

13408. Do you think the Act affords all the security and protection that the members and Societies have a right to expect at the hands of the State? I am not very conversant with the Act, and cannot say anything about it.

13409. You have no suggestions to make? No.

13410. Mr. Newland.] Have you been a member of any other Society? No.

13411. Mr. Abigail.] Are you aware that you are acting in contravention of the Act in not taking a bond from the Treasurer? I am not conversant with the Act. I was never asked for a bond; if I had been I would have given it.

Mr. William Low Kidd sworn and examined:—

Mr. W. L.
Kidd.

19 July, 1882.

13412. President.] You are a member of the Sons of Temperance? Yes, No. 5, Sons of Temperance.

13413. How long have you been Secretary? Three months at present, but I have been Secretary before at different times.

13414. What number of members have you? About ninety just now.

13415. Is that the largest number you have had? Oh no, we have had as many as 150.

13416. What has been the cause of the decrease in the number of members? I can hardly say; there have been a few left lately through a dispute in the Division; but a good many leaving the district is the principal cause.

13417. Many through breaking their pledge? Yes, a few in that way.

13418. A number getting in arrears? Yes.

13419. Have you admitted many new members in the last twelve months? No, very few the last two or three years.

13420. What is the value of your funds? About £390.

13421. What have you paid for sick pay during the last year? £65 3s.

13422. What was paid on account of doctor and chemist during that time? The members in our Division contribute 6s. 6d. a quarter for those registered to his list, and it is paid to him.

13423. What was paid to him by those registered? I do not think it is here; there have been disputes in the bills, and they have not been settled. I cannot tell the Commission that.

13424. What contributions do the members pay? 6d. a week, not including the doctor.

13425. And what benefits do you give to members? 20s. a week for thirteen weeks, 15s. for the next thirteen, 10s. for the next twenty-six, and 7s. 6d. during the remainder of the sickness.

13426. And what funeral donations? £20; and £10 on the death of a member's wife.

13427. What have you paid during the last twelve months for deaths? That is paid from the General Funeral Fund.

13428. Is your Division in the Funeral Fund now? Not at present. (See Mr. Asher's evidence, ante.)

13429. Do you know why they have not rejoined the fund? There was a dispute as to the amount of the levies, and we were suspended.

13430. What did you pay? It was 1s., but was increased to 1s. 4d., and it is now 1s. 6d.

13431. That is a sort of insurance? Yes.

13432. What is the nature of the dispute? It arose through the levy being increased to 1s. 4d.; our Division thought they had no authority to do that, and refused to pay it.

13433. But would not the constituted authorities be the best judges as to whether it was necessary to increase the fund? Yes, but the members held that they had no right to increase it without a vote of the National Division.

13434. And was it increased without a vote of the highest body of the Order? Yes.

13435. Then the National Division did not give power to the Board to do this? No, though it was afterwards legalized.

13436. But has not the executive body certain powers? They have now.

13437. But had they not prior to this dispute? No.

13438. Then if the fund was getting so low that it would not meet the demands upon it, would they not have power—? They had not at the time; it was provided that the levy should be increased by the National Division.

13439. How often does the National Division meet? Every twelve months, and this occurred within three months of the meeting.

13440. What was the result of this split? Well, the disruption does not exist, but there have been no terms made with the Funeral Fund, and the levies have not been paid up, so the Division has to insure its own members now.

13441. Do they prefer that? I do not know, but they came to the conclusion that it would be cheaper to do it.

13442. Do you think it would be cheaper? Our experience proves that it would have been; we have only averaged one death a year, and our contributions would be £30 in the year. 13443.

Mr. W. L.
Kidd.

19 July, 1882.

13443. Do you not as a man of business, and having some knowledge of finance, know that you could not insure the lives of ninety members, themselves and the wives also having a collateral risk, for 1s 6d. each per quarter? I know it could not be done if the members were to remain in the Division, but the fact of a great many paying in and then leaving is what has kept this Division as well as many others.
13444. Do you think it would be possible for you to make a better investment of your funds, either in your Division or in some other way, to secure these payments at death for 1s. 6d. per quarter? I do not know that we could; we complained of the heavy tax for supporting the Grand Division of this District as well, 1s. per quarter, and we object to pay that without getting anything for it.
13445. What do you get for that? Nothing at all.
13446. Is no provision made for your members travelling? Well, there is a clearance, and that is all the benefit obtained from belonging to the Grand Division.
13447. But you do get a great advantage from the funeral fund? Yes.
13448. Would there be so much objection to the payment of this 1s. 6d. to the funeral fund as to the 1s. a quarter to the Grand Division? No.
13449. And yet the members took exception to the raising of the fund? Well, it was the way it was done; there was some unpleasantness about it.
13450. What was the final upshot of it? The members came to an understanding and came back again.
13451. Did you resort to the Law Courts to decide the dispute? Yes.
13452. What position did the members take who took exception to the levies? They attended the meetings of the Division, but they declined to pay the levies, and the other parties held meetings and deposed the Trustees that had been appointed, and we brought an action to set aside the Trustees.
13453. What was the result of the action? It was withdrawn.
13454. Why? The Judge did not seem to understand the case; he told us he could not understand it.
13455. Who was the Judge? I think it was Judge Dowling.
13456. And he nonsuited you? I think he was going to do so, when our solicitor asked for leave to withdraw the case.
13457. How were the costs paid? We paid our own costs.
13458. Out of your own pockets? No, out of the Division funds.
13459. By whose authority was it drawn? By the officers.
13460. And paid by the Trustees? No, it did not pass through the hands of the Trustees.
13461. Do you not think that was a misappropriation of the money? We were advised by Mr. Brown, solicitor, of Newcastle, that it was not.
13462. Had you any misgivings on the matter? No, it was talked over and we took his opinion.
13463. But the Division had no funds? Yes.
13464. But the funds could not become the property of those who seceded from the Division? It was taken by the officers.
13465. But did not the funds belong to the Division and not to those who seceded? Yes, but we were advised that we were the Division.
13466. Did the constitutional party take any steps to recover the money? No.
13467. Who paid the costs on the other side? I do not know; I cannot speak for that.
13468. What were the costs paid by the Society? £9 7s.
13469. Were there any funds in the hands of the parties afterwards? Yes.
13470. What amount? I think the sum of £3 or £4 had been handed over.
13471. Then there actually were two Divisions existing for a time? Yes.
13472. Did you hold separate meetings? Yes, on the regular night, and continued to do so all along; they called meetings of the Division; the first meeting I went to attend and was refused admission.
13473. Did your attorney advise you as to the course you took? Yes.
13474. You did not appeal to the higher Courts of the Order in the case that was in dispute? I wrote drawing the attention of the Most Worthy Scribe or Secretary to the Funeral Fund, and asking that the case should go to arbitration, but there was no reply.
13475. But what was the question? Whether the Funeral Fund Board had the right to increase the levy.
13476. But would it not have been better to have paid the amount and then have appealed than to have created a division and disruption? The members said that if they did anything of that kind they would never get it back.
13477. Do you know you have saved anything by it? I do not know that we have.
13478. Have you not created a bad feeling, and spent your money and got nothing in return? I do not know that there has been any bad feeling.
13479. If you sue a person to a Law Court, it is not likely to create a feeling of friendship between the parties? No, but we only sued them in their official positions.
13480. Then you have not got anything by the action you took in the matter of secession? No.
13481. Do you think on reflection that it would have been better to have taken the other course and paid the money under protest? It might have been; but one great reason was that we had a general Funeral Fund in this district for years and never paid more than 1s. to it, and we were saving money every year, having £700 in hand.
13482. What became of this large fund? It was distributed amongst the various Divisions.
13483. At the time you speak of the Divisions were in a more healthy state than now? Yes.
13484. With a larger number of members? Yes.
13485. And consequently a larger revenue than now? Yes.
13486. The National and Grand Divisions are the Supreme Courts in connection with the Order? Yes.
13487. All the laws and constitutions emanate from the National Division? Yes.
13488. And are all subordinate Divisions bound by these laws? Yes.
13489. You have liberty to appeal to these Courts if you have a grievance? Yes.
13490. If you are not satisfied with the first investigation have you a right of appeal? We can appeal to the National Division from the Grand Division.
13491. You can appeal from the Subordinate Division to the Grand, and then to the National Division? Yes.
13492. Is their decision final? Yes.
13493. Is this the first case that has been brought before the Law Courts in Newcastle in connection with your Division? I believe so.
13494. You have no recollection of any other case? No.

- Mr. W. L. Kidd.
 19 July, 1882.
13495. Do you summon your members for non-payment of arrears? We never have done.
 13496. You are aware that there is a provision in the Act giving you power to do it? Yes.
 13497. But you never have done it? No.
 13498. Have you had any cases of defalcation in connection with your Division? Yes.
 13499. To what extent? Nearly £20.
 13500. How long ago? About six or seven years ago.
 13501. Who was it? The Financial Scribe.
 13502. What steps were taken to deal with him? The case was entrusted to three Brothers to investigate, and I was appointed to act for him, and it was in furnishing returns to the Recording Scribe that I detected the fraud. It was remitted to three Brothers to compare the pence cards with the books, and this was the amount brought out; he gave a promissory note in payment of this, and the money was paid.
 13503. That is the only case you know of? That is the only case I know of.
 13504. Do the Secretaries and Treasurer of your Division give any bond or guarantee? No.
 13505. Has that always been the practice? I think a bond has been taken on several occasions a few years ago, but it has been discontinued.
 13506. Is your Lodge well managed and well conducted? I think it is.
 13507. Do you think it is right to refrain from taking bonds from the Secretary and Treasurer? It would certainly be better to have a bond.
 13508. Do you not know that the Act provides that there shall be a bond or guarantee? Yes, I know it does.
 13509. Do you pay your Secretary and Treasurer? The Secretaries are paid, the Recording Scribe £2 a quarter, and the Financial Scribe £1 10s.; and the Treasurer has been allowed 10s. a quarter for travelling expenses on one occasion.
 13510. Do all candidates prior to initiation undergo a strict medical examination? They are supposed to.
 13511. But do they? We have to take the doctor's word for it.
 13512. Do you believe the examination is sufficiently searching? No, I do not, because there are members who are scarcely ever off the funds after they are admitted.
 13513. Do you approve of persons being permitted to be members of more than one Society? Yes, to a certain extent. I would not approve of them joining four or five, and receiving payment from each of them.
 13514. Do you think it would be prudent to allow a man to belong to more than two Societies? No, I think the sick pay should not amount to more than £2 a week.
 13515. Do you think that the amount paid by your members at present is sufficient to secure all the benefits your by-laws provide? I think it is rather small. We had a proposal to amend the by-laws, and it would have been increased but for this dispute.
 13516. Do you think that in a Society providing a funeral donation of £20 on the death of a member and £10 on the death of the wife, with 20s. a week sick pay, 6d. a week is sufficient to secure all these payments? I think it is too small, and that there should be a small addition made to it.
 13517. Are you not sure the amount is too small? I believe it is too small.
 13518. What are your Divisions principally composed of? A few colliers, but principally tradesmen I think.
 13519. Have you paid any attention to the sickness and accident that the members of the different bodies are more liable to—what class are most liable to accident and sickness? I do not know; there are two members who have been the greatest drag on our Division, one suffering from sciatica, and the other from asthma and rheumatism.
 13520. What are their occupations? One is a miner, and the other a stonemason.
 13521. You have not found the mining portion of the members of your Society have been more subject to accident than others? No, we have had a few of them, but I do not think they have drawn more than a fair share of sick pay.
 13522. You could not form any accurate opinion from the number you have had in your Division? No, I do not think so.
 13523. Are you a member of any other Society? No other Friendly Society.
 13524. You have been a good many years connected with this Society? Yes, about fourteen years.
 13525. Have you quarterly or half-yearly returns made out? Quarterly.
 13526. Are the Auditors appointed by the Division? Yes.
 13527. Are there two or three? Two.
 13528. Are the quarterly reports submitted to a meeting? To a summoned meeting of the members.
 13529. And adopted by the meeting? Yes.
 13530. Do you furnish annual returns to the Registrar? I do not know whether it has been done. I have not occupied the position since they were required.
 13531. Would you be in favour of the Government appointing officers to visit and investigate the books and vouchers of Friendly Societies every year? I believe it would be a good thing if it were done. I know a good many members are very lax in spending money, but are willing to pay away a donation towards any charitable purpose.
 13532. How is your money invested? In the Savings Bank.
 13533. You have no freehold property? No freehold property.
 13534. Has your Division suffered any inconvenience from any imperfection in the present Friendly Societies Act? I am not aware that it has.
 13535. Have you any suggestions to make to the Commission in the shape of amendments that might be useful? No, I am not prepared to suggest anything at present. I have had no time to think over the matter so as to make any suggestions.
 13536. Mr. Langley. In the case of this dispute, I understand you to say you wrote to some officer with regard to the suspension of your Lodge? Yes.
 13537. Have you received any reply to the present time? I do not remember now, but I know I wrote as directed by the Division, protesting against that, and asking that the case should be put to arbitration, but there was no response to that while I was acting as Secretary.
 13538. Has there ever been any reply since then? No, not in reference to that.
 13539. Then in a matter such as that, do you not think it would be well that some arrangement should be made by which a Board of Arbitration, composed of members of different Societies, could deal with questions such as yours? Yes, I believe so; we were willing that that should be done in this case, and we thought it should be done.

13540. Then you think the appointment of a Board such as I suggest would be advantageous to yourselves and to other Societies? I believe it would, if the members of the Board were acquainted with the working of Friendly Societies.

Mr. W. L. Kidd.

13541. Mr. Abigail.] How long had you been paying to the Funeral Fund? I think we joined it at the time it was started, about 1876.

19 July, 1882.

13542. Could you tell the amount you had paid to them altogether? No, I could not.

13543. Had you received more than you had paid? No, I believe not.

13544. Then as a matter of fact you gave up a benefit; the Division surrendered a benefit in taking the position they did? Yes, but we were suspended—we did not withdraw.

13545. You did not comply with the rules of the Funeral Fund? Not in reference to the matter in dispute we did not; we paid what we considered their legal levy up to date.

13546. Can you state the reason this dispute was not taken before Justices of the Peace, according to the 14th clause? We were advised that it would have to be taken before the District Court.

13547. Mr. Smith.] I understood you to say that, if it were not for certain circumstances—large numbers of persons joining your Society and leaving again—the Division would have collapsed? I believe most of our Societies would; most of them depend on that.

13548. That is your experience? Yes, it is.

13549. Then, that being the case, it is a fact that they are not based on a proper basis? No, I believe not.

13550. Mr. Holdsworth.] Are not the Grand Division representatives elected by the subordinate Divisions? Yes.

13551. Then have you not the remedy in your own hands if they do not do you justice? We have to a certain extent, but all who have passed the Chair are entitled to a chance of election to the Grand Division, and they can go on their own account and can carry anything against the wishes of the Division.

13552. President.] Your Division is the oldest in the Hunter River District? Yes.

13553. And has the largest number of members eligible for representation in the Grand Division? I do not know if it has that.

13554. There are a larger number of Past Worthy Patriarchs? Well, I think there are a good number.

13555. There are a large number eligible for election? Yes.

13556. No person can represent the Division unless elected? They must be elected.

13557. So the power of representation is in the hands of the subordinate Divisions? Yes.

13558. If they disapproved of their action? They could reject them at the next annual election.

13559. You are aware that no member of the Division who passes the Chair has any right to go to the Grand Division unless elected by the subordinate Division? I know they have not, though some members hold that they have.

13560. Do I understand that you have unlimited representation? Only those who have passed the Chair. The members here believe the Grand Division is useless altogether.

13561. You know the Oddfellows have a District Lodge? Yes.

13562. And a Board of Management as well? Yes.

Mr. John Thorn sworn and examined:—

13563. President.] What Society are you a member of? The Sons of Temperance, Day Dawn Division, Mr. J. Thorn, No. 5.

19 July, 1882.

13564. How long have you been a member? I could not say.

13565. How is your Society worked at present? It works very badly—the expenses are too great. For the first six or seven years the Division worked well—they accumulated about £500; but the last five, six, or seven years it has been going back, and the consequence is that the working expenses are so heavy with the Grand Division and the Funeral Fund, and the expenses of the officers of the Division have been so great, that I believe it is reduced now to three hundred odd pounds. There must be something radically wrong when the expenses are so high and the contributions are going back.

13566. You had a larger number of members then, had you not? We had about one hundred and odd members.

13567. Had you 150 members? I do not think we ever had that; now we have ninety odd.

13568. Would not that make a great difference in the income? Yes, but then we had the risk of the sick.

13569. But you would have a larger income? Yes.

13570. What is the heavy expense you complain of? The first thing is that we have to pay 1s. a quarter to the Grand Division.

13571. What advantage do you get for that? None whatever; we do not get any assistance from them whatever.

13572. Suppose your members leave the District, is the fact of their belonging to the Grand Division of no service? They might get a clearance, but that might be done without having a Grand Division.

13573. But is not that an advantage to the members? If it could be done by their own Division I do not see that it is.

13574. But if you were leaving the District, do you think the members would be glad to receive you, an old member, without a certificate? They could have it from the Division here.

13575. But the Division cannot grant a clearance? Well, I do not see why we should pay 1s. a quarter simply for that purpose.

13576. Do you not think it would be an inconvenience if they could not get a clearance? Well, I think it would if they could not get it somewhere, but it could be worked by the clearance coming from the Lodge.

13577. What is done with the 1s. a quarter? They do not tell us.

13578. What funds have the Grand Division got? I do not think they have any; I have never heard them say.

13579. What does the Grand Division pay to the National Division? I do not know; I could not tell you; it cannot be a great deal, because No. 1 Grand Division is 3d. a quarter capitation, and ours is 1s.

13580. Is not that matter fixed by the representatives sent by the subordinate Divisions? Yes, but they often represent themselves and not the Division.

13581. Has not the Division the power in its own hands? Yes, but there are certain officers who have the right to be there; they cannot prevent them going, but they need not pay them.

13582.

- Mr. J. Thorn. 13582. With reference to the representatives, you are aware that the Constitution provides that the representatives should be confined to Worthy Patriarchs and Past Worthy Patriarchs elected by the Divisions? Yes, they are elected at the end of the year, then they can go; then you have an election the next October, and they are generally all elected.
13583. Has not the Division the power of saying we will not send anybody? They do not elect them to send them, but simply as members; if not elected, then they could not go at all, but if elected you could not prevent them from taking their seats.
13584. Is it not in the power of the Society itself to make its annual choice of representatives in October of those who are qualified to represent them? Yes, quite so.
13585. That is the only election that takes place? Yes, but if you want to send a delegate you have to elect him extra.
13586. If the law is as you say, is not the power entirely in the hands of the members? No doubt about it.
13587. And could not the majority of members express their dissatisfaction at its representatives if they imposed a higher rate of levy than was necessary? Yes, certainly they could.
13588. So if there was a large proportion of members in each Division who were dissatisfied with the heavy capitation, the matter could be cured by the representatives of the Division being withdrawn? Yes.
13589. Do you know what the benefits are? Yes.
13590. And you know that they are similar to what other Societies give? Yes.
13591. Have you any suggestions to offer to the Commission? Nothing particular.
13592. Have you any special matter you would like to bring under the notice of the Commission? No, not particularly. I know that if Societies work like ours, it is impossible for them to stand.
13593. What have been the working expenses last year? Well, reckoning the National, Grand, and other expenses, they have been more than the sick benefits we have paid.
13594. Do you know the amount paid last year for sick pay? I could not tell you.
13595. Do you know the amount paid by your Division to the Funeral Fund? There has been none; there has been a dispute, but before that we paid 1s. to the Grand Division, and 1s. 4d. to the National Division. That was what caused the dispute, as when members asked what was done they could get no satisfaction out of it.
13596. Do you get no balance-sheet? I do not think so; there is a sort of report, but I do not think there is a balance-sheet.
13597. Mr. Langley.] Do the majority of members in your Division think they have been fairly treated in this dispute? They do not.
13598. That is the opinion of the majority? It is the opinion of the majority that the dispute would not have arisen had the other party in any way given way a little so as to get a little satisfaction.
13599. Is there any probability of arrangements being made by which the members of your Division can again participate in the benefits of this funeral fund? I think so, if there is any fair settlement, but if they have got to pay such an enormous amount of money and contributions, in a few years they will be like other Divisions in the district, broken up.
13600. Have you taken any steps recently to bring about a reconciliation? There has been some communication both to the National Division and to the Grand Division, but they have not come to any settlement yet.
13601. Mr. Abigail.] Where is this Grand Division situated? In the Northern District.
13602. It is composed of representatives of the Northern District alone? Yes.
13603. It is not controlled in any way by the Sydney people? Not that I know of.
13604. Can you tell us whether it is a rule to pay their representatives to be present? Oh yes; they elect the members in October; these can go without being sent, but if they want to send a delegate they pay him so much.
13605. That is the Division does? Yes.
13606. But does the Grand Division? I could not tell you.
13607. You cannot say whether this money is distributed in this way? I could not say.
13608. Did you take up this position in the dispute, that you did not know how the money was spent? We say that every subordinate Division is supposed to pay its delegates if they send them, so what other expenses they incur we know nothing about.
13609. There is no doubt about the dispute having punished both parties? No doubt about it.
13610. Do you know the total cost? I could not tell.
13611. It has all been paid out of funds subscribed for sick and funeral benefits? Some has, I believe, that of our side, though I opposed that.
13612. You believe it to be wrong to pay this money in law costs? I believe money subscribed for the sick should be kept for that alone, and that any money spent otherwise is illegally voted.
13613. Mr. Holdsworth.] Can you tell me whether it is the practice to pay your members for every little thing they do? For a good many things they do.
13614. Are you aware that in all other Friendly Societies it is the practice for nearly all the work to be done without payment? I could not tell you.
13615. Does the Treasurer give any bond? I could not tell you; he is supposed to, but I could not say whether he does or not.
13616. You know that the Act provides that it is necessary? Yes.
13617. Then is it not a part of your duty to see that it is done? Yes, but what can one do; we have called attention to it. I know it should be done, but do not know whether it has been done in the present case.
13618. And no action was taken when you called attention to it? I do not know about this Treasurer.

The Commission then adjourned until 2 p.m. on Monday, 24 July.

MONDAY, 24 JULY, 1882.

Present:—

FRANCIS ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P., IN THE CHAIR.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
E. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,

JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,
W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. Henry Cox Colyer sworn and examined:—

13619. Chairman.] You are a solicitor? A solicitor.

13620. Have you any recollection of being consulted in connection with Lodge 25, Protestant Alliance, in the matter of a misappropriation of their funds? Yes, I find I was consulted in March, 1880.

13621. Will you state to the Commission the grounds of the consultation? I am afraid it is too far back, and being to a certain extent in a friendly way—

13622. Were you consulted in a friendly way? Yes; that is, without any intention of my carrying out any proceedings. I gave the Trustees distinctly to understand that I would not go into a Criminal Court.

13623. Well, just the particulars, if you please? On 17th March I wrote to one J. C. Pettit a letter in these terms:—

Mr. J. Pettit, Government Stores, Queen's Wharf.

Sir,

128, Elizabeth-street, 17 March, 1880.

I have received instructions from the Trustees of the No. 25 Lodge of the P.A.F.S. of Australasia, of which you were recently the Secretary, to communicate with you respecting the deficiency in your accounts, amounting to not less than £150, and to give you notice that unless something satisfactory be received from you not later than Monday next unpleasant proceedings will ensue.

Yours truly,

H. C. COLYER.

13624. Did you receive any reply to that? Yes, on 20th March, in these terms:—

To H. C. Colyer, Esq., 128, Elizabeth-street.

Sir,

Gannon's Forest, 20 March, 1880.

In reply to yours of 17th, I beg to state I am of opinion that every Master of No. 25 Lodge, P.A.F.S.A., and two of the Trustees have held that position, have acted contrary to Rule 144 of the Registered Rules of that Society, inasmuch as many members have been allowed to contribute less than 1s. per week, and the Trustees now attempt to make me answer for their and the Lodge's neglect, although I had my books duly audited before I left office, now over two years ago. Having been referred to Rule 182, I refer them to Rules 144, 122, 132, 121, and 134, and as their action has not been ordered by the Lodge, I hold them liable for any steps they have or may take against me.

I am, &c.,

J. C. PETTIT.

13625. Did you make any other communication? I saw the Trustees in the meantime, and as the result I wrote the following letter:—

Mr. J. C. Pettit, Government Stores, Queen's Wharf.

Sir,

128, Elizabeth-street, 28 March, 1880.

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of yours of 20th instant, which I laid before the Trustees yesterday. I carefully referred with them to all the Rules to which you called my attention, but can find nothing in any of them to help you out of your present dilemma. Hoping you will reconsider the matter before next Tuesday, and not compel the Trustees to proceed against you,—

I am, &c.,

H. C. COLYER.

I find I received a reply to that, and I suppose I handed it over to the Trustees. There was evidently something impertinent in it, because I have so marked it. The only other document I have is the Auditors' report. I think this must be the original; it was no doubt handed to me as part of my instructions; it is as follows:—

THE Auditors appointed at the summoned meeting of No. 25, held on Wednesday, the 4th instant, to investigate the accounts with alleged discrepancies in the entries in the various books of the Lodge while Bro. J. C. Pettit was Secretary, viz., the term from July, 1875, to December, 1877, inclusive, have to report that they commenced the audit with a desire to make a thorough investigation into the accounts, but found so many difficulties in the way, through not having the whole of the Pence-books, and the extremely careless and improper manner in which the Ledger was kept, that they had to confine themselves to a comparison of the Ledger, Cash-book, and Minute-book. The two latter, so far as the Cash-book had been kept, agreed to within a very small amount, but a very great discrepancy has presented itself in the comparison of the Ledger with the Cash and Minute Books. In many cases they find that amounts paid by members have been carried to the total column without being entered in the fortnightly column, that is the proper cash column, and in numberless instances the amounts paid by members are entered in the proper column but are not carried out to the total columns, consequently they have not been able to make out a correct balance of the Ledger, as to do so would necessitate the re-entering of all the amounts, and a comparison of every entry in all the Pence-books, an operation which would occupy two men for at least a month.

The total amount of the discrepancy reaches £138 8s. 10½d. (one hundred and thirty-eight pounds eight shillings and ten-pence half-penny), but the Auditors have reason to believe that that amount does not include all the items lost sight of, as from a more cursory glance at a few pages in the Ledger it is found that by omitting to carry the amount paid in to the proper cash column in that book, nearly £5 has been found which is not included in the above amount.

As before stated, the Auditors desired to make a careful inspection of the whole of the books from the inauguration of the Lodge, but found the time taken in the investigation would be far more than could be spared for the purpose; but as there is no reason to suppose that any necessity exists for such an inquiry, no object would be gained by going in to the matter.

13627. Chairman.] When you were consulted by the Trustees, do you remember telling them that they could not take proceedings against this man? I am not quite clear, but my impression is that I thought the by-laws were defective or in conflict with the Act—that is my impression; I think also I told them they would have to be careful about criminal proceedings, because their books had not been kept in such a shape as to ensure conviction before a Jury.

13628. You are thoroughly conversant with the Friendly Societies Act? Yes.

13629. And know that the 13th clause of the Second Part makes provision that any one member of a Society can institute proceedings before two Justices of the Peace? Yes.

13630. Would it not have been a simple matter to have sustained the charges against this man Pettit? I am only speaking as to my impression. I told them if they took any proceedings they would have to change their attorney; but I think the ground of my advice that they should not proceed criminally was that their books were not kept in such a way as to ensure conviction. I know I have advised that the by-laws were in conflict with the Act in many respects.

13631. Suppose the by-laws were in conflict, you would proceed according to the Act and not according to the by-laws? I should imagine so.

13632. You have never had any personal conversation with Pettit? Not, I think, since this matter.

13634. Then in that case the law must be very defective, as it would only be necessary to keep the books badly? I am not speaking of the books of the party charged; what I mean is that we have found as a matter of fact in numerous cases, where a man has doubtless been guilty, he has been acquitted from the facilities offered to him either by bad bookkeeping or any other cause; and I think the proceedings of this Lodge had been so loosely conducted that I thought they would have great difficulty in sheeting the charge home to him.

13635. Mr. Langley.] If by documents signed by Pettit it could be shown that he had received moneys from members, he being Secretary, could it be sustained? Yes, unless it could be explained away in some some other way. I would like to remind you that I am speaking from memory and very much at random. I am not prepared to say positively that I advised that they could not proceed. If the evidence has been given that I did so advise, I may venture to say that I did, and that I think the grounds of my advice have been what I have stated.

Mr. H. C.
Colyer.

24 July, 1882.

13636. Mr. Slade.] If the statement was made here that you had been challenged to proceed, is that the truth? That is absolutely false.

13637. Did you ever receive a communication from Pettit that he was prepared to meet any and every charge? I think it is quite possible some such expression was in the letter I alluded to, and which, I think, I handed over to the Trustees.

Mr. Thomas Stewart sworn and examined:—

13638. Chairman.] What Society are you a member of? The Independent Order of Oddfellows.

13639. Where situated? Marrickville.

13640. When was it established? I cannot give exactly the date; I think it was October, 1881.

13641. What position do you hold? Secretary.

13642. How long have you been Secretary? Since 1st January last.

13643. What is the number of members? Thirty financial at present.

13644. What amount of subscriptions do you pay? 1s. 3d. a week.

13645. What benefits do you allow? A sick allowance of a pound a week.

13646. For how long? I cannot give you the term.

13647. The benefits you give are set forth in your rules? Yes.

13648. How long have persons to be members before they are entitled to full benefits? Immediately they join they are entitled to the benefit of doctor and chemist.

13649. But to sick pay? I think it is six months.

13650. Not more? Not more.

13651. What Lodge were you connected with at Pymont? A Lodge of the same Order—the Loyal Pymont Lodge it was called.

13652. Were you one of the parties who opened it? No; I was one of those who joined at the opening.

13653. Who opened it? It was opened by an officer of the Oddfellows in Sydney—Garcia his name was.

13654. And what did it cost to open? I have a list of expenses which I prepared at the time; there was then no Grand Lodge in Sydney, and we were governed from Melbourne; the amount of the expenses connected with the opening of the Lodge I copied from the vouchers, and they come to £56 12s.

13655. What is represented by that; have you the items? Yes, I have all the items; there are two items specially, namely, £8 for advertising expended from August 2nd to October 10th, and £19 for bill-posting. I produce the following as a Statement of Amounts expended in connection with opening of Loyal Pymont No. 14, I.O.O.F.:—

Wright, Heaton, & Co., carriage of goods from Melbourne, 10s.; A. Grey, making robes, scarfs, collars, aprons, sashes, &c., £3 8s.; H. Weekes, wig and beard, £1 10s.; W. H. Jeffries, spirit lamps, 9s. 6d.; A. Grey, supply of velvet, linen, tape, lace for regalias, £7 13s. 2½d.; E. Fisher, one felt hat, 6s.; P. Lee, drawers, ballot-box, and cartage, £4 4s.; Sydney Evening News, advertising from August 2nd to October 10th, £3; Sydney Herald, advertising from August 2nd to October 10th, £3; Sydney Telegraph, advertising from August 2nd to October 10th, £2; Hordern J. L., tapestry and binding, 15s. 3½d.; coffin, £3; J. Brown, seal and die, £2 10s.; Ultimo Hall Co., rent from August 4th to September 3rd, £1 16s.; stamps, 14s.; bible, 17s. 6d.; marbles, 4s.; paper, 6s.; stationery, 2s.; conveyance of officers on opening night, 19s. 6d.—£37 5s.; printing posters, &c., £12 and £7 7s.—total, £56 12s. I certify that I have copied these amounts from the original accounts.—THOMAS STEWART, Secretary.

13656. So that the posting cost nearly half the total amount? It cost £19 7s. out of a total of £56 12s., and the advertising cost £8 from August 2nd to October 10th.

13657. In what year was that? This was in 1879.

13658. Do you believe that there was any large over-charge in any of these items? Well, if there was not the expenditure was very extravagant, especially the posters and advertising.

13659. Were any legal proceedings taken against you for the payment of any of these? Yes.

13660. By whom? By the printers; they sued us for £12 for printing posters; we disputed the bill on account of it being extravagant.

13661. What was the issue? They got a verdict, and we had to pay the money, besides the solicitor's charges.

13662. Did the Lodge plead anything about the registered Constitution? Yes, we pleaded that we had no right to pay the money, that the man who incurred the expense should have paid it; but at that time we were not in possession of reliable information. I was elected Secretary only a week before this action, and I wrote to the Grand Secretary in Melbourne on the subject, and he replied that £5 was all the amount that could be expended by any man in opening a Lodge, and that was to be repaid subject to its being passed by the members of the Lodge when it was opened.

13663. You had to pay the whole amount? Yes, we had to pay £12 for the posters, and three guineas for law costs.

13664. Did anybody swear on that occasion that they had a perfect right to expend any amount of money in establishing new Lodges? Yes, the depositions are in the Court now to that effect.

13665. Was it a member of the Order who swore that? Yes.

13666. And you afterwards found that it was not true? That it was not legal.

13667. Yet you had no cause of action to get a refund? We had a case, if the members had been willing to do it, but they would not agree to go to any more expense.

13668. The party who swore that, was it the party who opened the Lodge? Yes, it was Garcia.

13669. Do you know of any other Lodge where similar action has been taken? I know there are other Lodges where the expenditure has been extravagant, but I do not think there have been any Court cases over them. I think the Lodges of this Order at Waterloo and Woollahra, and North Shore suffered; the latter Lodge at present is in difficulties owing to something of the kind.

13670. Being strangled at the commencement by the heavy expenses in opening? Yes.

13671. And are you of opinion that it is favourable to Societies to adopt such a course? Not at all, some are opened and they must be pretty well insolvent to start with; a debt of £50, £60, or £70.

13672. What is the condition of that Lodge now? I could not say; I have joined another Branch of the same Order.

13673.

Mr.
T. Stewart.
24 July, 1882.

13673. How long have you left it? It must be about twelve months ago.
13674. What was the state of it then? They were getting on very well, but there was a kind of ill-feeling about this expenditure which seemed to drag all through.
13675. How long has the Pymont Lodge been started? It was opened in 1879.
13676. Have you had any other experience of Friendly Societies but these two? No.
13677. Have you studied the Friendly Societies Act in a manner to give an opinion upon it? No, I cannot say I have.
13678. You are Secretary of the Lodge, and have been Secretary of the other one? Yes.
13679. Are you of opinion that a uniform system of bookkeeping should be adopted by all Lodges? I am.
13680. And would you be in favour of a Government officer examining their accounts occasionally? Yes.
13681. Have you heard of any case where embezzlement of funds has taken place? No, I have not.
13682. Have you known any case where members have declared themselves sick when they have not actually been sick? No, I have not.
13683. Have you had any experience in the attendance of doctors? Yes, there is something wrong in that quarter too; the Lodge doctors generally do not seem to give the attendance required—they attend the members as if they were receiving nothing for it.
13684. They make a pauper matter of it? Yes, they give the outside people the preference.
13685. But do they not accept responsibilities when they undertake to attend members of the Lodge? They promise to attend on a member for a certain amount of pay.
13686. And your experience is that they do not fulfil their engagements? They do not as they should do, or there would not be so much trouble.
13687. This wig and beard, what is that for? It is part of the regalia, the initiation ceremony or secret work.
13688. Mr. Smith.] Was the financial condition of the Lodge at Pymont such as to create a favourable impression on its members at the time of your leaving? Yes, things were improving, but still I believe the funds were not as they ought to be.
13689. Did that have anything to do with your action in leaving? No, that was through removal from the District.
13690. What would be about the ages of the members in that Lodge? The average ages?
13691. Yes? I could not say exactly; these are things we do not take a great deal of interest in.
13692. But you being Secretary and having to go to a considerable amount of work in connection with the Lodge, would know whether they were young or old members? They were all ages, but not above forty-five.
13693. Was there a large proportion at that age? No; I think they would average about thirty years; I dare say the majority would be under thirty years; the Lodge I am in now consists of nearly all young members from twenty to thirty-five.
13694. What were the occupations of the members of the Lodge at Pymont? They were all working-men with a few engaged in businesses in town, but very few.
13695. Did the members of that Lodge complain of the action of the doctor in any shape or form? Yes, several times; there are of course a lot of trivial complaints that need not be brought before the Lodge at all.
13696. Does the same exist at Marrickville? We have had some trouble there, but then we could not get another.
13697. Did you call for applications for the office? Yes, we advertised for tenders.
13698. And did no medical men apply? No, not one.
13699. And you had to fall back on your old medical officer? Yes.
13700. At the same rate of pay per member? 2s. per member per annum, including medicines.
13701. Who is the medical man? His name is Dr. Tibbits, he is a surgeon I believe and not a physician.
13702. Then you are absolutely forced as a Lodge to continue his services simply because you cannot get another? That is it exactly.
13703. What rate of contribution do your members pay per week? 1s. 3d. a week.
13704. How is it divided? For every financial member at the end of each month we allow 2s. 6d. to the Sick Fund, 2s. a quarter to the Funeral Fund, which is paid to the Grand Lodge, and 9d. per quarter to the Grand Lodge for incidental expenses.
13705. That is the Management Fund? Yes, a levy made on us for management.
13706. That is all the charge made on your Lodge by the Grand Lodge? Yes.
13707. There are no levies? The only charge made by the Grand Lodge is 9d. for incidental expenses; the 2s. for the Funeral Fund is kept for the donations.
13708. How many times has an attempt been made in Marrickville to induce an influx of members by a reduced scale of initiation fees? It is a recognized thing that we admit them in this way when we get fifteen together; if we can get that number together to join we allow them to join at half-fees.
13709. How often has it occurred in the history of that Lodge? We have never initiated any at full fees since I have been in the Lodge.
13710. And since when was that? Since December last.
13711. And since then you have not initiated any members at full fees? No, none.
13712. And how many have you initiated at half-fees? I could not give you the exact number.
13713. But approximately? I suppose a dozen at the least.
13714. You meet fortnightly? Yes, we meet fortnightly.
13715. Do you think persons seeking to become members of your Lodge wait for the number to be made up to be admitted at half-fees? We generally make it a point to get them together if possible.
13716. Then you prefer to initiate a number at half-fees? Certainly.
13717. Can you point out to the Commission the advantage of that principle over the principle of initiating them singly at full fees? I do not see that there is any advantage, except that we prevent them joining other Lodges or Societies, and we want to get them.
13718. Then the object would be to prevent them joining other Societies? Yes, and to strengthen our own.
13719. Do you know that it is the custom in the most successful Lodges of other Friendly Societies to initiate at the full charges? No; I believe it is the custom to initiate at half-fees, so far as I have heard.

13720. You do not know that of your own knowledge? No; but I have heard it from several members of our Order that other Orders do it to a large extent.
13721. Has there been any unpleasantness on account of members having come in at half-fees? Not at all.
13722. It has never had any bad effect on the members of the Lodge? No.
13723. Where do you meet at Marrickville? In a church belonging to the Primitive Methodist people.
13724. What rent do you pay? 5s. a night.
13725. Do you consider your Lodge to be in a healthy condition at the present time? Yes, I do.
13726. Mr. Greville.] You produced an account of the expenditure incurred at the opening of the Pymont Lodge? Yes.
13727. Was that account audited? No, it was not; but I copied the amounts from the original accounts.
13728. Were the vouchers produced? No; these expenses were all incurred before the Lodge was instituted—before it was a Lodge.
13729. But did the person who incurred the expense when repaid produce vouchers for the payments? The fact of the matter is that the major portion of that account was paid out of funds he had taken himself without our consent whatever.
13730. But in lieu of the money did he produce any receipted accounts? I could not say.
13731. Then no suspicion existed in the Lodge that the money had not been spent? The only suspicion was that the charges were too high.
13732. But was there not a suspicion that the man did not pay the money he said he did? We could not have any suspicion of that, though no doubt a lot of members thought so.
13733. Then did the man produce receipted accounts? Yes, I believe so.
13734. And yet a suspicion existed? Well, I would not like to swear that all the accounts were receipted, because it is so long ago since I kept them.
13735. I want to know whether it was mere recklessness of conduct, or whether there was just cause for suspicion of peculation? We thought it was reckless expenditure.
13736. And did you acquit the man of peculation? No.
13737. You thought perhaps there was a little of both? We did not know what to think about it.
13738. Mr. Holdsworth.] The Lodge was established by Mr. Garcia? Yes.
13739. Was he a Grand Lodge officer? He is now.
13740. Was he then? He was a Deputy I think.
13741. Do you not think in a case of this sort that the Grand Lodge ought to be held responsible? Well, it was so far away, being in Melbourne at that time.
13742. Does it not appear somewhat hard to you that a new Lodge should be rendered bankrupt before it starts, and the Lodge have no redress? Yes it does, and we would have gone for redress had there been a Grand Lodge in Sydney.
13743. Mr. Langley.] Did any members of your Lodge denounce that expenditure as a robbery and swindle to your knowledge? Well, I do not think there is one who did not.
13744. When you wrote to the Grand Lodge in Melbourne did they give you to understand explicitly that no person was authorized to spend more than £5 in opening a Lodge? Yes, and I tried to get that letter from the Grand Secretary to-day, but could not. It not only stated that, but also that he was to be repaid if the amount was passed by the Lodge.*
13745. I notice an account for the carriage of the officers to the Lodge on the opening night? Yes.
13746. Do you know whether a carriage was provided for the officers who took part in opening the Lodge? I do not at all.
13747. Were you there on the opening night? Yes, I was.
13748. Did you see a number of officers present from the city, of whom I was one? Yes, I did.
13749. If some of these officers were to tell you that they never saw such a thing as a conveyance would you believe them? I would not know what to say.
13750. If they stated that they paid their own expenses there and back would you believe them? I could not do anything else.

13751.

* Note by the Secretary:—This letter was subsequently forwarded to the Commission by the witness, and is here appended.

A 2.

Independent Order of Oddfellows, Grand Lodge of Australia,
Russell-st., Melbourne, 16 August, 1880.

Thomas Stewart, Esq., Secretary, Pymont Lodge, No. 14.

Dear sir,

Your letter under date of August 9th came to hand this morning, also a statement of the expenditure incurred in opening your Lodge. I certainly must confess surprise and astonishment at the reckless expenditure, as per statement.

You ask in your letter is Brother Garcia empowered to contract debts for opening new Lodges. The Commission of a District Deputy does not empower a person to contract debts on account of the Order.

You also ask the date of the authority from the Grand Lodge, giving him power to open Lodges and contract debts. There is no authority given to any Brother by the Grand Lodge, authorizing him on behalf of subordinate Lodges to contract debts either in opening Lodges or otherwise.

In opening a Lodge there is a certain amount of preliminary expense which must of necessity be incurred prior to the opening, to meet the outlay and reimburse the Brother or Brothers. The Grand Lodge passed a resolution to pay a sum not exceeding £5 to the Brother or Brothers who open a new Lodge, such payment not to be made until the Lodge is six months in existence; this you will observe is to meet the opening expense of the founder or founders. The Lodge having been opened the members then control their own expenditure. You ask me to rectify this wrong, and also to appoint some one to do the Grand Lodge business. I am unable to control the expenditure; that is a matter that rests with yourselves, and in regard to the removal of a District Deputy, that lays entirely with the Grand Master,—he appoints them, and he alone can remove them from office. From what I can hear, you will shortly have a Grand Lodge of N.S.W., your G.M. will then appoint his D.D.G.M. for your Colony, and I trust that he will be able to exercise that supervision which distance has hitherto prevented.

I post you, as per order, one dozen clearance cards. With kind regards,—

I remain, &c.,

W. JUDGE,

G. Secretary.

Mr.
T. Stewart.
July, 1882.

13751. With regard to the position of your funds when that account was paid of Miller and Glassop's, was the Lodge solvent when you made that payment or not? That puzzles me, though I know the funds were not very great at the time, and I believe we had to break into the Sick Fund to pay the account, but am not certain.

13752. I think you stated that the posting and printing were enormous? Yes.

13753. If posters were put on every house in Pymont at the time, do you think the amount you were charged was extreme? Yes, our solicitor pleaded that on our behalf, but it was no use.

13754. What was the cost of opening the Langley Lodge at Marrickville, including all books and regalias? £30, and Pymont cost more like £70, irrespective of any books whatever.

13755. Has the Pymont Lodge ever brought this matter under the notice of the Grand Lodge of New South Wales since local government was obtained? No, I do not think they did—they were sick of it altogether.

13756. Do you not think it would be only fair in the interests of the Lodge to have brought the whole matter before the Grand Lodge of New South Wales? Yes, I dare say it would.

13757. Have you ever heard what it cost to open the Waterloo Lodge? No, I could not tell you the amount, but I know I have heard in Lodge circles that that Lodge among others was opened with just the same reckless expenditure.

13758. And did you ever hear that there were any inquiries as to who "A. Grey" was? I know nothing about the parties; we had no opportunities of knowing, as the accounts were all paid before the Lodge was opened.

13759. Out of what fund? Out of the proposal fees; two or three came over together and took 5s. per man, and out of the proceeds they defrayed the expense.

13760. In any future legislation on Friendly Societies, do you not think that steps should be taken to prevent any person expending money except the members of the Lodge themselves? I think the better plan would be to allow the Grand Lodge officers to say where the Lodge shall be opened, and to vote an amount of money to be spent, to be repaid by the subordinate Lodge.

13761. You are aware that £5 is the recognized amount? Yes.

13762. You mentioned something about the North Shore Lodge? Yes.

13763. Does their grievance arise from the same cause? From some reckless expenditure, I believe; at present they are unsettled and do not know what to do—whether to leave the Order and go to another or to disband altogether.

13764. Do you know whether it is reckless expenditure in connection with the Lodge, or charges made against the Lodge which they deny ever having received value for? I cannot answer that; but I know it is money matters in connection with it by one of the Grand Lodge Officers.

13765. Would you name him? I believe it is Mr. Garcia, but would not be certain.

13766. Mr. Rubie.] Does not one of your rules say that a bonus of £5 shall be given to a member for instituting a Lodge? No; any man can open a Lodge, and can expend a sum not exceeding £5, the sum to be repaid after the Lodge has looked into the affair and is satisfied with the expenditure.

13767. And what would that be expended on? There would be some advertising, but not much; then they would require to get a room, which, however, need not be paid for; and there would be some stationery, which would not have to be paid for; so that £5 would be ample for all preliminary expenses.

13768. The other expenses would be paid by the Lodge after its formation? Yes.

13769. Is Mr. Garcia still a member of your Order? Yes; he holds a position now as Deputy Grand Master.

13770. Has he ever been brought to account for the large expenditure? Not by the Grand Lodge. He has never been brought to account in any Lodge; but all the Lodges I have named are grumbling about him.

13771. And is it not one of the duties of the Grand Master of the Grand Lodge to take cognizance of such a case? I wrote to Melbourne about the case, and was told that as the Grand Lodge of New South Wales was about to be opened they would not do anything in the case; but they gave me a decisive answer that £5 was all that any one was authorized to spend.

13772. Mr. Newland.] Is it necessary for the working of your Society that all this paraphernalia should be obtained and belong to the Lodge? Well, that depends on the different views of people; I believe it is necessary to have it, as it seems to have a good effect on new members, though it might be reduced a little.

13773. Mr. Slade.] Are you aware whether at the opening of these two new Lodges the usual medical examination of persons proposed took place? Yes, it did.

13774. Are you quite sure of that? Yes.

13775. Did you see the examination certificates? Yes; I saw the examination certificate of every man initiated during my term of office.

13776. You are quite sure you are stating the truth respecting Marrickville particularly? Yes; that is, from the time I joined the Lodge as Secretary.

13777. But at the opening? No; I was not at the opening.

13778. Have you ever been at the opening of any Branch of the Order? No.

13779. Are you aware whether the members are received without a medical examination? No; they must produce a certificate signed by the surgeon.

13780. Referring to that bill of accounts, are you quite sure that the sum of 19s. 6d. was expended for the purpose stated? I do not know where the money has gone to, but this charge was made on us.

13781. Is the Commission to understand that if the money was not paid for that purpose, it must have gone in some other irregular manner? It must have done so; and on the very night the Lodge was opened a kind of banquet was given to Brother Garcia; perhaps the 19s. 6d. was spent over that.

13782. Are you aware whether any of the money of the Lodge was used in paying for the banquet? I am not aware of it; I know that before we were properly made members we were asked to join in a banquet and pay our entrance fee.

13783. There is an item in the bill for £3 for a coffin? Yes.

13784. Can you say whether the article was worth £3? No, I should think £1 would buy it. I think we gave £1 for the coffin in our Lodge, and £1 for a box to cover it.

13785. To the best of your judgment £1 instead of £3 would have been sufficient? Yes.

13786. Is the Commission to understand that the charges all bear an equal degree of exorbitance? Yes, decidedly.

13787.

13787. And is it necessary for the working of a Lodge that all these things should be provided? No, I do not think so; there is a chest of drawers and ballot-box, four guineas; we could have done without the chest of drawers and we have since disposed of it for £1.
13788. There is another item on the bill for marbles? These were black and white.
13789. Are they not usually sold at the rate of about 3d. a hundred? I could not say I am sure.
13790. There is an item of 4s. for that; how many members did your Lodge open with? I do not think above fifty, but I would not be sure.
13791. Mr. Gelding.] Could you tell the Commission the state of the finances of the Marrickville Lodge? At the end of June there was £21 8s. 8d. in hand.
13792. Have you ever examined the books that were in the Lodge at the time of opening? Yes.
13793. Then if it was publicly asserted that no medical examination took place of a number of these members who were at the opening it would be untrue? Well, I think the public assertion must be wrong.
13794. You said that in these Lodges the most of the members are working-men? Yes.
13795. And do you think you require all this expenditure where working-men are concerned in banding together for mutual good, to aid one another in sickness and distress? Well, there is no doubt that it causes an amount of feeling in a Lodge; the members like a little departure from the ordinary business, and the initiation ceremony is always looked upon as something good and worth coming to see; they would not come if they had simply the dry business every night.
13796. Have you ever heard the cost of opening Lodges in connection with other large Friendly Societies? No, I have not.
13797. Are you aware that they dispense with all this ceremony? No, I believe they have a certain amount of initiation ceremony.
13798. Very simple? Yes, just as simple as ours.
13799. Do you not think some £5 or £10 should be sufficient to open a Lodge instead of £30? No, I think £25 is a fair amount.
13800. You are in favour of an extravagant system of opening Lodges in preference to a simple one? My experience is that if there is not a certain amount of initiation ceremony the members lose interest.
13801. Then all the Lodges have to pay not less than £30 for opening expenses? Well, £25 is a fair sum.
13802. What salary do you get? They pay me £8.
13803. Does the Treasurer get paid? We elect a Treasurer and vote him £1.
13804. How often are audits made? Every six months.
13805. Do you not think quarterly audits would be better than half-yearly? I dare say it would be a greater check; it would cost a lot of extra work to the Secretary and the Finance Committee as well.
13806. It would not be much trouble in a Lodge of thirty members like yours? No.
13807. Do the Treasurer and Secretary give guarantee bonds? Yes, by a Society.
13808. Do you believe in the wisdom of this keen competition that is taking place in Friendly Societies? No, I do not.
13809. Are you in favour of a uniform contribution, or would you favour a sliding scale? I am in favour of a uniform contribution.
13810. You think a young unmarried man of eighteen should pay as much as a married man of thirty-five? Yes, I think so.
13811. You think it is fair? Yes, it does not make any difference to the Lodge whatever.
13812. But it does to the member? Not unless the man himself is unhealthy; there is no benefit derived except by the man himself who is an actual member of the Lodge.
13813. Medical benefits? They cost the same in any case.
13814. Mr. Langley.] Are not all the Lodges of your Order compelled to send in quarterly returns showing the receipts and expenditure? Not the expenditure; only the receipts, on account of the initiation of new members during the quarter ended.
13815. Do you know if the returns are examined by a Special Committee appointed by the Grand Lodge or not? Yes, I believe so.

Mr. Thomas Sanders sworn and examined:—

13816. Chairman.] What Lodge are you a member of? The Prince Albert.
13817. Of what Order? The Grand United Order of Oddfellows.
13818. How long has it been established? I think it is about thirty-five years.
13819. How many members have you? I think forty members now.
13820. And what is the worth of your funds? I cannot tell you; I have not the honor of being Secretary the last seven months, but have been Secretary for seventeen years; I gave up my position as Secretary last Christmas.
13821. You have been seventeen years Secretary? I have.
13822. What has been the general character of the Lodge—has it been flourishing? It has been flourishing, but we have had a great deal of sickness.
13823. Have you had a larger number of members than now? Oh yes.
13824. How many? When I entered the Lodge, thirty years ago, there were 145 members in it.
13825. And what were the funds, the largest amount you can remember? About £350.
13826. And now you have about £50? About that.
13827. Have you any doubt as to the soundness of the Society? I have no doubt at all; within the last six months there have been four members on the funds.
13828. What is about the age of your members? I am the second oldest member in the Lodge.
13829. And what is the age of the others? It runs from about sixty-four to twenty-one.
13830. And the larger proportion of them? Would be about thirty-five.
13831. Are you paying your expenses? Oh yes.
13832. And adding anything to the Reserve Fund? Not at present.
13833. But have you been for some years past? We were prospering very well, but as members got into arrears sickness came on them.
13834. Have you any doubt that your present financial position is not sound? I have no doubt about it, because if we had no sick members we would come round and be flourishing again. Two of these members were sick on the funds for six months and then died.
- 13835.

Mr.
T. Stewart.
24 July, 1882.

Mr.
T. Sanders.
24 July, 1882.

- Mr. T. Sanders.
24 July, 1882.
13835. About what time was it when you had £350? That is somewhere about the time when I first joined the Lodge.
13836. There has been a gradual going back ever since? A gradual going back and also a gradual getting up.
13837. Are you conversant with the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act? I think I know the Act pretty well.
13838. Do you think it answers the purpose for which it was passed? Yes, I think it is a very good Act.
13839. Has any of your decrease in funds been occasioned by misappropriation by the officers? No.
13840. Have you ever resorted to the system of half-initiation fees? To the best of my knowledge I think we made an application to the Sydney District twice; I think it is a very good idea.
13841. It takes in young members to balance the aged? Certainly.
13842. How are your funds at present invested? In the Bank.
13843. In the names of Trustees? Yes.
13844. Do they give a guarantee bond? Yes.
13845. From a Society or the members? Some of the other members will go bond for them.
13846. Mr. Newland.] How long have you been paying 1s. 3d. a week? Next month it will be twelve months.
13847. What were you paying before? 1s.
13848. And never increased it? Once before for six months to 1s. 3d.
13849. But you have been working for all these years at 1s? Yes, at 1s.
13850. Have you not been requested repeatedly to raise your dues? Yes, by the district officers.
13851. And has not your Lodge on frequent occasions when giving distress gifts away been warned that they were not doing what was proper? Well, there have been several applications to us to help the distressed, and sometimes we have given £1 and sometimes 10s.; still I was always against it.
13852. But were you warned that you were doing wrong? I cannot recollect.
13853. Chairman.] How often do you have audits? Every three months.
13854. And did the Auditors call attention to the fact that your Lodge was going back? Yes.
13855. And did the Lodge take any notice of it? The only notice we could take was that we should have to stop the sick pay.
13856. Your attention was called to the fact, and after conversation no further steps were taken? No.
13857. Are you in favour of the present system of auditing by members of the Lodge, or would you prefer a Government officer auditing the accounts? I should be in favour of a Government audit of the books.
13858. Anybody but the members? Anybody but the members of the Lodge.

Mr. James Dummer sworn and examined —

- Mr. J. Dummer.
24 July, 1882.
13859. Chairman.] Are you a member of a Society? I am.
13860. What? The Protestant Alliance Friendly Society of Australasia.
13861. What Lodge? No. 25.
13862. How long have you been a member? Since we started, nine years ago.
13863. Are you a regular attendant? Not lately I have not been.
13864. Were you attending when Mr. Pettit held office? I was.
13865. Have you a knowledge of any charges having been made against him? Verbally—not otherwise.
13866. Were they made when you were present? They were.
13867. Were you present when the Special Auditors brought up their report? No, I was not.
13868. Did you hear what the report was? No.
13869. Have you ever received concessions from that Lodge in the way of making you good on the books when you were unfinancial? No.
13870. You were Treasurer at one time? I was.
13871. During your term of office were there ever any errors found in your books? No, not to my knowledge.
13872. Did you never have to refund or make good certain amounts of money? I made good certain amounts of money that were supposed to be deficient through the death of the previous Secretary.
13873. Not from any irregularities of your own? No; the previous Secretary died, being taken with paralysis. In preparing the books for the quarterly audit the funds could not be properly adjusted, and rather than any doubt should be thrown on my accounts after the Auditors made up the books I paid the amount out of my own pocket.
13874. Did the Auditors know you were making good another man's deficiencies? I could not say.
13875. You did not tell them? I did not; I accepted the Auditors' report in good faith; some accounts I paid over, and refunded the balance out of my own pocket.
13876. What was the amount? So far as I could find out, it was between £7 and £8.
13877. And you state that you did not have the money—that it was the irregularity of another man? Yes, so far as could be ascertained.
13878. But you did not tell the Auditors of your Lodge so? Of course I did—I told the Auditors.
13879. If Pettit has said it was your own irregularity, would that be true? No, it would not.
13880. Have you any knowledge of any other irregularities having occurred in connection with the Society? Not that I am aware of.
13881. Have you sufficient knowledge of Pettit's operations to state whether he misappropriated the funds of the Lodge? I was not in office at the time.
13882. Are you aware whether it is a custom in the Society to allow the Secretary to make concessions to members who could not pay their contributions? I never heard such a thing mentioned before.
13883. Mr. Langley.] If any person has sworn before the Commission that the deficiency was made up by you while Pettit was Secretary, would that be true? He was not Secretary then, not till afterwards; Mr. Ibetson was Secretary.
13884. Mr. Rubie.] Were the books audited at your residence one night? They were.
13885. It was very late before they arrived at a conclusion? Very late.

13886. In fact they made up without examining the pence-books? They were not examined at my house.

13887. Did the Auditors attempt to go through the pence-books? No.

13888. Was it that audit which brought your accounts in to the debt of £7 or £8? Yes. That was after the death of Brother Beetson.

13889. You were not Treasurer during the time that Pettit held office? Part of it.

13890. Your accounts and Pettit's were only audited and closed? Yes, by the Auditors.

13891. It was only when Pettit again put up for office that these deficiencies were discovered? Oh, it was before, during the time that I was Treasurer. I had my books balanced when I left the office, and the deficiency I made up myself before I resigned.

13892. So you are of opinion that it was Pettit's deficiency? No, it was the previous Secretary.

13893. Then did you bring these deficiencies before the Lodge? I brought them before the Auditors.

13894. Was it at your instance that the special audit was appointed? There was none during my term of office.

13895. But, subsequently, do you know there was a special audit held? Not in my house there was not.

13896. But are you aware that a special audit was held since you left office? No.

13897. Mr. Slade.] Have you had any doubt that you had none of these moneys that you had to make up? I have not the least doubt in my mind about it. The deficiency arose during my term of office when Beetson was Secretary, and was taken ill, and for a time we could not hold the Lodge meetings. He had drawn some moneys from the Treasurer to pay some accounts, and I must have paid these accounts over again; but as he was struck down, so that he could not give any account of these transactions, the Auditors could not find out any other way to correct the books than to bring me in in debt.

13898. And you paid it so as to have the audit clear, and not because you believed you owed the money? Just so; I paid it to have the audit clear before I resigned my office.

13899. Are you quite clear on the subject of these concessions? The only instance I remember was one of the old members who had fallen into difficulties, and the concession was made that he could rejoin the Lodge as a new member.

13900. And that was according to law? That was according to law.

13901. Do you know of any instance in which persons who owed subscriptions to the amount of several pounds were let off over half the amount? I never knew of anything of the kind.

13902. If such a thing had been done, would it have been done by vote of the Lodge? It could not be done otherwise.

13903. Could the Chairman order it to be done by the Secretary without a vote of the Lodge? I do not think that any member in that office would be guilty of such a thing; I never heard it mentioned in any way during my term of office.

13904. Do you think concessions, amounting in the aggregate to £150, could be made without you knowing it? I do not think so.

13905. Mr. Gelding.] At this date that this took place in your house, were your accounts in such a condition that the Auditors could not make anything out of them, and you all went to sleep over them? No.

13906. The audit was finished that night? Yes.

13907. And if a witness stated that, he stated what was false? Yes.

13908. Chairman.] How long were you Treasurer? Between nine and ten months.

13909. And you have been a member of the Society? Since it started.

13910. Have you found any difficulty in working the Friendly Societies Act? Not at all.

13911. Have you any suggestions for its improvement to make? There is one suggestion, that is in the matter of levies; the Friendly Society I am a member of issues a levy of 2s. a quarter, but they have no authority to do that, and it is only done by a vote of the Lodge. In the subordinate Lodge constitution there is no authority for the W.M. to issue a levy of any description; the Lodge has power to increase its contributions, but not to impose a levy. This I have strongly opposed, and it is only by a majority of one or two that it has been carried. The only authorized levy is to be made by the Grand Council, which is 6d. a quarter per member.

13912. Is that not a question for the Grand Council to decide? That is a question for the Grand Council to decide, but I thought it might have been within the province of this Commission.

13913. You are opposed to levies? Yes, because they have no authority to impose them.

13914. What do you pay? A shilling a week.

13915. Do you think that is sufficient? No, I do not, and I would rather pay 1s. 3d.

13916. You say there is no provision for a levy in the constitution? Not for the subordinate Lodge.

13917. But does it not give the Council power to give authority to levy? No.

13918. Then you are more in favour of a fixed contribution than of a levy? I am, most decidedly.

13920. Do you think the Auditors did their duty in passing over Pettit's books, when there was a deficiency of £150? I was not in office at the time, and do not know anything about it.

13921. Do you not think a Government Auditor would have found some deficiencies? These arose greatly in this way. I think it is a bad system for members to pay money promiscuously to any officer they happen to meet in the street. During the time I held the office of Treasurer, a good many pence-books were paid in to me, and persons might make a complaint that so much was paid, and a good deal of the deficiency might have taken place in this way.

13922. But did not the books show that the money had been paid and not paid over to the Treasurer? I do not know what the amount of the deficiency was.

13923. And that there were eight audits in the meantime, and that the Auditors had that staring them in the face; you would not consider that a satisfactory system of audit? I should not, and had I been in the Chair at the time I think I should have found a different system.

13924. And you think that a Government Auditor might have found it out sooner? He ought to have done.

13925. You were Treasurer during some portion of Pettit's time? Yes.

13926. Was there any difference between you as to the amount he received and what he paid you? No, they were found correct up to the time I left office.

13927. So the deficiency spoken of all occurred after you left office? Yes.

FRIDAY,

Mr.
J. Dummer,
24 July, 1882.

FRIDAY, 28 JULY, 1882.

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
F. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
F. ABIGAIL, Esq., M.P.,
P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. Alexander Kethel sworn and examined:—

- Mr. A. Kethel. 13928. President.] I understand you have had a long experience in connection with the working of various Societies? My experience has been confined to the Manchester Unity.
- 28 July, 1882. 13929. How long have you been a member of that Society? About twenty-five years.
13930. And you have occupied important positions in connection with the working of the Society? Yes, I have filled nearly every position at different times.
13931. I presume you have given a good deal of attention to the present Friendly Societies Act? Not of late years I have not taken such an active interest in it, but when I was in office I of course studied it a good deal.
13932. Are you not now in office? I am simply a member of the Board of Directors, the supreme Court of Appeal in the Manchester Unity.
13933. What is your general opinion as to the bearings and operation of the present Act? I hardly know how to begin on that—it is a very comprehensive subject.
13934. We have thought that you were one of those who would be able to make some good and wise suggestions and recommendations to the Commission? I would rather you put some leading questions to me and I would endeavour to answer them.
13935. I wish to ascertain from you what is your opinion with reference to the provisions contained in the present Act—are they sufficient to afford security and protection to the members of the different bodies? No, they are not, that is my opinion, but even if they were they have not been administered.
13936. You think that the administration is defective? Undoubtedly; as far as the Government administration of the Act is concerned, I look upon it as a dead letter to a large extent.
13937. Have you any suggestions you can make to the Commission that might be embodied in the Commission's report? Well, yes, I might venture one or two that have suggested themselves to me. I would suggest that a Department of the Registrar of Friendly Societies be organized on an effective scale; that an officer such as the Registrar be appointed who should devote his whole time to the administration of the Act in its various bearings; that he should be a man selected through having special qualifications for it; and being paid a liberal salary, should be expected to supervise and carry out the whole of the administration of the Act; that a gentleman of actuarial experience should be connected with the Department in addition, and no Society should be registered unless it was proven that their contributions were sufficient to meet all the benefits the members were to receive.
13938. Do you consider that at present the Societies are paying sufficient contributions to ensure financial success? I do not; many of them do I dare say, but I believe a large number of the Societies do not pay sufficient.
13939. You are quite fully aware of the benefits given by the various Friendly Societies to their members? Well, I am aware of the average of them.
13940. Do you consider, as a matter of opinion, that the contributions paid by the members of these Societies are sufficient to ensure the fulfilment on the part of the Societies of the obligations to their members? No, I do not; in the case of large Societies having many Branches extended over the country of course the risk is lessened, but simply isolated Societies are more apt to fail by having the sphere of their liabilities confined. There are many instances of failure in Societies from that cause.
13941. Has it come under your notice that a great deal of competition has taken place? I can only speak personally from what I have witnessed from hand-bills and posters through the city, and advertisements in the daily papers.
13942. What would you consider a fair financial position for a Society with (say) a couple of thousand members, the average amount of accumulated funds, so as to place the Society beyond all doubt? Well, providing the average age was about thirty years, I believe, taking it all round, it could not be less than £10 per head.
13943. You think any large Society or body such as I have mentioned would not be in a sound healthy state unless they had to their credit an average of £10 a head? That is provided they give an average amount of benefits. I take as the foundation for my remarks the average assistance to members of a guinea a week reduced at six and twelve months, a funeral donation of £20 and £30, and at his wife's death £15, with medical attendance and medicines for himself, wife, and family under the age of sixteen.
13944. Taking these benefits as the average basis of a district embracing a number of Lodges with 2,000 members, and with an average age of thirty-five, would you consider that a contribution of 1s. a week would be sufficient to place the Society in anything like a hopeful state? Certainly not.
13945. Speaking of your own Society, do you consider the amount of contributions paid by the members of your own Lodges within the Sydney District is sufficient? In many of them the contributions are sufficient, but in some I believe they are not.
13946. Do they pay a uniform contribution? No.
13947. Is it a graduated scale of contributions? No.
13948. What is the nature of it? The contributions are alike without regard to the age of the members at admission, and range from 1s. to 1s. 6d. a week, the higher sum being chiefly paid by members of Lodges in the interior, where the medical officer's fees are heavier than in the settled districts.
13949. Have you given the matter of a graduated scale of payments by members any thought or consideration? Yes, I have moved twice, I think, to have it adopted.
13950. You approve of that principle? I do, believing that it is the only sound principle.
13951. The amount I suppose should be according to the age at the time of initiation? Yes.
13952. You regard it in principle as a more fair and equitable system than the present one? Yes.

13953.

13953. And more likely to ensure success? Yes, of course due care being taken that a man is sound at the time of his examination and initiation. Mr. A. Kethel.
13954. With regard to the medical examination of members admitted into your own Society, do you regard it as sufficiently searching and satisfactory? With most of the medical officers it is, though some shirk their duty. I myself was three-quarters of an hour being examined. 28 July, 1882.
13955. But you are aware that the medical men do not devote so much time to the examination now as they did formerly? I believe so.
13956. Do your members' wives undergo an examination? They do now.
13957. How long has that been in practice? I could not say—I think it is four or five years. Mr. Gelding would be a better authority.
13958. In what particular do you regard the present Act as defective? It is defective especially in the fact that the returns required by the Act are not rendered, and in the apparent ignorance of the administrators of the Act of the way how to enforce the provisions. Mr. Oliver, when I was Secretary of the Manchester Unity, had so much to do with his other duties that he had no time to devote to Friendly Societies, though I gave him a considerable amount of information. There should be provision made for compulsory returns to be furnished at stated intervals, and that the positive age of every member in every Society should be furnished annually, with a statement of their funds, which would enable the Government to decide whether each Lodge or Branch was in a solvent position or not.
13959. With regard to the funds of these Societies, how are your funds invested? The most of the funds are invested, I believe, first, in the Government Savings Bank, and secondly, in freehold property.
13960. Your Society does not in any way invest money in share property? No.
13961. Do you take a guarantee of fidelity from your officers? Yes, every officer who has the handling of money gives a fidelity bond, and the officer at the head of each Branch is bound under a penalty to see that the bond is furnished.
13962. You are aware that the present Act allows the officers of Societies to sue members for arrears of contributions? Yes.
13963. There is power given under the Act to sue defaulting members? Yes.
13964. Do you approve of that provision? No, I do not.
13965. Do you approve of Friendly Societies or their officers in any way having recourse to Police Courts or Law Courts to settle matters of dispute that may arise? No, I hold that arbitration would be the justest and cheapest mode of administering justice, because I find that lawyers and Judges cannot be made to understand the social workings of any Society; and the cases are generally decided on some point that the members themselves consider of no importance.
13966. Then you would favour a Board of arbitration? I would.
13967. To deal with all cases of dispute? Yes, that is it.
13968. That is, a Board that would be able to meet every case? Yes. I do not know whether it would be better to have a permanent Board or allow the parties themselves to select the arbitrators. There is a provision in the Act that arbitrators may be appointed.
13969. But would it not be wise to make similar provision for dealing with this matter of dispute by arbitration? Yes, but there would be a danger of its becoming a permanent Court of Justice, and thus lose its semi-private character.
13970. How long do you consider a man ought to be in arrears before being suspended from benefits? Well, taking the Society which I know most of, I think the laws they have in operation are very just and fair. He goes out of medical benefits at the end of the quarter, and ceases at the end of a year to have the right to make himself good.
13971. Would you erase the name of a member after he is twelve months in arrears? No, I would give him the right under certain circumstances to apply for permission to rejoin, and on the condition that he did not suffer any wrong physically or morally I would admit him.
13972. Then you would permit a member to rejoin on receiving a certificate of health? Yes, and on receiving the consent of the governing bodies.
13973. And payment of his contributions? Yes.
13974. I presume you are of opinion, in common with most persons who have taken a long interest in Societies, that Friendly Societies tend very much to great social reform, and to a proper feeling amongst people of every centre of population? Yes, I believe they are one of the most powerful agencies for elevating the working-classes.
13975. And consequently they must be a great help to the State? Yes, so great that I have no means of estimating it.
13976. It tends to promote a spirit of thrift and self-dependence? Yes.
13977. Do you find many persons who have joined in a humble position in life and have got on in the world still retain their connection without participating in the benefits? Yes.
13978. And do not register for the medical benefits? Yes, but a great many register and give the medical officer the benefit of his fees. I may say that the Lodge of which I am a member is the only one that is not connected with the Medical Institute.
13979. And in your Society there are a number of members whose position is so improved that they do not take the benefits? Yes; it is often looked upon as a bit of snobbery for a man to leave the Society when he has made his position in the world.
13980. Have you seen a report from the local Branch of the British Medical Association published in the papers? Yes, I have, and have laid it aside for quiet perusal, but I had forgotten about it.
13981. You do not remember a paragraph stating that they objected to Members of Parliament, Magistrates, and others registering for medical attendance and the benefits of the Society? Yes, I noticed that especially.
13982. Did it not strike you as a remarkable paragraph? Yes, I thought it totally unworthy of any sensible educated man to pen such a paragraph.
13983. Is there any other provision of the Act you would like to make any special reference to? Yes, there is one, the provisions of which I have endeavoured to bring into force, and that is, that an examining officer should be appointed, and should have power to visit every Lodge or Branch, either in the city, the suburbs, or the country, without giving notice when he was coming, but to drop in at any time and examine their books and vouchers for the investment of their funds, inquiring into the whole organization of every Branch, and seeing that everything required by the laws of the Society or the laws of the land is being attended to. 13984.

- Mr. A. Kethel. 13984. Then would you be in favour of a Government officer visiting these Lodges? I am not so clear upon that point; I would rather that the supreme authority of every Society should appoint its own officers, so that the men should be well acquainted with all its laws and rules—men who would be able to look into the internal organization as well as the finances of the Lodge; I would embrace not only the finances but the whole of the social fabric of the family.
- 23 July, 1882. 13985. But are not the finances the most important? Yes, but they are not the only important point.
13986. What is your opinion with reference to costly machinery, such as regalia and other paraphernalia? Well, as far as I know, there is none paid for by the Society except that worn by the officers during the time they are in the chairs in the Lodge-room.
13987. But that is an expenditure imposed on the funds of the Society? Yes.
13988. Do you think it is necessary to have coffins and cross-bones and all sorts of implements? I must plead ignorance of the cross-bones. Speaking as a practical utilitarian, I do not consider them necessary; but then all men do not think as I do, and it is necessary to attract in order to gain the interest of the comparatively uneducated portion of the working-classes, and to have something more than the four naked walls and the bare floor of a Lodge.
13989. Then you think it is necessary to have regalia? More or less, yes, I do.
13990. What would be the expense of the regalia of one of your Lodges for the officers? I dare say it would be £5.
13991. For the whole of the regalia? £5 or £6.
13992. What would it cost to institute a Lodge—including regalia? Well, including books and charter or dispensation, and regalia and boxes to keep their things in, £10 should leave a margin. I believe £8 would do, but I will say £10 in order to make no mistake.
13993. To what limit of age would you admit members? I would rather not answer that question, because many men at forty are of sound constitutions, and are as good risks as men at twenty.
13994. Is there anything else that strikes your mind in reference to the present Act? No; I think the questions you have put and the answers I have given embrace pretty well all that suggests itself to my mind at present.
13996. I understand you to be in favour of Government supervision over the financial part of the arrangement? Oh yes, I do not mean to exclude Government supervision.
13997. You mean that the internal working of Societies can be left to the Societies, though the financial position may be overlooked by a Government officer? Yes.
13998. What provision would you make in any new Act, where the Government might find a Society regularly going back in its funds so that it is becoming impossible for them to meet their liabilities? There are only two ways to meet such a case,—either to increase the contributions or decrease the benefits, and the Government to protect strangers joining them should have power to compel them to do either one or the other.
13999. Are you in favour of Societies being permitted to build halls out of Lodge funds? I would only allow them to invest a certain portion of their funds in that.
14000. Would you make any provision that the funds of a Society becoming insolvent should be transferred to the parent Society? I would insist on the funds being transferred to the parent Society, and every member of that Branch having a claim on that Society. Any member who honestly desires to remain a member of the general Society should have the power to do so.
14001. The object of the question is to get your opinion on the question that Lodges should not be allowed to break up and divide their funds, and so throw the old members out of benefits? They should not, though the Friendly Societies Act gives them power in that direction.
14002. Do you think the Friendly Societies Act should set forth a scale of contributions as the lowest that could possibly be charged? Well, I think it would be fair to do so. We have it set forth in our returns from England, and as Secretary we had an accomplished Actuary for many years.
14003. Do you know that the Friendly Societies Act makes provision for an actuarial certificate for new Lodges starting? No.
14004. Would you be in favour of a uniform system of book-keeping being enforced in all Lodges? Yes, I think it would be very desirable.
14005. In your large experience of Friendly Societies, I understand you have no doubt that the benefits usually given by the Societies cannot be given for 1s. a week contribution? Except in an exceptionally healthy locality, and during an exceptionally healthy period.
14006. Mr. Holdsworth.] Large organizations, if I understand you aright, you conceive possess a great advantage over small ones? Yes.
14007. Do you think it would be any advantage if the large organizations could make a common fund for sickness, as they do for funerals? I am not prepared to answer that in the affirmative. It would be safer for the general solvency of the Society, but a rule like that would bear heavier on individual Branches, because there are certain professions or trades more liable to accident or death than others.
14008. Do you think it would be wise in a Benefit Society to have special provision to meet any particular case of that sort? Yes, not in isolated cases though.
14009. You consider the amount that a Society should have to its credit with the average age of from thirty to thirty-five should be £10 per head to be safe? Yes.
14010. Would that not depend a great deal on the age of the Society itself? Well, it would, but I take the average ages of the Societies at present in existence in the Colony from fifty years to five; but I find that the average ages in healthy Lodges do not vary one year in ten.
14011. You consider all matters should be settled by arbitration? I do.
14012. Do you think it would be wise to have a simple form of arbitration bond appended to the Act that any member could draw up? Yes, I think it would be a very desirable appendix to a new Act.
14013. Mr. Langley.] I understood you to say that you were in favour of a graduated scale of contributions according to age? Yes.
14014. Might I ask how you would arrange any cases of young men, say, that were drawing out almost constantly sick pay, as against those who did not draw out any for years; do you think it would be fair to make the party who had not drawn out for years pay the same as the one who had been drawing out? Yes.
- 14015.

14015. On what grounds? I do not see that any grounds are required, for if you once admit that, you admit the question of individual interest coming in to every Society; but it is a fact that such Societies are based on the law of average; but if you introduce that you destroy the law of average. Mr. A. Kethel.

28 July, 1882.

14016. Then if it is not individual interest, how do you justify the question of graduated contributions? I understand that the basis on which I set it is the basis on which all the Insurance Companies of the world are founded, that every man at a certain age is liable to a certain amount of sickness and a certain liability to death.

14017. Do you know of an Insurance Company in the world in which the amount drawn out by the individual members is not taken into consideration? I hardly see the drift of that question.

14018. Is the amount paid out proportionate to the amount paid in? In some cases it is not; if a man dies the day after he has insured his life it is not commensurate, but if a man lives fifty years it is so.

14019. But is that not an exceptional case? I have taken the two extremes.

14020. But do you not think that, in drawing up any scale of graduated contributions, something should be taken into consideration for the amount the person draws out in sick pay? It might be justice, but I do not see how you could better the scale.

14021. Is it impossible? No, but it would involve more labour than you would get from members of Societies.

14022. Then would not a graduated scale of payments entail a great deal more trouble to Societies than that in which each member would pay alike? It would at first, but once launched it would not. A graduated scale is at present in use in all of the best Societies of the United Kingdom.

14023. In all? In the largest, I believe.

14024. Suppose you find that there is another Order aggregating in membership as much as the Manchester Unity that has worked for years on an equal amount of contributions, should not that also be considered? Unquestionably, because it is only since the actuarial scale has been developed that they have adopted this; and acting on the advice of the highest actuaries they have made it compulsory on all Lodges.

14025. Do you consider 7½d. a week in a District like Newcastle, where mining casualties are frequent, is sufficient to cover everything but doctor and medicine? Yes, I dare say it would be, but I would not like to give a positive opinion on that.

14026. You have stated that 1s. a week is not sufficient? Yes.

14027. Then how do you think 7½d. is sufficient to cover everything except the doctor? It might be; it is a question that requires considerable thought and figures to answer definitely.

14028. But I presume it is a matter you have considered very fully, as to what is sufficient to carry on the business of a Lodge? If you take medicines and medical benefits away there is nothing but sick pay and funeral money; the management expense is very little.

14029. What do you think is sufficient to carry on the affairs of a Lodge soundly? I know in my Lodge we pay 1s. 2d. a week, and I know also that that is not sufficient.

14030. Then if that is not sufficient, how can 7½d. be sufficient to cover all outside the doctor and medicine? Well, of course I must know what the doctor and medicine cost; I am not prepared to give a reply to that; I would not feel justified in saying it was sufficient, though I might think it was; I would have every Lodge's contributions submitted to the leading officers of the Society of which it formed a part.

14031. But if you find in the Sydney District that a certain amount, 14d., is not sufficient, how is it possible for 7½d. in Newcastle to do? I do not say it is possible, but say it might be possible under certain circumstances; if I had ten minutes quiet with it at home I would give you a very much more positive answer.

14032. With regard to the inspection of the Lodge, do you not think that, as far as regards the internal working of Lodges themselves, an officer well versed in this working is more useful to the Society than a Government officer? Yes, I said I preferred that the governing bodies should appoint them.

14033. Have you found that young men of from twenty to thirty receive as much, or less, or more than those ranging from thirty-five to forty or forty-five in sick pay? I would not say positively, but I believe the bulk of the sick benefits are received by the men who join at the earlier ages; of course the reason is that the bulk of the members join at the low ages.

14034. Mr. Rubie.] I understood you to say that you were in favour of a graduated scale of payments? Of contributions, yes.

14035. Would you make any provision in that for a Superannuation Fund? No, I would make the Superannuation Fund a special separate matter, so as not to introduce any disturbing elements into the calculations.

14036. You have a provision I presume for such a fund in your rules? Yes, but it does not come under the form of superannuation—it is simply reduced sick pay.

14037. Then after your members receive a certain amount of sick pay, I presume you pay a guinea and then 10s. a week? Yes.

14038. What is the next amount? I think it is left to a summoned meeting of the Society to continue as long as the illness lasts.

14039. Mr. Slade.] Would you favour a separate Superannuation or Pension Fund for permanently disabled or aged members? I would.

14040. In that fund they would be relieved from all payments, and be at liberty to do what they could? Yes.

14041. And would receive the funeral gift at last? Yes, I think it would be a decided benefit to any Society.

14042. Are you aware of any Society that has such a fund? I think the Ancient Order of Foresters has.

14043. How did you arrive at this minimum of £10 per member before a Society should be considered in a good solvent state? It would be hard to explain that now. I was over two years Chief Secretary of the Manchester Unity, and while in that capacity all the correspondence and publications of the Home Society came into my hands, and I made myself familiar with the tables on which the benefits and contributions were based, and compared them with our own Lodges, and so I formed my opinion. I could not say now how I manipulated the figures, but that was my conclusion.

14044. At what time in a Society's existence do you consider it ought to come into possession of this £10 a member? I have not given a great deal of thought to that, but I should think in about twelve or fifteen years.

14045.

- Mr. A. Kethel. 14045. Have you ever considered how long a member must belong to a Society before his payments would amount to £10? No, I had not; it is not necessary for the stability of a Society to consider that; the actuaries would not consider that.
- 28 July, 1882. 14046. The average subscriptions are about 56s. a year? Yes, perhaps rather more.
14047. From that comes funeral levies first, management expenses secondly, doctor and medicine thirdly, and we will presume 3½ days-sickness per member per annum; have you imagined how long it would take to bring the savings up to £10? No, I have not.
14048. Mr. Gelding.] Would you give the Commission your opinion about allowing members to join more than one Society? That is rather a delicate question; to an honest man there should be no limit, but unfortunately there are very few men who join more than one Society without some purpose of personal gain. I have had to discharge a man who was a member of two Societies, and the bulk of whose time was spent on the sick list, and therefore I consider that it would be better if a member was limited to one Society as a contributing or financial member, though I question whether it would be right to limit the right of a man to join a dozen if he liked.
14049. Have you ever studied the 44th clause of the Act? I object to the clause.
14050. You do not think there would be any serious labour incurred by Secretaries in adopting the sliding scale as adopted in the Manchester Unity? No, there are no complaints of it by the Lodges in New Zealand, where the Lodges are worked on that plan; it simply requires a little extra care.
14051. You are aware that more than half a million of people are working under that rule at the present time, are you not? Yes, I am.
14052. And instead of the Society decreasing under that rule it is virtually increasing? Yes, I am aware of that.
14053. President.] You have nothing more to add to your evidence? No.
14054. If anything should suggest itself, if you will send in a written statement we will append it to your evidence? I will with pleasure.

Mr. Robert Ball sworn and examined:—

- Mr. R. Ball. 14055. President.] What Society are you a member of? The Protestant Alliance is one.
- 28 July, 1882. 14056. How many years have you been a member? About twenty-two years.
14057. You have filled various offices in connection with the Society? Nearly all the offices except the tiler.
14058. You are also chief officer of a Branch of the Daughters of Temperance? Yes.
14059. You are Worthy Patriarch of one of the Divisions? The Princess Alice.
14060. What is the financial position of that Society? The state of the funds at present is that they owe no man anything, and have about a pound ahead.
14061. And what is the number of members? About twenty.
14062. How long have you been in that position? That is up to last quarter; they had £21 5s. 2½d.
14063. And what benefits do you give? Half benefits, the same as usual; they only pay 6d. a week.
14064. How long have you been in that position? We have been in a worse position, because as regards sickness we were compelled to suspend, by unanimous vote, sick pay for a time, and we had to do it for six or twelve months.
14065. Who is the medical officer of your Society? Dr. Shewen.
14066. Has Dr. Belgrave been your medical officer? He was.
14067. Has the Society been in such a position that he was never paid? He was always paid; I had the paying of him, and I ought to know. I am not aware that he ever had to apply twice for his money.
14068. Have you had a much larger amount of funds to your credit? They never had a large amount, owing to the daughters getting sick.
14069. You have had a larger number of members? We have, but not a great deal; it has been rather a select Division.
14070. What contributions do the members pay? 6d. a week, and each member by resolution has to register for the doctor, paying 2s. a quarter for that.
14071. Do you consider the Society at the present time in a good financial position? For the numbers I do.
14072. Are you of opinion that the funds are sufficient to insure the payment of all the benefits to the twenty-one persons? At the present time they are, and we have always found the money, and would do so; the only thing is the suspension of sick pay.
14073. How long has it been suspended for? The twelve months is not up yet. It was for six months, and it has been agreed to continue it for a further six months.
14074. What is the reason you suspended your sick pay? The young members began to confer about the funds going down, and they gave a notice of motion and called a meeting, and agreed to it themselves, so that they should not be left without any funds.
14075. And do you regard a Society that has to suspend its sick pay as being in a good position? It does not look well, but we thought it best to do it for safety; because they are in this position that as they belong to the Funeral Fund the funeral donations would be met at once. I think there have been four deaths.
14076. In what length of time? Since 1877.
14077. You have had an extended experience in reference to the working of Friendly Societies? I have had a little.
14078. Have you any suggestions to make to the Commission? I should like to see similar Societies if they could be brought two or three together so that one lot of expenses might work the lot; but we have tried it here, and there has been a feeling that they liked their own independence; but I think myself that 6d. a week is hardly sufficient to ensure the benefits, and I think the same with reference to the 1s. a week for the male Branches.
14079. You consider then that the contributions generally are too small? I do, and think that if they made it 2d. a week more it would be better and safer.
14080. You have nothing further to suggest to the Commission? No, not beyond that.

14081. Mr. Abigail.] Do you think the establishment of Female Benefit Societies is of advantage to the community or to the people who join them? I believe it is more to the people that join them.
14082. Have you known any cases of Treasurers or other officers making away with the funds of their Societies? Only one.
14083. Do you think having a Government officer to examine the accounts of Societies would be beneficial? I do not think it would do any good.
14084. Are the accounts generally so satisfactorily kept and audited that they do not want any attention? When we come to look at what they have to go through they ought to be if they are not.
14085. But the question is, is the auditing of the accounts so satisfactory that they do not want any further examination? I should be perfectly satisfied with it.
14086. Have you had much experience in examining the accounts of the Friendly Societies? Yes.
14087. Have you found the Secretaries generally competent to keep books and so on? Well, taking them as working-men there has been a great deal more noise than anything else.
14088. If the statement has been made that your Daughters' Division has failed to pay the doctor's accounts it would not be correct? It would be false.

Mr. R. Ball.
28 July, 1882.

Mr. Henry Asher sworn and examined:—

14089. President.] What Society are you a member of? The Hebrew Mutual Benefit Society.
14090. What number of members have you? Thirty-three.
14091. Is that the largest number you have ever had? No, the Society has been broken up a long time, but we have reformed it again.
14092. What was the reason it was dissolved? They gave too much benefits.
14093. Your expenditure was greater than your income? Exactly so.
14094. And you were dissolved for want of funds? Yes.
14095. What amount of funds have you to your credit now? £95 7s. 11d. at the end of June.
14096. What was the expenditure last year? £7 to the doctor, and £9 9s. to the chemist last quarter.
14097. Is that the average? Yes.
14098. What contributions do you pay? 1s. a week, and 1s. a quarter extra.
14099. What does the Secretary get? 8s. a month, and pay my own contribution out of it.
14100. What do you pay to the cleaner? Just a small gratuity occasionally.
14101. Do you consider the sum of 1s. a week sufficient to ensure all the benefits you provide? Yes; we have no sick benefit, only a funeral donation.
14102. And what is that? £5 for twelve months' membership, and £10 after two years if clear on the books of the Society.
14103. Do you receive any assistance from the members of your own Communion who do not happen to be members of the Society? No, unless they like to join as honorary members.
14104. No donations? No, we have had none yet.
14105. And your funds have been wholly made up from the contributions? Just so.
14106. What was the contribution before the Society was dissolved? I believe 15d. a week, with a guinea a week sick pay, doctor and medicine, and £20 at death of members, and a funeral and stone found free.
14107. What funds were there to the credit of the Society when it was dissolved? Nothing at all—they were in debt.
14108. Do you consider that the shilling that is now paid is sufficient to meet all your liabilities? Yes, because we have no liabilities; most of our members are working-men, and they have given a guarantee that they will not take the benefits unless they actually want it; we save 11d. a month from each member.
14109. Is that after you have paid your doctor and chemist? Yes.
14110. Do you pay anything for the use of the building? No.
14111. Do all your members undergo a medical examination? Yes.
14112. Your Society is a registered Society? Yes.
14113. Only recently registered? Last month, I think it was.
14114. How do you invest your funds? In the Bank.
14115. To the credit of Trustees? Yes; we have £52 10s. in the Bank at 5 per cent. interest.
14116. Do the officers provide any guarantee? No.
14117. Do you propose that there should be a bond or guarantee? No.
14118. Your Society is wholly confined to your own communion? Yes, exactly.
14119. How often do you have your accounts audited? Every quarter.
14120. Mr. Rubie.] You say you have only lately come into existence again? About three years since.
14121. And it broke up for want of funds? Yes.
14122. Are you giving the same benefits they gave? We gave no sick benefits at all.
14123. All you provide is—? Doctor and medicine, and the funeral donation I mentioned before.
14124. Mr. Langley.] Have the whole of these funds accumulated since the Society was re-started? Yes, we began afresh with thirteen members.
14125. Without any funds at all? Without any funds at all.
14126. In your opinion, could you work your Lodge or Society satisfactorily for less than 1s.? I do not think so.
14127. Mr. Abigail.] Seeing that under the full benefit system you failed at 1s. 3d. a week, have you any doubt that those benefits could not be given for 1s.? We could not do it.
14128. The benefits you gave are about the same as those of other Societies? Yes, but we charged no entrance money then.
14129. Your expenses are about 4s. 1d. a month? Yes.
14130. Mr. Smith.] Were you a member of the old Society? Yes.
14131. Was it a registered Society? I believe it was.
14132. Was any action taken by the Registrar? I do not think there was, but I do not recollect.
14133. Were any persons put to inconvenience? Yes, I believe one or two never got their money to this day; they had nobody to get it from.

Mr. H. Asher.
28 July, 1882.

- Mr. H. Asher. 14134. Then some injustice was done through the bursting up of the old Society? Yes.
 14135. And that resulted from the fact that you gave larger benefits than most of the Societies? No
 28 July, 1882. Society ever gave the benefits; for they provided funerals and stones, and for people to come to the house and pray for them.
 14136. How many years did the Society exist? Oh, a long time.
 14137. What is "a long time"? Eight or twelve years, to the best of my recollection.
 14138. Were there many members in connection with it? Oh yes, nearly all the Jews in the country.
 14139. Then they would be very strong? Yes, very strong indeed.
 14140. You said you paid no entrance fee? Yes, a very large entrance fee, according to age.
 14141. Were any members sustained by that Society in their old age? There were two or three pensioners.
 14142. Permanent? Yes, while they lived.
 14143. There was no special provision in the Society for that? No; it depended how long they had been in it; the Committee could vote them the money.
 14144. Is it a fact within your knowledge that the Society gave a large pension and house free of rent? Not a house.
 14145. Did they find clothing and food? Not to my knowledge.
 14146. But they gave a pension? Yes.
 14147. Do you know what was the amount per week paid by way of pension to any of the old members? From 7s. 6d. to 12s. 6d.
 14148. Is it not a fact that some members had as much as 30s. a week? Not to my knowledge; they may have had it.
 14149. Could it have escaped your notice as a member? I should not think it would.
 14150. All the wealthy Jews in this city of Sydney were identified with the old Society? Oh no—not one quarter of them.
 14151. Then if it were said you had received large donations of money would it be true? I do not know.
 14152. There are two sections of Jews here? There are two Synagogues, but they are both the same.
 14153. Did the old Society make any provision for the orphans of deceased members? No, none whatever.
 14154. Is it a fact that a number of children, I think some five, were educated and maintained by the old Hebrew Society? No; that is the Orphan Society—a different Society entirely. We have three Hebrew Societies in Sydney; we have the Philanthropic Society, the Widow and Orphan Society, and we have this one, but they are all distinct.
 14155. I see the balance-sheet shows you have paid a guinea for the registration of these Rules? Yes.
 14156. These Rules were twelve months in operation before you sought to register them? No, we had to get them altered before we could get them registered.
 14157. I suppose you have not much knowledge of the working of the Friendly Societies Act? No.
 14158. Are you a member of any other Friendly Society? I am not now, but I was at one time.
 14159. Then there can be no doubt about the stability of the Society under the present amount of contribution you now receive? None whatever.

The Commission then adjourned till Monday, 31st July.

MONDAY, 31 JULY, 1882.

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., M.P., C.M.G., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
 E. GREVILLE, Esq., J.P.,
 P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
 JOHN SLADE, Esq.,

JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
 P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
 E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,
 W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. James Thomas Hewitt sworn and examined:—

- Mr. J. T. Hewitt. 14160. President.] What Society are you a member of? The Prince Albert Lodge Grand United Order of Oddfellows.
 31 July, 1882. 14161. How long have you been a member? Four years.
 14162. Do you hold any office? Secretary.
 14163. How long have you held the office? About twelve months.
 14164. What is the financial position of your Society? At the present time we are only worth about £45, and have fifty-one members.
 14165. What is the cause of your funds being so low? I attribute it to the sickness which has been very prevalent amongst the members during the time I have been a member.
 14166. Has there been a large proportion of sickness amongst your members? Yes, there have been within the last six or eight months four or five continually on the funds.
 14167. Are they old members? Old members.
 14168. How long has your Lodge been in existence? Upwards of thirty years; I am not sure of the date.
 14169. What is the largest number of members you have had at any time? I am not aware.
 14170. And most of those remaining are old men? Well on an average they range between forty and sixty.
 14171. What are the contributions paid? 1s. 3d. a week.
 14172. Have they always been 1s. 3d.? No.
 14173. For how long have they been that? The last twelve months.
 14174. You were compelled to raise the contributions? We were not actually compelled, but it was thought advisable by the Lodge in order to better the condition of things to have an extra 3d., and the members agreed to it.
 14175. Do you think your Lodge would have been in existence now if you had not done that? They would have been in existence, but they would not have been on such a financial footing.
 14176. You would not have had £45 to your credit? Undoubtedly not. 14177.

14177. What do you think is sufficient to give the benefits that your by-laws provide? I think myself that our Lodge will never be able to do with anything less than 1s. 3d.; but in case of a new Lodge I imagine 1s. would be quite sufficient, because you would have a greater percentage of young men, while in this Lodge the majority are old members, and are thus liable to sickness more than young men, as a rule, are.

Mr. J. T.
Hewitt.
31 July, 1882.

14178. But do you not think young members joining would become old men? Yes, and a Lodge in its infancy should provide against that.

14179. And could that be done by the payment of 1s. a week? I imagine so.

14180. Do you not think your Lodge is a striking proof that it is not sufficient? It is certainly not very creditable.

14181. Is it not a striking proof that the contributions are not sufficient? I cannot say definitely upon that point, because I believe any Society at all can be worked for 1s. a week, and there is ample proof of it, when you look round at other Societies and compare their position with ours. It only requires management and system.

14182. Do you know any Society that has been in existence thirty years that is in a better position than yours? I could name six that have only been in existence half the time.

14183. You are aware that the liabilities are growing all the time? Yes.

14184. That the members grow more liable to sickness and death? Yes, I am aware of that of course.

14185. And you still think that a Society could be carried on for 1s. a week? Yes, that is my firm conviction.

14186. How do you invest the small funds that you have? They are invested in the Savings' Bank.

14187. In the names of Trustees? Yes, we have Trustees.

14188. Have you had any cases of defalcation in connection with the Lodge? No, not that I am aware of.

14189. Mr. Golding.] This book (produced) is, I suppose, your cash receipt book? Yes.

14190. And do you think this is a good way of keeping members' contributions? No, I do not, and I aimed at a reform, but I cannot say what the result will be until we next meet.

14191. The way in which the pence-money is entered down here, it is almost an impossibility to know what a member owes or the position he stands in? Well, you can understand it—or at least I can—but I know it is not a proper mode of doing it.

14192. You have given some attention to the working of Friendly Societies? Yes, during the last two or three months.

14193. Do you not think it would be advisable to have a uniform system of keeping your books? Yes, and it is the case in our Order, our Lodge I think being the exception.

14194. Have not the District Officers taken steps to compel you to keep the books in a proper way? Not me personally; they have called attention to the irregular system of book-keeping, and we are aiming now at something better, but no definite action has been taken so far.

14195. You are quite sure that 1s. a week is enough for young Societies to pay? Yes.

14196. Out of your own Order, are you aware of any other large Society that only pays 1s. a week? I have heard that the Manchester Unity only pays that.

14197. Considering the age of your members now, and the small amount of capital, do you think 1s. 3d. is sufficient to meet your demands? If things go on as they have been, I have no hesitation in saying that £45 will never see us over another twelve months.

14198. And do you not attribute that to the fact that you have been working in this cheap manner in the infancy of your Lodge? I cannot say, as I have been a member only two or three years.

14199. Is the minute-book (produced) the only minute-book you keep? From the time I have taken office it is.

14200. Are the minutes of each night confirmed in the usual manner? Yes.

14201. Do you ever have them signed? The Noble Grand as a rule signs them.

14202. In 1880 there are nights in which the minutes of the night's proceedings are entirely omitted;—was there any lapse of meetings on those nights? I cannot answer that, for I might not have been there; my secretaryship dates from January 24 this year.

14203. And in a very large proportion of cases the minutes were unsigned; were they confirmed the same way as the others? I believe so.

14204. There are some nights referring to matters on the preceding night of which no notice is taken in the preceding night's minutes? I should think that was the elective Secretary's fault for omitting to put it down. He keeps the minute-book; I have nothing to do with that.

14205. Do you not think it would be wise to have your books paged, so that you would know that they are the correct minutes? Yes, I am sure of it.

14206. And headed with the name of the Lodge? Just so.

14207. You are quite sure that these are the minutes of that Lodge, though it bears no evidence of it? I am certain of it. As soon as I was appointed Secretary I did my best to bring about a better style of book-keeping; and I am trying to aim at a reform, though with a certain amount of opposition; but I hope the matter will be settled at our next Lodge meeting, and that we shall have a better system.

14208. Mr. Newland.] Has not your Lodge, on repeated occasions, tried to raise their contributions? They have.

14209. And they have failed? They have failed.

14210. How long is it since your Lodge endeavoured to do that? Some two years ago, I think; eighteen months or two years ago.

14211. Have you not lately endeavoured to increase your funds by levying on yourselves? On our last Lodge night I think a resolution was brought forward that we should pay the District levy out of our own pockets, without touching the funds of the Lodge, but the motion was defeated after a little debate, the reason being that there were about eight or nine young members there who came prepared to draw their clearances in the event of the motion being carried.

14212. Have not similar attempts been made in the past, which have also failed? Yes.

14213. Has there not been a general complaint on the part of the District officers at the manner in which your Lodge was conducted? Yes.

14214. The District officers have no power to fine the officers for any irregularities according to their laws? Quite so.

14215.

- Mr. J. T. Hewitt.
31 July, 1882.
14215. Mr. Langley.] Is no supervision exercised over the working of your subordinate Lodges by an appointed or elected officer of the District or Grand Lodge? Well, there is no direct supervision, with the exception of the District or Lodge transacting the regular business that transpires between them.
14216. Is there not provided by your constitution an officer, a District officer, who is supposed to exercise supervision over the different Lodges, and to see that they are working in accordance with the constitution? Yes; in that sense of the word the District has power to supervise all the Lodges, and see that they are working in accordance with the constitution.
14217. Has it been known to the District that your Lodge has been carrying on your business in such a loose and irregular manner as they have been doing? I believe it has.
14218. And have no steps been taken to compel them to act up to your constitution as registered under the Friendly Societies' Act? The only attempt that has been made has been that the District officers have visited the Lodge and endeavoured by force of speech to try and alter the state of affairs. That is the only action I know of that has been taken.
14219. Are you certain of that? That is all I know of.
14220. But does not your constitution give certain powers to the District, in case of a Lodge acting illegally? Yes, if a Lodge is acting illegally it does; but you cannot call illegal anything that the Lodge has done since I have been a member of it; it has only been the want of system, and the rough way things have been done; it has been legal, but unbusinesslike.
14221. Is it not illegal to commence the business of one Lodge meeting without confirming the minutes of the previous Lodge night? It is illegal.
14222. Then if you had no minutes how could you be acting legally? It would be quite illegal, but in the course of answering these questions I am only speaking of the time I have been appointed, since when the minutes have always been confirmed.
14223. You have stated that you have tried to bring about a reform? Yes.
14224. Have you been supported in that by the District officers? Undoubtedly.
14225. And has anything come of it? Nothing definite yet, but I have great hopes that there will be; and I am certain a reform will be brought about in a short period of time.
14226. But do you not think, where the interests of so many people are at stake, that it is the duty of the District officers to interfere when they find a Lodge acting illegally and going to the bad as your Lodge appears to be doing? Undoubtedly.
14227. Then have these powers been exercised to your knowledge? No, only in what I have just mentioned, the District officers going there and giving advice.
14228. They have taken no other action or pointed out to you what could be done under the Act if you continued to act as you have been acting? Not that I am aware of.
14229. If the same state of things that you refer to is carried out in each Lodge, would not the Lodges become independent of the District? That is a question I can hardly answer. I know that we could not get away from the District for want of funds, if for nothing else.
14230. But if you are acting illegally as regards your funds what claim have you on the District, if the District knows you are acting in this way? We would have no claim on them, but the District so far has always met all our claims, and I fancy it is their look out.
14231. Do you not think, in cases where a Lodge acts in opposition to or in defiance of the recommendations of the governing body, the Friendly Societies Act should give such powers to the governing body as would prevent anything of the kind occurring again? Yes, undoubtedly.
14232. Unless there is a power of the kind, do you think it is possible subordinate Lodges can be carried on with due regard to the interests of its individual members? No, I do not.
14233. Mr. Smith.] Can you explain to the Commission why this book (the balance-sheet book) is so mutilated? No, I cannot.
14234. How long has the book been in your possession as Secretary? It has only been in my possession since January 24.
14235. You have apparently done the principal writing and figuring in it? No.
14236. And you cannot account for the mutilation? No, I cannot; I have only entered two things in that book that you have possession of now.
14237. Are these the balance-sheets that are presented to your Lodge? Yes.
14238. They are not signed by any Auditors? I believe they are.
14239. Do you know that there are one or two that are not signed by any Auditors? No, I am not aware of that; I can vouch for the last three reports being audited and found correct; and the Auditors, if they have not signed the book, have signed a paper which the Lodge holds possession of to that effect.
14240. President.] I see the name of one of your members, "James Wiseman"; is there such a member? Not at the present time.
14241. There was in 1859? I do not know; I was not a member.
14242. You cannot tell what the practice was in reference to sick pay in those days? No, I could not.
14243. What is your practice now in reference to sick pay? A brother who requires sick pay has to forward a certificate signed by our medical officer, and thereupon the Secretary sends word to the Sick Committee, who go and visit him and report to the Lodge at the next meeting, and on their report the money is either paid or not, as the case may be.
14244. How much do you allow? £1 a week for twenty-six weeks, and contributions paid.
14245. What do you give after that time? 15s. a week.
14246. And after that? 10s. a week, I think.
14247. Do you give full sick pay now? Yes.
14248. At the present time? Yes, at the present time.
14249. You have not suspended benefits? Not now—it has been done.
14250. How long since? Two years ago the benefits were suspended for twelve months by unanimous vote of the members.
14251. Have you any of your members now on the sick funds? No, we have not.
14252. Has it been proposed by the officers or members to take any steps to place the Lodge on a proper financial basis? Yes, several times, and I may mention that they are going to hold a public meeting and initiate members at reduced rates to try and help them out of the fire.

14253. And do you think it is likely that many will join the Society even at the reduced rates under existing circumstances? I can hardly answer that question; there are so many inducements held out now, and so much competition, that it is a hard matter to say whether you could get half a dozen to join.
14254. Do you think that the competition existing is a healthy one? I do not think it is.
14255. You have nothing further to add to your evidence? No.
14256. Mr. Slade.] On January 10th, 1882, there was a motion proposed and seconded that a certain member be expelled from the Lodge for entering under false pretences as regards his age;—was he expelled? Yes.
14257. Has such a case as that come to your knowledge at any other time? No.
14258. Either in your own or any other Lodge? No.
14259. Is it within your knowledge that the Society to which you belong has had to take action in order to protect themselves from such misrepresentations? No.
14260. Have you had to refuse candidates for such a reason? No, not to my knowledge.

Mr. J. T.
Hewitt.

31 July, 1882.

Mr. Henry Hund sworn and examined:—

14261. President.] You are a member of—? Travellers' Home Lodge, Grand United Order of Oddfellows.
14262. You are the Secretary? The Secretary.
14263. Have you held the office long? About two years.
14264. You recently advertised for a medical officer? Yes, about four months ago.
14265. Had you many applications? Yes, we had seventeen.
14266. Do you remember the names of them? No, but I have a list of them. I produce a list of the names of doctors tendering for the Society, and the prices:—Dr. Rigley, 14s.; Dr. Norrie, 15s.; Dr. Hawkins, 16s. and £1 1s., accouchement fee; Dr. Hirst, 20s. and £1 1s.; Dr. Steel (accepted) 15s. and £1 1s.; Dr. Williams, 14s.; Dr. Parker, 14s. and £1 1s.; Dr. Cummen, 20s. and £1 1s.; Dr. Eichler, 20s. and £1 1s.; Dr. Degner, 16s. and £1 1s.; Dr. Belgrave, 10s. and £1 1s.; Dr. Durham, 16s. and £1 1s.; Dr. Bestick, 18s. and £1 1s.; Dr. O'Connor, 14s. and £1 1s.
14267. What was the lowest tender? Dr. Belgrave.
14268. What was the amount? 10s. per financial member per year, and then there was a guinea extra for accouchement fees; some doctors did not tender specially for accouchement, and in these cases there is no price opposite their names in the list which I have produced.
14269. What tender did you accept? Dr. Steel's.
14270. What was his rate? 15s.
14271. Do you know the reason why the Society did not accept the lowest tender? Well, the tender that was accepted was not so much the amount as the man thought to be the best doctor. Dr. Steel was thought to be as good a doctor as there was in Sydney, and being 5s. lower than Dr. Hirst or Dr. Norrie, who would class with him, his tender was accepted.
14272. You have no difficulty at any time in obtaining the services of a medical man? Never, to my knowledge.
14273. What is the financial position of your Society at the present time? Very good.
14274. What amount of money have you to your credit? I think about £380.
14275. And how many members have you? On our books we have 170, but we returned last quarter 132 financial members to the District, but to the doctor only 123, as some of them are non-medical members and living in the country.
14276. They have not to pay as much contributions? Those that are non-medical members only pay 9d. a week.
14277. And you consider the Society in a good position with £380 and 130 members? Yes, I think so.
14278. But your liabilities extend to 170 members? No; when a member becomes unfinancial to the extent of 15s. he is unfinancial and is no longer entitled to any benefit until eight weeks have elapsed after he becomes financial again, so that he must pay up all he owes in order to be entitled to benefits.
14279. But suppose death took place? They would get nothing.
14280. They are suspended from funeral donations as well as sick pay? From all benefits.
14281. What do you pay a week? 15d. a week.
14282. How long have you been doing that? It is only six months that we have paid 1s. 3d. a week, but we were paying 13½d. a week and 1s. levy.
14283. What was the object in raising the contribution? It was to make it more easily understood by the members, doing away with the levy which had to be collected at the end of each quarter.
14284. And do you consider that the contributions are sufficient to provide the benefits for each of your members? The amount we pay now I think is, but I do not think it is too much. Some pay less, but I do not think they can do with less.
14285. Mr. Slade.] Are any of those in arrears for a very long time? Some of them about two years.
14286. Are they in a position to pay if they would? I do not know.
14287. Do you know the circumstances of any of them? Only one, who is on the Railway; he was I think a guard at one of the stations near Liverpool.
14288. From your own knowledge can you say that any of them refrained from paying up from disinclination and not from poverty? This one did.
14289. And are there any others? I think most of them have gone from town, and have come to the conclusion that it is too much to pay.
14290. Is it a fact that you have Members of Parliament who do not pay up? It is quite true.
14291. Is he in a position to pay if he liked? Yes.
14292. Is it a fact that there is a Member of Parliament a member of your Lodge who is in arrears largely? Yes, about twelve months.
14293. Mr. Rubie.] Are you aware that your Society is liable to any of these members dying within twelve months, should their relatives claim the funeral donation? We have no rule to that effect that I know of.
14294. Then those who are once enrolled never cease to be members? They can be expelled and can be struck off.
14295. But till this is done they do not cease to be members? Yes, but the members cease to get any benefits for eight weeks after they become unfinancial.

Mr.
H. Hund.

31 July, 1882.

- Mr. H. Hund. 14296. Mr. Greville.] Have you no regulation for striking off all members after a certain amount of arrears have accumulated? Well, I think we have, and about two years ago we struck off about half a dozen members who were largely in arrears. There is some law that after a certain time they can be struck off, but they have to be notified first, and if a member goes away we cannot notify him.
14297. Whatever provision there may be it is not carried into execution? Not very often, because a member might go to England and let the arrears run on all the time, and then come back again and pay up his arrears when he returns.
14298. Then the number of members on your books is no criterion as to the number of financial members there are? No.

Mr. Abraham Garcia sworn and examined:—

- Mr. A. Garcia. 14299. President.] What Society are you a member of? The Independent Order of Oddfellows.
14300. Do you hold any office? Yes.
- Mr. A. Garcia. 14301. What office? Second in command, the Deputy Grand Master.
14302. How long have you held the office? Since February last.
14303. Have you held any previous office? Yes.
14304. What was that? That of Grand Warden for twelve months.
14305. How many subordinate Lodges have you opened? Fifteen.
14306. You opened them yourself, with the assistance of the other officers? Yes, I was the promoter of the fifteen.
14307. What did it cost to open each of these Lodges? I could scarcely answer that, for the simple reason that we have to define the "cost." Do you mean furnished, or simply the opening?
14308. The opening of the Lodge first? Well, in the opening of a Lodge the following things are necessary:—Warrant, £5; seal, £2 10s. There are one or two items in connection with this, in connection with our secret working; one costs £3; regalia, from £8 to £11; and advertisements in three papers for a period of about three months.
14309. What did that come to? Between £5 and £6.
14310. What else? Books for the Secretary and use of the Lodge, I should say about £2 10s.; ballot-box, 15s.; marbles, 4s.; circulars, 7s. 6d.; Bible, from 15s. upwards; lamps, 2s. 6d.; skull, £1; chains, about 1s. 6d.; and there are a few incidental expenses.
14311. What would they come to? £1 would cover them all, except on the opening night, which is a special arrangement.
14312. Does that include the furniture? There is no furniture.
14313. And has each of the Lodges that you have opened cost about this sum? Well, I happened to find an old balance-sheet before coming here, in which I find that the expenses were £28 2s. 11d.
14314. Is that sum of money taken out of the takings of the Lodge when it is first formed? Yes.
14315. The first night? The first night.
14316. And does every Lodge opened cost on an average the sum you have mentioned there? Some have cost more.
14317. What is the highest price that has been paid for opening a Lodge? I really could not tell you at the present moment.
14318. You do not know? I really could not tell.
14319. Do you think it is necessary that so large an expenditure should be incurred at the opening of a Lodge? Yes, for the simple reason that the Lodge must have the necessary things to work with, and the question is, whether they should be opened without anything in the Lodge to commence business with. What is the difference whether they are provided at the opening or afterwards?
14320. But are they necessary in opening Friendly Societies? I do not know that; we are bound by the ritual; but apart from that I should say no; there should be no distinction except a slight regalia for the officers.
14321. What becomes of all these large sums that are got in this way—£36 you have given the Commission as the total? It is paid for these necessary things.
14322. Paid to the Grand Lodge or District Lodge? No, to the various people that provide them. The charter fee is paid to the Grand Lodge, and you want books for the Secretary.
14323. They are not got through the Grand Lodge? No; we had no Grand Lodge at the time.
14324. Then the individual members get them, and they are repaid afterwards? Yes.
14325. And the only sum that goes to the Grand Lodge is £5 for the quarter? Yes.
14326. What are the initiation fees charged on the night of joining? Half the usual fees.
14327. Is that rule suspended by authority of the Grand Lodge, or how is it? The law is that for the opening night you can admit at half-fees; that is our law.
14328. The usual contributions are—? 15d. a week.
14329. And what is the financial state of most of the Lodges you have opened yourself? I believe every one of them, except perhaps one or two, is in a very fair position.
14330. What would be the total number of members? I have never opened a Lodge with less than fifty members on the roll, because a resolution was passed while we were under Victoria that the Grand Master would not give permission to open any Lodge without that number of members. Hence nearly every Lodge I have opened has had fifty members on the roll.
14331. You have had then fifty members on the roll? In nearly every case.
14332. How have they proceeded since? I believe that they have gone along satisfactorily, as far as I am able to obtain information.
14333. Do you approve of the provision of the Constitution allowing half-fees on the opening nights? Not in the main I do not.
14334. Do you approve of the uniform contribution of 15d. a week? Yes.
14335. You would not approve of a graduated scale of payments by members, according to age? No.
14336. What is the limit of age when you institute a Lodge? Forty-five years.
14337. That is the highest? That is the highest.
14338. Mr. Smith.] If it has been stated to the Commission that a Lodge started at Pymont cost between £60 and £70, would it be true? I believe not.
- 14339.

14339. The Lodge there was opened by you, was it not? Yes.
14340. Would you be in a position to give the Commission particulars as to the exact cost of opening that Lodge? They have the particulars already in the Lodge.
14341. If a balance-sheet was produced showing that this amount was expended, would you say then that it was not correct? I could not say that without I saw the balance-sheet.
14342. Do you know the financial position of the Lodge at Pymont? I do not; I have not visited that Lodge since some three or four months after the opening.
14343. Has it ever been brought under your notice that that Lodge has suffered from the fact that the charges were so great in opening that they have hardly been able to recover themselves? Not to my knowledge.
14344. You visited that Lodge for the purpose of opening it, with a number of other officers? Yes.
14345. You went by coach or some other vehicle? We did.
14346. Did you charge the Lodge for the cost of conveying you? Yes, we did.
14347. Some 19s. 6d.? Yes.
14348. Is it customary? I imagine so; both the Druids and the Grand United Order do the same thing; and for a simple reason, whether it would be just to a man who attended the Lodge night after night to permit him to put his hands into his pocket and tramp something like 3 miles from home for the purpose of opening the Lodge; besides carrying a large bundle of goods for its use.
14349. How many officers are necessary for the opening ceremony? Somewhere about eight or nine.
14350. Were there more than eight or nine on that particular occasion? I could not positively say how many there were, but there was a very large attendance of members and officers.
14351. There is a good deal of regalia and paraphernalia of one kind and another used in the opening of one of your Lodges? Yes.
14352. Does any particular tradesman in the city supply that regalia, or are you under any arrangement as to the supply of the necessary regalia and paraphernalia? No, even up to the present time; it was simply agreed that all should be done through the Grand Secretary's Office.
14353. Then I presume you would be in a position to give the order to whom you liked? Yes.
14354. That is invariably done? That has been carried out in the opening of the various Lodges by me.
14355. Then would the accounts be rendered to you or to the Grand Secretary? There was no Grand Secretary then.
14356. This has been your usual practice? All Lodges since then, I have done nothing more than open them. I have adopted a different principle, a system of personal canvassing, instead of issuing bills and placards and putting advertisements in the papers, having found it was an expensive mode of proceeding, and Lodges have been opened for a very small amount. Since the Grand Lodge has been here I have not interfered with the arrangements, except to obtain the members. Penrith and Mount Victoria, and Goulburn and Strawberry Hills, cost about 25s. I admit that in the opening of some of the older Lodges I have been more extravagant than otherwise, but not purposely so; as far as the bills rendered to myself are concerned they were correct; but I have now done away with the placards and advertisements, which are large items, and have since simply canvassed from house to house for the purpose of forming the Lodges. The Lodge at Strawberry Hills I opened with sixty members, and it cost about 25s. or not that; under the peculiar circumstances I was led into an extravagant outlay at Pymont which otherwise I should never have incurred. I opened about eleven Lodges here in fifteen months; it was quick work, and to show my actions were confirmed by the Grand Master in Victoria, I hold in my pocket documents confirming all my actions and speaking in the highest terms of me in my connection with the Order. If there has been an extravagant outlay in connection with some of our Lodges, by being judiciously advised by some of the heads of our Order, they could have increased their funds by holding social entertainments for what it cost them to open their Lodges. I have a document here giving the cost price of opening a Lodge in the Manchester Unity, amounting to £10 2s., but this does not provide for a great deal that is required, and so the question comes who pays the cost in these other Orders, the Grand Lodge or the subordinate Lodge. In our Order we only pay to the extent of £5, and it is a question whether any other Order has the extent of paraphernalia we have—I think not; and if you come to tot up all these items—and these things if not purchased at the start must be had afterwards—for if the Lodge was working without the necessary paraphernalia, and it came to the ears of the principal men in the Order, they would have either to obtain this necessary working paraphernalia or the charter would be suspended.
14357. President.] You do not believe a Lodge can be opened for £10 2s. in connection with the Manchester Unity? That is my opinion, because there is a note here: "Aprons are used, but need not be obtained unless it is necessary."
14358. Mr. Smith.] These personal canvasses you speak of, are they made by yourself? By myself and others who have joined with me.
14359. How many Lodges have you opened under this system? Five.
14360. Is it not a fact that the system of personal canvass necessitates on your part a very great loss of time? It is.
14361. And expense? Loss of time.
14362. For which time you make no charge on the Grand Lodge? No, none whatever. I could claim, I believe, but I have never done it yet—I could claim £5 towards the expenses, but I have never done it since I have been connected with the Order.
14363. Then no person who has assisted you in making this personal canvass has received any remuneration for his services? Not any.
14364. Are we to understand that none of these extravagant expenditures in connection with the opening of Lodges have taken place during your tenure of office? No, not any of them.
14365. And in order to prevent it you have adopted a new system? I have.
14366. From your experience in connection with your own Order, have you suffered in any way in working your Order under the Friendly Societies Act? I do not understand your question.
14367. Has any difficulty arisen in working your Society under the present Act? I do not think so; as far as my experience has gone, I do not think that we have had any difficulty with any of the Lodges under the present Friendly Societies Act.
14368. Mr. Greville.] What compensates you for the time you give in canvassing for the formation of these new Societies? It is simply the interest I have taken in the Order since it was established. 14369.

Mr.
A. Garcia.

31 July, 1882.

- Mr. A. Garcia. 14369. Have you no pecuniary interest? Not one single penny; since these things came up I have kept away from all pecuniary interest in it.
- 31 July, 1882. 14370. Then you give the time which is necessary simply from your love of the Order? Simply from my love of the Order.
14371. The accounts which were incurred by the Pymont Lodge in its opening, were they paid by you? Yes, paid by me.
14372. Were they passed in open Lodge, or were they paid by you out of funds which you received on behalf of the Lodge? Partly by these funds, and to show that the money must be made use of, I have a letter from Mr. Curtis, the Grand Secretary, which says that the money should be sent with the application; it should be paid prior to the institution of the Lodge, and also all moneys for goods.
14373. You made nothing out of the institution of these Lodges? Not one penny.
14374. Was there any direct or indirect profit received by you upon the goods supplied to that Lodge? No, not one single fraction; I never made a penny out of any Lodge I have been connected with, and I may say that when Glassop and Miller were doing the printing they made the remark to me that they would allow me 5 per cent., and I refused it, and said that whatever they had to give they could give it to the Lodge.
14375. When you went to the opening of the Pymont Lodge you were driven in a carriage? I was.
14376. Can you tell me who accompanied you? A number of members who were taking part in the opening.
14377. And they returned also with you? That I could not answer for.
14378. Was the carriage kept there until after the Lodge was over? I think it called back; it is about three years ago.
14379. Did you return in it? Yes.
14380. When you canvass for men to become members of a new Lodge, do you make any inquiries at the time as to their health or suitability for joining? Yes.
14381. And on what grounds would you pass over a man? On the ground of the doctor refusing him, and knowing that he was not a fit and proper person to become a member.
14382. You do not think that the zeal displayed in the initiation of new Lodges tends to introduce an unfavourable number of old lives? No.
14383. Mr. Holdsworth.] A warrant costs £5 I think you said? Yes.
14384. That is not including the books? Yes.
14385. But you named books without the warrant? That is the Secretary's books.
14386. You have opened most of the Lodges in this Colony? Yes.
14387. You opened them on half initiation fees? Yes.
14388. Are your fees higher or lower than most of other Societies? I hardly know.
14389. Your contributions are 15d., uniform? Uniform.
14390. The later Lodges have cost about 25s. or £1? About that.
14391. That is outside the warrant? Outside of everything; that is simply the circulars.
14392. That is outside of the £36? Yes, it is simply for the printing of some circulars that we deliver.
14393. £36 you take to be an average then? Yes.
14394. You open with fifty members? Fifty at the least.
14395. That have paid their initiations? That have paid their propositions.
14396. But fifty members at half initiation fees would not be sufficient? Yes, all Lodges have sufficient.
14397. Was there enough at Pymont? Yes.
14398. Was it not opened in debt? No.
14399. And were they not sued for the amounts? They were not in debt.
14400. How did they come to be sued in the District Court? There was some printing done for that Lodge, and they were sued for that.
14401. Who ordered the printing? I did.
14402. You admit that the expenditure was extravagant? I do.
14403. And you have avoided it since? I have.
14404. Mr. Langley.] It has been stated that the Pymont, Waterloo, Surry Hills, and North Shore Lodges, with which you had something to do, have all complained of over-charges:—is that true? I do not know.
14405. Are you aware whether any trouble was made about the Waterloo Lodge? There was.
14406. Are you aware whether there was any complaint about the Surry Hills Lodge? No, I only opened it.
14407. Are you aware of complaints about the North Shore Lodge? No, I am not; I believe false statements have been issued, into which the Commission has been inquiring.
14408. Did you, when the Pymont Lodge was sued as referred to, swear that you were authorized to expend certain moneys, and that you had the authority of the Grand Master in Victoria? No, I did not say so.
14409. If that has been sworn it is untrue? I simply stated that I thought the commission I held was sufficient to enable me to incur expenses in opening Lodges.
14410. Are you aware that immediately afterwards the officers of that Lodge wrote to the officers of the Grand Lodge asking if you were so authorized, and that a reply came back that you were not authorized to spend more than £5? I was not aware of it.
14411. If it has been sworn you think it is not true? That it is not true.
14412. Can you give the name of a single officer who rode in that coach, and were there not some ladies rode in it not connected with the Order? There were plenty of members.
14413. Would you name a single officer? I repeat my remarks that officers and brothers came down in it.
14414. Are you aware that with the exception of yourself, the four or five senior officers who took part did not ride in a coach that night, but paid their own expenses? I am not aware of anything of the kind.
14415. Could you name any one Lodge—with the exception of one opened the other night—opened with fifty members? I said fifty on the roll; and every Lodge that was opened had very near that number at the opening.
14416. You said that, by resolution of the Grand Lodge of Victoria, you could not open with less than fifty on the list? I said that by resolution of the Grand Lodge of Victoria, the Grand Master would not give consent to open a Lodge with less than fifty names on the list.
14417. Was there ever such a stipulation made with regard to any new Lodge in New South Wales? New South Wales was a part of Victoria, so far as the Order was concerned, at that time, and I was acting under that.

14418. Do you know a party named Mrs. Grey whose name appears in certain accounts? I do not.
14419. Do you know who the party was who made the regalia for Pymont and Waterloo about which so much talk was made? I do not.
14420. Were any inquiries made about that lady? I believe so.
14421. Were they able to find her? I do not know.
14422. Mr. Slade.] I understood you that you ordered all these goods for Pymont? Yes.
14423. Do you consider you gave fair value for the money you charged them? I do.
14424. Was the coffin worth £3? I believe Mr. Melville made it, and that was his charge for it; it was the cheapest I could get.
14425. Are you aware that the bill charged for a box for the coffin as well? No.
14426. If a witness giving evidence before the Commission states that the coffin would be dear at £1, would you take his evidence against Mr. Melville's charge? I would not.
14427. Referring to the carriage in which you went to Pymont, could any of the executive officers have ridden in that without your knowledge? They might have done so, and if my memory serves me aright arrangements were made that the carriage should call at Abren's to take up any of the officers who wished to use it.
14428. Did any ladies go in it? Yes, but not then; later in the evening.
14429. Do you again repeat that you gave fair value for the money? Yes.
14430. There was a chest of drawers which it was said was resold for one quarter of what you charged; were they worth what you charged for them? Yes, as far as I know.
14431. Mr. Gelding.] Would you inform the Commission how many members you can virtually open a Lodge with? The minimum number according to the Constitution is ten.
14432. I believe you told the President that your Society at the present time is in a highly favourable condition? I believe it is as far as I know, but I do not know anything about figures.
14433. I suppose you have a copy of the proceedings of the Second Annual Communication of your Grand Lodge? Yes.
14434. Could you inform the Commission whether the 1,293 members in December, 1880, were financial or not? No I could not; I have nothing to do with the finances.
14435. Are you aware that this shows your Order has been going back in numbers? No, I am not aware of that.
14436. President.] Have you any further evidence to add? I have a few words to add in order that I may show in what way I was led into this expense.
14437. All we want to know is whether you have any suggestions to make? I have not, but I might have had, had I had more time.
14438. Do you regard the present Act as sufficient for the purposes of working Friendly Societies? Yes, but it would stand amending.
14439. Do you think it is properly and fairly administered? I do not; I think the Trustees should be under a bond as well as the Secretary and Treasurer, because according to all rules I see two Trustees can draw money, and the third has to stand responsible for any misdeeds on the part of the other two.
14440. Is there anything else? No, I do not think of anything else just now.

Mr.
A. Garcia.
31 July, 1882.

The Commission then adjourned till Friday, 4th August.

FRIDAY, 4 AUGUST, 1882.

Present:—

JOHN DAVIES, Esq., C.M.G., M.P., PRESIDENT.

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,
E. GREVILLE, Esq.,
P. J. NEWLAND, Esq.,
JOHN SLADE, Esq.,

JAMES F. SMITH, Esq.,
P. R. HOLDSWORTH, Esq.,
E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,
W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. Morrice Alexander Black sworn and examined:—

14441. President.] You are Actuary to the Mutual Provident Society? Yes.
14442. A member of the Institute of Actuaries? Yes.
14443. Have you given any attention to Friendly Societies and their financial basis? No, I cannot say I have, not during the last thirty-four years. It is that time since I was apprenticed to an actuary who had charge of a large Friendly Society, but since then I have not paid any special attention to them. I should say my attention was called to the Act that was passed in 1873, and I pointed out the defects in it in a letter to the Sydney Morning Herald, showing that the Act as proposed would be valueless, as not giving the requisite information.
14444. About what date was that? As far as my memory goes, it was in October, 1873. I know I did call public attention to it, but my impression is that the letter was not published.
14445. With reference to the Act that you have just made reference to, have you given it any particular attention? Well, I must confess I have not since it was passed; I gave attention to it at the time.
14446. In what particular did it strike your mind that the Act was deficient? I have a distinct recollection of reading it, and of being impressed with the fact that there was nothing in it that would enable any one to get at the right position of the Societies; there were no Schedules attached to it requiring the valuation of the assets and liabilities to be given—nothing attached to it that would render it from a professional point of view of any service.
14447. Was there any other point that struck your mind in which the Act was defective? I think my attention was directed particularly to the fact that there was nothing in it that would enable a professional actuary to arrive at the position of the Societies. As I have said, I have not looked at the Act since, and have not felt myself called upon to get up the subject; but I think there was something about statistics that were asked for. I do not think the Schedules were put in such a form as would have enabled us to arrive at satisfactory data; that is to say, the Schedules were not such as an actuary would have been able to compile

Mr.
M. A. Black.
4 Aug., 1882.

Mr. M. A. Black. compile or deduce data from the experience. I am sure that they were not in that form; that supposing I had been wanting to value the Societies; I could not have done it. I very much regret that I did not keep a copy of that letter, because I took a good deal of pains to expose the faults of the Act as it then stood, and to point out that no good results as far as disclosing the position of the Societies could possibly be arrived at. I am of course speaking from memory, as it is as far back as 1873.

4 Aug., 1892.

14448. You are aware that the Act provides for annual returns to be made by Friendly Societies? Oh yes; but there is nothing laid down or prescribed as to their character; the Act does not define the character of the returns.

14449. Have you some copies of returns? Any quantity.

14450. Will you produce them to the Commission? I have here some reports from my different professional friends when I was last in England, and have got a complete set. These are different actuarial valuations, and here is what I got from the actuary of one of the Friendly Societies myself; it is a form he supplies to Societies with the different particulars required to be furnished. (Form produced. See Appendix.)

14451. And are you of opinion that it would be necessary to have some form of this kind incorporated in the Act itself? I think so. It would be hopeless to try to get any reliable data without it.

14452. Then a return of this kind would furnish you with all the necessary information? Well, no; here is a complete set of forms that an actuary would ask for when called upon to make a valuation. I cannot put them in, as they are private, but I will give you the style of thing asked for—instructions for filling up forms, prepared by myself, for the valuation of the assets and liabilities.

14453. But I suppose we can get a table on a practicable basis? Yes; but I gather from Mr. Teece that the Societies are not in a position to give even the ages of their members.

14454. Oh no, that is an error? That I attach great importance to—getting the absolute experience of the Friendly Societies—that is to say, their sickness experience, because we talk about mortality experience here in our tables; and it does not follow that the sickness experience will be the same as the mortality experience, and we have nothing of this experience published; but if they could be got, I should think it would be most invaluable to compile the sickness experience of the different Societies; but without the ages at entrance, and ages at death, and the number of weeks' sickness they have experienced, it would be useless. If, however, that information could be elicited, it would be very valuable; and of course, in connection with these returns, besides the number of weeks' sickness per member, it should be elicited how much should be paid at each age for each member. It was not until one or two actuaries had been consulted in England that there was any improvement in the Societies there. They were as bad in England as they are here.

14455. Have you seen the form of return Mr. Teece has recommended? No, I have not.

14456. Has he not shown it to you? No. Of course these returns are by an able friend of mine, who has perhaps made more valuations than any other man, and he has these forms ready made, because he has a large practice, having reported on many Societies.

14457. Then unless the information you speak of in reference to the sickness and mortality were given, you would not be able to give anything like an estimate of value? I do not say that. I should say that the experience that I refer to would be very desirable to get, but it would not be at all necessary that the experience should precede the valuation. Just as the liabilities of the Mutual Provident and all other Societies are determined by the tables of mortality used by the English Offices, it would not be necessary that we should deduce the experience of the Societies here preparatory to making a valuation. I believe you could do nothing better than adopt the experience of the Manchester Unity of Oddfellows, as theirs is the largest experience of sickness, without exception, and it is under very competent management indeed; but then should not be lost sight of as a recommendation, the systematic collection of the experience of the Societies for New South Wales to be accumulated and recorded.

14458. You do not think it is necessary to get this information for it to form the basis of a set of tables to value these Societies now? Oh no, we have quite enough; we know the state of things here is not very much different from home, and it would be quite near enough to adopt the tables of the Manchester Unity of Mr. Ratchiffe; but if the thing is to be worked into shape, and we are to have Friendly Societies on a satisfactory and scientific footing, it should not be lost sight of.

14459. But speaking of the financial basis, do you think it necessary that we should have such information as you have indicated? Yes; but it would not be essential to determine their financial position. It is very interesting and necessary to have returns of their sickness, and to ascertain what the experience is, in order to find out what the contributions ought to be. When we do find that, we can compare it with the experience at home and see if it is more favourable; if so, the rates of contribution might be less; but a valuation could be determined by tables already existing.

14460. Then for Benefit Societies would you favour the principle of a uniform contribution from all members irrespective of the age at joining, or a graduated payment according to age? There can be no question about that; certainly a graduated scale; the other would be going back about one hundred years.

14461. Then you are not aware that most of the Societies have a fixed contribution? Well, a few hours ago I had a chat about it with Mr. Teece, but till then I did not know it. It was in primitive days when they took a uniform premium, before there were any glimmerings of science on the subject.

14462. And you are quite certain that it is necessary to have a graduated scale? Well, there is a rough and ready way the school-teachers have of adopting an assessment plan of assurance; if you want to treat of all things in common, there could be no possible objection to it.

14463. But I am asking you as to the equity of the thing? It is absurd.

14464. And as to the question whether it will place the Society in a financial position? Well, I am not sure. If you could get a good number of individuals to be so absurd, I think it would be quite possible that the Society should be financially in a sound position on a uniform scale if the payments are only high enough. If you get people foolish enough to all pay a uniform rate it would be quite within the bounds of calculation to have a uniform scale.

14465. But Societies giving benefits on the following scale:—£20 in case of the death of the member, and £10 or £15 at the death of the wife; a guinea a week sick pay for six months, 15s. the next six months, 10s. the third six months, with 5s. superannuation allowance, together with medical attendance and medicine for the member, his wife, and family, and often to the widow and orphan, and in most cases paying only 1s. a week;—would they stand? 1s. a week all round?

14466. Yes? Oh no; common sense would tell me that. Would you please state it over again?

14467. Societies with members averaging (say) forty years of age, and giving benefits on the following scale:—£20 in case of the death of the member, and £10 or £15 at the death of the wife; a guinea a week sick pay for six months, 15s. the next six months, 10s. the third six months, with 5s. superannuation allowance? No, 1s. would not do that.

14468. And independent of that, there is medical attendance for the member, his wife, and children? Well, this will give you an idea:—Omit medical attendance, which is not within the scope of calculation, and confine it to an allowance of .£1 or a guinea a week, and £20 at the death of the member, and £10 at the death of a member's wife, it would range from 11d. at age 25 to 1s. 7d. at age 40, without making any provision for expenses.

14469. Without any allowance for expenses? Yes, and without anything for the doctor; that is, it is exclusive of the cost of the medical man, medical expenses, and cost of management.

14470. In what position would you consider a Society of 2,000 members with £6,000 in funds and an average age of members of thirty-six years? I could not tell, I am sure.

14471. They have about £2 14s. a member? They may be hopelessly insolvent, or there may be a surplus; it would depend upon the present value of liabilities,—in fact no one could tell; I would not even state the thing approximately, because it would be utterly hopeless.

14472. You are aware that members of Societies have to undergo a medical examination prior to initiation? Well, so much the better for the Societies.

14473. Seeing that the wives of members participate in the financial benefits of the Societies, do you think that they also should undergo a medical examination? Most decidedly. It is difficult I know, and that is one reason we do not like female lives, on account of the difficulty of getting full examinations.

14474. What is your experience in the Colony with reference to the mortality as compared with the mortality of the old country, among the working-classes especially? That I could not say. My impression I may give you, and that is, that it is more favourable; that is to say, I have made sufficient investigation to lead me to the impression that the mortality for those insured for smaller sums is better than amongst those insured for larger, and that is contrary to the experience at home, where they look upon those insured for large amounts as the best lives. But I have reason to believe that at home that question has not been so thoroughly gone into as its interest would warrant. Put it at those insured for sums below £500 and those above. I think our mortality would be less, but I have not enough data to go upon to say certainly.

14475. Is there anything you would like to give the Commission the benefit of, any statement you would like to make bearing upon this matter? No, I do not think so. I think that forms ought to be appended to any Act, making it compulsory on the members to furnish returns, and that they ought to be required to have a valuation of assets and liabilities made once in so many years. I am quite sure that is indispensable to any satisfactory working of Benefit Societies; that is to say, to secure to the members that there shall be no disappointment to them when they come really to depend on it. Without that I do not see that this security could be got.

14476. Then you are of opinion that in any future legislation such forms should be attached to the Act, making it imperative on Societies to furnish the necessary data? Yes; but probably the forms might be left to the Registrar. The Victorian Act works well, and I understand that they have got returns from every Society, but it should be made compulsory for them to have a valuation in a specific form; but at home they have got into the way of having valuations by unprofessional people, and getting them rough and ready. You can have it cheap and nasty, but if you want it done properly you have to pay for it.

14477. And how often do you think it could be necessary to have such valuations? Not oftener than every five years.

14478. In registering Societies would it be necessary to have some information of a substantial character as to the possibilities and probability of the Society continuing to exist, before the Registrar granted a certificate? That would require that you would have a certain minimum number of members.

14479. And basis of contribution? I think you can scarcely ask them to guarantee a certain number of members.

14480. But the amount of contribution? Yes, I think that might be fixed.

14481. But would it not be necessary to regulate the number of members in instituting a Society? No, I do not think you could do that. Most of the big Societies have been first little and then have crept up.

14482. In connection with Friendly Societies would you make any distinction with reference to occupations and trades and callings of the members? That forms part of the returns the actuary would ask for, and it is very necessary. I certainly would in the statistics; and when the experience was large enough of all the combined Societies, it would be desirable to distinguish and elicit information on that point no doubt.

14483. Do you think it would be necessary also in regulating the matter of payments to single out any of these occupations as being more hazardous and more subject to sickness? Well, I think that is a refinement that has not been gone into; it is the case, no doubt. I was reading the other day in connection with the relative effect of mortality and sickness, it does not follow that because the sickness among a particular class is greater than among another that the mortality is greater. There are many occupations, such as mining, that are liable to a great deal of accident; they may have a great deal of sickness in this way though they may be healthy men; while clerks and tailors may experience less actual sickness and yet have a higher death rate.

14484. But as affecting sick pay the miner would have a great risk? Yes; but I do not think refinements of that class have been introduced. Of course there must be a certain amount of things in common; we may talk about getting things as near as possible in an equitable division of profits, when at the best it is only an approximation.

14485. You have paid some attention to the tables by which the Manchester Unity is governed in the Old Country? Yes, I know something about that. That is a Society that, from being in a state of insolvency in 1845 or 1846, worked itself round and had rates deduced from its own experience; and it is my impression that they are now working satisfactorily.

14486. You are aware that they are now in a very good position? Yes.

14487. And they have some basis to work upon? Yes; they have a very good man who has taken a great interest in it, and their experience is very valuable. It is their experience which I recommended should form the basis for determining the benefits in these Colonies.

14488.

Mr.
M. A. Black.
4 Aug., 1882.

- Mr. M. A. Black. 14488. Are you aware of the payments that they make? I could not say. I did begin to read up something about it, but it is only a couple of days ago, and I have had so much private business on hand that I have been unable to follow it up.
- 4 Aug., 1882. 14489. Have you anything further to add? No, except this, that Friendly Societies business had come very little before actuaries until the Act was passed in England some few years ago. Neison and I think old Mr. Ansell valued and knew the position of certain large Societies, but the great bulk of us did not. These gentlemen I refer to made it a special study. As for myself, though I have had considerable practice in investigating the affairs of Building Societies, I have never had a Friendly Society placed before me in these colonies, and the consequence is that I have not had occasion to look into the matter, although I take an interest in it and am glad to see the thing is being looked into.
14490. I presume you are aware that there are some tens of thousands of individuals enrolled in the Societies? Yes, I apprehend that there are a large number.
14491. Do you favour the principle of Friendly Societies? Yes.
14492. You believe it is an advantage to the individual and to the State? I do indeed, especially in regard to sickness. I do not think it can be compassed in any other way. I do not really think it could be done by a Company. It would not do to limit the number of any Friendly Society; they have a better control over it if they have a sufficiently broad basis; they must be local, and local knowledge is a great thing in checking fraud. I am not aware of any Company that has ever efficiently dealt with sickness.
14493. Are you of opinion that the members of Friendly Societies should be encouraged by the State? I am of that opinion.
14494. Do you consider these Societies encourage a spirit of thrift and saving amongst the people themselves? Yes, and interest; they take an interest in the Societies if they could only be made to have them rightly managed.
14495. Do you consider they encourage a spirit of self-reliance? Yes. I remember a remark of Mr. Gladstone's when he introduced his Bill providing for life insurance under £200, to the effect that he would not face the difficulty of bringing these Societies all under one rule, or of crushing them up so as to undertake it nationally. He had no objection to the State saying—here is a solvent Society that we guarantee—but he would not seek to destroy their independence. It was so inbred into the soul of the people, the interest they took in Friendly Societies, that it would not be a wise thing to crush them out, even for the sake of making them all tally to one rule or taking them under Government patronage; but that is quite a different thing if we could leave the social element and yet get them solvent—that is the great thing.
14496. Are you of opinion that the Registrar should be an actuary? Not necessarily. Well, perhaps here he ought to be; at home, and before the Act came into force, the registration, I must be plain to say, was a great delusion and a snare—it was worse than useless; the Societies got a certificate from the Registrar, and people thought everything was right because he had certified to it. But he was no actuary, and knew nothing about the rates; he simply registered what he got, and it was a veritable sham under the Tidd-Pratt system. But under the new Act a very different state of things takes place; there is a Registrar who merely acts in the capacity of a Registrar, registering the Societies after the rates have been actuarially certified. But there is also an actuary attached to the office, and he sees to the quinquennial investigations of the Societies, and reports annually upon them, and in that way there is a complete and systematic report.
14497. You are not aware that the same thing exists here, that we simply have a Registrar? Yes, I am aware of it, and it is useless.
14498. And would your remarks just made apply with the same force if similar circumstances exist here? Not if it was to be taken up personally. I think his office is worse than useless, and the Registrar is helpless as regards information. It was most painful and ridiculous in England at that time.
14499. Do you think it would be necessary to have an actuary occupying the position of Registrar, or to have a Registrar and actuary? I think it would be rather superfluous to have the two; in a small place like this I think that one would be quite enough, but he ought to be a man that knew something about the science.
14500. Then I understand you that the Registrar should be an actuary? Yes; if you want to have the Societies reported on annually, and all the information put in the proper statistical form, you must have a man of that kind.
14501. Are you aware that they have something of that kind in Victoria? Yes, and I am well aware that they have one in New Zealand, and there it is a credit to the Colony.
14502. Have you seen the annual report furnished by the actuary there? Yes.
14503. Is that not the most complete report we have from any of the Societies? I think it is.
14504. Have you anything further to add to your evidence already given? No, I do not think so; I think I have made it clear that valuation reports should be required and schedules appended to the Act; but if you put to me any series of questions I will have pleasure in answering them.
14505. I understand you have no objection to furnish the Commission with the statistical information that can be prepared from the returns which are now out, and which at Mr. Teece's suggestion we have adopted? No; but I would not like to be bound by any one form.
14506. Will you look at this (the form of return prepared by Mr. Teece)? I should doubt if this is sufficiently detailed, but would not like to say so until I have looked into it. No doubt we could correspond and elicit more information if it were required.
14507. But we wanted to procure all the information we could in that sheet for you, in order that when we get the results from the Societies we should be able to hand them over to you and get the final result from you? Well, I hope they will be enough.
14508. But we should like to know if we have got all the information? Well you would not ask me to answer that off-hand. I will take the form and look over it.
14509. Mr. Greville.] Do I understand you correctly in saying that in framing tables of payments to be made it would be necessary to take the experience of England, instead of the experience of Australia, simply because the latter has not yet been obtained? Yes.
14510. If that be the case, there need be no great delay in fixing the minimum which should be paid by Societies in the future? No.
14511. Then the utility of obtaining the returns which we purpose obtaining will be principally in the future? Yes.

14512. What you would propose is that they should be the basis of future returns, so that ultimately we may have an Australian experience? Precisely.

14513. In fixing the rates of contribution here, would you take into consideration the large amounts which are paid by members into a Society for which benefits are never subsequently returned, in consequence of the men shifting about, or from other causes leaving the Society? No.

14514. Would it however be correct to take that into consideration when you had an Australian experience? I do not think it would; it is a miscellaneous source of profit that would go into the general fund.

14515. If in examining the accounts of various Friendly Societies in this Colony you found that the deficiency was compensated for by the number of withdrawals, would you not be justified in taking them into consideration? No; the profit that represents would go into the general fund, and it would be bettered to that extent, and the fund would not be wrong.

14516. But I glean from the examination of witnesses here that the Societies existing in New South Wales have simply been able to pay their way and not become insolvent because of the policies lapsing—as it would be termed in insurance? That is begging the question entirely; no scientific witness ever said that, because the thing resolves itself into determining the liabilities of the Society and the realised assets; and if the contingent and realised assets are not equal to the liabilities the Society is not solvent. A mere statement of that sort is worth nothing; it may be true, but it can scarcely be asserted of any Society.

14517. Would you be justified in taking that into consideration? No, because it would come in in the gain. There would be so much premium received which would not be received next year, and the funds would be increased by the fact that the members were off the books, and the accruing funds would be benefited by this means. Therefore, that fact of itself showed that all was taken into account that could be taken into account.

14518. Then, in fact, it is taken into consideration? It is taken into consideration; but I thought you meant whether in valuing the liabilities we would take it into account.

14519. And therefore, if there is a large amount of benefits paid for which are never claimed a less contribution would do in this country than in the old country? No, I would not go to that length; that would be a very unsafe basis to go upon; it would never do to introduce that as an element in the calculations and thus lower the contributions. If the contributions were too low, it might by a balance of errors right itself, but it would never do to start with the assumption that that is a source of profit, that is to enable you to lower the payments. You must start with the assumption that for the benefits promised you are to get an equal payment. If a member departs from his contract and goes away, it is so much good to the Society and will show itself in a surplus.

14520. You say it would show itself in a surplus, and what would you do with the surplus, seeing that bonuses are not added? A surplus is very easily disposed of. That is not a thing to be entered into in taking future contributions.

14521. Seeing that the information the Commission is about to collect will not be the basis of your advice to the Commission, I presume we need hardly wait until all the returns are in before you would be able to give the actuarial opinion which would be requested of you? No.

14522. There is another element of profit which has prevented these insecure Societies from exploding, which is that members have contributed who may be called honorary members; for a long series of years they never have and never will take any benefits; is that a fit subject for consideration? It would all go into the general profits, but it would not amount to a great deal I take it.

14523. Then you consider that, for the purpose of starting or to put these Societies on a firm basis, we should be guided simply by English experience? Yes, for the present.

14524. Mr. Holdsworth.] Referring to the last question of Mr. Greville's, would not Mr. Ratcliffe's last tables be more reliable than any imperfect tables we could find in New South Wales now? We have none now, and of course that would be so.

14525. If we obtained from the various large Societies the ages of the various members, that is, the number at each particular age in each Lodge, and the funds, that is all that you require on which to base a calculation? The ages on entering and the present age, together with the rates of contributions and benefits.

14526. Would you require the age on entering? It would be better.

14527. But is it absolutely necessary; there will be a great deal of difficulty about it? Well, we require the age at entrance and the duration, and from the age at entrance plus the duration you get the present age.

14528. If we could get the average ages in the Colony with the average amount of sickness, would it not form something like a guide to judge the sickness of this Colony with that of the mother country? Better without it, if only averages are dealt with.

14529. In future you would compel Societies to keep proper returns, so as to base your calculations hereafter on our own experience? Yes, so that they might have the returns in such a way that they could make them without difficulty.

14530. You say the mortality amongst the working-classes is less here than at home? I give that opinion guardedly.

14531. Would not the same rule apply to the sickness? It does not follow that because the mortality in a particular country or among a particular Society is low that the sickness will be the same. My last mortality report shows the mortality from accidents is as high as 14 per cent., while in English offices it is about 2 per cent. Taking accidents by themselves, the mortality in the Australian Mutual is vastly higher than in any other Society known, and that of course relates to fatal accidents; but by the same reasoning we know that people suffer and have to suffer sickness on account of accidents not fatal, and I am inclined to think that the sickness in these Colonies may be far in excess of what it is at home, though it may not at all affect the mortality.

14532. On the same plea, might it not follow that, though the mortality from accidents is heavier the sickness is lighter? No, because the accidents they have do not terminate fatally; for instance, in mining a man may get severely injured and be laid up for weeks, and yet it would not follow that it would shorten his life or that he would be permanently disabled, and there are a number of trades and callings in the same position.

14533. Do you not think that the more favourable climate the working-classes are placed in here would counteract all other reasons? No.

- Mr. M. A. Black.
4 Aug., 1882.
14534. Then you think that the sickness is as heavy in New South Wales as in the mother country? I have given you the reason why I think it is probable it may be, but we are in the dark.
14535. Do you think it would be advisable to have a special Government Department in connection with Friendly Societies? Only to the extent of having a clerk, and actuary, or a skilled person as Registrar.
14536. You would want a statist, would you not? I would call the actuary the statist.
14537. Would one competent person be able to do it all? Yes, with a couple of clerks, if you get hold of a good skilled man who knows what he is about.
14538. You have not given any consideration I think to the sickness rates of Friendly Societies? No, except from my early association with a very well-managed Society in the North of Scotland, where I was trained; in my private practice it has not come before me.
14539. If I understand you, your view is that the number of lapsed members—while a sort of contingent profit—could not be taken into consideration in the calculation, because they are not reliable? Precisely so. I have heard that Mr. Neison, the well known actuary, theorized over it for the purpose of trying to get something to help out an insolvent Society, but found it would be no use.
14540. Mr. Langley.] Would not a return for ten years of the different Friendly Societies of the number of members who had resigned or left the Societies be of some value? Yes, as a statistical fact.
14541. But as a feature in connection with the working of Friendly Societies in the past? I do not think so.
14542. Would it be useful? No, I cannot see it.
14543. If it is proved that in the past this gain by members leaving and members taking no benefits had proved an important feature, would it not be of some value if that return were sent in to you? Yes—it would be a rather troublesome return—but I think I understand you this way: in the first year there would be a man who paid, we will say, half the year's subscription and then left the Society; but you cannot say that the premium that man paid or contributed for sickness is all profit. It was not profit; you would have to calculate the risk that the Society ran for this benefit during that time, and the difference between that and the payment he made would be the net profit, and that would be a most tremendously elaborate return to make. Then you would go into the second year, with a man who had contributed say two years and nine months for these benefits, and then went away. He had contracted for a benefit of so much at death, so much at the death of his wife, and so much for sickness. To sum up the total receipts from him and say we received so much premium as profit would be utterly delusive.
14544. But would it not be actual profit what was paid? No, certainly not; that is a popular delusion that people entertain when they come to us and ask us why we do not give them all their premiums back, as it is all profit.
14545. The net profit must form an important item? I grant it; but what could you make of it?—In every Friendly Society and Insurance Society there is a certain amount of miscellaneous profits, and that is one of them.
14546. Would the experience of Friendly Societies in Victoria, the statistical information that has been obtained, not be to some extent equally applicable to New South Wales? I think so, as far as regards the sickness and mortality experience collected there.
14547. I presume you are aware that there has been an exhaustive inquiry in Victoria? Yes.
14548. Have you seen the evidence at all? I have not. I have seen the New Zealand, but I have not had the time to study it.
14549. Mr. Rubie.] For the purpose of this Commission you think all necessary would be to adopt the tables of Mr. Ratcliffe? I think that would be near enough.
14550. And as nearly all the Societies at present have a uniform rate of payment, all that would be required to value them would be to get from the Societies the collective ages of the individuals? If you mean by that, to find out what the payments and benefits are and from that to ascertain what the present value of the payments and liabilities is, yes that is so.
14551. If the law was brought into force adopting Ratcliffe's tables as a minimum, those who belong to Societies such as there are at present would suffer; it would be rather unjust to compel them to pay at the age they now are in place of the age they joined at. The only thing would be that the surplus funds at present should act as a sort of loading of the premiums? No; if there is a surplus it would be a diminution.
14552. Yes, that is what I mean—to make up for the ages at which they are now? Yes; but it would be very complicated, and there would be a serious hardship in the matter.
14553. Further, relative to lapsed premiums or contributions, that would always find itself in the profits; and if so, at the quinquennial valuation it could be devoted to some other purpose of the Society? To augment the benefit or diminish the payment. There is one other thing you may be ignorant of; there are only two things which are open for an actuary to take notice of in these Societies; that is, the sickness and death rate.
14554. The other things, say expenses and medicines would be simply a matter of special provision? Yes, that is so. If you eliminate the expense you eliminate the whole subject, as that is a very vital part of it.
14555. A great deal of the work is done for nothing? So much the better.
14556. And the expenses would be at a minimum in these Societies? Yes.
14557. And if these two things were provided for, the sickness and death rate, the other expenses of management and doctor and medicine could be provided by a pro rata scale for the members? Yes; a large Society is not managed without money.
14558. Then you would take that into account with the sickness and mortality? Yes, and in graduating the premium for the benefit; the premium you ask for the benefit must involve a certain sum to cover the expenses of management.
14559. But a rate of contribution might be framed irrespective of expenses? Of course it could; the provision for expenses could be added to the net premium, but you need not necessarily separate them in announcing what the contribution is.
14560. But in these Friendly Societies the expenses are incurred totally outside of the mere working of the sick rate or death rate? You mean that there may be extraneous expenses outside the management; well, all that comes under the heading of expenses, and whether spent wisely or foolishly, it all must come out of one fund, namely, the fund for expenses, which has to be got from the members; and it is got, either from the contribution at initiation or so much is put on to the premium for expenses. The sickness fund ought to be by itself and the Assurance Fund by itself; and if it was well managed and properly done, there would be no difficulty whatever in seeing that the total expenses should be apportioned to the respective funds.

Mr. M. A. Black. 4 Aug., 1882.

14561. I have a table framed some five years ago in Scotland for a Benefit Society which gives a table of premiums, a sickness table, and a superannuation table; the expenses of the Society were managed by an incidental fund, by a pro rata levy on each member? That can be done.

14562. Then you think there would be no difficulty at once in any new Societies being formed in adopting Ratcliffe's tables as a basis? Yes, the rate of interest being higher here they would be specially computed; we would compute them on a 4 per cent. basis.

14564. Would the calculation be made on the sickness for which benefits have been paid, or on the whole of the experience of the Society? On the whole of the experience of the Society—on the whole of the members that have been exposed to sickness,

14565. And have received benefits therefor? Yes, just the same as in investigating the mortality of a Society you have to take into account not only the members who died, but the members existing and those who have gone off; those that are in the Society, those that have left the Society, and those that have become claims.

14566. But in case of death a person does die and you have knowledge of that, but you have no knowledge of concealed or unreported sickness;—would that interfere with the calculation? Not at all; it is all that are exposed to the risk of sickness in the one case or to the risk of death in the other; you could not deduce a table of sickness simply from those that have suffered sickness.

14567. I present you here with a form of returns called for by the New Zealand Government, and also a form called for by the Ancient Order of Foresters to work out that; would they be more useful than those called for now in New South Wales? This was what I had in view when I was looking at Mr. Teece's form; this is more to the point I think—it is a very good return. All this is necessary if we are going to get a sickness experience.

14568. President.] It is only fair to Mr. Teece to say that that return of his is simply for the purpose of obtaining the financial position of the Societies? I understand that.

14569. Would it do for that? Yes, decidedly.

14570. Mr. Gelding.] You were asked what you would do with the surplus of Societies that went on a sliding scale, could it not be distributed to the members, would not that be equitable? Quite so.

14571. I presume you would modify Ratcliffe's tables? I think so; they would have to be modified, I think.

14572. Considerably? I do not say considerably, it would be better to err on the safe side. I would give the benefit of the higher rate of interest.

14573. A good many of the gentlemen examined here believe that because they save a few pounds every year they are thoroughly sound; you do not believe so? No; I could give you many instances of Societies and Companies which held a million of money succumbing in the end.

14574. President.] You have nothing further to add? No.

The Commission then adjourned till Monday, 7th August.

MONDAY, 7 AUGUST, 1882.

Present:—

JOHN GELDING, Esq.,

W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. A. Kethel sworn and examined:—

14575. President.] The object of bringing you here is in reference to a statement made by Mr. Stephen Murphy before the Commission. In his evidence he states, "Mr. Alexander Kethel told me that Mr. Gelding was the only obstacle in the way of my being reinstated." I want to ask you if that is true? No, I did not say that.

Mr. A. Kethel. 7 Aug., 1882.

14576. Has Mr. Gelding at any time taken any action to prevent the admission of this man Murphy? As far as I know he has not; and I do not think he could do so without my knowledge.

14577. Did you ever tell Mr. Murphy that he had done so? Never.

14578. The question was asked Mr. Murphy, "Will you inform the Commission who informed you that Mr. Kethel said that Mr. Gelding was the obstacle to your reinstatement in the Lodge," and in reply he says, "Mr. Kethel told me himself"? There is no truth in that—not the faintest shadow of truth.

14579. And as far as your knowledge goes, Mr. Gelding at no time took any action to prevent this man's reinstatement? He took none, but rather befriended the man. I told Mr. Murphy that when he told me on his visit that I possessed a great deal more influence than he gave me credit for, and that if I liked to work for him I could get him reinstated, that no living man could cause him to be reinstated; that those who had influence obtained that influence by administering the laws truly, and that his only means of being reinstated would be through the regular tribunals of the Order. I told him that, and Mr. Carter the same.

14580. Mr. Abigail.] Did any one write a letter to you urging you if possible to use your influence to get this man back? Yes, I believe Mr. Abigail did; Mr. Carter also wrote to me—Mr. Geo. L. Carter.

14581. If Mr. Murphy said you gave him no opportunity of looking at the books when on his trial, would that be true? No, it would be a deliberate falsehood; I asked him if he required the books, and ordered the books to be produced, and told Murphy they were at his disposal.

Mr.

Mr. W. E. Langley sworn and examined :—

- Mr. W. E. Langley.
7 Aug., 1882.
14582. President.] Do you produce a letter here? I produce a letter.
14583. From Mr. Garcia? Yes.
14584. Sent to Mr. Melville? Mr. Melville, M.L.A. (letter read as follows) :—

N. Melville, Esq.—
Park-street, 2 August, 1882.
Sir,—Yesterday I appeared before the Royal Commission to reply to certain questions. Some person belonging to the Pyrmont Lodge in his evidence stated that the coffin made by you was not worth £1. I told the Commission it was a lie, and was well worth the money you charged, £3, I think; and furthermore, that yours were the cheapest I could obtain. It was told to the Commission with a view to damage my reputation. I thought I would inform you, so as to confirm my statement as to your charges and the value of the goods.
Yours respectfully,
A. M. GARCIA.

14585. Can you testify to the correctness of the signature? I can swear to the signature.
14586. Is the statement made therein, as far as you know, true? It is not; it is unmistakably untrue that any maker's name was mentioned.
14587. Has any such statement been made, as far as your knowledge goes, before the Commission? Mr. Melville's name was never mentioned before this Commission, except by Garcia himself.
14588. Do you remember who brought the Pyrmont Lodge business before the Commission? I think it was by a member of the Commission; I was asked some questions about it.
14589. And the reference was to the cost of opening? Yes.
14590. And the only name you remember in connection with that —? Was that of this Mr. Garcia.

Mr. John Slade sworn and examined :—

- Mr. J. Slade.
7 Aug., 1882.
14591. President.] You have expressed a wish to be examined before the Commission? Yes.
14592. With reference to the medical officers of various Friendly Societies? Yes.
14593. You are aware of the sum that is paid by the different Societies to secure medical attendance? Yes, over a space of thirty-two years in this Colony, I have made on behalf of Friendly Societies engagements and contracts with doctors.
14594. Does the present system work satisfactorily? As far as my experience goes, the terms on which medical men and the Societies have been have been mutually satisfactory, and with only some few exceptions mutually advantageous.
14595. Do you consider the amount paid by the Societies is sufficient to secure the best of the medical men? Yes.
14596. And good attendance to the members of the Societies? Yes.
14597. Faithful attendance on the part of the medical officer? Yes. I give as proof of this the fact that I have known Societies to have the attendance of the same medical man for a period of twenty-five years, others fourteen years, ten years, six years, and seven years. I have known a medical man elected fifteen or sixteen times to a Society without opposition, and when the contract between them was severed it was by mutual consent, and regretted by both sides.
14598. I presume that there is not much difficulty in securing a medical officer for a Society? I know of none.
14599. And what do you consider fair payment to a medical man? Without medicine, I should think 15s. or 16s.; upon these terms I have known doctors to attend Societies for the periods I have named.
14600. With reference to the present system of contributions to Societies by the members of Societies, do you favour the principle of graduated contributions? Yes, decidedly; I believe it to be the only safe principle on which Societies can work now and in the future.
14601. You are aware that most of the Societies at the present time have uniform contributions? Yes.
14602. Do you think that system is unequal in its operation, and that it tends to place Societies in an unfinancial position? Yes, I consider it both unfair and injudicious.
14603. Is there any difficulty in carrying out the graduated contributions? None that I can see; and as evidence I give the experience of a great Society in Great Britain, numbering 620,000 members. The experience there is that nothing but graduated payments will ensure permanent stability in Friendly Societies.
14604. In reference to matters of dispute, do you favour the present provisions in the Act to settle matters in the Law Courts? I favour the provision which provides that each Society should have an Arbitration Board, and I should supplement that by having a Board of which the Registrar should be President, their decisions to be final without appeal to the Law Courts, except in criminal matters. In no case of dispute or in civil matters do I favour resort to the Law Courts.
14605. What has been your experience of members declaring on the sick funds and shamming sickness? Some very pointed cases have come under my notice; I have known men receive large sums of money, some while malingering, and others concealed diseases for which the Society did not pay benefits; others received money while able to do their work. And concealment of age at entrance is another fraud which has given them large benefits in some cases, and only at the death of these persons has it been found out that they had defrauded the Society.
14606. Do you approve of persons being members of more than one Society? Yes; my reason being that a man who belongs to a Society and whose wages or salary is £3 or £4 a week cannot afford to avail himself of the advantages of his Society while the whole benefits are £1 a week, and he will work while really unable to do so.
14607. Would you limit the amount of payment? Yes, I would limit it to two Societies at a guinea each. This would be useful to a tradesman or good mechanic, while one would be no good at all to him. Shopkeepers in particular are largely injured by these, the Societies' rules preventing them from doing any sort of work while receiving sick pay, and £1 being totally inadequate to pay the expenses while sick.
14608. With reference to the superannuation or pensioning of members, would you make any special provision? I would, but entirely separate from all other benefits; a separate fund with separate Trustees, and administered separately.
14609. How would you sustain it? By a small yearly contribution to be paid by the members. There is one instance in this Colony of a Society which paid for about ten years, and then had £1,600 or £1,700 to start with. They did it, and for the last fifteen years they have pensioned about fifteen persons on an average for life.
14610.

14610. Then I understand you that this contribution should be outside the ordinary contribution? Yes. Mr. J. Slade.
14611. With reference to the present mode of book-keeping adopted in Friendly Societies, would you prefer a uniform system? Decidedly, yes; and that system I think should be furnished to the Societies in any new Act, by some one skilled in preparing such forms, and knowing the peculiar way in which Societies take their money and distribute it. 7 Aug., 1882.
14612. Do you think it should be the duty of the Registrar to supply a form of book or books? A form certainly.
14613. What is your opinion with reference to the management and expenses incurred in connection with these districts? My opinion is, that in some cases such management is grossly extravagant, almost criminal I may say. I know some districts which work for about 6½ and others 8½ per cent., but I have a Return here of a district with an income of £87 4s. 11d. which spent £136 11s. in management, the whole of the moneys being management, excepting £2 2s. donation to a Hospital. It is the Bathurst District of the Manchester Unity; the District shows a large balance in the Bank, but taking the half-year's expenditure, it is as I have stated.
14614. Do you think it would be necessary for the Government to appoint an officer to make an annual valuation of the assets and liabilities of the various Societies? I think that should be the most imperative provision of any new Act, and such statement should be made public as quickly as possible for the information of the public, and to let people know what Societies are worthy of their confidence, and to give them the chance of choosing on plain and straightforward grounds which Society they will join and support.
14615. Then I gather from what you have stated that you favour the view that, in any future legislation, there should be provision made for the rate of contribution to be paid by persons joining the Societies? I believe they should fix a minimum, but I think it would be wrong to go further than that, because if an arbitrary scale were fixed, the Government would in a measure become responsible for the tables they made, and if carried out and the Societies failed, parties that had paid according to the Government rates and valuation would have a claim against the Government if they did not work out successfully.
14616. Then this fixing of the minimum should be on some table founded on an actuarial report? Yes.
14617. With reference to dealing with defaulting Secretaries and Treasurers, have you any suggestions to make to deal with cases of that kind? I have, and I would make it imperative that no condonation or settlement be allowed outside of the Registrar's Court. All defalcations should be handed to the Registrar, and he should decide whether they should go to the Law Courts or be settled by arbitration. I have known of Treasurers who have appropriated the funds of a Society who have attended the meeting for the examination of themselves in the matter, and have assisted in making terms by which they would repay to the Society the money they had misappropriated, to pay it back in instalments. I know of several cases of this kind.
14618. Then I understand you would be in favour of exacting from each officer—Treasurer or Secretary—a fidelity bond? Yes.
14619. In every case? Yes.
14620. And you would make it imperative? Yes, I would.
14621. Do you think that the Society's books should be accessible at all times to an officer of the Registrar's Department? Yes, I would make it imperative that every Society should submit its books to a Government officer at any time he called, either at the Secretary's residence in reasonable hours, or at the Lodge room or place of meeting as duly advertised.
14622. Have you anything further to add? I do not know that I have.
14623. Mr. Abigail.] Does your experience apply to more than one Society? Only one Benefit Society with two Branches attached, these having separate subscriptions and separate benefits.
14624. Have you known any cases of misappropriation of Society's funds by officers or members? Yes, several; one case was that of a Treasurer who misappropriated money, and was allowed to give two securities for its repayment back in instalments, during the repayment of which he continued a member of the Society and took part in the proceedings.
14625. What was his name? One case was a man named Page, and another a man named Ralston.
14626. What was the amount in Page's case? £77.
14627. He remained a member, and is still a member? Yes.
14628. Of what Society? The Ancient Order of Foresters.
14629. Do you not know that is contrary to the Friendly Societies Act? Yes, and I warned them of the consequences of their act.
14630. Now, the next case? Is that of a Treasurer named Ralston; I think the amount was some £12 or £13; similar action was taken in this case.
14631. Any other case? The third case was a Secretary.
14632. The same order? Yes, the same Branch unfortunately.
14633. Do you know the amount? £8 or £9 I think.
14634. And the same mode was adopted? Yes, and I believe he is still a member.
14635. Any cases of other Branches? Yes; there was a Secretary named Edwards of a Branch at Pymont who paid the expenses of a ball out of the Society's funds, and it brought about the ruin of the Branch, which has been wound up under the Act in consequence of this; but the members of the Branch did not suffer in consequence of this winding up.
14636. None of them? They had one sick member to whom they owed a large amount of money; I was appointed to meet them, and I found they had only enough to pay him; they cleared off all their debts.
14637. Any other case? Officers I cannot give you any; but individual cases of private members, yes.
14638. Let us have them? There is the case of a man named O'Brien who received £26 while having venereal disease.
14639. Did the Lodge take any action? Yes, they called him before the Arbitration Committee; it was proved, but under the old Act we could not proceed against him.
14640. Any other case? A man named Patmore, who after receiving a sum of money was found to have been working at his trade all the time. He was called up, and was offered the alternative of paying back the money; he refused to do so, and left the Society.
14641. Is that the whole of the cases of that kind? No, there is the case of a man named Dawes, who concealed eight years of his age at the time he joined. He received a large amount of sick pay—nearly £200,

- Mr. J. Slade. £200, and when applying to be pensioned claimed his age as a reason; the age he appeared on the Society's books rebutted that claim; he persisted and on taking evidence he was found to have entered his age as six years younger than his sister, whom he was really two years older than she was. His case was tried and it was decided that he should receive no further benefits, and he refused to pay any more money.
- 7 Aug., 1882. 14642. Did you get any money back? Not a sixpence; there was no mode, according to the manner the law was then administered, by which we could recover. The fourth case has recently occurred; a man named Moran, who concealed four years of his age; he had received £122 16s. 6d. from the Society and had been 2½ years pensioned as well. On his death being registered we found he was four years older than he stated when he joined, when if he had given his right age he would have been too old to join at all.
14643. Would it not be well to insist on the production of the registration certificate? These men all made declarations that they were not older than they stated, but the breach of agreement was not found out until too late to get the money. There was another case in which a Branch of our Order in Queensland was concerned, in which a member surpassed his alleged age by six years; he had received a good amount of benefits, but on registering his death they found the concealment out, and I refused to pay the money.
14644. Has the District taken any steps to meet difficulties of this kind? They do when it pertains to the funeral gifts, but the sick benefit pertains only to the Branches.
14645. If you found the matter out before the funeral gift would you withhold it? Yes, we have done so.
14646. Is it not a great hardship to the wife and family? Yes, but they have reaped the advantage of this man's concealment all his life.
14647. That is the whole of the cases of this kind that you can remember? Yes, that is where the funds have been interfered with by the officers and where the Society has been imposed upon.
14648. Have you known any cases where sick members failed to get the benefits they were entitled to? No, except in one or two cases. Years ago it was the impression that if a man belonged to two Societies he could not claim benefits from both, and one of the old Societies in Sydney used to refuse to pay the full £1 a week if they found their members belonged to any other Society.
14649. Have you any cases in your Order where doctors have given certificates that members were sick when they were not? Not knowingly, but carelessly, yes.
14650. To any large extent? No, we have cases of medical men who have been totally unfit for the position.
14651. Are complaints frequently made by the members of want of attention on the part of medical men? Occasionally, but I take very little notice of that, as if you had a medical man to each member in a Society it would not please them.
14652. Mr. Langley.] In the case of syphilis you mentioned did the medical man certify? Yes.
14653. Though he knew that according to the rules a disease of that kind debarred the party from having any claim on the Lodge? Yes.
14654. Did that occur in Sydney? Yes, we suffered the loss of £26 through the carelessness of the medical man.
14655. Mr. Rubie.] Do you think that in any new Act it would not be well to define when the benefits should cease? I believe in all future legislation the liability of the Society to a member for benefits should cease immediately the member ceases to be in a position to be compelled to pay his subscriptions, directly he becomes unfinancial whatever the period may be.
14656. Mr. Smith.] The case you have referred to respecting Moran—is it not a fact that the Society took very great care to investigate as to the truth of his age? Yes, and it was only a question of veracity; the Branch refused him from his appearance, it being such as they thought made his statement untrue. He afterwards availed himself of an examination by the District Officers, and, in a measure, unknown to the Branch, was admitted at the age he stated.
14657. Mr. Gelding.] Had the District power to enter into that arrangement after the Lodge had repudiated the matter? The District rules at the time were such that if the Society was not satisfied the proposer and seconder could take him before the District Officer, who might order his admission.
14658. Do you think that is judicious? I do not think it is judicious at all.
14659. Mr. Newland.] Are you in favour of Societies having a dispensary of their own? I am; I am in favour of the medical benefits of Societies being administered so that they shall collectively form a Medical Board of sufficient medical skill to attend to the whole of their members; that they shall administer their drugs and medicines in the same manner, so as to secure the best attendance that can be got. The Ancient Order of Foresters has some sixty Branches over Great Britain worked on this principle, and they have 612,000 members, with a reserve fund of two and three-quarter millions.
14660. Have the medical men, in your opinion, been careful in the examination of candidates? I am sorry to say I believe them to be very careless.

The Commission then adjourned until Monday, 21st August.

FRIDAY, 17 NOVEMBER, 1882.

E. J. RUBIE, Esq.,
W. E. LANGLEY, Esq.

Mr. Thomas Mervyn Shepherd sworn and examined:—

- Mr. T. M. Shepherd. 14661. President.] You are a member of —? The Ancient Order of Foresters.
14662. What office do you hold? Chairman.
14663. Have you been long connected with the Society? About fifteen years.
- 17 Nov., 1882. 14664. Has there been some irregular proceeding in connection with the finances of the Society recently? Well, that is rather a wide question.
14665. Have any defalcations taken place? No.
14666. Has there been any misapplication of the funds? It is my private opinion there has been.

14667.

14667. Will you describe the nature of it? The investment of £400 in connection with the purchase of a hall.
14668. What hall is it? The Friendly Societies' Hall.
14669. For your own Court? Our Court meets there.
14670. Is it the property of your Court? No, not exactly.
14671. Then is it a Joint Stock Company in which the Society has invested its funds? Yes, at least I think so.
14672. And are you of opinion that the investment is an illegal one? That is my opinion, though I stand alone in it.
14673. Have you called the attention of the officers of the Society to this misapplication of the funds? I have spoken of it, but as a legal opinion was submitted I had to submit and say no more.
14674. What was that opinion? That the members could invest their money in this way.
14675. Do you know who gave that opinion? Mr. Bowden, I hear.
14676. Are you aware that the Friendly Societies Act provides a mode of investment for the funds? I am.
14677. And it is on that ground that you have taken exception to the investment? I have taken no exception and have not opposed the matter, because I did not go to the meetings.
14678. What would be the whole value of your funds? Between £1,000 and £1,100 in all.
14679. What interest will these shares bear? Well, it was guaranteed 8 per cent.
14680. I am to understand, I suppose, that this is not a purchase by the Society of a block of land and the erection of a building thereon? No, the building was on the land when they purchased.
14681. And a number of Friendly Societies have participated? Yes.
14682. What is it designated? The Friendly Societies Hall Company.
14683. Limited liability? Yes.
14684. Incorporated? Yes.
14685. You have taken no action in your own Lodge or Court? No, only what I have stated.
14686. Mr. Slade.] Is this affair a Joint Stock Company or not? It is.
14687. Is it put forth as a joint stock affair? It is not so described.
14688. Are the shares at the disposal of any person who may go in for them? No.
14689. They are confined to bona-fide members of Societies? Yes.
14690. Can any outside persons get them? No.
14691. And unless the speculation turns out a success, there will be no source of revenue for the moneys invested? None whatever that I can see.

Mr. T. M.
Shepherd.
17 Nov., 1882.

Mr. Liphman Menser sworn and examined:—

14692. President.] What Society are you a member of? Several Friendly Societies.
14693. Have any of your Societies invested money in connection with the Friendly Societies' Hall Company? Yes; three.
14694. To what extent? £400, £200, and £100.
14695. Did you approve of the investment of the funds in this way? I did.
14696. Have you had any exception taken to the investment? None in the Societies, only by outdoor talk. I ought to state that this subject has been mooted for some time past, as all the Lodges having to meet in public-houses we had no place to go to, and the separate Lodges were not in funds to build halls of their own, so we called a meeting of delegates for the various Societies, and after two or three meetings it was resolved to bring a report up to the effect that we should combine to build a hall. Under the 42nd clause of the Act we found we could do it as separate Lodges, and thought that we could also do it in combination. It has been done in Sydney.
14697. What Lodges have done it in Sydney? The Protestant Alliance; and the Oddfellows' Hall has been built by the members of several Lodges, although under the same Order; but they were so powerful that they could do it, but we consider as we are all under the same Act, and having had advice from a solicitor, that we were justified in doing it in combination, for we have a rule passed that none but members of Friendly Societies can become shareholders.
14698. You have stated that the Company is a Joint Stock Company? It is, but only amongst members of Societies registered under the Act.
14699. You are clearly aware that the Friendly Societies Act prohibits the investment of funds in a Joint Stock Company? I take it that it means amongst non-members. To avoid any unpleasantness in any Lodge special meetings were held, and in this one particular Lodge that invested the £400 (that is the Foresters) I might say that we had seventy-four members, and that they were unanimous. The investment is sure, and we are getting the same interest from the Hall as we would get from the Bank.
14700. Did you find any inconvenience in investing your funds? We had a little difficulty at times in investing them in the Savings' Bank.
14701. But had you any difficulty in finding investments for your money that you had to lend? The members did not feel inclined to speculate.
14702. Do you not regard this as a speculation? No, it is as certain as the interest in the Savings' Bank.
14703. Who gives the guarantee? The Directors.
14704. Are they personally liable? They are liable.
14705. Beyond the property? It brings in double the amount of money already. The Directors have guaranteed the Bank interest of 5 per cent.; I have a guarantee from the Directors of 5 per cent.
14706. Have you brought a copy of the deed of settlement of the Company? I have not.
14707. In the event of the Society or Societies requiring their funds, how will they be able to get them? By giving due notice.
14708. What notice is necessary? Twenty-eight days.
14709. And by giving that notice could they demand the payment of the £400? No, but they will not want it as long as their interest is sure, and in addition to this they have two good Lodge rooms, instead of having to meet in public-houses as they had to do before.
14710. You have received no complaints from the members in reference to these investments? No; on the contrary, we have received praise. The members are quite satisfied with what we have done. We had our first half-yearly meeting last night, and it was reported that several new members had joined the Lodges in order to get shares; so that by this means we are actually increasing our number.

Mr. L.
Menser.
17 Nov., 1882.

14711.

- Mr. L. Menser.
17 Nov., 1882.
14711. Did Mr. Bowden give a written or verbal opinion? I think it was verbal, but he answered a letter of mine in writing, saying that he could see no reason why it could not be done.
14712. Mr. Abigail.] Did you make any application to Mr. Oliver, as Registrar, to know if this could be done? Only through the solicitor.
14713. Did he forward on his opinion? He told me what Mr. Oliver in conversation had stated to him.
14714. He did not convey to you in writing what Mr. Oliver had said? No.
14715. Have you Mr. Bowden's opinion as to what you could do? Yes.
14716. Did you act upon it? Yes: it is as follows:—

Paramatta, 20 April, 1882.

L. Menser, Esq., Parramatta.

Re Friendly Societies.

Dear Sir,

I have looked into the matter in reference to Friendly Societies' Hall, and consider it not contrary to the meaning of the Act for the different Societies to unite to purchase suitable premises for their common benefit, provided provision be made in the building to meet the separate requirements of each Society.

It will, however, be necessary for the Trustees of each Society to obtain first the consent of a special meeting of their members, or a majority of such meeting.

Yours truly,

J. E. BOWDEN.

Upon that, a copy of which was given to each of the Lodges, they acted, and to secure that each Lodge should have a voice in the matter, besides the Directors appointed by the shareholders, each Lodge appoints its own Director or Trustee to represent them in the whole Board.

14717. Do you not understand that letter to mean that in the building each shall have its own separate room? Yes.

14718. How many Lodges are interested in it? Three directly, and all indirectly, as having shares.

14719. But only three Lodges have invested their funds in it? Yes.

14720. In this matter of shares, are the shares applied for by persons in the ordinary form or as members of Friendly Societies? There is a special form in which the applicant has to state that he is a member of such and such a Society, and none but members of Societies can obtain shares.

14721. President.] The 42nd section of the Act says that the Trustees may invest the funds or any part thereof to any amount in any Colonial Government Fund or Debentures or in such other security as the rules of such Society may direct, not being the purchase of house or land (save and except the purchase of buildings wherein to hold the meetings or transact the business of such Society as heretofore mentioned) and not being the purchase of shares in any Joint Stock or other Company with or without charter or incorporation and not being personal security, except in the case of a member of one full year's standing at least, and in respect of a sum not exceeding one half the amount of his assurance on life of such member, and so on. I think you will find Mr. Bowden has been at sea so far as that section of the Act is concerned? We do not look at it as a Joint Stock Company.

14722. Mr. Slade.] Have you been mixed up in Joint Stock Companies before? Yes.

14723. Have you any doubt but that this is purely a Joint Stock Company? I think that in a Joint Stock Company any one can become a shareholder.

14724. Is there any guarantee that these shares shall not be sold or exchanged to non-members? Well, of course, in case of bankruptcy or death the shares could be passed to non-members.

14725. If the speculation should fail, is there any means of recouping the Society except the property? Beyond the property itself, no, but it is worth more than we actually gave for it, so that it is impossible it should become a failure.

14726. Did you ever hear a report that Mr. Oliver did advise a way of making this legal? Yes, I believe he did, but I am not sure.

14727. Did you ever make a statement to the effect that Mr. Oliver had said he knew it was illegal, but if the Societies would pass a short rule legalizing it, he would register it? No.

14728. Is the position of Messrs. Coates and Gazzard the same as yours? Yes, but Mr. Coates knows nothing of the matter.

Mr. George Coates sworn and examined:—

- Mr. G. Coates.
17 Nov., 1882.
14729. President.] What Society are you a member of? The Ancient Order of Foresters.
14730. For many years? Twenty-six years.
14731. Do you know how much of your funds has been invested in this Friendly Societies' Hall Company? Only from hear-say, £400.
14732. And you disapprove of the investment? Yes.
14733. As contrary to the Friendly Societies Act? Yes, I should have objected to sign the cheque, but I was not called on for my signature.
14734. You are familiar with the 42nd section of the Act? Yes; I think the funds should be only invested in the Savings Bank or Government Securities.
14735. Have you taken any action in your Lodge in objecting to this mode of investment? No.
14736. Is it your intention to do so? No; the thing is done, and cannot be undone.
14737. You are one of the Trustees? Yes; I was elected without my knowledge.
14738. And they withdrew the money without your consent or knowledge? Yes.
14739. Were you removed from office? No.
14740. No new Trustee has been appointed? No.
14741. How often do you change these Trustees? We do not change them at all.
14742. Could the money have been withheld without your knowledge or consent? It should not have been.
14743. Are you aware of the Trustees who signed the cheque? Mr. Menser and Mr. Gazzard.
14744. Have the whole of the funds of the Society been transferred to their account? Not that I am aware of.
14745. They have not been removed from your name? Not to my knowledge.
14746. It was one of your duties to guard the funds and protect them from improper use? Yes.
14747. Where did you receive information that a portion of the funds had been applied in this way? I went to the Treasurer and said that I understood that they were about to purchase a hall, but that I would would not sign the cheque for it; he said that was needless, as that it was paid for already. I asked him how that could be done without my signature; and he replied that Mr. Menser said I was not a Trustee now.

Mr. G. Coates.
17 Nov., 1882.

14748. How was the money paid and the cheque signed? I cannot tell.
14749. You do not know how the money was drawn out? No, except that Mr. Taylor, the Manager of the Bank, refuses to acknowledge more than two Trustees, and Mr. Menser and Mr. Gazzard took it upon themselves to draw it out.
14750. There are three Trustees? Yes.
14751. And you have been ignored? Yes.
14752. Though you have acted for fifteen years? Yes.
14753. Had you intimated that you would not sign a cheque? Not before I went to the Treasurer.
14754. Were you removed because you would not sign it? I could not say that.
14755. Have you made any inquiries as to whether your name is still registered as Trustee? Yes, I met my co-Trustee, and he told me it was not.
14756. Have you been to the Bank? No.
14757. But you have had no intimation from the Court that you were removed? No.
14758. And it is only by accident you heard that you had been removed? That is all.

Mr. L. Menser was recalled and examined:—

14759. President.] It is stated that the Manager of the Bank declined to acknowledge more than two Trustees? Two Trustees.
14760. What is his name? John Taylor.
14761. What did he tell you? He told me nothing himself—his clerk told me.
14762. Mr. Smith.] Is not Mr. Coates the senior Trustee of the Lodge? He might be, but I would not be sure.
14763. And it is also a fact that you have never consulted him respecting this matter? No, I never had the opportunity of seeing him, or I should have done so.
14764. You never consulted him as to purchasing this property? I had spoken to him, although I did not officially consult him.
14765. Is it not a fact that you overlooked him as a Trustee? No, it is not; in the Bank book it is Gazzard, Menser and Coates; and the Manager only recognizes the first two names.
14766. What do your rules say? That the Trustees shall be empowered to do so and so.
14767. Were any orders or cheques drawn by Mr. Coates recognized? This is the first time we have had to draw money out of the Bank for years.
14768. If the Court appointed three Trustees, did the members have the knowledge that only two would be recognized by the Bank? I cannot say.
14769. What is the object of appointing the three? The rules say three shall be appointed.
14770. Mr. Coates is still a Trustee then? Yes.
14771. Mr. Golding.] Has Mr. Taylor got any interest in this property? He sold it to us.
14772. Would you like your name withdrawn like this? No.
14773. President.] Is it a Branch of the Sydney Savings Bank? The New South Wales Savings Bank.
14774. Was the money banked in the names of the three Trustees? I have never banked it—Mr. Gazzard always did that.

Mr. L.
Menser.
17 Nov., 1882.

Mr. Moses Gazzard sworn and examined:—

14775. President.] You are a member of the Foresters? Yes, I am.
14776. Are you a Trustee? Yes.
14777. How many Trustees has your Court? Only two. I have been Trustee about twelve or fifteen years.
14778. How many Trustees have to be appointed by your rules? I could not say.
14779. You are not aware that three Trustees are provided for in the rules? I have heard that Mr. Coates's name is on the books, but they will not acknowledge him at the Bank. Mr. Taylor told me that they would not acknowledge more than two.
14780. You drew out £400? Yes, for the Hall.
14781. Did you approve of that mode of investing the funds? Yes, I did, because we had nowhere to go to.
14782. You know that the duty of a Trustee is to apply the money for the purpose for which it was subscribed? To put it in the Bank and pay it out as instructed by the Lodge.
14783. Are you aware of the 42nd section of the Act? I have never read it.
14784. Have you been informed that it says that the Trustees have no power to invest money in a Joint Stock Company? Yes.
14785. You have received a legal opinion from Mr. Bowden as to your right in this matter? I have heard that he stated that we could do it.
14786. Who was the first Trustee elected in connection with your Court? I could not say.
14787. Was Mr. Coates appointed before you and Mr. Menser? Yes.
14788. Then he is the senior Trustee of the three? I do not know.
14789. Have you ever known him decline to act? I have been a Trustee some years, and he never did anything—I have always taken the moneys to the Bank—he never did anything that I know of.
14790. Do you think you have power to invest these funds as you have done, after hearing clause 42 of the Act—(clause read to the witness)? If I had known that before it was done I might have considered it.
14791. After hearing that read, you do not think you were justified? Well, they had a regularly summoned meeting, and it was carried to take £400 worth of shares.
14792. Mr. Smith.] In whose name are the shares taken? In the name of the Lodge.
14793. Of no individual? No individual.
14794. What do you hold to show you have invested the money? I do not know.

Mr. M.
Gazzard
17 Nov., 1882.

- Mr. M. Gazzard.
17 Nov., 1882.
14795. Have you no scrip? I have not; I do not know what the Secretary has got.
14796. What guarantee have you for the £400? I do not know.
14797. Mr. Abigail.] Who paid the money? Mr. Menser.
14798. Has he any papers? I do not know.
14799. Any documents? I do not know.
14800. Any scrip? I do not know.
14801. Were you present when the money was handed over? No.
14802. Mr. Smith.] You were guided by the meeting—the summoned meeting? Yes.
14803. And owing to the action then taken you were a consenting party to the money being taken? Yes.
14804. And if the Lodge had authorized the expending of that money by any other means, such as upon a picnic, you would have been guided by that? No, I would not.
14805. No one ever pointed out to you your position as a Trustee? No, I was guided by the Lodge that evening.
14806. Without knowing any better? Yes, after it was carried in the Lodge I thought it was all right.
14807. And you as a Trustee do not know what you hold as security? I do not know.
14808. You are sure that the shares were applied for in the name of the Lodge? Yes.
14809. How do you know? It was voted that it should be done so in the Lodge.
14810. Did you see the application? No, I did not.
14811. But the Trustees would have to make application for the shares? I do not know whether it was Mr. Menser or the Lodge.
14812. You did not see the form of application? No.
14813. And did not see any form of scrip? No, I did not.
14814. Did you sign a cheque for the withdrawal of the money? Yes.

Mr. J. Menser recalled and examined:—

- Mr. L. Menser.
17 Nov., 1882.
14815. Mr. Abigail.] What was the form of application for these shares? We applied on behalf of the Court for 400 shares to be allotted to the Court.
14816. Was any scrip issued? No.
14817. Was the application signed by the three Trustees, or by you on their behalf? By me on their behalf.
14818. Did you consult them? Not directly, but it was done in the Court.
14819. You did not apply to these men directly to authorize you to apply on their behalf? I did to Mr. Gazzard, but not to Mr. Coates.
14820. Do you know that the Companies Act does not recognize bodies of men, but only individuals? This does.
14821. Is there any special deed? The registration deed.
14822. You have no doubt that you applied for the shares on behalf of the Society, and not for yourself individually? No.
14823. Who signed the cheque for the money? The Secretary signed the cheque himself; we signed the receipt-book at the Bank. The cheque is signed by the officers of the Court.

Mr. M. Gazzard recalled and examined:—

- Mr. M. Gazzard.
17 Nov., 1882.
14824. Mr. Langley.] Did I understand you correctly that you signed a cheque for the money? We signed a cheque at the Bank to draw the money.
14825. Were you correct when you said you signed a cheque to draw the money? We signed a cheque at the Bank to draw it.
14826. Mr. Rubie.] In whose name is the money of the Court deposited in the Bank? Mine and Mr. Menser's.
14827. There is no mention of Mr. Coates's name? Not at the Bank.
14828. Is his name on the Bank-book? No.
14829. Mr. Slade.] What did you have to do in the matter beyond signing your name on one occasion? Nothing at all.
14830. You never applied for the shares? No, I did not.
14831. Have you ever had any paper exhibited to you as a receipt for the payment of the money? No.
14832. Have you any positive knowledge that the money has been paid? Yes; I have heard it read over two or three times.
14833. You do not know whether any receipt is in existence? No.
14834. Do you understand that you may be proceeded against personally for money illegally invested? I understand it is the Lodge that has done it.
14835. If their instruction was illegal would you do it? It would depend upon what it would be; I do not think they would do anything illegal.

Mr. L. Menser recalled and examined:—

- Mr. L. Menser.
17 Nov., 1882.
14836. Mr. Smith.] And what other Societies have invested in this Company? The Sons of Temperance and the Druids.
14837. These Lodges have taken shares which have been allotted to them? Yes.
14838. You have articles of association signed? No.
14839. Do you hold the documents from the Company? Yes.
14840. What do you hold, scrip or a receipt? A receipt; and the deed of settlement is signed by the other Trustee and myself.
14841. There is nothing to identify the Lodge except the receipt? There is no scrip given out at all—no one holds scrip.

Mr.

Mr. Henry Harrington Green sworn and examined :—

Mr. H. H.
Green.
17 Nov., 1882.

14842. President.] You are a member of the Independent Order of Oddfellows? Yes.
14843. What office do you hold? I am Grand Master.
14844. You have recently appointed new Trustees, have you not? No.
14845. You have not done so? No.
14846. You have not made any appointment of new Trustees? No.
14847. Have you removed any of the funds of the Lodge? Yes.
14848. With the concurrence of the Trustees—of the whole body of the Trustees? Yes.
14849. How many Trustees have you? Threc.
14850. Has any portion of the Funeral Fund been operated upon by the Trustees? Yes.
14851. What have they done with the Funeral Fund? It is invested in real estate.
14852. Would you give a description of the nature of the investment made by the Trustees? Well, what has been done is to be ratified by the general body. In the first instance, when the land was placed in the market it was purchased conditionally that the Order would accept it, and a private cheque was given for one-quarter of the purchase money, that is £834. Subsequently a meeting of the Executive was called for the purpose of laying the matter before them. Previous to this two or three meetings were held to know if it would be advisable, at each of which it was unanimously decided that it would be a profitable investment; and it was determined to purchase the land. We had previously obtained legal advice as to the step we were about to take. The matter is in embryo yet, although the name of the Order was used in connection with it.
14853. Is it a fact that two new Trustees and one old one drew out £200. It is not—I positively deny it. I produce the registered Trustees with the original Trustees as registered by the Registrar of Friendly Societies. (Produced for inspection only.) I may explain that at our last annual session of the Grand Lodge Trustees were elected, but the Journal of Proceedings will explain that a protest was made at the election, as to the mode of election. This had to be submitted to the Supreme Grand Body under which we work.
14854. What are the names of the Trustees of the Funeral Fund? We do not make any distinction—they are all vested in the Trustees; their names are Messrs. Richard Switson, James Farrell, and George Guess.
14855. And how long have they been in office? Since the foundation of the Grand Lodge, in October, 1880.
14856. Were new Trustees appointed at the last general meeting of your body? I think I explained that an election was had, but that the mode of election was objected to.
14857. What was the objection? That the mode of election did not accord with the clause of the constitution under which it was held.
14858. Who were the Trustees elected? Mr. Langley was one, and Mr. McMenemy was another.
14859. Were they to have superseded the old Trustees? They were to have done, but immediately on their election a protest was lodged against the mode of election.
14860. And what was the result? That protest has yet to be decided by the Supreme Grand Body.
14861. And in the meantime the old Trustees have acted? Yes.
14862. And they have withdrawn the money? Yes.
14863. And applied it for the purpose of purchasing this property? Yes.
14864. How much? £834.
14865. And are you aware of the 50th section of your laws, which provides how the Funeral Fund should be applied? I am fairly conversant with the law.
14866. And do you think that the appropriation of the Funeral Fund in the way which you have described is in conformity with the rules? I believe it is.
14867. What balance would you have to the credit of the fund after you have taken this amount out? I am not sure as to the figures, but about £400.
14868. £400 still remaining? Yes.
14869. What would be the annual drain on the fund in the shape of payments for deaths? It fluctuates; I am scarcely in a position to give you an average, because we have not been in existance long enough to get an average.
14870. Are you aware what was paid last year? I think about £110; that is merely approximate.
14871. And you consider it a lawful purpose to apply those funds to the purchase of a building? Yes; we did nothing without taking legal advice.
14872. Though it is provided how the fund should be appropriated "and for no other purpose"? I interpret that so that it may be invested profitably in real estate.
14873. And you do not take much notice of the latter portion of the 50th section of your rules? I have innumerable precedents.
14874. I am asking for your opinion? I am scarcely in a position to give an opinion. It appears to me it will be necessary for me to make some explanation before leaving.
14875. You may make a statement now? I am informed that Mr. Langley has given certain information; he is a member of our Executive ex officio, and has given his consent. We had no opportunity of calling a special meeting of the Grand Lodge because of the expense, and because time would not admit; but previous to the land being purchased I gave instructions to the Grand Secretary that he should be apprised of the fact. He was interviewed by the Grand Treasurer, and I have his word of honor that Mr. Langley gave his consent. I scarcely think I could explain the whole matter, because there is an animus between Mr. Langley and certain members of the executive body.
14876. We do not want anything of that? Well, it has been circulated in the city that we have been misappropriating our funds, and that is calculated to materially injure our institution. Of course I know the general public do not investigate these matters very closely. Mr. Langley was consulted in the case, and an intimation was sent to him by telegram. In presence of one of our Trustees he gave his consent, saying he thought it was worth a thousand pounds more than it was purchased at. I had some amount of difficulty in connection with this case because Mr. Langley was absent. He never confronted me personally, and if one single objection had been raised I should have hesitated; but the Grand Treasurer gave me his word of honor—when I remarked that Mr. Langley was absent on the morning of the sale—that he did not object. Since then he has raised no objection, except in an indirect way through the Lodge

- Mr. H. H. Green.
17 Nov., 1882.
- Lodge of which he is a member. I have a copy here of an intimation sent to all the Lodges, and Mr. Langley's Lodge amongst others received one. We received a protest from that Lodge, though they were present at the meeting at which action was taken. I learned subsequently that Mr. Langley influenced the passing of that protest. This is the only protest we have received. That is a brief summary of the case.
14877. Were you offered £1,000 profit on the purchase? Immediately afterwards we were offered £500, and subsequently £800, and more recently £1,000.
14878. In what part of Elizabeth-street is it? About 100 yards from Liverpool-street.
14879. Mr. Abigail.] This matter of the Trustees was referred to the Supreme Grand Council? The Supreme Grand Lodge of Australasia.
14880. How often do they meet? The Executive meets when any matter of importance is brought before it.
14881. And can they give a ruling? Yes.
14882. Which is binding? Yes.
14883. It has been referred to them? Yes.
14884. How long ago? I am not prepared to answer that question, because it appears that the Grand Secretary did not despatch it at once; but in April last I was in the office of the Supreme Grand Secretary, and I asked him if he had received such a document, and he said yes.
14885. You have had no communication since? None whatever.
14886. That is nearly eight months ago? Yes. I may say that indirect influence on the part of Mr. Langley has been used to obtain from the Grand Sire, the chief officer in Australasia, a decision; he has written a communication the purport of which I am not in possession of; but I have a private letter here—
14887. Does that letter contain any ruling on the question? No.
14888. Then we do not want it; so that eight months have elapsed and an important question affecting the proper position of your Trustees has not been decided? Well, our institution is of American origin, and we say distinctly that honorary membership is not recognized; and one of the clauses in the protest is with regard to Mr. Langley holding an honorary position.
14889. But the Grand Lodge appointed Mr. Langley? But if they violate the law their action will not stand.
14890. You have no quicker means of getting a settlement than what you have now stated, that you send it to the Grand Council? The delay does not rest with us here.
14891. Where do they meet? Their conferences are movable, but hitherto they have been held in Victoria.
14892. At what periods? They may be called together at any time.
14893. But what is the regular fixed period? Triennially.
14894. Whom did you consult legally? The solicitors, Messrs. Dawson & Sons.
14895. Have you their opinion? Their opinion was that we could go on and complete the purchase.
14896. The question was as to the legality of the action in completing the purchase? Just so.
14897. Mr. Greville.] Did Messrs. Dawson & Sons know it to be the Funeral Fund money? The laws were submitted to Messrs. Dawson & Sons for their opinion; they seem to have read the laws and gave an opinion, and advised us that we could go on.
14898. But were they made specially acquainted with the fact that you would operate on the Funeral funds for the purpose? They advised us that if we complied with the Friendly Societies Act with regard to one or two clauses pointed out to us, by having special meetings, all was clear.
14899. Was their special attention called to the intention of your Society to apply the Funeral Fund for the purpose of making the purchase? I could not say whether that clause was pointed out to them or not.
14900. Were they informed—it is not a question of a clause—that the funds which were to be used for the purpose of buying the land consisted partly or wholly of the Funeral Fund? Attention was drawn to the fact that the mother institution of the Order had invested their funds in almost a precisely similar way, but I do not think it was specially pointed out.
14901. Mr. Langley.] Was there any objection or protest whatever entered against Mr. McMenemy as a Trustee? I think I have already replied to that on the general principle. There was no objection to persons at all.

The Commission then adjourned till Monday, 20 November.

ALFRED L. SMITH,
G. S.

(II.)

Mr. A. L. Smith,
Sir and Brother,

Kempsey, 10 March, 1881.

At a meeting of our Lodge the following proposition was carried, viz. :—Proposed by the N. F. Brother F. Lovell, and seconded by Brother Thomas Smith—re law 126—"That the distance of three (3) miles be extended to five (5) when members are duly summoned, and that same become a by-law of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge.

I am also instructed to ask if legal to erase D. Collins' name from the Lodge books, he being run out by arrears of contributions, viz., sixteen months, and he not having complied with the decision of S.C.M.

I remain yours fraternally,
THOMAS J. HILL,
Secretary.

(III.)

To the N. G. Duke of Edinburgh Lodge,
Sir and Brother,

Kempsey, Macleay River, 23 March, 1880.

I respectfully apply to your Lodge for my clearance, according to law 113, and if the Lodge refuse it let me know the reason.

I see by your telegram to Sydney that you stated that I resigned on the 3rd December.

I demand a copy of that resolution.

I am yours fraternally,
DENNIS COLLINS.

(IV.)

Mr. D. Collins,
Sir,

Kempsey, 25 March, 1880.

I am directed by the members of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge to acknowledge your letter applying for a clearance from the Lodge.

I am to remind you that you tendered your resignation on the 3rd December last. I am also to state that, as you did not withdraw your resignation, the Lodge accepted it on the 31st December and have since erased your name from the books, and therefore very much regret they have no power to grant your request.

I remain, &c.,
(For the Secretary),
W. T. DANGAR.

(V.)

To the N. G. of the Macleay Lodge,
Sir and Brother,

Kempsey, 16 April, 1880.

I have to inform you that Mr. D. Collins, who acts as your Inside Guardian, is an unfinancial member of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge, and therefore is not entitled to act in your Lodge.

I remain, &c.,
JAMES MURPHY.

(VI.)

To the Most Worshipful Sub-Committee of Management, Sydney.
Sirs and Brothers,

West Kempsey, Macleay River, 13 April, 1880.

I beg to call your attention to the uncalled-for conduct of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge, Kempsey, towards myself, and desire that you will inquire specially into the matters now submitted for your consideration.

On the 17th December last I verbally resigned from the said Duke of Edinburgh Lodge, and which resignation was put to the meeting of the members, but rejected owing to my having failed to comply with law 114. I have not since such meeting given in a written or any resignation, still, by the letter of the 25th ultimo (which I enclose herewith for your perusal) I am informed that my resignation was accepted on the 31st December last. Then again, a letter is received by the Noble Grand of the Macleay Lodge, West Kempsey, of which I am a member, stating that I am an unfinancial member of the said Duke of Edinburgh Lodge, and consequently not eligible to hold any office in connection with the Lodge. I enclose herewith the letter received by the Noble Grand of the Macleay Lodge, which is dated 10th inst. I am also informed that the Grand Secretary has received certain telegrams during March last, and the contents of which I desire you to specially consider and compare with the letters now enclosed. Undoubtedly there is an attempt to injure me, especially in the eyes of the new Lodge at West Kempsey, and I would ask you to consider whether the conduct of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge is in accordance with the spirit and teaching of our Order.

I consider that the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge does not conform to the laws of our Order, especially laws 33 and 102. As to unfinancial members holding office and voting in the Lodge, also as to opening and closing the Lodge at proper times,—these two laws have been repeatedly violated, and I consider from the manner in which they have ignored the same that the business transacted must be null and void. For the good of the Order I deem it advisable to report these facts, so that if possible they may be remedied.

I desire that every inquiry shall be made into the treatment that I have received from the said Duke of Edinburgh Lodge, and that I shall receive that redress to which I am entitled.

I would add in conclusion that I have been a member of our noble Order for the last twenty-five years, during which time I have had the honor to be Grand Master of the Manning River Union Lodge for twelve years, and I am compelled to leave the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge owing to their admitting persons of very doubtful character.

I have, &c.,
DENNIS COLLINS.

P.S.—I joined the Macleay Lodge as honorary member, waiting the decision of the most worshipful the Sub-Committee of Management.—D.C.

I have given a true copy of this letter to the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge.

(VII.)

The Grand Secretary, G. U. O. Oddfellows, Sussex-street, Sydney.

Kempsey, 25 May, 1880.

Dear Sir and Brother,

I am directed by the officers and members of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge (No. 1,379) to acknowledge your communication of April 28th, and to state that Dennis Collins is not a member of the M'Leay Lodge lately opened, not having paid any entrance fee to same, and that, not having withdrawn his resignation from this Lodge, we do not recognize him; and this Lodge farther desires to state that all officers in the Lodge are financial, and that their times of opening and closing have been as regular as they could with convenience to the good and welfare make them. I am also to draw attention to the fact of Collins admitting his having resigned from our Lodge, owing (as he alleges) to our admitting persons of doubtful character, which is not the case.

I have, &c.

W. T. DANGAR, N.G.

(VIII.)

Alfred L. Smith, Grand Secretary.

Taree, 2 June, 1880.

Dear Sir and Brother,

I am instructed to apply to the Sub-Committee of Management for a warrant to open a Grand Master Chapter in connection with Belmore Lodge. You will please forward to me warrant and ritual; and I have to ask you to appoint P.G.M. Brother Plummer to open the Lodge. At same time send me set of officers' charges for Manning River Union Lodge.

I am also instructed to forward to the Sub-Committee of Management a copy of minutes of Macleay Lodge of May 8th. I was at Kempsey on 22nd of May, and attended a meeting of the Macleay Lodge, and I have to regret I found things in a very unpleasant state through the conduct of Brother Dennis Collins, the person the District Master appointed to open that Lodge; and I may say had this District Officer known the facts of the case, Brother Collins would not have been appointed by any means.

When Brother Collins was asked by the District Master to explain his position in reply to your letter and Brother Dangar's telegram, it was then only the real fact of Brother Collins' case came to light, and he (Collins) saying he had joined the new Lodge as an honorary member awaiting the decision of the Sub-Committee of Management.

But you will find by the copy of the minutes heretofore referred to, that brother has not joined as an honorary member, neither will the members of the Macleay Lodge accept him at all.

And upon my visit to the Macleay Lodge on 22nd of May, I found Brother Collins in the Lodge-room, and after the minutes were confirmed, I asked him if he considered this was his place. He said he had the authority of the District Master to be there. I then asked, was it becoming an Oddfellow to put the law at defiance, and told him he should have waited the decision of the Sub-Committee, and left the Lodge in the hands of the other brother he had appointed with himself as Instructing Officer.

And while at Kempsey I gathered from several of the members of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge the following facts:—Some time in December last, Brother Collins objected to a person becoming a member of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge, and at the time would state no special reason, but if he was admitted he (Brother Collins) would resign; and after a great deal of discussion, Brother Collins paid his contribution, took off his scarf, and left the room. They asked him to put his resignation in writing; he saying—"That is all the resignation you will get from me." Some time was given Brother Collins to consider his case; and one of the members of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge (Brother M'Que) waited upon Brother Collins and asked him to come back, he (Collins) telling that brother he would do no such thing, which ended in his (Collins') name being struck off the books.

I may add, in conclusion, this report may help the officers in comparing the statements of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge and Brother Collins as to how things stand between them.

I am, &c.,

JOHN MANNERS, D.S.

Copy of Minutes.

Macleay Lodge being duly opened, the following are the minutes of the meeting:—

Mr. A. L. Smith,

Kempsey, 3 June, 1881.

Dear Sir and Brother,

Please enclosed find the sum of £1 2s. 6d., being amount of levies for forty-five financial members, which the late Secretary neglected to forward to you before.

I am also instructed to ask you to forward us 100 single pence cards as early as possible, as we are quite out of them.

Moved by Brother F. Lovell, seconded by Brother Dangar,—That the Secretary be instructed to ask permission from the S.C.M. to erase Brother D. Collins' name from the books of the Lodge for arrears of contributions, he not having complied with the decision of the S.C.M. at their meeting in June, 1880, and his arrears having extended over one year and six months. This question should have been laid before the S.C.M. at their March meeting.

I also enclose you subscription-list towards the building of a hall to see if the S.C.M. can do anything towards furthering the same.

Will you please send us the signs and password in cypher as we have lost them and want them for reference and the recognition signs. Awaiting an early reply,—

I remain, &c.,

F. LOVELL, Secretary.

Please address all communications in future to F. Lovell, Central Kempsey.

To Mr. Alfred L. Smith,

West Kempsey, 29 July, 1880.

Sir and Brother,

In accordance with your instructions I went to the Lodge last night, but they would not admit me; in fact some of the members said before Lodge night that they would not be dictated to by the S.C. of M. Sir, I wish to bring before the notice of the S.C. of M. that the N.G. is unfinancial, he owing the Lodge over £5, and several others owe £3 and upwards, and they are all returned in the books as financial.

I most respectfully suggest that the S.C. of M. will have their books examined.

I hope that you will deal with my case as soon as possible, as I think that I am dealt with by the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge with great injustice.

Sir, allow me to return my sincere thanks to you and the S.C. of M. for the trouble that they took in my case; and I assure you that I have the welfare of the Order at heart.

I remain, &c.,

D. COLLINS.

(XL)

To Mr. Smith, (XI.)
 Sir and Brother, West Kempsey, 4 August, 1880.
 I went to the Lodge this night, and one of the members came out and told me that I owed £1 6s., which sum I gave him. He went into the Lodge, and returned and told me that I owed £1 16s., and that I would not be admitted unless I paid that amount, which sum I do not owe, but if I did the £1 6s. would make me financial. So you can see that they are trying to evade your decision, and making a fool of me; and I hope that the S.C. of M. will not submit to such treatment any longer.
 I am, &c.,
 D. COLLINS.

Mr. A. Smith, (XII.)
 Sir and Brother, Kempsey, 29 July, 1880.
 At last summons-meeting, held 28th July, an adverse motion was carried re decision in Collins' case, and the Officers are at a loss to know how to act in the matter. I may mention that Collins was unfinancial on the date of his written application for a clearance, he owing at that time sixteen shillings (16s.) contributions; and, further, his application was unattended with money, as per law 113.
 Please attend to this matter at earliest convenience, as want to have the matter decided next Lodge night.
 You can wire reply, which will be paid at this end.
 I remain, &c.,
 THOS. J. HILL,
 Secretary.

To Collins,—Next Lodge night tender your arrears in full, and request admission.
 To Lodge,—You are required to carry out decision of Committee; see law ten.

To Mr. Smith, (XIII.)
 Sir and Brother, West Kempsey, 18 September, 1880.
 I received your letter on the 15th instant. You say that you cannot see why the D. of E. Lodge refused me admittance.
 If you had their books inspected, I am sure that you would have no difficulty in seeing the reason. I did tender the amount that I owed the Lodge, and they owed me 8s. 6d. at the time, 5s. of which they paid since, so you see that I tendered more than I owed them. They are determined not to admit me. They say that they are not to be dictated to by the O. C. of M., and they will appeal to the biennial meeting sooner than admit me.
 Dear sir, allow me to return you my sincere thanks for the great trouble you have taken in my cause.
 Yours fraternally,
 DENNIS COLLINS.

Mr. Alfred L. Smith, (XIV.)
 Sir and Brother, G.U.O.F., Duke of Edinburgh Lodge, Kempsey, 26 September, 1880.
 Your letter dated 1st September, and bearing Sydney post-mark as being posted only on the 13th September, came to hand on 15th instant, and in reply I am instructed to send the following answers to questions asked:—
 1st. Thirty-six shillings (36s.).
 2nd. Yes; twenty-six shillings (26s.).
 3rd. Yes. He asked for admission, but refused to pay all dues and demands, stating he was not indebted to that amount, and the minutes of the S.C.M. were not confirmed.
 4th. There was no minute passed reversing decision of S.C.M.
 Minute moved, "That Brother D. Collins be reinstated on complying with decision of S.C.M."
 The warrant for S. M. Chapter is not required, as same was granted in 1874, but are in want of key to signs and passwords.
 Please send one Grand Master's apron,—
 And I remain, &c.,
 THOMAS J. HILL,
 Secretary.

Dear Sir,

Mudgee, 18 May, 1882.

In conformity with promises, I herewith enclose you a detailed valuation of the liabilities and assets of a Lodge belonging to the Society of which I am a member. In placing it before the Commission, I would like to say that it cannot be taken as more than approximate in its results, as I have not been able to verify it or test its correctness in any thorough manner. I have made my calculations as carefully as possible, and used the tables prepared by one of the officers attached to the Department of the Government Statist in Victoria, and so far as the time at my disposal would permit, I have made it as comprehensive as I could. I may say here that our Subordinate Lodges are only indirectly responsible for the sums payable at death of members or their wives, the General Funeral Fund being consolidated under the management of the Grand Council, and maintained by levies on each Subordinate Lodge; but as this is only a matter of convenience, and the Subordinate Lodge is the one responsible in reality, as its funds would be liable in the event of the Grand Council failing to meet its engagements. I have credited the Lodge whose position is now valued with its proportionate share of the amount to the credit of the General Funeral Fund on the date taken, 30th December, 1880.

L. E. Harcus, Esq.,
Secretary, Friendly Societies Commission.

I am, yours faithfully,
W. BARNETT SMITH.

[Appendix to Dr. Belgrave's Evidence.]

THE Commission having desired me to furnish in writing a supplementary statement containing any information on the subject of the inquiry which may not have been elicited from me during my rather lengthened examination, I have the honor, in compliance with the request, to submit the following:—

I infer from my experience as an honorary medical officer in the Sydney Hospital, and my observation in the city, that unless the operations of the Friendly Societies of the Colony become so protected by law as to afford to the wage classes a more reliable prospect of security than is now presented, the introduction of a Poor Law into the Colony will soon become unavoidable, so numerous and heart-rending are the cases of destitution and distress; and so extremely inadequate the agencies for charitable relief.

Though conscious of the fact that a very large proportion of the cases of sickness associated with destitution that come under treatment in Sydney hospitals is due to the habits of intemperance that unhappily prevail so widely in New South Wales in every rank of society, I believe no more effectual agency is available to prevent pauperism and promote the real independence and self-respect of the industrial classes than that presented in membership of a Friendly Society founded on a correct basis, and conducted honorably, and with sufficient publicity.

As regards the salutary influence of club practice on the prosperity and professional efficiency of medical men, to which such marked reference was made by the Commission during their examination of me, I beg to invite attention to the following points:—

First—that in towns—particularly their most respectable quarters—attendance on clubs is practically incompatible with peculiarly successful private practice, and is unassociated with indirect advantages.

This fact being recognized by the profession, the positions are now avoided by most men who feel they can acquire an introduction to practice by any other agency, as also all who are possessed of private means.

This incompatibility does not obtain in England, where in nearly every, and particularly the best country family practices, there are usually clubs, the circumstance being mainly, though not exclusively, conduced to by a desire on the part of practitioners to co-operate in local agencies having for object to relieve the working-classes in those of their trials connected with sickness. See A.

Though Lodges in England in their corporate capacity maintain to the full their independence, their individual members so highly appreciate the advantage of being attended by medical firms of established repute that they cheerfully consent to customs which are viewed with great disavour by Lodges and their individual members in New South Wales, such, for instance, as being ordinarily attended in illnesses of a slight character by assistants, the principal only attending when specially called, or when the case lies in his particular round.

In New South Wales, Lodge members, moreover, resent being shown into any other than the common waiting-room with private patients; which being disagreeable to the latter, in consequence of the club patients being generally in their working dress, and often enough in other respects undesirable persons to be sitting next to, the circumstance tells very unfavourably on the doctor, and usually effectually prevents him from cultivating a lucrative or even an agreeable practice.

In England club patients display no foolish pride, but from custom go to the surgery or hall, and never expect to be shown into the more private part of the house.

In country districts in England "club doctors" more frequently than otherwise receive extra payment from one of two sources for severe surgical cases, viz., from the Poor Law Guardians or the Local Cottage Hospital Committee. The custom, moreover, in the latter case being a recognized one, and not associated with any legal or social disadvantage, as both Boards of Guardians and Clubs usually subscribe to the local village hospital.

A peculiarity obtaining in New South Wales Lodges, and which acts very injuriously, is that complaints are entertained any time after the events have occurred to which they relate; and in giving judgment on disputes it is customary to permit the accusers to sit and even vote, whereas the doctor is requested to withdraw after having stated his side of the case.

This practice enables complainants to be judges in their own cause, and it also gives malevolently disposed people power to inflict great injury on local medical practitioners.

The indications for a new rule are here evident, and in all cases club doctors dismissed for any professional shortcomings should have right of appeal to the "Grand Lodge" or "Supreme Court" of the Order.

This privilege might be accorded without compromising the right of clubs to change their doctor from motives simply of personal preference.

In all cases where a visit is required to be made in the early or late night hours a small fine should be payable to the doctor, unless the case be one of accident, it being too much the custom of patients' friends to defer calling in the doctor until it suits their pleasure to "take a walk with an object."

The want of a rule of this kind often contributes to make a club doctor's life intolerable, and leads occasionally to really urgent cases being neglected.

It is in the interest of the industrial classes to pay the medical officers of their Lodges as liberally as circumstances permit, as the resources of medicine and surgery are now so numerous, varied, and valuable, that medical men absolutely require to lay out considerable sums yearly to procure fresh instruments, appliances, and books; most of which, however, can be dispensed with without the patient being any the wiser, though, may be not seldom, the loser. It is not possible for a medical man at the present day to afford his patients the advantages of the improved knowledge and means of treatment now possessed by even an average legally qualified apothecary without considerable expense to himself.

In my observation, the moral effect incidental to the fulfilment of Lodge duties surpasses in social value the pecuniary advantages accruing from membership, especially among those who participate in management, as their duties usually give rise to feelings of self-respect, order, and the habit of deferring to accepted authority.

The system, moreover, harmonizes well with our political institutions; but inasmuch as Lodge proceedings are rarely reported by the Press, it is susceptible of being put to very strange uses, in spite of protecting regulations.

The custom at present is to render all children up to 18 years of age participants in the medical privileges of their fathers. Some of these "children" gain twice as much as their fathers would in England. I suggest that in every case where such "children" gain not less than 10s. a week, a small payment should be made by them; and that certain privileges of associatship, as minors, should be accorded them, chiefly as a matter of policy in the interest of the cause, but partly as one of justice to the doctor.

A few Lodges only accord to aged parents living with a son, and to adopted children, the medical privileges of the family. I suggest that this practice should become general.

I think that in towns of the magnitude of Sydney, each great Order should keep separately, or in combination, a well-supplied store of surgical instruments and appliances for the use of their medical officers and sick and wounded members, though not necessarily gratuitously.

The mechanical and scientific resources of the healing art are now so rich, varied, and costly, and amazingly useful, that co-operation even among private medical men in this direction has now become a necessity, it being impossible for an individual living by his profession to equip himself with all available scientific adjuncts.

I have noticed that some "Grand Lodges" or "Head Centres" of Orders—comprising many Lodges, have occasionally invested their accumulated savings in the purchase of landed property, to the enrichment and consolidation of their Order, and the preservation from bankruptcy of Lodges whose members have become old and infirm, and whose numbers have not been adequately kept up by young recruits.

I believe every encouragement should be given to facilitate on the part of these governing bodies the investment of some portion of their savings in the purchase of improvable town lands; and I think the "Industrial Bank" suggested by the New South Wales Branch of the British Medical Association would be found an invaluable auxiliary in this connection.

I think also that it is well worthy of consideration whether when "town allotments" are sold by Government, local Friendly Societies should not enjoy some right of priority, in virtue of their services in preventing pauperism.

I am of opinion that small independent Lodges should not be permitted to be established, as such have too frequently ceased to exist for want of funds at the precise period their good offices were most urgently required; that is to say, when a majority of the original members were past work.

Local Lodges should always be associated with an Order, so that in the event of failure from the cause I have mentioned, the duty of maintaining the aged should devolve on the supreme authority or the entire Order by equitable distribution, as is done by the Foresters, a "Provident Order," which, by the way, possesses several singular but excellent rules—highly worthy of general adoption.

I know of few sadder spectacles than that presented by an old labouring man in a young, imperfectly organized Colony, who finds the prop on which he had long undoubtingly relied to assist him in the trials of his declining years fail him at the period he requires such support. Alms-houses for such there are none in New South Wales, rich as the old inhabitants are. As for sympathetic assistance from rich near neighbours, if he be a denizen of a large town, he probably has none, it being the custom in British city communities for the rich and poor to live in quarters distant from each other. Unless he possess relatives able and willing to succour him, he has in this Colony no haven but the Asylum, than resort to which many of the more deserving prefer to die, and to my knowledge actually have died.

I may remark in this place that it is customary with many small Lodges to attempt to make up deficiencies in their funds by entertainments and fairs. While I think resort to this method is justifiable in behalf of an Orphans' Fund, the existence of which should be obligatory I think on all clubs, that it would be better that some limit in the matter of minimum payments should be determined by authority on an actuarial basis, as in insufficient weekly payments is to be found the weak point of the system.

I, however, see no reason why it should not become the custom to hold certain annual entertainments, the proceeds of which should accrue equally to the local Lodge and the central authority, the latter undertaking a considerable share in providing the amusements, which they could thus do at a tithe of the expense now sustained. For several years some Lodges connected with my late practice in the north of London have held an annual fête champêtre, from which they generally netted £80 to £100. One of the local gentry usually cheerfully granted the use of a part of his park or a large field for the purpose; and the local clergyman invariably preached at the close of the anniversary service in the church a sermon on the duty and advantage of provident habits, the collection being added to the unofficial "Widows and Orphans' Fund," to which was also appropriated the produce of the annual entertainment. There was a tendency on the part of the lowest and the richest larrikins of the neighbourhood to turn these opportunities to their own account; the latter, however, meeting with pretty open contempt, became no longer a source of trouble; the former nuisance was met by constituting the members and their wives stewards and stewardesses, through whom alone vouchers for participation in the treat could be procured.

I notice also that the custom of immigrants coming out here with letters of recommendation to Lodges of the same Order to which they belonged in England is not so general as it ought to be. I believe the practice is very advantageously pursued by the Rechabites, a vigorously managed Order.

Considerable observation and some thought have led me to the conclusion that with proper organization, encouragement from the State, and Governmental protection during times of panic, of monetary interests legitimately secured on land and certain British securities, the provident principle, as susceptible of embodiment in correctly organized Friendly Societies, offer to a prudent nation and a just Government the means whereby one of the greatest domestic burdens of a country may be reduced to a minimum, while carrying in its train moral blessings of incalculable social force and value.

I fear, however, that the thoughtless and unbounded disregard of the future characterizing our colonial youth, and the numerous allurements for spending money to which they are exposed, are such that either compulsion or some great attractive force will require to be exercised to afford society the full benefit attainable from a national system of insurance against sickness and death.

However desirable it may be, I fear public opinion in English communities is not yet ripe for the adoption of the principle of compulsion, nor is likely to become so for several years; therefore, however humiliating the circumstance may be to the generous English mind, there is reason for concluding that the honor of first affording to mankind a practical illustration in the science of government of the possibility of absolutely preventing destitution in times of peace and average abundance by compulsory providence, will devolve on a State (Germany) comparatively despotic, but destined through the necessities of political self-preservation to solve many a problem in civilization heretofore deemed insoluble by happy-go-lucky English egoists, and indeed by all but social philosophers. Several of the latter have long maintained that the evil of poverty which pervades so great a part of the modern world could be almost eradicated from civilized States, attributing it rather to absence of organization and to faulty principles of government than to assumed imperfections of human nature.

I concur in this view, and believing, moreover, that the tendency characterizing English civilization to unduly subordinate public interests to pretended private or individual rights, has a distinct and growing tendency to artificially create pauperism among the multitude, and promote unnatural aggregations of wealth among the few.

I anticipate much good from the labours of the New South Wales Royal Commission of inquiry into the working of Friendly Societies, feeling that these institutions, remodelled in the light of science and experience, offer some prospect of affording to an industrial population the means of honorable protection against poverty resulting from the decay of natural power, and also from the numerous physical accidents inseparable from an existence characterized by so much activity and useful adventure as obtains among Englishmen.

I fear public opinion in this Colony is not yet sufficiently ripe for the introduction of the element of legal compulsion into the operations of Provident Societies. It appears to me, however, few right-thinking Englishmen will dispute that any man who does not fulfil, when he can, so primary a duty as that of providing for the contingencies of sickness and for old age, is unworthy of the privilege, and morally often unequal to the responsibilities, of the parliamentary franchise.

I therefore venture to suggest that this Commission should consider whether the time be not opportune for recommending to Parliament the incorporation of the principle of the moral duty of provident insurance on the part of every citizen in any measure it may be thought proper to pass in reference to the question.

The recognition of this principle could, I believe, be conveniently made by associating the exercise of the parliamentary franchise with the performance of the duty of provident insurance; I mean that no elector should be permitted to record his vote unless he could give evidence of having in minimum available measure fulfilled his primary social duty by protecting himself and his dependent kin from destitution through the medium of provident insurance as afforded by membership of an ordinary insurance in a simple "Friendly Society." I am informed that some such principle has lately been advocated by careful writers in England, and that the suggestion has taken root in public opinion. Though I have not had the pleasure of reading one of these productions, I could adduce many arguments supported by reason and experience that would commend the principle to any mind not incapable of apprehending facts, nor eclipsed by absence of faith in the potential moral powers of mankind. As the result of my own thought and observation, I have arrived at the conclusion that if the provident principle were to be made operative in the case of every man from the age of 18, pauperism, in the degraded and painful sense in which it is now familiar to Englishmen, would as a consequence ultimately cease to exist.

In response to the request so particularly made to me by the Commission for the names of persons and Lodges in a position to throw interesting light on the working of Sydney Clubs, I would refer to Mr. and Mrs. Burns, of Balmam, and to Mrs. Wilkes, widow of the late Grand Master of two Lodges in the northern part of the city; also to the following Clubs:—

Perseverance Division (Sons of Temperance);	North Star (Oddfellows);
Hebrew Mutual Benefit Society;	Loyal William Gane;
Court Friendship (Foresters);	Loyal Love of Liberty;
Princess Alice (Daughters of Temperance);	Prince George of Camperdown;
Native Rose (Daughters of Temperance);	Court Fortitude;
Miller's Point Lodge (Oddfellows);

and another whose place of meeting was at the "Flower Pot," York, but the name of which I forget.

I believe it is in the power of the past and present officers of these Lodges to afford much useful information to the Commission on various financial, social, statistical, and moral points connected with Clubs. I may here remark that I have been unable to make up my mind touching whether the holding of Club meetings at public-houses be more productive of harm than good. In the absence of some legal encouragement to the exercise of providence such as I have indicated in connexion with the franchise, I am inclined to the belief that in England the good accomplished exceeds the evil resulting, as many men are induced to join a Lodge which meets in a public-house in consequence of its convivial associations, opportunities for a chat, smoke, etcetera, who certainly would not join if the Lodge met in a chapel or school-room. On the other hand, I have heard of men who on going for the purpose of attending their clubs, have spent the amount of their dues at the bar instead of entering the Lodge-room. The difficulty might in a measure be met by agreement with the publican; but, without the help of a distinct and obligatory regulation I fear it is insuperable.

In explanation of the advantage of the idea of a store of medical and surgical appliances, I desire to quote a case of a not unfrequent form of chest disease—where a single patient might require in the course of treatment the use of an aspirator, an inhalation apparatus, an invalid's bed and an invalid's chair, &c. &c. The cost of these (of the best make) costing costing about £40, cannot be provided by a medical man for one patient; whereas an Order comprising many Lodges could do so advantageously, as the same apparatus could be used in the course of time for an indefinite number of people. By such an arrangement many lives now lost would be preserved.

I strongly recommend the Commission not to close their labours without examining some country medical practitioners and dissatisfied members of Lodges. The best country club I have ever been connected with, paid me mileage and per case—not on the contract system.

It was, moreover, a prosperous club, always in funds, and the system gave incomparably greater satisfaction to both members and doctors than the plan so general in New South Wales.

I think the plan ought to be tried here, the doctors consenting to a moderate scale of charges.

It may, perhaps, be advisable that I epitomize the views, so far as I can remember, that I have expressed to the Commission on the various points concerning which I have been requested to furnish information.

1. That the moral influence, or effect on mind, habit, and character, derived from membership of a Friendly Society is not the least advantage accruing.

2. That the tendency at present of the influences exerted by the Societies on the medical profession of New South Wales is debasing; and neither calculated to promote scientific practice nor to conduce to the pecuniary or social advantage of medical men.

3. That the inseparable union of the Provident Insurance Department of Friendly Societies with medical attendance in sickness acts injuriously.

4. That medical attendance should be confined to members of moderate means, they themselves, however, to at first judge whether the limitation applies to them, the Lodge reserving the power to exercise its right in notorious cases of departure from the rule.

5. I believe rich men have rarely joined a Lodge with the intention of participating in its medical benefits, and that the anomaly has mainly, though not entirely, arisen from originally poor members having become wealthy; I think, moreover, that the simple legal adoption of a new rule would suffice to correct the abuse, and that it would rarely require to be enforced.

6. I think defalcations in some Treasurer's accounts have occurred under circumstances over which the Treasurers had no control, and for which they were morally blameless, the money having been used without their knowledge by members of their family, though in consequence of their necessitous personal circumstances, and sometimes during the illness of the head of the family.

7. It appears to me the office of Lodge Treasurer is worse than unnecessary, and that the function could be better performed by the "Friendly Societies' Bank" manager, with whom the Financial Secretary of each club should at the close of each meeting deposit the money, however small the amount might be.

8. The establishment of a "Friendly Societies' Bank," with rigid Government protection, and only open in the evenings is necessary in large towns, and that sick dues should be paid through it.

9. I suggest that small independent Lodges be discouraged, and that when a local Lodge fails its liabilities should be assumed by the "Order."

10. While the country is young I believe special provision for the future sick and infirm could be very advantageously made, by according Orders and local Lodges certain privileges of priority in the purchase of town allotments.

11. I believe the great Orders ought in large towns to provide "Pensioners' Homes" for their friendless infirm members, and could do so to their own pecuniary advantage.

12. In Sydney a club store, not of medicines necessarily, but of medical and surgical appliances, invalids' beds, chairs, &c., &c., is urgently required for the use of members, and could, probably, be made self-supporting, if not a source of profit.

13. I submit that the practice of associating the provident principle and medical benefits with particular religious tenets is neither to be commended nor is necessary; and that the presumed cardinal objects of the Protestant Alliance and the Catholic Guilds, and such like bodies, could be more satisfactorily attained by more clearly declared means.

14. I think that every medical service—whether it be the examination of a candidate or the performance of an operation—should be paid for, though very moderately.

15. Experience indicates the necessity for limiting membership to one Sick Society.

16. That adopted children and aged parents of members (not themselves subscribers), living at their sons' expense, should enjoy the medical privileges of children.

17. That in cases of incurable lunacy, Lodges should only be liable to pay dues to legal dependants; and that where there are none of the latter, there should be no liability. In cases of recovery, however, all dues should be paid up by the Lodge; and in every case a special committee (with certain powers) of one or two should be appointed to guide and assist the recovered brother.

18. That the rights of members who have become bankrupt or been imprisoned for crime should be defined, and that special regulations should exist with a view to give restored members a fresh start in life.

19. That just rules for expulsion should be framed, but never be carried out without the consent of the central authority.

20. That the office of Registrar of Friendly Societies be enlarged in its scope and legal power.

21. That the duty of provident insurance should be made obligatory in every citizen from the richest to the poorest; and that the most promising means for accomplishing this at the present day would be by rendering it necessary to the exercise of the parliamentary franchise.

22. That a small fine should be payable for invoking the aid of medical officers "out of hours," cases of accident alone excepted.

23. I believe that an Orphan Fund should exist in connection with every great Order; and that the produce of annual fairs and entertainments should go to the fund; and that the State should contribute to it proportionately.

24. I think local Lodges ought to receive payments either in advance or once a week; that neither monthly nor quarterly accumulations should be permitted; and that the subscriptions at present made are insufficient; and the fact is recognised and deplored by the wage classes of the Colony.

25. That a minimum amount of insurance money accruing from clubs or insurance societies to widows or orphans should be protected by law, and not be liable to attachment by creditors.

26. That no extraneous subject, nor religious, nor political topics should be permitted to be discussed in Lodgerooms; and that this rule should have force of law.

27. I think the law ought to insure payments to Lodges by shipowners or their agents for sailors at sea; and that these should be made through the Shipping Master.

28. I think the "Accident Fund" of Trade Societies should be rendered incapable of being diverted to any other use; and that annual fairs and entertainments should be provided for adding to these.

29. Local Lodges should always subscribe to the local hospital, and enjoy the right (subject to approval of fitness on the part of the hospital authority) of nomination for admission.

In concluding this statement, I beg to reiterate the opinion of the necessity for examining medical witnesses from the country, and of the desirability for trying the system in one or two clubs in town and country—particularly in the latter—of payment per case and visit, but on a moderate scale.

To the President, Friendly Societies Act Inquiry Commission, Sydney.

Sir,

I have the honor, in accordance with my promise on examination before the Friendly Societies Act Inquiry Commission, to make the following suggestions in reference to the questions under your consideration. I understand it to be the object of the Commission to make such recommendations to Parliament as will form the basis of a measure which will repeal, or greatly modify, the provisions of the existing Act; and with this understanding I would suggest—

1. That the control or supervision of Friendly Societies be vested in a Department to be presided over by a Registrar, who shall have such clerical assistance as shall be found necessary for the effectual working of the Department.

In connection with this suggestion, I would recommend—

(a.) That the Government should have the necessary tables constructed to place the Societies in a position to give the benefits promised on the following basis,—

Table A. To give a funeral donation of £1 on the death of a member, and half that amount on the death of a member's wife.

Table B. To give a sick allowance of 1s. per week for six months, 9d. a week for a further six months, 6d. a week for a further six months, and 3d. a week during the further duration of the illness.

This being done, a simple multiplication will suffice to enable the Society to give whatever benefits may be thought desirable.

(b.) That the Registrar should be instructed not to certify the rules of any Society whose contributions were not based on the above scale, together with the necessary provision for the payment of the medical officer and chemist, if such benefits be given, and for the due payment of all expenses of management.

2. That the registration of the supreme body of any organization shall be taken to include the registration of each and every branch of such organization, which shall be duly returned to the Registrar by the Secretary and under the seal of such supreme body.

In connection with this suggestion it will be necessary to provide by enactment—

(a.) That the general laws of such supreme body shall declare the minimum contributions to be paid by each branch; such minimum contributions not being less than the amounts necessary to provide the promised benefits according to Tables A and B.

(b.) That the Secretary of such supreme body shall within one month of the institution of any new branch—or such other time as may be deemed necessary—be required, under a penalty, to make a return to the Registrar of such new branch.

3. That the Secretary of every such supreme body shall be compelled to keep a register of the members of the Society within his jurisdiction, in the following form:—

Name.	Date of initiation.	Age at initiation.	Married or single.	Sick pay received.	Date of death.	Wife's name	Wife's age at marriage	Date of marriage.	Date of wife's death.	Remarks.
John Jones	1/12/63	25	M.	£ s. d. 3 12 0	11/8/81	Mary Jones ..	19	3/9/63

Note.—As the husband in the above example is supposed to have died before the wife, the Society is released from any liability on account of her death.

4. That the Secretary shall, at the end of each year, forward to the Registrar a return in the following form:—

Present age	Total number of members.	Total number of days' illness.	Amount of sick pay paid.	Number who have died a natural death.	Number who have died a violent death.	Amount of funeral donations paid.	Remarks.
34	47	141	£ s. d. 20 3 4	2	1*	£ s. d. 60 0 0	*Killed by colliery explosion.
35	40	130	19 0 0	1	20 0 0
36	29	147	21 0 0	2	40 0 0

which shall be compiled from the register referred to in the previous suggestion; this return to be in addition to the ordinary financial return.

5. That a uniform system of book-keeping be adopted for all Societies, this system to be devised by some person qualified to do so, and to be of as simple a nature as possible.

6. That a valuation of the assets and liabilities of each Society be made, at intervals of not less than five years, according to the most approved tables, and that, in the event of it being ascertained that the liabilities of any Society exceed the assets by more than 10 per cent., the Registrar shall be empowered to compel either a levy, not exceeding 5s. per member per half-year, or a sufficient increase in the contributions to balance the account within two years from the valuation being made, at the end of which period it shall be competent for him to order a re-valuation.

7. That Societies may, if they see fit, allow members to take double, treble, or quadruple benefits, by paying the proportionate contributions, provided that when such benefits are taken the members shall not be entitled to any benefits for a period of at least twelve months after initiation, excepting of course the medical benefits, if such be given by the Society.

8. That all cases of dispute—except those of a criminal nature—shall be subject to the various modes of settlement provided in the general laws of the Society, but that an appeal may then be made to a Court of Arbitration consisting of the Registrar and two other members to be triennially appointed by the Government, such other members to be persons acquainted with the workings of Friendly Societies, but not officially connected with any Society; the decision of such Court of Arbitration to be final. No case of dispute to be brought in any case before a Court of law.

9. That members in arrears may be sued for the same, provided that it shall not be competent for any Society to sue for more than twelve months' arrears; action in all cases to be taken within eighteen months after a member has paid his last subscription.

10. That an officer of the Government duly appointed should have the power at any time to inspect the books and vouchers of any Society, with or without notice.

11. That the internal management of Societies should be left solely to the members, the State simply providing for the financial and statistical details of the working to be regularly supplied.

I have, &c.,
L. E. HARCUS.

The following are the tables under which the Australasian Holy Catholic Guild was established in 1845:—

SICKNESS FUND.—No. 1.

A weekly allowance of 5s. constitutes one share, and members may take one, one and a-half, two, two and a-half, three, three and a-half, or four shares. The full allowance is paid for twenty-six weeks of sickness; three-fourths of that sum for other twenty-six weeks; and one-half of the first rate during the remainder of a continued period of sickness up to the age of sixty-five years, when all contributions cease and the superannuation commences.

NOTE.—The great importance of this fund is that it begins to operate at that period of life when the energies of both body and mind usually begin to decay. The benefit is quite certain, whether the holder is able to work or not, and, taken in conjunction with the Sickness Fund, must render him comparatively independent; for, while the Sickness Fund secures him a comfortable maintenance in sickness up to sixty-five years, this commences then, and secures him a permanent quarterly allowance during life.

Note.—This Fund not only secures the advantages provided by the old Societies, viz., a sum of money payable at death, by way of funeral money, but it goes further, by permitting the Member to choose the amount he wishes to secure for those he may leave dependent behind him: for instance, a person in the twenty-first year of his age can secure twenty pounds at death, by paying the trifling sum of fourpence per month; thus uniting all the advantages of a Friendly Society with those of a Life Assurance scheme on a limited scale.

N.B.—The cost of doctor, medicine, salaries, and other incidental expenses were levied pro rata in addition to the above.

SPECIAL Report of Committee of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of the I.O.O.F., to whom was referred in 1881 the actuarial position of the Order in America.

Sick Benefits.

The payment of weekly sick benefits is a fundamental principle of the Order. It was founded for that purpose originally; and while it has added to its operations many other forms of pecuniary, social, and moral benefits, the sick benefit retains its leading place as one which can, under no circumstances, be omitted. The chief liabilities of a Lodge are for sick benefits; the chief expenditure of the Order is for this purpose. Out of a total relief expenditure for 1881 of $1,831,171, no less than $1,264,784 has gone for the relief of distressed brothers, and the greater proportion of this in the shape of sick benefits.

The liabilities incurred on account of sick benefits are by no means uncertain. Previous reports of Special Committees on this subject have provided the Sovereign Grand Lodge with statistics which we have every reason to believe reliable, and with estimates which appear to us in the main correct. As the average rate of mortality can always be estimated, so can the rate of sickness. As a farther contribution, however, to the statistics already collected, your Committee submit a few tables giving the experience of some of our jurisdictions. Pennsylvania, with its large membership of nearly 80,000, affords a broad field for statistical inquiry, and the reports of its Grand Secretary always supply valuable information. The following table shows that the older Lodges have greater liabilities for sickness than the younger:—

TABLE A.
SHOWING experience of Pennsylvania Lodges in 1881, numbered by hundreds.

Lodges numbering from.	Weeks' Sickness.	Number of Members.	Weeks per Member.
No. 1 to No. 100	20,934	15,575	1.352

" 201 " 300	10,465	9,757	1.072

" 801 " 900	2,192	4,832	.453

The two following tables show the increase in the average of sickness with the growth of the Order; the first being the average of Pennsylvania for the last nine years; the second the average of the entire Order for the same time:—

It is sometimes assumed that the increased amount of sickness in older Lodges is due chiefly to the fact that such Lodges have a greater variety of members, owing to the length of time they have been in existence, and that the more unhealthy members have retained their connections, while the healthier have been dropped; and that it is not because the average of sickness increases with the age of the individual members. It is of no practical consequence what the cause of the increased liability may be, so long as it exists; but statistics give clear testimony on this point. Take for illustration the experience of Maine for 1881, and of Ontario for six months of that year. The number of lives tabulated is not large, but large enough to illustrate the general law that older men are liable to more sickness in any given year than younger men.

After further investigation, and with the advantages of increased experience and more voluminous statistics, your Committee can find no reason for differing from the opinions and estimates of previous Committees on this subject. The following conclusions appear to us self-evident, viz.:—That sickness increases with age; that taking the average, the older the individual the greater his term of sickness each year, and the older the Lodge the greater its liability for sick benefits; that the only safety for a Lodge is in estimating the average expectation of sickness and mortality when fixing its scale of dues and benefits; that the only fair and equitable system is one which recognizes the comparative liability incurred by a Lodge on account of the different ages of its initiates, and which charges each member dues according to his age when admitted. The arguments bearing on this subject are fully detailed in the report of your Special Committee in 1880 (Journal, p. 8442), and need not be repeated here. We agree with the opinions therein expressed, that a graded system of dues is the best; but that when a Lodge prefers a uniform system of dues, it must estimate its liabilities by basing its calculations on the average membership of a Lodge of mature years, and not on that of a young Lodge.

With a view of gaining, if possible, the experience of older Lodges, your Committee have endeavoured to gather from the several jurisdictions the statistics of all Lodges not less than thirty-five years old. The returns are only partial, but are given here so far as received. The sickness reported is below the actual experience of individuals, owing to the fact that only the number of weeks for which benefits have been paid are given; which therefore excludes the sickness of all brothers under any form of disability, and in some jurisdictions the first week of every brother's sickness; while from some localities the returns are otherwise incomplete. Pennsylvania, the largest jurisdiction, gives the most complete returns in regard to sickness.

Table F utters a warning to some jurisdictions, for in no less than four the expenditures exceed the receipts, while in others the balance in favour of the Lodges is very small.

The following averages of the statistics in table are not, of course, calculated for the entire 83,000 members, but only for the number of members in the Lodges reporting each particular item.

The ratio of Dues and Benefits.

From the data already supplied there need be no difficulty in estimating the probable liabilities of a Lodge, and thus fixing a just rate of dues and benefits. The estimates submitted by your Committee in 1880 appear to be correct, except in the matter of widows' annuities and working expenses, which are placed too low. Careful consideration convinces us that the widows' annuity and the benefits paid on the death of a brother's wife are unwise expenditures when they take the form of a fixed benefit. We exclude them, therefore, from our estimate, and place the benefits at the average maximum paid in the majority of jurisdictions, viz., $4 weekly benefit; $40 funeral benefit. Assuming that the Lodge is composed of members at the age of twenty-one, the liabilities will be as follows:—

Half-a-week's sick benefit	$2 00
Funeral benefit	50
Special relief	35
Maintenance and reserve	3 15

	$6 00
