Asylums Office, 18 March, 1886.

With reference to the issue of medical comforts at Newington, I find that there were 10 gallons of brandy and 1 dozen port wine received in October which are not credited to the account of receipts of medical comforts, though according to Mrs. Hicks' statement they are included in Mr. M'Allister's account of issues. These quantities were not paid for, and therefore not entered in the statement from the contractors' accounts.

I am, &c.,

FREDERIC KING.

Secretary of Government Asylums Inquiry Board to The Manager of Government Asylums.

Sir,

Government Asylums Inquiry Board, Macquarie-street Sydney, 25th Nov., 1886.

I am directed by the Chairman to inform you, in reference to your letter of the 18th inst., referring to medical comforts sent to Newington, that it was not until a full report upon the books of that Institution, dated the 3rd inst., and concluding with the following words—"I expected to have handed you this report on the 3rd inst., but had to hold it over as the manager, to whom I had previously applied for details of the supplies sent to Newington from the time it was opened, was not in a position, until the end of last week, to furnish me with the information that he could say was absolutely reliable"—had been received from Mr. M'Allister that the Board examined you upon the subject, and that the Chairman is extremely surprised to find that the nature of your examination and the evidence you gave has been conveyed to the matron at Newington, who, in a letter, evidently written by her husband and dated the 22nd inst., desires also to make explanations as to the discrepancies between her receipts and disbursements of medical comforts.

The

The Board has already met with great difficulties in endeavouring to elicit the truth in connection with the management and working of the Destitute Asylums, and the Chairman hopes that these difficulties will not be increased by your again conveying to the persons affected by the inquiry any information as to how the evidence inclines towards them.

I have, &c.,

C. R. BURNSIDE,

Secretary.

The Superintendent of Newington Asylum to The President, Government Asylums Inquiry Board.

Sir,

Newington Asylum, 22 November, 1886.

I have the honor respectfully to inform you that the Manager of Asylums, Mr. King, has advised me that the Board of Inquiry is not satisfied with my having shown a supposed larger issue of medical comforts, wines, spirits, &c. than have been received by me from the contractors.

This is a matter very easy of explanation, and I regret that I omitted to point this out to Mr. M'Allister when going through my books and returns.

That gentleman will remember that Mr. King did not give him the October returns of 10 gallons brandy and 1 dozen port, as at that time, the month not being ended, my medical comforts return had not been sent by me to the office. There were also, as the manager knows, many occasions, both in Sydney and Newington, before and during the removal of inmates from Sydney, when I have had recourse to Mr. Hicks' private cellar when the asylum chanced to run short of wines or spirits. These bottles have been paid for by Mr. King, although my husband objected, as he did not receive the price paid by him per bottle.

I take this opportunity of again respectfully applying for a copy of my own evidence before the Board, as well as the evidence of inmates and others up to date, so that I may be in a position to refute any slanderous charges that may have been brought against me behind my back.

I have, &c.,

LUCY H. HICKS,

Superintendent.

Inform the writer that a copy of her evidence is sent (send it with usual letter), but that no application for a copy of the evidence already taken of inmates and others can be entertained by the Board unless through the Colonial Secretary. Send this letter on to Mr. M'Allister for further inquiry and report.—T.K.A., Chairman. The Secretary, Government Asylums Inquiry Board.—24/11/86. Sent, 24/11/86.—C.R.B.

Mr. D. M'Allister to The Chairman Government Asylums Inquiry Board.

(Newington.)

Sir,

2, Bridge-street, 24 November, 1886.

I return all the documents you left with me this morning.

I have referred to the contractors' account for October (Messrs. Ferris, Wilson, & Co.'s), and find that they charged in that month 5 gallons brandy and 1 case wine. These were not included by the Central Office in the statement of supplies which they handed me for my report of 3rd instant. I was aware, however, that the Institution had received 5 gallons of brandy in October, and added that quantity. My figures as regards brandy are, therefore, correct.

The case of wine may or may not have to be added. I had no information respecting it from any quarter. My investigation at Newington closed on 28th October. The wine may have been delivered between that and the 31st.

I will have this put beyond all doubt by asking the Central Office to apply to Messrs. Ferris, Wilson, & Co., for the date of delivery. When I get a reply I will lose no time in letting you know what it is.

I have, &c.,

D. M'ALLISTER,

Public Accountant.

Memorandum from Messrs. Ferris, Wilson, & Co. to The Manager of Government Asylums

Dear sir,

25 November, 1886.

In reply to your memo. of yesterday on back of our voucher for Newington, we beg to state that the brandy was sent on 2nd October, and the port wine on 27th October, in execution of orders given by Mrs. Hicks.

Yours, &c.,

FERRIS, WILSON, & CO.

(Pro J. G. FYAN.)

Vouchers herewith.—F., W., & Co.

Mr. D. M'Allister to The Chairman, Government Asylums Inquiry Board.

(Newington.)

Sir,

2, Bridge-street, Sydney, 26 November, 1886.

Referring to my letter of 24th instant, in which I said that Messrs. Ferris, Wilson, & Co., of Parramatta, would be asked to name the day in October on which they delivered one case of wine to the above Institution, I have now the pleasure to enclose the reply they addressed to the manager in response to his inquiry.

Messrs. Ferris, Wilson & Co. state that the wine was delivered on 27th October. Stock was taken by me between half-past 9 and 10 o'clock on the morning of the 28th. The two events being so close together, I think Mrs. Hicks should be asked to make it quite clear whether the case was opened and its contents put into store before or after stock-taking.

I have, &c.,

D. M'ALLISTER,

Public Accountant.

REPORT

REPORT ON INSTITUTION, GEORGE-STREET, PARRAMATTA.

Mr. D. M'Allister to The Chairman, Government Asylums Inquiry Board.

Sir,

2, Bridge-street, Sydney, 11 November, 1886.

There are no written or printed rules at the above Institution for the guidance of the matron, either from Government or the manager's office. The system in operation seems to be the outcome of individual experience, based on the manager's instructions and the requirements of the Central Office.

Returns of the number of inmates are made up once a week, and generally posted on Sunday evening or early enough on Monday morning to reach the Central Office before noon on Monday.

Returns of Rations and medical comforts supplied to inmates are made up on the last day of every month, and forwarded to Sydney in the first week of every month.

Mustering is done as a rule twice a year, but the matron keeps a current check on the total number by making the wardsmen count how many are in each ward every Saturday night after the inmates have gone to bed.

No Mustering has been made by any one from the Central Office for more than a year. The matron has no record of the date when it was last done.

Inmates are Admitted as a rule by the manager's orders. Occasionally the Bench, and sometimes Mr. Taylor, M.P., recommend cases, but these are subject to the approval of the manager.

Discharge of Inmates is granted at their own request, but now and then one or two may have to be sent away for bad behaviour.

Absconders are accounted for in the weekly returns, the date of disappearance being set opposite the absconder's name.

Rations.—Bread and Meat are ordered daily by the matron for the total number of inmates on the register, allowing 1 lb. meat and 1 lb. bread for each man per diem, with a few pounds of meat over for extras, and 1 lb. meat extra per man for those ordered beef tea. Beyond sending requisitions for bread and meat, the matron has no power to order anything without reference to the manager; if any trifling article absolutely necessary is wanted, she may order it; but in doing so, has to take the risk of the manager's approval.

Accounts for Supplies are not sent to the Institution, but go to the manager direct, who forwards them to the matron for verification, when that is done; they are returned to the Central Office, from which place they are passed on to the Treasury for payment.

Weight of Bread and Meat.—Meat is weighed every morning, and bread is tested unawares two or three times a week by putting a few batches of ten or twenty loaves on the scales.

Medical Comforts are ordered by the Central Office.

Comforts are given out to inmates on the doctor's order, but the matron informs me that she holds authority from the manager to give very feeble inmates a glass of brandy or rum, if in the exercise of her discretion, she thinks it would do them good. Spirits are always put on the table when entertainments are given, and men employed on decorations or doing anything in a hurry, get a glass, or they would not work.

Clothing, Blankets, &c., are ordered by the Central Office on indents from the matron, but the manager increases or reduces quantities, or abides by the indents, according to his own views.

Stock Book.—None kept.

Stock was taken about two months ago, but in this way, which is the plan usually followed. An indent was being made up for some articles very much wanted, and the matron, to emphasize how low stocks had run down, added particulars of what she had in store. There is no fixed period for taking stock, nor indeed is it ever done; but on discussing the question with the matron on my first visit to George-street, she volunteered to have everything in the store counted, and on my next visit a list was handed to me, bearing date the 4th instant, of the articles of clothing, &c., that were in stock on that day. The following is a copy:—

42 single blankets	36 boys' boots (pairs)
240 bolster-cases	8 men's boots (pairs)
162 bed-ticks	100 men's boots (pairs), Bl.
165 cotton jumpers	13 waterproof sheets
120 cotton shirts	44 calico sheets
106 mole trousers	51 calico pillow-cases
35 tweed trousers (boys')	13 hand towels
2 cases mole trousers	29 round towels
162 men's pilot coats	158 pairs hospital slippers
22 boys' tweed coats	101 military rugs
22 boys' tweed vests	26 yards calico, S.W.
40 boys' shirts	2 cases zephyr rugs.

Supplies to Inmates.—No delivery book is kept, showing what articles are given out, and the names of those to whom they are given, but the matron has a small book in which she enters the names of the men who get coats. The object of this book is to serve as a check, lest any of them should apply for a second coat under the pretence that they had not received one.

Every Saturday night all the inmates get a clean pair of moleskin trousers and a clean shirt in exchange for the same articles. On leaving, the men return the Institution clothing and get their own back. In cases, however, where their own clothes are very bad, a suit may be supplied from the stock of what was worn by deceased inmates, or, if a respectable man is going out to good service and his clothes are rather shabby, he may get a suit that was worn before.

Calico, Flannel, and Huckaback are the articles used for being made up. Something is given out nearly every day according to requirements, the plan followed being to measure off so many yards of calico calico or flannel, which are to produce a certain number of articles. Care is taken to see that the proper number is produced, and when made they are served out to inmates in want of them.

Worn out Sheets, Pillows, &c., are used as hospital rags for poultices, &c., while mops are made from old coats and very old blankets, and in some cases very old blankets are used as padding for beds. All this is done without reference to the manager.

Deaths are reported to the Central Office in the weekly reports, the date and hour of the occurrence being given in each instance. When friends bury, a memorandum to that effect is always made in the diary, as a check on the undertaker. A death is announced to the undertaker by a written intimation, stating deceased's religion, and giving an idea of his height.

Proofs of Death are, entry in weekly report and doctor's certificate.

Once a Dead Body is handed over to the undertaker, the matron has no further interest in it, and takes none.

The Institution has no connecting link between the undertaker and the grave. The undertaker never hands in the receipts he gets at the cemetery, nor has he ever been asked for them. I would recommend that receipts should accompany the accounts the undertaker sends to the Central Office.

Inventory.—No inventory of furniture and utensils has ever existed. When articles are broken they are replaced from the store without reference to the manager. The manager orders what is required.

Money left by Deceased inmates is sent to the manager. No book is specially kept for entering it in, but if the same is large it is noted in the diary.

Money in possession of Inmates when taken in is entered in a book kept for the purpose, anything over £1 being sent to the manager, small sums are retained by the matron, and disbursed at the rate of about 2s. per week, or as wanted. In the case of an inmate dying, the balance of his money is sent to the manager.

Pay-sheets for Employed Inmates are made up at the Institution, and sent to the manager. Every one entitled to receive money has to sign his or her name opposite the sum due.

The Books kept at the Institution are:—Store-book, in which are entered details of supplies on the dates that they are received, but that is all. The book is merely a register of what comes in, and is of no use beyond that. A Diary which is used for the customary purposes of a diary.

Admissions and Discharges in one Book.—Index of Admissions and Discharges.—The matron states that she is without reliable clerical assistance, and is unable to keep more books than the above, or to do other than she is doing, as her time is fully occupied in managing and supervising the establishment.

Medical Comforts.—This book is kept with a total absence of clearness. I found Newington bad enough, but here matters are even worse. The book does not show what inmates are under treatment, nor the comforts prescribed for those who are. That very loose system of "continue as before" is in full operation day after day with a name or two added or struck off to increase the confusion. How the doctor or matron can tell who are on the sick list, and what comforts each has to receive, appears to partake somewhat of the nature of a puzzle. I did not attempt an investigation, as the progress would be both long and costly. The system is sadly imperfect, and in my opinion the best thing that can be done is to disallow its continuance any longer. The remedy is perfectly simple, and that is, to instruct the doctor to prepare a detailed list daily, giving the names of those under treatment, and opposite their names in the proper columns particulars of the comforts ordered.

I have, &c.,
D. M'ALLISTER,
Public Accountant.

REPORT ON MACQUARIE-STREET INSTITUTION, PARRAMATTA.

Mr. D. M'Allister to The Chairman, Government Asylums Inquiry Board.

Sir,

2, Bridge-street, Sydney, 16 November, 1886.

Like Newington and George-street, Parramatta, the above Institution has no written or printed rules for the guidance of the matron, either from Government or the Central Office.

The clerical work is well done as far as it goes, and the system in operation is the best I have yet seen, but some changes are necessary to ensure efficiency.

No Stock Book is kept, nor has stock been taken since the establishment was opened. There is, therefore, nothing to show what clothing and medical comforts are, or ought to be, on hand. The matron explains that she thought that every purpose was served by the entries she makes in the diary, when clothing is taken out of store and handed over to the custody of the head wardsman. It was never suggested to her that a stock book should be kept, and she had no idea what such a book meant until I explained its use, and the manner of keeping it, to her.

Entries for Medical Comforts are far from accurate. Those made do not include what the matron gives out on her own responsibility, but only what the doctor authorises. There are feeble old men in the Institution to whom the matron gives a glass of brandy or rum daily, or as often as she thinks it would do them good. There are others who get a glass of brandy or rum for working about the place, and the liquor is so much appreciated that it is accepted in lieu of a money payment, a saving being thereby effected. These things are done on the verbal authority of the manager. The doctor's concurrence in the case of the feeble old men is not asked for, the reason being that here, as at the other places I have visited, there is a want of a cordial feeling of co-operation between the matron and the doctor, and whenever his authority can be done without it is dispensed with.

Returns of the Number of Inmates are made up weekly, and forwarded to the Central Office every Monday morning.

Rations and Medical Comforts.—Returns are sent in monthly, always on the first or second day of the new month.

Muster.

Muster.—One takes place every Monday morning at 9 o'clock, when the inmates are arranged in rows. The doctor walks up and down among them to afford any one an opportunity of speaking to him who wishes to do so. He is accompanied on these occasions by the matron, or, in her absence, the dispenser. The state of the house is entered in the diary regularly every week, showing the number of inmates in each wing.

Muster by Central Office.—The following I copied from the entry in the diary under date 28th August, 1884:—"The last attempt at a muster was made by Mr. Rossiter, but in consequence of the irregularities in his book, he was unable to go beyond the letter F, and they were consequently dismissed." No attempt has been made since.

Inmates are admitted by the Manager's order, but erysipelas patients are taken in by the matron at any time, subject to the manager's confirmation afterwards.

Inmates are discharged at their own request, or for bad behaviour after charges are carefully inquired into.

Absconders are accounted for in weekly report, the date of disappearance being put opposite each name.

Rations are ordered daily by written requisitions for the number of inmates on the roll. Virtually the matron has no power to order anything except through the manager. Requisitions for everything, not rations, have to be sent to the Central Office, but any trifling article wanted in a hurry that can be got locally the matron orders, subject, however, to the manager's approval subsequently.

Accounts for supplies.—Tradesmen send their accounts direct to the Central Office, from which place they are forwarded to the matron for verification and signature, when they are returned to the Central Office.

Testing Weights of Supplies.—Bread, meat, potatoes, sugar, tea, pepper, and salt are weighed daily, and weights generally prove correct. If anything is under weight, the difference has to be made good not later than the following day. With regard to meat, I have seen the book in which the weights received daily are entered against the quantities ordered, and in nearly every instance there is a slight excess. Should the weight be short on any occasion, that has to be made up by itself, irrespective of excesses at other times. The weight of bread is always correct, and the remark is added that the bread is of good quality.

Orders for Medical Comforts.—Spirits are ordered by the Central Office, but tea, sugar, &c., locally by requisition to the grocer.

Clothing, Blankets, Boots, &c., are ordered by the manager. The matron has no power to order anything.

Stock Book.—As already stated, there is no such book here, and stock has never been taken. The matron explains that everything going into, or taken out of store, is carefully recorded in the diary.

Store Supplies to Inmates.—No delivery book is kept showing to whom articles are given. The rule followed is for the head wardman to get a supply of the articles he requires from the general store, the matron making an entry in the diary of what she gives out. The head wardman then puts the articles into a small store kept by him, and serves them out to the inmates as they are wanted. He is held responsible for whatever he receives.

Material to be made up.—When anything is given out to be made-up, a quantity is measured off to produce a certain number of articles, care being taken to see that the proper number is made; they are then inspected and put into the store-room.

Manager's Checking of Stock List.—Never done.

Worn-out Articles are not put aside to be condemned by the manager. The matron does this, and the articles are then used for dusters and general cleaning purposes.

Deaths are reported in the weekly returns and confirmed by the doctor's separate report. When friends take away a body for burial, the circumstance is reported.

Announcing a Death to the Undertaker.—A printed form of requisition for a coffin is sent to the undertaker, stating religion of deceased, and giving an approximate of length.

Proofs of Death are the report in the weekly returns, stating day, hour, and minute of death, and report forwarded by the doctor.

The Dead.—Once a body is handed over to the undertaker and has been seen off the establishment in a respectable manner, the matron has no further interest in it. At one time it was the custom to send some person with the undertaker to see that he interred the bodies he received, but that is not done now. The custom might be revived here and extended to all the Institutions. There is no connecting link between the undertaker's and the grave. The matron suggests that the undertaker should hand her the receipt he receives at the cemetery on the day of burial.

Inventory of Furniture and Utensils.—Never had one. The matron condemns anything unfit for use by ordering the article to be burned or buried. When articles are given out to replace those withdrawn, they are entered in the diary. The manager orders articles required.

Money in possession of Inmates when taken in.—All money and valuables have to be given up on entry, and full particulars are entered in the diary. If the sum is over £2 it is sent to the manager. Those who wish to have small sums disbursed to them weekly get them. Inmates on leaving receive any balance of theirs remaining on hand.

Pay-sheets for Employed Inmates are made up by the matron and signed by every one whose name appears on them before being sent to the manager.

Fat and Soap.—Since January, 1885, fat has been sent to Pritchard, the soap-boiler, in exchange for which he gives soap, and in this way the establishment is nearly supplied with soap.

The following is a list of the books in the office:—

Diary	Ration Returns, Monthly
Visitors' Book	Open Registration Book
Copy of Salary Abstracts	Grocer's Requisition Book
Register of Inmates	Requisition, Burials
Matron's Weekly Returns	Requisition, Bread
Doctor's Weekly Returns	Requisition, Meat
Death Returns	Receipt Book for Money.

The matron states that the following is the ration scale per man per diem:—1lb. bread, 1lb. meat,  $\frac{3}{4}$ lb. potatoes,  $\frac{1}{4}$ oz. tea, and  $1\frac{1}{2}$ oz. sugar.

There is a vegetable garden in connection with the Institution which is worked by the inmates, and a plentiful supply of vegetables is always obtained from it for their use.

Medical Comforts.—It will be apparent from my remarks at the outset, that a satisfactory investigation cannot be made, owing to the fact that the entire consumption is not included in the daily entries, and the further fact that, as stock has never been taken, it would be necessary to go as far back as the opening of the establishment to get a starting-point. The doctor's book is also very much of an enigma. To unravel it would only yield a doubtful advantage at best, as the only gain would be to see how far the matron's entries for comforts harmonize with the doctor's prescriptions.

The present loose system should be replaced by a better with the least possible delay. To secure a starting point, stock ought to be taken, and when that is done the matron should enter all incomings and outgoings to her stock account, and details of deliveries in a book kept for that purpose. Stock on hand ought to be shown on the last day of every month in the monthly returns. The doctor's book should be kept in a new way. He should write out a complete list every day of the inmates under treatment, specifying clearly under the proper headings what he prescribes. If he does this, his book will show without trouble at the end of every month what he authorized to be given out. Comforts dispensed by the matron on her own responsibility would appear by themselves, and come prominently before the manager, so that, if need be, they could at any time be the subject of separate inquiry.

I have, &c.,

D. M'ALLISTER,

Public Accountant.

REPORT ON INSTITUTION AT LIVERPOOL.

Mr. D. M'Allister to The Chairman, Government Asylums Inquiry Board,

2, Bridge-street, 18 November, 1886.

Sir,

The above establishment has never had written or printed rules for the guidance of the matron, either from Government or the Central Office.

Returns of the Number of Inmates are made up weekly, and posted every Sunday.

Food and Medical Comforts supplied to Inmates.—Returns are made up once a month, and always despatched to Sydney not later than the 2nd or 3rd of the following month.

Mustering is done twice a year, as a rule.

Muster by Central Office.—The last was on the 18th ultimo, and agreed with the roll. The matron could give me no information as to the date of the previous muster, beyond saying that a long interval elapsed between them.

Admission is by an order from the manager, but cases of emergency are taken on the authority of the surgeon superintendent.

Discharges are at the request of the inmates, but some are expelled for bad behaviour.

Absconders are entered as such in the weekly returns, the date of disappearance being given in each case.

Rations.—Requisitions signed by the matron are sent to the contractors daily for the total number of inmates. The matron has no power to order anything, except through the manager.

Accounts for Supplies are sent direct to the manager by contractors and tradesmen. The manager forwards them to the Institution to be checked in regard to quantities. If found correct, they are signed by the surgeon superintendent, and returned to the Central Office.

Weight of Meat is tested every day on delivery. It is always correct, and sometimes there is a slight surplus.

Other Articles are tested as they come in, nothing being passed that is not right.

Bread.—This establishment has its own bakery. Flour is supplied by contract and passes into the custody of the baker on receipt. The last quantity delivered was 100 bags of 200 lb. each = 20,000 lb. I asked the matron how much flour was required to make a 2 lb.-loaf, and how many loaves of that weight 20,000 lb. of flour should produce, but she was unable to give me exact information. I accompanied her to the bakery in the hope of getting it there, but the baker was absent and continued so during my visit. The matron says she keeps a check on the baker, and satisfies herself as every batch of flour is used up that the proper quantity of bread is produced from it. She cannot do so accurately without the information I asked for and failed to get. It is a great advantage to the Institution to have its own bakery, for the bread is always good and sound, which it appears was not the case when bread was supplied by contract, as on several occasions a whole day's supply had to be condemned for being sour, and recourse had to be had to ship's biscuits.

Orders for Medical Comforts.—Requisitions for brandy, rum, &c., are sent to the manager, who orders what he thinks necessary.

Tea, Sugar, &c., are ordered locally by the matron's signed requisition.

Blanket, Material for Clothing, and Material for Boots are ordered by the manager. Boots and clothing are made on the premises. Leather and cloth are given out in bulk, and articles made are stamped and put into store. Hats, boots, and coats are entered in a small memorandum book when given out, but other articles are not.

No Stock Book is kept, nor has Stock ever been taken. The manager does not count the articles in store.

Worn-out Articles are inspected by the matron, and repaired if not too far gone; if they are too far gone the matron condemns them, and they are then used for hospital purposes or sold as rags. The manager is not referred to.

Deaths.

The Dead.—This establishment buries its own dead. The coffins are supplied by contract, and the only other charge in connection with a burial is a fee of 13s. to the clergyman for a grave, &c. The place has its own hearse, and three people belonging to the Institution accompany every corpse to the grave.

Proof of death is Surgeon Superintendent's certificate, which is forwarded to the Central Office.

Inventory of furniture and utensils. Never had one. Articles are taken out of store as wanted, and supplies are ordered by the manager.

Money left by deceased inmates is entered in a book kept for the purpose, and handed to the manager.

Money in possession of Inmates on Entry.—If they wish to hand it over to the matron, she takes it, and keeps it for them, but anything beyond a few shillings is lodged in their name in the Government Savings Bank, and, if they die, the pass book is sent to the manager.

Pay-sheets for Employed Inmates are made out by the clerk, and examined and initialled by the surgeon superintendent; they are then forwarded to the Central Office.

The Books kept are:—

Admission, Superintendent's Weekly Report	Petty Cash Account	} in one book
Deaths and Burials	Postage Account
Clergyman's Fees, Burials	Doctor's Admissions and Discharges
Pay Book	Record of Vouchers certified
Diary, but labelled "Minute Book"	Requisitions to Manager
	Daily Ration Account.

Medical Comforts.—The surgeon superintendent makes out a daily list, showing how many inmates are under treatment, the numbers of the wards where they are, and the character of the comforts prescribed. The list is arranged in this way: The number of the ward is given. So many are put down as on brandy, or rum, or whatever is recommended, then follows another ward, and so on, each day's totals being easily ascertained. They are then copied into the monthly return list. No knowledge exists as to the quantities of various articles in stock. The plan followed is, when supplies get low to requisition for more.

The matron informs me that she never gives spirits to any of the inmates without the surgeon superintendent's authority. When she wants anything done about the place, she finds that the promise of a little tobacco is ample inducement.

Fat is sold, and the money handed to the manager.

The following is the rations scale:—1lb. bread per man per diem; 1lb. meat, with the bone; 5 men to 1oz. of tea; 1½oz. sugar per man; ¼Bs. potatoes per man twice a week.

REPORT ON CENTRAL OFFICE.

Mr. D. M'Allister to The Chairman, Government Asylums Inquiry Board.

Sir,

2, Bridge-street, Sydney, 20 December, 1886.

The Asylums for the Infirm and Destitute at Liverpool, George-street, Parramatta, Macquarie-street, Parramatta, and Newington, are managed by Mr. Frederic King, whose head-quarters are at the Central Office, 407, Pitt-street.

In 1862 a Board was appointed, by an Executive minute, to supervise and manage the then Asylums, which were, Liverpool, George-street, Parramatta, and Hyde Park, Sydney, with Mr. Frederic King as secretary. When the Board gave up their functions Mr. King became manager, and he has acted in that capacity ever since.

Such rules as are observed in managing the Asylums are a continuance of those adopted and followed by the Board while it existed. The manager is directly responsible to the Honorable the Colonial Secretary. He states that it has been the invariable practice of every holder of that portfolio to impress upon him the desirability of keeping expenses down to the lowest possible minimum, consistent with a due regard to the health and welfare of the inmates. With such instructions, he has not felt warranted in spending any money that could be saved. His aim has been to work the Institutions economically, on what he describes as broad principles. He points out that the statistics in his annual reports show a very moderate cost per inmate, and claims that he has therefore been fairly successful.

Returns are received from all the Asylums weekly. Those from Liverpool, and the medical returns as well, arrive regularly every Monday. George-street and Macquarie-street returns sometimes come in on Monday afternoon, but generally on Tuesday. When Newington was opened, in February last, frequent irregularities occurred, but that was unavoidable, as so much had to be done to the place after the inmates were transferred from Hyde Park. The returns arrive regularly now.

Medical reports for George and Macquarie Streets, as a rule, accompany the weekly reports; but at Newington several instances of delay have occurred, and considerable difficulty has been experienced in getting Dr. Rowling to send them in.

As tests that the Asylums contain the number of inmates returned by the matrons, occasional musters are held by an officer from the Central Office. The manager has no record of the dates when this was last done at the several places, but my reports on the Institutions themselves show it. It is the practice of the manager when going through the wards of the Asylums to ascertain how many inmates are in each ward, and to compare the total with the number on the register.

A Book is kept at the Central Office which shows the number of inmates in each Asylum in the previous week.

Applicants

Applicants for Admission.—The manager subjects each applicant to a scrutiny as to his eligibility for admission and then decides on his case. Applicants are admitted only on the manager's order, excepting cases of great urgency which occur at the Asylums, when the matrons are empowered to admit, pending the manager's approval.

Inmates are discharged by the Manager, but sometimes by the matrons for gross misbehaviour, to be afterwards approved by the manager.

Absconders are accounted for by being written off the weekly reports; they are generally inmates who overstay their leave of absence.

Proofs of Deaths and burials are contained in the matron's weekly reports, and in separate reports sent in by the surgeons.

Rations are ordered daily from the contractors for the number of inmates. This is done by the matron's filling up requisition forms addressed to the contractors, intimating the numbers that have to be provided for. The matrons have no power to go outside of this without reference to the manager, nor can they order anything in the shape of medical comforts without his authority.

Weight of Bread.—The manager says that he tests the weight of bread at all the Asylums frequently. In some instances at the Parramatta Asylums and at Newington, he has found bread not up to weight, and the quality not what it ought to be, and has cautioned the contractors to be more careful or he would enforce the conditions of their contracts. The matrons never know when he will visit the Institutions, nor can they tell what direction his investigations may take.

Weight of Meat.—No check on the matron exists that the weight of meat charged for is supplied. The manager sometimes arrives when it is being delivered, and sees it weighed for his own satisfaction.

Medical Comforts are ordered by the manager, who has to trust to the certificates of the matrons that they receive the supplies with which the Asylums are debited.

Clothing, Blankets, Boots, &c., are ordered by the manager.

Material taken out of Store to be Made Up.—The manager does not check the number of articles it should produce, but he says that he consults with the matrons as to the quantity of each description wanted to produce the number of articles required at the time.

Records of Stocks.—The manager says that the assistance at his disposal does not enable him to keep records of stocks at the Asylums.

Checking Stock Lists.—This is never done. The practice is to take as a guide the average expenditure per head. That is no check.

Articles in Stock.—On no occasion has the manager counted the articles in stock, and compared them with stock lists. There is no check whatever on articles given out of store by the matrons.

Worn-out Articles.—Completely worn-out articles are largely consumed by inmates who suffer from sores, cancers, &c. Many are used for padding beds, while others are utilised for mops and scrubbing-cloths. The manager allows the matrons to condemn on their own responsibility, without reference to him.

Furniture and Utensils.—The Central Office has no inventory of the articles in use at any of the Asylums, and no instructions were ever given to any of the matrons to keep inventories. The manager orders everything required, and has to accept the certificate of the matrons that goods were received against the accounts sent to him to be authorized for payment.

Brandy, Rum, Wine, &c., in stock, the manager never checks.

Money left by Deceased Inmates.—Everything found on inmates is taken possession of by the matrons and forwarded by them to the manager, who, in turn, remits to the Treasury.

Money on Inmates when admitted is handed to the manager, who takes charge of it with a view to making the inmate pay for his keep.

Pay-Sheets for Employed Inmates are made up at the respective Institutions. The manager informs me that money cannot be drawn for any office that has not been specially approved by him. The matrons disburse the various allowances. They also prepare the pay-sheets.

I wish to call the attention of the Board to this heading. I find that a sum of about £2,100 is paid away yearly among the four Institutions. For the ten months of this year, from 1 January to 31 October, the payments have been:—

Liverpool ... ..	£604	5	2
George-street, Parramatta...	353	7	11
Macquarie-street ... ..	326	13	9
Newington ... ..	472	6	2

Each recipient is supposed to sign his or her name opposite the sum shown to be due. From the character of the inmates I did not think that many of them would be equal to the task of giving a signature. An examination of the pay-sheets has completely convinced me on this point, as the majority of the so-called signatures are only crosses, and not witnessed. I understand that in cases where the recipient is not a good hand at making a cross, this duty is obligingly performed for him or her by the disbursing officer. I have no data upon which to base an opinion, and do not therefore for a moment suggest that the pay-sheets are not accurately and faithfully prepared. What I wish to do is to call attention to the system. It is quite evident that any person unable to make a cross cannot be a good judge of figures, and the same remark may be extended to the bulk, at any rate, of those who are one step in advance, and can make a cross. I take it, therefore, that the recipient is ignorant of what is signed for, and accepts payment without any knowledge whatever of what the sum was against which a mark was placed. While assuming that the pay-sheets are always prepared with the utmost good faith, I am sure that it will be apparent to the Board that it would be an easy matter to obtain signatures, or rather crosses, for larger sums than are paid away. I do not say that it is so, but it is clearly my duty to point out that the door is wide wide enough open for it to be so. Wherever money is concerned, checks ought to exist. There are none here. The remedy I suggest is that some person from the Central Office should visit each Asylum on pay-day, who would call up every one whose name appears on the pay-sheet, and pays him or her what is shown to be due. That would keep the matter from being so entirely in the hands of the compilers of the pay-sheets, as is the case at present.

No Cash Transactions take place at the Central Office, nor has the manager any dealings with money other than the small sums sent to him by the matrons, which, as already referred to, he forwards to the Treasury.

The following is a list of the books kept at the Central Office:—

Admission Book for Liverpool, Admission Book for George-street, Parramatta, Admission Book for Macquarie-street, Parramatta, Admission Book for Newington, Death Book for Liverpool, Death Book for George-street, Parramatta, Death Book for Macquarie-street, Parramatta, Death Book for Newington, Applicants' Book, in which are entered particulars of applicants' history, nature of case, and Asylum sent to; Weekly Report, where numbers in weekly reports are summarised; Office Register, in which all papers are registered; Register of Accounts and Total Expenditure; Register of Accounts, as received from contractors and others, showing sums claimed on one side, and settlements on the other; Cash Book, which is kept by the manager, and shows the moneys received by him from all sources outside the vote, and how they are disposed of.

Dr. Maher's Ophthalmic Report Book for George-street and Macquarie-street.

Register of Stationery issued to different houses.

Register (4) of supplies applied for.

Register (4) admissions and discharges.

Register of all documents received.

For Working the Present System the manager is of opinion that the books kept at the various Institutions and in his own office are sufficient.

Daily ration scale at all the Asylums:—

Men—1 lb. bread, 1 lb. meat, 1½ oz. sugar, ¼th of an oz. tea, ¼ths of a lb. potatoes, at all places except Liverpool, where potatoes are only supplied three times a week.

Women—The same as men excepting tea, of which they get the fourth part of an oz., against a fifth.

Medical Comforts ordered to Inmates.—The manager desires it to be stated that he has always objected to the extremely careless and incomplete manner in which prescriptions are written out by Dr. Rowling for the Asylums at Newington, George-street, and Macquarie-street. They are a great source of trouble to the office, and fail to afford the information that should be readily gathered from them.

The Staff consists of manager, chief clerk, two assistants, one temporary assistant, messenger.

The manager has to be often away visiting the Asylums. In his absence he is represented by the chief clerk, who attends to all pressing matters. It is explained to me that, but for this there would be more frequent musters. Mustering devolves on the chief clerk, but he cannot be away on the same day as the manager. When his time is occupied representing the manager, his own office work gets behind, and he has therefore not sufficient leisure to visit the Asylums and hold musters as often as they should be held. This is also assigned as a reason for details in connection with the Asylums not being more closely investigated than they are. The manager says that the work of the two assistants is not of an important nature, but their time is fully occupied. The temporary assistant is only to be there for a short time.

Liverpool Bakery.—I referred in my report on Liverpool to the Asylum having its own bakery. I could get no information then as to the comparative cost of baking or buying bread. My investigations at the Central Office, however, enable me to show you how the matter stands for the ten months from 1st January to 31st October last. The following particulars will no doubt prove of interest:—

	Cost of Flour.	Cost of Yeast.	Coal and Firewood.
January .....	£83 19 2	£4 17 6	£28 9 8
February .....	87 6 4	4 10 0	28 15 4

			£1,290 13 5
Deduct flour used for soup, say ... ..	...	...	10 13 5
			£1,280 0 0

From 1st January to 31st October, multiplying the number of inmates at Liverpool by the number of days between those dates, there were 222,530 inmates.

An expenditure of £1,280 on that number is equal to 1½d. per head. The contract price for bread at the other Asylums is 1½d. per lb., or nearly 1½d.—a difference of about 30 per cent. against Liverpool.

* About one-third applies to the bakery—say £110.

Liverpool. To make this clearer, I will take the number of inmates at Liverpool, 222,530, at  $1\frac{1}{2}$  per lb. d. or per head, which would give a cost of £985 3s. 2d. against £1,280—or £294 16s. 10d. less.

It will be noticed in the foregoing that I have charged nothing for interest on capital, and that nothing has been written off for depreciation. The manager cannot say for certain how much the bakery cost, but he thinks about £1,500. I will therefore take his own figures, and assess them at 5 per cent. per annum, = £75 per annum. I will also take depreciation at 5 per cent. per annum—a very moderate deduction indeed for depreciation—that is equal to another sum of £75 per annum. These two, or £150 per annum for 10 months = £125. If we add £125 to the previous £1,280, the actual cost becomes £1,405, or a little over  $1\frac{1}{2}$ d. per head. At  $1\frac{1}{2}$ d., the cost for 222,530 inmates, as already shown, would be £985 3s. 2d., or £419 16s. 10d. less than £1,405—nearly 43 per cent. I do not know what has been spent on repairs, and will leave that out.

The above figures tell their own tale, and point unmistakably to something being wrong somewhere. Liverpool must be unfortunate in getting very dear flour, or probably the weight is light, or there may be great waste, or, what is extremely likely, something else happens. The cost of flour by itself to Liverpool is about on a parity with the cost of bread to the other places.

While bread is so dear at Liverpool, the cost of meat is much below what is paid at the other Asylums. From 1st January to 31st October the expenditure was £1,685 13s. 6d., or at the rate of  $1\frac{1}{2}$ d. per inmate for 222,530 inmates. At George-street, Parramatta, the inmates numbered for the same time 119,290, and the expenditure for meat was £1,138 4s. 10d., or  $2\frac{1}{2}$ d. per inmate. At Macquarie-street, Parramatta, an expenditure of £858 17s. 6d. was made on meat for 90,398 inmates, or at the rate of  $2\frac{1}{2}$ d. per head. At Newington 92,411 inmates consumed meat to the value of £871 6s. 11d., or  $2\frac{1}{2}$ d. per head.

I find on inquiring into  $1\frac{1}{2}$ d. per head for Liverpool, against  $2\frac{1}{2}$ d. per head elsewhere, that the meat contract for Liverpool is always at a much lower rate than to the other places.

Liverpool Clothing.—The manager informs me he has satisfied himself that it is cheaper to lay in material and get it made up by the inmates than to purchase made-up articles. He attributes the low rate per head for clothing, as shown in his yearly reports, to the adoption of this plan. I have no means of testing this year's cost, as the Colonial Store does not send in accounts till after the close of the year. But even if I had the accounts, it would be impossible for me to offer you anything but an extremely vague opinion, as stock was not taken on 1st January last, and no one knows what quantities were on hand then.

Clothing at George-street, Parramatta.—This is always a heavy item. The reason given is that absconding is made easy owing to the place being so open. Absconders make off with good clothes, which they sell for drink, and return in rags. It would surely not be very difficult to stamp or mark every garment in such a way as to proclaim its ownership. Were this done, probable purchasers would be afraid to become owners of branded garments, and the wearers would be deprived of the opportunity of converting them into liquor.

The Colonial Store came into existence about four years ago. Its relation to the Asylums is to purchase and lay in supplies for them of clothing, boots, shoes, slippers, hats, clothing material, leather, stationery, &c. In January of each year the storekeeper sends schedules to be filled up of probable requirements for the year. The manager indents against these in response to requisitions from the Asylums. It is stated to me that the system does not work well. Articles unsuitable in quality have often to be accepted, for the simple reason that they are what the storekeeper has bought and has in stock. On the other hand, material has often to be rejected on account of wrong widths being sent, which, if accepted, would cause great waste. The manager maintains that the Institutions are neither so satisfactorily nor so cheaply clothed now as when he purchased for his own requirements. I would soon test that if I had data to work upon. I may say this, however, the store occupies the place of an intermediary, and intermediaries cannot exist without costing money. The creation of the store is suggestive of billets and circumlocution. If Government purchased the store it must have cost a good round sum; but whether it was purchased or leased the annual interest or rent must be a heavy item. Then, the store cannot be worked without a large staff, which surely points to needless expenditure, if it exists chiefly for the Asylums. Stocks appear to be taken into store at the beginning of a year; but I am certain of this, that goods so passed into stock would be better cared for in the warehouses of Sydney merchants, who would gladly supply them at such times and in such quantities as might be required. Some one must buy, and the question that presents itself is whether selection and purchase are likely to be as judiciously exercised by an official devoid of all interest in the establishments, and possessing no knowledge of their requirements, as through the medium of whatever authority presides at the Central Office, where there is at least a desire to minimize expenditure, and to obtain suitable articles for the money laid out. I have examined a number of invoices made up by the Colonial Store, and they are certainly cumbersome documents. The storekeeper, when calling for tenders for any article, fixes the price, but informs the public that a discount must be allowed, to assimilate it with the current quotations of the net value of the day. From the prices charged in his invoices to the Asylums, a discount of  $27\frac{1}{2}$  per cent., 35 per cent., 40 per cent., 50 per cent., or 60 per cent. may be deducted, and a vast amount of calculating energy has to be expended in the endeavour to discover what the net cash price is, and even then it is not very clear. It would surely be simpler and more satisfactory to have, say, a piece of print quoted at  $3\frac{1}{2}$ d. per yard, net cash, than for the storekeeper to fix an arbitrary price of, say,  $5\frac{1}{2}$ d. per yard, and ask for a discount reducing it to about  $3\frac{1}{2}$ d. The ways of the storekeeping mind are very circuitous. I have no means of ascertaining how much it costs in salaries and rent or interest to keep the store going, but if these were added to the outlay on the Asylums a substantial increase would be shown.

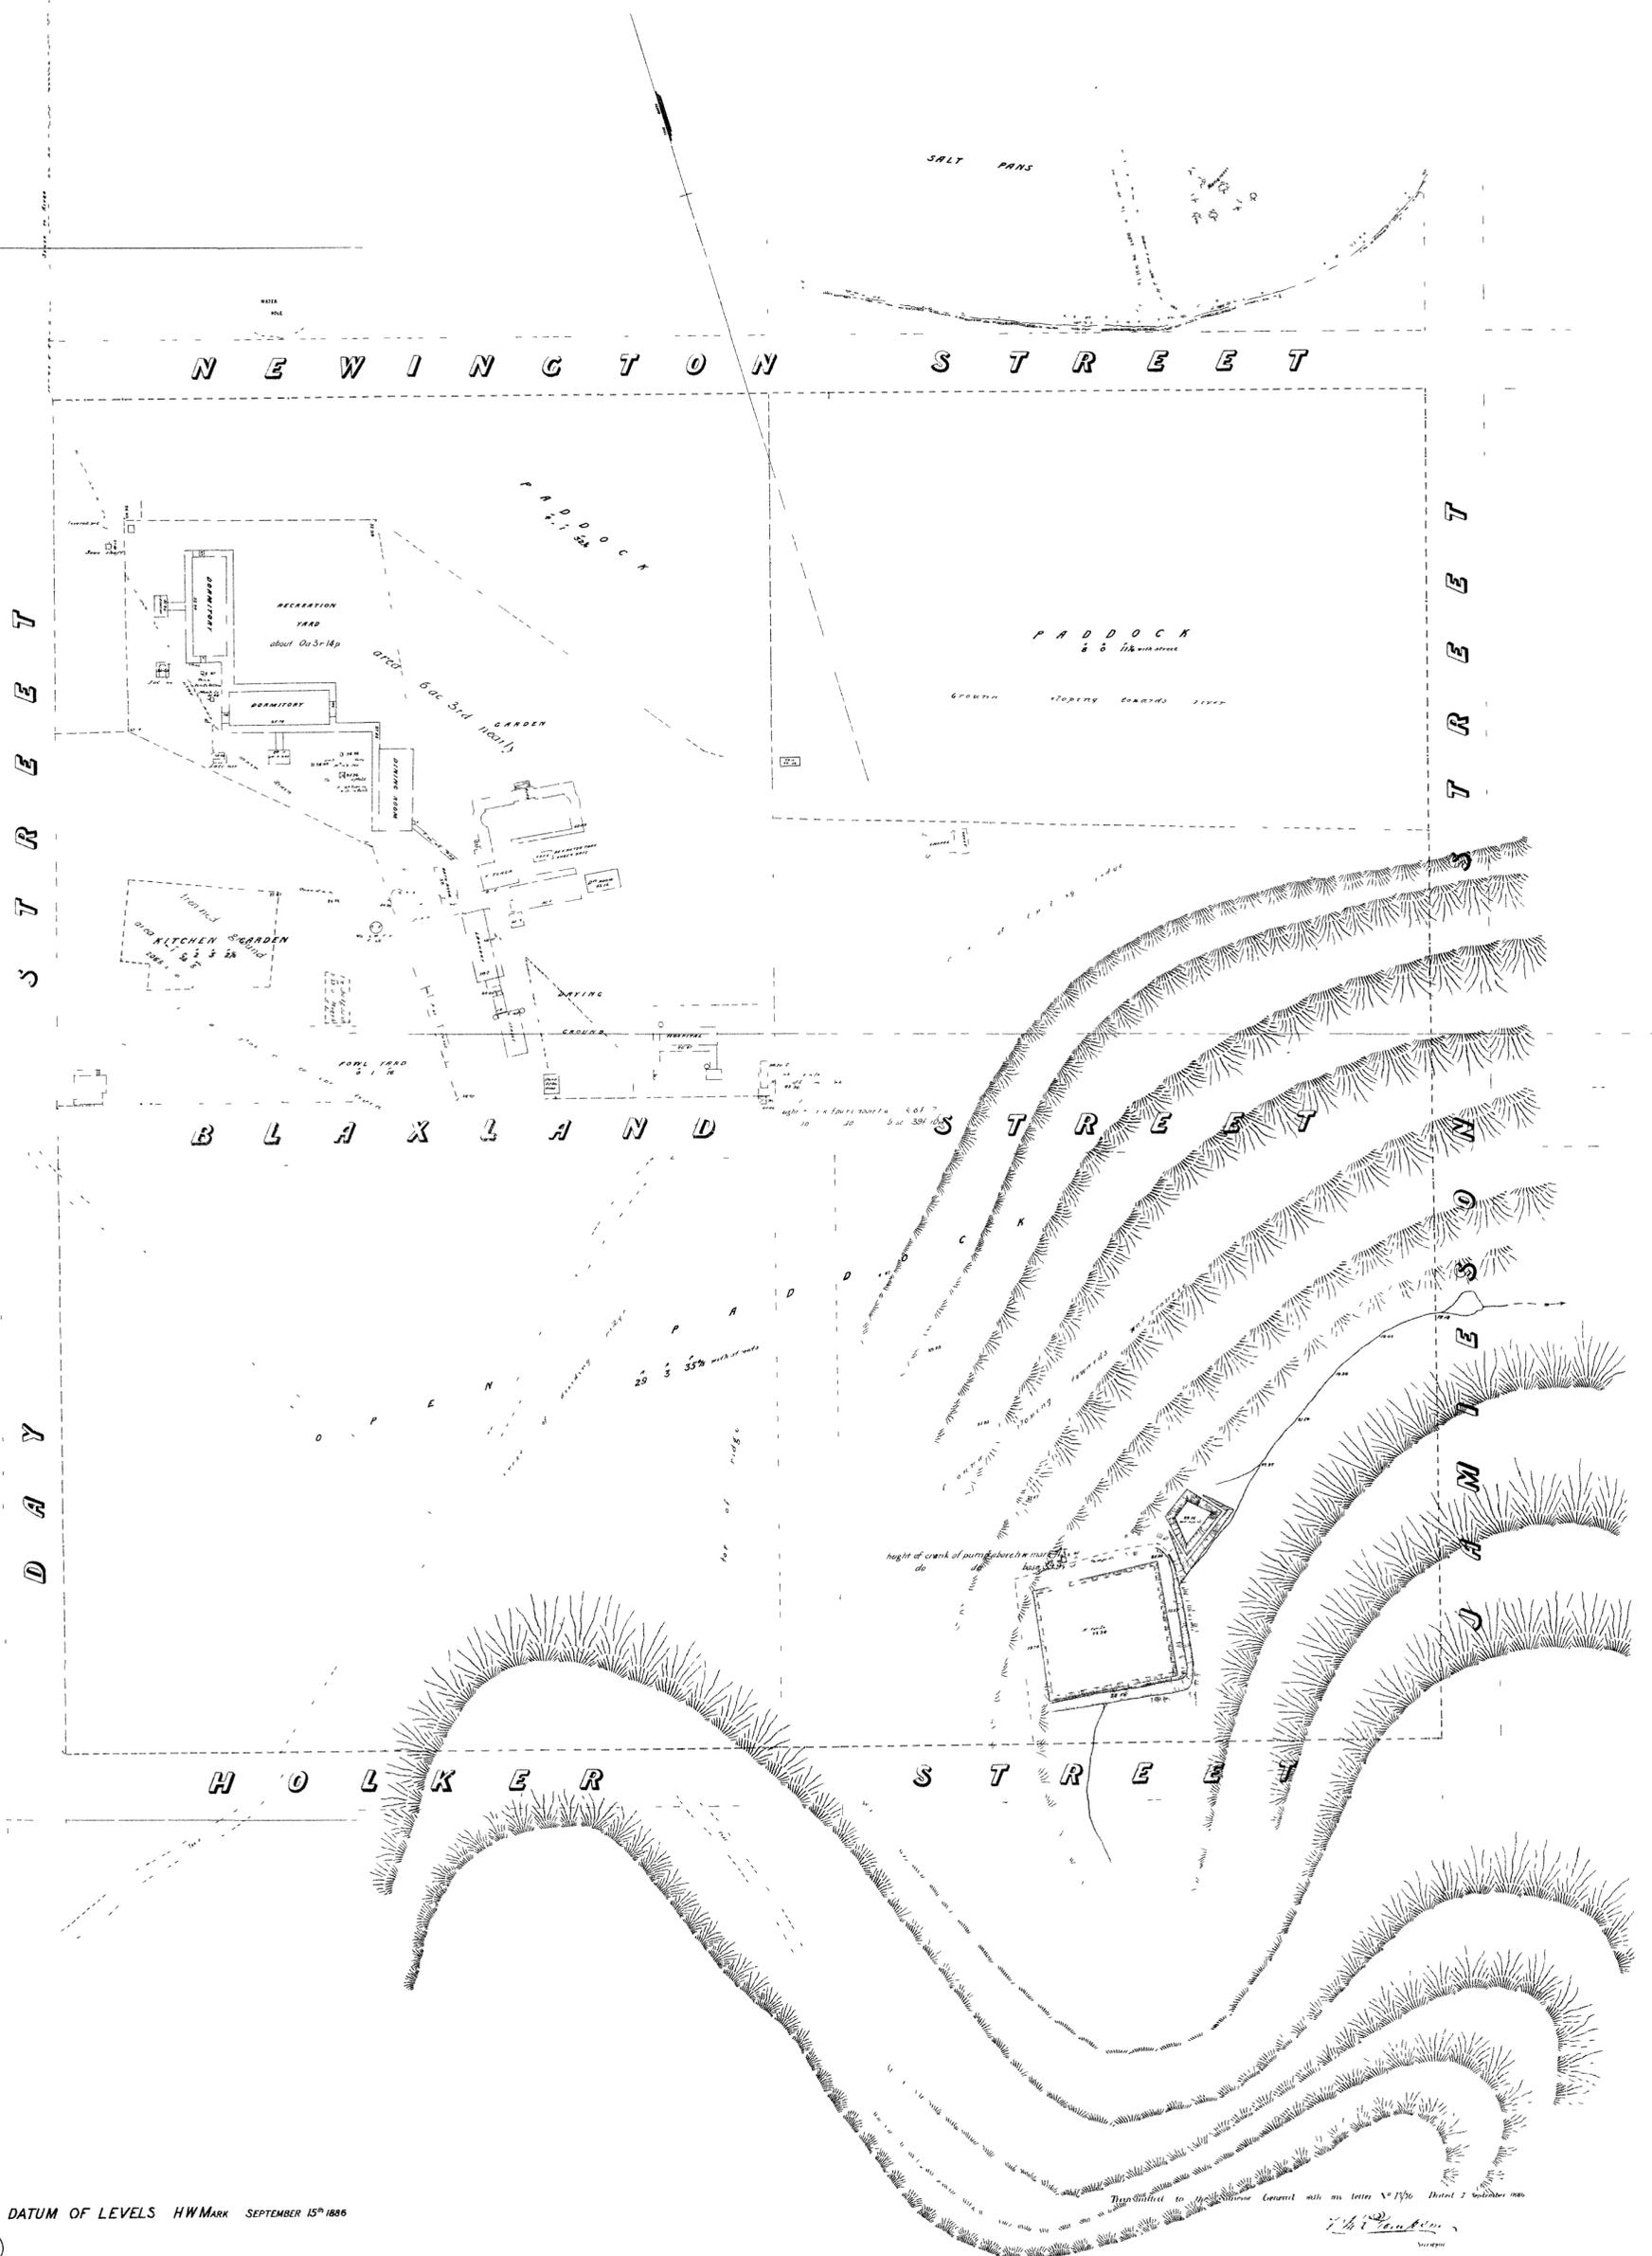

I would have handed you this Report in the early part of the month, but had to hold it over until a question of 10 tons of flour to Liverpool, in the month of January, costing £83 19s. 2d., could be satisfactorily settled. The Central Office was of opinion at first that Liverpool got no flour in January, but references to the Institution, and to Kidman, the contractor, conclusively prove that 10 tons were delivered in that month, and the accuracy of my figures is now admitted.

Public Accountant.

State Children's Relief Department, Central Home,
Begg-street, Paddington, 1 June, 1887.

The President of the State Children's Relief Board to The Honorable the Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

In accordance with section 12 of 44 Victoria, No. 24, I have the honor to submit, for the information of Parliament, my Sixth Annual Report, embodying a summary of the proceedings of the State Children's Relief Department during the year ended 5 April, 1887.

The principles and details of the boarding-out system, which constitutes the main work of this Department, have been so elaborately explained by me during the past six years, and must now be so fully understood throughout this Colony, in nearly every principal district of which children have been placed in homes, that I consider it unnecessary to again enlarge upon them. I therefore propose to deal mainly in this Report with a history of the past year's work, with a brief necessary reference to cognate matters of reform affecting children who annually fall under the care of the State. It is satisfactory to be able to say at the outset that insofar as the various divisions of the State Children's Relief Department are concerned, there has been no diminution of the progress which has marked the operations of previous years. In adopting the family method of training for those dependent children who could with safety to public morals be placed in respectable households, Parliament, whilst only following out the fundamental principles which should govern this important department of social science, was no doubt influenced to some extent by the examples of Victoria and South Australia and older countries also; but our own experience since has fully justified the change. We are now ourselves practically realizing year after year that the new policy of dealing with our juvenile non-criminal classes is a wise one, and the sympathy and assistance which have been extended to it by all classes of the community indicate how strongly the national sentiment accords with the action of the Legislature in this matter. Of course, the prime factors of success have been the conscientious oversight maintained over the homes, and the care exercised by the Board and its officials and others in selecting guardians for the children; but without the co-operation I have referred to the boarding-out system must have failed, or its scope have been so limited as to make it merely an auxiliary to the barrack system which it has happily now effectually superseded. The results achieved thus far prove that the Board made no mistake at the outset in appealing to the philanthropy, not only of those who have since accepted the care of children, in the majority of cases at very low rates of subsidy, and in many instances without payment at all, but also of the voluntary agencies whose benevolence has been conspicuously exercised ever since the initiation of the system with a single desire to contribute to its general adoption.

The following table indicates the annual rate of progression, so far as the number of children under control at the end of each official year is concerned, since the system was taken over by the Government on April 5, 1881, from the ladies who established it in 1879. The figures do not, however, show the total number of children boarded boarded out since the initiation of the Department. Altogether, the Board have placed out 2,185 inmates from the various asylums, and the particulars of their distribution are set forth in an appendix.

* Include two delicate children and two under 3 years, paid for at 7s. a week, twenty-two delicate children at 6s., and the remainder at 6s. a week.

This return presents several very interesting features. It is not necessary to analyse it fully here as the figures will be dealt with in detail under separate headings; but two or three points should be referred to in passing. The table certainly shows the extent to which both Parliament and people have entered into a co-partnership of charity in caring for the waifs and strays of the community, and largely proves what the advocates of the boarding-out system contend for, namely, that the true sentiment on which it is based is one of benevolence, and that the artificial relationship which is set up between foster-parents and children is seldom merely commercial in its character, but that it really constitutes an effective substitute for natural ties. First, it is noteworthy that with few exceptions, for which special reasons are shown, suitable homes have been found for the boarded-out children at the minimum subsidy, which, after the first outfit, includes the cost of clothing. Then there are 465 apprentices, and the particular feature of this division is that nearly three-fourths of these children have remained in their boarding-out homes; that is, the guardians have preferred to pay and retain them rather than allow them to pass to strangers, and take other children under subsidy. But the most gratifying point in connection with the return is the large number of adopted children, who are taken without cost to the State. There are 123 little ones in this class, nearly all of whom are orphans or foundlings, placed with women in comfortable circumstances, who, generally being denied the joys of maternity, have thus been provided with child-life in their homes. In this branch of the work, which can only legitimately operate upon very young children, we are far in advance of any of the other Colonies, and I have been unable to find any similar ratio of success among such children recorded in any of the English or Continental returns.

In my Report for 1885-6, I predicted that the future was not very remote when no children who fell to the care of the State would be denied the advantages of family training. This prediction has been so far verified that the only eligible children who are not now thus dealt with under the State Children's Relief Act are some inmates of the Industrial Schools, but their number is limited. By Ministerial direction two years ago the work of the Board was restricted at these institutions to children under eight years of age, and an application to have the law extended to inmates of eleven years of age and under was for a long time refused in consequence of opposition from the managers of the schools. These, however, subsequently fell under my control as Minister for Public Instruction, and I directed that all boys and girls, of suitable character and non-criminal antecedents, up to 11 years of age, should be recommended to the Colonial Secretary for transfer to the Boarding-out Department. The result has fully justified the opinion frequently expressed by me and endorsed by the Board that any inmates of the Industrial Schools, except the inherently vicious and criminal, could with safety be removed to specially selected country homes. There can be no reason for retaining such children in confinement, and I hope that during the present year the Board will be empowered, as in Victoria, to intercept them as they pass through the Courts, and send them direct to families without the intervention of the schools, so that they shall not have to associate at all with inmates of the criminal class.

At the period of my last Report there were several State children still in the hospital division of Randwick Asylum, and nearly 100 inmates in the Protestant and Roman Catholic Orphan Schools. The hospital children were removed from Randwick to the cottage homes under this department at Mittagong, in June, 1886; and on 28th July, as Minister controlling the Orphanages, and in pursuance both of our national system of education and the policy of Parliament in regard to the training of dependent children, I intimated to the superintendents that the inmates were all to be boarded out forthwith, and the services of the officials dispensed with on the 30th September following. The State Children's Relief Department removed the children early in August, 1886, and consequently, while the Orphanages were abolished simultaneously, the Government also ceased to use Randwick Asylum as an institution for State children. The prompt co-operation of the Board with the Government in this matter thus admitted of the three great barrack asylums of the Colony—the inmates of which had previously been boarded out pro rata—being finally dealt with at the same time, in order to prevent any cause of complaint on the ground of a partial administration of the law. Our dependent children as a whole are therefore, as I have said, now afforded the same fair chance of growing up into intelligent men and women, and enjoying the same happiness and advantages as children of the respectable middle classes in their own homes. The only institution now used by the Government for the temporary accommodation of its waifs and strays, apart from the Industrial and Reformatory Schools, is the Benevolent Asylum, and the children are only permitted to remain there for brief periods until they are boarded-out or reclaimed by friends.

In connection with this part of my Report I may properly on grounds of social economy once more refer to the anomalous position now occupied by the Randwick Asylum, which, although nominally a refuge for children of the destitute classes, has drifted altogether beyond the purposes of its Act of Incorporation. It is with much reluctance that I again draw attention to this matter, but it is evident that unless Parliament soon takes decisive action to deal with this Asylum, in the property and funds of which the State has so large an interest, it will eventually create a permanent spirit of pauperism among a section of the industrial classes and their children which must nullify one of the main objects of the State Children's Relief Act. It is apparent that since the withdrawal of State children and of aid from the Consolidated Revenue the Asylum has assumed the character of a private boarding school, and is also giving barrack training to many children who ought either to be at service or else with their own parents. Not only does it thus show to such parents an easy way to shirk their natural responsibilities, but suggests to their offspring in similar manner a simple method of perpetuating a distinct pauper class in the community. What is occurring can best be explained by quoting figures from the Randwick Society's own reports. At the end of 1885 there were only 199 inmates at the institution, some of whom were subsequently boarded out, and the Government decided to admit no more children. But a few days ago the official returns indicated that admissions had been authorized independently of the Government until the number of inmates was between 300 and 400. The directors have been challenged to deny that the social history of many of these children proved them to be unfit subjects for the exercise of charity; but they practically admitted it some time ago by deciding to advertise that the parents, whose circumstances were presumably recorded, must "make suitable provision for the maintenance of their children at home," to prevent their being boarded out. The legal status of the Asylum has been so clearly defined that there can be no doubt of the power of Parliament to reclaim it, and it is again given prominence to in this Report partly because of a suggestion, which was unanimously adopted at a recent meeting of the Directors, that the Government, in view of the probable requirement of the Sydney Benevolent Asylum site for railway purposes, should transfer the whole work of that institution to Randwick, and so practically amalgamate the two societies. As this proposal nearly concerns the work of the State Children's Relief Board it is fully within my province to draw attention to it here, lest the Government should—amidst more pressing exigencies of public business and important matters of legislation—not be fully informed of its most objectionable features. The proposal in effect is that the Catherine Hayes division at Randwick shall be used as a lying-in hospital, and the main institution again converted into a receiving-house for State children. The Directors have during the past two years adopted a system of apprenticing girls to the institution instead of sending them to service—a plan which was never contemplated by their Act or by-laws. Two ends are thus served. The number of inmates is kept at a high standard, and the cost of outside labour is saved to the Institution. These young girls are being perfected in barrack training, without any knowledge whatever of home life or domestic ties; and the cost of their maintenance, and their wages also, are paid from the funds the Society has been endowed with for the support of "destitute" children. This is bad enough; but the pernicious feature of the proposal about to be made to the Government is that they and the other big boys and girls who, under the present system, are kept for years in the Asylum, must be trained alongside the lying-in division, for it will be impossible effectually to separate them. If this project is consummated, all sentiments of modesty and morality in the children will certainly be destroyed; and the care necessarily bestowed on the women must educate both boys and girls in the belief that social sins of this character are not very objectionable. It may perhaps be urged that at the Benevolent Asylum the women and children now associate, but this evil is neutralised as far as possible by the prompt removal of the children for boarding-out. And their more limited number, arising from the operation of the boarding-out system, has led the directors to consider a plan for keeping them in future, during their brief sojourn, apart from the lying-in division. The distance of the Randwick buildings from Sydney is another objection to their utilization for general Benevolent Asylum purposes. Emergency cases, of which there are many, could not well be taken there. A central receiving-house and out-door relief department would be required, together with a double or divided, and therefore probably inefficient and certainly expensive, managing staff; and altogether the objection to the directors' proposal, both on moral and practical business grounds, are so many that it seems improbable that serious consideration could have been bestowed upon them. There are many useful public purposes to which the Asylum buildings could be devoted, but it is outside my duty to deal with them here. But I may fitly point out that the State is concerned in the Institution to the extent of over £40,000, irrespective of a valuable estate dedicated solely for the purpose, which is now superseded by the State Children's Relief Act. My two previous Reports to Parliament deal so fully with this matter in its various aspects, and particularly with the legal position of the Society, that it is unnecessary to devote greater space to it here.

At

At a time when retrenchment in all branches of public expenditure is necessary it is satisfactory to find that the operation of this Department in that direction will bear close scrutiny. As a political economist, and also from a moral standpoint, I have always urged that the State should exhibit an unstinted generosity in training its dependent children, with a view to converting them into well-living, order-loving, useful Colonists; but when that end can be gained, and the purposes of economy served at the same time, the result is especially gratifying. In this connection I would direct particular attention to the figures presented under the various headings of this Report; but I may remark here that the abolition of the Orphan Schools, and withdrawal of Government subsidies from Randwick, have relieved the Consolidated Revenue of a direct expenditure on those Institutions of quite £23,000 a year, and that the annual difference between the cost of training children in homes and in barracks is at least from £7,000 to £8,000 per annum in favour of the former method. The experience of the other colonies on this point is similar to ours, and our neighbours have also realised that boarding-out has a strong tendency to reduce the number of children supported by the State. Last year's Report presented a summary of seven years' statistics up to 1885 from all asylums for destitute children in this Colony, which indicated that at that period there had been a reduction of 322 in the number of children cast upon charity, notwithstanding the great general increase in the population of the Colony. A subsequent analysis of the same character by the Government Statistician brought out a similar result. The statistics of the State Children's Relief Department for 1886 show that about the same rate of reduction has since been maintained among destitute State children in proportion to the increase of population, notwithstanding that the period was probably one of as great depression among the poorer classes as we have experienced in this Colony's history. Mr. George Guillaume, the able Secretary to the Victorian Reformatory and Industrial Schools, has recently prepared a similar return, in which he shows that in 1872, when boarding-out commenced in that Colony, there were in the hands of the Department 2,384 children committed or neglected, and their total cost amounted to £46,669. In 1886 the number had fallen to 1,999, and their cost to £37,279, "irrespective," Mr. Guillaume aptly remarks, "of the further saving involved in setting free for other uses the enormous and costly buildings in which the children were previously housed." It is also pointed out that the Report of the Inspector of Industrial and Reformatory Schools of Great Britain for 1885 states that where the boarding-out system had been comparatively ignored, and "where at the same time population has advanced at a far lower rate than in the Australian Colonies, the number under detention in the Industrial Schools had risen from 10,185 in 1872 to 29,250 in 1885, and their total cost from £222,069 to £386,400."

Considering the existing reckless method of affiliating children to the State, it is surprising that their number has not increased very rapidly. This is a matter which cannot be too often urged upon the attention of Parliament. I have several times suggested a simple and effective plan, which has recently been adopted in Victoria, and in March last the Board directed that it should be submitted in an official letter to the Government. It was accordingly pointed out to the Colonial Secretary that, by the present system, any parent in this Colony desirous of being relieved of his offspring need only send in an application, accompanied by the too-easily procured testimonials from persons in good positions; and, after inquiries in some cases, and without inquiry at all in others, the children were taken over. It was further pointed out that no ordinary official investigation could be of much service in this matter; and it was requested that, to prevent imposition, the onus of proof should should be thrown upon the applicant, who should be required, as in Victoria and South Australia, to go with his children, when possible, before a magistrate, and produce evidence, as in a Court of Justice, that his case was necessitous; and that, simultaneously with the order from the Bench to place the children under State control, there should be an order compelling the parent to pay according to his means for maintenance. Further, that the duty of collecting under such orders should be cast upon the local Clerks of Petty Sessions and police, whose knowledge of applicants would enable them to perform it effectively. Under the present method of dealing with defaulters, the Boarding-out Officer summonses them to the Police Court. It is most imperfect, because neither he nor the police at the Metropolitan Courts can describe their persons, occupations, or whereabouts with certainty, and consequently the majority cannot be found. It is, for instance, difficult to deal in Sydney with a man who has been relieved of his children at Hay. In Victoria the Clerks of Court have recommended that a particular member of the police force in each town and suburban district shall be charged with the duty of assisting in the recovery of maintenance arrears, and be paid a commission on the amount recovered. At the suggestion of the Imperial Commissioners this plan has been adopted in England, where an allowance of 10 per cent. is made. It cannot be doubted that if parents are required to undergo the ordeal which all these safeguards provide for, many of them will honestly endeavour to keep their families together in their own homes.

During the past year the two Industrial Schools have fallen more largely than usual within the scope of the Board's work, consequent upon the extension of the boarding-out age, and a desirable change was effected at Biloela soon after the vacation of the late Roman Catholic Orphan School premises at Parramatta. Those extensive buildings have been proclaimed an Industrial School, and the girls were recently removed there so that Biloela might be utilised for gaol purposes, in order to relieve the overcrowding at Darlinghurst, and also to admit of separate treatment for young criminals there. The change should lead to a revolution in the system of managing the institution, which can now be made an industrial school in fact as well as in name. At Biloela the girls were not classified. The child of seven was permitted to associate with the vicious and depraved young woman of seventeen, and the inmates as a body were not instructed, under any method, in useful occupations. These grave defects may be at once remedied. The new buildings are commodious enough to admit of the classification and separation of girls of different ages and characters, and the system of training which has made the Irish Industrial Schools so successful might be adopted. At those Institutions the girls are instructed in cooking, baking bread, upholstering beds, using sewing and kilting machines, glove-making, fine embroidery, laundry work, making confectionery and preserves, lace-making, polishing furniture and floors, curling feathers, making underclothing, shirts, &c. A high authority on this subject (Miss Trench) has written a vigorous paper on these schools, which may be well applied to our own imperfect system, and it is from this source I have obtained the foregoing particulars. She concludes by stating, "The more details I gather the sharper appears the contrast between the treatment and the fair start in life given to the girls in these schools, and the almost hopeless blighting of character, abilities, and future happiness to which their unhappy sisters are condemned in workhouses or institutions where they are brought up in comparative ignorance and idleness." If the method suggested in another paragraph is carried out, the number of girls ordinarily at the school may be so reduced that they can easily be distributed in separate families, and in this way their reformation and industrial training can be more effectually secured.

My

My Reports have hitherto dealt very fully with the necessity of a Reformatory for boys, in which the State Children's Relief Board naturally feel a deep interest, and the information I have obtained from the most authentic sources in England and elsewhere in reference to the best organised and most successful Reformatories in the world has been laid before Parliament in this form year after year, with an earnest desire to aid in the speedy settlement of this important matter. A few months ago it seemed probable that a boys' reformatory would soon be an accomplished fact, as the Government had decided upon a kind of compromise between the ship and the shore systems, both of which have strong advocates in this colony. I have myself no doubt whatever as to the most advantageous method of dealing with boys of the criminal classes—the numerous examples afforded of the remarkable success of Cottage Home Reformatories in older countries are too strong to be questioned—but as my proposals in their entirety were strongly opposed in official quarters, I preferred suggesting a mixed system, which the Government of the day adopted, to risking further delay in providing for the reformation of juvenile criminals. New South Wales is now the only colony of importance in which young offenders are either sent to gaol to consort with common felons or (which is nearly as bad) permitted to associate in confinement with boys of the Industrial School class; and this defect in our criminal code, in view of what has been accomplished elsewhere, is a standing reproach to this community. The plan last decided upon was to proclaim the ship "Wolverene" a Reformatory under 30 Vic. No. 4, so that the Criminal and Industrial School boys now on board the "Vernon" should be separated, and that after undergoing a probationary detention for discipline in the ship the criminals should be transferred to the Reformatory at Rookwood. This project was so far carried out that tenders were invited for necessary alterations to the "Wolverene." Political changes supervened, however, and it was abandoned, the buildings at Rookwood being considered unfit for reformatory purposes, and the land unsuitable for instructing the boys in agricultural pursuits. The prospect of a satisfactory solution of this important social problem, therefore, still seems remote. The plan first decided upon for buildings at Rookwood was a good one, and the reasons for departing from it in the extraordinary manner which has resulted in the erection of the present unsuitable buildings have never been given. The project was adopted by the late Sir Alexander Stuart from suggestions made in the Reports of this Department, and was laid down on the lines of some of the most successful English reformatories. It provided for five separate cottages, to be placed under the charge of house fathers and mothers, subject to the direction of a general superintendent, so that the boys could be classified and divided into small bodies, and subjected to the principles of family life. This method of dealing with criminal children has been attended with singular success in the United Kingdom, Germany, Belgium, Holland, Switzerland, and France; but the whole question has been so fully dealt with in these Reports that further detailed reference to its principles must merely be matter of repetition. Some figures furnished to me from the industrial school and prison records for 1885, however, have not been officially made public, and they disclose such a remarkable state of things in reference to the treatment of youthful offenders in this Colony that they may well be quoted here. There were in that year no less than seventy lads, aged from 13 to 18 years, committed to gaol, generally for first offences, and of 109 boys committed to the "Vernon" in the same period, seventy-two were of the criminal class. Now, it has always been urged by me that the training-ship does splendid work up to its capabilities; but it is an industrial school, not a reformatory, and any system which permits the indiscriminate association of boys who are criminal with others who are not is indefensible, while the existing method of apprenticing young offenders from the industrial school before there is any attempt to reform them is dangerous to the morals of other children. Indeed the weakness of such a system is clearly indicated by the Superintendent in his Report for 1855, and a press writer, who has evidently given much attention to the literature of Reformatories in England and the colonies, commenting upon that Report recently, says:—

Particular attention should be given to the nature of the offences committed by the criminal boys who, as the published Report points out, after 12 months sojourn among lads of the industrial school class, were in many cases sent out to apprenticeship, when necessarily but little had been done to reform them beyond subjecting them to wholesome preliminary discipline. The Report says:—"The detention on board ship forms but a small portion of the system * * * * the main work of reformation is accomplished when the boy is apprenticed;" and then it enumerates the offences which some of these lads had committed, as including "complicity in the notorious Woolloomooloo murder and outrage, immoral conduct with Chinamen, housebreaking, larcenies of various degrees, indecent conduct, having possession of stolen property, associating with thieves, prostitutes, and other bad characters, using obscene language, gambling," and so forth. These quotations from a reliable official report will doubtless fall upon the community with something like a shock, and create a sentiment of amazement that any system of dealing with young criminals could have been so long tolerated which, as has been stated, entrusted the "main work of reformation" of lads thus awfully steeped in vice and depravity to private families. Surely it would have been even better to let many of these poor boys be altogether lost from the ranks of the virtuous and the good, than to have attempted their reformation in a manner so dangerous to public morals. Now, the remedy for this deplorable state of things seems simple enough, if we are not too self-satisfied to benefit by the examples of other places where the results secured in this particular department of social science have been entirely successful. Miss Mary Carpenter, who gave the title to reformatories, and was one of a noble band of women who devoted their lives to improving the condition of all classes of dependent children in Great Britain, struck the true key-note to success when she insisted upon the necessity of juvenile offenders being dealt with under family methods of training, instead of by the barrack system or in the State prisons. And the application of our own industrial school system shows how highly this sentiment has been appreciated by those who have administered it, and adapted it in the only way by which it could be successful in its operation upon criminal children. The proper family system to adopt, however, is not that which has thus far transferred the work of reform from the State to the individual in a manner which seems so dangerous to society, but that which may be carried out in a properly constructed cottage home reformatory, where the true work of reform could be effected simultaneously with the conversion of the boys, under industrial training, into really useful colonists.

The English Report on Industrial and Reformatory Schools for 1885 gives splendid results from many of the shore reformatories, to which criminal boys of the worst classes had been sent. There were altogether 64 reformatory schools under inspection, and only 3 were ship schools; and at these the average of three years' returns showed 60, 77, and 84 per centage of successes, while at a dozen of the shore schools which I have selected for examples, the percentage was from 84 up to 96—the higher average in most cases—and the boys were taught various occupations, including carpentry, baking, blacksmithing, tin-working, joinery, boot-making, and farming. The strong point in this register is that it is collated from the "after career" records of the boys. Although none of these places were in any sense prisons, cases of absconding were rare. The English Surveyor-General of Prisons, in his Report for 1885, attributed the great diminution of crime among the young in the United Kingdom to the operation of these schools; and the Imperial Commissioners—including Lord Aberdare, Earl Dalhousie, the Hon. Edward Stanhope, and Sir Michael Hicks-Beach—also point out that from 1856 (when the first English Reformatory Act was passed) to 1881 the number of juvenile commitments to prison in England and Wales had fallen from 13,981 to 5,483. They very strongly recommend the ship system only for boys who are intended for a sea-going life. The article from which I have just quoted says on this point:—

The objections to the ship reformatory are that it prevents classification, and renders industrial or agricultural training impossible; that such an institution can never be anything better than a barrack, nor give the boys the slightest knowledge of home surroundings, and that it is only suitable for training lads for nautical occupations. The advantages of the shore reformatory are, that while it gradually accustoms the boys to habits of family life under good influences, it admits of their being thoroughly trained in agriculture, and sufficiently in other occupations to enable them to do work which is often necessary in connection with farming, where carpenters, blacksmiths, and harness-makers are inaccessible. Boys thus trained will acquire habits of industry and self-reliance which are almost sure to lead them to settle upon the land eventually, and develop into useful colonists.

Altogether, the highest authorities are unanimous in regard to the advantages of the shore system, and the same writer remarks, in reference to the reformatory work of Victoria, where the building is only a barrack, and the managers have therefore to work under disadvantages:—

Coming nearer home, just one more example may be cited of what can be accomplished by a shore reformatory under proper management, even where there are defects of system arising from the construction of the buildings. The Ballarat School in Victoria was a few years ago probably one of the worst-directed of our Colonial institutions. The duty of reorganising it was undertaken by Captain Evans, R.N., now inspector of charities in that colony, who introduced a system which has since been attended with steadily increasing success. One of the principal objections raised against a land reformatory in New South Wales has been that the boys would abscond. The Ballarat Reformatory is quite open, with the exception of a refractory yard, enclosed by galvanised iron 11 feet high. This, with the attached cells for insubordinate boys, has not been used for a long time, and last year, although there were 178 convicted criminals in the institution, only five attempted to get away, and these were retaken. The method of training and instruction is precisely similar to that adopted in the English institutions. The moral tone of the school is evidently high, as every lad of sixty-nine who were recently permitted to attend the Horticultural Society's show, returned punctually to time, and the president of the society, when writing subsequently to the superintendent, in reference to their behaviour, says:—"Permit me to congratulate you. Although but few people but your boys were about, not a single thing was touched or taken."

A member of the State Children's Relief Board and an officer from this Department both recently had opportunities of becoming fully acquainted with the work of the Ballarat Reformatory, and are satisfied with its perfectly successful working. And the Comptroller of Prisons in this Colony, in his Report for 1886, thus alludes to it:—

In 1892 I was entrusted with a mission by the present Attorney-General (then Minister of Justice) to examine into the working of the male reformatory at Ballarat. I was confirmed by my examination in my previous idea that a male reformatory should be of the character of an agricultural institution. I am aware that the marked success of the Industrial School ship "Vernon" has led many to prefer a vessel and marine training, but * * * I still hold to the agricultural plan.

Dr. Stirling, the President of the South Australian State Children's Relief Council, who has recently gone very fully into this subject, also strongly advocates the shore reformatory in the following terms:—

If the "Vernon" is the highest development of the ship system in these Colonies, certainly the Ballarat Reformatory represents the best development of the land system, and having now seen something of the working of both institutions I must unhesitatingly confess that taking everything into consideration it is my opinion that the latter is better suited to the requirements of this Colony. In a country like South Australia, where there is no scope for a future naval or maritime career, and where it is desirable that boys should be trained in agricultural or mechanical pursuits, it appears to me that everything points to the abandonment of the hulk, where scarcely any of these requirements can be fulfilled, and to the establishment of a land reformatory. And this I think ought to be the first departure on the part of the Council so soon as the finances of the Colony will permit of the expense.

I can only once more express a hope that the Government will soon be able to mature a scheme for the establishment of a cottage home reformatory, which cannot fail, if carried out under efficient administration, to be as successful here as it has been in other places.

In September, 1886, the Board applied for authority to place in country homes any girls of eleven years and under who might be in Shaftesbury Reformatory; but the application was not subsequently pressed, because it was opposed by the Comptroller-General of Prisons and Superintendent of the School on the ground that the release of such prisoners after serving short sentences was not advisable. The only comment which I wish to make on this objection is that the managers of the most successful reformatories in Europe differ from the authorities here on the point at issue, and it is obviously wrong to keep such young girls for any length of time in an institution containing criminals of advanced ages. The experience of their Department has satisfied the Board that there is no difficulty in controlling girls guilty of similar offences to those for which children at Shaftesbury are committed, provided homes are specially selected for them away from centres of population; and they cannot convey moral contamination to others if they are placed where there are not young children.

Before concluding this division of my Report, it is necessary again to point out that the Board continue to labour under great difficulties for want of further legislation to enable them more effectually to carry on the various departments of their work; and I cannot too often or too emphatically draw attention to the necessity for placing all our institutions for dependent children under one agency. This has been done in Victoria, and the South Australian Government was so impressed by Chief Justice Way's observations of the successful operation operation of this method of control in the sister Colony that an Act has been passed by the South Australian Parliament appointing a Board, entitled the "State Children's Relief Council," precisely similar in its constitution to the New South Wales State Children's Relief Board, to take charge of the boarding-out system, and the reformatory and industrial schools and receiving depots for children in that Colony; and the advantage of the change is already apparent. The new legislation required for a similar purpose here, and for the perfect working of the State Children's Relief Department generally, has been fully outlined in my previous Reports, and in the interests of the dependent children of this Colony the Board are extremely anxious that these suggestions should be embodied in a Bill for the consideration of Parliament as early as possible. Paramount among them are recommendations for dealing with the large number of neglected children who do not now come under the operation of existing laws; for extending the age for committal to reformatories from 16 to 18 years; for making the leaving school and apprenticing ages of boarded-out children coincident, so that they shall not be required to attend school during the service period; and for giving the Department control of such children until they reach the age of 19; also for giving the Board power to return refractory children to their original places of detention without the intervention of the Courts; for providing for the adoption, without cost to the State, of all children whose parents have deserted them for three years; for punishing dissolute parents who interfere with their boarded-out children; for the discharge of children on probation to parents, so that they may be removed if they are not properly treated after partial discharge from control; and also for penalties against persons who may take possession of State children without authority. A case of this description occurred during the past year, when an ex-guardian from whom children had been removed, forcibly resumed possession of them, and the Department was put to considerable trouble and expense in connection with their recovery, in consequence of there being no law to meet such a case apart from the tedious process of appealing to the Supreme Court. These and many other defects and requirements which could not be contemplated when Act 44 Victoria No. 24 was passed, and could only be ascertained from the practical working of the Department, are provided for in the skeleton Bill just referred to; and if all the powers asked for are conferred on the New South Wales State Children's Relief Board it will only then be in a similar position to the cognate agencies controlling the destitute, neglected, and criminal children in Victoria and South Australia, with whose work its operations will, the leading officials from both those Colonies have freely admitted, bear favorable comparison. In reference to the very important matter of giving to one agency the control of all departments for State children, Dr. Stirling, the President of the South Australian Council, says:—

With regard to departmental arrangements, both South Australia and Victoria possess one great advantage over New South Wales which is freely admitted by the officials of that country. In each of the first-mentioned Colonies the care of all the children of the State is confided to one department, which in Victoria is a subdivision of the Government service, and is presided over by a salaried official. So also in South Australia, the State Children's Council, though of a different constitution, has similar control of all State children under the Minister. In New South Wales, on the other hand, though as with us there is an honorary council having certain duties, there is no one department which has the same undivided control over all institutions having charge of children that is possessed by the South Australian Council. The Secretary gives in his report several instances of how different institutions are controlled by different Government departments. It need hardly be said that this divided authority is felt to be highly unsatisfactory in many ways, and it was made abundantly evident to us that this was the case.

Having said so much by way of introduction, I now proceed to deal with the various divisions of the work in detail.

THE BOARDED-OUT CHILDREN.

On April 5, 1886, 1,366 children were under control, namely, 779 boys and 587 girls. Of these, 578 boys and 362 girls were boarded out, 128 boys and 103 girls were apprenticed, 28 boys and 65 girls were adopted, 30 boys and 43 girls were in the cottage homes, 3 boys and 3 girls in the central home, 3 boys and 3 girls in hospital, and the remainder were of the class known as "unofficial," that is, children of advanced ages who had been taken up for protection and placed at service. During the year ended April 5, 1887, 569 children have been taken over from the institutions (390 boys and 179 girls), 3 girls died in the boarding-out division, and 1 boy was drowned, 3 were sent to the "Vernon," 63 boys and 58 girls were discharged to relatives and on own account, 1 girl was sent to the Sydney Female Refuge to save her from going on the streets, and 1 was transferred to the Asylum for Imbeciles. There were thus at the end of the official year 1,802 children under control, of whom 1,099 were boys and 703 girls. 662 boys and 424 girls were paid for as boarders, 300 boys and 147 girls were apprenticed, 10 boys and 2 girls were in hospital (6 being inmates of the Ophthalmic Hospital, awaiting eye operations), 57 boys and 43 girls were at the cottage homes for invalids, 12 boys and 4 girls were at the Central Home, Paddington, 7 boys and 7 girls were of the unofficial class, 2 boys and 2 girls were on the absconders' list. The two girls are aged 16 and 17 years respectively, and there is no doubt that one has been persuaded by relatives to leave the control of the Department for the sake of more lucrative wages, and the other has for a similar reason gone to ordinary service on her own account. That it has not been necessary to send any girls to Biloela during the past year, again shows the trouble which must be taken by the guardians and officials, but particularly the former, to make the children amenable to home influences before giving them up, for this satisfactory result does not, as the Board are fully aware from the information supplied at their meetings, by any means indicate that many of the children have not been very hard to manage. Of the three boys sent to the "Vernon," one was a notorious thief when taken under control, and only fit for a reformatory. Indeed, he had stolen various sums of money, a horse, saddle, and watch; and it was found impossible in various homes which were tried to keep the other two from running away and sleeping out. As an evidence of the cunning of these youngsters it may be mentioned that one of them—a boy only 10 years old, who had absconded from different homes no less than ten times—pretended, when picked up by the police, that he was badly injured by an omnibus accident (which was purely imaginary), and, when this deceit was found out, shammed fits so successfully that the officer thought it necessary to take him to the hospital. Seeing that 1,935 children of all ages up to 17 years, and including 125 from the industrial schools, have been under control during the year, the proportion of failures is singularly small.

Endeavours are still made to return children to parents when it can be done with safety to the child, but the recklessness with which persons in high places continue, notwithstanding frequent admonitions through the Press, to give testimonials of respectability to applicants of the most infamous character, is unaccountable. A number of such recommendations are recorded, but two will serve as fair examples. In one case the applicant was recommended by a magistrate and clergyman of the town in which she resided as a "person of good character, honesty, and sober habits," and the police officers, who knew the woman well, reported that she had served two sentences in gaol, was of notoriously bad character, and that they had no doubt she wished to have her daughter for immoral purposes at a Chinese camp. In another case an applicant was recommended by a well-known clergyman clergyman and another person of high social standing. When the Board's inspector visited the home it was found that the mother had deserted the family for a week, the father was a drunkard and wife-beater, and the other children were in such a shockingly neglected state that the Inspector recommended their removal. These observations were indorsed by a detective police officer. It is really to be deplored that those who give such testimonials do not consider that their compliance with the importunities of these dissolute parents is likely to lead to the moral destruction of children who have already been rescued from bad influences and placed in good homes. As the parents of Industrial School boys and girls are generally persons of bad character, the Board have made a special rule in regard to them. Their applications for the restoration of children are not to be granted until the child has been boarded out from the school for six months; the reports of the officers of the Department as to character must be supported by a report from the police, and the home must not be in the same locality as when the children were committed. To the inexperienced such precautions may not appear to be requisite, but they have been found necessary to prevent these particular children from returning to their old haunts and habits. Another objectionable class of parents are those who, although seemingly respectable, desert their children for years, and when they are about to be apprenticed, and are old enough to earn a little money, unexpectedly turn up and claim them. There have been five such cases during the past year, but they were refused for sufficient reasons. Then there are the disreputable mothers, who manage somehow to ascertain when their children's apprenticeship terminates, and claim the girls as they are being discharged from control, the object being to obtain their wages and future services. Older institutions have had to deal with this latter evil in a large degree, but thus far only one girl from this Department has been relieved from her indentures, and another whose indentures have legally expired is at service. One mother, who doubtless expected to receive her daughter and about £16 accumulated savings, applied in person on the day of the girl's discharge. She had made no inquiries for six years, and, her character being known, she was not allowed to see the girl, who was persuaded to leave the greater part of her wages in the Savings' Bank. In the second case the mother had not been heard of for four years. In this case the girl was provided with a decent place of service, her wages being left in the Savings' Bank, and her whereabouts was not disclosed. As it is not intended to lose sight of expiring apprentices, some trouble may be expected from the interference of such mothers in future. One woman, who has had three illegitimate children in four years by different men, is now persistently following up her daughter, aged 16, and as a result the girl, who is very hard to manage under the most favourable circumstances, is turning out quite incorrigible. It will readily be understood that these poor girls, under the influence of such mothers, are exposed to temptations of the most dangerous character. If the requisite legislation which I have sketched out is obtained, these and many other difficulties will be provided against.

In selecting foster homes good sanitary surroundings are regarded as being of paramount importance, and the large number of applications now received admits of the best choice of localities. To this is in some measure to be attributed the general good health of the children, and the low annual death rate. 1,835 children were dealt with in the boarding-out, apprenticeship, and adoption divisions last year, and, apart from the lad who was drowned, there were only three deaths from natural causes. One occurred at Strathfield, a seemingly healthy locality, from typhoid fever; another—that of an infant—from inflammation of the lungs; and the third from infantile convulsions. This is a per centage of less than  $1\frac{1}{2}$  to 1,000. The singularly low mortality mortality and freedom of the children as a whole from sickness also in some measure indicate that they are sufficiently clad and cared for, and properly nourished.

There has again been a marked diminution in the number of children paid for under special rates—that is, the higher subsidies given for delicate or invalid children who, not being ill enough to be sent to the cottage homes, still require more than ordinary care in families. The three scales of payment are still 7s., 6s., and 5s. a week. Although the total number of boarded-out children has increased, 7 children are paid for under the first rate as against 25 last year, 22 in the second class as against 34, and the remainder are paid for under the minimum subsidy, excepting two healthy infants whose guardians received 7s. a week, as against nine in 1885–6. This is a matter of some importance seeing that every additional shilling a week adds £2 12s. per annum to the capitation cost. In the second class three Chinese children are under control, and the following is the official classification of the physical condition and habits of the remainder of the children paid for under the increased subsidies :—Consumptive 1, dirty habits 4, delicate 5, dirty and unmanageable 1, discharging ears 2, eruptive complaint 1, incontinence of water 1, one eye and very dirty habits 2, unmanageable and immoral 1, unruly 1, scrofulous and weak eyes 3, scrofulous and delicate 1, weak eyes 1, weak intellect 1.

The excellent plan adopted at the Sydney Benevolent Asylum of obtaining situations for the inmates with infants has as usual prevented many young babies from falling permanently under State control, and at the same time doubtless kept down the infant mortality; and the Directors are now endeavouring to have the foundlings sent to the Ashfield Infants' Home, which excellent asylum has much better provision for dealing with them in a healthier locality than can possibly be obtained in an institution of the mixed character of a benevolent asylum in the centre of a great city.

The gross expenditure of the State Children's Relief Department last year was £19,969 11s., and as the sum granted by Parliament for 1886 was £19,740, the vote was exceeded by £229 11s., which again indicates a very close estimate, considering the difficulty of accurately forecasting the extent of operations in any given period. The estimate was intended to provide for 1,600 children only, and there are 1,802 under control. In the previous year there was a credit balance of £733 7s. 2d. The details of expenditure appear in the annexed balance sheet. The cost of each division is set forth under separate headings in this report, and as the accounts are separately kept, the particulars are correctly presented. The outlay upon the boarding-out section was £17,160 7s. 3d., and as the average number of children under control daily was 1,111, the gross cost per child was £15 8s. 11d., as against £15 8s. 4d. in the previous year, and £16 19s. in 1884. From the gross expenditure should be deducted £616 3s., collections from contributing parents, and with this allowance the net capitation cost has been £14 17s. 9d. It will thus be seen that the statement in the introductory remarks that the system is saving the State at least £7,000 a year, as compared with the cost of the old method of dealing with dependent children, is a very moderate one. A sum of £25,065 is asked from Parliament for the current year's requirements, but this includes £5,040 for land and buildings for the cottage homes, the economical aspect of which item is fully explained in its proper place. For ordinary expenditure £20,025 will be required, including all salaries, cost of children's maintenance, clothing, medical fees, travelling expenses, cost of carrying on the cottage homes, and indeed the whole work of the Department. I only express the unanimous opinion of the Board when I venture to hope, in view of the strict economy which it is apparent has been practised, that Parliament will freely grant the proposed vote as it at present stands on the Estimates. Whether as regards salaries or other matters of expenditure, the various items are very low as compared with the general cost of the Victorian Department, with a statement of which I have been furnished.

The amount collected from parents (£616 3s., as against £412 13s. 9d. in the previous year) as usual does not include the sums paid into Court under maintenance orders, which still stand to the credit of the Police Department, nor does it include sums paid into the Treasury for maintenance of boarded-out "Vernon" boys. During the current year another method of dealing with all these collections will probably be adopted by which one department will have control of them.

The small amount expended for medical fees and medicine (£122 5s. 3d.) is again largely due to the benevolence of many of the medical gentlemen throughout the Colony, who generally charge half fees, and in many instances give their valuable services gratuitously. The medical officers and nursing staffs of the following hospitals have also again freely rendered their valuable help, and the children who were under treatment have, without exception, borne testimony to the unvarying kindness and care which they received:—Sydney Hospital and its Moorecliff (ophthalmic) branch; Prince Alfred Hospital; the Children's Hospital, Glebe Point; and the Coast Hospital, Little Bay.

A large number of letters have again been received from school teachers in response to the usual circulars from the Department, soliciting information as to the attendance, general appearance, clothing, and so forth, of the children on the rolls of the public schools. Regarded as independent testimony, such replies should be considered valuable, both in reference to the probable treatment of the children at home, and as to whether they are likely to morally or physically contaminate other children attending the schools. Information of this character was first obtained two years ago to allay apprehensions expressed in some quarters where the usual character of boarded-out children was not understood; and generally it is very satisfactory. I may remark that when the Board is convinced, after due inquiry, that it is advisable to keep children from school until bad habits are eradicated, or for other reasons, home instruction has been authorized. The necessity for such a course happily does not often occur; and there is in consequence of this precaution probably less danger arising from the school attendance of State children than of the great bulk of the children where there are large centres of population.

The proportion of Protestant to Roman Catholic children under control is somewhat below that of last year. On April 5, 1886, it was 1,157 Protestant to 459 Catholics; on April 5, 1887, it was 1,510 to 675. These figures do not, however, refer to the adoption division, in which the maintenance of the children is not paid for. There were, on April 5, 1887, 104 Protestant children adopted, and 19 Roman Catholics. The Board still strictly adhere to the principle laid down in their regulations, that the children should be placed with foster parents of their own religious denomination; and at the Cottage Hospitals, where it is inevitable that both classes should temporarily occupy the same home during their treatment for ophthalmia and some other complaints, Protestant and Catholic attendants are appointed to attend to their religious instruction.*

brickmakers, 2; bricklayers, 9; blacksmiths, 6; bootmakers, 5; bank manager, 1; butchers, 12; bakers, 12; boat-builders, 3; builders, 6; busbman, 1; business manager, 1; barrister, 1; book-keeper, 1; carpenters and joiners, 30; clerks of petty sessions, 3; contractors, 5; cashier, 1; chemists, 2; cutler, 1; clerks, 3; cab proprietor, 1; carters, 12; confectioner, 1; coach-builders, 3; commission agent, 1; clergymen, 6; cabinet-maker, 1; care-taker, 1; coal-trimmer, 1; coroner, 1; dressmakers, sewing women, &c., 17; doctors, 3; domestics, 33; engineers, 2; engine-drivers, 4; foreman of works, 1; farmers, 373; fetlers, 2; fisherman, 1; fireman, 1; French polisher, 1; guards, 4; graziers, 2; gardeners, 18; gatekeepers, 2; grocers, 8; householders, 26; housekeepers, 19; hairdressers, 3; inspector of roads, 1; ironmonger, 1; ironfounder, 1; journalist, 1; home laundresses, 3; living on means, 19; labourers, 40; law clerk, 1; city missionary, 1; miners, 18; master mariners, 3; music-teachers, 3; milk-vendors, 12; messenger, 1; millers, 3; machinist, 1; mail contractor, 1; moulder, 1; midwife, 1; nil (mostly widows who take little girls for company), 19; nurses, 4; poultry-farmer, 1; professor of drawing, 1; pastry cook, 1; police magistrates, 2; orchardists, 11; plate-layers, 2; provision-merchants, 2; plumbers, 4; police officers, 7; porter, 1; postmasters, 4; painters, 4; plasterers, 5; photographers, 2; printers, 2; lithograph printer, 1; railway employees, 25; road superintendent, 1; quarryman, 1; stoker, 1; salesmen, 3; mail-sorter, 1; ship-builder, 1; stonemasons, 5; school-attendance officers, 2; sawyers, 2; shopkeepers, 33; shipmaster, 1; station-masters (railway), 3; saddlers, 4; solicitors, 3; stewards, 2; selectors, 3; surveyors, 2; smelter, 1; tailors, 9; tailoresses, 2; teachers (public school), 15; teachers (private school), 6; time-keeper, 1; telegraph operators, 3; warehousemen, 2; wheelwrights, 4; watchmaker, 1; waterman, 1; windowblind-maker, 1; upholsterer, 1; undertaker, 1.

A gratifying feature in this return is the large increase in the number of farmers' homes to which boys have been sent as compared with the previous year's figures. There were 254 farmers on the list of guardians in 1885, and last year the number was 373. The majority of the other homes are those of respectable mechanics or tradesmen. Special endeavours have been made to obtain applications from farmers along the south coast, and the classification under this heading shows an increase from 73 in the year 1883 to 373 in 1886 as stated. Nearly all these guardians are freehold dairy farmers in good circumstances, and the physical improvement of the boys is remarkable under this healthy mode of life, which is particularly satisfactory in regard to rough lads taken up from the streets, and the elder boys from the Industrial Schools. The localities over which the children are distributed are thus classified:—Ashfield, 1; Alexandria, 1; Arncliffe, 5; Adamstown, 4; Armidale, 5; Annandale, 2; Auburn, 3; Burwood, 13; Balmain, 46; Bexley, 7; Bargo, 3; Bowral, 14; Berrima, 7; Bundanoon, 2; Bungonia, 7; Brawlin, 2; Broughton Creek, 13; Boolong, 4; Barrellan, 1; Bega, 3; Bathurst, 16; Blayney, 3; Branxton, 17; Brisbane Water, 7; Bungendore, 1; Burdenda, 1; Braidwood, 1; Burrowa, 1; Croydon, 1; Camperdown, 6; Coogee, 2; Carlingford, 2; Campbelltown, 2; Camden, 12; Cobbitty, 2; Cootamundra, 15; Cullinga, 5; Cambewarra, 11; Cooma (Cathcart) 2; Conjola, 3; Cargo, 5; Cudal, 4; Charlestown, 2; Clarence Town, 3; Canley Vale, 1; Cabramatta, 1; Carrathool, 1; Dural, 1; Dapto, 6; Dungog, 3; Eveleigh, 2; Eureka, 1; Enfield, 1; Forest Lodge, 2; Five Dock, 1; Forbes, 2; Fairfield, 4; Glebe, 12; Gladesville, 7; Guildford, 3; Goulburn, 216; Gunning, 8; Gerringong, 9; Glen Innes, 2; Granville, 7; Glen Morrison, 4; Homebush, 1; Hunter's Hill, 8; Hurstville, 4; Hill Top, 17; Harden, 1; Hawkesbury, 7; Hanbury, 1; Hexham, 10; Hinton, 4; Hillston, 1; Islington, 1; Jamberoo,

The boys difficult to manage and the Industrial School children are sent to the more isolated districts. It has been found that when the elder and wayward lads are placed where they may run about the streets, they do not usually turn out well. The Board still continue to receive examples of the wisdom of sending such children to far away country homes; and although the inspection is in such cases rather difficult, it is well repaid by the success achieved.

762 applications for State children are recorded in 1886, as against 729 in the preceding year, 720 in 1884, and 490 in 1883. Of the 762 applications received, 460 were approved, after the usual inquiries, and 30 rejected, because of the improper character of the applicants and other reasons. 1,091 applications are now recorded—814 being from Protestants, and 277 from Roman Catholics—which the Board have been unable to deal with. The applications continue to come in too rapidly to be met by the supply of children, and the only suitable applications which are difficult to obtain are those for more than two children, a number of which are from time to time required, to provide for whole families. 659 applications now on the books are for boarders, 364 for apprentices, and 68 for children for adoption. It will thus be seen that if the Government determine to resume the Randwick Asylum, all the children can be at once suitably provided for, if their parents do not reclaim them.

The 2,185 children brought under control since the initiation of the system—which include 380 discharged principally to relatives or friends during the past six years—have been selected from the institutions as follows:—Benevolent Asylum, 1,283; Randwick Asylum, 305; Protestant Orphan School, 182; Roman Catholic Orphan School, 180; "Vernon," 88; Ashfield Infants' Home, 52; Bilocla, 43; Coast Hospital, 26; Children's Hospital, 10; Benevolent Asylum, Newcastle, 10; Shaftesbury Reformatory, 1; Sydney Hospital, 1; Department of Insane, 1; Asylum for the Deaf, the Dumb, and the Blind, 1. And the following statement shows the ages at which all these children have been placed out:—Under 1 year of age, 16; under 2 years, 40; 3 years, 142; 4, 179; 5, 181; 6, 154; 7, 190; 8, 185; 9, 263; 10, 246; 11, 212; 12, 200; and over 12 years of age (inclusive of 111 apprentices handed over on the abolition of the orphan schools), 177. It is apparent from this return that 1,596 of the 2,185 were under 10 years of age, so that the probable value of their services could hardly have had much weight with applicants. I mention this point because the possibility of juvenile servitude under this system has been drawn attention to by those who are opposed to it.

The ordinary meetings of the Board are still held monthly. There have been one special and eleven ordinary meetings during the year, at which the attendance was as follows:—The President, 12, Mrs. Garran, 11, Mrs. Jefferis, 10, Mrs. Windeyer, 7, Lady Jennings, 4, Mrs. Barry, 4, Lady Manning, 3, Mr. W. J. Trickett, M.L.A., 2, Mr. T. M. Slattery, 0, Lady Allen (absent on leave), 0. Mrs. Windeyer resigned in December last in order to proceed to England for a year, and the Board hope to secure her valuable help on her return. She was succeeded by Lady Manning. Mrs. Barry has been unable to attend since August last in consequence of ill-health, which compelled her resignation, and the vacancy was filled by the appointment of Mrs. Goodlet just at the close of the official year. I have much pleasure in once more bearing testimony to the very active interest which the lady members of the Board continue to take in the work of the Department generally, and their practical usefulness in every division confirms the opinion I have held for some years, that it would be of great advantage to our public charities if they were governed, as many cognate institutions now are in England, by mixed boards comprising a proper proportion of capable women.

The lady visitors continue to render valuable help in many districts, and the system depends so much for its success upon their efforts in the philanthropic work they have voluntarily undertaken that I would again earnestly urge upon them the necessity for increasing vigilance over the children committed to their care, whose numbers are so rapidly increasing. It is also desirable that their official reports should be promptly sent in to the office, so that any defects noticed in connection with the homes may be at once remedied. There is reason to fear that the more complete official inspection which is now exercised has caused the honorary representatives of the Board in several districts to be somewhat lax in their visiting during the past half-year, and although the homes in such cases may be known to be safe, and the children well cared for, it should be borne in mind that any apathy on the part of the visiting committees may in time cause a corresponding sentiment to prevail among the guardians, to the injury or neglect of their wards.

The following is the usual complete list up to April 5, of the visitors to all the children under control:—Armidale, Mrs. Allingham, Mrs. Donnolly, Mrs. S. A. Kenny, Mrs. M. Patrick, Miss E. Wormersley; Ashfield, Mrs. Shadforth; Bowral, Mrs. Bowen; Bega, Mrs. Evershed, Mrs. Spencer; Balmain, Mrs. Bellbridge, Mrs. E. D. Madgwick; Bungonia, Mrs. E. B. Proctor; Branxton, Mrs. G. F. Hart.

I have always forcibly dwelt upon the desirableness of not placing more than two, or at the utmost three children in an ordinary home, except where it is necessary to keep members of the same family from being separated; and last year the Board decided that where there were more than four children not related in homes, the number should be reduced as soon as suitable opportunities occurred.

This has been done as far as it could be without severing strong ties of affection, and the numbers in each home now stand as follow:—

679 homes with 1 child.
159	"	"	2 children each, including 68 homes with children of same family.
3	"	"	5	"	5

992 homes, containing 1,545 children, exclusive of 100 children in cottage homes for invalids, 5 cottage homes for healthy children, containing 31 inmates, 94 children apprenticed by the Orphan Schools who are now under control of this Department, 12 children in hospitals, 16 in depôt, and 4 absconders. Total, 1802.

Last

Last year 132 families were thus kept together, and the number has increased during 1886 to 179. It occasionally happens that brothers and sisters must be separated, for their own sakes, as, for instance, when suitable homes for numbers cannot be obtained in the country, and when it is in such cases not considered advisable to place the elder members near to the towns. Exclusive of the homes containing children of the same family, and of the five subsidised cottage homes, there are—

679	homes	containing	1	child	each.
91	"	"	2	children	each.

815 homes, containing 1,022 children, or an average of  $1\frac{1}{4}$  child in each home, the same average as the preceding year's.

The homes of the Orphan School apprentices are not included in either of these statements, because they were not selected by the Board, but they contain one child each. The arrangement of the homes in this way is a matter of considerable importance, because the fewer the children in each the less is the risk of "baby farming;" and, indeed, in Victoria, where the system is working most satisfactorily, a minute has been forwarded from the Government to the heads of the Department, notifying that the number of children in each home must in future be limited to four.

7,444 registered visits have been paid to the children, which is an advance of 1,288 on last year's returns. 3,978 were by inspectors, and 3,466 by lady visitors, the numbers in the previous year having been—lady visitors, 3,278; inspectors, 2,878. This return gives an average of  $4\frac{1}{2}$  visits to each child, exclusive of the Cottage Home children, who were separately visited. A number of the ladies' reports have not yet come in, and in several districts ladies who are known to have visited regularly have not found time to fill in the usual report forms.

THE ADOPTED CHILDREN.

There has been an increase in the number of children adopted during the year, which, apart from the higher advantages already pointed out, has led to a further considerable saving in the cost of maintaining State children. On April 5, 1886, there were 28 boys and 65 girls adopted; 28 boys and 6 girls have since been placed out, and there are therefore now 123 children in this division, of whom 49 are boys and 74 girls, 43 boys and 61 girls being Protestant, and 6 boys and 13 girls Roman Catholics. In this section there is a direct saving to the Government of about £1,850 per annum, as the only cost of these children is the proportionate charge for inspection and management. I last year mentioned that the one danger against which the Board had to guard in dealing with applications of this class arose from the attempts occasionally made to obtain children for service under the pretence of adopting them as members of the family. It has, however, as usual been obviated by placing out only young children. Several applicants have objected to receive children for adoption on the ground that they are still subject to supervision from the Department. This point was fully considered by the Board, but although it was apparent that the little ones were in safe homes, it was not deemed advisable to dispense altogether with inspection, in view of the possibility of circumstances arising to render their recall necessary. One such case really did occur, in which, in consequence of serious domestic differences and unhappiness, it was thought unwise to allow the child to remain in the home. In this instance the boy had to be brought back from another Colony, where the foster parents had gone to reside under the authority of the Board, in accordance with the regulations.

regulations. The inspection is, however, very discreetly exercised and in some cases the homes have been exempted from supervision by lady visitors, so that it shall not be known locally that the children are not State children, and an inspector from the office merely calls occasionally to see that they are well cared for.

APPRENTICED CHILDREN.

On April 5, 1886, there were 128 boys and 103 girls apprenticed. 172 boys and 34 girls have since been added to this division, so that on April 5, 1887, there were 447 children under indentures, including the 95 apprentices remaining from the Orphan Schools at Parramatta. All the girls have been sent to domestic service, and the following is a statement of the occupations of the boys apprenticed direct from the Department:—Farmers, 176; gardeners, 6; tailors, 5; bakers, 4; chemists, 3; grocers, 3; grooms, 3; provision merchants, 2; butchers, 2; painters, 2; plasterer, 1; undertaker, 1; carpenter, 1; blacksmith, 1; upholsterer, 1; builder, 1; wheelwright, 1; saddler, 1; boat-builder, 1; potter, 1; salesman, 1; storekeeper, 1; bootmaker, 1; orchardist, 1.

It will be seen that the number of lads apprenticed to farming has increased from 103 in 1886 to 176 in 1887, and of boys sent to trades or business occupations, from 25 to 43. The Board do not seek trades for the boys except in special cases, because it is thought best, for the reasons fully stated under another heading, that as many of the elder children as possible shall be kept away from the towns. When a lad shows particular ability, an effort is made to suit his future occupation to the bent of his mind. To account for the seeming discrepancy between 176 farmers' homes here mentioned, and the 373 set forth in the list of guardians' occupations, it should be stated that the latter includes 197 homes containing boarders, whose age is within a year or two of the apprenticing period, but who are not yet apprenticed. Nearly all these 197 children will probably remain in their present homes under indenture when their boarding-out term expires. Only one apprentice has actually left the control of the Department. Her indentures expired in March last, and she preferred going to reside permanently with a married sister to accepting a place of service which had been provided for her.

The cost of administering this Department has been £571 1s. 7d., or at the rate of £1 9s. 9d. per child, the cost in the previous year having been £1 10s. The apprentices have, of course, only been debited with their proper proportion of the total amount expended for salaries and travelling expenses.

THE CHILDREN CLASSED AS UNOFFICIAL.

There is little to be said about this department of the work in addition to my remarks of last year. There were then 5 boys and 5 girls under control, and there are now 7 boys and 7 girls. The term "unofficial" is, as I have explained, applied to big boys and girls who do not come under the operation of any law, but who are morally persuaded to surrender themselves to the Department so that they may be removed from evil surroundings. During the year three of these children have discharged themselves from control, and as they were all over 16 years of age it was not possible to interfere with them. One of them, a girl, is conducting herself respectably with well-to-do relatives; a boy has gone back to his friends; and a third, aged nearly 17 years, is believed to be on the streets. She was, together with a younger sister, removed from an infamous house about 18 months ago, but refused to leave Sydney; and although she promised amendment there is little doubt that she never conducted herself properly, and her conduct and her associates became so disreputable that the lady visitor refused, and the Inspector objected, to visit her. The sister is doing well, and the other children in this division are behaving themselves satisfactorily. Their histories were stated in my Report last year, and it is surprising they have done so well considering their social antecedents. The only expenditure upon these children has been the inspection and office charge of £1 9s. 9d. each child, and about £13 for renewal of clothing.

THE CENTRAL HOME.

816 children have been admitted into the Central Home at Paddington, and the average number of inmates daily has been  $11\frac{1}{2}$ . The expenditure has been £108 11s. 4d.; in the preceding year it was £103 0s. 5d. The average cost has therefore been £9 9s. per head for maintenance, against £3 10s. in 1885. The increase has been caused by the advanced ages of the children, as compared with those of the previous year's inmates, a number of boys and girls having been accommodated who were almost young men and women. There is no clothing charge in this division, as in consequence of the children usually remaining a few days only until they are boarded-out, they are clad from returned outfits. One lad absconded during the year. He was of weak intellect, and as he had only been received from the Industrial School three or four weeks previously, and as it was found impossible to prevent him from running away from any of the three homes he was sent to during that period, he was returned to the school. The Home is still the administrative centre of the Department, and all outfits are made up and the general business is carried on there. The children accommodated in excess of the number shown by the tables to have been boarded-out last year consisted of those returned to be restored to parents, and others sent in for apprenticeship or to be forwarded to the Cottage Homes. This addition to the Department has only existed two years and a half, and it has proved most useful in fulfilling its various purposes, and particularly in enabling the officials to arrive at some knowledge of the characters of the children they have dealt with; besides which the centralization of the business in this way is saving a considerable annual expenditure, and is altogether more convenient.

THE COTTAGE HOMES FOR INVALID CHILDREN.

I cannot speak too highly of the work accomplished in these homes during the year, nor of the interest which continues to be taken in them by all concerned in their supervision and management. Their objects have been so often described, that I need only say once more that they are Cottage Hospitals for scrofulous, crippled, ophthalmic, and weakly children, who from time to time pass into the asylums and hospitals, and for whose suitable accommodation and treatment in regard to the convalescent or chronic cases, no suitable provision had previously been made. There are two homes at Pennant Hills, four at Mittagong, and one at Picton, which, however, is about to be removed to Mittagong, because the climate of that district is considered healthier for scrofulous and ophthalmic patients, and also in order that there may be only two centres for inspection. In order that the extent and character of the work which this division of the Department is effecting may be fully understood, I have had two sets of figures prepared—one showing the total

total number of admissions and discharges since the first two homes were opened on 13 March, 1885, and the other indicating the past year's operations only; they are as follow:—

In Cottage Homes on 5 April, 1887

The deaths were those of a lad who had suffered for eight years from paralysis; another who was afflicted with paralysis of the brain; and one who died from chronic diarrhoea. All three were believed to be incurable when admitted, but it was thought the country climate and change of diet might in two cases prove beneficial. It will be seen from the foregoing table that of the 233 children hitherto admitted, 133 have sufficiently recovered from their ailments to be boarded-out with healthy families, and of this latter number 65 were sent out during the past year. A large number of the children are, however, permanently afflicted, and what is to be done with them as they become older is a question which has yet to be considered and will not be very easy to solve. No less than 85 cases of ophthalmia in various forms have been dealt with, and nearly all these patients had been for years previously inmates of the various public asylums, 26 having been taken from the Coast Hospital alone. The benefits which such children have experienced from their change of treatment and the bracing mountain climate can hardly be realized by those who have not witnessed their improvement. No child is sent to a cottage home who is in the first instance fit for boarding-out in an ordinary home. I feel sure that none of the hundreds of visitors to these refuges during the past year can have felt any other sentiments than deep compassion for their inmates, and gratification at the wise and humane provision made by the Government for ameliorating their unhappy physical condition, which is in most instances an inherited affliction.

19 other children have been passed through the homes as apprentices.

The children have been taken from the asylums in the following proportions:—Benevolent Asylum, 110; Randwick Asylum, 43; Coast Hospital, Little Bay, 26; Roman Catholic Orphan School, 18; Protestant Orphan School, 16; Children's Hospital, 6; Biloela, 5; "Vernon," 2; Ashfield Home, 2; Benevolent Asylum, Newcastle, 1; Asylum for the Deaf, the Dumb, and the Blind, 1; Hospital for Insane, 1; Prince Alfred Hospital, 1; Sydney Hospital, 1.

The expenditure in these homes during the past year set forth in the balance-sheet has been £2,061 0s. 2d., and to which has to be added £37 2s. as a fair proportion of the travelling expenses, and also a sum of £140 for new clothing, which brings the total cost up to £2,238 2s. 2d. The average number of inmates has been 96, and the cost per child, £23 6s. 3d. In the preceding year it was £23 11s. 3d. If these children had been treated in ordinary hospitals their cost would have been nearly doubled.

Although the management has probably been as satisfactory as it could be in the only premises it has been possible to obtain for the homes, it cannot be fully efficient or economical until buildings particularly adapted to the requirements of the class under treatment have been erected. This was the plan projected before the invalid homes were established, but it could not be carried out in consequence of the necessity which arose for hurriedly removing the children from the public institutions, through overcrowding of the divisions for the sick early in 1885. It is proposed, however, to remedy this defect in the system by asking Parliament for a special grant for purchasing sites and erection of eight cottage homes for ophthalmic, sick, crippled, and delicate children. For this purpose the Government have caused an item of £5,040 to be placed on the Estimates for the current year; and if the amount is granted by the Legislature there will be no more beneficent or economical expenditure upon any branch of our charities. It will admit of the crection of two groups of cottages at Parramatta and Mittagong, which medical authorities consider to be the localities best suited for this class of children, and special provision can then be made for dealing with ophthalmic and other cases requiring complete isolation and particular treatment, for more efficiently instructing the children whose ailments prevent their attendance at school, and for giving some kind of industrial training to the elder boys and girls who cannot for the same reason be sent to service. Last year I stated that under this plan from £3 to £1 per annum could be saved in the cost of each child; and, according to the figures of the year just ended, the annual capitation cost would never be likely to exceed £20.

The dietary scale which was fixed when the homes were opened is found to be sufficient. It consists, as I have stated in a previous Report, of bread and milk or porridge, with bread and butter, honey, or treacle, and tea for breakfast; meat and vegetables, with soup occasionally, and pudding (about four times a week) for dinner; bread and butter, dripping, treacle, or honey, with tea for supper. Extra or different diet is of course allowed in particular cases. It is not practicable, nor is it considered desirable, to adopt any scale of quantities; but the domestic accounts are carefully scrutinized monthly, and any extravagance is promptly checked.

The homes have been very fully inspected during the year. They have been visited 205 times by the officials of the Department, which gives an average of about thirty visits a year to each home, seeing that one was opened in November last. No previous notice of these visits is ever given. They have, in addition, been inspected about twice a month by the lady visitors. Visiting books were opened at the beginning of last year, and the following record, which is taken from them, shows the number of visitors' signatures in each book from 5th April, 1886, to 5th April, 1887:—Parramatta home No. 1, 156 visits; No. 2, 137; Picton home, 117; Mittagong home No. 1, 160; No. 2, 138; No. 3, 184; No. 4 (from November 6th only), 58. This gives a total of no less than 892 visits to the homes by inspectors, lady visitors, and others interested in their management, or an average of  $127\frac{1}{2}$  visits to each home.

SUBSIDIZED COTTAGE HOMES FOR HEALTHY CHILDREN.

There are now three homes thus classed, in addition to two private homes containing between them eleven State children, which only differ from ordinary boarding-out homes in that the guardians have not any other than dependent children to care for. They contain altogether thirty-one children, or an average of six to each home. The inmates are subject to all the conditions of boarded-out children, and cost the same for maintenance. One home is situated at Glebe Point, two at Burwood, one at Colo Vale, and one at Bathurst. A regulation legalizing their establishment was approved by the Governor in Council on September 17, 1885. There were six of these homes last year, but the guardian of one at Bethungra having left that district only retained two children, and the remainder were distributed among other families. It is not intended to increase the number of such homes, as it is found that suitable provision can now be made for children of any class in the ordinary boarding-out division. When they were established those in the isolated districts were intended for Industrial School children, and in other cases, with two exceptions, for large families. They have worked satisfactorily enough so far, and the inmates have improved both physically and morally. The two private homes at Burwood are those which have been established and carried on by the philanthropic efforts of Mrs. Jefferis and Miss Mullens (now Mrs. Sly), and as they contain State children, they are under official supervision.

CONCLUDING REMARKS.

It will be gathered from the foregoing Report that the work of the State Children's Relief Department has largely increased during the past year, but the only addition to the official staff has been the appointment of another inspector of boarded-out children, which was indispensable in order to keep the supervision up to a standard of efficiency.

Before concluding, I have much pleasure in tendering the thanks of the Department to Mr. Fosbery, the Inspector-General of Police, for for the valuable assistance which he has rendered personally, and permitted his officers to render throughout the Colony, and also to those officers for the help they have thus voluntarily given with more than official zeal; to Mr. Walker, the Principal Librarian of the Colony, for his usual courtesy in sending our official Reports through Trübner and Co., of London and New York, and the Smithsonian Institute, of Washington; to the principal charitable institutions of England and America, which have sent us many valuable Reports in return; and to the officials of the Benevolent Asylum, and particularly to Mrs. Elric, the Matron, for the great and unpaid-for assistance rendered in connection with the placing out of children. I have also to thank Capt. Evans, R.N., Inspector of Charities of Victoria, Mr. George Guillaume, Secretary to the Reformatory and Industrial Schools' Department of that Colony; and Dr. Stirling and Mr. Whiting, President and Secretary of the State Children's Relief Council of South Australia, for their official Reports, which have contained much useful information in reference to the management of dependent children in the sister Colonies.

The Appendices contain, as usual, some very useful and interesting information, and will well repay the trouble of perusal. The large number of letters from the children, guardians, lady visitors, and school-teachers are valuable, as indicating how the system is working; and although the whole number received have not been published, still none of a contrary tendency are suppressed. Similar letters have now been published in these Reports for six years past, and as the purpose of this correspondence has now been sufficiently served, and as it takes up a good deal of the officials' time which cannot well be spared, it is intended to omit the greater part of it in future.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

ARTHUR RENWICK.

APPENDIX I.

Extracts from Lady Visitors' Letters.

Mrs. COMBES, Picton :—

I send you for my sister (who is staying in Melbourne) the papers which I have filled up from the observations made on my visits to the cottage home and the children boarded-out with Mrs. O'Keefe. These are the only ones visited by me, as Mrs. Elder, I believe, visits in Picton. The children in both places are well attended to, and seem healthy and happy.

Mrs. ADRIAN, Branxton :—

The children under my care are doing well, and in every respect prove the blessing of a system which gives the waifs and strays of society a taste of home life and association. Some of the boys in particular have, during the last two years, developed into fine sturdy youths who, I have no doubt, will some day become our most useful and industrious colonists.

Mrs. LITTLEJOHN, Manly :—

In accordance with your request, I will endeavour to give you my views as to the result of the boarding-out system. This system, I consider most useful; the more I see of it the better pleased I am with the result; these children I find well cared for in every way; they are taught to cook, wash, and all necessary in the way of housekeeping and management; I speak of course of the girls—I consider that they learn far more and much better than with their own parents, for my experience shows me that amongst the lower classes, both girls and boys are more ready and willing to obey strangers than their own parents. With proper supervision there is no doubt but that it will prove of incalculable service and help to these poor children. Those in Manly look so bright and happy, and tell me they are contented—it is a pleasure to see them.

Mrs. EWING, Wollongong :—

In reply to your circular regarding my experience of the working of the boarding-out system, I beg to say that the boys in my district are all well cared for and in comfortable homes, kindly treated and watched over. I regard the system, if properly carried out, an excellent one.

Mrs. BELLBRIDGE, Balmain :—

The boarding-out system has impressed me most favourably. It gives the children all the advantages of a well regulated home, with the freedom and association of family life. It is the most natural training a child could have, and the effect is to bring out the affections of the children in a marked degree. A judicious selection has been made by the officers in placing the children in their present homes. The foster-parents seem greatly interested in the welfare and happiness of the children, and the children appear to be well clothed, healthy, contented and happy. Out of the large number of children in my district I have not found one serious cause for complaint. The homes have been frequently visited, and I have always found the same uniform kindness and attention given to the children.

Mrs. SIMPSON, Waverley :—

Mrs. Simpson has very much pleasure in speaking favourably of the boarding-out system in the district of Waverley, where she is visitor. All the children in homes under observation have certainly improved in health and every other particular. In most cases the foster-mothers, although complaining at times of bad temper, or of the habits of the children being unclean, yet become so attached to them, that they do not like to part with them. This is especially the case with the younger children.

Mrs. WEATHERILL, Newcastle :—

I have much pleasure in bearing testimony to the excellence of the State boarding-out system, and from some years' experience, as a lady visitor to a goodly number of children, who have been, and are under my charge, I can truly say that I think the great superiority of this system over that of keeping the children in large numbers in a public institution, cannot be too highly estimated. This can be easily proved, by noticing the great difference in the children placed out in homes now from those who were boarded-out at first from the public institutions. The children now have not nearly such bad or dirty habits, and are rarely found with such immoral habits as those at first sent out, showing that many evil habits were contracted in the institutions, and by practice, fixed as part of the children's character. The homes which have come under my notice are good, and the guardians kind and careful, having in most cases a feeling of true Christian charity towards their young charges, which prompts them to do their very best for them. I think the Colony will have reason to thank God that so wise and sensible a change was made in the management of State children.

Mrs

Miss FRASER, Cambewarra :—

I have not any occasion to alter my opinion given in last year's report, respecting the boarding-out system. It seems to work admirably here. All the children I visit have good homes, and kind foster-parents; they apparently are very contented and happy. I have not had to make any complaints yet about any of the children or foster-parents, a fact that speaks well for the good relations existing. The system is to be commended.

Mrs. ELDER, Picton :—

In answer to your circular letter, inviting my opinion on the general results of the boarding-out system as at present conducted, I have much pleasure in expressing my approval of the system, and satisfaction with the general results. Most of the homes are thoroughly suitable and the foster-parents kind, in some cases taking a pride in keeping the children nicely dressed and well looked after. Only in one case have I noticed any carelessness.

Mrs. M. HOLLIDAY, O'Connell :—

The boys under my supervision are, with one exception, doing well. As you are aware the boys, excepting the one we have, are apprenticed to farmers, and having plenty of out-door duties and exercise, are in good health. They have comfortable homes, and are well cared for by kind guardians. From my experience the boarding-out system is conducive to the social and moral well-being of the helpless children.

Mrs. HUGH TAYLOR, Parramatta :—

I again have much pleasure in testifying to the really useful and good work done under the boarding-out system. The homes in this district are clean, healthy, and cheerful, and the children appear to be happy and contented. The cottage homes at Peimant Hills are well conducted, and the unfortunate invalids are well cared for, and are as happy and comfortable as under their painful condition it is possible to expect.

Mrs. LODER, Taralga :—

I am satisfied the boarding-out system is every way preferable to the barrack system. The children are well cared for.

Mrs. ARCHIBALD, Moruya :—

I have only two children in my district, and in their case it is admirable, for they have a happy home and many advantages of which they would be deprived in an institution. I am most favorable to, and highly commend the system.

Mrs. M. A. BADGERY, Sutton Forest :—

I can only say that each year's experience confirms my first opinion—that the system is the best that could be devised. I can refer to one case of a foster-mother, having brought up all her own children, has now charge of five little girls who seem to be always busy and happy, and certainly neat and clean.

Mrs. H. E. KATER, Moss Vale :—

In the one home at present under my supervision in this district, I can speak in terms of the highest praise. There are five little ones who all seem to lead a very happy home life, and appear very fond of their foster-mother, who is a kind, motherly woman, who has brought up a family of her own.

Mrs. ONUS, Richmond :—

The children here are well cared for, and being distributed, ought to turn out better than when so many are together. I consider it a great advantage to the children to be boarded-out.

Miss DEANE, Woollahra :—

The children I visit seem happy and well cared for. Those who are adopted are treated by the foster-parents as their own. Altogether, the boarding-out system appears most satisfactory.

Mrs. DYMCK, Jamberoo :—

With reference to the State children under my control, I have pleasure in stating that I think the guardians are very kind to the children, and although some of the children have been rather troublesome, they now seem to be trying to improve and seem contented and happy. I therefore have much pleasure in stating that I think the boarding-out system is working well.

Mrs. J. C. ELLIS, Newcastle :—

Having again been requested to give a statement as to the boarding-out system, I do so with much pleasure, having now had nearly five years' experience; also having at the present time forty children under my supervision. Out of this number seventeen have been adopted—five boys, twelve girls, and two have been apprenticed. In some instances, when unable to visit some of my homes, I have obtained the kind assistance of a reliable friend, or the clergyman's wife of the parish where the children are living, which has been duly reported to the Board. I have never changed my opinion previously expressed, and consider the boarding-out system a great and excellent work. Those who take up the work heartily will find a grand opening in the Master's vineyard, for the ladies' work is entirely a labour of love. Great care is needed in selecting the homes for the little ones; and I consider that no child should be placed in a home where the few shillings they obtain as maintenance money will be thought a help to poor people. I have had many applications of this kind; for instance, a very respectable woman wanted two children; her plea was that her husband was often out of work, and that if she had two children it would be a help to them. I have never recommended such a home. Young growing children need plenty of plain nourishing food, and the payment should only be looked upon to keep up their stock of clothing, and in this is shown the wise decision of the Board in having refused to give more than 5s. a week for children of a certain age. There is no doubt when foster-parents first receive the children many complaints are made; in one case of adoption they wanted to send back the child at once, and now they would sooner part with all their worldly possessions than the child. I could enumerate many more instances of this kind, but will conclude by stating that the system has proved an undoubted blessing to those who are without children, but especially to the children themselves who have such good homes found for them, and under the constant supervision of the Department.

Mrs. ARGUMBAU, Leichhardt :—

In answer to your request, I beg to say that in my experience the boarding-out system answers admirably. All the homes under my supervision are excellent and the children happy and contented, and the guardians faithfully performing their duties as foster-mothers.

Mrs. E. MCKAY, Rooty Hill :—

As far as I can judge from my experience I feel assured the boarding-out system is an excellent plan. The children I have visited seemed contented and well cared for; having also the advantages of a rural life.

Mrs. MARTYN, Taralga :—

The child under my care is most happily placed, the guardians doing their part conscientiously.

Mrs. H. PARR, Broughton Creek :—

In reply to your letter, requesting a brief statement as to my experience of the boarding-out system in this district, I can only say that I consider it is working remarkably well. The class of homes visited by Mrs. Dymock and myself is principally that of ordinary farmers. In them the children are provided with good wholesome food and very clean and comfortable sleeping accommodation (in one or two instances particularly so). They appear very healthy, kindly treated, and on being questioned privately, always express themselves as thoroughly contented and happy, and the guardians appear to take great interest in their welfare.

Mrs. OSBOURN, Bundanoon :—

There are only two in my district, and if all that are boarded-out are anything like these, they show a marked improvement to the appearance of those in the Asylum, which I visited a few years ago; these having a more free and open expression; they also have the opportunity of exercising their minds on things in common; thereby better fitting them for the battle of life.

Mrs. E. NEWTON and Mrs. GERBER, Woollahra :—

Judging from this, our first quarter's experience as lady visitors to the State children in this district, the seven children under our supervision look remarkably well and happy, and kindly treated by their guardians.

Mrs.

Mrs. F. B. SUTTON, Bathurst :—

Having been asked to express my opinion of the boarding-out system, I am pleased to be able to reiterate my previous statement that I consider it most beneficial to the children; of course there are some instances where all the care of the guardians or foster-parents has not the desired effect in making the children as good as they ought to be. But the result, on the whole, is very satisfactory, particularly when the former habits and bringing up of the children is taken into consideration. In many instances the guardians have a hard and thankless task. The children at present under my supervision are well and happy.

Mrs. BEACMONT, Mittagong :—

I have visited the houses constantly during the year. The children are well cared for, better than hundreds that are living with their parents; they always seem quite happy and contented; those who are able go to school and church. I think no other system could be so good. I take great interest in visiting them, and they are always pleased to see me.

Mrs. WHITTON, St. Leonards :—

I am glad to be able to report favourably of the system of boarding-out children by the State. In my district it has worked well, the children are healthy and happy, and I think the foster-parents treat them as if they were their own children. This gives the poor orphans a home-like feeling. The apprentices who have been with their several mistresses for the past two and three years are giving every satisfaction.

Mrs. V. KELLIE, West Kempsey :—

I have much pleasure in stating that, as far as I can judge, the working of the boarding-out system answers admirably. I have only one child under my supervision, and she always seems happy and well cared for.

Mrs. K. MARSH, Wellington :—

I beg to offer a few observations, as the result of my experience of the boarding-out system in the portion under my control. The only home for children in this district is Mrs. Downie's, about five or six miles from Wellington. This person has the care of three young boys under the system, and I, as well as the members of my family, have been in the habit of visiting the place and inspecting and interrogating the children, as to their welfare generally, at irregular periods. I have always found them clean and obedient, as well as cheerful and happy, and, judging from appearances, well nourished. Mrs. Downie is a widow and resides on her own farm. The boys attend day and Sunday-school regularly, and have plenty of healthy out-door play and exercise, and have no complaints against treatment they receive, Mrs. Downie, herself, being a very kind motherly person.

Mrs. INGLIS, Strathfield :—

The children in the homes visited by Mrs. Fraser and myself, seem all to be well cared for, and the life for them must be much brighter than if they were brought up in an institution.

Mrs. WILFRID DOCKER and Miss MURRAY, Darlinghurst :—

We think the homes we now visit, there are five of them, answer the requirements of the Government exactly; the treatment of the children is uniformly kind, and they all appear happy.

Mrs. K. A. DONNELLY, Armidale :—

The three children who have homes here are particularly well cared for, and the guardians are faithfully performing the duties they have undertaken.

APPENDIX J.

Extracts from Children's Letters.

I received your kind letter which you sent me. I had a letter from one of my uncles in England, so I wanted to answer his first. Mrs. S. is very kind to me, and I am happy. Mrs. S. is teaching me how to make some of my own clothes, and how to mend them. I am learning how to make jam and several other things. I go to school and I am in third class. I got a prize about two Sundays ago at Sunday-school. We do essays at our Sunday-school now. We have one every month. There is a prize given every quarter for the one whose essay has been the best. Mrs. S. says that I am getting on nicely with my household duties.—C.G.

I am very happy and I should like to ask you, please, to let me stay with mother another year. I like my school pretty well, and I have plenty of little children at home to play with. I am very strong, and I like this place better than any other that I have yet been in. I am sometimes a little bit slow about my duties, and I have been very wrong. I have not been stealing since I came back to mother, and I have plenty of good things and plenty of pleasures when I am good and quick with my duties. I am never sick or weak. I have plenty to eat, and I am well cared for. I don't believe I shall find such a nice comfortable home while I live.—M.L.

I received your kind and welcome letter, hearing that you wished me to write to you again. I am happy and comfortable, and I hope you will be glad to hear so. I do not go to school at all now. I could not wish to be better off. I have all I need want, ask for, help or advice I never have wanted.—J.E.F.

I have not been doing very well lately; but I am going to try and do better in the future. I have been to many places since Christmas—to the Japanese Village, the Pantomime, Zoological Gardens; I have been to Manly Beach and the Aquarium during the holidays; I was round the Gardens; I have been also to the fireworks. I am both happy and comfortable. I have been going over to North Shore every Sunday. I have been also to Woollahra.—E.L.

It is a long time since I wrote you a letter; so now I must tell you the good news. I am very happy and healthy. I like being boarded-out very much better than the Asylum. I like my Sunday-school very much. I love my mother with all my heart. We all received our prizes on Sunday; and I have been twenty-two times on Sundays in the quarter. I must say good-night.—J.M.

I like my home very much. I am very well cared for, and I get plenty to eat, and I have very good clothing to wear. I have a great many pleasures in this home, and I like it very much. I am thankful that I am not shut up in the Asylum.—M.M.

I received your kind letter last Saturday. I am glad to say I am very comfortable in the position I am in now. I get plenty to eat, and there is not much work to do here. I go to school regularly, and I am very happy; and after living so long in this way I would not like to go back to the Institution. I speak this honestly and truly.—A.J.

I am quite happy living here. I like living here very much. I try to do my best. I am progressing very well at school. I am doing compound addition sums. I can milk, and have a pony to ride to school, and a saddle and bridle of my own. I like my foster-father and mother very much, and I have got what I want. I like living here better than anywhere else, and I try to do all I can to please.—D.M.

I received a kind and welcome letter from you. I have a kind mistress and master, and a comfortable home. I like living with Mr. M. better than I do at the Asylum. I am getting on well at school. I am happy and comfortable. I go to school and I am getting on very well; I go to church once a week; the school is about two miles and a-half, and I have a hill to go up when I go to school.—W.C.

I received your kind letter, and I am happy to tell you that I like my place very well. I do not wish to go back to the Asylum. My work is in a saw-mill; there are seven men working in the mill; I like them all, they are all kind. I am getting on well at school. My foster mother and father are kind to me. I have a horse and saddle to ride when I wish.—J.H.

I write you these few lines to let you know how I am getting on in my home. We received the notice to write this on the 21st inst. My foster mother and father could not be any kinder. I am very happy and do not wish to go back to the Asylum as long as I can stop with Mrs. J. I like school very much, and I try to learn as much as I can; Solomon and I go to school every day, and go to Sunday-school, and Solomon and I and Mrs. J.'s girls belong to the Temperance Lodge and we are altogether very happy. One night I stopped out all night and I was a very naughty boy, but I am trying to be a good boy and to love God as I ought to do. I send my love to my companions in the Asylum, and Solomon does the same.—A.H.

I received your kind letter the other day. I like to be living with my grandma very much, and I like to go to school. My brothers and I are never in want of anything. We get everything that we want. I would not like to go to the Asylum. I would rather stay with my grandma. We go to school regularly, only sometimes the creek is flooded and then we cannot cross. I am reading the fourth book.—M.H.

I have received your kind letter, asking me if I am comfortable in my home; I am happy to tell you, Sir, that I am both happy and comfortable. My foster father and mother are very good to me; they treat me and my sister as if we were their own children. I am doing very well at school; I have home lessons to do every night. I go to church every Sunday.—C.G.

I write you these few lines, hoping to find you in good health, I enjoying my health very well, I am quite as happy and comfortable in the place I am in; I have no fault of the place where I am stopping. I go to the Convent school, but I cannot go very regular on account of the wet weather and the bad state of the roads; I am in the third class; my father came to see me at Christmas and stayed two nights with the people whom I live with.—P.M.

I received your kind and welcome letter, and I was very glad to hear from you. Mrs. S. is very kind to me, and I like the place very much. I attend Sunday-school regular, and last year I got a nice prize from Sunday-school called the Family Friend, and Mrs. S. was very pleased with it. I get private lessons at home. Would you kindly let me know where my sister is if you have found her out, as I should like to write to her to know how she is getting on.—A.B.

I am getting on very well, and like school pretty well, and live very comfortable. I would a great deal sooner live where I am than in the Asylum. I am learning to drive the horses and milk the cows.—W.H.G.

I now write the letter you told me. I like living here, dear sir, far better than in the Asylum, and I am progressing very well at school. I am trying to improve myself, and I am able to milk. I was glad when my brother came home, he was very thin and weak; but mother has still a great deal of trouble with him in the night. He is a great deal better than when he first came home. He has now got a better appetite, and will take more nourishing food. Mother said she thinks she will not send Tommy to school till after the winter, as it is very wet, and he is not strong yet. I will now conclude.—J.F.

I am quite well. We had a great deal of wet weather, but there are no floods near us because we are on a hill. My foster-mother is kind to me, and Mr. M. says he thinks that I will make a good farmer when I grow up. I can milk a few cows, and sometimes help to do other work on the farm. I like living at Little Forest, and I go to school pretty regular, and I like the school because there are six more State boys besides myself. Mr. E. is the schoolmaster's name. Frederick Phillis is quite well. Mr. U. came to see us once since I have been here.—J.W.G.

I am comfortable here, and my foster-mother is very good and kind to me, and I try to obey her in all things, and am getting on well at school and like it very much. I like living here better than in the Asylum, and am quite well, and so is little Dora, and is growing a fine child.—A.G.

I am very thankful to you for sending me down here, for I have a good place and there are a lot of the boys down here also. I am going to stay down here as long as you will let me. I hope Jack Collet is all right, as I am at present.—T.C.

I received letter with great pleasure on the 19th instant. I should have received it long before, but it was directed to Jamberoo instead of Tullimbar, and so it was delayed. I am living very comfortable. I am living far better than in the Asylum. I try to be as good as I can. I am in the upper third class, which is the highest in the school that I am going to. It is a lady that teaches me. Her name is Miss D., from Sydney. Mr. W. has got about eight horses, and he is going to learn me to ride, and when I am a good rider I will be able to ride out to the post for the letters and papers. This is a very nice part of the country. The Macquarie River runs past this farm. I have nothing else to tell you of this time.—H.J.C.

I received your letter the other evening, and was glad to hear from you. I like living here, they are very kind to me. I am very happy, and comfortable as can be. We have a new Sunday-school in the Valley. Mr. S.'s three little boys go to it, and I go to it also. Mrs. S. is one of the teachers. I go to school every day except washing day.—M.A.B.

You wish to know if I am comfortable? Yes, I am, and happy too. I would rather live where I am than in the Asylum. I am getting on very well at school, I am in upper third in the big school.—L.G.

I received your kind letter asking me if I am very happy and comfortable here. I would far sooner live here than in the Asylum. My foster-mother says that I am very dutiful to her. I am progressing very well at school. My foster-mother says that I must obey you in all things, as I hope to do.—H.B.L.

I am very happy and comfortable. I like living as I am at present. I try to be good to my foster-mother. I am getting on very well at school. I am in no trouble or want. My brother is also healthy and well. I thank you kindly for your letter and advice.—G.J.

I received your letter this morning with great pleasure, it being some time since I received your last one. I am happy and comfortable, and enjoy the greatest of health. I like living here far better than any of my former places. I try the best I can to be good and dutiful to my master. Mr. H. has not been so well lately, but he is a little better now. All the rest of the family are enjoying good health at present. It has been cloudy looking this last week or so and very unpleasant. On Easter Monday it rained nearly all day. Towards evening it ceased for a short time; at about 7 o'clock it started again and kept on until this morning. I went to the Agricultural Show, which I enjoyed very much. I hear that there has been very heavy rain in Sydney, and also that houses have been washed away. Business is very dull in Goulburn at present, and from what I can hear it is the same complaint almost everywhere else. I hope you are enjoying the greatest of health.—A.B.

I am glad to say that I am quite well and quite happy. At Christmas I passed my examination under Inspector Allpass, and received my certificate. Since the beginning of the year, I have been attending the Technical College along with my adopted brother. I go to church every Sabbath morning with my adopted parents who treat me as one of their own. I also go to Sabbath-school Sabbath afternoons, and I have received several prizes. I hope, if I am spared, that I shall grow up a good and useful boy.—G.B.R.

I am truly happy and comfortable, and I like living in this place better than at the Asylum. I try to be good and dutiful to my foster-mother, but I am sorry sometimes I have told my foster-mother lies. I am getting on at school, and I am in upper second class. We get home at half past four o'clock every day, and as we are not allowed to go outside the gate, I occupy my spare time in our garden; I feed the fowls, and I planted some pretty flowers; and I mind the kids, and one died on Wednesday, and I dug a large hole and buried it. The kid's name was Daisy, and we have got two more goats named Buttercup and Violet. My dear sir, my foster-mother says I may come with my brother any day you wish, to see you.—J.A.

I am very happy and comfortable, and I would much rather be where I am now than in the Asylum, and I try to do my best for Mrs. S.; and Mrs. S. says that I read very well. Mrs. S. will let me write you a letter any time you like. I go to St. Thomas' Church every Sunday morning, and Sunday-school every afternoon. Miss W. is my teacher. I got my Sunday-school report, and my marks for attendance were twenty-two, possible twenty-four; lessons, twenty-three, possible twenty-seven; behaviour, good. Mrs. S. said I behaved very good. So, good-bye. Would you please give me the address of my grandmother.—E.A.B.

I received your letter this morning, and was very pleased. I am happy and comfortable. I like living as I am now better than the Asylum. I try to be good and dutiful, and think I am getting on very well at school; I am in upper second class. The Inspector was examining us last week. I was the only girl in the class that had no mistakes in dictation. We often have singing lessons. I am very fond of singing, and know a number of new songs. When I come home from school of an afternoon, I mind the baby and play in the paddock. We often go out for a drive, but it has been raining so much lately we could not go out anywhere. I go to church and Sunday-school. I cannot think of anything more to interest you this time.—E.J.

I am pleased to know that you sent this letter to me. I have a comfortable home, and my foster-mother is very kind to me, only I am sometimes a bad boy. If I could only be a better boy she would be much kinder to me, and I am now getting on in age, and I hope I will be much better after this. I am living joyfully and happy in this home. Dear sir, I am not very dutiful to my foster-mother, but I will try to be after this. I am getting on fairly at school. I get plenty to eat, and I am well clothed, and sent to school every day, which is I think a good thing for me when I grow up. I am sorry to hear of the Bulli disaster, which has made about 300 poor children orphans. My affectionate friend, I think my foster-mother is glad to see me writing to you. I will try to obey her in all things.—F.B.

I am very happy and I like being with Mrs. L. very much; she is very kind. Miss W. took me for a picnic yesterday to North Shore, and I have also been to the fireworks. I am sorry I don't write a better hand. Mrs. L. tells me to say that I am getting obedient and good. I have got some nice flowers in pots, but I have got such work keeping the insects off them this weather. I had a beautiful card sent to me by one of Miss W.'s cousins. I was over at Mrs. S.'s some time ago, and she gave me a house-wife, you know it is a needle book, and I am making some underclothing for Mrs. S. to see. Hoping you and Mrs. M. are quite well.—M.B.

I received your letter with many thanks. I like place well. I am going to school every day, and I am in the third class. My foster-mother and father are very good to me, and I like them very well. I am very good sometimes, they have not very many complaints of me so far. I would rather live here than in the Asylum.—J.K.

I hope you will excuse me for not answering your kind letter before, as we have been busy. I am quite well and happy, and I like my place. I try to do all my foster-mother tells me, and I am getting on very well at school; the sisters are very kind. I am going to the new school that is opened in Marrickville, and I like it very well. The baby is very fond of me, and so am I of her. I think I have told you all now. I must conclude thanking you for all your kindness to me.—M.A.C.

I received yours of the 15th instant, asking me to let you know how I am getting on. I am happy and comfortable. I like living here better than the Asylum. I try to be as good as I can. I go to Sunday-school and church when its not raining. I can milk very well now, and I am beginning to get used to work now; but it is very wet up here now. I have no more to tell this time.—W.D.

I have a good and comfortable home. I have one fault, that is, I forget everything; but I will think better. I like living in Waratah much better than the Asylum. I am in the fourth class at school. I am not very forward in sums and in other things; but I am trying all I can to get into the fifth class. Mamma and papa are very kind to me. Mamma's brother and his son spent Easter with us, and took Sydney back with them; he was not well. Mamma said the change of air would do him good. I am to go next time; won't that be nice? Our day-school picnic will be soon. I took some flowers to the church to decorate it; it looked so pretty. I am in the highest class at Sunday-school. Papa intends building a house in Georgetown; and making a nice yard. I will close with love to you.—G.H.

I forget when I last wrote to you. Mrs. B. has consented to me writing to you at once. I am happy and don't wish to leave at present. I have been to a Sunday-school picnic on Saturday last, my brother and me; I enjoyed myself well. The master says I am getting on well at school; he says that I will be shifted in June holidays. I am going to join the juvenile order of Good Templars. I go to Sunday-school twice every Sunday, and to church. Mother says that I am a very good boy. I have told you all I think of at present. I must conclude.—W.E.

I have received your beloved letter. I send you this letter in reference to my home, and I am very happy and comfortable living where I am, and I have been going to school all the time all except the last week, because Mrs. B. told me it was no use going to school this week on account of the rain, and the roads are so muddy.—W.B.

In regard to your letter of the 14th instant, I have asked my foster-mother, which she is quite agreeable for me to write you a letter, which I must say I am quite comfortable, and also, I would rather live at my present home than in the Asylum; and I try to be a good girl, and be dutiful to my foster-mother; and I am progressing very well at school.—A.G.

I now write this letter to you as you have told me. I hope you are getting on. I am getting on all right myself; I am enjoying myself very much. Mrs. F. is very kind to me, and I like my home very much. We go out to the lake very often; I have been twice with them. All that I have to do is to mind a little boy about three years old. Mrs. F. says I am a very good girl, and she is very pleased with me. I feel very happy; I have no hard work to do, they have another servant to do the rest of the work. I go to school nearly every day. Now Mrs. F.'s mother is sick, I have to mind the house, Mrs. F. has to go to her mother every day. Give my love to Mrs. M.—E.J.

I received your letter on Saturday, and was very happy to get it. I am quite happy and comfortable here, and I have a real good home. I am going to school still, and I am in third class, but reading the fourth book and working fraction sums. You asked me in your letter if I try to be good and dutiful to my foster-mother, and I did not when I first came here, but I will promise you faithfully that I will now. I go to church every Sunday that there is mass, but there is only mass here once a month. I was at the sports here the other day, and it was a very provoking day. Please Mr. M. will you allow me to write to Mrs. B., because I am very anxious to hear how the children are getting on.—E.M.

I have arrived at my new home in Queanbeyan, and the trade I am going to learn suits me very nice. I have a good master and good home. I have a little work to do in the morning, but that does not make any difference. I can sew very well now, and I have been on the board a week and can do many little pieces of work that is put to me. After I have done my work in the day, I do some drawing, which takes my time up until I go to bed. I will now conclude, with best wishes to you.—J.C.

In reply to your kind letter to me, dated the 12th of this month, I am pleased to inform you that I am very happy and comfortable, and that my foster-mother does all she can to make me so, and in return for her kindness I try my best to be good and dutiful to her, and much prefer to live as I am at present living than in the Asylum. I am getting on very well in the school, and have lately been removed to a higher class.—J.B.

I feel happy and comfortable. I like living here better than the Asylum. I try to be good, and I try to help Mrs. N. as much as ever I can. I am not in trouble, and I will try to write to you sometimes as soon as possible and I should like to know how my brother is as soon as possible, if you would kindly let me know; I have been thinking of him this long while. I am growing tall and fat, and go out every day with the children.—A.B.

I am just three months here now, and I do like the place very well, for it is a very nice place, and I think it is better than the Asylum, and I would not like to go back. They treat me very well, and I go to school every day. I like the master very well, and I am living very well and am happy. The master or mistress have never beaten me yet; and I go to Sunday-school, and I like going; and I have two little puppies. There were very heavy rains, it rained for nearly a week. We have a lot of oranges, and they are very nearly ripe, and we have got lots of other fruits, and a lot of fowls and ducks, and we will soon have a lot of young chickens; and I like the school, and the children, and the new church. I have got a comfortable bed, and all the people about the house are very kind, and they feed me and give me everything I want. I hardly know the time since I wrote you a letter before, and I did not expect that letter you sent me. I want you to answer me this letter back as soon as you can.—T.B.

I now write you these few lines to you to let you know that I am quite happy and comfortable. I would much rather live where I am than in the Asylum. I try to do all I can. I am in third class. I am doing the least common multiple sums; reading in the fourth book. I go to Sunday-school, but I am too far away from the church to go very often; I read the Bible at home. My foster-brother and I milk twice a day. It has been very wet here for this last week or two; it made the stock-yard very muddy and overflowed the creeks.—G.H.

I am perfectly satisfied with my present home and foster-parents. I have a very good home and am treated as one of the family. If I were with my own parents I could not be more comfortable. Both Mr. and Mrs. H., as well as all the members of the family, are very kind to me, and I treat them with respect and obedience. I do not go to school, as I am over age, but my studies are not neglected, as I work at night and try to improve myself. I go to church regularly and try to lead a good life, so as to grow up a good man. If ever I am unfortunate enough to go astray in life it will not be for want of a good religious training.—J.F.

You

You asked me to let you know how I like my new home. I like it very well, and I feel quite happy, and try to do all I can for my mistress, who is very kind to me, and I know whatever advice she gives me it is for my own good. So you need not trouble about me, as I am quite happy in my new home.—C.D.

The first I have ever wrote to you. I am improving at school in sums; copy books I write, and the teacher says I write well. Mother buys the copy book, and exercise and lesson books, and geography and grammar. Mother took us all up to the Agricultural Show. I'm very comfortable in this little place, and I would not like to go back into the Asylum again. I try to be good to my mother in ways, and I live in a very nice place, where we can see the steamers passing by to Sydney. My father brings me down to the sea, and I have a very good bath. We get plenty of fruit in the fruit season. I go to Sunday-school and church. We have prayers night and morning.—C.J.

I received kind letter. I go to Sunday-school, and I go every day to the public-school. I am quite well and happy. I wish to stay here. This is the first time I have wrote on paper, the next time I write I hope it will be better done than this. I will try to do all you wish me.—J.H.

I received your kind letter, and I am glad to say I am happy and comfortable both. I like living with Mr. M. and I have left school a good while now, and I am nearly fifteen years of age. The night I received your kind letter I went to the fancy fair, and it was very nice indeed. Sir, I thank you very much for those pretty cards you sent me this year.—C.L.

I am very comfortable where I am. I would rather be with Mrs. D. than in the Asylum, for both Mrs. and Mr. D. are very kind to me. And I go to school every day except when it is raining, for Mrs. D. said that she don't like me sitting in damp clothes for fear I might catch cold. When I first went I was in the highest class, but the master put me down a class lower, that is second class, and when I am able to do arithmetic better he said that he would put me up again. And I go to Sunday-school of a Sunday afternoon; there is no service of a morning, only of an evening, and Mrs. D. don't care about me going out of an evening.—E.A.

APPENDIX K.

Letters from School Teachers upon Children attending their Schools.

I do not think the boarding-out system can be excelled. 1. In behaviour and habits, those children that I have had to deal with, are on an equality with any child attending this school. 2. They are well clad, and apparently as well cared for as if they were the guardians' own children. 3. In general progress they will compare favourably with other children, and indeed, in some cases shows a decided superiority to children placed in more favourable circumstances. 4. Up to date I have no reason to complain of irregularity of attendance. The boys that attend this school seem perfectly happy and contented, and no casual observer would be able to recognise them as children of the State.—H.L.

In answer to your request, I beg to state that, in my opinion, the boarding-out system is a great improvement upon the old system. There are three of the children in my department, and I have always found that their behaviour is good, and their habits appear to be well trained; they are always neatly and seasonably clothed, and look clean and healthy, as if they were well fed and cared for; their progress is good, quite equal to that of any other child in the school, and their attendance has been excellent.—A.L.

In reply to your circular, I beg to offer the following expression of opinion of the children from the State Children's Relief Board who have attended this school. 1. Nothing special to note in their behaviour or habits. 2. They were fairly well clad, and apparently well fed, and as far as I could judge well cared for. 3. None attended long enough to afford means of comparison with other children. 4. They were fairly regular, but fell short in punctuality.—D.A.

We beg to inform you, that judging from the cases that have come under our notice, the boarding-out system seems to work very satisfactory results. The behaviour and habits of the children are very creditable, and the greatest care is apparently taken to provide them with food and clothing. The general progress as compared with other children, and the regularity of attendance are also very satisfactory.—S. of St. J.

In reply to your invitation for an expression of opinion respecting the boarding-out system, I have much pleasure in stating that so far as my opportunities for observation extend, I am satisfied that the methods adopted by the Board are calculated to be most beneficial to the little waifs brought under its supervision. The children in speaking of a foster-mother, call her mother, and appear to have as good and comfortable a home as the majority of their school companions. Besides, the officer who visits this district does his duty in such a thorough manner as to be almost certain of securing to the children whatever benefits are to be derived from the system. 1. Their general behaviour and habits compare favorably with those of the other pupils. 2. They are sufficiently well clad, with properly mended and clean clothes; and are apparently well fed. 3. In progress they are about average. 4. Their attendance is very satisfactory.—J.C.

1. I have observed no special difference between the behaviour of the State children and those children who live with their parents; the former, if anything, being more obedient and respectful; 2. Their appearance is as bright and cheerful, and they present the appearance of being as well fed and clad as other children. 3. Their progress in school is on a par with that of other children. 4. Those who have attended this school have always been very fairly regular and punctual. P.S.—I have written the above report after consulting with the mistresses of the girls' and infants' departments.—S.B.

In reply to your circular received yesterday, I have to state that the State children attending the boys' department of this school are well behaved and decently clad, and appear to be well fed and cared for. So far as my personal experience of the boarding-out system extends, it seems to work very satisfactorily.—W.G.M.

In reply to your circular of 19th instant, I have much pleasure in stating that the State children who have been attending our school for about three years and a-half, appear to be well cared for in every respect. They are well behaved, well fed, and well clad; they are also punctual and regular in their attendance; and compare very favourably with other children attending this school.—W.R.

With reference to your circular of the 19th instant, I beg to state, that so far as my experience carries me, your boarding-out system appears to be a good one. 1. Any boarded-out children that have come under my notice have been well behaved. 2. Their appearance has invariably betokened at least a fair amount of care on the part of their guardians, both as regards food and clothing. 3. The progress of such children in my experience has in most cases been rather below the average. 4. Their school attendance has been uniformly regular and punctual.—M.M.

So far as the children attending this school are concerned, I feel no hesitation in saying the system works well. In fact no one could distinguish the boarded-out children from the ordinary pupils. With regard to the points requiring special mention, I have only to say:—1. Good. 2. Neatly clad, and apparently well cared for. 3. Learn equally well with the majority. 4. On the whole good.—J.W.E.B.

I have the honor to make a report on A.A. He is progressing famously. He has grown 2 in., is as fat as possible, and is advancing exceedingly well in his studies. He has not been sick since he has been here, and attends day and Sunday-school regularly. In short I can say nothing concerning him but in his favour.—A.H.B.

In reply to your letter of the 19th instant, requesting my opinion of the boarding-out system, I desire to state that as regards the cases which have come under my notice:—1. The behaviour and habits of the children are good. 2. The children are well clad, and apparently well fed and cared for. 3. In some cases the progress does not compare favourably with other children. 4. Very regular in all but one instance.—E.C.

In reply to your circular of 19th April, I am happy to say, that I have always considered the boarding-out system to be one of the greatest blessings that could be conferred upon the poor destitute children of our Colony, far superior to keeping them confined in the crowded institutions, both morally and physically; and where they will be taught to work and fit them to become good members of society. 1. The children's general behaviour and habits—The children under my immediate notice will bear favourable comparison with any other children of the same age. 2. Appearance, if well clad, and apparently well fed and cared for—In appearance healthy, fairly clad, and cared for. 3. General progress as compared with other children—Quite equal to the other pupils. 4. As to regularity of attendance—Up to the minimum.—E.P.

I have observed that the two boys, J. and T. B., from the above-named Department, living in this locality, are always cheerful and appear to be quite happy. Their conduct and habits, which I must say have improved, are now like those of other children of similar ages who are under the immediate control of their parents. They have a strong and healthy appearance, well clothed, and, apparently, well fed and cared for in every respect. I have noticed them on several occasions going to church on Sundays with their master and mistress. Their educational progress and regularity of attendance will compare favourably with those of other children of like ages in the school.—J.R.

1. With regard to the children's general behaviour and habits.—From my observation of the State children during their attendance at school, I am able to state that their general behaviour and habits are very satisfactory. This result is, I think, largely due to the excellent homes in which the children have been placed, and the good training they receive in them. 2. The children's appearance and clothing.—Their appearance is healthy; they are kept very clean in person, and neatly and comfortably dressed. 3. General progress.—Those who have attended this school have made satisfactory progress, their advancement being equal to that of the majority of the pupils in the school. 4. Regularity of attendance.—The school records show their average attendance to be from  $3\frac{1}{2}$  to over 4 days per week, and that they have attended more than the number of days (70 in each half-year) required by the Public Instruction Act. 5. In conclusion, I have very much pleasure in stating that my opinion of the boarding-out system is a highly favourable one.—E.B.

In reply to the above, I have, from my experience of its working, to state that I think it very satisfactory so far as the children's welfare is concerned. Of these children placed under my care, I have no very great fault to find after they have been at school some little time, though somewhat troublesome at first. I find they soon fall into the habits and manners of the other children. All the State children attending my school are well clad, fed, and cared for; they are clean and neat in appearance; their progress is satisfactory compared with that of other children; and their attendance exceeds the requirements of the law.—A.H.

With regard to behaviour and habits, it is frequently the teacher's task to grapple with habits formed almost in infancy and therefore the more difficult to alter. But, fortunately, when the child sees that teacher and guardian work together in this respect, it is rarely that he does not find it the better plan to give up such habits. Where appearance is concerned, so far as I can judge, little fault can be found, as the children often compare favourably with others attending the same schools. In most cases that have come under my notice the children have made satisfactory progress with their school work; as with all children, there are exceptions to this. Then as to regularity of attendance, I have found it to be the guardian's aim to see that the children attend the required 70 days in each half-year, while others conscientiously send them whenever possible.

In reply to your communication requesting information relative to children boarded-out, I beg to state that there are two boys attending the school. 1. The children's general behaviour and habits.—I find the two boys in these respects just like the other children and as easily managed. 2. Appearance, if well clad, and apparently well fed and cared for.—I have nothing to say against any of these points. They appear quite happy and cheerful. 3. General progress as compared with other children.—They are not particularly bright in this respect, but not so far below the average as to take much notice. 4. As to regularity of attendance.—Attendance has been much affected by wet weather. One has attended the minimum—35 days in 3 months, the other 28 days.—W.M.

In answer to your letter of 19th instant, I beg to furnish the following:—(1.) The general behaviour and habits of all State children that have come under my notice have been good. (2.) They are all well clad, and appear to be well nourished and cared for. (3.) With the exception of F.S., I consider they make very fair progress as compared with other children. (4.) They are very regular, but, as a rule, not punctual.—M.McS.

In answer to your circular containing questions as under, I have the honor to forward answers to same:—1. The children's general behaviour and habits.—I have always found their behaviour and habits compare more than favourably with those whose parents are in fair circumstances, and far superior to those who do not pay much attention to their children. I am sorry to say I find a number of this stamp. Of course the result depends on the care of selecting proper homes for them. 2. Appearance, if well-clad, and apparently well fed and cared for.—For the three years I have been here, and had children belonging to the State attending, I have only once had to make a serious complaint, threatening to report if repeated. As she knows I never threaten in vain, I am happy to state my note was attended to. As a teacher, I have always considered it my duty to pay more attention to State children than any others attending school. 3. General progress, as compared with other children.—There are four attending here, and three of the four always manage to keep in the front of their respective classes. The fourth is rather young to press. (4.) As to regularity of attendance.—Their attendance is far above the average. Reason.—I make it a practice to find out why and for what they have been detained, in the event of being absent. Summary.—The best guide I can give is—they never play truant; and this twelve months I do not find their names for any serious offence. By their companions they seem well liked, and no complaints, of even a trifling nature, have been made against them. My experience is, therefore, in praise of the system.—M.T.

In compliance with your request, I have much pleasure in giving you my opinion of the boarding-out system. The better to do this, I shall deal with the case of E.W.W.B., who is under the care of the Rev. J.S., of this town. 1. E.'s behaviour is very good. He is well and carefully trained to correct habits. 2. He is well clad, and evidently well fed and cared for. His appearance is that of a happy, contented boy. 3. He compares very favourably with other children, and occupies a high place in his class. Mr. S. expresses great pleasure at his progress. 4. He is very regular and punctual in attendance at school. 5. The great object of providing a home for State children has been attained in E.'s case. He receives every attention from his guardians, who endeavour to fill the place of parents to him. He is considered one of the family. 6. It gives me great pleasure to speak so highly of the boarding-out system. It is certainly a wise step to place children with families where they will be well cared for and made to feel at home. Where care is exercised in placing the children with suitable families, the good results I have observed in this one instance must certainly follow.—J.T.D.

In reply to yours respecting the State children attending the school under my charge, I beg to inform you that two are attending—T. D. and J. C. These, apparently, have much improved by the boarding-out system. The children's behaviour and habits are good. They appear well clothed, fed, and cared for. General progress, good, more especially one. His progress, compared with other children, is very good, as he excels in many subjects. As to regularity of attendance, there is a marked improvement in this respect recently.—E.M.K.

With regard to the particular points mentioned in your letter, I may make a few remarks as far as it concerns the children attending this school. 1. The children's general behaviour and habits.—On the whole I think they conduct themselves very well; but I think they would not conduct themselves so well if they were associated with more like themselves. 2. Appearance, if well clad, and apparently well fed and cared for.—They appear to be as well clad as most other children; and I think they are well fed and cared for. 3. General progress as compared with other children.—I do not know that there is much difference in their progress.—T.M.

No fault can be found with the children as regards their general behaviour and habits. They are as well clad, fed, and cared for as if they were their guardians' own children. They are quite regular in their attendance; and as regards their general proficiency, they are in no respect inferior to the other children who attend the school.—B.L.

I have the honor, in reply to your circular, to acquaint you that the pupils from the State Children's Relief Department differ in no respect from other children attending the school under my charge. In fact I should not know, from their appearance, behaviour, habits, progress, or regularity of attendance, that they belonged to the State Children's Relief Department.—J.C.

In reply to your circular I have to state that my experience of State children proves:—1. The children are of exceedingly good behaviour, cleanly in their habits, and their general conduct is all that can be desired. 2. The clothing of the children is good, neat, and clean, and they (the children) have the appearance of being well-cared for. 3. The progress of the children compares favourably with that of the ordinary school children, and though no signs of unusual brilliancy have been observed, still, on the other hand, no signs of dullness or stupidity have been noticed. 4. The children are regular in their attendance, and I am convinced they are not kept from school except under conditions which could not be avoided. In conclusion, I may state that I believe the boarding-out system to be the only successful method of dealing with State children. When such children are crowded into large institutions, the "sympathy of numbers" often leads them to commit commit faults which, when alone, they would never dream of. In orphan asylums it is impossible to give each child individual supervision, but under the boarding-out system each child feels that the eyes of his foster-parents are constantly upon him, and that is a powerful incentive to good. Again, paid officials of orphan asylums cannot take the same amount of interest in the children that the foster-parents, who receive them into the bosom of their family, do. The very fact of being in an orphan asylum, is a constant reminder to the child of the unfortunate circumstances connected with the early part of his life; and this, especially to a child of spirit, is a heavy burden to bear, whereas, if he be adopted by a kind motherly woman, he in time forgets that he is not an actual member of the family, and looks forward to an honorable and useful life such as he sees is led by the people with whom he is living.—L. McD.

In reply to your communication with reference to the boarding-out system, I have the honor to state:—1. The children's general behaviour and habits are very satisfactory. 2. Their appearance is pleasing, and they are well clad, and appear to be well fed and cared for. 3. Their progress at school, as compared with other children, is satisfactory. 4. The regularity of attendance is, with little exception, satisfactory. I consider the boarding-out system a great success, and, as far as I can judge, the training which the children are getting is good, and calculated to make them good and useful citizens.—C.W.W.

With reference to the boarding-out system, I have the honor to furnish you with the following information respecting the State children who have been or are attending the above school:—1. The behaviour of the girls is not, generally, satisfactory, as I have found many to be untruthful and difficult to control, but they show improvement in time. 2. They have, without exception, appeared well fed and well cared for. 3. The general progress is favourable, as compared with other children in the school. 4. The attendance of the children has been regular, none having failed to complete the requisite number of days for the half-year.—F.J.C.

APPENDIX I.

Letters from Foster-parents.

Sir, yours per favour of the 14th has been handed upon the 16th, and in reply the children under my charge are in very good health at present, and as regards their habits, when I received them, the girl clean, but dishonest, and much given to falsehood, the boy dirty and dishonest; but of late they are rather more to be trusted than formerly, and the boy is cleanly in his habits.—H.J.L.

In answer to your inquiry of the children, I may state that they are all well in health, and getting on very well. But I must tell you that when we first had A. B. she was a very dirty child, but she has improved greatly of late. J. H. and E. H. are both very good children, and also very healthy.—H. E.

In reply to your request of the 14th inst., I hereby give particulars. When I first received the children, they were very unruly and troublesome at night. Since then they have become very obedient, and no trouble at night. They have been going to school regularly, only one of the little fellows had the whooping cough before Christmas for about five weeks, and had to stay at home. And, I think, they are progressing very well. They go to the Brothers' school. They also go to church every Sunday morning, and to Sunday-school in the evening. When I first received them one of the little boys had a rupture; but the Inspector provided him with a truss.—M. A. C.

In reply to your questions with regard to the child in my care, I beg to say that when she came to me her health did not seem very good; she complained at times of pains in her sides, and regret to add she was also untruthful. I am pleased to say she has improved in every respect, her health is much better, and also in the matter of truthfulness she is decidedly improved; on the whole she is very fair.—M. A. S.

I have much pleasure to inform you that the children under my care have greatly improved. When first they come they were dirty in habits; also, stubborn and self-willed, but by being firm with them they have become obedient and docile. Health not very good at first, but now quite healthy. I have now no fault to find with them.—F. B.

I beg to inform you that as far as I can see the boarding-out system agrees with the children far better than the school. They were in good health when I received them, and they are still so, but they have improved greatly in their habits and manner since I have had them.—A. C.

I received your note inquiring about the health and habits of the children under my charge. When I first received them, A. was not at all well; we thought we should have a deal of trouble with her, but she has improved very much since then; the others are all well and cleanly in their habits. I think the boarding-out system is good, more especially in the country, as they are more out of the way of temptation.—M. M.

In reply to your communication of the 14th inst., respecting the foster-children, G. C. and P. P., I have much pleasure of assuring you they are progressing favourably with their scholastic duties, and their behaviour at home is all that is commendable. The boy C. has been respectably brought up; he has excellent health and rather studiously inclined; his mother often calls on him, and is quite pleased with his appearance. The boy P. appears to have been neglected, and appears to have no feeling of parental affection; he is a smart boy, very irritable, requires kindness, but strictness attending it; he also enjoys excellent health. I think the boarding-out system is a great advantage to unfortunate children, particularly when placed out in the country.—C. W. G. A.

In reply to your communication I have much pleasure in stating that the children, C. and P. H., now under my care, are in good health. I have had them vaccinated, which seems to have improved their physical condition; they are growing well and are fat and strong; I may state their health and habits were in a sad way when I took charge of them; they are now well conducted interesting children; the elder C. is going to school, P. I am teaching myself. I think the boarding-out a great improvement on the barrack system, as the children can receive more individual training and care, and also have more freedom, which is, I think, conducive to health.—M. B.

You want to know how the children in my charge are. They are, all that are any size, very well behaved children. The most of them were very young when they came to me, and were not very clean in their habits; but there are not cleaner children any place than they are now; and some of them were not in good health, especially the little girl, but I think she will grow strong, there is a great improvement in her lately, and the others are all strong and healthy now.—E. C.

In reply to your circular of the 14th inst., I beg to state that V. B.'s health, habits, and manners are satisfactory. His progress in school is more than satisfactory; it is very good. He is now in the third class; and, having been promoted with some half-a-dozen others, he has distanced all his competitors, he being by far the best among them. I must add that, having had the pleasure of meeting Mr. N. some time ago at Broughton Creek. I had some conversation with him, re V. B. I took the opportunity to state my deliberate opinion that V. B. will never make a good farmer or dairyman, as he does not take kindly to out-door work; but that I believe he will be qualified for a position superior to that of an ordinary farmer. The next 12 months, I believe, will decide this point.—G. T. B.

In reply to your inquiries, respecting the children under my charge, I am happy to say they are much improved in their habits and ways since under my care. On my first receiving them they were very dirty in their habits; also A. the eldest boy, was in the habit of stealing, but he has not done so of late. As to the boarding-out system I think it is very good for them if suitable persons have charge of them, but it needs patience and perseverance.—M. C.

In reply to your inquiries, concerning the children placed under my care, I beg to state that the health of my five children is very good. They are all just recovering after a very severe attack of whooping cough. The children are growing fast and they are all strong. Their habits and manners are greatly improving. They all had very dirty habits when I received them, especially C. J.; I thought he never would be a clean boy, and although a big strong boy now he wets the bed yet. He is a good boy and is learning very fast at school. They are all good intelligent children. There is not much time to teach them domestic duties, as I keep them constantly at school if the weather permits. M. and L. can sew very nicely, as Mrs. E., the school teacher, takes a great deal of trouble to teach them. R. L. is not long at school as he is just past six years old, but is commencing well under Mrs. E.'s good teaching. They all like going to school. Dear little J. W. is a very fine intelligent child. He is growing very big and strong, a very clean child now, but dreadfully dirty when I had him. He often wants to go to school, but he is too young. I think the boarding-out system a grand thing where the dear children have good homes, as they are able to learn a good many things they could not shut up in an asylum.—S. C.

I am glad to say that the three children under my charge are in good health except M. She has a few bad sores on her face. They are very well behaved children. They had good manners when I received them, and they continue so. The two girls were very sickly when they came to me first. I am very well satisfied with my three. They are nice children. I cannot answer for more.—E.L.

In compliance with yours of the 18th, I beg to state that my foster-children are in, and always had very good health. Their habits are good and cleanly, and their manners are good. I have had them for four years. They had never been to school when I got them. Now they are all well forward.—E.W.

I have pleasure in telling you that the children under my care are behaving themselves very well on the whole. They, when I first received them, had indeed very dirty habits, especially the Ws., which took me a deal of time and trouble to eradicate. Their health was far from good, they being very weakly and subject to excessive colds; but now I am happy to say they are in perfect health. As to A. W., he, poor child, was in a very bad state, for the first eight months he had periodical outbreaks of immense sores from head to foot, his body being covered with old scars, but now he is perfectly free and healthy, and is getting quite a strong boy. As to their schooling, they are splendid, as far as J. W. and A. are concerned, but as you are aware, V. W.'s intellect is impaired, and much progress in that quarter cannot be expected. As to the boarding-out system, as far as the children entrusted to me are concerned, they seem perfectly contented and happy.—F.T.

In reference to your letter I received this morning respecting the children F.T. and H.B., they are in good health and attend day and Sunday schools very regularly, and church twice a day on Sundays; and I have no particular fault to find with them, for children will be children, but they have improved very much since I have had them. Of course F. was very young when I took her, so that I have the training of her, but K. was in a very bad state when she came to me, but she has greatly improved and is getting on very nicely now, and I hope they may be able to reward you in due time for all my trouble.—S.W.

In reply to yours of the 15th, I have pleasure in informing you that A.E., who came to us with a very bad character from her last and previous homes, has, up to the present time, given us no trouble, although she has required careful kind treatment to ensure this. She has wonderfully improved in manners, health, and appearance, and is very happy and contented with her lot.—J.W.

Concerning the little girl I have charge of, her health is generally good, but she has been suffering from a bad cold which has kept her from school for the last fortnight, but she has quite recovered and returned to school, in which she is making great progress. Her habits and behaviour are good.—M.W.

I beg to state that C. S., from a poor little shoeless Evening News boy, is growing up to be, I hope, a credit to society. You will see by his photo. that he is not the poor neglected child he was when first taken under your care. I need hardly tell you we have had a deal of trouble with him. Re G.C., he came to us from another home. I have hopes that he will be a smart man, of course, boy like, he is slow and untidy, but will in time get over all that. Your boarding-out system I consider is simply a blessing, and an institution that the country might be well proud of. Doubtless hundreds of children will grow up to bless the originator and the ladies and gentlemen who work so hard now for their welfare.—F.C.

In reply to your letter of 14th instant, I beg to state that it affords me great pleasure to give you a report of the two little boys you were good enough to send me from your institution. When they came to me, I found them simple, good children, but with rather neglected habits, wetting their beds continuously. The elder one was rather delicate, showing every sign of a predisposition to consumption, but since he has been at Rockdale he has got comparatively strong and healthy. He is growing rapidly and keeps thin, though his appetite is good. He does not care much for manual labour, but will, I think, be fond of his books. The younger boy is a sturdy healthy little fellow, very wilful and headstrong, but will improve with kind careful management; he has more energy of character than his brother, gets into trouble more easily and gets out of it just as quickly. V. seems ambitious and is beginning to think a great deal of himself. So far as my experience has gone, I approve of the boarding-out system for poor children. They feel that they have a home, and are with friends whose sympathy they so much need, and assists to raise them in their own estimation. These two boys are happy independent little fellows.—E.C.

Your note to hand in reference to the children now in my charge. The child D.J., was in good health when I received him, and has continued in good health ever since. He has improved in habits and manner of behaviour, and especially in truthfulness, since he has been with me, and progressing favourably in every respect. The child M.A.P. was very delicate when I received her, but is now very much improved and doing very well. She was very dull and stupid at the first, but I see a great improvement in her and I hope by kindness and perseverance to make her a good girl. Her habits and manner of behaviour are improving. The other children, R.S., E.M., and K.P., I have only had them a little over a week. They are in good health and their habits and manner of behaviour generally are very good.—M.M.

I am happy to say my foster-children are all improving very much. The A. boys were suffering with a skin disease which was very irritating, but the treatment I have given them is, I think, quite curing them of that. And about their manner, I see a decided improvement in that quarter, in fact the only fault I find with the boys now is their untruthfulness; it is so difficult to get the truth from them about the most trivial things. I am sorry to say little W.M. is not at all well just now. He is a most wonderfully intelligent child, quite above the common standard. I have not sent him to school yet, but give him short lessons at home. C. is improving in every way, though not near so intelligent as W., but much stronger. All are very happy and willing to do anything about the home. The A. boys say their mother will not get them again, for they intend to live with me always, and I am sure I should be sorry to part with the lads.—M.A.C.

I received your note, requesting information concerning foster-child in my charge. In reply, I beg to state, the boy is very small to his supposed age, was very sickly, delicate, in his manners and habits careless, disobedient, in general not promising. By kindness, patience, and perseverance, we notice decided improvement in health, honesty, industry, and moral conduct generally.—R.B.

I have great pleasure in stating that the three boys I have had in my charge eleven months, are now in perfect health, and well behaved, good boys. They have been put into higher classes at the superior school since Easter, although they have lost time through living in the country, and the wet weather. With respect to habits and manners of the boys when first they came to me, they were good.

As regards the behaviour of my foster-children, it is very good. When I first received them their habits were very filthy, but now, I am happy to say, they are all that can be desired. I feel confident that the boarding-out system will prove beneficial to the children in after life, as it takes them away in most cases from evil influences. I have no doubt that many children will thank the State for its care of them.—A.M.W.

I am happy to inform you that the children in my charge are in good health and spirits, and I believe they were, in all respects, when I received them. Shortly after I got them, they all took the sandy blight; I was compelled to call the doctor in to D., and have her eyes burned with caustic, but they are as well as ever again. They are well behaved and obedient. E. and D. were very dirty in their habits when they came, but I have broken them off that. I do not mean to say they are perfect, but take them all through, they are very good. They go to both day and Sunday-school. I had a visit from Mr. W., their father, he was very pleased to see how comfortable they were, and went away quite contented at leaving them with me. I shall be sorry when the day comes that I have to part with them, for their father intends taking them when he can make a home for them.—E.B.

My foster-children are progressing and behaving themselves very well. The habits of the children, when I received them, were cleanly, and I have noticed an improvement in health. Two of their faces were very sore; I think they were only recovering from chicken-pox. As far as my foster-children are concerned, I think the boarding-out a very good system.—A.W.

You wish to know how the children are getting on. I am happy to be able to inform you that they are greatly improved in their health and learning, in fact in every respect, since I got them.—W.W.

I wish to let you know how my foster-children are getting on. They are doing very well indeed, and behaving themselves well. Their habits and health were not good when they came to me. I have noticed that they have much improved in health and manners.—J.F.

Regarding

Regarding the children, A. F. is growing very well, and is honest, truthful, and clean, and is doing well at school; but for R. M., I am sorry to have to state is not so. He had dirty habits when he came, he is very slow and untruthful, and very sulky. I am trying my best to improve him all I can, but it is almost impossible to break him off his dirty habits. He is doing well at school, and growing well, and got first prize in his class.—Mrs. A.

I beg to inform you that the general conduct, at present, of the children placed in my care is very good, and they are progressing very well. Their health was good when I received them, and continues the same; but they had very dirty habits, and not very good manners. They are improving both in habits and manners. And my general idea of the boarding-out system is, that it is a good thing for the children in my care, as they appear children that have been under very little control, and I think it a great blessing for them that they are sent away from the town.—R. A. T.

I received your letter and am glad to state to you that the children in my charge are in a good state of health; They never were sick an hour since I got them. They are very obedient. A. is a very hot tempered child, but we all have our own tempers.—J. K.

I have the pleasure of saying that my children are all very good and healthy, and were so when I received them. And from what I observe of others in the neighbourhood, I think the boarding-out system is an excellent thing for the children.—E. C.

I am pleased to say the boys are doing well. A. K. is preparing for confirmation. His ears are a little better, I am pleased to say.—J. F.

My foster-children have not made much improvement as yet. They knew nothing whatever when they came, and very little yet. They are very stubborn. I am doing my best with them, hoping they will soon improve. I send them to school every day, and give them lessons with my own children. They are quite well in health.—H. W.

I am glad to tell you the little boys are getting on very nicely. The younger child when first he came to me was very dirty in his habits, but am very glad to tell you he is much improved, and that they are both in very good health, and they behave themselves very well.—E. W.

The children are all well and were in good health when I got them. The oldest is very hard to manage, she is very obstinate; but I have no fault to find with the other two. I think they are greatly improved in appearance and got much stouter.—M. W.

Referring to yours of 18th inst., it affords me pleasure to state that the boys are both progressing favorably. Their health—judging from appearances—has wonderfully improved, they are both hearty and well, willing and obedient, therefore have no reason to complain of them; and if they improve in the future as they have done in the past they will make useful men and good citizens.—J. W. B.

In reply to your note I may state that my foster-child is progressing as satisfactorily as I can expect, and she is behaving very well. I am strict with her, and I hope not harsh. She was very much inclined to get on the street to play, and rather given to telling falsehoods to screen anything she thought was wrong and very dirty. Her health was not very good, and manners were very rough and uncouth. I do not allow her on the street to play, and I have checked her in all falsehoods that I have found out. I now find that she is more truthful, and I am trying to get her more cleanly in her habits. She is not nearly so often sick now as when she first came.—H. B. S.

You wanted to know how my foster-child was behaving herself. There are times that she wants a great deal of telling and talking to, but I have all hopes of her improving. She is very kind to my little children, also she is very truthful. I find a difference in her than when I first got her. She seemed quite stupid, and was very delicate; but now she has quite grown out of all that. No one would think that she had been ever in an orphan school. I believe very much in the boarding-out system; and I strongly believe in keeping those children to themselves. I always find a difference in the child after her friends have been to see her. I think they put things into her head.—M. T.

I received your letter. As regards the boy's health, he is improving very much since I got him. He had a polypus in his nose when he first came, but it is getting better—it was very disagreeable to everybody. He also had a very dirty habit of wetting his bed, but he is leaving that off this last few months. He attends school regularly and is getting on very well, in fact he is improving every way lately. I approve very much of the boarding-out system, it is a great improvement to the little ones; of course when you get them young you have a great deal of trouble with them. I would not like to part with this little boy now after having all the trouble with him.—A. W.

I beg to inform you that the general conduct of A. R. and J. L., the children placed with me by the State Children's Relief Board, as foster-children, has, during the four months I have had them, been very good, and the only ailment they have had has been sore eyes, but they are quite recovered now. They were nice and tidy and well-mannered when I received them, and they are looking a good deal stouter in appearance since I have had them.—T. A. T.

It affords me great pleasure in answering your letter of Friday. I may tell you that when I received the children, they were all very obedient and in good health as they are at present. They are kept regular to day-school and Sunday-school, and are progressing in every way as well as can be expected. They are very good children indeed, they have always been brought up in a right way, as they had a very pious father and mother.—S. G.

In reply to yours, I beg to state that the children are progressing favourably and behaving themselves well. And as regards improvement, I have not noticed any as they were always good mannered and obedient children. I notice a great improvement in their education. They are all in the best of health. They had no illness since they have been in my charge.—M. A. B.

In answer to yours of the 15th instant, I beg to state that G. C. and M. M. were too young when I received them to form an opinion of their improvement. They are the best of the five. They were both sickly and had sore eyes, but are healthy children now. E. C., the next I received, had a few childish faults such as spiteful and greedy, but is and has been a very good child. K. N., the last, was a little troublesome at first, but has greatly improved. In fact these four children are the best behaved children to be found in Moss Vale—not my opinion only, but every person who comes in contact with them. They are regularly visited by the lady visitor, also by the local priest, and His Eminence the Cardinal, when in Moss Vale, paid them a special visit. My opinion of the boarding-out system is that it is a great blessing for the poor little waifs.—W. P.

In reply to your questions, I have the pleasure in stating that the children are in every respect improved, especially in their health and manners. The youngest child, S. D., who was very delicate when we got him, is getting very good health and behaving himself well.—J. N.

In answer to your inquiries concerning the children formerly in my care, T. and J. L. were always honest, truthful, and obedient. They were very attentive to their school lessons and had made great progress with them in comparison with other children attending the same school. Their health was good during the time they were with me, with the exception of J., whose eyes are naturally weak, and who needs to be kept out of the cold evening air, especially in winter. J. B. (who was not so long under my care as the L. boys) has also improved considerably in his education and habits, his health was always very good, except one of his ears, which need to be carefully attended to by the person having him in charge. None of them knew the alphabet when I received them, or had the slightest idea of prayers or what was their meaning. With respect to my opinion on the boarding-out system, I consider it the very best thing that could be done with the children, as it is in many cases far better for them than being left with their parents, particularly if they are placed with honest intelligent people who will treat them as if they were their own, and so fit them to become useful members of society and a support instead of a burden to the State. But I consider that the members of one family should be kept as nearly as possible together, if not with the same foster-parents, at least in the same neighbourhood, so that they may not grow up strangers to each other, as it is not on account of mere relationship that they will cleave to and assist each other in after life.

Your

Your letter of the 14th duly to hand, asking how the foster-children are progressing. I must say well; and how they are behaving themselves, I have no reason to complain of them. Their health was fair when received; but as a general rule all the children we have had under our charge have had a breaking out all over them; after a few months with attention, get quite right. We had some trouble with one; he being very dirty in respect to his bedding; but I am glad to say that he is much improved in that way. The only thing wrong in my idea is apprenticing so soon, the age being 12 years instead of 14, which should be the age.—G.B.

In reference to yours of the 14th inst., I wish to state that the children in my charge are progressing favourably upon the whole, and are behaving very well. They are greatly improved in every way.—A.M.

Received your letter dated April, concerning the children, and am glad to inform you that they are progressing favourably, and behaving well. Their habits, health, and manners were very good, and have improved a little; the eldest is going to the public school regularly.—J.W.

In answer to your inquiries how M. is progressing and behaving, I thought I should have had to send her back for her dishonesty and dirty habits; but I am glad to say she has wonderfully improved; I don't believe she would take a farthing from anyone. I think where the orphans get good homes it is a great boon for the children; but people who take them must expect a little trouble. M. is quite happy and contented, and very willing and anxious to please; I certainly treat her as my own child, and I hope she will always remain with me as she has no other mother.—M.L.

In answer to your inquiries about my foster-children I beg to state that they are all in perfect health, and much improved in manner, and in every respect very well conducted children since entrusted to my care.—M.W.

I am happy to tell you the children in my care are all good boys, the boys W. D., and T. W. have been so long with me they seem like my own children to me. W. R. wet the bed every night for over a month, but he is leaving it off, he only did it once this week; he had a cough when he came to me, I got cod liver oil for him, and he is all right now; he used to go about as if he was lost; but he is like the others now; W. W. will be a smart boy if he gets into good hands. I think the boarding-out is a good thing for the poor boys, and I think that everyone that has them ought to impress upon their minds the kindness and trouble you take for them. So that when they are men and women that at least they can be thankful to the ladies and gentlemen that see they are kindly treated by their foster parents.—Mrs. F.

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

(QUARANTINING OF THE S.S. "PREUSSEN.")

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 16 March, 1887.

---

The Secretary, Board of Health, to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Quarantine of the s.s. "Preussen."

Board of Health Office, 127, Macquarie-street,

Sir

Sydney, 5 March, 1887.

I have the honour to inform you that, at a meeting of the Board of Health held yesterday, the enclosed Report from the President of the Board upon the recent outbreak of Small-pox on board the s.s. "Preussen," together with the attached papers, including a letter from the Consul-General for the German Empire, were taken into consideration, when, after deliberation, it was resolved,—

"That this Report be received and adopted for transmission to the Treasury,
"with a view to its circulation amongst the Australian Colonies interested,
"whose joint reports it may be thought fit to submit to the Imperial "authorities."

I have, &c.,

EDMUND SAGER,

Secretary.

REPORT to the Board of Health by the President upon the outbreak of Small-pox on s.s. "Preussen."

IN placing before the Board my final report upon the outbreak of small-pox on the s.s. "Preussen," I find it necessary to attach to it certain documents to which I may have occasion to refer, and in which more detailed information will be found than it is necessary to give in this report. These are—(1st) my interim report to the Board, dated 3rd January, 1887; (2nd) a report from the Chief Medical Inspector of the Board; (3rd) a letter, which the Consul-General for Germany has done me the honour to address to me, containing the results of an elaborate inquiry which he made into the whole circumstances of the case after the release of the "Preussen" from quarantine, together with certain documents attached thereto; and (4th) certain memoranda by the Chief Medical Inspector, having reference to questions raised by the Consul-General.

The

The North German Lloyd's s.s. "Preussen," 4,000 tons, with a crew of 120 officers and men and three stewardesses, left Bremer haven, November 3rd, 1886, and arrived at Antwerp, November 6th, where she embarked all her steerage passengers, amounting to 544; of these 392 were of British nationality. These British passengers were conveyed at the expense of the Company from various ports in the United Kingdom to Antwerp, in Belgium, for the purpose of embarkation. As the ship afterwards called at Southampton, where she embarked a few cabin passengers, it would seem that the intention of the Company by embarking her British steerage passengers at Antwerp was to prevent the "Preussen" from becoming liable to the provisions of the Imperial Passengers Acts of 1855 and 1863 (18 and 19 Victoria, c. 119, and 26 and 27 Victoria, c. 51). The vessel sailed from Southampton on November 7th, and arrived at Port Said on the 18th, where she remained until the 22nd, being delayed as I am informed, to await the arrival of mails coming by Brindisi. During her stay at Port Said the passengers were permitted to go on shore without any restriction. Leaving Port Said on the 22nd, the ship arrived at Aden on the 27th, and left again on the 28th for Albany. Several cases of dysentery and diarrhoea occurred after leaving Aden, and on the 7th of December, John Pryce, aged 24 years, fell sick with symptoms which pointed to dysentery. On the 8th, however, the eruption of small-pox declared itself in Pryce's case.

A full account of the measures of precaution which were taken when Pryce's case declared itself will be found in Dr. Ashburton Thompson's report and in the letter of the Consul-General. It is not necessary for me here to recapitulate them; it is sufficient for me to say that, while I recognize the difficulties experienced by the captain and surgeon of the "Preussen," the measures they adopted fell short of those recommended in the suggestions issued by this Board for the guidance of captains of ships upon the appearance of small-pox; and, moreover, that in my opinion the measures taken were not so stringent as the circumstances required.

The ship arrived at Albany at 8.15 a.m. on 15th December, 1886, when the existence of a case of small-pox on board was reported to the Customs authorities, and by them to the Health Officer.

It will be in the recollection of the Board that efforts were made by me to induce the Health Officer at Albany to remove the patient from the ship, but without success. For the further details of the voyage from Albany until the ship's arrival in Sydney, I would refer the Board to my interim Report of the 3rd ultimo, attached hereto, which it is unnecessary to recapitulate.

The ship arrived here at 1.40 p.m. on the 26th December, having apparently no infectious disease on board. She was at once sent to Spring Cove, and placed in the strictest quarantine. As there was strong ground for suspecting that we should have to deal with an outbreak of some severity, I arranged with the Chief Inspector (Dr. Ashburton Thompson) to take medical charge of the Quarantine Station during the period of the vessel's quarantine.

All the passengers were at once landed, their clothes were washed, and they were housed in different parts of the ground, so that cases which should occur might at once be removed to a place of isolation, so as to minimise the risk of their infecting the other passengers. Steps were also taken to cleanse and disinfect the ship, and every facility was given to the officers and men to wash and disinfect their clothing.

Sickness

Sickness began to show itself upon the 27th of December, on which date one man was sent to the hospital-ship "Faraway" with a papular eruption, which turned out to be small-pox. Cases continued to appear almost daily either among the passengers or among the crew until the 7th of January. On this date the last case of sickness occurred, which developed the rash of small-pox on the 9th of January, being twenty days from the removal of the corpse of the original source of infection from the ship at Adelaide. A full tabular statement of the number of cases and the dates upon which they occurred will be found in the report of the Chief Inspector. It is sufficient here to state that there were in all seventy-nine cases, of which thirteen died.

In order that the patients should meet with every attention which their painful circumstances required, two other medical gentlemen were engaged to attend upon them, viz., Mr. E. J. A. Haynes and Mr. T. M. Harding. Of these Mr. Haynes was placed in charge of the "Faraway" and Mr. Harding of the hospital enclosure on shore, while Dr. Ashburton Thompson continued to exercise a general supervision over the medical and sanitary arrangements of the station. It was also found necessary to send a staff of trained nurses from the Coast Hospital at Little Bay to carry out the nursing of the patients, and no pains were spared to provide the persons quarantined, whether sick or healthy, with every reasonable requirement.

Constant daily inspections were made of all persons on the grounds, and as soon as the slightest appearance of sickness manifested itself in anyone, the person affected was forthwith removed to a suitable place of isolation until the nature of his complaint should declare itself, when, if it proved to be small-pox, he was at once placed in the small-pox hospital.

Great praise must be given to the Superintendent of Quarantine, Mr. J. F. Vincent, who showed the utmost zeal and assiduity in carrying out very arduous and harassing duties.

As the proclamation defining the Quarantine boundaries was of very old date, and seemed to be misunderstood by certain persons, it was considered advisable on the 5th of January to issue a fresh proclamation defining the boundaries, and extending them so as to include the fishing-grounds known as the Green Flats, immediately adjoining the small-pox hospital enclosure.

It is my duty in this connection to bring under the notice of the Board the very efficient manner in which the Quarantine regulations were carried out by the Police Department, and more especially by Mr. Inspector Donohoe, of the Water Police, and the men under his charge.

On the 30th of January, by order of the Board, the ship and those of the crew and passengers who had not been attacked by small-pox were released from quarantine; and on the 1st of February, twenty persons convalescent from small-pox were also released, leaving forty-one passengers and four of the crew who were not yet fit to be discharged.

During the present month these persons have been released at different dates as soon as they were sufficiently convalescent, and there are now only three persons on the Quarantine Station, a mother and two children of the name of Fritz, who are not yet well enough to be discharged. I hope, however, to be able to release them in the course of a week.

It

It will be seen from the evidence in the attached documents that the disease was in all probability introduced into the ship during her stay at Port Said, where small-pox was at the time raging among the Arab population, and it seems to have been highly imprudent on the part of the master to allow any communication with the shore under such circumstances. The first case, that of Pryce, sickened on the 5th of December, thirteen days after leaving Port Said, and the distinctive eruption appeared on the 8th. The patient remained on board until the 20th, when he died at Adelaide, and after a few hours' delay his corpse was removed and buried at sea. No further case appeared among any of the passengers or crew until the 27th of December, when two cases showed themselves simultaneously at the Quarantine Stations of Adelaide and Sydney. From the 22nd of November to the 27th of December is thirty-five days, a time far beyond any that has ever been reasonably suggested as the incubation period of small-pox. It is therefore clear that no one of the passengers or crew, excepting Pryce, contracted the disease in Port Said, and it is perfectly certain that all the cases which occurred subsequently owed their existence, whether directly or indirectly, to infection spreading from Pryce.

From a careful observation of the dates on which these various cases occurred at our Quarantine Station, the results of which are given in detail in Table VII of the Chief Inspector's report, it will be seen that at the outside not more than three persons of those who came to Sydney had been infected with the disease before the arrival of the ship at Albany on the morning of the 15th of December. If the patient had then been removed from the ship without delay it is in the highest degree probable that the spread of disease would have been restricted within very narrow limits. But the patient was not removed, as was suggested by this Board, and he consequently continued to be a source of danger until the 20th of December, on which date his corpse was taken out of the ship for burial.

A further consideration of the dates of the various attacks convinces me that all the persons who suffered at our Quarantine Station owed their illness to infection direct from Pryce, and that the rigorous system of inspection and isolation which we adopted was successful in preventing the disease being communicated to healthy people from any of those who sickened under our charge. I would further note as a matter of interest to this Board that from the 20th of December, on which date Pryce's corpse was taken out of the ship, to the 9th of January, when the eruption showed itself in the last case, a period of twenty days elapsed. This confirms the old standing regulation of the Board, "that no body of persons in quarantine for small-pox should be considered perfectly safe from a possible outbreak of the disease until at least twenty-one days have elapsed since the last case of disease was removed from among them."

As usual in such cases, the progress of the epidemic shows very clearly the beneficial effects of perfect vaccination as a protective against small-pox. Full details will be found on this subject in the report of the Chief Inspector; but I may mention the following salient points: Of the passengers detained at our station nineteen had never been vaccinated; of these, fifteen took small-pox, nine of whom died, and one lost her eyesight. There were fifty-five passengers who were said to have been vaccinated and revaccinated; of these, four were attacked, but none died. Thirteen persons had had small-pox before; three of them had small-pox now, but none died. One hundred and fifty persons had good or fairly good vaccination marks; of these, twenty-nine were attacked, with no deaths. Fifty-nine had deficient vaccination marks; of these, sixteen were attacked, and three died. The

The awful proportion of mortality among the unvaccinated passengers should furnish a warning to the inhabitants of this Colony, who, whether from carelessness or from the influence of evil counsellors, persist in neglecting to avail themselves of the benefits of vaccination in a way that cannot fail before long to produce the most disastrous results. The efforts of this Board to prevent the introduction of small-pox into the Colony have hitherto been attended with success; but it would be unreasonable to expect, considering the extraordinary development of steam communication, that these efforts should not at some time fail. If by any misfortune this loathsome disease were to be introduced into our community, which, so far at least as the young are concerned, is practically unvaccinated, the results would be in the last degree calamitous. I have done everything in my power by advertisement and by notices in the newspapers to awaken the public to a sense of their danger, but as yet I regret to say that no impression seems to have been made upon them. The number of children vaccinated every week at the head office in Sydney is ridiculously small; and in the country, so far as I can judge from the returns of the Government Vaccinators, there must be an enormous number of children who have never been submitted to the operation.

Although it was not considered advisable that the Board as a body should undertake the duty of inspecting this ship after her discharge from Quarantine, I took advantage of an invitation by the agents to examine her while she was lying at Circular Quay. She is a perfectly new ship, fitted with all the most recent improvements to secure the comforts of passengers. The number of closets, however, provided for the steerage passengers being only seven for over five hundred persons seems to me to be quite insufficient. This deficiency, especially considering the outbreak of diarrhoea, which took place after leaving Aden, must have been a source of great discomfort to the persons on board.

After careful consideration of all the evidence, both in the Chief Inspector's report and in the Consul-General's letter, I cannot but come to the conclusion that on her arrival at Sydney the ship was far from being in that state of cleanliness which we have been accustomed to find in vessels arriving at this port under the control of the Passengers Act. The excuse offered for this by the master, that it was owing to the dust from Australian coal affecting injuriously the light coloured paint of the vessel is, to my mind, quite insufficient.

I am also satisfied that the discipline on board during the voyage, especially with respect to sanitary matters, was by no means what it ought to have been. It would seem that the steerage passengers were allowed to remain in their bunks during the daytime; that they were allowed to take their beds on deck to sleep; that they were not made to air their bedding on deck or to assist in keeping their quarters clean; and that barrels of provisions were stowed for some time at least under the bottom berths in the single men's quarters forward. These statements are practically admitted to be fairly well founded by the Consul-General's letter, in which he speaks of the difficulty of dealing with noisy passengers belonging to the class of low people; of passengers wilfully throwing their food on the bottom of the between decks; of passengers refusing to leave the between decks in order to have them washed and cleaned; and of passengers objecting to have their beds carried on deck to be aired. This amounts to a confession of inability on the part of the master to enforce those salutary rules of discipline which long experience has shown to be absolutely essential to the proper conduct of an emigrant ship.

I would point out to the Board that all the difficulties enumerated by the Consul-General have been carefully provided for by the Orders-in-Council, dated the 7th of January, 1864, which give a detailed account of the various rules of discipline which are necessary for the good conduct of a ship carrying steerage passengers, and which provide the master with authority for carrying out those rules, sanctioned by suitable penalties, which may be inflicted by any magistrate on the arrival of the ship at any port in the British Dominions. If the North German Company had brought this ship under the control of the Imperial Passengers Acts, the master would have been armed with the authority conferred by the Orders-in-Council. But the Company chose to embark their British passengers at a foreign port, and thereby to remove their ship from the salutary control of British law. As a result of their action, the master of their ship found himself powerless to enforce the most ordinary rules of discipline. I am compelled to conclude that in this matter the action of the Company has been highly reprehensible, and that they must be held responsible for the want of discipline which was shown on board their ship, inasmuch as by their deliberate action they deprived the master of that due authority and control which he would have obtained by sailing under the Acts 1855 and 1863.

It would further appear that, although separate quarters were provided for single men, single women, and married people, yet, in some instances, single men and single women who were not related were berthed in close proximity to each other, without any screens or partitions between them, in the part of the ship assigned to the married people. The proof of this will be found in a memorandum by the Chief Inspector at the end of this Report, in which it is stated that a young woman named Mary Jacobs was berthed in a bunk immediately over a young man named William Deacon. Several similar cases are mentioned in the same memorandum. Such an arrangement is forbidden by the Orders-in-Council of the 3rd February, 1863, and is, moreover, contrary to the most elementary ideas of morality.

A complaint appeared in the newspapers as to the quality of the fresh water supplied at the Quarantine Station. I had it consequently analysed at the Government Laboratory, with a result that it proved to be perfectly wholesome and good. A copy of the analysis will be found in the Appendix.

Although many persons have had occasion to visit this office during the last month, no complaint has been made by any one as to the treatment which he or his friends received while under detention at the Quarantine Station.

In conclusion, I would again repeat to the Board my conviction that if the Health Officer at Albany had not committed a calamitous error of judgment in failing to remove the sick man from the ship, a great part of the consequent disease and death would have in all likelihood been averted; and I would again recommend that the Government should be urged, in concert with the other Australian Governments, to establish such a system of Federal Quarantine as shall effectually prevent any similar occurrence in future.

INTERIM REPORT, submitted by the President of the Board of Health, on the outbreak of Small-pox on the S.S. "Preussen."

ALTHOUGH from the difficulty of receiving detailed communications from the Quarantine Station it is impossible to lay before the Board a complete account of all the features of this outbreak so far as it has gone, still it has been deemed advisable to bring forward, in the shape of an interim report, some of the facts which seem to have a very practical bearing upon the relations between this and the other Colonies.

The S.S. Preussen, 4,000 tons, Captain Pohle, from Bremen, via Southampton, arrived at Albany on the 15th of December, with a case of small-pox on board. It was believed that the infection was taken at Port Said; the initial fever appeared on the 5th of December, and the rash on the 8th. Immediately on the appearance of fever the patient was isolated in a second-class cabin, with two of the crew to attend on him, so that he might be removed from contact with steerage passengers. On the 9th about 130 passengers are said to have been vaccinated by the surgeon of the ship.

On the evening of the 15th, on receipt of a telegram from the Health Officer at Albany, announcing the arrival of the vessel at that port, the President telegraphed to him inquiring further particulars and what he proposed to do. In reply, the following telegram was received:—

We propose to send ship on her way after giving her coal and water; she is anchored in our outer harbour in strict quarantine; I find she has about 600 people on board; only one case of small-pox, eight days old; passengers both for Adelaide and Melbourne; most likely she will get to Sydney; how about Federal quarantine.

The President then telegraphed the following suggestion:—

Message 16th received; if ship not started would suggest you land the patient and disinfect ship, following the principles of Federal quarantine.

To this the Health Officer at Albany replied:—

Thoroughly approve of suggestion, but no means; the other Colonies have not recognised the principles of Federal quarantine, consequently we are not prepared to act alone.

Finding that the authorities at Albany declined to remove the source of infection from the ship, the President caused the following telegram to be sent to the Central Board of Health at Adelaide:—

This Board suggests that patient from s.s. "Preussen" be landed at Adelaide, and ship thoroughly disinfected by Health authorities.

To this the following reply was received:—

Board's Solicitors advise no power to compel captain to disinfect ship.

Being desirous of leaving no stone unturned to prevent the spread of disease, the President at once communicated with agents of "Preussen," and recommended them to instruct their correspondents at Adelaide to give Health Authorities of that port full authority to deal with the disinfection of the ship. This they readily consented to do, and they prepared a telegram to that effect in this office, which was despatched without delay. In order that there should be no mistake, the President also directed the accompanying telegram to be sent to the Board of Health at Adelaide:—

Am informed agents of "Preussen" will authorize your Board to disinfect ship.

To this telegram the following reply was received:—

Doctor will board ship on arrival, order disinfection of part occupied by patient, remove patient and Adelaide passengers, and go with them into quarantine; disinfection of ship occupied by passengers over whom we have no authority untrustworthy.

The ship arrived at Adelaide on the 20th December, the patient being too ill to be landed; he died almost immediately after arrival. The body was not landed but afterwards buried at sea. The two attendants and twenty-seven Adelaide passengers were landed at Adelaide Quarantine Station, the South Australian cargo was discharged and the patient's clothes were burned.

The ship arrived at Melbourne on 22nd December, where all the crew were vaccinated. Two hundred and sixty passengers were landed at the Quarantine Station, Point Nepean, the cargo and mails were discharged, and George von Ructi, an assistant engineer, succeeded in deserting. The

The ship left Melbourne for Sydney at 4.30 p.m. on December 24, and arrived in Spring Cove at 1.40 p.m. on the 26th, there being apparently no infectious sickness on board on her arrival.

On the 27th December disease began to show itself both in Sydney and in Adelaide, one man being sent to the "Faraway" with a papular eruption, and one woman at the Quarantine Station, Adelaide, having developed small-pox.

From that date to the present no day has passed without the occurrence of several cases of small-pox at North Head Station, and we have, on the evening of the 3rd of January, fifty well-marked cases of small-pox under treatment, with twenty-seven cases in isolation, besides one patient, who died from small-pox at 4 o'clock this morning.

Although the incubation period of small-pox may sometimes be considerably prolonged, as is well known in the experience of this Board, yet it is agreed by most authorities that the most common period is about twelve days.

On examination of the facts above detailed it will be seen that from the date of the arrival of the ship at Albany to the appearance of the first cases of small-pox in this Port and in Adelaide a period of exactly 12 days elapsed, a duration which coincides with singular accuracy with the most usual incubation period of small-pox.

The vast majority of the cases which have appeared here have shown themselves after a period of considerably more than 12 days from the arrival of the ship at Albany.

It would not seem unreasonable to infer from this statement that the means taken to isolate the patient on the ship before her arrival at Albany had been on the whole fairly efficient; that prior to her arrival at that port infection had scarcely, if at all, spread to the other passengers, and that the patients who are now suffering from small-pox owe their illness for the most part to infection received after the fifteenth.

Had the authorities at Albany, immediately on the ship's arrival, removed the small-pox patient to the shore, and suitably disinfected the ship, it is reasonable to conclude that the terrible amount of suffering and danger which has since ensued might have been almost, if not altogether, averted.

Apart from any consideration of the advisability of adopting the principles of Federal Quarantine, as laid down by the Intercolonial Sanitary Conference of 1884, common humanity demands that when a ship with infectious disease on board touches at any port the authorities of such port should afford her the very obvious assistance of removing, if possible, the source of infection from her midst.

REPORT

s.s. "Preussen," anno 1886.

The Chief Medical Inspector to The President of the Board of Health.

Sir, Health Department, New South Wales, 7 February, 1887.

I have the honour to present herewith a Report upon the recent outbreak of Small-pox on board the North German Lloyd steam passenger vessel "Preussen."

I have, &c.,

J. ASHBURTON THOMPSON.

Diary of the Voyage.

THE North German Lloyd S.S. "Preussen," 4,000 tons; Pohle, master; Jens, surgeon; crew, 120, and three stewardesses; sailed from Bremerhaven 3rd November, 1886. Antwerp was reached and left November 6th. There all steerage passengers were embarked. Many of these were English who had been conveyed to Antwerp to join, although the vessel next proceeded to Southampton, where a few saloon passengers came on board, the total number being then 539. Southampton having been reached and left November 7th, Port Said was reached November 18th. The ship lay there until November 22nd. All passengers had permission to go ashore, and all, or nearly all, did so at one time or another; many went every day, and some slept there. Provisions and curiosities were freely purchased. On the last day of stay the captain was informed that there was much small-pox in the Arab quarter. Suez was passed November 23rd, and Aden was reached November 27th.* The voyage was continued on the 28th, and about this time Hans Vung, a Norwegian passenger, was placed in hospital for dysentery. Diarrhoea was very prevalent between Aden and the line, but the cases did not last more than two or three days; however, at least two other cases of dysentery occurred. On December 5th, John Pryce, aged 24, reported himself sick, and Dr. Jens, seeing some reason to suppose that he too was about to suffer dysentery, at once placed him in hospital with Vung. On December 8th the rash of small-pox was recognised in Pryce's case. On December 15th Albany was reached at 8.15 a.m. The Customs boat came alongside and received the captain's account, and a request for coals and water. The officer in charge directed the captain to stay at anchor while he returned to the shore to inform the health officer. On coming back he said that the coals and water would be put on board with due precaution, but that strict quarantine would be maintained against the ship. The health officer did not go off to the "Preussen," and no offer of vaccine or other assistance was made. As soon as the supplies named were aboard the vessel proceeded to Adelaide, reaching that port at 12.45 a.m. on the 20th. At 1 a.m. the Customs boat came alongside and made enquiries; at 4.30 a.m. Pryce died; at 6 a.m. the Customs boat instructed the captain to come farther in; and between 10 and 11 o'clock the health officer went on board, and mustered all hands on the hurricane deck for inspection.

* On leaving Aden the total number of passengers was 570; of those 412 were British subjects, 77 were Germans, and 81 belonged to some other European State. There were 544 in the steerage.

inspection. At the same time Pryce's body was removed in a boat, towed by a launch, and containing the fourth officer and the two stewards who had done hospital duty, and buried at sea. At 4 p.m. the health officer took 27 passengers for the port and the two stewards to the Quarantine station. Dr. Jens asked for vaccine, and a supply was promised, but it did not come. On December 21st the voyage was continued to Port Phillip, which was reached 9.45 p.m., December 22nd. At 10.30 a boat came alongside and put the health officer on board; he stayed all night, and during this time the lower hold was fumigated with sulphur. During the morning of the 23rd passengers' luggage was landed, and in the afternoon 230 passengers for the port were taken to the Quarantine station. No general inspection was made here. Some calf-lymph was obtained with which the crew were again revaccinated. The vessel proceeded on the 23rd, and entered Port Jackson at 1.40 p.m. December 26th, with 117 crew, 3 stewardesses, and 312 passengers.

State of the ship on arrival.

The accounts given by officers and passengers of the measures adopted to maintain cleanliness on board during the voyage differ widely. Certain matters are admitted, however, of which the most important are that steerage passengers were allowed to remain in their bunks during the daytime; that they were allowed to take their bedding on deck to sleep; that they were not made to take their bedding on deck to air it, or to assist in keeping their quarters clean; that although separate quarters were provided for single men, single women, and married people, yet in many instances single men and single women, not related or acquainted with each other, were lodged together in the married quarters, where all these three classes occupied berths without screens or partitions of any kind between them; that the space under the bottom berths in the single men's quarters forward was occupied by barrels of provisions, most of which remained there to the end of the voyage; and that only seven closets, according to Captain Pohle, or five, according to the unanimous testimony of the passengers, were allotted to the use of 544 persons in the steerage. I am satisfied, farther, that these closets were filthy throughout the voyage, except after special complaint made by bodies of passengers to the captain. But as to steps taken to insure cleanliness, it is not worth while to endeavour to settle what they were, since they failed in any case; for the Quarantine officers, who supervised the fumigation and cleansing of the "Preussen," and who have, during the past three years, performed the same duties in respect of very many steam passenger-ships of all lines running to this port, when they have been sent to Quarantine either because they were infected or because they were dirty, agree in considering this the filthiest vessel they have had to deal with. (See Appendix.)

Special measures taken after the first case was discovered.

It has already been stated that when Pryce was found to be sick on December 5, he was for some reason at once placed in the hospital. This apartment is the most forward of the deck-houses on the upper deck which, with the partitions enclosing the upper part of the engine-space, form the port alleyway. It consists of two cabins, each holding four berths, and each having its own door opening on a little alleyway, the end of which nearest the bulwarks is shut off to hold a water-closet common to both cabins, the other end being closed with a door giving on the main port-alleyway already mentioned. The forward partition of the forward cabin forms, therefore, a part of the boundary of that part of the upper deck which, roughly speaking, is round the fore-hatch; and it is pierced with a port. Pryce lay sick in this forward cabin, and under this port, which was not especially railed off, although it is true that a cow was tied up under it for a part of the time; and the deck outside was a part of the promenade space allotted to steerage passengers. Hans Vung, the Norwegian, was in this cabin, too, suffering from dysentery; and he continued to share it with Pryce until he died on December 12th. The men were not separated because the after hospital cabin was already occupied by Mrs. Hill, a passenger who was also suffering from dysentery. Her husband was at first allowed to go to and fro between the hospital and his quarters in order to wait on her; but as soon as the nature of Pryce's case declared itself he was confined to the after hospital with his wife. Two stewards were told off to wait upon these four persons. Supplies were ordered to be carried to the alleyway between the two hospital cabins and set down in it; then the doors of the cabins were to be opened, and the things taken in. These stewards did not sleep in the hospital; they were assigned a cabin on the starboard side of the main deck amidships; and in going there they must often have come in contact with passengers. The degree of isolation thus attained cannot be fully judged of until the arrangements made on the spar and hurricane decks with regard to passengers have been described. Most of the steerage passengers were placed, either on the main-deck or between decks, forward of the second saloon companion; but a number of single men were put between decks under the quarter-hatch, down which there was a ladder for them. Steerage passengers were therefore allowed to use the spar-deck both forward and in the waist (or round the quarter-hatch); and the men lodged aft had to go forward for every purpose except to sleep. For these reasons it was considered necessary to assign one alleyway as a passage of communication for this class so that the other might be kept for the second class; and the port side (where the hospital stands) was chosen, the starboard alleyway being closed by a door at its forward end. This arrangement was continued even after Pryce's case was known, thus compelling the third-class passengers to pass and repass the hospital door. But, more than this, the forward part of the hurricane deck, which properly belonged to the second-class passengers, was allotted to the steerage; and the entrance to the companion leading to it was nearly opposite the hospital door. Lastly, the ladders leading to the forward stoke-hole were reached by a door which is exactly opposite the hospital door. Even had the very strictest precautions been observed in keeping the hospital door closed and in preventing the hospital attendants from standing in the alleyway (which I have small reason to suppose was the case), to continue the arrangement described after Pryce was known to have small-pox appears to me to have been most injudicious; nor am I aware of any reason to prevent closure of the port alleyway and opening of the starboard passage for the steerage traffic described, other than the comparatively trifling inconvenience which would have been caused to the second-class passengers and the officers whose cabins are placed on that side. Upon the whole I think it will now be clear that there was no reasonable probability that the so-called isolation described would limit the spread of this disease. It is more important, however, to inquire what measures were taken in the only direction of very great consequence under the circumstances, that is, of vaccination. When the vessel left Bremerhaven there was no vaccine on board, and it was not until the prevalence of small-pox at Port Said became known that a small supply was got at a French pharmacy there. The lymph was improperly stored in tubes of at least a millimetre in diameter; but whether that was in this case of importance or not, there was not much of it, and when, on December 9, Dr. Jens set about revaccinating as many persons as he could prevail on to submit, he diluted it with glycerine to eke it out. This, of course, is a perfectly legitimate proceeding, but a very dangerous one. As he suggested, it is by no means certain that dilution had not already been practised by the vendor; but, at all events, of about 250 persons operated upon, only "four or five may have been successful." But even in taking this step a very serious omission was made in not first seeking out those among the passengers who were unvaccinated or badly vaccinated in infancy only, and, at whatever risk of reducing the amount of vaccine available for revaccinations, first vaccinating them with the pure lymph. Had this been done it cannot be doubted that some of the insertions would have been successful, and some lives therefore saved. A fresh supply of lymph was procured at Melbourne, and with that the crew were again all revaccinated, about twenty-five being successful. The arrangements during Pryce's illness having been as described, the day before Adelaide was reached Mr. and Mrs. Hill, who afterwards developed small-pox, were removed from the after hospital-cabin to a cabin on the starboard side of the main-deck. After Pryce's death his body was properly wrapped in canvass; and while all hands were mustered on the hurricane-deck for inspection it was handed out of the ash-port just forward of the hospital into a ship's boat by the stewards who had been attending on him. They went in the boat, together with the fourth officer; and were towed a good distance out to sea where the body was thrown overboard. The clothes and bedding of the deceased were burned in the furnace of one of the donkey-engines by the doctor's attendant, Steuer, who later suffered small-pox. The hospitals were then several times washed, fumigated, and painted.

Analysis

Analysis of the state as to vaccination of, and the incidence of Small-pox upon, 312 passengers landed at the Quarantine Station, Port Jackson.

NOTE.—In considering the following figures it must be always remembered that the numbers dealt with are extremely small; and that although statements of percentages are made they have no significance of general application. The influence of vaccination upon susceptibility to small-pox has been deduced from many million observations, and the results of this unparalleled experience may be stated as laws. But their application is true only of large numbers of persons. The fate of individuals or of small communities cannot be foretold by them.

Passengers Unvaccinated.

There were nineteen persons who had never been vaccinated.

* * On the present occasion I prefer to the usual classification of cases into confluent, semi-confluent, and distinct, that which is shown, in which "very slight" means an eruption of from 1 to 30 or 40 vesicles at the most; "slight," a larger number; "moderate," the discrete or distinct eruption; "severe," a semi-confluent or confluent eruption. "Fatal" has reference to small-pox alone, and is, of course, in reality, a sub-head of "severe," used for perspicuity.

Passengers alleging vaccination, but showing no scars.

There were sixteen persons of whom vaccination was alleged, but whose arms showed no scars; fourteen of them were over 20 years of age. Two were attacked, and both recovered. One, a man aged 38, suffered slightly, developing only about 100 vesicles in all. The other, a girl aged 7, was revaccinated December 28; and as the operation seemed likely to fail, it was repeated on January 2, with ultimate success. But on January 5 she fell ill; six or seven vesicles appeared, which aborted at an early stage.

Passengers who had been vaccinated and revaccinated.

There were fifty-five persons who had been vaccinated and revaccinated before embarking. They are classified in the following table:—

Done ...	Under 15 ... ..	14	... ..	2	.....	.....	.....
	Over 15 ... ..	14	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....

NOTE.—But in point of fact only those persons can be classed as successfully revaccinated, who show a scar or scars of the operation done after puberty (or, as taken here in dealing exclusively with Europeans of both sexes, after the age of 15). Of those there are among the fifty-five, fifteen only; and of the fifteen one was attacked, and that in a very slight degree, not more than twenty vesicles having appeared. Even this very small proportion of very slight attacks is much higher than the known proportions of attacks occurring among well-revaccinated persons when large numbers are dealt with; and the mortality from small-pox among this class is practically nil.

Passengers who had already had small-pox.

There were thirteen persons who had already had small-pox; eight of these were well-scarred, while five showed but few scars. It was said by Jenner—and it is too often overlooked—that vaccination can scarcely be expected to protect from small-pox in a greater degree than an attack of small-pox will protect against subsequent attacks; and that as the protection afforded by the latter is not absolute, so the protection afforded by vaccination cannot be expected to be absolute either—as, indeed, it is not. But it is not generally known that second attacks of small-pox are not so infrequent as to be very remarkable. Among the thirteen persons at present under consideration three such cases occurred. The scars of their former illness were not recognisable as scars of small-pox with certainty; I therefore append a brief statement of the account given by them, in order that the evidence upon which I accept their statement may be judged by all.

Case 1.—Margaret Taylor, aged 25, was living at Newport, Isle of Wight, when an epidemic of small-pox prevailed. Her father and three other persons in the house were attacked. She was 7 years old at the time, and had been vaccinated in infancy—two characteristic scars, sufficient in area. She fell ill, developing about twelve vesicles. Dr. Breton attended her. On the present occasion she had a slight attack.

Case 2.—Lucy Booth, aged 28. At the age of 15 years she arrived at Macclesfield, England, from America. About the same time a girl returned to Macclesfield from Birmingham ill, and later showed the rash of small-pox. Mrs. Booth went to visit her, and within a fortnight also fell ill, but developed only a few spots. Dr. Hughes attended her. On the present occasion her attack endangered her life.

Case 3.—Robert Crawford, aged 33, was vaccinated in infancy—one characteristic mark sufficient in area. He has been told by his mother that, while living in Glasgow at the age of 5 years, he was attacked during an epidemic then prevailing; his playmate died of the disease; he himself had a very copious eruption, but not a very severe attack. Dr. Young attended him. On the present occasion he had a moderate attack.

* "Sufficient" and "deficient" area mean respectively that the scarred surface is equal to half a superficial inch at least (equal, that is to say, to "four or more scars"), and to something less than half an inch. "Good" and "bad" character are equivalent to Marson's "good" and "indifferent," as defined by him; and I substitute "bad" for "indifferent" because it appears to me that the latter term does not summarise Marson's unmistakable definition, and because to some minds it would admit to the class it heads, scars which, for such as the present purpose, should be accounted "good" unreservedly.

For

For the reasons already given scarcely any deductions can be drawn from so small an array of figures; but it may be pointed out that the only deaths which occurred in any class, except the unprotected, occurred among persons who were at the age of greatest susceptibility to post-vaccinal small-pox, and who had scars of a character which showed that their infantile vaccination had been of a very imperfect kind. It may also be observed that only one child, aged 5 years, and but ill-vaccinated, was attacked out of all those protected persons under the age of 15 who were exposed to infection.

197 persons were revaccinated at Quarantine; and of these 124 were successful, or 63 per cent. nearly. The failures were therefore 37 per cent.* The lymphs used were three, viz., English (Bädecock), in tubes, all 6 weeks old and much of it more than 2 months; Sydney (Vaccine Station), in tubes, and not more than 2 months old; and Melbourne calf lymph on points, from 6 weeks old and upwards. The following analysis shows the number of insertions in each case, the number of successes, and the percentage of the latter to the former. Twenty-three are included in whom the first attempt was unsuccessful and who, being tried a second time, are counted as separate individuals.

TABLE IV.

Lymph.		Insertions.	Successful.	Percentage successful.
English	... ..	185	162	87·5
Sydney	... ..	169	69	40·8
Calf-lymph	... ..	136	36	26·4

There is a remarkable difference apparently in the activity of these three lymphs; and in the case of the calf-lymph it is necessary to note that in almost every case there was evidence of some action at the seat of inoculation, showing that the insertion had been properly made. The inferiority of the Sydney lymph is due to the indifference of the people to vaccination. It is impossible to procure the most active kind of lymph capable of producing the best results, except a large weekly attendance of children at the station gives opportunity for very judicious selection of vesicles to continue the propagation; and the attendance at the public station in Phillip-street is both small and irregular, varying at the present time from none to three or four children a-week.

Details of the cases of Small-pox.

The following tables show particulars of the cases of small-pox which occurred among the passengers and crew respectively. There were in addition, however, several cases of variolous fever without any eruption.

* "Even with the best lymph, and with every care, we shall meet with failure in a very large proportion of cases; probably from a third to a half of those operated on."—A Handbook of Vaccination. Edward Seaton. 1868, p. 276.

Remarks.

The dates of attack of persons in quarantine at Sydney are respectively earlier and later than the dates of attack noted either at Adelaide or at Melbourne, and cover the whole period of the outbreak among the "Preussen's" passengers subsequent to the first case. Any conclusion which may be arrived at after considering these dates will therefore be based upon the whole of the facts which it is necessary to consider before attempting to show what steps to prevent disease should be taken in similar cases. In constructing the following table that period of incubation is used which is by far the most common, namely, fourteen days, or, more exactly, thirteen times 24 hours. But while accepting this period for the present purpose, it must not be forgotten that shorter terms of incubation are not infrequently observed, and that longer terms are uncommon. With regard to the fourth column it is only necessary to remark that a successful vaccination done the day but one after the infection has been received will arrest its development; done a day later it will render the attack mild; and a day later than that it will have no effect at all on the disease, which will follow the usual course. At present it is only to vaccination done the day but one after infection that it is necessary to refer.

† On this date Sydney passengers were landed at Quarantine.

Although every reasonable precaution should be taken to prevent communication of small-pox by contact, as of every other infectious disease, yet vaccination alone is of chief importance as a preventive measure.

The first case of small-pox was recognised December 8, and as it is now known that the patient was the only person infected at Port Said, it is certain that if the vessel had been well supplied with vaccine and if everyone had been successfully vaccinated, there would have been no farther cases of illness. It is true that some revaccinations would have failed at the first attempt, and perhaps even some primary vaccinations; but between the 8th and the 14th failures on the first attempt would have been recognised, and the operation would have been repeated on the 12th. Those persons who failed the second time might or might not have been tried a third time successfully; but if the course indicated had been followed, the chances of infection of those whose revaccination was twice unsuccessful would have been very small indeed. But whether farther disease were thus entirely prevented or not, there can be no doubt whatever but that the unvaccinated, and those who were worst vaccinated, if they had been selected from the whole company by careful examination, might have been successfully operated upon; and had this been done thirteen deaths and many cases of very serious illness, in two instances involving loss of sight, would have been prevented among those landed at this port alone. This vessel however, which was to carry persons drawn from a dozen different countries, very likely therefore to have among them some who had come from infected neighbourhoods, sailed without having any vaccine on board. An attempt was made to supply this deficiency at Port Said; but, whatever the quality of the lymph, the quantity purchased was insufficient. How much there actually was does not matter. If small-pox breaks out on board ship the quantity of vaccine required is that which is sufficient to vaccinate every soul on board, and to leave some over besides for second attempts in unsuccessful cases; and one consequence of having an insufficiency was that the surgeon, with an entirely laudable desire to make it go as far as possible, diluted it with glycerine, and his attempts failed in about 245 cases out of 250. A very serious mistake had, however, been committed; this vaccination was carried out without discrimination upon all who offered themselves, or who could be prevailed on to submit. No endeavour was first made to search out the unvaccinated and those among the vaccinated who stood most in need of farther protection. These should have been objects of especial solicitude; because, although to successfully vaccinate them might have reduced the number of possible revaccinations (the store of lymph being insufficient), nearly all of them were certain to be attacked if they were left without protection, and a large proportion of them were certain to die. It is to be observed, however, that there was great reluctance, and especially among the English, to submit to vaccination. This was partly due to the false confidence which ignorance of danger inspires, and partly to vulgar prejudice against a foreign doctor. Many of these have paid dearly for their arrogance.

But could nothing have been done at Albany to check the outbreak? The "Prussen" arrived there on December 15 at 8.15 a.m. She then had on board a single case of small-pox at the tenth day of illness, and one man whose illness might or might not have been avoided by vaccination on that date. It is clear that there was yet time to do everything that was necessary. Had the patient been landed, had an intelligently conducted inspection been made by the health officer, and had even only those persons who were found to stand most in need of vaccination been done; had the unvaccinated been removed and ordered to perform quarantine there; and had only such fumigation and cleansing been done as is possible while all passengers remain on board, it is probable that no farther cases would have occurred, and all but certain that there would have been no serious cases. And this, I venture to say, would have been not merely the humane and neighbourly, but the scientific course to have taken; no argument against it can be advanced which can be supported without a blush. Nevertheless it is a fact that the vessel not only received no assistance of the kind referred to, but that the health officer who remained on shore sent to the captain a callous mandate to be careful not to approach nearer than he then lay. It has been asserted, indeed, that there is at Albany no quarantine staff to disinfect a ship. But this is a mere evasion. What was most urgently required was removal of the patient, some vaccine, a few barrels of sulphur, and an intelligent physician to supervise and to carry out the necessary operations; the ship could have furnished hands. Even thus much carefully done would have saved much suffering and several lives; there is no reason whatever to hesitate to accept that conclusion. Nor can it be supposed that the course followed was taken in accordance with general instructions issued by the Royal Colonial Office to the Government of the Crown Colony of Western Australia. Such instructions would doubtless be in accord with the English practice of Medical Inspection—a practice which is not accepted in Australasia generally, and which will not be accepted here until Australasia's circumstances accord much more closely with those in which England finds herself placed. But even the most bigoted Inspectionist would have done as much as I have last mentioned above. I am reluctantly driven to conclude that the Government of this Crown Colony is willing to save its people from even remote risks at no matter what cost to the afflicted voyager and to the people of the rest of Australasia.

I have shown above what might easily have been done at Albany. But a properly conducted Federal Quarantine Outport, established on the lines laid down by the Australasian Sanitary Conference of Sydney, 1884, would certainly have afforded the means of escaping all the death, suffering, pecuniary loss, and risk which were incurred on this occasion. Had it been situated at Albany—but possibly it might be placed in a more convenient position—it would have removed the patient and those persons who appeared to be in most danger from infection—that is to say, the unvaccinated who have suffered so heavily, and not one of whom had been infected at the time Albany was reached; it would have lodged on shore for thirty-six hours every person on board; it would have thoroughly cleansed and disinfected the ship; it would would have washed and boiled everything susceptible of that treatment which had been exposed to infection, and would have otherwise disinfected the rest; the medical officer in charge would have done all necessary vaccination and revaccination; and he would have supplied the ship's surgeon with as much vaccine as would serve to make good any failures which might later be discovered. At the end of three days the vessel could have resumed her journey with confidence; and, unless some fresh case should have arisen, she would have had but few days of detention to suffer at her port of destination.

I believe it is unnecessary to follow the vessel farther in her voyage along the South Coast, although it may be pointed out that successful vaccination at Adelaide would have prevented forty-nine cases and four deaths, or at Melbourne would have prevented twenty-three cases, of those which happened at this port alone; the events will be found in the diary of the voyage above. But one noteworthy point remains to be described. Vaccination in this Colony not being compulsory it is impossible to maintain a stock of vaccine of any very large amount here. Operations were commenced at the Quarantine Station, however, with a quantity which served for the vaccination of about 150 individuals. Already application had been made to all the other neighbouring Governments, among which were those of South Australia, Tasmania, and Victoria, where vaccination is compulsory, for farther supplies; but it was not until after fifteen days that a very small quantity of Melbourne calf-lymph was kindly forwarded by the Central Board of Health of Tasmania, and a little more by the Central Board of Victoria. From this it appears that the stock of vaccine in hand was not large enough to allow of the vaccination of 700 extra persons. This is a very grave circumstance, and deserving of the most serious consideration.

I have dealt with this outbreak at somewhat greater length and more minutely than I should have dealt with an event the like of which is within the knowledge, and, in most cases within the experience, of all medical men, were it not that it affords a glimpse of this terrible disease, which may well serve as a warning to the unvaccinated population of New South Wales. I take up a few more lines for the same reason, in order to point out that this was a quite ordinary and commonplace manifestation of small-pox. Its incidence was most severe upon the unvaccinated; it fell next most heavily upon the imperfectly vaccinated; and the only deaths that occurred happened among these two classes. The death-rate was cent. per cent. among unvaccinated children under 1 year of age; and had a thousand such been attacked it would still have happened that the mortality was 98 per cent. Among the older unvaccinated persons the mortality was 40 per cent.; and that again is a usual mortality among that class. Of the survivors, one has lost both eyes, and another one eye; and that is an accident commonly observed in the course of small-pox in unvaccinated persons. For the rest, who were vaccinated, and in some cases even revaccinated, although they suffered in rather large numbers, the degree of illness was in almost all slight, and most often trivial. The course of the cases of all degrees of severity was quite normal, and usual; there was none in which the least sign of malignancy was observed. In short the history of this epidemic affords a faithful picture of the usual effects of the disease called small-pox, without an exaggerated line; and it affords a true picture too (although not as favorable a one as deductions from larger numbers warrant) of the protective power of vaccination against it. The attack in a slight degree of a large number of vaccinated persons—many of whom however were but imperfectly vaccinated—alone seems unusual, and that only until the circumstances of ship-life are considered. It is then seen to approximate closely to other outbreaks on board ship. The degree of exposure to infection is so important an element in determining the spread of disease, that outbreaks of small-pox at sea, where the exposure is most prolonged and the infection most intense, may be said to be characterized in this way; and so severe was the trial in the present instance that three persons protected in the best possible manner, that is by previous attacks of the disease, now suffered a second time. Nor must it be supposed that the filthy state of this ship was the reason that the disease spread so widely. I do not intend to assert that filth has nothing to do with the spread of small-pox, but the distinction must be borne in mind between this and some other diseases. Cleanliness can save cities from cholera but it can do nothing of consequence against small-pox. It can relieve Sydney of typhoid, but it cannot keep small-pox out. And, in point of fact, in many outbreaks of this disease on Her Majesty's ships of war, where, if on any ships, cleanliness is scrupulously maintained, the proportion of attacks amongst the persons on board has been as large (and even larger) than it was on board the "Preussen." I repeat, therefore, that this account renders a true and average representation of the usual effects of small-pox; and from it the fate that will sooner or later overtake Sydney, if she remains as at present an unvaccinated city, may be accurately foreshadowed.

APPENDIX I.

Sir, Quarantine Station, North Head, 17 January, 1887.
In accordance with your request I have the honor to inform you that I commenced duty at this station on the 10th September, 1883. From that time up to the present I have been sent by you from time to time to disinfect forty-six ships.

To the Superintendent of Quarantine.
The Chief Medical Inspector, B.C., 17/1/87.—J.V.

I have, &c.,
WILLIAM NICKELS.

Sir, Quarantine Station, North Head, January, 1887.
In accordance with your request as to the state of the s.s. "Preussen," when first I boarded her in quarantine I found her in a most filthy condition in all the compartments, with the exception of the saloon. The paint-work and deck looked like as if it had not been cleaned all the voyage. In the fore compartment of the third class was stowed, under the berths, provisions, comprising salt meat and potatoes, which could not have been shifted all the voyage, as the smell was abominable. She is, without exception, the dirtiest ship that I have ever done.

To the Superintendent of Quarantine.
The Chief Medical Inspector, B.C., 17/1/87.—J.V.

I have, &c.,
W. NICKELS,
In charge of the Disinfecting Staff.

G. Travers, Esq., Consul-General for Germany, to The President of the Board of Health.

Sir,

Sydney, 22 February, 1887.

You are aware of investigations having been made through this office as to the arrangements, sanitary and otherwise, on board the German mailboat, s.s. "Preussen," now on her voyage home from Sydney.

Although proper notice had been given to the passengers, that inquiries would be made and that anyone having anything to complain of against the ship, should call at my office to get their evidence taken, only very few availed themselves of the opportunity thus given to them, and those who did turn up could show no proper cause for complaints.

Having gone through a thorough inspection of the steamer and her arrangements on the day following her release from the Quarantine, I at once proceeded to examine the officers and attendants of the ship, as well as those of the passengers, who presented themselves at my office.

As witnesses were examined—nine 'tween-deck passengers, five Germans, and four English, besides an English cabin-passenger, further the captain, first officer, the doctor, and the purser of the ship, the two stewards attending the hospital, three 'tween-deck stewards, and the steward in charge of the closets.

These investigations having now been concluded, and as so many, and as will appear from the evidence taken, so unjust complaints having found their way into the press and otherwise about the improper management of the steamer,—want of proper accommodation, insufficient precautions against the outspread of small-pox, &c.,—I think it becomes my duty towards the Commander and officers in charge of the s.s. "Preussen," to place at your disposal the whole of the evidence taken by me, comprising some ninety pages foolscap, as well as the documents accompanying the same, such as the report of the English engineer on board, about the ventilating apparatuses, two reports of the purser, as to the arrangements on the Quarantine Station, the list of medicine on board, the plan of the whole ship, and the compartments, and finally six testimonials handed over to the Captain by a number of passengers, English and German, desiring thereby to illustrate to the Board of Health and the public in general, the condition of the ship whilst on her voyage, the sanitary and other arrangements on board, and the way in which the Commander and officers discharged their various duties, and further, to communicate to you the conclusions I have arrived at, after a minute and impartial investigation into the matter.

However, I may beforehand observe, that it is much to be regretted, that the report of the Sydney Board of Health as well as the reports from Adelaide and Melbourne have not been placed at my disposal, as the contents of the same would likely have put me in a better position, as to extend the enquiry to points, possibly complained of, of which I have no knowledge whatever. It is hardly fair that the reports of the sanitary authorities in the different ports have been withheld from the authority, which in the interest of all concerned has instituted an official enquiry on the state of things on board of the steamer "Preussen," against which so many, and as I beg to maintain, so entirely unjust complaints have been made. Several English visitors to the s.s. "Preussen" have declared it to be the finest ship out, and particularly called attention to the new hydraulic arrangements for hoisting of coal and cargo, which generally very noisy, and tedious operation has thereby become perfectly noiseless. The steamer is quite recently built, being fitted out with the newest inventions as to internal outfitting, ventilation, &c., and I venture to say it can compare favourably with any of the other steamers of the companies plying between the Continent and the Australian Colonies.

1.—Passengers.

As will always be the case more or less with emigrant or other ships, carrying a great number of 'tween-deck passengers, there were amongst the passengers of the s.s. "Preussen," besides very orderly people, a set of noisy passengers belonging to that class of low people, who difficult to satisfy, whatever is done for them, are always grumbling about all and everything and are always ready to create obstructions, &c., often out of a mere mischievous desire to annoy. There seems to be a certain disposition in such men to find everything in institutions, which do not come from or belong to their own country wrong, and a belief that on foreign places, ships, or abodes, they can act and do as they please.

I refer in this respect to the evidence of the officers and stewards of the ship, as also to that of some of the 'tween-deck passengers, to show how the remains of food left after the meals were wilfully thrown on the bottom of the 'tween-decks, although there was a special receptacle for the food left, that, when ordered to leave the 'tween decks, in order of having these properly washed and cleaned, they would insist on remaining, as they would also oppose themselves against their beds being carried on deck to have them aired, so that in both of these cases main force sometimes had to be resorted to to compel those men to comply with the rules of the ship.

I may further observe that by far the greatest part of the passengers being on their first voyage, and having had no experience in travelling in ocean-going passenger ships before, had brought perfectly erroneous ideas with them, and not finding everything so nice and comfortable as they had imagined, would naturally feel disappointed, and grumbled over a state of things which they most probably would have found very satisfactory had they beforehand had some experience in travelling by ocean-going emigrant vessels.

2.—The Food.

The food served to the 'tween-deck passengers was more than sufficient in quantity; in fact they had always more than they could eat, and it was of a very good quality, the directors at home having given special orders to the purser of the s.s. "Preussen" to serve the 'tween-deckers with more than the usual rations, and to see that in the cooking due account was given as much as possible to the taste of English passengers.

3.—The Water.

As far as drinking water is concerned, the water was of the best quality obtainable in the different ports. There was always ready on deck a barrel of water, mixed with lime juice, in charge of a steward, instructed to supply anyone who asked for water. As to washing, with the exception of two weeks, in which only three times a week sweet water for washing was served out to the 'tween-deckers, sweet water was given to the passengers every day during the whole voyage, and in sufficient quantity. I am not aware whether on other emigrant ships sweet water for washing purposes is served every day to the passengers, but I must very much doubt it.

4.—Ventilation.

The s.s. "Preussen" is supplied with the newest inventions with regard to ventilation. There are on each 'tween-deck two ventilators, 18 inches wide, of Green's patent—a description given by the English engineer on board is attached—by which fresh air is injected into the compartments by way of compressed air. With the exception of the after 'tween-deck, there are besides in each of the 'tween-decks Oadley's patent ventilating ports, which allow fresh air to come into the compartments even when the port-holes, in case of bad weather, have to be kept shut. The weather throughout the voyage being on the whole very favourable, the port-holes were generally open during the day-time, and often during the night-time also. In the after-deck there are besides two large holes opening on deck, and a large wind-bag supplying fresh air.

5.—Accommodations.

There were on board, including 35 passengers taken in at Port Said and 5 at Suez, in the whole 437 adult deck passengers, besides 71 children of an age from 3–10, and 37 children up to an age of 3 years. 61 passengers, including 4 children and 4 single men, were berthed in cabins, the rest in the 'tween-decks as follows:—40 single women in 4 'tween-decks of 10 berths each, including a large empty room for their exclusive use; the rest of the passengers, numbering 320 adult, 67 children between 3–10 years, and the babies, were berthed in 4 'tween-decks, measuring:—

The fore-deck,	6,639 cubic feet, and containing	78	berths
The after-deck,	14,126	"	" 141 "
The first middle deck,	8,829	"	" 84 "
The second " "	10,594	"	" 136 "

For 320 adults and 67 children requiring half the space of the former, there were consequently 439 berths and 'tween-decks, measuring 40,188 cubic feet, at their disposal, in each of those 'tween-decks a number of berths remaining unoccupied.

Families, i.e., married people and their children, were accommodated on the middle decks, which were connected with each other by a door. As passengers are not requested to show their certificate of marriage, it may have happened that there were couples in the family deck, who having booked as such, were not duly married in reality, but that, as a rumour would have it, single men and single women having booked as such were permitted to take their berths in the quarters for the married people, I must, on the strength of the evidence given by the captain and the purser of the ship, refute as being perfectly untrue. The rumour may have arisen from the fact that two young women, one the daughter of an English family by the name of Dicken, and the other her friend, Miss Taylor, both of which had booked not as single passengers but with the said family Dicken, occupied the same place in the family 'tween-deck as the latter, that place being however perfectly separated from the next by curtains. The captain, when hearing about this, at once declared himself ready to provide special accommodation for those two ladies, which however these, as well as their family, declined, insisting upon sharing the same compartment with the family.

I may further observe that a few days after the departure of the vessel, notice was given to the purser that two young men or lads were sleeping in the family deck. The purser at once inquired into this matter, and had those lads removed to a special cabin. The persons in question were one of the age of 17-18 years, the other 9-10, both being sons of a certain Mr. Hance, and had not thought of doing anything wrong by joining their parents quartered in the said family deck. It should be stated that the arrangements as to the accommodation of 'tween-deck passengers, the room provided for them, &c., were made according to the Passenger Act, issued by the Government at Home, and under the control of the latter.

The whole ship, as well as the passengers, were examined by a Government Commission at Bremen, as well as by another at Antwerp, the Commission at the latter port consisting of the Harbour-master, the water-shout, two captains, a master carpenter, and a Government doctor. All the 'tween-deck passengers, including those taken on board at Bremen, had to undergo a medical inspection at Antwerp.

The 'tween-decks were lighted by electric-lamps till 11 o'clock, after that time, and during the night, by oil-lamps. A watch for each 'tween-deck was kept during the night. The steward in charge had to report every half-hour during the night to the officer in charge whether everything was all right; and every full hour during the night an officer had to inspect all the 'tween-decks and report the result of his inspection to the officer on duty.

The 'tween-decks were cleaned and brushed every day, in the morning and the evening, when at the same time the decks were spread over with a mixture of sand and carbolic acid. There was, besides cleaning of the decks after each meal, and also twice a week, and sometimes three times a week, weather permitting, a thorough cleaning and washing of the decks under the superintendence of one of the officers, the whole crew available for this purpose being ordered into the decks.

The passengers, as far as they were not sick, were then ordered on deck, and had to remain there until the captain, accompanied by an officer, had made an inspection of the decks.

The decks were first thoroughly aired, the engineer in charge of the ventilating apparatus first inspecting the respective compartments to see whether all bedsteads were uncovered from the curtains, when a full supply of fresh air was injected by the ventilators by the means of compressed air power, and the decks then properly and thoroughly washed. The beds had to be brought on deck to be aired.

However, it appears from the evidence of the stewards that some of the passengers objected to this being done, as they were afraid of their beds being replaced by others, and they at the same time did not care to carry their beds on deck themselves.

The 'tween decks were visited twice a day by the doctor and once a day by the captain.

6.—Deck Accommodation.

At the commencement of the voyage the passengers had the free use of the deck on the fore-castle, and of the deck lying between the fore-castle and the second class cabin, besides the gangway leading from the fore to the aft part of the ship. About a week after having left Antwerp half of the promenade deck, by rights appertaining to the second class passengers, was given to the 'tween-deckers. The captain informed them at the same time that he was ready to place the whole promenade deck at their disposal if they brought him the written consent of the second class passengers to this arrangement, a proposal which, however, was refused by the 'tween-deckers, on the ground that this had to be done by order of the captain without any interference of the 'tween-deck passengers.

The captain thereupon disallowed the use of the whole deck, but whenever walking, jumping, or other athletic sports or matches were going on, the use of all the decks was allowed to the 'tween-deck passengers.

There is in my opinion no doubt whatever that the passengers had more room on deck for their use than they had any right to claim, and than they would have had on any other passenger ship.

7.—Closets.

There were seven closets on board for the use of the 'tween-deck passengers, five for the men and two for the women; and one bathroom for each sex. The closets were all on deck, this place being considered the best on account of the fresh air. According to the Government Regulations in Germany at least one closet is to be provided for each hundred passengers, but on board the s.s. "Preussen," as is also the case on all other German passenger ships, the number of closets for the use of the 'tween-deck passengers exceeded the number provided for by those regulations. From

From the evidence taken by the stewards in charge of the closets it appears that there was never any crowd, rushing, or delay at the closets, which evidence is corroborated by some of the passengers. I especially refer to that of Mr. Cameron, who particularly stated that he did not think the number of closets being insufficient, and that at any rate he did not feel any inconvenience on that account. There was a special steward day and night in charge of the cleaning of the closets. He, as also the officers, complained that the women used to throw all sorts of clothing and other wearing apparel into the closets, thereby often putting these out of proper working order.

If the arrangements with regard to closets had in any way been defective, I venture to believe that the several cases of diarrhoea which occurred during the first part of the voyage would soon have developed into an epidemic, which, however, has not been the case.

I have further inquired about the complaint found in the Press stating that the closets for the women did not secure proper privacy. From the inspection taken I find that these closets are properly closed on all sides, that the women had not to pass the closets of the men, these being situated more behind towards the fore part of the ship, and that the whole complaint is limited to the fact that the women, in going to the closets, had to pass the part of the ship where other passengers were usually standing, a complaint hardly worth while mentioning.

All the closets had iron walls; so also those for the women. These two latter had a common entrance, but in the interior they were closed each by a separate door, and divided by a partition which perhaps might have been a little higher.

8.—Sanitary Arrangements.

The doctor on board, Mr. Jens, is a duly qualified medical practitioner, having passed his examination as M.D., as well as the examination of the Government (State examination). Before entering the service of the North German Lloyd he had been first assistant at the Municipal Hospital of Hanover for one year and a half.

The hospital on board is situated on deck, the last compartments on the left gangway, comprising two separate rooms, being reserved for the same.

The walls of the hospital are of iron. The two compartments of the hospital are separated by a small corridor, at the end of which a door is leading to a closet. The entrance to the two hospital compartments is from this corridor. The compartments, with the exception of the one on the right-hand side, have only port-holes, the compartment on the right-hand side having besides a small window opening to the foredeck. The latter was, according to the evidence, whenever it was opened, always covered by a red curtain. Close in front of this window, or rather under it, is fixed an apparatus to the floor for coiling up the waterhoses, so that it is perfectly impossible for any passenger to sit under this window. There are no windows or other apertures from the hospital on to the gangway.

There were besides two second-class cabins on the lower deck destined for passengers suffering from ordinary, not infectious, diseases.

The hospital compartment on the left-hand side was early in the beginning of the voyage occupied by a Mr. and Mrs. Hill, suffering from an acute form of dysentery. This disease being considered contagious, these patients were berthed in the left-hand side compartment of the hospital, which has only one opening, namely, a porthole. In the room opposite was lying a coal-trimmer, suffering from a wound in the foot.

On the 5th of January, on the way from Aden to Adelaide, an English passenger having booked in Antwerp, Mr. Price, reported himself to the doctor suffering from fever and diarrhoea with loss of blood, symptoms which led the doctor to the conclusion that the patient was likewise suffering from dysentery. The patient was brought into the compartment on the right in the hospital. The diarrhoea was easily stopped, but on the third day—on the 8th—symptoms developed which gave rise to a fear that the patient was suffering from small-pox. The doctor having at once reported the case to the captain, a deliberation as to the proper steps to be taken to prevent an outbreak of this disease took place between the captain and the doctor, when it was decided that the patient should be kept perfectly isolated in the compartment of the hospital where he was now actually lying; that two stewards should be specially appointed to attend on the small-pox patient, and that strict orders should be given to these two stewards to keep aloof from the 'tween-deck passengers; that a special cabin be reserved for them, where they would have to remain day and night when not on duty, and also to take their meals there; another steward being appointed to serve them their meals. It was further decided that the whole crew, including those hospital attendants, should at once be vaccinated, and proper notice given to all passengers to have themselves vaccinated by the doctor. The coal-trimmer was to be removed to a special cabin in the lower deck. Among other questions the captain and doctor also considered whether, in the interests of the passengers, and for the purpose of preventing the spread of the disease, it might perhaps be advisable to place the sick patient, together with an attendant, in one of the boats in the davits. But taking in consideration the greatest number of passengers using the decks for their daily walks, and the wind being variable, and therefore liable to convey the emanations from the patient to the passengers on deck, and considering, further, that the ship was approaching the Australian coast, and being already in a region where rough weather was to be expected at any moment, and as this would endanger the safety of the persons within the boat hanging in the davits, the idea of placing the patient in one of the boats had to be abandoned.

It was further considered whether it would be advisable to have the married couple occupying the opposite compartment in the hospital removed to a special cabin in the lower deck. After some deliberation this idea had also to be abandoned on the ground that dysentery being also contagious it would not be advisable to create two different foci of infection instead of only one.

The crew and stewards were at once vaccinated. Of the passengers only about 137 allowed vaccination to be undertaken; the remainder refusing to undergo that operation, partly on account of a strong disbelief in the results of vaccination, and partly pretending that they would undergo the operation if undertaken by an English doctor, but not by a German doctor.

The captain being not vested with any power to compel the passengers to undergo the operation, this was only performed on those of them who voluntarily offered themselves for vaccination.

The vaccine used had been supplied to the ship by the French Pharmacy at Port Said. The whole supply of vaccine to be had, consisting of three tubes, was taken.

I may here observe that among the medicines supplied to the ship by the Company, at Bremen, a list of which is enclosed, there was no vaccine. If this should be considered a fault on the part of the Company, I may observe that the same omission occurred on the Orient steamer "Garonne," with the difference that whilst on board the s.s. "Preussen" the vaccine was supplied to the ship long before the first case of small-pox was discovered; the s.s. "Garonne" had no vaccine at all on board when the small-pox broke out, and only succeeded in procuring it at Capetown, more than a fortnight later, and after the patient had died.

In order successfully to prevent similar occurrences taking place, it is of the greatest importance that a law should be passed for the Colonies forbidding 'tween-deck passengers, who are not in a position to prove that they have been properly vaccinated within the last year, to be landed in the Colonies. If such a law was passed, as it has been done in the United States, the Board of Directors of the various Shipping Companies would take good care to supply their ships with good lymph, and all passengers would have to become vaccinated directly after leaving the home port.

From the evidence given by the two hospital attendants, proper care was taken to have their clothes daily saturated with a solution of carbolic acid, the same being used also for washing their hands and faces, the attendants besides never touching the patient with their naked hands, these being always protected by gloves. Besides the hospital compartments were every day properly disinfected.

For the sake of economy the lymph used for vaccination was by the doctor diluted with five times its weight of glycerine. In order to show that this process does in no way weaken or lessen the effect of the lymph on the person to be vaccinated, I refer to Reynolds's system of medicine, where it is stated:—"If the lymph has been preserved by drying, as on points, it will be necessary that it should be revived or brought back to its liquid state in order that it may be taken up by the system."

I further quote Broadbent, who, in his practice of medicine, expresses himself on the preservation of lymph in tubes in the following words:—"If from any cause great economy has to be practised in using the lymph, it may be diluted with no more than ten times its weight of glycerine or water."

The same proceeding is carried out in Germany, and the result is very satisfactory in infants, in whom vaccination generally seems to take better than in adults. It is certainly far better to take the lymph directly from a child; but when the necessity arises to vaccinate a great number of individuals with a small quantity of lymph, it is not only justifiable but the only proper course, to add a drop of glycerine or water. Neither of them has an immediately deteriorating effect on it, if the lymph is otherwise good, but it increases the relative quantity of lymph; besides, this method allows a greater number of individuals to avail themselves of the benefit of vaccination.

The patient grew worse, and, as a fresh supply of coal and water became desirable, the captain made for King George's Sound, arriving there on the 15th December, remaining at a long distance from the port entrance.

The

The harbour-master of the port having come alongside, the case of small-pox was reported to him, and demands made for coal and water.

The said official having given strict orders for the ship to remain at her anchorage, informed the captain that he would report the case to the proper authorities, and inform him of their decision. When he afterwards returned he informed the captain that coals and water should be supplied, but nothing more could be done, and the ship could on no account proceed nearer to the port.

It being rough weather at the time, the coals and water only arrived on the following day, no official being in attendance to communicate with the ship. The s.s. "Preussen," after having taken in coals and water, made for Adelaide, at which port she arrived about midnight on the 19th December. Shortly afterwards the ship was boarded by the Health Officer, who, after having received a verbal report from the ship's doctor, informed the latter that the small-pox patient, in case he should not die in the meantime, had to be moved on shore on the following morning.

The patient, however, died during the same night at about half-past 3 or 4 o'clock.

The captain being informed of the death, at once ordered a proper air-proof coffin to be made, being then under the belief that the body would have to be buried on shore. Shortly after 6 o'clock the next morning a steamer with a Quarantine Officer on board came alongside to bring the patient on shore. On being informed that the patient had died, he informed the doctor that the body had to be buried in the sea, and that the launch would soon return to take the boat with the corpse in tow.

The captain at once gave orders that the body should be sewn in a thick canvas by the attendants of the hospital. This being done, the two linen sheets and a woollen blanket were wrapped round the body before being sewn in canvas, and the body being loaded with iron chains was, on arrival of the tug-boat, lowered into the boat through the coal-shaft, which is only 10 paces distant from the hospital in the same gangway, the latter having been shut up from all communication.

At about 11 o'clock the steamer came back and towed the boat about 15 miles distant out in the open sea, and the body was there sunk into the sea. The two hospital attendants and the 4th Officer, being in charge of the boat, had, immediately after their return, to undress and to clean and bath themselves, the clothes of the two attendants being at once burned, those of the 4th Officer being laid in water at once to be properly washed and cleaned.

The passengers for Adelaide were then removed on shore; first the two hospital attendants in one boat, the two married people suffering from dysentery in the next boat, the passengers and their luggage following in two other boats; this order of proceeding having been arranged with the purpose of avoiding the attendants and the sick people to mix with the passengers, as this most likely would have been the case had the latter been despatched on shore first.

It is very much to be regretted that the steamer which had to tow the dead body into the open sea did not arrive alongside the s.s. "Preussen" until 11 o'clock, and that in consequence hereof the corpse had to be kept on board five hours longer than was absolutely necessary. The circumstance of the Orient steamer "Austral" arriving in port on the same morning, and the small steamer in question having first to convey the Health Officer on board the said vessel, may account for such delay; the question, however, remains, whether another steam conveyance might not have been placed at the disposal of the officer for boarding the s.s. "Austral."

The doctor of the s.s. "Preussen" had sent a request to the health authorities to be supplied with fresh lymph, a request which, although favourably received, had not been responded to when the s.s. "Preussen" had to leave. The lymph was only supplied to the steamer by the authorities in Melbourne, and then a new vaccination was gone through during the voyage from Melbourne to Sydney.

On arriving in Sydney the s.s. "Preussen" went direct to the Quarantine Station, where all the passengers were landed, and a thorough washing and cleaning and fumigating of the ship's interior, especially the 'tween decks and the hospital, was ordered and at once carried out.

The washing was done with a solution of carbolic acid, hot water, and soap, the fumigating with sulphuric acid, after which all the 'tween decks, the hospital, closets, and washhouses, as well as the cabins used by sick people, were painted afresh. This same process of washing and cleaning was repeated on the day before the ship left the Quarantine Station.

As will be seen from the foregoing summary of the evidence taken before me, all and everything that could reasonably be expected was done on board the s.s. "Preussen" to satisfy the passengers and to secure their welfare, as is also acknowledged by the testimonials handed over to the captain.

They

They were conveyed in a perfectly new built ship, fitted out with the newest inventions for proper ventilation of the compartments, the latter were more than sufficiently large, properly cleaned and under proper control of the captain and officers; they had more deck accommodation than is generally allowed on other ships; they had more than a sufficient supply of proper food, and a supply of water of good quality was carefully attended to.

The Company of the North German Lloyd enjoy, as I may here observe, a high reputation won during their shipping of emigrants to America for more than thirty years.

The Directors, as well as the commanders and officers of this line, have consequently acquired the necessary practice in the conveyance of 'tween-deck passengers.

Captain Pohle, of the s.s. "Preussien," has held the position of a captain in the company's steamers, conveying emigrants from Bremen to the United States for the last thirteen years, the 1st officer his position for more than six years, and the purser over four years.

As, however, for the sanitary arrangements the fact remains that a large number of passengers and part of the crew were affected by the small-pox, some of them with fatal result, it ought not to be lost out of sight:—

1. That, owing to the exceedingly infectious and contagious nature of small-pox, all attempts to stamp out the disease have proved to be unsuccessful; however, it has been restricted within limits, and to this end isolation on quarantine stations, provided with all necessaries of life, has proved to be very efficient. Houses may be successfully isolated if they are detached, but this measure becomes difficult to carry out in thickly populated city centres, and complete isolation is almost impossible on board a passenger ship, where every space has been set apart for a certain purpose, and where a large number of people are compelled to live in close contact with each other.

Isolation may be successful for a short duration of time, but it is almost impossible to prevent an outspread if the patient suffering from the disease has to be kept on board for a longer period.

"There is," as I quote from the opinion given to me from Dr. Westrum, of the Sydney Hospital, "no spontaneous origin of variola, it is always communicated either indirectly or directly; this may be done by the emanations from the patient, contaminated clothing and furniture, or by direct contact with the small-pox patient, or through inoculation with the contents of the pustules. According to Marson, the disease is communicable from the moment when the invasion begins; it may be given by the breath of a patient before eruption appears. He quotes the case of a lady who infected her sister without developing small-pox herself properly; that it is transmissible during the eruptive stage through the medium of a third person, wearing apparel and other objects, is beyond doubt. Von Ziemesser reports an outbreak in Pommerania, the origin of which was traced to a letter written by a sailor, who was then convalescent from small-pox. Professor Smith remarks with regard to the diffusion of the morbid poison: 'It has been conclusively proved that an atmosphere of small-pox poison develops around the sick, or that the air may become the carrier of the contagion, so that the latter can spread by the atmospheric currents within small ranges.'"

2. Had the health authorities at Albany, as it was certainly their duty to do, allowed the passenger suffering from small-pox to be landed, there is every probability not only that the passenger might have been saved—the state of his health according to the doctor being then such as to give hope of recovery—but the outbreak among the other passengers on board might have been prevented. According to the medical opinion referred to above, the stage of incubation, which embraces the time from the introduction of the morbid poison into the system, until the development of the first acute symptoms, lasts twelve days, and causes no disturbance of health; allowing two days for the stage of invasion, it follows that the eruption does not make its appearance before the 14th day.

From this it follows that all the passengers, who were afterwards seized by the small-pox, had been infected during the time following the departure from Albany.

3. I may further add that, had all the passengers been landed in Adelaide, to be kept there in quarantine, as was suggested by the Board of Health in Sydney, if I am not mistaken, and thus opportunity been given to the captain to have the ship thoroughly washed and cleaned and painted, there is no doubt whatever that Melbourne, as well as Sydney, would have been spared the outbreak of the disease.

I may further add that it is also to be regretted that the dead body could not have been buried earlier, that the demand for lymph, addressed by the doctor of the s.s. "Preussen" to the Health authorities in Adelaide, had not been responded to.

I am the first to sympathize with the hardships and sufferings of the passengers in consequence of the outbreak of the small-pox on board the s.s. "Preussen"; but I think it is only fair that some consideration should also be paid to the very heavy losses, direct and indirect, which have been caused to the Steamship Company by the propagation of the disease, which, as I have shown, neither the directors nor the ship's officers can be held responsible for in any way whatever. At any rate, I believe it to be very unjust to throw the whole of the blame or responsibility on the shoulders of the commander and officers, when it has been shown by the evidence taken, that they have done all in their power—as much as at all possible, to prevent the evil consequences of the disease, and that the principal blame must be laid, in the first instance, at the door of the health authorities at Albany.

There seems to have existed a certain degree of animosity against the German line of mail steamers in general, and against the s.s. "Preussen" and those in charge of her in particular, which animosity appears to me to be so much the more strange and quite unaccounted for, when it is considered that by the German line increased facilities as to the exchange of commodities of the two countries connected by the said line of steamers, and likely a very great impetus to Colonial trade is afforded, without the Colonies having anything to contribute, while the German Government has granted a considerable subsidy to the maintenance of this line of steamers.

I am sorry to have to state that the doctor in charge of the Quarantine Station, according to the evidence before me, has not been perfectly free from this prejudice against the steamer "Preussen," and has not on all occasions shown that impartiality which ought to have been displayed by a doctor in his position. This is so much the more to be regretted, as the Board of Health, as I learned from your note of the 4th instant, has declined to take an inspection of the steamer, being satisfied with the report of the inspector in charge, the said Dr. Ashburton Thompson.

The latter is reported to have told the purser that the steamer "Preussen," on her arrival in Sydney, had been found by him in such a dirty condition, that he would for this reason alone have recommended to the Board of Health to have her quarantined. He advised the purser at the same time to take inspection of English passenger ships, in order to see how clean and proper they were kept.

On making inquiries with regard hereto, I learnt from the captain and officers of the s.s. "Preussen," that in consequence of the dust of the Australian coals and the fact of the Christmas holidays intervening, the deck was on the arrival in Sydney not so clean as it otherwise would have been; and also, that the gray painting of the steamer, getting apparently more easily affected by the wear and tear during the voyage than the black colour, did not show a clean aspect, but that apart herefrom the ship, and particularly the interior, did not show any worse appearance than other passenger ships under similar circumstances would have done.

According to the statement of the purser and the evidence of Mr. Cameron, the doctor's reply to complaints made by passengers used to be, "Why did you take passage by a German and not an English steamer? You can hardly expect anything better in the former."

He seems to have been influenced by a certain Mr. Armstrong, a passenger by the s.s. "Preussen," who was afterwards taken in employ by the Quarantine Station in Sydney, and who, being irritated by the refusal of some unreasonable demands he made to the purser during the voyage, did all he could to discredit the ship and the management on board.

I may mention here that there were also complaints before me about the treatment of patients in the enclosure-grounds, under the control of Dr. Thompson, and the unclean state in which the patients' rooms were kept there.

They were made and substantiated by the purser and Mr. Cameron. However, I have no intention of enlarging on those and other complaints against the Quarantine arrangements. I may in this regard also refer to a complaint contained in the Sydney Morning Herald of the 14th instant, about the water, knowing, as I do, the difficulties the Quarantine authorities had to contend with, owing to the great number of persons in Quarantine and the insufficient staff the Board had at their disposal. If I mention it at all, it is to show that under the best management, and with the best efforts to do all that is wanted, complaints will always occur; but I think it would only have been fair had the same consideration been brought to bear, also on the complaints made against the steamer here in question.

I am not aware if the same outcry against mismanagement on board was raised, when in 1882 the small-pox broke out on the Orient steamer "Garonne;" but for the purpose of comparison, I may here state the particulars of case, as supplied by a gentleman, who was then officer in that ship:—"Eleven days after leaving St. Vincent (Cape Verde) a male patient developed small-pox. Patient put in the steward's room, in the 'tween-decks, the so-called 'glory held.' Attending steward and doctor not isolated. Food handed him by another steward through a door or window. Thinking his luggage might have have been infected it was burned. A fortnight later patient died at Capetown, when the ship dropped anchor. Nobody vaccinated; no lymph on board. Body buried two hours later 10 miles out at sea Carpenter and sail-maker, who sewed body up, not isolated. Return to Capetown; received lymph; sent 60 miles north in Quarantine; vaccination made optional. Ship fumigated. One fireman developed small-pox between Capetown and Adelaide. Placed in a tent on fore-castle. On arrival in Sydney about fifteen cases broke out, and the steamer was quarantined and fumigated. No passengers carried on the home trip. Small-pox broke out again; one engineer developing it and recovering from it in the glory-hold. Steamer fumigated at Gravesend and patient (who then was convalescent) landed." I am not in a position to state the number of passengers this steamer carried, and am, consequently, unable to give the percentage of persons on board attacked by the disease.

From the facts stated above and the evidence at hand, I have arrived at the conclusion that, under existing circumstances, no blame is to be attached to the captain and officers of the s.s. "Preussen," neither as regards the treatment, accommodation, and the well-being in general of the passengers, nor the sanitary arrangements on board and the necessary precautions to be observed to prevent the propagation of the small-pox disease.

In both respects they did all that could be expected and that was in their power to satisfy all reasonable demands.

In concluding this report, I have to thank you for the courteous way in which you have responded to the requests I have had to make to you in this matter, and I am likewise much obliged to you for the trouble you have been taking of inspecting the steamer and the arrangements on board of her yourself.

I have the honor to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

G. TRAVERS,

Consul-General.

---

The D. & C. Green Ventilating Company.

Sydney, 8 February, 1887.

THE principle of this system of ventilation, as supplied to the N.D.L. S.S. "Preussen," is the injection of fresh air into the various parts of the ship by compression.

The ventilating engine is one of the ordinary compound principle, with steam cylinders of 22-inch and 10-inch diameter, with two air compressors of 26½ inch diameter attached, which, in the usual working of this ship at the various times, are kept running at a mean speed of 85 revolutions per minute.

The air is in the first place drawn by the pistons of the compressors through the main suction or inlet pipe of 12-inch diameter, with a movable head of the common ventilator pattern fixed and situated on the promenade deck, passing through a number of small valves, termed the suction valves, being compressed, and allowed by other valves, termed delivery valves, to escape into three tanks or receivers—one 10 ft. × 4 ft. × 1 ft. 6 in., one 6 ft. × 4 ft. × 1 ft. 6 in., one 4 ft. × 3 ft. 6 in. × 1 ft. 6 in.—at a regular pressure of 2½ lb. per square inch; and it is from these tanks or receivers that the connections are taken by means of wrought-iron galvanized pipes, termed pressure-pipes, ranging in sizes from 6 inches to 1 inch internal diameter, which pipes, running both fore and aft of the engine-room, lead to the various heads of ventilators to all parts of the ship, into which they are fixed with a patent spring nozzle attached. There are together forty-five of these nozzles; the air passing through these in a regular current downwards at the even pressure maintained in the tanks causes, in addition to itself, a greater inrush of air through the ventilators from the deck, but for cabins, lavatories, bath-rooms, &c., the air is carried by other pipes of various sizes, termed carrying pipes, with outlets into the various places named, but in positions where foul or hot air are likely to accumulate, it is carried off by other pipes from 12 in. to 4 in. diameter, by the patent nozzle being reversed, and the air blowing upwards, carried off from such places through the special heads fixed on the ventilators for that purpose; these are termed uptakes.

The air thus delivered into the various required parts of the ship though (not cooler) it being delivered into them at very nearly the same temperature as the average of the air on deck in the shade, causes a much livelier circulation than would otherwise be, though not in a sufficiency to be felt or made unpleasant by causing a draught, except when in a direct line of the outlet, but, at the same time, keeping the places fresh and free from smell, and at all times when such have accumulated after the engine having been stopped for a few hours, which was in most cases during the night, was found to be most effectual in clearing off, especially in the various rooms, cabins, and quarters occupied by steerage passengers, or any very close and confined places.

The number of nozzles fixed in ventilators to quarters occupied by steerage passengers are, forward steerage, occupied by single men, two running through crew's accommodation; in main steerage, occupied by married people and children, three, two of which run through the rooms occupied by single women. In the after-steerage, occupied by single men, two, one of which was fixed for the ventilation of after-hold, the nozzles was reversed, and opening used as an uptake, also that on account of the position of the main inlet in this place being somewhat defective, owing to the close proximity of the after-hatchway, a canvas shoot was utilized to carry the air to after-end, where it could be plainly felt.

The usual times for the working the ventilation ranged between the hours of 4 to 12 a.m., and 6 to 12 p.m., with exceptions during the warmest of weather, when it was kept running day and night, the longest running being that of four days.

Engineer in charge of ventilating engine.

BEMERKUNGEN.

- I. Die in Rubrik I angeführten zahlen bilden das nicht zu überschreitende Maximum der auf den Dampfschiffen beim Antritt der Reise zu haltenden Vorräthe. In Ausnahmefällen werden die Herren Aerzte um Motivirung der Mehrrequisition ersucht.
- II. Die Rubrik II soll den jeweiligen Bestand der Vorräthe bei Schluss der Reise enthalten.
- III. Beim Ausfüllen der Rubrik III bleibt es dem Gutdünken der Herren Aerzte überlassen, von welchem der verzeichneten Gegenstände sie requiriren, sowie ob sie das Maximalquantum erschöpfen wollen oder nicht. Die mit fetter Schrift gedruckten Medicamente jedoch müssen in den in Rubrik I angegebenen Quantitäten vorrathig sein.

WILL

Will the Chief Medical Inspector kindly furnish me with his remarks upon certain passages in the Consul-General's letter which seem to reflect upon his action.—H.N.M., B.C., 25/2/1887. The Chief Medical Inspector.

S.S. "Preussen,"—Single persons berthed in the married compartment.

MARY JACOBS, æt. 20, single, Margaret Taylor, æt. 25, married, both travelling alone, and Julia Deacon, æt. 19, single, travelling with her mother and brother, are female passengers, who each made it a ground of complaint to me that they had been compelled to berth in married quarters in which single men were also berthed.

Frederick Lowther, æt. 26, and William Deacon, æt. 22, single men, told me that they were berthed in the married quarters referred to.

Mary Jacobs stated that her berth was immediately over William Deacon's, and in this case, at all events, there could have been no such separation as decency requires.

Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. King, Mrs. Larkin, and her two unmarried daughters of over twenty years of age, stated that when they found that berths were assigned them in these married quarters they declined to occupy them, and for the first night slept on the floor. Berths were then assigned to them in a second-class cabin.

These are cases which occurred among the passengers landed in Sydney. Whether similar complaints were made at the other ports I am not aware.—J.A.T., B.C., 26/2/87. The President.

The Consul-General for Germany is mistaken in ascribing to me feelings of dislike for his compatriots. It is true that when English passengers complained to me of the cooking I asked why, if they did not like German customs, they travelled in a German ship; true, also, that when they complained to me of the general management during the voyage, I told them that when they allowed themselves to be carried from their own country to Belgium, in order to join a ship belonging to Germany, although that ship would within twenty-four hours of their embarking in her touch at an English port, they voluntarily withdrew themselves from the protection afforded by the English law; true, lastly, that I told both Captain Pohle and Purser Muth that their ship came in so filthy that it would have been proper to send her to Quarantine for cleansing before allowing her to berth at a quay, whether there had been actual disease on board or not. But these are mere commonplaces. Similar answers would have to be given to Germans travelling by English ships if they found occasion to make similar complaints; and English ships entering this port have been ordered to Quarantine for cleansing only.—J.A.T. The President of the Board of Health, B.C., 26/2/87.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

INSPECTOR-GENERAL OF THE INSANE.

(REPORT FOR 1886.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 42 Vic. No. 7, sec. 73.

The Inspector-General of the Insane to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Lunacy Department, Inspector-General's Office,

Callan Park, Balmain, 1 February, 1887.

I do myself the honour to forward, for your information, in accordance with the 73rd section of the Lunacy Act of 1878, a Report on the Hospitals and other Institutions for the Insane, for the year 1886.

I have, &amp;c.

F. NORTON MANNING,
Inspector-General.

On December 31st, 1886, the number of registered insane persons in the Colony was 2,717, and the following return shows their distribution:—

	Number on Register.			Number on Leave.
	Male	Female.	Total	Male.	Female.	Total.
Hospital for the Insane, Gladesville.....	472	271	743	11	17	28
Do Parramatta (Free).....	609	347	956	3	4	7
Do do (Criminal).....	48	8	56	..	..	..
Do Callan Park .....	377	252	629	5	8	13
Do Newcastle.....	125	117	242	1	..	1
Licensed House for the Insane, Cook's River .....	13	78	91	1	..	1
	1,644	1,073	2,717	21	29	50

The number on the register at the close of 1885 was 2,643, so that the increase for the year, after calculating all the discharges, deaths, &c., was 74. This is the smallest increase in any year since 1876, but it must be borne in mind that the increase for the years 1884 and 1885 was exceptionally large, and the increase for the quinquennial period ending 31st December, 1886, was 499, or nearly 100 per annum.

The number absent from the Institution on leave at the close of the year was 50, being 1 less than at the same date last year.

On examining the numbers at the different Institutions it appears that there has been a decrease of 34 at Gladesville, of 7 at Parramatta (Free), of 59 at Cook's River. An increase of 171 at Callan Park, 2 at Newcastle, and 1 at Parramatta (Criminal). The hospital at Callan Park has received the whole increase for the year, besides relieving the overcrowded wards at Gladesville and Parramatta, and in addition a number of the Government patients formerly at Cook's River have been removed thither.

The estimated population of the Colony at the close of the year was 1,030,762, so that the proportion of insane to population at that date was 1 in 379, or 2·63 per thousand, a proportion which is smaller than at the close of any year since 1870, and compares favorably with the proportion in England, which was 1 in 348, or 2·87 per thousand, at the close of 1885.

The following tables show the number of admissions, discharges, and deaths, the proportion of recoveries, the rate of mortality, the causes of insanity in those admitted, those who recovered, and those who died, the causes of death, the length of residence in those who recovered and those who died, as well as the ages, condition as to marriage, religious profession, native countries, and previous occupations of those admitted, and of all under care, and the form of mental disorder in those admitted, those who recovered, and those who died.

Admissions.

The number of patients admitted to all the Institutions during the year was 567 (363 males and 204 females), and was exactly the same as the number admitted during 1885. Of the total number 541 were admitted for the first time, and 26 had at some prior period been under care. The number of readmissions is unusually small.

I have found it necessary to reject four of the medical certificates received with patients. One of these was from an unregistered medical practitioner, and the remainder were so manifestly and incurably bad and defective that no amendment would have sufficed. Twelve certificates have been amended in important particulars, and the amendments were approved by the Colonial Secretary under the 13th section of the Lunacy Act. The certificates requiring amendment on technical points have involved a considerable amount of correspondence with the medical practitioners signing them. The large majority of the certificates have been sufficient and good, but, as in former years, I have not failed to notice that those given by medical officers holding official positions, and accepted by magistrates as sufficient, are as a rule much less satisfactory and full than those given by private practitioners. They comply with the requirements of the law, but they do so in the baldest and most meagre manner possible, and furnish little or no information likely to be in any degree useful to the medical officers of Hospitals for the Insane to whose care the patients are sent. The certificates received with patients under section 8 of the Lunacy Act have with rare exceptions been carefully prepared, and contained full and exact information.

In no case during the year was there reason to doubt but that mental symptoms sufficient to justify confinement and medical treatment existed at the time certificates were signed, but in one case, admitted to the Hospital for the Insane, Parramatta, there was reason to think that a grave error in judgment had been committed, and that the delirium of typhoid fever in a markedly neurotic subject had been mistaken for acute mania, and a patient sent to hospital who should have been otherwise cared for. This case formed the subject of a somewhat lengthy correspondence, and was specially reported to you.

Discharges.

The number of patients discharged recovered was 273 (174 males and 99 females), and was the highest number yet discharged in any one year. It gives a percentage of 48.14 on the admissions and readmissions, which is higher than the percentage during the past ten years. This percentage varied considerably at the different Institutions, being 76.82 at Gladesville, 57.74 at Parramatta (free), 37.06 at Callan Park, 27.27 at Parramatta (criminal), and 21.05 at Cook's River. At Newcastle there were no recoveries.

The

The number discharged relieved was 26, a percentage of 4.58 per cent. on the admissions and readmissions.

In addition to the number discharged from the Hospitals and Licensed House, 15 were discharged from the Reception House after certificates had been signed, and 221 whilst under remand for care and treatment with symptoms of insanity.

Transfers.

Under the provisions of the 80th section of the Lunacy Act, 101 patients have been transferred from one Institution to another either for departmental reasons, such as to relieve overcrowding or to allow of better classification, or to afford the patients a change of air, scene, and surroundings, with a view to improvement in mental or bodily health. Such patients as have been removed for the latter reason have as a rule greatly benefited by the change, and in some instances it has been the commencement of complete recovery. Under the provisions of the Lunacy Act relating to the criminal insane, 14 patients have been transferred on completion of sentence or other change of status.

The following return shows the number of patients transferred from one Institution to another during the year 1886:—

Escapes.

The number of patients who escaped from the Institutions was smaller than during the preceding year; but in seven cases they were not retaken within the statutory period. In almost all the cases the patients were employed with working parties, or, being convalescent and harmless, were allowed considerable liberty, without immediate surveillance. I am unaware of any harm done to themselves or others by escaped patients during this or preceding years.

Deaths.

The deaths have numbered 187, and give a percentage on the average number resident of 7.08 which is about the average for some years past. The death-rate was 9.42 at Callan Park, and 8.75 at Gladesville, where the majority of the recent cases—among which the death-rate is always largest—were received, and was only 4.80 at Parramatta, where the cases are, for the most part, chronic and of long standing. The death-rate among the imbecile population at Newcastle, many of whom are weakly and scrofulous, was 7.99 per cent. The death-rate at Cook's River was 4.59. At the Hospital for the Criminal Insane, Parramatta, there were no deaths. The general death-rate compares most favourably with the death-rate in similar institutions in Great Britain.

Leave of Absence.

The system of granting leave of absence to patients has been continued with the most satisfactory results. There were 51 patients (22 males and 29 females) on leave at the close of last year, and 94 (37 males and 57 females) have been granted leave during the year for varying periods. Of the total number 145, 56 have been discharged recovered, and 2 relieved; 34 have returned to Hospital; 3 have died whilst absent; and 50 (21 males and 29 females) remained on leave at the close of the year. The number to whom leave is granted is increasing year by year; and the patients consist mainly of two classes—convalescents, who are usually granted leave for comparatively long periods, and to whom the leave is only a preface to discharge; and ordinary chronic patients, who are taken home for short periods by friends and relatives for a change.

The following return shows the numbers allowed leave of absence from each Institution:—

The number under care.

The total number of patients under care was 3,325 (1,989 males and 1,336 females), and the daily average number resident was 2,639 (1,604 males and 1,035 females), or 1.04 more than the average for 1885. At the Hospitals alone (excluding Cook's River) the daily average number resident was 2,553, or 170 more than during the preceding year.

Number

Number remaining at close of the year, and necessity for additional accommodation.

The number of patients on the register of the Hospitals at the close of the year was 2,626 (1,631 males and 995 females). On the register of the Licensed House there were 91 patients, 13 males and 78 females.

The accommodation in the Hospitals for the same date, calculated on the standard of 50 superficial feet per patient, the lowest compatible with health and efficient management, was for 2,654 patients (1,636 males and 1,018 females), so that all the beds for male patients but seven were occupied, and there were but few vacancies in those for females. It is probable that the accommodation for female patients will suffice for another twelve months, but the need for further accommodation for males is already urgent, and if the provision is further delayed can only result in overcrowding the wards, and in the accidents and disturbances, the inconvenience to management, and the decreased proportion of recoveries which are inseparable from this.

As the law at present stands all cases sent to hospitals by Magistrates must be received, and it is the custom, which cannot be departed from without public scandal, to receive all obviously insane persons sent by their friends when the papers are in proper order and all the provisions of the law are completed with in regard to them. I need hardly point out what would result if such cases were refused admission and committed suicide or murder afterwards, and yet with the present state of the hospitals these cases can only be received in the wards for males, with the result of inconveniencing and crowding those already in hospital, and impairing their chances of mental restoration.

It is too late for the purposes of immediate relief to set about erecting new buildings, much as these may be required in the future, and I can only repeat the recommendation made in my reports for the years 1883, 1884, and 1885, that the buildings lately occupied as a Protestant Orphanage at Parramatta should be handed over to this Department to meet immediate need. It is also clearly advisable, in view of the rapid increase in the number of patients, that a new hospital should be commenced on the site at Kenmore, near Goulburn, specially purchased for this purpose nearly ten years ago, and of which an elaborate contour survey has been recently made by the Colonial Architect.

Accidents.

With an average hospital population of 2,639, and a total number of 3,325 patients under care and treatment, I have very great satisfaction in reporting that no fatal accident and no case of suicide has occurred during the year. Attempts at suicide have been by no means infrequent, but in all a fatal result was averted, and a case of death by drowning was prevented by the Acting Medical Superintendent of Gladsville, Dr. Chisholm Ross, who at considerable personal risk saved a female patient who fell into deep water from the hospital wharf.

The accidents have included dislocations of the shoulder, 2; fractures of the thigh, 2; leg, arm, forearm, 2; olecranon, collar-bone, 2; and malar bone and finger, 2; wounds of eye, scalp, wrist, and perineum, and toe. All these, in accordance with departmental rules, were reported by the Medical Superintendents immediately they occurred, and in such cases as seemed to me necessary I at once held inquiries. The majority were received through falls whilst at work or in the wards or cricket-field. Several were self-inflicted with suicidal intent, or in trying to escape, and in about one-fourth of the cases the patients were epileptics. Both cases of fracture of the thigh were intra capsular, and occurred in aged patients through falls.

No severe accident or disabling injury has occurred to any member of the staff of any of the institutions.

Employment of Patients.

The number of patients actively and usefully employed has for some years been slowly increasing, and during the last year an average of upwards of 50 per cent. have been engaged in active occupation. The percentage has been greater in some hospitals than others—being largest at Parramatta (criminal) and Gladsville, and smallest at Newcastle. With care and perseverance on the part of officers and by instituting a greater variety of industries I believe the percentage may be still further increased, but not with the class of inmates in our hospitals beyond 65 per cent. Some hospital reports show a percentage of eighty or ninety of patients per cent. usefully employed, but this can only be under very exceptional conditions, and with a population differing considerably from that in the hospitals in this Colony where 90 per cent. of the patients cannot even walk without assistance. In considering this question it should be borne in mind that our hospitals receive numerous aged helpless and demented and paralysed patients who are maintained in the lunatic wards of poor houses in Great Britain, as well as epileptic and paralytic idiots who are not classed among the insane in other countries. It must be remembered also that the general, and consequently the hospital, population contain comparatively few artisans and others who can deftly use their fingers, and that it is difficult, situated as our hospitals are as to the quantity of land and the general surroundings, always to find occupation for men whose lives have been passed in shepherding and ordinary bush work. The hospitals are especially handicapped as to land for agricultural operations; at all of them the area is very limited, and for the most part quite unfit for cultivation.

The hospitals which show the largest percentage of patients employed are those in Switzerland and Austria, where almost everyone employs his winter evenings at home in carving toys or in similar minor industries, and in some parts of Canada where almost every man can and does knit in the winter evenings, and it can well be understood how useful these accomplishments are for occupation in hospitals.

The whole question of employment of patients is one of considerable importance, but it is evident that it may be carried too far, especially in a hot climate like this. The question is not altogether how many patients can be got to work or how much work can be done, but how many can be employed with benefit or without injury to themselves, and how far work can be made conducive to health, happiness, and mental restoration. The interests of the more weakly patients must always be borne in mind, and, as Dr. Daniel Clark remarks in his report on the Toronto Asylum for the year 1885, "to make an effort to drag out of the insane as much work as possible without respect to the capacity of each patient for work, would be a cruelty of greater magnitude than many about which much outcry is raised by pseudo-reformers of asylums."

Attendants and Nurses.

The proportion of attendants and nurses to patients varies at the different hospitals according to the character and mental condition of the patients. At the close of the year the proportion at Gladesville, where the number of acute cases is large, was 1 attendant to every 11 male and 1 nurse to every 10 female patients. At Callan Park, where the acute cases are received from the Metropolitan area, it was 1 attendant to every 10 and 1 nurse to every 12. At Parramatta, where a large proportion of the patients are of a chronic and incurable class, there was 1 attendant to every 14 and 1 nurse to every 12½; and at Newcastle, the patients being imbecile or idiotic, there was 1 attendant to every 14 and 1 nurse to every 16 patients. In these numbers are included the staff for both day and night service and to meet all emergencies. The changes among the attendants and nurses have been somewhat less than in former years, and have been more numerous at Callan Park than at the other hospitals, where, in the formation of a new staff, it was inevitable that a certain number of those appointed would find themselves, or be found by those in charge of the hospital, unsuited for the very special character of the work.

There has been considerable difficulty, as has been the case for several years past, in finding suitable young women to fill the vacancies occurring among the nurses, but there has always been a number of suitable applicants for any vacancies among the attendants, and the medical superintendents have had no difficulty in filling the appointments.

Cost of Maintenance.

The receipts of the Department have amounted to £9,991 13s. 1d., being the largest amount yet collected in any one year, and £1,100 1s. 4d. more than the collections for 1885.

The total sum was made up as follows:—Collections by Master in Lunacy, £9,082 8s. 5d.; collections at Reception House, £46 15s. 7d.; payments by Imperial Government, £539 0s. 10d.; sale of fat, old stores, &c., £276 0s. 5d.; and rent of land, £47 7s. 10d.

The details are shown in the following return:—

The total expenditure was £91,485 6s., and was made up as follows:—Maintenance of patients in Hospitals for the Insane, £83,715 6s. 5d. Maintenance of Government patients at Licensed House, Cook's River, £3,095 3s. 8d. Maintenance of patients in Reception House, £1,806 6s. 3d., and general expenses, including cost of Inspector-General's Office, payments to official visitors, maintenance of steam launch, &c., £2,868 9s. 8d.

The cost of maintenance of patients in Hospitals was £5,113 15s. 4d. more than in the year 1885, but the average daily number of patients resident was 170, and the total number under care 125 more than during that year.

The cost of the Reception House was £31 18s. 10d. more than during 1885, and was at the rate of £2 12s. 8d. per patient.

Taking the whole expenditure for the year as compared with the year 1885, it appears that with an increase of cost, amounting to £1,225 12s. 8d., an average daily number of 170 more patients have been maintained.

The following tables give the particulars of expenditure in the Hospitals:—

Average weekly cost without deducting collections, 12s. 7½d., or, deducting collections, 11s. 1½d.

The average weekly cost at the Hospitals, without deducting collections, was 12s. 7½d., as against 12s. 8d. in 1885, and after deducting collections 11s. 1½d., as against 11s. 3½d. in 1885.

The cost for salaries has been increased by the increases of salary under the Civil Service Act, and the contract prices for provisions have been unusually high throughout the year.

The system under which contracts are taken at the Treasury, which allows of the termination of any contract on one month's notice on either side, acts, there is reason to believe, prejudicially to the Government. Whilst in practice the Government never terminate a contract except for default, contractors take advantage of every rise in the market price to throw up their contracts under the short notice required, and to tender again at increased rates. During the year 1886 almost every contract for provisions for this Department was given up and retaken at advanced rates, and in some instances the same contract was given up three or four times, whilst no advantage was taken by the Government of the fall in the prices of meat and other articles, towards the end of the contract year.

The following return shows the weekly cost of maintenance at all the Hospitals, from 1870 to 1886 inclusive:—

Reception House for the Insane, Darlinghurst.

At the close of 1885 there were in this Institution 8 patients, 1 under certificate, and 7 under remand; and during the year 1886, 677 were received, 340 under medical certificate, and 337 under remand by Magistrates under section 1 of the Lunacy Act Amendment Act. The total number under care and treatment was therefore 685, or 28 less than during 1885. Of the total number 115 were first admitted under remand by Magistrates, and were subsequently certified and readmitted, so that they are counted twice over. Of the cases under certificate, 341 in number, 321 were sent to Hospitals for the Insane, 15 were discharged recovered, 2 died, and 3 remained at the close of the year. Of the cases under remand, 344 in number, 221 were discharged as sane at the Police Courts, 115 were certified as insane and returned to the Reception House, 4 died, and 4 remained at the close of the year. Of the total number, 236 were discharged as recovered, owing to care and treatment in the Institution. The number of deaths, 6, is smaller than usual. Finding that an impression prevailed in some quarters that the Institution was largely used for the treatment of habitual drunkards, and that the patients were very frequently readmitted, I have caused the records to be examined, with a view of seeing how many readmissions occurred within the year, with the result of ascertaining that 31 persons (22 males and 9 females) were admitted twice during 1886, and that 24 others (19 males and 5 females) had been inmates at some prior period during the nineteen years which the Institution has been in existence.

From this it will be seen that the number of "recidivists" is comparatively small, and indeed is not very much in excess of what the recurrent character of insanity would readily account for.

At the close of 1885 there were 777 patients in this Hospital (478 males and 299 females). During 1886, 130 were admitted for the first time, 21 were readmitted, and 7 were transferred from other Hospitals, making 935 (591 males and 344 females) under care. Of these 116 were discharged as recovered and 4 as relieved, 6 were transferred, 2 escaped, and 64 died, leaving at the close of the year 743, 472 males and 271 females in Hospital. The average number resident during the year was 731. The discharges show a percentage of 76.82 recovered and 3.67 relieved on the admissions. The deaths a percentage of 8.75 on the average number resident. The percentage of recoveries is larger than during any former years.

The Hospital was visited about once a month by Sir Alfred Roberts, Dr. Cox, and Mr. C. J. Mauning, barrister-at-law, the official visitors, who forwarded reports after each visit. After the visits paid in May and in July the visitors called attention in their reports to the condition of a wooden building which is used as dormitories for 80 patients,—pointed out that it was old and very liable to fire, and recommended that it should be replaced by a stone structure as soon as possible. I entirely concur in this recommendation, and have already made representations on the subject in my last annual report. The other reports of the official visitors express a general satisfaction with the management of the Hospital.

I visited the institution on January 18th and 19th, February 15th and 19th, May 29th, July 9th and 20th, August 5th, September 21st, October 19th, November 16th, and December 15th for the purposes of inspection, and on a number of other occasions to see individual patients or to consult with the Medical Superintendent on matters requiring special consideration. The Medical Superintendent was absent on leave for six months, during which he took the opportunity of visiting a number of the best known and most skilfully managed institutions for the Insane in both England and Scotland, and collected information which will be of value to himself and to other officers of the Department. During Dr. Sinclair's absence Dr. Chisholm Ross, the Assistant Medical Officer, was in charge of the Hospital, and carried out the duties of Medical Superintendent in a manner which showed a large capacity for successful administration, and served to justify the full measure of confidence with which I recommended that the Institution should be placed in his hands during Dr. Sinclair's absence.

The average number resident throughout the year has been smaller than for some years past, and though still somewhat in excess of the accommodation the wards have been more comfortable, and supervision vision and efficient management more possible. The medical officers in fact have been given something like a chance of doing their best, and the number of recoveries being larger than during any former year is no doubt to some extent, due to this. Although the death rate has been a trifle higher than usual the general sanitary condition of the Hospital has been good. The water supply has proved sufficient as to quantity though the quality leaves much to be desired. The average number usefully employed has been larger than during any former year although the officers are much hampered in their efforts in this direction by the small and totally inadequate workshops. Among the additions and improvements made during the year have been a new cottage for the night attendants, which was much needed, a new sewing-room, a capacious and well-ventilated room which was erected by the artisans and patients of the Hospital; the covering in of the bathing-house, and a provision of an additional boiler for the laundry and kitchen. New visiting rooms, which are urgently needed, an additional dining-room in the female division, new and larger workshops, so as to allow of the employment of more patients, and various other minor matters which were made the subject of requisition on the Colonial Architect's Department have been delayed owing to the usual Parliamentary Vote for "Alterations and Additions and Repairs to Hospitals for the Insane" having been largely reduced.

There has been no change among the officers during the year.

The following are copies of the entries made in the Inspector's book at two of my visits during the year May 29th and September 21st:—

May 29th—I have to-day visited this Hospital and found the number of patients on the registers as follows—

	Male.	Female.	Total.
In Hospital.....	471	266	737
On leave.....	5	18	23
	<hr/> 476	<hr/> 284	<hr/> 760

The number in the Hospital is smaller than it has been for a long time, and the decrease in numbers is due to the immediate transfer of all patients admitted on "order" during the last few weeks to Callan Park where there has been more room than at Gladesville. The number of patients admitted since my last official visit was 7 (2 males and 5 females). One of the females died a few days after admission, and I saw all the others and spoke to them. They are evidently fit cases for care and detention. The papers in the only case admitted since the last visit paid by the official visitors were in proper order.

I saw all the Statutory books, which are properly kept, and the recent entries in which call for no special comment. There is no entry of any recent case of restraint, and the instances of seclusion have been very few. The case books are very carefully kept, and all the cases except the one last admitted are duly entered. On examining the reports I found that 30 males and 14 females were wet, and 8 males and 3 females dirty at night, and the number of those with faulty habits seems decidedly large. On looking round the wards, however, I was struck with the large collection of feeble and demented cases, especially in the male division, and it is evident that a very large proportion of these are so debased in intellect as to be inattentive to the calls of nature. The number actively employed was shown by the reports to be 244 males and 170 females—a large average—and the number attending Divine Service, though not so large as it might be, is a respectable percentage of the total population.

I visited the wards at the Hill Branch and in both the male and female divisions of the main building, and saw all the patients in them. With the Hill Branch, at which I inspected both day-rooms, dormitories, &c., I have to express a general satisfaction. The rooms are thoroughly clean and in excellent order, and the attendants are careful to make them as bright and cheerful as possible by plants, flowers, and ornaments. The dining-room wants attention and care. The dinner service is battered and old, wanting in some necessary articles, and the general arrangements require supervision, with a view to increasing the tidiness and comfort of the room, and as a consequence the comfort of the patients. The female division was thoroughly clean and in good order, but I regret much to find that no steps have been taken to make the alterations for the new dining-room in No. 1 ward, which is very much required. I found 5 patients in bed, 1 owing to recent epilepsy, 1 from asthma, 2 from debility, and the 5th from a fracture of the neck of the thigh bone, caused by an accidental fall, and the particulars of which have been duly reported. In the male division No. 2 ward, recently recentred throughout, and repainted and improved, is again occupied. The patients generally were very quiet, and I heard no complaints requiring investigation. In three cases I noticed recent bruises which were satisfactorily accounted for, and whilst on this subject may mention that at the Hill Branch I found a man with two or three small but recent scalp wounds, caused during a fight with a fellow-patient during the night. Every possible care should be taken to prevent these occurrences, and when they result in injuries of this character, entries with regard to them should be made in the Medical Journal showing the full particulars.

The number in bed in the male division was twelve, and in the majority of cases the patients were in a feeble condition.

The hospital-room has become dingy and requires brightening up by new matting, table-cloths, &c., and by repolishing the furniture. This should if possible be one of the brightest and best-cared for rooms in the establishment, and of late has not been so. Throughout the hospital no one was in seclusion or restraint, and the number of canvas and ticken dresses among the women was very small. I saw three male patients, however (all undoubtedly very exceptional cases), in skeleton canvas suits, which are very unsightly.

I postponed my inspection of the out-door departments until another occasion.

Dr. Sinclair, the Medical Superintendent, has gone to England on leave of absence, and I found the hospital in the charge of Dr. Chisholm Ross, who accompanied me during my visit to the hospital.

September 21st.—I have to-day visited and inspected this hospital, which contains a total of 719 patients (456 males and 263 females), whilst thirty more still on the register are absent on leave. The Statutory books were shown to me. From the admission register I see that there have been fourteen admissions since the last official visit. I examined the papers on which these patients were received and found them correct, and I saw and spoke to all the patients with one exception, this one (C.D.) being out at work. From the discharge register it appears that the deaths have been somewhat more numerous than usual, but all have been from natural causes, and most after long standing illness and debility. One patient died whilst absent on leave, and a medical certificate was duly forwarded. The Medical Journal shows that both restraint and seclusion have only been used in few and infrequent instances. The case books are kept with care and attention, and all the cases, except the two or three most recently admitted, were duly entered.

I saw all the letters detained for my perusal, and ordered their destruction as unfit from various reasons for transmission.

I visited all the wards and found them in a condition of general good order, except No. 6, where there was a want of order and general tidiness which should be remedied. The patients, with some few exceptions, were tidy in dress and quiet in demeanour. No complaints needing comment or investigation were made, and in the instances where I saw bruises, &c., these were satisfactorily accounted for. I found no one in seclusion. One patient was in a camisole owing to very destructive habits, and a Chinaman was in muffs to prevent him removing bandages from his leg. A female patient was in gloves to prevent constant picking of her face. With regard to the Chinaman a special report was ready to forward to me. It appears that he is suffering from Potts' fracture, received in an attempt to escape during the night. He climbed out of window and on to the roof of the building, and the injury was sustained in dropping from the roof to the ground. I never remember to have seen so few patients in bed, 5 in the male and 3 in the female division, being all. The disease from which these were suffering were ulcer in 2 cases, acute mania 1, Potts' fracture 1, epileptic stupor 1, paralysis 1, dropsy 1, and fistula 1. There are a large number of very aged patients, but the day being warm all these were sitting up. The general condition of the Hill Branch was as usual satisfactory. No one was in bed, and there was no case of seclusion or restraint. I am, however, not satisfied with the condition of the dining-room or the way in which the meals are served, and I think improvements should be effected. I visited the stores at both buildings and found the bread, cheese, butter, and other articles of good quality, and in the kitchen at the Hill Branch I saw the potatoes, which were also good. The tailor's shop was in good order. The wood yard and its surroundings need attention, especially as to forming the road, and the attendants' dining-room and its surroundings were in a most unsatisfactory condition—the walls dirty, the furniture broken, and the whole place ill kept. It is quite apparent to me that the Chief Attendant does not exercise sufficiently strict control over the attendants, and that it will be absolutely necessary to see that better discipline and order is maintained. I would advise that the room should be thoroughly repainted and put in order, and the roadway and edgings remade, and that any subsequent neglect or disorder should be promptly punished.

The bathing-house has been covered in so as to screen the bathers from observation and is all but ready for use, so that the patients will be able to enjoy their customary sea bathing during the summer. A very considerable number of requisitions are still unattended to and I went into these in some detail. The Colonial Architect has been reminded of the more important of the outstanding wants. I visited the gardens and grounds which are well kept, and saw on the reserve the patients engaged in making a large waterhole for the supply of the pig-sties, cows, &c. The new sewing-room is nearly ready for occupation; it is light, well ventilated, and cheerful, and will be a great and much needed improvement. There has been considerable difficulty lately in obtaining suitable persons as cooks, and in discussing the matter with the Medical Superintendent and the Assistant Superintendent, it was decided as soon as possible to employ women, and as a preliminary, to erect a day-room and two dormitories for them. I saw and discharged some patients recommended as convalescent. I am glad to express a general satisfaction with the management of the Hospital, the reputation and character of which is evidently well sustained under Dr. Ross.

Hospital for the Insane, Parramatta (Erce).

The number of patients in this Hospital on 31st December, 1885, was 963—(606 males and 357 females). During 1886, 71 were admitted, and 20 were transferred from other hospitals, making altogether 1,054—(673 males and 381 females) under care. Of these 41 were discharged recovered and 2 relieved, 7 were transferred, 46 died, and 956 (609 males and 347 females) remained under care at the close of the year. The recoveries show the highly satisfactory percentage of 57·74 on the admissions, and the deaths the very low rate of 4·80 on the average number resident.

The general health of the inmates has been very satisfactory, and there has been a marked absence of epidemic disease. At the beginning of the year new official visitors, Dr. Walter Brown, Dr. Isaac Waugh, and Mr. Frederick Gibson, barrister-at-law, were appointed, and these gentlemen have visited the Institution with great regularity, and have as a rule in their reports expressed themselves favourably of the condition and management of the Hospital. On July 6, however, the visitors made the following report:—"We wish in a strong manner to call attention to the state of the sick wards. They are almost the only remaining parts of the old building, and should at once be pulled down and another ward erected suitable to the wants of the sick inmates. The sick appear to be the last to have proper accommodation made for them," and accompanied it by a special letter, in which the visitors pressed upon the Colonial Secretary the necessity for immediate action. Upon this report being referred to me by the Principal Under Secretary, I wrote the following memorandum:—

"The report of the official visitors on the condition of the buildings for the sick in the hospital ward at Parramatta should, I think, be brought under the special notice of the Colonial Secretary."

In a report on the Hospital for the Insane, at Parramatta, dated 29 November, 1878, I spoke of these buildings as follows:—

"The hospital yard has in its centre another ancient building of two stories, belonging to prison days, heavily barred, and completely unsuited for insane patients. Fifty-six patients now use it as a dormitory, and owing to their uncleanly habits and its state of disrepair it is an almost herculean and heart-breaking task to keep it clean and sweet. The ultimate disposal of this building is a matter for consideration. It is doubtful if it can be renovated so as to be a credit to the Institution, except at a cost larger than would suffice to erect a new building of the same size. In this yard is the hospital proper, a curiosity of architecture which must ere long be demolished. It is of two stories, on the lower of which sleep the more afflicted among the epileptics, twenty-one in number, whilst the upper is used for the sick, who appear to be thoroughly well cared for. The room is kept scrupulously clean, and is made homely by a few pictures, but it is devoid of all hospital accessories; there are no proper cupboards for medicines and appliances, &c., and is sadly unfit for the purpose to which it is put. The remaining buildings in this yard are a disgrace to the Colony. An old dormitory for twenty patients; a day-room, in which about sixty afflicted patients are huddled in wet and cold weather; and some small rooms, used as dormitories for patients and attendants, are wretched hovels, which should be swept away as soon as possible. Both patients and attendants obliged to occupy such quarters are to be profoundly pitied; the mere inspection of them is saddening."

And in my annual reports for 1882-4 and 5 the following passages relative to these buildings occur:—

1882.—"This Institution, though many improvements have been made, is still wanting in some of the most essential parts of a hospital for the insane. Some of the buildings are so old and ruinous as to be almost beyond repair; there is no properly appointed hospital-room. The rooms for epileptics are ill-arranged, ill-ventilated, and beyond the supervision which is necessary. The provision for all that is necessary must be a work of time, but I have already submitted plans for remedying the more pressing defects, and trust that by the close of another year I shall be able to report that some steps have been taken in the direction indicated."

1881.—"It must not be forgotten that a number of these old buildings still remain, in which about 120 patients are still domiciled. Steps should be taken for the removal of all those which are beyond repair, and the renovation of all those which are fit for this at as early a time as possible. Under existing circumstances it is impossible to keep them thoroughly clean, and their very appearance is depressing to the inmates and calculated to cause rather than to alleviate mental disturbance."

1885.—"The only old buildings now remaining are those in the division for the sick and epileptic, and these should be replaced by more convenient wards as soon as possible. Plans have been drawn for new buildings, but funds have not yet been voted for the work."

In preparing the Estimates for the current year, I pointed out the necessity for providing for new buildings at Parramatta, and the Colonial Architect placed on his draft Estimates the sum necessary. This sum, however, does not appear on the Estimates now before Parliament. The

The question of these buildings will not admit of much further delay, as the floors and other parts are becoming unsafe, and I would strongly recommend that the Colonial Secretary should inform himself by personal inspection of the necessity for some action.

The Colonial Secretary made several appointments to visit the Hospital, but was unable to keep them owing to special and pressing business, and meantime these buildings remain in their ruinous condition. I can only repeat what I said in 1873, that "they are a disgrace to the Colony, and that the patients who have to occupy them are to be profoundly pitied." I visited the Hospital on January 5th, February 22nd, March 30th, June 2nd and 21st, July 14th, August 10th and 26th, October 12th, November 19th, and December 1st and 14th, and at all these visits inspected the whole or parts of the buildings, and saw the patients in the various wards.

The following are copies of my reports on March 30th, August 26th, and November 19th:—

30th March.—I have this day visited this Hospital and examined and signed the statutory books, the entries in which call for no special comment.

The number on the register are as follows:—

	Males.	Females.	Total.
Free division .....	618	357	975
Criminal division .....	45	7	52
Total .....	663	364	1,027

Of the free patients five males and two females are on leave. The number of male patients is slowly increasing, and an arrangement made to transfer all newly admitted cases (males) to Callan Park, except such as come on special request, should be adhered to until the number is somewhat reduced. I saw all the patients received since the last official visit, and examined them individually, and I also saw the papers on which they were admitted, and found them correct and in order. I visited and carefully inspected the whole of the female division, and found it clean and in good order. One patient was in bed sick, being in an advanced stage of phthisis, and another was in bed for rest and quiet during an attack of acute recurrent mania. No one was in seclusion. Two patients were in restraint by camisole. One, an epileptic dement, had fracture of the clavicle due to a fall, and was restrained for surgical reasons, and the other was a particularly bad case of puerperal mania with aggressive and destructive tendencies. In both I thought the means adopted necessary. The patients, with one or two exceptions, were quiet, and I heard no complaints. Their dress was clean and sufficient, and the bedding was in good order. Some of the airing-courts require attention, especially Nos. 2 and 3, where the paths are rough and uneven, and the trees dwarfed for want of care. I attach very considerable importance to the growth of shade trees in these wards, and with care and special precaution they can, no doubt, as the wards at Gladesville exemplify, be grown despite the mischievous and destructive tendencies of the inmates.

The whole of this division requires repainting outside, and as the work is beyond the capacity of the artisan attendants and patients, the service must be made the subject of requisition.

I visited the sewing-rooms and laundry, in which a number of patients were employed, the surroundings of which are being made more pleasant by planting and attention to the flower borders, &c.

I saw several patients with a view to discharge, and concluded my visit with a walk to the farm, at which new cowsheds are being erected, and other improvements are in progress.

I am glad to see that a commencement has been made in the direction of the employment of the criminal patients in the separate yard, which is to be assigned to them; and that progress is being made with the new dam and terraces at the back of the Hospital, which will in time transform this old rubbish heap into one of the most sightly and pleasant parts of the Institution.

August 26th.—I have to-day, accompanied by the Medical Superintendent, visited the whole of the wards in both the male and female divisions of this Hospital.

I find from the register that the number of patients is now as follows:—

	Males.	Females.	Total.
In Hospital .....	608	350	958
On leave .....	5	3	8
Total .....	613	353	966

The number is slowly rising, and already one of the corridors which should be kept empty is used as a dormitory. In case of further increase it will become necessary to transfer all the cases newly admitted to Callan Park, until such time as the number falls to within the accommodation of the Hospital, which is not calculated for more than 951 free patients. I saw and signed the statutory books. From the medical register it appears that the amount of seclusion is small, and that the restraint is only employed in two cases, one male and one female, the latter only at night, and both for reasons which appear satisfactory. The admission register shows that eight patients have been admitted since the last official visit. I saw the papers on which six of these were admitted and found them correct, and in the case of the other two the papers being informal have been sent to my office, so that the necessary amendments may be obtained. I found No. 1 male ward in excellent order. The painting recommended at my visit on June 21st has been nearly completed, and the effect is to brighten the rooms and make them much more pleasant and cheerful.

The weatherboard male division and the whole of the female division were in commendable order and thoroughly clean. At the weatherboard male some of the floors are being relaid, and it will be necessary to forward requisitions for similar services in other dormitories, where the floors are more or less decayed. The hospital ward was as clean as under the circumstances it can be made; but the buildings in this division are becoming more and more ruinous, and, as a consequence, more and more difficult to keep in order. I am thoroughly in accord with the official visitors, that these buildings are a disgrace to the Institution; and their last entry in the inspector's book, having been referred to me for report, I have appended to it the condemnatory notices of these buildings, which I have inserted in my Annual Reports for the last five years, and returned it to the Colonial Secretary with a strong recommendation that some action should be taken towards providing, in a more seemly and respectable manner, for the sick and feeble patients in this large Institution.

I am glad to note that the general health of the inmates is good. I found only two female patients suffering from general paralysis and paralysis of one side, respectively, in bed; and there were only four males absolutely in bed, though a considerable number require care and attention owing to their extreme feebleness. The patients were, as a rule, decently clad, and in only two or three cases was there any noise or excitement. In three cases I made inquiries as to bruises and abrasions, and these were accounted for by falls during epileptic attacks or recent injuries. No complaints of unkindness or ill-treatment were made to me, though all were allowed the fullest opportunity of stating grievances or making known complaints.

I visited the laundry kitchens in both buildings, tailor's shop and stores in both divisions, and have to express a general satisfaction with their condition. In the stores I saw the bread, cheese, and other articles, and found them of good quality; and the Medical Superintendent expresses a general satisfaction with the way in which the contractors are supplying the Institution. On inquiry I find that the hot-water supply for the weatherboard division is not satisfactory, the circulating system failing to answer owing to some defect with the arrangements.

The Assistant Medical Officer is at present absent on leave, and the whole burden of the work falls on the Medical Superintendent.

November 19.—I have to-day visited this Hospital. The statutory books were shown to me, and were found properly kept. There have been four admissions in the free and one in the criminal division since the last official visit, and I saw all these, and examined the papers on which the patients were admitted, and examined the patients themselves. In the criminal division the Medical Journal shows that no accident has occurred for some months, that the instances of seclusion have been very few and infrequent, and that restraint has only been necessary in one case—a recent admission with destructive tendencies—for some months. In the free division the entries in the Medical Journal call for no special remark. Three recent cases of restraint are noted in two females and in one male patient, and in one of the female patients it was used only at night for suicidal tendencies. At the time of my visit one male and one female patient were under restraint, and in both cases I did not see any objection to the course adopted.

I examined the more recent case books, and found all the recent cases duly and fully entered.

The

The number of patients is now as follows:—

	On Register.			On Leave.
	M.	F.	Total.	M.	F.	Total.
Free.....	614	348	962	4	3	7
Criminal .....	48	8	56	...	...	...
Total.....	662	356	1,018	4	3	7

The general health of the Hospital is most satisfactory. There were only six patients in bed out of the 1,011 in the Hospital; and there is a complete absence of all epidemic and infectious diseases. I found the wards and rooms occupied by patients (always excepting the terrible and dilapidated buildings in the Hospital yard) in good order and clean, and the patients, as a rule, seemed well cared for, though in male wards 2 and 3 they were not so tidy in dress as is desirable.

I notice that a number of the buildings are greatly in want of paint, and such work of this kind as can be done by patients and attendants should be undertaken as soon as possible, and requisitions sent for such as is beyond the capabilities of the staff. The outside of the weatherboard buildings should, I think, be done by contract, and the necessary requisitions forwarded without delay.

I visited the kitchen and stores at the weatherboard division, and the stores at the main building, and found all in good order. The bread, meat, and other articles of diet were of good quality, but the sugar did not appear to me to be equal to sample.

Good progress is being made with the work at the dam and in the labour-yard for criminals; the latter should, I think, be pushed on, and the growing of vegetables might be commenced at once in some parts of the space.

The painting and decorating of No. 1 Ward is nearly complete, and the whole of condition of this division of the hospital is now most satisfactory.

The condition of the buildings in the hospital yard is gradually getting worse. No repairs are being carried out, and cleanliness is becoming more and more difficult.

The Medical Superintendent is absent on leave, and I was accompanied throughout my visit by Dr. Williamson, the Assistant Medical Officer, who is in temporary charge of the institution.

The number of patients usefully employed and attending Divine service has slowly increased, owing to the persistent endeavours of the medical officers to induce the patients to work and to attend the religious services. Their efforts, however, in the latter direction have been somewhat thwarted by the absence of a proper room for the purpose, the present one being much too small.

Requisitions for this and other necessary services, especially the painting of the weatherboard buildings, have been made, but the works have been postponed owing to the want of funds, the appropriation by Parliament for these services being only half the usual amount. I venture to question the ultimate economy of postponing repairs and alterations urgently needed, since dilapidations are likely to increase and to cost much more to repair subsequently; besides this it is always advisable to carry out as soon as possible such alterations as will conduce to successful and economical management.

The chief work on which the patients have been engaged during the past year is the building of a large dam across the Parramatta River and excavation of the banks of the stream so as to form a large piece of ornamental water. This has been carried out with great success, and has much increased the beauty of the view from the new wards.

A large area of land for the employment of patients is urgently required and should, if possible, be obtained. The land formerly attached to the Roman Catholic Orphanage, if not required for the new Industrial School, now located in the Orphanage buildings, might with advantage be handed over to the hospital.

Hospital for the Criminal Insane, Parramatta.

The year commenced with 55 patients (48 males and 7 females) in this Institution, and 22 (21 males and 1 female) were admitted, making 77 (69 males and 8 females) under care and treatment. Of those 6 were discharged recovered, 14 were transferred to other hospitals on expiry or remission of sentence, or on the Attorney-General declining to prosecute in the case of those awaiting trial, 1 escaped, and 56 (48 males and 8 females) remained at the close of the year.

The percentage of recoveries was 27·27 on the admissions. There were no deaths and no serious accident during the year. Of the total number under care, 18 were natives of New South Wales, and 2 of other British Colonies, 12 were natives of England, 2 of Scotland, 32 of Ireland, 1 of Germany, 7 of China, and 3 of countries other than those mentioned.

The following return shows the classification of the patients in Hospital on December 31st, 1886. It will be seen that a very large proportion are for very serious offences against the person, nearly half having either committed or attempted murder:—

I visited the Hospital on January 5th, February 22, June 2nd, August 25, October 12, and November 19th, and on each occasion thoroughly inspected it and examined the patients. The following is a copy of my entries in the inspection book on June 2 and August 25th :—

June 2.—I took care to see every patient, and to mark off each name both of males and females on my register. No one was in seclusion or restraint; there was very little noise or excitement and absolutely no complaints. The patients were tidily and properly dressed and the general health seemed good. I saw the dinner served; it consisted of well-cooked Irish stew and bread, and was distributed in a careful, orderly, and proper manner. The wards were in excellent order throughout.

The long delayed alteration, which will give a new bath-room and a room which can be used as a dressing-room and also as a day-room, are at last in progress. The ventilation of the single rooms is still delayed.

The Medical Journal shows that there has been neither seclusion, restraint, nor any occurrence to call for special mention for some weeks.

August 25th.—I have to-day visited the Hospital for the Criminal Insane at Parramatta, and saw and signed the Statutory books kept in connection with it, finding them correctly kept and written up to a recent date. From the admission register it appears that two patients have been admitted since the last official visit, and I examined the papers on which they were received and found them correct. From the Medical Register it appears that neither seclusion nor restraint has been employed in any case for some weeks. The number now on the Register is :—Males, 50; females, 8; total, 58; being an increase of four since the beginning of June.

During my visit I took care to see every patient on the register, with one exception (a man employed with the carpenter), and ticked off each name on my list. The rooms and corridors were clean and in good order, but I regret to find that the ventilators in the inner walls, asked for by requisition, are still unsupplied. As the summer is at hand I think a special letter should be written by the Medical Superintendent, calling attention to this subject, as it is clearly very inadvisable that the rooms should be left longer, especially in summer weather, in their present unwholesome condition. The yards were as nicely kept as usual, and show evidence of constant care on the part of the attendants.

The new bath and dressing room is all but ready for occupation, and as soon as it is in use the old bath-room should be shelved and used as a store.

There was no noise or excitement amongst the patients, who were properly dressed and apparently properly cared for. The number employed is now so much larger than formerly that those in the ward seem few in number. Of the number employed the greater part are, as is advisable, in the yard specially set apart for the employment of this class of patients, and from their quiet demeanour are no doubt benefiting by the exercise and work.

There has been a very decided increase in the number of those actively employed, and during the last six months of the year this averaged daily 65 per cent. of the inmates. Most of them are engaged in laying out and working, as a vegetable garden, the walled yard from which the old buildings for women were removed about two years ago. The employment has served to render the patients more orderly and contented.

The accommodation has been improved by building a large bath-room.

Further ventilation of the sleeping rooms is still very necessary, and the execution of this work should not be delayed.

Hospital for the Insane, Callan Park.

There were 458 patients (330 males and 128 females) in this Institution at the close of 1885, and during 1886, 282 (166 males and 116 females) were admitted for the first time; 4 males were readmitted, and 1 male and 74 females were transferred from other Institutions, making together 819 (501 males and 318 female patients) under care and treatment. Of these 106 were discharged recovered, and 13 relieved, 15 were transferred to other Institutions, and 54 died, leaving 629 (377 males and 252 females) in Hospital on 31st December, 1886. The daily average number resident was 571. The percentage of recoveries was 37.06, and of those relieved, 4.54 on the admissions. The death-rate was 9.42 per cent. on the average number resident. This Hospital has received during the year the whole of the recent cases of insanity from the metropolitan district, and, in addition, a number of female patients, who would, in the ordinary course, have been sent to Gladsville if there had been room in that Institution. As can readily be understood, the reception of such a large number of new patients, the opening of the new wards for their reception, and the engagement of the staff for their care, has involved a very large amount of work, and the year has been a busy and anxious one for the Medical Superintendent and officers of the Institution. It is with special satisfaction that I am able to report that the only severe accidents were a fracture of the forearm and a scalp wound, both due to the action of the patients themselves. The average health of the inmates has been good, and there has been no return of typhoid fever among the attendants living in the Hospital. Official Visitors were appointed at the beginning of the year, Sir Alfred Roberts, Dr. J. C. Cox, and Mr. C. J. Manning, Barrister-at-law, having vacated similar appointments at Parramatta to undertake the duties.

In the reports forwarded by the Official Visitors there is nothing to call for special comment. I paid visits of inspection on March 15th, June 12th and 14th, July 7th and 29th, September 14th and 16th, and November 27th and 30th, and as my offices have been established during the year at the Institution, I have been able frequently to supervise the working of its various parts, and to consult with the Medical Superintendent.

The following are copies of my reports on March 15th and September 14th and 16th :—

March 15th.—I have to-day paid a visit of inspection to this Institution, in which there are now 550 patients (330 males and 220 females), whilst 4 males and 2 females are on the register, but absent on leave. Since the last official visit 35 patients (20 males and 15 females) have been admitted; and in my visits to the wards, and in the grounds, workshops, &c., I saw all of these, and subsequently examined the papers on which they were received. I examined the statutory books, which are correctly kept, saw several of the more recent case books, and examined all the patients' letters, specially kept, under the provisions of the Lunacy Act, by the Medical Superintendent, as unfit for transmission. From yesterday's (Sunday) ward reports it appears that 102 men and 52 women—being 31 and 23 per cent. of the numbers in Hospital—attended Divine Service. The number is small, and should certainly not be less than 35 per cent. for both sexes. The Gladsville percentage is now upwards of 40. From last night's reports I find that 16 men and 21 women were wet, and 6 men and 11 women dirty, and that these numbers are above the average at present. The number with faulty habits among the men has diminished; but the proportion is still very high among the women, especially as urinary troubles should be much less common among them than among the opposite sex. The Medical Journal shows that an attempt at suicide, which resulted in scalp wounds and bruise, has recently taken place, and that recently 1 man and 1 woman have been restrained by day, and 1 other man at night. I visited all the wards—6 on the male and 4 on the female side—now open for patients. One ward on each side has been opened since my last visit, and both these are in good order. With the condition of the wards generally in the male division I am glad to be able to express satisfaction; but Nos. 1 and 4 struck me as less smart and orderly than the others. The patients throughout were well and tidily clothed, and the bedding was in good order. Bolsters and pillows are required for the sofas and feather pillows for the beds in the Hospital. I found 2 patients in seclusion; but both are only subjected to this at the time of the medical visit, for the safety of the medical officers on whom they have made attacks. 1 patient was in restraint by camisole for quite sufficient reasons. 13 were in bed in single rooms, and 2 in the Hospital. Of these in single rooms 6 were epileptics, 2 general paralytics, 2 were suffering from acute or sub-acute mania, and 1 from restless dementia; the others had a wound of knee and diarrhoea respectively. I

I heard no complaints of any importance. In the female division all the wards were in excellent order, though as yet bare from want of pictures, texts, and ornaments, and the patients were neatly and comfortably dressed.

No one was in seclusion; one was in restraint for sufficient reasons, and six were in bed, all in single rooms. In the only case of complaint about the nurses I convinced myself that they had not done more than was necessary to ensure the patient's cleanliness, and when I told her this I was overwhelmed with a torrent of vituperation and abuse.

I visited the sewing-room and laundry in this division and found in both a large number of patients employed, and both places in excellent order. A new straw house has been built, but requires some minor alterations, and the coal-house requires putting in order. A very considerable advance has been made in laying out the laundry-yard and the work has been carried out with judgment and care. I visited the kitchen which was very clean indeed, and in which I saw the meat and potatoes (both good in quality) cooked and ready for serving to the wards; the attached offices; the stores, in which I saw the bread, cheese, and beer, and tasted all three; the engine-room and blacksmiths' shop; and the carpenters' shop, stables, and other outbuildings. Some advance is being made in laying out the grounds on the main front terrace of the Hospital, but the progress is slow. It is I would point out extremely advisable that the western front should be laid out during the coming winter and some trees are required in Nos. 4 and 5 male wards. The new ventilating shafts to the drains though ugly appear to be efficient.

September 14 and 16.—I visited this Hospital on both the above days and inspected the male division, with the out-buildings and offices on the first, and the female division with the laundry, &c., on the second day. The number of patients was as follows:—

	M.	F.	Total.
In Hospital.....	376	233	609
On leave .....	6	5	11
Total .....	382	238	620

Since the last official visit 33 patients (17 males and 16 females) have been admitted. I examined the papers on which they were received and found them correct except in one case, where one of the medical certificates being defective, was returned for amendment, and I afterwards during my visit saw all the patients, with the exception of a man who had already been specially brought under my notice by Dr. Blaxland and discharged, having recovered. I found the wards thoroughly clean and in good order, and the patients tidily and properly dressed, the number of canvas or special dresses being few. One male patient was in seclusion at the time of the medical visit owing to his tendency to attack the medical officers when their attention is occupied with other patients, and one female patient was in restraint owing to very restless and destructive habits. The number in bed was small—in the male division there were 14 either in the Hospital or in single rooms, and of these 5 were epileptics, 2 were maniacal, 1 had hydatids of pleura, 1 ulcer of leg, 1 pneumonia, 1 peritonitis, whilst 2 were general paralytics, and 1 a blind and feeble dement. In the female division 6 were in bed, 3 with ulcers or sores on the legs, 1 with erysipelas, 1 with dropsy, and 1 owing to an acute maniacal condition. The wards in both divisions are rapidly filling, and it will soon be necessary to open the 5th ward in this and the old mansion and cottage in the male division. The furniture for these is all but ready and it will be necessary to get some minor fittings as well as bedding and stores ready as soon as possible.

The Medical Superintendent has recently engaged an additional night nurse, and the staff of night attendants and nurses is now as follows:—Attendants: 2 for general wards, 1 in charge of sick, suicidal, and epileptic, and 1 in charge of the detached buildings; total 4. Nurses: 2 in charge of general wards, and 1 in charge of sick, suicidal, &c.; total, 3.

I saw and signed the statutory books, which are properly kept, and the case books are kept in accordance with the order.

The circumstances attending the fracture of an arm in an epileptic female patient are entered in the Medical Journal, and have formed the subject of a special report to me. I did not consider any further inquiry necessary. In examining the out-buildings, &c., I found that the stables and stable-yard, as well as the straw-house, &c., were not as well kept and attended to as is desirable; the windows were uncleaned and the whole place requires supervision. The general stores were as usual in good order and the provisions generally good. The bread was still somewhat short of what it ought to be, but sweet and wholesome. The kitchen was in good order, but I noticed that the meat for patients was cooked very much earlier than necessary. This practice is a bad and unsatisfactory one and some change should be made. The laundry was in good order and working satisfactorily; but the coal-shed, straw-house, &c., were untidy and need attention.

From an examination of the day and night returns it appears that 17 males and 19 females are wet, and 12 males and 10 females dirty at night; that 125 males and 68 females attend Divine Service; and 164 males and 98 females (total 262) are usefully employed. The number attending service appears to have increased owing to the interest taken in this by Dr. Miles, the Assistant Medical Officer; but more women might attend than at present, and I hope to see the number from this division much larger. The number employed is still too small, and it is a pity to see so many idle patients in the wards. I find that various minor improvements have been carried out, and the wards are gradually becoming brighter and more home-like. As soon as possible curtains should be supplied in No. 1 and other of the female wards, and the sewing-room should be painted and kalsimined.

Dr. David Grant, who had filled the appointment of Assistant Medical Officer for fifteen months resigned, owing to ill-health. Dr. George Edward Miles was appointed in his stead and has performed the duties of the office in a most satisfactory manner.

Very considerable progress has been made in laying out the gardens and grounds, and the wards have all been turfed and planted.

The need of additional workshops has been much felt, and it is very advisable that farm buildings should be erected as soon as possible.

There are still some outstanding requisitions for fencing, fittings, &c., on the Colonial Architect's Department.

Hospital for the Insane, Newcastle.

On 31st December, 1885, the number of patients in this Institution was 240 (127 males and 113 females); and during 1886, 17 patients were admitted for the first time, 1 was readmitted, and 8 were transferred from other Hospitals, making 266 (139 males and 127 females) under care and treatment.

During the year 4 were discharged relieved, 1 was transferred, and 19 died, leaving 242 (125 males and 117 females) on 31st December. The daily average number resident was 239, and the deaths were 7.99 per cent. on this number. The chief causes of death were epilepsy and convulsions and disease of the brain, and to these 12 out of the 19 deaths were due; the others were certified as due to marasmus, pulmonary consumption, diarrhoea, disease of the liver, general debility, and old age.

The only serious accident was the fracture of the forearm in an epileptic boy.

Of the total number under care 110 were under 20 years of age, and 207 were natives of this and 16 of neighbouring Colonies.

The proportion of patients usefully employed continues small, and I am convinced that, with care and perseverance on the part of the officers in charge, a great improvement in this direction might be effected, and that the occupation would very materially benefit the patients.

Difficulties having occurred as to the rate to be paid for the water supplied by the Newcastle Corporation, the water was towards the close of the year shut off from the Hospital by the Municipal authorities, and only turned on again in obedience to an injunction from the Supreme Court. During the absence of the city supply a case of typhoid fever, the first for more than a year, occurred in the Hospital, but owing to the liberal use of disinfectants and to careful disposal of the excreta no further cases occurred.

I visited this Hospital on March 23rd, June 15th, September 5th and 6th, November 25th, and December 30th, and the following are copies of my entries in the Inspector's book at two of these visits.

23rd March.—I have this day paid a visit of inspection to this Hospital and regret to find the Superintendent absent through illness. In his absence I was accompanied in my inspection of the female division by the Matron, and of the male division by the Chief Attendant, whilst Mr. C. Cane rendered me every possible assistance in examining the statutory books and Departmental records. The number of patients at my last visit was:—Males, 127; females, 113; total, 240. Since then 4 males and 4 females have been admitted, and 2 males and 2 females have died. The numbers are now 129 males and 115 females; total, 244. There are at present no patients on leave of absence. I carefully examined the eight patients recently admitted, and saw the papers on which they were received. All these are in order, and the patients are all fit subjects for this hospital. Of the deaths which occurred since my last visit, 1 was due to old age and general debility, 2 to chronic brain disease, 1 to marasmus.

In the female division I found the patients in their usual cheerful condition—clean, tidy, and evidently well cared for. The rooms were clean throughout, and recent painting in a number of them has added to their bright and pleasant appearance. I found 4 patients in bed, 3 from general debility, and 1 from exhaustion following epilepsy. Two were in long-sleeved pinafores to prevent self-injury. The bedding throughout was clean, sufficient, and in proper repair. In the male division I found 6 in bed—3 from epileptic exhaustion, 1 from hydrocephalus, and the remainder from general weakness. The general condition of this division was satisfactory, but the dress of the more imbecile, helpless, and dirty patients is not all that is desirable, and would be improved by attention to minor matters. Belts are specially needed. I saw no one in restraint. The condition of the hospital, which has been recently repainted and decorated, was very satisfactory, and the evident attention and interest in her work displayed by the nurse in charge struck me most favourably. She pointed out to me one little boy who is now so intelligent that it seems advisable that he should be removed to some private home, but as he has a stepmother who takes no interest in him, it will be necessary to make some special arrangements if his removal from hospital is to be attended with continued improvement.

I visited the out-buildings, kitchen, laundry, tailors' and carpenters' shop, and found nothing to call for special comment. The kitchen apparatus has been recently repaired, and is working well, but the hydrotrope is worn out and requires renewal. In the stores I saw the bread, cheese, groceries, and other articles, and found all of good quality. The milk supplied was received during my visit, and, in view of the importance of the purity of this article in an establishment which the large proportion of the inmates are children, I took this opportunity of examining it both by means of lactometers and cream tests. By the former, after making necessary correction for temperature, the specific gravity was 32, and the amount of cream was 7. The milk is on the whole satisfactory, though the amount of cream is small. The long continued trouble as to the water supply is at last at an end, as the tank has been connected with the new city water supply, but as yet this connection is only by a 1-inch pipe. There is no meter, and fire mains are not yet fitted. It is desirable that at least a 3-inch pipe should be connected as soon as possible, and as soon as the fire-main is ready, hose should be supplied with all necessary couplings, and in suitable lengths. I noticed during my visit that a number of minor repairs to drains, spouting, cement work, &c., are required; these should be carried out as soon as possible.

Three or four long outstanding requisitions on Colonial Architect's Department are still unfulfilled, and attention must be drawn to the great embarrassing delay in the performance of necessary work.

I saw the patients in the female division and in one ward in the male division at dinner, which consisted of meat pie served with the greatest order and care. All the more feeble patients were supplied with minced meat with abundant vegetables or with milk.

The medical officer met me at the hospital, and from the records it appears that his visits, as well as those of chaplains, are paid with sufficient frequency.

I saw and signed the statutory books which are written up to date, and I also examined and signed most of the departmental records, which are in proper order. From the day and night reports I find that 83 males and 61 females (total, 144) attended Divine Service on Sunday last. That an average of about 11 males and 11 females are wet and 3 males and 6 females dirty at night. The night nurse appears to be performing her duties satisfactorily, and the number of wet and dirty patients is slowly diminishing.

As a general result of my inspection, I am glad to express an opinion that the Institution is in good working order; and I am particularly pleased with the evident trust in and affection for the attendants and nurses the patients display, and which speaks volumes for the care, kindness, and consideration with which they are treated.

September 5th and 6th.—I visited this Institution on both the above days; on the first day I attended Divine Service, at which the Rev. J. Longbottom officiated. The room was quite full of patients, who formed an attentive congregation. The service, besides prayers, hymns, and part of the Communion Service, included a short address, which was everything that could be desired both in language and manner, and admirably calculated to impress and benefit the peculiar congregation to which it was addressed. On the second day I visited and closely inspected every part of the hospital.

The number of patients now in the hospital, and the changes which have since my last visit taken place, are set forth in the following short return:—

	Male.	Female.	Total.
In Hospital on June 15 .....	125	112	237
Admitted .....	2	5	7
	127	117	244
Died .....	2	2	4
	125	115	240
Discharged .....	1	...	1
In Hospital on September 6 .....	124	115	239
On leave .....	...	1	1

Mr. Cane has lately revised the register, so as to make the daily statement book correct in regard to the dietary authorised. The number of patients under 14 years of age is now entered as 64—28 males and 26 females. Of the admissions 1 male has been discharged. The others, 1 male and 5 females, I saw and examined, and consider all fit subjects for the Institution. I also examined all the papers on which they were received, and found them correct. The day-rooms, dormitories, and other parts of the Hospital were clean and in good order, and several parts have been repainted, and in other ways decorated and made more bright and comfortable. In the female division the general condition of the patients was satisfactory, though a number have weak eyes. No one was in bed, and no one in seclusion. Two patients were in linen jackets, with loose sleeves, owing to faulty habits. In the male division three were in bed, and one was in a long-sleeved jacket. The condition of the patients in the Hospital of the male division was very satisfactory. The male patients seemed to me better dressed than usual, and the number of unsightly dresses was smaller.

I saw and signed the statutory books, which are correctly kept. The only serious accident since my last visit was the fracture of a fore-arm; the patient, a small epileptic boy, appears to have climbed out of one of the windows on the ground floor, and to have fallen in doing so. The arm is now in plaster bandages, and is doing well. From the returns it appears that the number at church was 112, and the number on an average usefully employed is 80. The return of those wet and dirty at night remains large. The amount of stimulants now given is small, consisting of 6oz. of brandy, 2 of rum, and 4 port wine daily, and this is given to sick and feeble patients. The patients actively employed in laundry, &c., now get coffee daily, and appear satisfied with it, and in good health. Some minor requisitions on the Colonial Architect's Department have been dealt with since my last visit, but fencing asked for in February, 1885, is still unattended to, and the condition of the boundary fences of the wards for the smaller boys is a standing danger, and likely to result in some serious accident. The water supply from the Newcastle main, though excellent as to quantity, is so bad in quantity that it is impossible to wash the better white clothes in it, and the pumps have to be kept going to raise water from the wells for laundry and other purposes. I saw the bread, meat, butter, cheese, tea, and other articles in the stores, and found all of good quality. The meat is especially good, and indeed almost better than might be expected considering the late season. I saw the patients in two of the dining-rooms at dinner, at which an excellent meal of soup, with boiled beef and potatoes and turnips, was served in an orderly and proper manner.

Licensed House for the Insane, Cook's River.

On 31st December, 1885, there were 150 patients in this Institution (10 males and 140 females). During 1886, 19 patients (6 males and 13 females) were admitted, and 5 (all females) were transferred from other Institutions, making a total of 174 (16 males and 158 females) under care and treatment. Of these 4 were discharged recovered and 3 relieved, 72 were transferred to Callan Park, and 4 died, leaving 91 (13 males and 78 females) at the close of the year. The percentage of recoveries was 21·05, and of those discharged relieved 15·78, both counted on the admissions. The deaths give a percentage of 4·59 on the average number resident. At the close of the year 13 males and 23 females were private patients, and 50 females were maintained at the expense of the Government. The number of private patients has greatly increased, and is now larger than at any time in the history of the Institution. The removal of a number of the Government patients has enabled the Medical Superintendent to classify the private patients better and to give them more space and otherwise add to their comfort.

The Institution was visited about once a month by the official visitors, Sir Alfred Roberts, Dr. Cox, and Mr. C. J. Manning, whose reports call for no special comment, and I paid visits of inspection on February 10th, March 31st, May 26th, August 30th, October 15th, and December 3rd. At each of my visits I saw and and signed the Statutory books, examined the papers on which all new patients were received, and saw and spoke to such patients, so as to assure myself that they were fit subjects for care and treatment. I have on two occasions checked the registers and seen every patient, and at every visit have seen and spoken to the majority of them and given all who so desired an opportunity of speaking to me at length.

The complaints have been few and infrequent.

The general health of the inmates has been good; there has only been one serious accident—a wound of the eyeball by a piece of glass,—and during the last ten months of the year restraint was not employed in any instance.

The rooms occupied by the inmates have been clean and in good order at all my visits, and several minor improvements have been made in the general arrangements.

The Medical Superintendent has taken steps towards fulfilling the special conditions under which the license was renewed. A new kitchen and laundry, with all necessary offices, are in progress, and are nearly ready for occupation. They are spacious and well arranged, and will be a great and much-needed improvement on the existing arrangements. A plan of the building, showing the measurement of the various rooms, the number of inmates proposed for each, and the mode in which it is proposed to allot the patients of the different sexes, so as to carry out the separation and privacy necessary and ensure the air space required, was submitted by the Medical Superintendent on December 21st, and is still under consideration.

No steps have yet been taken to obtain a water supply from the Sydney mains, for the sufficient reason that these mains have not yet been laid along the Cook's River Road.

In the meantime, and as the water supply and the arrangements for extinguishing fire do not appear satisfactory, especially as a number of buildings are of wood, Mr. Bear, the Superintendent of Metropolitan Fire Brigades, was requested to examine and report on this question. The following are extracts from Mr. Bear's report:—

The precautions taken for the protection of these buildings against fire are very inadequate, considering their inflammability. In the one case there is a force-pump fixed on the outside of one of the buildings with hose, branch, &c.; in another part of the premises there is a portable engine, with suction pipe to a large underground well. The couplings of the hose are defective, so much so that they are of different threads, and are also very much worn. This alone would be the means of causing a confusion in the dark, if a fire was to happen during the night. Besides these arrangements, there are one or two smaller India-rubber pipes to be used from some of the taps used for domestic purposes, but the head of water is not sufficient for the purpose of extinguishing a fire in such buildings, there is also a portable hand-pump. My opinion is, that it is a great question whether any of these appliances would be effective in case of fire, as the heat from such inflammable buildings would probably be too intense to allow any person getting close enough to put the water on.

For the better protection of these buildings in the future, I should recommend a water-main of 2½ inches in diameter to be taken from the tank which is about to be erected on the new buildings, and to be distributed throughout the premises, mounting water valves with hose and branches attached in convenient places, and, if possible, protected in case of fire from the heat to enable any person to use them. I should also recommend that when the new water-mains are being extended along the Cook's River Road by the Corporation at the commencement of next year, that a 3-inch water-main be taken from it to the 2½-inch water-main before spoken of at the intersection of the connection to the tank. This water-main would then give sufficient pressure to command the whole of the buildings; at the same time they would have the tank pressure to fall back upon in case of an accident to the local water-mains.

The recommendations made by Mr. Bear should, I think, be carried out as soon as possible.

The following tables give the main statistics for the year:—

APPENDIX A.

The Medical Superintendent, Hospital for the Insane, Gladcsville, to The Inspector-General of the Insane.

Sir,

Hospital for the Insane, Gladcsville, 24 January, 1887.

I have the honor to forward, for your information, a report upon this Hospital for the year 1886, together with the usual statistical tables.

At the beginning of the year there were 777 patients in the Hospital. During the year 158 (113 men and 45 women) were admitted. The whole number under treatment was 935, and the average number resident, 731. There were discharged 192, of whom 116 had recovered, 4 were relieved, 6 were transferred to other Hospitals, 2 escaped, and 64 died. There remained at the close of the year 472 men and 271 women, a total of 743.

The statistics of the Hospital are given in full in the accompanying tables, and with the exception of the recovery rates call for no special comment. The proportion of recoveries this year was very large, being 76.82 per cent. This is a highly satisfactory result, but though due in part to the large number of patients discharged, it is also affected to some extent by the reduction in the number of admissions consequent on the opening of the new wards at Callan Park. In this connection it is satisfactory to note that the readmissions only number 21, and that of those granted leave of absence 38 were discharged, and only 17 returned to Hospital.

A considerable amount of work has been done by the Hospital Staff and by the patients; the dam has been still further enlarged, new pig-styes have been erected, and a dam commenced to supply them with water, a large and commodious sewing-room built, and extensive additions have been made to the farm and garden land.

Under the Colonial Architect's direction the bath-house has been covered in, a new boiler for the kitchen and laundry supplied, a cottage for the use of the night attendants built, the fencing of the reserve continued, and repairs to the permanent structure have been effected. There are still several necessary works waiting, and it is hoped that during the current year these may be undertaken.

The gasworks erected in 1885 by the Colonial Architect have been in constant use during the year. The improvement in the lighting of the building since the introduction of gas is very great, but as might be expected the cost is greater than kerosene. This is due partly to the increase in the number of lights used, as it is possible to have lights during the night in dormitories and other places where before the risk of accident was so great as to prohibit their use, and partly to the difficulty of manufacturing gas in small quantities at a cheap rate.

Attention must again be called to the water supply at the Hospital. During the past two years the patients have been employed in enlarging the reservoirs, thereby increasing their capacity by 1,000,000 gallons. They now contain when full  $3\frac{1}{2}$  million gallons, sufficient for four months supply, but as even a slight rain increases the amount of water in the dam it is only in very dry seasons that actual scarcity occurs. The quality of the water is, however, very bad. The watershed—not a very large one—is covered with houses, their drainage running into the creek and polluting the water. The use of this water by the patients has been in time past the cause of cases of typhoid fever, hydatid disease, and diarrhœa, and it is only by exercising the greatest care that more illness does not occur. For some years this impure water has been reserved for washing in the laundry and wards, and for use in the garden and grounds, rain-water from underground tanks being used for cooking and drinking. As however the dam water is used in the wards for washing, &c., it is not always possible to prevent insane patients drinking it, and until a purer supply is furnished risk to the patients from this source is unavoidable.

The remedy for this lies in an early extension of the Nepean water to the Hospital; and as this can readily be done by the Parramatta River Bridge I venture to hope that the question will receive early consideration.

The following donations have been received, and I take this opportunity of thanking the donors for their gifts:—Illustrated papers have been sent by Mr. E. O. Smith, Mr. J. H. Adger, Miss Bedford, Mrs. T. Salter, Miss Walker, of Yaralla, and Mrs. Rose. Dr. Cox sent a cockatoo, Mr. R. Terry, Mrs. Darvall, and Rev. S. Wilkinson, donations of oranges; Mrs. Gerard, a number of surgical instruments; from the Hon. James Norton we received £21; from Mrs. T. Salter, £15; from Mrs. Mansfield, £1; from the trustees of the late Mr. Struth, £50; and from an anonymous friend, £12.

A Christmas tree was the source of great pleasure to the female patients, and owing to the kindness of the ladies who made articles for it or sent donations of money to purchase presents, it was possible to give every patient two or more presents.

I have also, on behalf of the Hospital, to tender thanks to those who kindly gave entertainments, theatrical performances, and concerts, viz.:—Rev. Samuel Wilkinson and friends, Mrs. Moulton and friends, Mr. Cole and friends, Mr. A. W. Green and friends, the band of H.M.S. "Opal," the band of H.M.S. "Nelson," the Owl Club, the Suburban Bicycle Club Minstrels, the Fisk Jubilee Singers, the Commercial Amateur Minstrels, and the Gladcsville Amateur Minstrels.

The proprietors of the following newspapers:—Australian Churchman, Bathurst Free Press, Bega Gazette, Deniliquin Chronicle, Weekly Advocate, Bathurst Daily Times, Burrangong Argus, Dubbo Dispatch, Goulburn Herald, Maitland Mercury, Queanbeyan Age, Monaro Mercury, Southern Argus, Wagga Advertiser, Wagga Express, Western Post, Yass Courier, Social Reformer, St. Leonard's Recorder, and Sydney Daily Telegraph—have generously forwarded a copy of each issue free during the year.

To Dr. Ross, who performed all the duties of Medical Superintendent during my absence on leave during half the year, Mr. Botts, and the rest of the officers and staff, I beg to tender my thanks for the willing and efficient assistance they have rendered to me during the year.

I have, &c.,

ERIC SINCLAIR,
Medical Superintendent.

APPENDIX B.

The Medical Superintendent, Hospital for the Insane, Parramatta, to The Inspector-General of the Insane.

Sir,

Hospital for the Insane, Parramatta, 1 February, 1887.

I do myself the honor to forward, for your information, a report upon this Hospital for the year 1886, together with the usual statistical tables.

On the 31st of December, 1885, there were 963 patients in the Hospital (606 men and 357 women), and 91 patients were admitted during the year (67 men and 24 women), giving a total of 1,054 (673 men and 381 women) under care and treatment. 41 patients were discharged recovered, 7 transferred to other hospitals, 2 were discharged relieved, 2 escaped and were not recaptured, and 46 died, leaving a total of 956 (609 men and 347 women) on the 31st December, 1886. The admissions for the year 1886 show a slight falling off as compared with the admissions of the previous year, being 83 in the latter and 71 in the former. The total number of patients transferred from other Institutions was 20 (17 men and 3 women). The percentage of recoveries on the total number of admissions and readmissions during the year is more satisfactory than it was in 1885, being 57.74. The percentage of deaths calculated on the average number resident is again very low, being 4.80, and that notwithstanding the large proportion of aged people among the inmates. No accidents, attended with serious results, have occurred, and those that have taken place have been reported to you in the usual manner. In all cases of sudden death the District Coroner has been communicated with, but these have been rare, and in no instance did he consider it necessary to hold an inquiry. As the death-rate proves, the general health of the inmates has, on the whole, been satisfactory, and by reference to table 4 it will be seen that in those instances in which death has taken place it has not been attributable to any epidemic or readily preventible cause. The general appearance of the Hospital is improving year by year as the trees and shrubs planted in the grounds are becoming larger. In my last report I suggested the advisability of replacing the shingles, with which the weatherboard buildings for male patients are covered, with iron, but so far no steps have been taken to do this; the shingles have been renewed in places, but that does not obviate the danger which might arise from some of them becoming ignited by a spark falling from one of the adjacent chimneys.

The weatherboard buildings occupied by the women sadly require repainting. The hospital and epileptic wards and the detached buildings in No. 4 yard is still in existence, and year by year become more decayed and unfit for occupation by the poor unfortunates who are placed in them; the flooring-boards and joists in some places are rotten; they have been repaired time after time and are now beyond it. The shingle-roofs harbor vermin, and it is an absolute impossibility to keep the buildings in a clean and orderly condition. A large party of patients are still employed clearing out the bed of the river at the back of the Hospital, and I have no doubt that it will be fully twelve months before the whole of the work to be done is completed. Other patients have been engaged in various occupations, some in the garden and grounds and others in the laundry, wood-yard, kitchen, stores, farm, &c.

The customary Sunday services have been conducted both morning and evening. I again wish to point out the serious disadvantages this Hospital labours under in having no convenient room for holding Divine service, or for use as a recreation-hall. Lady and gentlemen amateurs have frequently offered their services in promoting the enjoyment of the patients with concerts, theatricals, &c., but in many cases I have been unable to avail myself of their kindness on account of having no suitable and convenient building in which to hold the performances. Even the winter dances are attended with a large amount of serious discomfort to every one engaged in them. At present they take place in one of the patients' dining-rooms, which is not at all adapted to the purpose, in addition to which it is a considerable distance

APPENDIX C.

The Medical Superintendent, Hospital for the Criminal Insane, Parramatta, to the Inspector-General of the Insane.

Sir, Hospital for the Criminal Insane, Parramatta, 27 January, 1887.

I do myself the honor to forward, for your information, a report upon this Hospital for the year 1886, together with the usual statistical tables.

The number of patients on the 31st of December, 1885, was 48 men and 7 women (total, 55), and 21 men and 1 woman were admitted during the year, making the total under care in 1886, 69 men and 8 women; total, 77. Six men were discharged to gaol. recovered; 14 were transferred to the Free Division, and 1 escaped and was not recaptured, making the total of removals during the year 21, and deducting these from the total number under care, leaves 48 men and 8 women in the Hospital on the 31st December, 1886, being 1 more than the preceding year.

The

The following table shows the classification of the crimes of patients remaining in the Hospital for the Criminal Insane at Parramatta on the 31st of December, 1886:—

One patient managed to elude the vigilance of the attendant in charge of a working party, and has not since been heard of. The attendants and police made every effort for weeks afterwards to effect his capture, but without success.

I am glad to be in a position to report the completion of the new bath-room, which was so urgently needed in this division, and the expectations formed of its utility and convenience have been fully realised.

The ventilation of the single rooms is, however, in the same deplorable condition, nothing having yet been done to remedy the defects or carry out the suggestions contained in a letter written from this office nearly two years ago.

No accident of serious import has occurred during the year, and the patients have been singularly free from excitement of all kinds. The two airing-courts still maintain that neat and orderly appearance which has characterised them for some years past, attendants and patients both taking pride in keeping the flower gardens and turf in order.

A large proportion of the patients from this division have been usefully occupied in bringing under cultivation the large space of ground from which the old buildings for female patients were removed about two years ago; and I hope that at the end of 1887 it will be in full working order, and produce sufficient to supply the wants of the whole Institution as regards lettuce, herbs, &c.

The general health of the patients has been good, and no death has occurred during the year.

The following is a Table showing the Admissions, Discharges, and Deaths, with the Mean Annual Mortality and the Proportion of Recoveries, &c., per cent., at the Hospital for the Criminal Insane, Parramatta, for the years 1876 to 1886 inclusive:—

APPENDIX D.

The Medical Superintendent, Hospital for the Insane, Callan Park, to The Inspector-General of the Insane.

Sir, Hospital for the Insane, Callan Park, 31 January, 1887.

I have the honor to submit, for your information, a report upon this Hospital for the year 1886, to which are attached the usual statistical tables.

The number of patients remaining in the Hospital on 31st of December, 1885, was 458.

During the year, 171 males and 191 females were received; of these, 166 males and 116 females were admitted for the first time, 4 males were readmitted, and 1 male and 74 females were transferred from other Hospitals, the majority of the latter coming from Bay View House, where they had been located under contract with the Government, pending the completion of this Institution.

The total number of cases under care was 819, and the average number resident 571.

The number removed during the year was 190, and are thus classed:—Recovered, 106; relieved, 13; transferred, 15; escaped, 2; and died, 54.

The escapees were both men, one was convalescent and would have been discharged in the ordinary course in a few days, and the other, though very insane and unfit in my opinion to be discharged at the time, was in no wise dangerous, and being a sailor and able to work, probably shipped to another Colony.

The number remaining on the books on 31st December, 1886, was 629, of whom 13 were absent on leave; greater advantage was taken of that section of the Act permitting leave of absence.

The total number on leave during the year was 33, and of these 9 were discharged recovered at the expiry of the term, 10 were returned to Hospital, 1 died, and 13 remained on leave at the end of the year. Leave is granted to convalescents and also to chronic cases, the latter being thus enabled to spend weeks or months with their relatives, and only returned when a change of symptoms renders Hospital care again necessary.

The percentage of recoveries on the number admitted and readmitted during the year was 37.06, viz.: 42.35 for males, and 29.31 for females, which is a very fair average, and as far as this Hospital is concerned, in advance of former years, notwithstanding the admission of a large number of chronic cases.

4 males were readmitted during the year, 3 of whom were removed by their friends against advice.

The deaths numbered 54, giving a percentage of 9.47 on the average number resident, which is a small proportion when the large number of acute cases admitted is taken into consideration.

A reference to tables 4 and 5, where the causes and length of residence are given, shows that by far the largest number occurred among those who had been in the Hospital but a few months. No deaths were due to accident or suicide.

The general health of the patients has on the whole been good. It was necessary to perform two capital operations; one man sustained an amputation of the arm for sloughing cellulitis, culminating in gangrene, and though he was in a weakly state of health, and convalescence was slow, he eventually made a good recovery. In the other case it was necessary to open a knee joint for abscess. The patient eventually died from meningitis and exhaustion.

The year did not pass without leaving a gap in the ranks by the death from erysipelas of Sarah Higgins, a valued and faithful servant of the Institution for nine years.

A fair average of patients of both sexes have been usefully employed in the various workshops and offices about the building and in the grounds. More land has been prepared for plantation and gardens; an artificial lake has been excavated in the eastern front, which, when completed and planted round with ornamental trees, will form a feature in the landscape.

A great many tons of silt, dredged from the harbour, have been deposited in the reclaimed area at the foot of the kitchen garden by the Harbour and Rivers Department, and I hope soon to be in a position to have this spread, and thus secure a large and much needed addition to the garden.

The proportion of those attending Divine Service was much larger than in former years, the increase being chiefly due to the interest displayed by my colleague, Dr. Miles, who also organized a weekly choir practice, whereby the singing was much improved and more variety introduced into the service. I have again to thank Mr. Frederick Russell for playing the harmonium on Sundays, and a patient who kindly officiated on practice nights.

As regards amusement and change for the patients, picnics, fortnightly dances, and trips in the steam launch were much appreciated. Fortnightly dances were held in the winter, whereas formerly we were, through the courtesy of the medical superintendent, indebted to Gladesville for this amusement, we were enabled this year to welcome a party from that Hospital at our dances, while we still kept up the old custom of attending theirs.

In 1885 Mr. Bear, Superintendent of Fire Brigades, inspected the Hospital, and issued a report as to its better protection from fire. He made many valuable suggestions, which have been carried out, and kindly sent an instructor once a fortnight to teach the local brigade of attendants. This officer evidently took a great interest in his work, and brought the attendants up to a very creditable standard of efficiency.

The water supply has at times caused much anxiety, owing to low pressure and the scanty supply from the Sydney mains and the small rainfall. I hope, however, the supply will in a few weeks be procured from the Petersham reservoir, when a better service may be anticipated.

Early in the year Dr. Grant resigned, through ill-health, his appointment as Assistant Medical Officer, and was succeeded, after an interval of a few months, by Dr. Miles, whom I have to thank for ably seconding me in maintaining the discipline and usefulness of the Institution.

Of the other officers I am glad to be able to report in a very favourable manner.

A new departure was made in 1885 by the appointment of a trained nurse to the hospital ward on the male side, and I purposely refrained from commenting on this until I had more evidence as to how the arrangement would answer. I now have pleasure in stating that it has worked very satisfactorily; bed sores are of less frequency, better attention is paid to such as are physically ailing, and more tidiness and order prevail.

Thanks

Thanks are due to Messrs. Huenerbein and friends, who kindly gave a concert early in the year ; to the Rev. Spencer Wilkinson and his friends, who rendered a Service of Sacred Song ; to those officers, nurses, and attendants who devoted much time to learn a farce, the performance of which afforded much enjoyment to the patients ; and to those other ladies and gentlemen who kindly gave their services in dramatic and other entertainments ; and the Naval Artillery Band, for an afternoon performance.

I have to acknowledge the following donations with thanks :—Through Dr. Manning, £1 1s., passed to donation account ; several cases of oranges, Rev. S. Wilkinson ; rose-plants and cuttings, Mrs. Dickson ; a handsome fire-guard, Mr. R. Smith ; several novels, Mr. Livett ; a magpie, Mr. F. H. Blaxland ; a case of wine, Mr. Dymock ; a liberal supply of Christmas and New Year Cards, through the Secretary of the Pillow Mission.

The vacancies in the staff of attendants and nurses have been satisfactorily filled, and I have to thank all for their willing and efficient aid.

I have, &c.,
HERBERT BLAXLAND,
 Medical Superintendent.

1887.

(SECOND SESSION.)

NEW SOUTH WALES.

COAST HOSPITAL, LITTLE BAY.

(REPORT ON, FOR 1886.)

Presented to Parliament by Command.

The Medical Adviser to the Government to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Health Department, New South Wales, 25 May, 1887.

Herewith I have the honor to present my Annual Report upon the working of the Coast Hospital for the year 1886.

It having become apparent that the business of this hospital could no longer be carried on with due observance of the needs of the numerous patients by the Medical Superintendent alone, I sought from the Honorable the Colonial Secretary authority to appoint an Assistant Medical Officer, whose duties should be to dispense for the establishment, and to attend to patients under the direction of the Medical Superintendent. On April 14, Dr. W. Peirce, who had already been temporarily employed at quarantine on several occasions, was appointed to this post. On June 31 Dr. F. M. Smith, who had held the post of Medical Superintendent since December 1, 1884, tendered his resignation, and Dr. Peirce was appointed to succeed him on July 1. The filling of the assistant post vacated by Dr. Peirce I was able to delay for a few months, there being at this season of the year but few acute fever cases in the establishment, and the dispensing being light. Mr. E. G. Blaxland was appointed to it on October 9.

During the year a number of the unemployed were engaged to make roads, to clear a part of the watershed of the central dam, and to trench and lay out ground bordering several roads, with a view to plant trees along them, under the superintendence of the Director of the Botanical Gardens. The most important of these works was forming the two roads to the cemetery and to the night-soil tip, about three-quarters and half a mile in length respectively, from the hospital enclosure; these being merely sandy tracks.

There having been during the year 1885 three or four cases of typhoid fever, which arose within the institution, and it appearing to me most probable that this spread was due to the inadequate closet arrangements, and means for keeping the pans clean, I directed the Deputy Medical Adviser to prepare plans for improving these matters. The institution having, moreover, been built without any lavatory accommodation for patients, and the only available baths being placed in the central or kitchen block, and therefore very remote from several of the wards, it was necessary to take steps to supply this serious deficiency; and, month by month, this became more urgent, in proportion as the Institution more and more closely approximated to a general hospital, and diverged from its former use chiefly as a convalescent hospital. Dr. Ashburton Thompson therefore made detail sketches, which by direction of the Honorable the Colonial Secretary were transmitted to the Department of Works, and the Colonial Architect prepared working drawings from them of the proposed additions, and an estimate of £2,300 as the cost of erecting them. One nurse suffered from typhoid, apparently contracted in the course of duty within the hospital, during the present year; and I beg leave now to draw your attention to the extremely urgent character of this work. A hospital whose wards are in all cases without either closet or lavatory accommodation attached to and accessible from them, is carried on under very great difficulties, and with at least serious inconvenience to the patients.

The following tables, numbered I to IV, deal with all persons under treatment during the year, except lepers. They show that a total number of 1,278 were admitted, that 120 or 9.38 per cent. died, and that the average daily number in hospital was 146.5. The average stay in hospital was 41.6 days; and the daily cost per head is shown by table XIII to have been 3s. 2½d. Of this total number 1,086 were either admitted by me upon certificate of legally qualified practitioners, or by the Admitting Medical Officer at my office in Pitt-street.

It is necessary to point out that, although the daily cost per head for patients in this hospital was 3s. 2½d. for the year reported on, yet, in comparing this sum with that paid by Government for the maintenance of pauper patients in Metropolitan hospitals, the cost of transport (or of the ambulance service) should be deducted. The latter hospitals either have no ambulance, or charge a fee for the use of one, which covers the expense of the journey; and, in the case of the patients referred to, are under no expense of transport. The sum referred to being deducted, the average daily cost is seen to be less by 4½d. or 2s. 10d. per day.

It is also necessary to explain the prolonged average stay in hospital. This is due to the admission of a large number of cases of chronic illness which have hitherto been chiefly accommodated in the so-called hospital wards of the various Benevolent Asylums. But, during the year, I have seen reason to feel dissatisfied with the hospital arrangements in these institutions; and I have accordingly retained many persons at the Coast Hospital whose cases, while they were beyond hope of recovery, were not likely to end soon. Another source of this increase I find in the number of lock-cases (male) treated; of these there has been a daily average number of ten throughout the year, almost all of them chronic and tedious in character, and representing an expenditure of more than £550.

The total number of 1,278 patients divide into two classes: fever patients numbering 392, and general cases and convalescents (the latter from Metropolitan hospitals) numbering respectively 725 and 161. Tables V, VI, and VII deal with the fever cases. They show that the mortality upon the whole number was 13.52 per cent., and this compares very favourably with the mortality for last year, which was 17.54. Four patients, however, died within twenty-four hours of their admission, and apparently their removal should not have been recommended by the practitioner in attendance upon them at home. These being deducted, the mortality becomes 12.25 per cent.; and a similar deduction being made in the previous year with which comparison is made, the mortality of 17.54 becomes 16.37. Were the lavatory accommodation above alluded to at command, so that the means of treating these cases with baths of suitable temperature were available, I consider that the death rate might be even further reduced. Upon the occasional recommendation to remove patients, whose death soon after admission shows that they were unable to bear the journey, I had occasion to remark last year; and, although reference has thus far been made only to those who died within twenty-four hours of admission, it now becomes necessary to say these by no means include the whole number who, in the opinion of the Medical Superintendent, should not have been transported. I therefore beg leave again to draw attention to the remarks I had the honour to make upon this subject in 1885; namely, that while length of journey (under proper conditions of vehicle, driving and attendance) does not appear to be a factor in the mortality of cases of typhoid fever admitted to hospitals, this is entirely subject to the suitable state of the patient; and, that, since it is true that persons removed after the first fortnight of illness has passed bear removal, to whatever distance, less well than those removed at an earlier stage, this datum of duration of illness should receive as serious consideration as the apparent state of the patient's strength, in endeavouring to judge whether the gain of hospital treatment may not be too heavily discounted by the fatigue of the journey necessary to attain it. The delay beyond the period named named in seeking admission is no doubt due to the patient or his friends; I therefore venture to suggest that when practitioners are called to patients whose cases they see reason to think would be better treated in hospital, they should give their friends early warning that after a few days of illness their removal, if then desired, may turn out to be inadvisable. The usefulness and suitability of this department of the hospital appear to be esteemed more highly each year, if the number of admissions are deemed to warrant such a deduction; these having been for 1884, 235; for 1885, 285; and for the present year, 392. The Medical Superintendent reports that many of the typhoid cases were of a low type, and he ascribes this to foregone privation. Table VI shows that 279 of these patients were admitted by me on certificates of legally qualified medical practitioners, while 103 were admitted by the Admitting Medical Officer, at my office in Pitt-street. One came from Prince Alfred Hospital (being transmitted as a convalescent from typhoid, but suffering relapse after arrival), while the remainder were admitted direct on application to the Medical Superintendent at the Hospital. Table V shows that no less than 320 of those attacked were between the ages of 15 and 40 years—at the best time of life: that is to say, during the reproductive period, during the period of highest vitality, and during the period when the mortality from general causes is at its lowest. This behaviour is characteristic of typhoid fever; and the absolute deaths from this disease are therefore more costly to the country than would be an equal number caused by some other disease whose incidence upon the various age periods is more even. This should encourage the most strenuous efforts to abate its causes; but after all, the chief incitement to that end should be found in the fact that this is one of a few diseases which are easily preventible, and which are therefore called "the preventible diseases" par excellence.

Table VIII shows the extent to which the Hospital was taken advantage of to isolate cases of the infectious fevers, and I am happy to be able to point out that many more were sent in from many different localities than in previous years. It appears to me most important to encourage any tendency which may be shown by the public to limit the spread of these illnesses by isolation, which is the only available available means. But although I have hitherto succeeded in securing the isolation within the institution necessary to protect from infection inmates suffering other kinds of disease thus far, I have to point out that there is no such accommodation at my command as will enable me to isolate larger numbers of such cases than have on two or three occasions been present at the same time during the year; and, as it was, much difficulty was occasionally experienced. It appears to me a fit subject for consideration whether on so suitable a site special accommodation for this class of cases, not at present anywhere else available, should not be now erected. I may add, as showing in part the share taken by the Government in the prevention of disease of this class, that all persons suffering from typhoid, and from the infectious fevers, are admitted without delay on proper application; and although they are invited to contribute to their support when able to do so, the sums received on that account are but small, and a very large majority of such patients are in fact supported entirely at Government expense, although they are often very far from being paupers.

* One death.

Table IX shows the general and convalescent cases distributed under sex and age. You will observe that the mortality for the present year is very much higher than in either of the two former years, and this point requires explanation. It is due to a different distribution of the cases thus classed together under one head, under the two sub-heads "convalescent" and "general" respectively. Table X explains this clearly. It shows the proportion under the two heads for this and each of the two previous years, with the death rate; and it will be seen that the latter has risen with the proportion of general cases. But it has not risen in like proportion; it is much lower for the last than for the first year, and had it risen in proportion, the mortality for 1886 would have been, not 7·6 but about 10·5.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

PROTECTION OF THE ABORIGINES.

(ANNUAL REPORT OF THE BOARD.)

---

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 30 June, 1887.

---

The Aborigines Protection Board to The Honorable The Colonial Secretary.

Office of the Board for the Protection of the Aborigines,

Sir,

114, Phillip-street, Sydney, 3 May, 1887.

In accordance with the usual practice, we have the honor to furnish a Report of the proceedings of the Board for the Protection of the Aborigines for the year 1886, and details of expenditure of the Parliamentary vote placed at our disposal, together with information regarding the present condition of the Aboriginal race in New South Wales.

During the past year we have been deprived of the valuable services of the Honorable W. J. Foster, M.P., who found it necessary to retire, the pressure of his other public duties preventing him from devoting the attention he desired to the work of the Board, though taking a deep interest in it.

Dr. Tarrant has accepted a seat on the Board, being appointed thereto on the 20th July, 1886.

A weekly meeting of the Board has been regularly held, but matters requiring immediate attention have been dealt with at all times by the Secretary, after consulting the Chairman or other members of the Board.

The statistics of the Aboriginal population have been collected, as usual, by the police, and the subjoined tables will show the figures in the month of October last, and the changes during the preceding twelve months.

We have continued to gather information regarding the habits and means of subsistence of the tribes and families of Aborigines scattered throughout the country, and have endeavoured to the extent of the means at our disposal to render substantial assistance and comforts to them within the limits we have prescribed for our guidance, and to alleviate any real distress which has been reported to us by magistrates and other residents, or by the police, who continue to act cheerfully and ably as the agents of the Board, and without whose assistance it would be difficult for the Board to perform its duties.

The indiscriminate granting of assistance in the shape of clothing, food, and tobacco, which is commonly advocated, is by no means warranted nor advisable, there being no reason why able-bodied Aborigines should not work for their living. It is of course difficult to induce them to work persistently or to obviate the difficulty which constantly occurs by reason of the male adults of working capacity idling about the camps and consuming the rations which are supplied by the Board to the women and children, the aged, sick, and infirm of both sexes.

One of the chief objects we have had steadily in view is to afford every facility and inducement for the young of full blood and the half-castes to attend the public and private schools. There are now

384 children so attending, and it is hoped that by the instruction thereby obtained they might acquire habits of industry which would fit them to earn a livelihood amongst the community generally; but we fear that any marked success cannot be looked for in this direction, as from the nomadic habits of the people they are as a rule averse to remain for a long continued time in any fixed place or occupation, and however comfortably situated or kindly treated, will, without any apparent reason, quit their service and make for the nearest camp or join some wandering tribe.

From the experience gained from the Warangesda and Maloga Stations, we are of opinion that the establishment of Asylums or Homes for the Aborigines in many districts would be an advantage by thus providing them with retreats for the sick and aged, schools for the young, and homes for the women, furnishing the means for secluding the latter from the intrusion of depraved Europeans. They would also remove some of the facilities for obtaining intoxicants, which, under present circumstances, it seems almost hopeless to restrain thoughtless or evil-disposed persons from supplying to the Aborigines.

It is much to be desired that arrangements, too long delayed, may shortly be perfected for forming such an Asylum on the reserve consisting of 5,340 acres, granted for the purpose near Brewarrina, and also on the nine reserves on the Clarence and Richmond Rivers, consisting in the aggregate of 1,150 acres, and, further, that the requisite funds will be forthcoming for their establishment and maintenance.

We would respectfully advert to the interest exhibited by his Excellency the Governor, and by the Ministry, in the work of the Association for the Protection of the Aborigines at Warangesda and Maloga; we express our wish to co-operate with that Society, and to perform whatever duty in relation to it in addition to the dispensing the annual Parliamentary vote in aid thereto which the Government may desire.

We append hereto a statement in detail of the expenditure for the year 1886, not including the supply of blankets issued annually from the Government stores, and also a census taken in the month of October, 1886, which shows that there are 260 children, of full blood, less in 1886 than in the record of the previous year; whilst there are but thirty-four additional children in the half-castes. The chief deficiency in the full blood will probably be accounted for by the transference to adults of a larger number of individuals whose places have not been filled up by corresponding births.

We desire also to draw attention to the experiment which is being made in Victoria to enforce the absorption of the half-castes into the general population, and to express our belief that at present such an attempt here would be impracticable, but at some remote period may be effected in detail by means of the benevolent exertions of the Government, and the people of the colony in doing whatever justice can be done to this interesting but unfortunate race.

The honorary secretary of the Aborigines Protection Association has supplied the Board with a statement of population and expenditure connected with the Mission Stations at Warangesda and Maloga, which we transmit as a further appendix to this Report.

(SECOND SESSION.)

NEW SOUTH WALES.

VACCINATION.

(REPORT FOR 1886.)

Presented to Parliament by Command.

The Medical Adviser to the Government to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Sydney, 25 May, 1887.

I have the honor to forward you herewith the Annual Returns of Vaccinations performed during the year 1886 by the Government Vaccinators in New South Wales.

The returns show that 1,753 public vaccinations were performed, as against 2,193 in the year 1885 and 7,055 in 1884.

I append a return showing the number of births during each of the past twenty-six years, and the number of vaccinations performed at the public cost during corresponding periods. From this return it will be seen that the number of vaccinations performed last year is the lowest for the period, with the exception of the year 1883, when only 882 public vaccinations took place. It will also be seen that, whereas the number of births for the period amounted to 601,965, only 235,429 were vaccinated by the public vaccinators. From this it is evident that a very large proportion of the population is unprotected from the attacks of small-pox, a circumstance which I cannot regard without feelings of great alarm when I consider the great danger of that loathsome disease being introduced by the frequent and rapid communication which now exists between Australia and other parts of the world.

I have, &amp;c.,

H. N. MACLAURIN, M.D.

FISHERIES COMMISSION.

(PARTICULARS RESPECTING.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 7 June, 1887.[Laid upon the Table in accordance with promise made in answer to Question No. 5, Votes No. 41, of Tuesday, 7th June, 1887.]

MR. McELHONE asked THE COLONIAL SECRETARY,—

- (1.) How many members constitute the Fisheries Commission, their names, and when appointed?
- (2.) How many meetings have been held by the Commissioners from the 1st day of January to the 1st day of May of the present year; and, during the same period, how many meetings have lapsed for want of a quorum?
- (3.) What number of employés are there in the Department, the nature of their employment respectively, and the amount of salary paid to each officer, and the total expenditure of the Commission annually during the last five years?
- (4.) The amount of revenue received by the Department annually during the last five years?
- (5.) The amount paid for a steam launch for the use of the Commission, for what purpose is the said steam launch used, and on how many occasions have the subordinate officers of the Department been on active service in it?
- (6.) How many Commissioners have been appointed, and the number resigned since the initiation of the Commission, and the names of each respectively?
- (7.) What amount of money was lately expended by persons employed by the Commission as experts to examine into an alleged disease supposed to exist among oysters, the names of the persons so employed, the results obtained by them, and what rivers were examined by the aforesaid experts?

SIR HENRY PARKES answered,—I will, during the evening, lay upon the Table a Return, giving this information.

Mr. G. G. Benson, Inspector for the Southern Division of Fisheries.

Mr. A. Gyler, Assistant Inspector of Fisheries at the Manning River.

Detailed reports on the state of the oyster deposits in the Hunter and Hawkesbury, the only rivers so far examined, have been furnished. From these reports it appears that a large percentage of oysters have been destroyed by the worm disease, and further, that the accumulation on the foreshores and in the river-beds of mud, slime, and marine growth has prevented the spat attaching.

(SECOND SESSION.)

NEW SOUTH WALES.

IMMIGRATION.

(REPORT FROM AGENT FOR 1886.)

Presented to Parliament by Command.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 28 February, 1887.

I have the honor to submit, for the information of the Colonial Secretary, my Report on Immigration for the year ending 31st December, 1886.

The acceptance of deposits from residents in the Colony was stopped on the 17th March, 1886. It was subsequently permitted in favour of husbands being residents in the Colony, who wished to send for their wives and children. On the 5th October following, instructions were received, directing that no further deposits should be accepted.

Seven steamers arrived with immigrants during the year. The total number who embarked at Plymouth was 4,088. During the voyage there occurred 9 births, making a total of 4,097 souls. Of this number 1,891 nominated in the Colony, and 2,190 selected by the Agent-General, together 4,081, were landed, there having occurred 16 deaths at sea, viz., 1 adult, and 15 children under 2 years of age.

Two hundred and fifty-three married women with their children, coming to join their husbands, and 1,335 single women were received at the Immigration Depot.

Of the 1,335 single women only 401 were willing to hire as domestic servants; these readily obtained employment at an average rate of wages of 10s. 6d. per week; the remaining 934 were discharged either to their relatives, who had nominated them, or to their friends.

Many of the immigrants held drafts on the Bank of New South Wales, amounting to a total of £3,313 17s. This sum, however, is irrespective of bank drafts and moneys held by them, of which I was unable to obtain any correct information.

The Appendices herewith annexed give full detailed information relative to immigration during the past year:—

- A.—General statistical information.
- B.—Nationality of immigrants.
- C.—Religious persuasions.
- D.—Educational attainments.
- E.—Trades and callings.
- F.—Distribution into country districts.

I have, &amp;c.,

GEORGE F. WISE,

Agent for Immigration.

IMMIGRATION.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Reporting the arrival of the steamship "Port Victor," and the disposal of the Immigrants by that vessel.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 7 February, 1887.

I have the honor to report the arrival, on the 23rd ultimo, of the steamship "Port Victor," from Plymouth, with 689 Immigrants, having left that port on the 4th December, 1886, thus completing the voyage in 50 days.

The contract price as per charter-party, is at the rate of £15 for 400 statute adults, and of £14 10s. for the remainder.

2. The vessel on arrival was found to be in good order, and all arrangements for the comfort of the Immigrants were very satisfactory. As there had been no sickness during the voyage, the steamer was allowed immediate pratique, and proceeded to her moorings at Neutral Bay.

The steamer called at La Palmas, also at the Cape for coal.

3. The Immigrants by this steamer consisted of 9 married couples, 56 single men, 331 women, inclusive of 114 wives come to join their husbands, and 284 children. Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £1,148 paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £224 was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,372 paid by the Immigrants, or by their friends, towards the cost of their passage.

A few only of the Immigrants held drafts on the Bank of New South Wales, amounting to a total of £196 13s. This sum is irrespective of bank drafts or of monies held by them, of which I was unable to obtain any information.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the Immigrants. During the voyage there occurred one death, of an infant, and one birth.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the Immigrants, on board the steamer, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage, and with the sufficient quantity and good quality of the provisions issued to them.

6. The wives (114) who had come to join their husbands with their children, and the single women were, as usual, received into the Dépôt, whence a large number were immediately discharged to their husbands and friends, leaving only 27 who were willing to engage as domestic servants, these obtained wages at an average rate of 10s. per week.

7. Free passes by rail and by steamer were issued to those who wished to avail themselves of this privilege, as shown in the following

These proceeded to 31 different localities. The remainder of the Immigrants left the ship without notifying their proposed destination.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, L. R. Huxtable, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties most satisfactorily. In accordance therefore with the minute of the Colonial Secretary, Dr. Huxtable is entitled to receive a gratuity to the amount of £347 5s.

Dr. Huxtable is also entitled to be provided with a first-class return passage to England in one of the Orient line of steamers.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the matron, Miss Chieken, "performed her duties admirably," and considers her worthy to receive an extra gratuity. It is therefore recommended by the Board of Immigration, that in addition to the usual payment of £40, she should receive an additional gratuity of £20 for this her nineteenth voyage in charge of female Immigrants; also in consideration of her having charge of the very large number of women and children (a total of 577); also that she be provided with a second-class return passage to London.

10. Other gratuities, as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General, are payable as follows:—Schoolmaster, £3; hospital assistant, £3; lamp-trimmer, £3; w.c. constable, £5; 5 single women's constables (each £3), £15; 2 single men's constables (each £2), £4; 4 married women's constables (each £3), £12; 8 sub-matrons (each £2), £16. And under special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, 2 nurses (each £5), £10. Total, £71.

11. In accordance with the minute of the Colonial Secretary, dated 22nd July, 1885, the Board of Immigration disbursed the amount of £40 placed at their disposal, in the following manner:—To the captain, £14; chief officer, £9; purser, £5; baker, £3; cook, £3; cook's assistant, £2; storkeeper, £4; total, £40.

12. The Agent-General appointed a dispenser, of whom Dr. Huxtable reports that he discharged his duties satisfactorily; he is therefore entitled to receive a gratuity of £30, also a second-class passage to England, should he elect to return within three months from date of his arrival in Sydney.

13. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the general health of the Immigrants during the voyage was good. The only disease of which he takes notice was mumps.

14. Dr. Huxtable states that there was an abundant supply of good water during the whole voyage.

The Agent-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

5, Westminster Chambers, Westminster, S.W., 4 February, 1887.

I have the honor to advise you of the sailing of the "Abyssinia" on the 31st ultimo, with 608 Emigrants on board, equal to 490 statute adults, and to enclose herewith:—

- (1.) Alphabetical list of Emigrants, giving names, ages, and occupations, together with the total sum received in this Department for passage money of applicants selected by me, and the amounts received where insufficient deposits have been made in the Colony on account of relatives desirous of accompanying their respective families. These sums have been paid into the London and Westminster Bank.
- (2.) A Return of the number of Emigrants embarked in the "Abyssinia," distinguishing those nominated in the Colony from the applicants selected in this country, also showing their various nationalities.
- (3.) A list of Emigrants per "Abyssinia" who obtained at Plymouth Bank drafts payable in Sydney for the amounts set against their respective names.
- (4.) Copy of Dr. Molyneux's report of his examination of the Emigrants at the Plymouth Depôt, together with certificates given by that officer relative to their embarkation, and of his inspection of the medicine-chest, provisions, and the accommodation provided for the Emigrants during the voyage.
- (5.) Copy of letters of appointment sent to the surgeon, matron, and assistant matron, showing the terms of remuneration, and conditions under which such appointments were made; also of a letter of instructions addressed to the surgeon relative to the fitting of the "Abyssinia" in London.
- (6.) Copy of certificates relative to the condensing apparatus, supply of fresh water and coals, and of the condition of the ship's water tanks before being filled.

I have, &amp;c.,

SAUL SAMUEL.

The Agent for Immigration to The Principal Under Secretary.

Reporting the arrival of the steamship "Abyssinia," and the disposal of the Immigrants by that vessel.

Sir,

Immigration Office, Sydney, 18 April, 1887.

I have the honor to report the arrival, on the 24th March, of the steamship "Abyssinia" from Plymouth, with 602 Immigrants, having left that port on the 31st January, 1887, thus completing the voyage in fifty-three days.

The contract price, as per charter-party, is at the rate of £15 for 400 statute adults, and £14 10s. for the remainder.

2. Shortly after arrival at Watson's Bay the steamer was inspected by the Health Officer, and on account of the prevalence of scarlet-fever during the voyage the vessel was placed in quarantine. A number of the married people and children who were not considered convalescent were landed at the Quarantine Station, and were not finally released therefrom until the 8th April. A few of the female Immigrants were sent to the Little Bay Hospital. The steamer was subsequently thoroughly fumigated, and was released on Tuesday, 29th March.

The Board of Immigration inspected the steamer that day of her arrival at Neutral Bay, and found that all arrangements for the comfort and convenience of the Emigrants during the voyage had been most carefully attended to.

The steamer called at Teneriffe and at the Cape for coals.

3. The Immigrants by this vessel consisted of 12 married couples, 48 single men, 311 women, inclusive of 74 wives come to join their husbands, and 219 children. Their nationality is noted in the margin.

In addition to the sum of £544 paid by depositors in the Colony, a further sum of £689 was paid direct to the Agent-General in London, making a total of £1,233 paid by the Immigrants, or by their friends, towards the cost of their passage.

A few only of the Immigrants held drafts on the Bank of New South Wales, amounting to a total of £518 15s. This sum is irrespective of bank drafts or of moneys held by them, of which I was unable to obtain any information.

4. Hereto is annexed an abstract return of the disposal of the Immigrants. During the voyage there occurred eight deaths of children, aged from 6 to 27 months, and two births.

5. On examination by the Board of Immigration of the Immigrants on board the steamer, all expressed themselves well satisfied with their treatment during the voyage, and with the sufficient quantity and good quality of the provisions issued to them.

6. The wives (74) who had come to join their husbands with their children, and the single women were, as usual, received into the Depôt, whence a large number were immediately discharged to their husbands and friends, leaving only 87 who were willing to engage as domestic servants, these obtained wages at an average rate of 9s. 6d. per week.

These proceeded to forty-two different localities. The remainder of the Immigrants left the ship without notifying their proposed destinations.

8. The Surgeon-superintendent, J. F. Molyneux, Esq., appears to have discharged his duties most satisfactorily. In accordance with the letter of instructions from the Agent-General, Dr. Molyneux is entitled to receive a gratuity to the amount of £301.

Dr. Molyneux is also entitled to be provided with a first-class return passage to England in one of the Orient line of steamers.

9. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the matron, Mrs. Stevens, and the assistant matron, Mrs. Egar, performed their respective duties to his entire satisfaction, and he suggests to the Immigration Board that "special gratuities should be paid to these matrons." In addition therefore to the promised gratuity of £40 payable to Mrs. Stevens, and of £25 payable to Mrs. Egar, it is recommended that each one should receive an extra gratuity of £20. Mrs. Stevens had under her charge 237 single women, and Mrs. Egar had the charge of 74 wives coming to join their husbands, and of their 184 young children.

10. Other gratuities, as per letter of instructions from the Agent-General, are payable as follows:—To the schoolmaster, £5; hospital assistant, £3; lamp-trimmer, £3; w.c. constable, £5; 9 single women's constables (each £3), £27; 3 single men's constables (each £2), £6; 1 married women's constable £2; 6 sub-matrons (each £2), £12. And upon the special recommendation of the Surgeon-superintendent, 2 nurses (each £5), £10. Total, £73. Also on the recommendation of the Health Officer, sundry payments at the Quarantine Station, £13.

11. In accordance with the minute of the Colonial Secretary, dated 22nd July, 1885, the Board of Immigration disbursed the amount of £40 placed at their disposal, in the following manner:—To the captain, £18; chief officer, £9; purser, £4; storekeeper, £3; baker, £2; cook, £2; carpenter, £2; total, £40.

12. The Agent-General appointed a dispenser, of whom Dr. Molyneux reports that he discharged his duties to his satisfaction; he is therefore entitled to receive the promised gratuity of £20, also a second-class passage to England, should he elect to return within three months from date of his arrival in Sydney.

13. The Surgeon-superintendent reports that the general health of the Immigrants during the voyage was satisfactory, but that there were two or three mild cases of scarlatina.

14. Dr. Molyneux states that there was good and ample supply of water throughout the voyage.

MUNICIPAL ASSOCIATION.

(OPINION OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL AS TO LEGALITY OF PAYMENT OF SUBSCRIPTION BY JUNEE BOROUGH COUNCIL.)

---

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 31 May, 1887.

---

VOTES No. 19. 13 APRIL, 1887.

(15.) Municipal Association:—Mr. Hawken asked the Colonial Secretary,—

- (1.) Is he aware that in the Abstract of Expenditure for the Borough of Junee, from 2nd of August to 1st February last, as published in the Government Gazette, dated 1st April, an item appears of £5 5s., purporting to be a sum paid to a certain Association calling itself the Municipal Association, such being paid to enable the aforesaid Council to belong to the so-called Municipal Association?
- (2.) Will he place the fact of such payment under the notice of the Attorney-General for his opinion as to the legality of such payment?
- (3.) Will he cause to be forwarded to the Council of Junee, if the payment from the Borough Council to the Municipal Association is deemed illegal, notice of that opinion?
- (4.) Does the Borough Council of Junee receive endowment from the Government?
- (5.) Will he cause to be ascertained from the published Abstract in the Government Gazette whether the sum of upwards of £1,500 has not been paid to the said so-called Municipal Association by the several Municipal Councils indicated?
- (6.) In the event of the Attorney-General deciding that these payments are illegal, will he intimate to the Councils that such payments must cease?

Sir Henry Parkes answered,—I find, from an Abstract published in the Gazette of the date named, that a sum of five guineas was paid by the Junee Municipal Council to Municipal Association. So far as my own opinion goes, I hardly see how we can interfere, if any municipal body chooses to pay its money to this Association; but I will submit the whole matter to the Attorney-General, and if I am called upon to take any step in the matter, on the Attorney-General's opinion, I will take that step. In the meantime I will transmit a copy of the Attorney-General's opinion to the Municipal Council of Junee.

OPINION OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

Subject:—As to legality of payment by Junee Borough Council of subscription to Municipal Association. THE Crown Solicitor having placed the rules of the Municipal Association of New South Wales before me for advice whether Municipalities can lawfully subscribe to it, I can only say that, assuming such Municipalities believe they are expending the five guineas subscription for the purpose of obtaining an adequate return beneficial to the ratepayers of the Municipality, I have nothing before me to show that they are wrong, and if this be so I am unable to say that the payment is illegal.

The professed objects of the Association appear to be legal, and intended to promote the interests of such Municipalities as may become members.

If there be anything making these payments illegal it must be open to any ratepayer who is thereby wronged to obtain a legal decision of a competent Court upon the subject. An opinion of the Attorney-General or any other Counsel would not legally decide the matter.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

VACANT AND UNIMPROVED LANDS WITHIN
MUNICIPALITIES.

(PETITION FROM MAYOR AND ALDERMEN OF ST. PETERS.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 20 April, 1887.

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, in Parliament now assembled.

The humble Petition of the undersigned Aldermen of the Council of the Municipal District of St. Peters,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH:—

That the existing Municipalities Act of 1867, nor any of its amendments, contains no provision whatever enabling the Councils of Municipalities to sell, lease, or otherwise deal with vacant or unimproved lands within the area of any Municipality; the owners thereof are unknown to the Councils thereof; and upon or in respect of which lands arrears of rates are due for a period of ten years and upwards.

That it is very desirable that Municipal Councils should be vested with statutory power to lease sell, or otherwise deal with such lands.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that your Honorable House will take the foregoing premises into consideration, and enact an amendment to the existing law-giving Municipal Councils the powers above referred to.

And your Petitioners will ever pray.

1887.
(SECOND SESSION.)

NEW SOUTH WALES.

MUNICIPALITIES.
(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF BOWRAL—BY-LAWS)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 3rd February, 1887.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF BOWRAL—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Bowral, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

GEORGE R. DIBBS.

BY-LAWS OF THE BOWRAL MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

PART I.

Meetings of the Council.

Ordinary meetings.

1. The Council shall meet for the despatch of business at such hour in the evening as its members may from time to time determine, upon motion after due notice, on every alternate Friday, unless such day shall happen to be a public holiday. In the latter case the meeting shall be held on such other day as the Mayor may appoint.

Election of Chairman in absence of Mayor.

2. If at any meeting of the Council the Mayor be absent at the expiration of fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding such meeting, the Aldermen then present shall proceed to elect from among themselves a Chairman for such meeting.

Adjournment for want of a quorum.

3. In the event of a quorum not being present at any meeting of the Council within half-an-hour after the time appointed for the holding of such meeting, the names of the Aldermen then present shall be entered in the minute book by the Council Clerk, and the meeting shall lapse. Should it appear at any time during the holding of any meeting that there is not a quorum of members present, the Mayor shall have power to adjourn such meeting or intended meeting to some other time.

Order of Business.

4. The following shall be the order of business at all meetings of the Council, other than special meetings:—

- a. The minutes of the last preceding meeting to be read, corrected (if erroneous), and verified by the signature of the Mayor or other Chairman. No discussion to be permitted on such minutes, except as to whether they are correct.
- b. Petitions (if any) to be presented and dealt with.
- c. Correspondence to be read and, if necessary, to be dealt with.
- d. Reports from committees and minutes from the Mayor to be received.

- e. Questions as to any matters under the jurisdiction or within the official cognizance of the Council to be put and replied to, and statements as to any facts, matters, or circumstances requiring attention by the Council, or any of the committees or officers to be made, or any other special business, but shall not be debated.
- f. Motions of which notice has been given, to be dealt with in the order in which they stand on the business paper.
- g. Orders of the day to be disposed of as they stand on the business paper.

Business at special meetings.

5. At special meetings of the Council the business, after the minutes shall have been read and confirmed, which shall be done in the same manner as at an ordinary meeting, shall be taken in such order as the Mayor or the Aldermen, at whose instance such special meeting shall have been called, may have directed.

Answers to questions.

6. It shall not be compulsory for the Mayor to give official replies to questions put to him, unless he shall have had twenty-four hours notice thereof.

Business paper, how prepared.

7. The business paper for every meeting of the Council shall be made up by the Council Clerk, and delivered to the Mayor and Aldermen, or left at their respective residences, at least twenty-four hours before the time appointed for such meeting. The Council Clerk shall enter on such business paper a copy or the substance of every notice of motion and of every order referring to business proposed to be entertained at such meeting.

Business paper for special meeting.

8. The business paper for a special meeting shall contain only such matters as shall have been specially ordered to be entered thereon by the Mayor or Alderman calling such meeting.

How business paper is to be disposed of.

9. The business paper for each meeting of the Council shall at such meeting be laid before the Mayor or Chairman, who shall make a note upon such business paper of the mode in which each matter entered thereon has been dealt with; and such business paper so noted shall be a record of the Council.

Notices of motion, &c., to be numbered as received, and preserved until matter disposed of.

10. All notices of motion, &c., for consideration at general meetings shall be delivered to the Council Clerk at least four days before such meeting, in writing, and shall be numbered by him as they are received, and entered on the business paper according to their number, and each notice shall be preserved by such Clerk until after the matter to which it relates shall have been disposed of: Provided, however, that the person giving or forwarding any such notice of motion shall be at liberty to withdraw the same at any time before the making up of the business paper.

After business paper made up all notices, &c., to be the property of the Council.

11. After the business paper shall have been made up as aforesaid, all the said notices of motion, requisitions, and directions, as to which entries have been made thereon, shall be the property of the Council, and shall not be withdrawn, altered, or amended without leave having been first obtained from the Council for such withdrawal, alteration, or amendment.

Motions and Amendments.

Motions how to be moved.

12. Except by leave of the Council, motions shall be moved in the order in which they stand on the business paper, and if not so moved or postponed shall be struck out and be considered to have lapsed.

Absence of proposed mover.

13. No motion of which notice shall have been entered on the business paper shall, except as hereinafter provided, be proceeded with in the absence of the Alderman by whom such notice shall have been given, unless by some other Alderman producing a written authority for that purpose from such first-named Alderman.

Motion to be seconded.

14. No motion in Council shall be discussed until it has been seconded.

Amendment may be moved.

15. When a motion shall have been made and seconded any Alderman shall be at liberty to move an amendment thereon, but no such amendment shall be discussed until it has been seconded.

All amendments must be in writing.

16. All amendments must be in writing, signed by the mover, and delivered to the Clerk, who shall add thereto the name of the seconder. Any member, excepting the mover and seconder, having previously spoken to the original motion shall not at this stage speak, but may do so on the amendment becoming the question before the Council.

Amendments, how disposed of.

17. Whenever an amendment is moved upon an original proposition no second amendment shall be taken into consideration until the first amendment has been disposed of. If the first amendment be carried it shall displace the original question, and become itself the question, subject to any further amendment. If the first amendment be negatived, then a second amendment may be moved upon the original question under consideration; but only one amendment shall be submitted to the Council for discussion at one time.

Adjournments.

18. Any motion for adjournment, if seconded, shall be immediately put without discussion, but if such motion be negatived it shall not be competent for any Alderman to make a similar motion until twenty minutes shall have elapsed.

Orders of the Day.

Of what Orders of the Day shall consist.

19. The orders of the day shall consist of any matters other than motions on notice, which the Council shall at a previous meeting thereof have directed to be taken into consideration, or which the Mayor or any committee of the Council shall have directed to be entered on the business paper for consideration.

Who to move.

20. The Alderman who has the usual charge of, or who has previously moved in reference to the particular business to which any such order of the day relates, shall be the person called upon to move: Provided that the Mayor or Chairman for the time being may, as to any order of the day entered by his direction, arrange with and call upon any Alderman to move the same.

Petitions.

21. It shall be incumbent on any member presenting a petition to acquaint himself with the contents thereof, and to report to the Council that it does not contain any disrespectful language. On the presentation of a petition no debate shall take place, and the only question that can then be entertained by the Council shall be that the petition be received, or that it be received and its consideration be an order of the day at the same meeting at which it is received, or that it be referred to a Committee: Provided, however, that any petition that has been received by the Council may be taken into consideration upon notice of motion being given in the usual way. Every petition received by the Council shall be received only as the petition of the party or parties whose signature or signatures it bears; and no petition shall be received unless at least one signature be upon the sheet containing the petition.

Reports from Committees and minutes from the Mayor.

Form of report.

22. All reports from committees shall be written on foolscap paper, with a margin of at least one-fourth of the width of such paper, and shall be signed by the chairman of such committee, or, in his absence, by some other member of the same.

Mayor's minute.

23. The Mayor shall have the right of directing the attention of the Council to any matter or subject within its jurisdiction or official cognizance by a minute in writing. Every such minute shall be written upon paper of the same kind, and with the same margin as a report from a committee, and shall be signed by such Mayor.

How reports, &c., are to be dealt with.

24. No motion shall be permissible on the presentation of a report from a committee or a minute from the Mayor, except that the same be received, or that it be received, and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice in reference to any such report or minute, or if any order for the consideration of such report or minute shall have been entered among the orders of the day, such motion or order may be moved or considered in due course.

Mode of addressing the Council, &c.

25. Every Alderman who shall make or second any motion, or who shall propose or second any amendment, or shall take any part in any debate or discussion, or shall put or reply to any question, or shall make any statement, or shall in any other way or for any other purpose address observations to the Council, shall while so doing stand up in his customary place (unless he shall be prevented from so doing by reason of some bodily infirmity), and shall address himself to the Mayor or other Chairman then presiding: Provided that in the case of a question such question may, by permission of such Mayor or Chairman, be put directly to the Alderman or officer to be questioned, and may be replied to in like manner; but in every such case the question so put and the answer thereto shall be subject to objection, on the ground of disorder or irrelevancy; and all members of the Council shall on all occasions when in such Council address and speak of each other by the official designation, as Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be.

Speaker not to be interrupted if in order.

26. No Alderman shall be interrupted while thus speaking, unless for the purpose of calling him to order, as hereinafter provided.

Offensive language.

27. If any Alderman uses whilst in Council any offensive or insulting language the words shall be written down, and he shall be asked to withdraw them.

Mover and seconder.

28. An Alderman who has moved any motion or amendment shall be considered to have spoken thereon; but any Alderman who shall have seconded any such motion or amendment, without any further observation than that he seconded the same, shall be at liberty to speak on such motion or amendment.

Speaker not to digress, &c.

29. No Alderman shall digress from the subject under discussion, or shall make personal reflections on, nor impute improper motives to any other Alderman.

Adjournment of debate.

30. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the day or to any other day specified; and the Alderman upon whose motion such debate shall have been so adjourned shall be entitled to pre-audience on the resumption of the debate: Provided that such member shall not have spoken to the motion.

Mayor to decide as to pre-audience.

31. If two or more Aldermen rise to speak at the same time, the Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of such Aldermen shall be first heard.

Aldermen may require questions to be stated &c., under certain restrictions.

32. Any Alderman may request the question or matter under discussion to be read or stated for his information or may require the production of any records of the Council bearing upon such question or matter which are readily accessible: Provided, however, that no such request or requisition shall be so made as to interrupt any other Alderman when speaking, or to materially interrupt the discussion.

Also that if any such request or requisition shall appear to the Mayor or Chairman not to have been made bona fide it shall not be complied with.

Mayor or Chairman not to move or second motion, &c., but may address Council thereon.

33. The Mayor or Chairman shall not move or second any motion or amendment nor put any question as provided by Section 4 of this part of the By-laws except as is further provided for by the 25th Section of the same; but such Mayor or Chairman shall have the same right as any other Alderman to speak once upon every such subject or amendment. The Mayor or Chairman shall rise when so speaking (unless prevented by some bodily infirmity from so doing) but shall be considered as still presiding.

Mayor or Chairman to decide points of order. Penalties for persisting in disorderly conduct.

34. The Mayor or Chairman shall preserve order, and his decision on disputed points of order or practice shall be final in that particular case, and the Mayor or Chairman may, without the interposition of any other member of the Council, call any Alderman to order whenever, in the opinion of such Mayor or Chairman there shall be a necessity for so doing; and every member of the Council shall have the right of calling the attention of the Mayor or Chairman to any motion, amendment, statement, argument, or observation moved, used, or made by any other member which such first named member may consider out of order. And the Mayor or Chairman when called upon to decide points of order or practice shall state the provision, rule, or practice which he shall deem applicable to the case without discussing or commenting upon same.

Any member of the Council, either in Council or Committee, who shall have been called to order by the Mayor or Chairman, and who shall still persist in any line of conduct or argument which shall have been decided as aforesaid to be disorderly and shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology as a majority of the Aldermen then present shall consider satisfactory, shall be liable, on conviction, for each offence to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds.

Mode of voting.

How questions are to be put.

35. The Mayor or Chairman shall put to the Council all questions on which it shall be necessary that a vote be taken, and shall declare the sense of such Council thereon; and he shall be at liberty to put any such question as often as may be necessary to enable him to form and declare his opinion as to the opinion of the majority.

Divisions.

36. Any Alderman shall be at liberty to call for a division; in such case the question shall be put first in the affirmative and then in the negative; and the Aldermen shall vote by show of hands, and the names and votes of the Aldermen present shall be recorded.

Protests.

Mode of protesting—Protests to be recorded, but may, under certain circumstances, be expunged.

37. Every member of the Council (the Mayor included) may protest against any resolution or vote by the Council; notice of the intention so to protest must, however, be given at the meeting when such resolution is passed or such vote is arrived at, and the protest itself must be handed or sent to the Council Clerk not later than seven days after such notice. The Council Clerk shall enter every such protest in the minute book, but if, in the opinion of the Council, it be inconsistent with the truth or disrespectfully worded, it may (by resolution on notice) be ordered to be expunged. In such case the expunction shall be made by drawing a perpendicular line through the entry of such protest with reference in the margin to the resolution ordering such expunction.

Committees of the whole Council.

Business in Committee.

38. The business Committees of the whole Council shall be conducted in accordance with the rules hereinbefore provided for meetings of the Council, as nearly as the same shall apply, except that it shall not be necessary that any motion or amendment in Committee shall be seconded.

Usage of the House of Parliament to be observed unless other provisions made.

39. In all cases not herein provided for, resort shall be had to the rules and forms as laid down in May's Parliamentary Practice, which shall be followed as far as they can be applied to the proceedings of this Council.

Calls of the Council.

How calls are to be ordered

40. A call of the Council may be ordered by any resolution of which due notice shall have been given for the consideration of any motion or matter of business before such Council.

Mode of proceeding.

41. The call shall be made immediately before the motion or business for which such call has been ordered shall be moved or considered. Such call shall be made as follows:—The Council Clerk shall call the names of all the members in their alphabetical order; each person present shall answer to his name so called; and if any members are absent a record shall be made of such absence, but if leave of absence to any such member shall have previously been granted, or if such an excuse in writing shall have been forwarded to the Mayor or Council Clerk as a majority of the Council then present shall consider satisfactory, such absent member shall stand excused, and a record shall be made of such excuse and of the reasons for the same.

Penalties for absence without legal excuse; further call when question adjourned.

42. Any member of the Council who, having had notice of such call of the Council, shall not answer to his name as aforesaid, or who being absent shall not be legally excused as aforesaid, or who, if absent and not so excused, shall fail to show that by reason of extreme illness or any other sufficient cause, he has been unable to send an excuse in writing as aforesaid, shall not be present when a vote is taken on the motion or business as to which such call has been made as aforesaid, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds: Provided that if the consideration of every such motion or matter of business be adjourned to a future day, there shall be a further call on the resumption of such consideration; and the provisions herein as to penalties for absence shall have reference to such further call. And if there shall be more than one adjournment this proviso shall be taken to extend to the resumption of the consideration of such motion or matter of business after every such adjournment.

Standing Committees.

43. There shall be four standing committees, namely:—A By-law Committee, a Committee for Works, a Finance Committee, and a Committee for General purposes. These committees shall be reappointed every year at the first meeting of the Council which shall be holden after the election of the Mayor.

Constitution of Standing Committees.

44. Each of the three committees first named in the last preceding section shall consist of three members. The Committee for General Purposes shall consist of the Chairmen of the three said first-named committees.

Mode of reappointing Standing Committees.

45. The reappointment of the three said first-named committees may on resolution of the Council be made by ballot. In such case a list of the members shall be handed to each member then present, who shall mark against the name of each such member the title of the committee to which in his opinion such member ought to belong. And the Mayor or Chairman shall thereupon examine such lists as marked, and shall declare the result. And if there shall be an equal number of votes for the appointment of any two or more members to any of such first-named committees, such Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of such members shall be appointed to such committee.

By-law Committee.

46. The By-law Committee shall prepare, for the consideration of the Council, drafts of all such by-laws as may be required for the good government of the Municipal District. They shall also watch over the administration of the by-laws and of any statute of which the operation has been or may be extended to the Municipality, and shall take such steps as may be necessary for the prevention or punishment of offences against such by-laws or statutes and for the preservation of public health, order, and decency.

Committee for Works.

47. The Committee for Works shall have the general direction of all works ordered or sanctioned by the Council, and the general inspection of all streets, roads, ways, bridges, public reserves, and other public places under the care and management of the Council. They shall also inquire and report from time to time as to such improvements or repairs as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Finance Committee.

48. The Finance Committee shall examine and check all accounts, and shall watch generally over the collection and expenditure of the Municipal revenues. They shall inquire and report from time to time as to all matters which they may consider to affect or to be likely to affect the finances of the Municipality, and as to such matters or subjects of the like nature as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Committee for General Purposes.

49. The Committee for General Purposes shall take cognizance of every matter, subject, or question within the jurisdiction of the Council not coming within the province of one or other of the before mentioned standing committees, and shall from time to time inquire into and report upon any such subject matter or question as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire into and report upon.

Special Committees.

50. The Special Committees may consist of any number of members, and may be appointed for the performance of any duty which may be lawfully entrusted to a committee, and for which in the opinion of the Council a special committee ought to be appointed; and no standing committee shall interfere with the performance of any duty which may for the time being have been entrusted to any such special committee. The appointment of every such committee shall be made by resolution, after due notice, and it shall be incumbent on the mover of such resolution to embody therein a statement of the duties proposed to be entrusted to such special committee. The mover of any such resolution may name therein such members as in his opinion ought to constitute such committee, or he may propose that such committee consist of a certain number of members to be appointed by ballot; and in the latter case, or if any amendment to the effect that such special committee be appointed by ballot be carried, each member then present shall receive a list of all the members of the Council from which list he shall strike out all names but those of the persons of whom, in his opinion, such special committee ought to be composed; and the Mayor or Chairman shall examine such list, and shall declare the result. And in the event of its becoming necessary through an equality of votes to decide as to which of two or more Aldermen shall serve on such committee such Mayor or Chairman shall so decide.

Chairman of Committees.

51. Every committee of which the Mayor shall not be a member shall elect a permanent chairman of such committee within seven days after their appointment.

Term of service in Committee.

52. Appointments to the By-law Committee, the Committee for Works, and the Finance Committee, shall be for the whole municipal year. The chairman of these three committees as appointed to or removed from the chairmanship of the same shall be thereby and without any further order regarded as having been appointed to or removed from the Committee for General purposes. The appointment of every special committee shall be considered to endure until the duties for which such committee have been appointed shall have been fully performed: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect in any way the right of such committee to remove any chairman of such committee, or to appoint another such chairman in his stead, or to militate against the general provisions as to committees in sections 109 and 110 of the Municipalities Act of 1867; and that so much of by-law as relates to the appointment, powers, and duties of committees shall be read and interpreted in connection with such last mentioned general provisions.

Committee meeting, how called.

53. The Council Clerk shall call a meeting of any committee when requested so to do by the chairman or any two members of such committee.

Record of transactions in Committee.

54. The chairman of each standing committee shall make or cause to be made, in a book to be kept by him for that purpose, memoranda of all the transactions of such committee, which book he shall, on ceasing to be such chairman, hand over to his successor.

Expenditure.

Except in emergent cases, cost of all work to be estimated before undertaken.

55. With the exception of emergent matters hereinafter specially provided for, no work affecting the funds of the Municipality shall be undertaken until the probable expense thereof shall have been first ascertained by the Council.

Emergent matters and necessary current expenses - Expenses authorized to be reported—Outlay to be in accordance with orders of the Council.

56. For emergent matters, and for necessary current expenses during the intervals which may elapse between the meetings of the Council outlays to the following extent may be incurred:—

1. By order of the Committee for Works, or of the Mayor and one member of such Committee, for repairs or emergent works to the extent of ten pounds.
2. By order of the Mayor for necessary current expenses to the extent of two pounds.
3. By order of the Mayor and any two Aldermen, or without the Mayor, of any four Aldermen for any emergent purpose to the extent of ten pounds.

Provided that in every case a detailed report in writing of every such outlay shall be laid before the Council at its next meeting, such report to be signed by the Chairman of the Committee for Works, or the Mayor, or the Mayor and Aldermen, or the Aldermen without the Mayor, as the case may be, by whom such outlay shall have been authorized; also, that such outlay shall only be permissible in reference to matters coming strictly within the jurisdiction or functions of the Council, and that no outlay involving a disobedience or evasion of any order or resolution of such Council shall, on any pretence, be thus authorized.

All claims to be examined and reported upon by Finance Committee—Certificate required with each claim.

57. All accounts and demands of money against or from the Council shall be examined and reported on by the Finance Committee before any order shall be made for payment of such accounts or demands, and no payment shall be so ordered unless there shall be a certificate or memorandum from the Committee, from the Mayor, or from the officer of the Council, to whom the direction or guardianship of such expenditure properly belongs, showing that the demand is a legitimate one and has been duly authorised or inquired into.

Common seal and records of the Council.

Common seal and press, how secured—Care of same.

58. The common seal and the press to which the same is attached shall be secured by a cover-box which, except when such seal and press are in use, shall be kept locked. There shall be duplicate keys to the lock of this cover or box, of which keys one shall be kept by the Mayor, and the other by the Council Clerk. Such common seal and press shall be in the custody and the care of the Council Clerk.

When and how common seal to be used.

59. The common seal shall not be attached to any document without an express order of the Council. In every case when such common seal has been ordered to be attached to any document such document shall also be signed by the Mayor, or in case of the absence or illness of such Mayor, by two Aldermen, and countersigned by the Council Clerk.

How books of account are to be kept and inspected.

60. The Treasurer shall keep such books of accounts and such records, statements, and memoranda of receipts and expenditure in such manner and form as the Council may from time to time direct. It shall be the duty of the Finance Committee to inspect all such books of account, records, statements, and memoranda from time to time to ascertain that the same are properly kept, and to report at once to the Council any act of neglect or appearance of inefficiency which they may have discovered in the keeping of the same; also to report to the Council from time to time any changes which such Committee may think advisable in the mode of keeping the accounts.

No officer to show books or papers of Council without leave from Council.

61. No officer of the Council shall be at liberty to show, lay open, or expose any of the books, papers, or records of the Council to any person other than an Alderman without leave from the Council except as otherwise provided for by section 108 of Municipalities Act of 1867.

Records not to be removed, &c.—Penalties—Exceptional circumstances—Receipt to be given in every case before document received—Proviso as to use of records as matters of evidence.

62. Any person removing any book or other record of the Council as aforesaid from the Council Chamber without leave for such removal having been first obtained from such Council, or without other lawful cause for such removal as hereinafter provided shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds. And nothing herein contained shall be held to affect the further liability of any person who shall have removed such book or other record as aforesaid to prosecution for stealing such book or record or to an action at law for detention of the same: Provided that leave for temporary removal of a book or other record may be granted to the Council Clerk or the Treasurer by the Mayor in order that such Clerk or Treasurer may post up entries or perform any other duty which it may be necessary that he should perform; also that the Mayor, or the chairman of any committee, or any Alderman acting for any chairman, may temporarily remove any record necessary for the preparation of a minute or a report, or for the purposes of any prosecution or suit at law by, against, or at the instance of the Council; but in all cases such Clerk, Treasurer, Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman as the case may be shall give a receipt under his hand for every document so removed, and every such receipt shall be preserved among the records until the book or other record to which it refers shall have been returned, when such receipt shall be destroyed. And provided also that the Mayor, Council Clerk, or other officer of the Council who may be subpoenaed to produce any book or other record of the Council in a Court of law shall have the right to remove such book or other record for the purpose of obeying such summons, but shall return such book or record as speedily as possible, and every such person so removing any book or other record of the Council as aforesaid shall be legally responsible for the safe keeping and return of the same.

Penalty for defacing or destroying record.

63. Any person destroying or defacing or altering any record of the Council shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than five pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Officers and Servants.

Notice to candidates in certain cases.

64. No appointment to any permanent office at the disposal of the Council, to which a salary or allowance of fifty pounds per annum, or a salary or allowance exceeding that amount is attached, shall be made until public notice shall have been given as hereinafter provided inviting applications from qualified candidates for the same, the salary or allowance attached to such office shall in every case be fixed before such notice is given, and shall be stated in such notice.

Mode of appointment.

65. Every such appointment shall be made by ballot in such mode as may at the time be determined on whenever there is more than one candidate for such permanent office.

Exceptional cases.

66. Nothing herein contained shall be held to prevent the employment as may be from time to time found necessary, and as may be ordered by the Council, of any workman or labourer on the public works of the Municipality.

Bonds for good conduct of officers.

67. In cases where security is required by clause 151 of the Municipalities Act of 1867, no sureties shall be accepted otherwise than by a vote of the Council; and it shall not be competent for the Council to accept as sureties any of its own members, nor any person holding office in the Council.

Duties of Council Clerk.

68. The Council Clerk, in compliance with the Municipalities Act of 1867, or by the present or any other by-laws made thereunder, shall perform the following duties, viz. :—

1. Attend all Council meetings.
2. Attend all committee meetings.
3. Attend all Courts of Provision and Appeal.
4. Summon the members of the Council to all Council or committee meetings.
5. Take notes of all minutes, and prepare reports of all committees.
6. Conduct all correspondence ordered by the Council, or under the direction of the Mayor, and give all other officers instructions as directed by the minutes.
7. To see that the accounts are audited, and the balance-sheet duly submitted twice a year within the time specified by law.
8. To see to the gazetting of all by-laws and necessary advertisements.
9. To see that assessment books and the Municipal lists and rolls are duly prepared, examine proofs of latter, and arrange for distribution of copies, on payment, to electors prior to the election.
10. Make all necessary arrangements for the elections, preparing all papers, &c., for presiding officers and poll clerks.
11. Prepare all bonds of officers, see that the guarantees are given, and agreements duly signed, &c., and report same to the Council.
12. Advise with the officers from time to time as to their duties, and the mode of carrying them out.
13. See that all levels and names of streets have been duly advertised, as provided for by law, and authenticated by the Mayor's signature.
14. To bring under the notice of the Mayor any matter or thing requiring his prompt attention.
15. He shall likewise have charge of all the records of the Council except such books or documents as may be entrusted to any other officer of the Council; and shall be responsible for the safe-keeping of such records. He shall generally assist the Mayor in carrying out the orders of the Council.

Duties of Treasurer.

69. The Treasurer shall have charge of such books of accounts and other records of the Council as are mentioned in section 60 of these by-laws, and shall be responsible for the safe-keeping of the same. Any other officer of the Council may have any other records thereof committed to his charge by an order of the Council, and in such case shall be responsible for the safe-keeping of such records.

Duties of other officers and servants.

70. The duties of all officers and servants of the Corporation shall be defined by such regulations as may from time to time, and in accordance with law, be made.

Special powers of Mayor.

71. The Mayor shall exercise a general supervision over all officers and servants of the Corporation, and may order the preparation of any such return or statement, or the giving of any such explanation or information by any such officer or servant as he may think necessary, unless such return or statement shall have been already prepared, or such explanation or information already given, and such return, statement, explanation, or information is on record, or hereinbefore provided; or, unless the Council shall have expressly forbidden or dispensed with the preparation of such return or statement, or the giving of such explanation or information. All such returns or statements as aforesaid shall be in writing, and shall be recorded. All such explanation or information may, except as hereinafter provided, be either rendered via voce or put into writing, as the Mayor may direct.

Complaints against officers, &c., how to be dealt with.

72. All complaints against any officers or servants of the Corporation must be in writing, and must in every case be signed by the person or persons complaining; and no notice whatever shall be taken of any complaint which is not in writing or is anonymous. All such complaints may be addressed to the Mayor, who immediately upon the receipt of any such complaint, and without laying the same before the Council, shall have power to investigate the same, and report thereon at the next meeting; or he may, if necessary, suspend such officer or servant till the Council shall have dealt with the charge.

Miscellaneous.

Leave of absence.

73. No leave of absence shall be granted to the Mayor or any Alderman otherwise than by a resolution of the Council adopted after due notice.

Lapsed business.

74. Whenever the consideration of any motion on matter of business shall have been interrupted by reason of a quorum not having been present, the resumption of such consideration may be ordered by resolution of the Council after due notice; and such consideration shall in such case be resumed at the point where it was so interrupted as aforesaid.

Suits and prosecutions for penalties.

75. Such suits or informations for the enforcement of penalties for or in respect of breach of the Municipalities Act of 1867, or of any by-laws made thereunder, or of any statute, the operation of which may have been extended to the Municipality as may have been directed by the Council or by the By-law Committee or by the Mayor, to be commenced or laid as follows:—When against a member of the Council or an Auditor or any officer of the Corporation, by the Council Clerk, unless such Council Clerk shall be the officer to be proceeded against, and in such case by any other officer named by the Council for that purpose; when against any other person by the officer to whom the carrying out of the statutory provision or by-law imposing the penalty sought to be enforced has been entrusted, and if there shall be no such officer then by any such officer or person as shall be appointed for that purpose by the Council or the By-law Committee or the Mayor, as the case may be on directing such suit or information as aforesaid; and no suit shall be brought or information laid as aforesaid against any member of the Council or Auditor except by order of such Council, nor shall any similar proceedings be taken against any officer of the Council except on the order of such Council or of the Mayor, nor against any other person except upon the order of the Council or of the Mayor or of the By-law Committee. And no such suit shall be directed to be brought nor shall any such information be directed to be laid as aforesaid except on an express resolution of the Council in any case where the bringing of such suit or the laying of such information will be adverse to any previous direction by such Council or where, on the trial or hearing of any such suit or information, the same shall have been dismissed on its merits: Provided that in any case the conduct or prosecution of any such suit or information may on the order of the Council be entrusted to an attorney.

Powers to suspend temporarily certain portions of these By-laws.

76. Any of the foregoing by-laws or any portion thereof which relate to or affect the proceedings at meetings of the Council may be suspended pro tempore without notice in case of emergency if all the members of the Council then present shall deem such suspension necessary.

77. Works undertaken by the Council and estimated to cost over £20 (twenty pounds) shall be let by tender, and no tender shall be entertained unless it be accompanied by an agreement signed by one or more respectable parties as sureties for due performance of the contract.

PART II.

Collection and enforcement of rates—Times and modes of collection.

Rates under section 164 to be collected half-yearly.

1. All rates levied or imposed by the Council under the provisions of section 164 Municipalities Act of 1867, and for the purposes mentioned in the said section shall be collected by half-yearly instalments. Each such instalment shall as to every such rate and every such instalment thereof be held to be due and payable on and after such days as the Council shall by resolution appoint at the time of making or imposing such rate.

Special rates.

2. All rates levied or imposed by the Council under sections 165, 166, and 167, of the said Municipalities Act of 1867, and for the purposes mentioned in the said sections or under the provisions of any of the said sections or for any of the purposes mentioned therein shall be collected in such manner and shall be held to be due and payable on and after such day or days as the Council may, by resolution at the time of making or imposing such rates or any of them, have appointed.

Office hours.

3. All rates shall be paid at the Council Chamber during the hours appointed by the Council for that purpose.

Defaulting ratepayers.

4. It shall be the duty of the Council Clerk to furnish to the Mayor a list of the names of all persons whose rates are unpaid at the expiration of the period fixed for the payment thereof, and it shall be the duty of the Mayor to issue distress warrants against all such persons and to cause such warrants to be enforced or to cause such defaulter to be sued for the amount of rates in a Court of competent jurisdiction.

Bailiff to find sureties.

5. A bailiff for the purpose of enforcement of rates shall be appointed, by resolution of the Council upon notice, and shall be liable to removal from office in the same manner. He shall find two sureties, who shall be approved of by the Mayor and who shall enter into a bond of £25 (twenty-five pounds) each on his behalf that he shall well and truly perform all the duties imposed upon him as such bailiff.

Warrant of distress.

6. All levies and distresses shall be made under warrant in the form of Schedule A hereto under the hand of the Mayor or any Alderman who may for the time being be duly authorized to perform the duties of that office.

Distress and sale, &c.

7. If the sum for which any such distress shall have been made shall not be paid with costs as hereinafter provided on or before the expiration of five days the bailiff shall sell the goods so distrained or a sufficient portion thereof by public auction, after having been duly advertised in one of the local papers, either on the premises or at such other place within the said Municipality as the bailiff may think proper to remove them for such purposes; and shall pay over the surplus (if any) that may remain after deducting the amount of the sum distrained for and costs as hereinafter provided to the owner of the goods so sold on demand of such surplus by such owner.

Inventory.

8. At the time of making a distress the bailiff shall make out a written inventory in the form of Schedule B hereto, which inventory shall be delivered to the occupant of the land or premises or the owner of the goods so distrained or to some person on his or her behalf resident at the place where the distress shall be made; and in case there shall be no person at place with whom such inventory can be left as aforesaid then such inventory shall be posted on some conspicuous part of the land or premises on which the distress is made; and the bailiff shall give a copy of the inventory to the ratepayer on demand at any time within one month after making such distress.

Goods may be impounded.

9. The bailiff on making a distress aforesaid may impound or otherwise seize the goods and chattels so distrained, of what nature or kind soever, in such place or places, or in such part of the land or premises chargeable with rates as shall be most fit and convenient for this purpose; and it shall be lawful for any person whomsoever, after the expiration of the five days as hereinbefore mentioned to come and go to and from such place or part of the said land or premises where such goods or chattels shall be impounded and secured as aforesaid in order to view and buy, and in order to carry off and remove the same on account of the purchaser thereof.

Power to direct order of sale.

10. The owner of any goods or chattels so distrained upon may at his or her option direct and specify the order in which they shall be successively sold, and the said goods or chattels shall in such case be put up for sale according to such direction.

Proceeds of distress—Costs.

11. The bailiff shall hand over to the Council Clerk all proceeds of every such distress within forty-eight hours after having received the same. There shall be payable to the bailiff for the use of the Council for every levy and distress made under this By-law the costs and charges in the Schedule hereunto annexed marked C.

SCHEDULE A.

PART III.

Preventing or extinguishing fires.

Fire or combustible materials, &c.

1. Every person who shall place or knowingly permit to be placed in any house, yard, workshop, out offices, or other premises, fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable materials of any kind in such a manner as to endanger contiguous buildings shall, on conviction for every such offence, forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds; and shall forthwith remove such fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable materials. And every such person who shall suffer any such fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable materials to remain as aforesaid for forty-eight hours after any such conviction shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law. Any person burning any shavings or other matters or things in any street, road, or public place shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

Inflammable fences, &c.

2. Every person who shall erect any fence of brushwood, bushes, or other inflammable material, or shall make or place any stack of hay, corn, straw, or other produce, or place as or for the covering of any such stack any inflammable material so as to endanger contiguous buildings or properties, or any trees, shrubs, or other produce of such properties, or any chattels in or upon such buildings or properties, shall forfeit, on conviction for every such offence, a penalty of not more than five pounds, and also shall remove such fence, stack, or covering within a reasonable time after such conviction. And any person failing to remove such fence, stack, or covering within a reasonable time after any such conviction as aforesaid shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Discharging fire-arms.

3. Any person who shall discharge any fire-arms without lawful cause, or let off any fireworks or other explosive matter, in or near to any road or street shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings.

Wilfully setting fire to chimneys.

4. Every person who wilfully sets or causes to be set on fire any chimney, flue, smoke-vent, or stove-pipe, herein called in common a chimney, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds: Provided always that nothing herein contained shall exempt the person so setting or causing to be set on fire any chimney from liability to be informed against or prosecuted before any Criminal Court for such act as for an indictable offence.

Council may reward persons for service rendered during time of fire.

5. It shall be competent for the Council to reward any person, as they may deem fit, who may have distinguished himself in the saving of life or property at a time of fire, or in extinguishing fire within the Municipality.

PART IV.

Notices—Streets and public places—Public health and decency.

Persons obstructing officers of the Council.

1. Any person or persons who shall obstruct any officer of the said Council while in the performance of his duty, or who shall interfere with any officer of the said Council doing or performing or going to perform or returning from the performance of any duty or act under these By-laws, by using any threats, offensive language, hindrance, or insulting language towards the said officer in any street, road, or other place within the said Municipality, shall forfeit and pay for every such offence a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than two pounds.

New roads to be reported upon—Dedication of new roads, &c.

2. No new public road, street, way, park, or other place proposed to be dedicated shall be taken under the charge and management of the Council until after such road, street, way, or park shall have been formed by the proprietor or proprietors to the reasonable satisfaction of the Committee of Works or any duly authorized officer, or until the said road, street, way, or park shall have been duly examined and reported upon to the Council by such Committee or authorized officer. If the Council shall determine to take charge of any such road, way, or other place as aforesaid, the plan or plans so signed as aforesaid shall be preserved as a record or records of the Council, and the proprietor or proprietors aforesaid shall execute such further instrument dedicating such road, way, park, or other place to the public use or recreation as aforesaid as may be considered necessary by the Committee for general purposes; and such further instrument of dedication shall also be preserved as a record of the Council.

Change of street levels.

3. Whenever it may be deemed necessary to alter the level of any such public road, street, or way as aforesaid, the Committee for Works shall cause a plan and section showing the proposed cuttings to be exhibited at the Council Chambers for fourteen days for the information and inspection of ratepayers, and shall notify by advertisement in some newspaper circulating in the Municipality, that such plan is so open to inspection. At a subsequent meeting of the Council, the said plan and section shall, if adopted, be signed by the Mayor or Chairman and the proposer and seconder of the motion for such adoption and countersigned by the Council Clerk. And such plan and section so signed and countersigned shall be a record of the Council.

Roads and streets and encroachments thereon.

4. The Committee for Works, or the surveyors of the Municipality, or other officer or person duly authorized by the Council in that behalf, shall be the proper officer for marking out, and shall fix marks and lay out the levels of all public roads, streets, lanes, and thoroughfares, and the carriage and foot-ways thereof, which now are or shall hereafter be under or subject to the control, construction, care or management of the Council. In marking out such roads, streets, lanes, and thoroughfares recourse shall be had, when practicable, to the plans under which the land with frontage to the road, street, lane, or thoroughfare in question shall have been sold or let. And it shall be the duty of such Committee for Works or surveyor, or other officer to place posts at the corners or intersections of such streets, roads, lanes, or thoroughfares whenever the same may be deemed necessary or desirable by the Council, so as to give a width of 44 feet for the carriage way and 11 feet for the footway on each side. Where the road, street, lane, or thoroughfare shall be 66 feet wide and in proportion, and in the discretion of the Council in any such road, street, lane, or thoroughfare or other public place of other width than 66 feet wide: Provided that there shall be no change of level in any such public road, street, lane, or thoroughfare or public place until the same shall have been submitted to and adopted by the Council as hereinafter provided. Note.—This by-law shall be read subject in all respects to the Width of Streets and Lanes Act of 1851 (45 Vic. No. 28).

Erection of house, fee for permission, &c.

5. No person shall be permitted to erect any house, shop or other building in any street, lane, or place within the said Municipality without first serving notice in writing on the Mayor or Council Clerk or other duly authorized officer before commencing the same, stating his intention, setting out a plan and giving particulars of the proposed building, and at the time the said notice is given paying to the Council Clerk or other duly authorized officer a fee of five shillings for permission to erect such house, shop or other building; and every owner of and every contractor for such house, shop, or other building, or any part thereof, commencing to build or work thereon without such notice having been given, shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

Houses must have spouting and down pipe.

6. All proprietors of houses within the Municipality, having a frontage to any street, shall be bound to have the same sufficiently spouted with down pipe, to be carried under the surface of the footpath into the gutter, under a penalty of ten shillings, on conviction; and if not remedied at the expiration of seven days after such conviction, the offender shall be again liable to a like conviction and penalty also for every succeeding seven days.

No balcony, &c., to project.

7. With regard to buildings hereafter to be built or rebuilt, it shall not be lawful for any awning, verandah, portico, balcony, coping, parapet, overhanging eaves, cornice, windows, string cornice, string course dressing or other architectural decoration forming part of or attached to any external wall to project beyond the building line of any street or road except with the consent of the Council first obtained; nor shall any balcony or any other external projection as aforesaid, which may hereafter be added to any existing building, be allowed to project as aforesaid under a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound except with the consent of the Council first obtained: Provided that no such awning, verandah, portico, or balcony shall be permitted to be erected in any street less than 30 feet wide: Provided also that any person desiring to erect any such structure shall first submit a plan for the approval of the Council.

Encroachments must be removed on notice.—Council may remove same or proceed by action.—Applies also to obstructions by digging.

8. The surveyor or other such officer or person may at any time, on the order of the Council and upon due notice of thirty days, direct the removal of any building, fence or other obstruction or encroachment in and upon any road, street, lane, or thoroughfare under the charge of the Council. Notice shall, in this case, be served either personally or at the usual or last known place of abode of the person to whom such obstruction or encroachment in structure belongs or who has erected or caused it to be erected. In any case where, after service of notice for the removal of any obstruction or encroachment as aforesaid, the person causing the same shall not remove it within a reasonable time, it shall be lawful for the Council to direct the removal of the same under the superintendence of its own proper officer and at the cost of the person so offending: Provided that the expenses thereby incurred shall in no case exceed the sum of ten pounds, or at the Council's option to proceed against the offender for breach of by-law, the penalty not to exceed twenty-five pounds nor to be less than one pound, and in case of every successive offence the penalty on conviction not to be less than five pounds. In every case where the obstruction or encroachment cannot be removed unless at a greater cost than ten pounds, it shall be open to the Council either to direct such removal and to pay all the costs thereof above ten pounds from the funds of the Council, or to proceed by action for trespass against the person causing such obstruction or encroachment or to proceed as for a breach of such by-laws as aforesaid. The foregoing provisions shall be equally applicable to all obstructions by digging or excavations, and any person who shall wilfully obstruct or interfere with the surveyor or other officer as aforesaid, or any person acting for or under him, or either of them in the exercise of any of the duties or powers by these by-laws imposed or cast on the said surveyor or officer, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two pounds or more than twenty pounds.

Hoards or fences to be erected.

9. Every person intending to build or take down any building within the limits of the Municipality, or to cause the same to be so done, or to alter or repair the outward part of any such building, or to cause the same to be done where any street or footway will be obstructed or rendered inconvenient by means of such work, shall before beginning the same cause sufficient hoards or fences to be put up in order to separate the building where such works are being carried on from the street with a convenient platform and handrail as aforesaid, standing in good condition to the satisfaction of the officer of the Council of the said Municipality during such time as the public safety or convenience requires, and shall in all cases in which it is necessary in order to prevent accident cause the same to be sufficiently lighted during the night; and any such person who shall fail to put up such fence or hoard or platform with such handrail as aforesaid during the period of such building or taking down, or who shall not while the said hoard or fence is standing keep the same sufficiently lighted in the night, or who shall not remove the same when directed by the officer of the Council of the said Municipality within a reasonable time afterwards, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings for each day such default is continued. The foregoing provisions having reference to hoards or fences in front of buildings apply equally to any hole, pit, cellar, vault, or foundation in course of digging or construction.

No turf, gravel, &c., to be removed from streets without permission.

10. Any person who shall form, dig, or open any drain or sewer, or remove, or cause to be removed, any turf, clay, sand, soil, gravel, stone, or other material in or from any part of the carriage or foot way of any street or other public place within the said Municipality, without leave first had and obtained from the Council, or who shall wantonly break up or otherwise damage any such carriage or foot way, shall on conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Open spaces and steps adjoining the footways to be enclosed under penalty.

11. Every owner or occupier of any house, building, premises, or land within the said Municipality having any entrance, area, garden, or other open space, or any vacant building, lot, water-hole, or excavated space adjoining the footway of any street or public place in such Municipality, shall protect and guard the same by good and sufficient paling fence, so as to prevent danger to persons passing and repassing; and every such owner or occupier of any such house, building, premises, or land having any steps adjoining the footway of any such street or public place shall in like manner protect and guard the same by fences, rails, or other enclosures, so as to prevent the like danger to persons passing and repassing; and on failure thereof every such owner or occupier shall, as often as he shall be convicted of such offence, forfeit and pay any sum not being less than forty shillings nor more than five pounds. And every such owner or occupier as aforesaid who shall fail to erect such rails, fence, or other enclosures as aforesaid, within seven days after any such conviction as aforesaid, shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this by-law.

Wells to be covered under penalty.

12. Every person who shall have a well or underground tank used for domestic purposes shall cause such well to be securely and permanently covered over to the satisfaction of the duly appointed officer of the Council; and if any person having such well or underground tank as aforesaid shall fail to cover over and secure the same within seven days after notice in writing shall have been given to him or her by any officer of the said Council, or shall have been left for such person at his or her usual or last known place of abode, or on the said premises, shall on conviction forfeit and pay the sum of ten shillings; and for every day after such seven days' notice that such well or underground tank shall remain open or uncovered contrary to the provisions hereof such person shall be deemed guilty of a separate offence against this by-law.

Temporary stoppage of traffic for repairs.

13. The Committee for Works, or any officer or person acting under the authority of such Committee, may at any time cause the traffic of any street, lane, or thoroughfare, or any portion thereof to be stopped for the purpose of repairing the same, or for any necessary purpose; and any person or persons offending against this By-law, either by travelling on such street, lane, or thoroughfare, or by removing or destroying any obstruction that may be placed thereon for the purpose of suspending the traffic, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of any sum not exceeding five pounds for every such offence.

Drawing or trailing timber, &c.

14. Any person who shall haul or draw or cause to be hauled or drawn upon any part of any street or public place within the said Municipality, any timber, stone, or other thing otherwise than upon wheeled vehicles or barrows, or shall suffer any timber, stone, or other thing which shall be carried principally or in part upon any wheeled vehicle or barrow to drag or trail upon any part of such street or public place to the injury thereof, or to hang over any part of any such vehicle or barrow so as to occupy or obstruct the street beyond the breadth of the said vehicle or barrow, shall upon conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum of not more than forty shillings nor less than five shillings over and above the damages occasioned thereby.

Throwing filth, &c., on foot-ways or streets.

15. Any person who shall throw, cast, or lay, or shall cause, permit, or suffer to be thrown, cast, or laid, or to remain, any ashes, rubbish, offal, dung, soil, dead animal, blood, slops, suds, or other filth or annoyance, or any matter or thing in or upon the carriage-way, foot-way, or water-table of any street, lane, or other public place in the said Municipality, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a fine not less than forty shillings nor more than five pounds, and shall, in addition to any such forfeiture, pay the cost of removing such filth or obstruction, or of restoring such watercourse or canal into its proper channel.

Placing goods, &c., on roadways, &c.

16. If any person shall set or place, or cause or permit to be set or placed, any stall, show-board, basket, or goods of any kind whatsoever, or shall hoop, place, wash, or cleanse, or cause to be hooped, placed, washed, or cleansed, any cask or vessel in or upon or over any road, foot-way, or public place within the said Municipality, or shall set out, lay, or place, or shall cause or procure, permit, or suffer to be set out, laid, or placed, any coach, cart, dray, barrow, truck, or other carriage upon any foot-way, or if any person shall set or place, or cause to be set or placed, in, upon, or over any of the said carriage or foot ways, any timber, stone, bricks, lime, or other materials or things for building whatsoever (unless the same shall be enclosed as hereinbefore directed), or any other matters or things whatsoever, or shall hang out or expose, or shall cause or permit to be hung out or exposed, any meat or offal or other thing or matter whatsoever from any house or premises over any part of such foot-ways or carriage-ways, or over any area of any house or premises, or any other matter or thing from and on the outside or any part of any house or premises over or next to any such street or road, and shall not immediately remove all or any such matters or things being thereon required by the Inspector of Nuisances or any other officer of the Council, and shall not continue and keep the same so removed; or if any person having in pursuance of any such requisition as aforesaid removed or caused to be removed any such stall, show-board, basket, goods, coach, cart, dray, barrow, truck, carriage, timber, stone, brick, lime, meat, offal, or other matter or things, and shall at any time thereafter again set, lay, or place, expose, or cause, procure, permit, or suffer to be set, laid, placed, or exposed the same or any of them, or any other article or thing whatsoever (save and except as aforesaid) in, upon, or over any of the carriage or foot ways of or next unto any streets or roads as aforesaid, in every such case every person so offending shall forfeit a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than ten shillings.

Obstructing Public Pathways.

17. If the owner or occupier of any land situate on the side of any street or road in this Municipality shall permit any tree, shrub, or plant kept for ornament or otherwise to overhang any footpath or footway on the side of any such street or road, and on demand made by the Council shall not cut, lop, or cause to be lopped, all such trees, shrubs, or plants, to the height of ten feet at the least, the said Council by their servants, labourers, and workmen may cut or cause to be cut or lopped, all such overhanging trees, plants, or shrubs, and to remove or burn any such trees, plants or shrubs so cut or lopped, without being deemed a trespasser or trespassers; and in case any person or persons shall resist, or in any manner forcibly oppose the said Council, or their servants, labourers, or workmen in the due execution of the powers given in this behalf, by virtue of the Municipalities Act of 1867, every person so offending shall, on conviction for every such offence, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Slops, nightsoil, &c., to be conveyed away only at certain hours.

18. Any person or persons who shall drive or cause to be driven, any cart or other carriage with any nightsoil or ammoniacal liquor therein, through or in any street or public place, within the said Municipality, between the hours of 5 o'clock in the morning and 11 o'clock at night, or shall fill any cart or other carriage so as to turn over or cast any nightsoil, ammoniacal liquor, slop, mire, or channel dirt, or filth in or upon any such street or public place, or shall deposit nightsoil, ammoniacal liquor, or other offensive matter nearer to any street, road, or dwelling-house than shall be directed by the said Council or by the Inspector of Nuisances; or shall remove nightsoil or other offensive matter otherwise than in properly covered and water-tight carts or other vehicles, or shall cause any vehicle used for this purpose to stand on any premises nearer to any road, street, or dwelling-house than shall be directed by the said Council or the said Inspector of Nuisances, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds; and in case the person so offending shall not be known to the said Council or the said Inspector, then the owner of such cart or carriage in which such nightsoil or other offensive matter shall be put or placed, and also the employer of the person so offending shall be liable to the forfeit, and pay such penalty as aforesaid.

Riding on drays and careless driving.

19. If the driver of any waggon, wain, cart, or dray of any kind shall ride upon any such carriage in any street as aforesaid, not having some person on foot to guide the same (such carts as are drawn by one horse and driver, or guided with reins excepted) or if the driver of any carriage whatsoever shall willfully be at such a distance from such carriage, or in such a situation whilst it shall be passing upon such street that he cannot have the direction and government of the horse or horses, or cattle drawing the same, or if the driver of any waggon, cart, dray, or coach, or other carriage whatsoever meeting any other carriage shall not keep his waggon, cart, dray, or coach, or other carriage on the left or near side of the road, street, or thoroughfare; or if any person shall in any manner wilfully prevent any other person or persons from passing him or her or any carriage under his or her care upon such street; or by negligence, or misbehaviour, prevent, hinder, or interrupt the free passage of any carriage or person in or upon same, or shall ride or drive round the corner of any street, road, or thoroughfare faster than a walk, every such driver or person so offending shall upon conviction forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding forty shillings.

20. Any person who shall ride or drive through or upon any street or public place within the said Municipality so negligently, carelessly, or furiously that the safety of any other person shall or may be endangered, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds.

Hours within which cattle may not be driven in certain streets.

21. That any person or persons who shall drive, or cause to be driven, through Bong Bong-street, between the Mittagong Rivulet and Bowral-street; Merrigang-street between the Railway Station and the Rivulet and Bendooley-street, between Merrigang-street and Bowral-street, any cattle other than milking cows and working bullocks between the hours of 8 a.m. and 6 p.m., except by permission, in writing, from the Mayor or any two Aldermen, shall forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding five pounds: Provided that this by-law shall not interfere in any way with cattle being driven by the shortest route to a public pound.

Blasting Rock.

No rock to be blasted without notice to the Council Clerk.

22. Any person who shall be desirous of blasting any rock within one hundred yards of any street or public place or dwelling-house in the said Municipality, shall give notice in writing twenty-four hours previously to the Council Clerk, who shall appoint a time when the same may take place, and give such other directions as he may deem necessary for the public safety; and if any person shall blast or cause to be blasted any rock within the limits aforesaid, without giving such notice, or shall not conform to the directions given to him by the said Council Clerk, he or she shall on conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not less than five pounds nor more than twenty pounds.

Public Property.

Injuring or extinguishing lamps.

23. Any person who shall wantonly or maliciously break or injure any lamp or lamp-post, or extinguish any lamp set up for public convenience in the said Municipality, shall over and above the necessary expense of repairing the injury committed, forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

As to damaging buildings, &c.

24. Any person who shall damage any public toll-gate, toll-bar, toll-board, wall, parapet, fence, sluice-bridge, culvert, sewer, watercourse, or other public property within the said Municipality, shall pay the cost of repairing the same; and if such damage be wilfully done, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than five pounds.

Placing notices on footways or curbstones—Distributing or affixing anything of an offensive or indecent character.

25. Any person who shall stamp, stain, paint, write, or post any advertisement or notice upon any footway or curb-stone within this Municipality, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings. Any person who shall in any street or place within this Municipality, post, expose to view, or distribute, any placard, hand-bill, or other document whatever of an offensive or indecent character, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings.

Affixing placards on walls, and chalking thereon.

26. It shall not be lawful for any person to paste or otherwise affix any placard or other paper upon any wall, fence, house, or building, nor to deface any such wall, fence, house, or building by chalk or paint, or in any other manner unless with the consent of the owner thereof. Any person who shall be guilty of any such offence shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding twenty shillings.

Dead animals not to be thrown into any public watercourse, &c.

27. Any person who shall cast any filth, rubbish, or any dead animals, or any animal with intent to drowning, into any public watercourse, sewer, waterhole, river, creek, road, or pathway, or who shall suffer slops, suds, or filth of any kind to flow from his or her premises into any such watercourse, waterhole, river, creek, or canal, or who shall permit or suffer any such slops, suds, or filth, to flow from his or her premises over any of the footways or streets of the Municipality, or shall permit or cause by means of pipes, shoots, channels, or other contrivances, filth of any kind whatsoever, to flow into any public watercourse, waterhole, river, creek, or canal, or shall obstruct or divert from its channel any sewer or watercourse, river, creek, or canal, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds.

Dead animals, mode of removal.

28. If any animal shall die in any part of the said Municipality, and the owner of such animal, or the occupier of the place, if private property where such animal shall have died, shall not cause such animal to be immediately destroyed by fire or so effectually removed and disposed of that no nuisance can possibly result therefrom in any part of the said Municipality, he shall for every such offence forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding twenty pounds, nor less than two pounds: Provided if the occupier of the premises on which such dead animal shall have been found be not the owner of such dead animal, the owner when found shall be liable for the cost of destroying or removing such animal as in this by-law aforesaid.

No pigs to be kept without permission.

29. That no pigs shall be kept within the Municipality, excepting with the express permission of the Council.

30. Any person who shall suffer any kind of swine, or any horse, ass, mule, sheep, goat, cow, or any other animal of a like nature belonging to him or her, or under his or her charge to stray or go about, or to be tethered or depastured in any street, road, or public place shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings for such and every animal so kept, suffered to stray or go about, or to be tethered, depastured, in any such street, road, or public place as aforesaid, and the owner or occupier of any house or premises or other place within the said Municipality, wherein any such horse, mule, ass, sheep, goat, cow, or other animal is kept, fed, milked or used in any way whatsoever, shall within the meaning of these by-laws be deemed the owner of every such animal so bred, kept, suffered to stray, or to be tethered or depastured in any such street or public place as aforesaid. And the word "horses" shall be sufficient designation for any entires, geldings, mares, or foals, and the word "cattle" for any bulls, oxen, cows, or calves, when more than one is the subject of any information and summons under the provisions of these by-laws.

Slaughter-houses prohibited—Penalty for slaughtering within the Municipality.

31. No slaughter-houses shall be allowed within the boundaries of the said Municipality. If any person or persons shall slaughter, or cause to be slaughtered, any animal in any house or place within the Municipality, such person or persons shall forfeit and pay the sum of ten pounds for each and every animal so slaughtered.

Private persons slaughtering for their own use.

32. Nothing in these by-laws contained shall extend to or affect any person or persons slaughtering at his or her or their own residence within the said Municipality, animals for the personal consumption of himself, herself, or themselves, or of his or her or their family, servants, or labourers: Provided that the place where any such animal so slaughtered be not less than fifty feet from any street or other public place, or from any residence other than the residence of such person or persons so slaughtering, as in the by-law aforesaid.

33. The Inspector of Nuisances or other officer duly authorized by the Council may, and is hereby empowered at all reasonable times, with or without assistants, to enter into and inspect any shop, building, stall, or place kept or used for the sale of butchers' meat, and to examine any carcase, meat, or flesh, which may be therein, and in case any carcase, meat, or flesh, appear to him to be intended for the food of mankind, and to be unfit for such food, the same may be seized, and if it appear to a Justice of the Peace upon the evidence of a competent person that any such carcase, meat, or flesh, is unfit for the food of mankind, he shall order the same to be destroyed, or to be so disposed of as to prevent its being exposed for sale or use for such food, and the person or persons to whom such carcase, meat, or flesh belongs, or in whose custody the said is found, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds for every carcase or piece of meat or flesh so found.

34. For preserving the cleanliness of the said Municipality and the health of the inhabitants thereof, it shall be lawful for the Inspector of Nuisances or for any other officer or officers appointed by the Council from time to time, and when and as often as he or either of them shall see occasion, to visit and inspect the butchers' shambles, boiling-down establishments, tanneries, and fellmongering establishments in the said Municipality, and to give such directions concerning the cleansing the said shambles, tanneries, and establishments, both within and without, as to him shall seem needful; and any butcher or the owner or occupier of any such shamble, tannery, or establishment who shall refuse or neglect to comply with such directions within a reasonable time shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than ten shillings.

Complaints respecting dirty premises.

35. Upon the complaint of any householder that the house, premises, yards, closets, or drains of the neighbouring or adjoining premises are a nuisance or offensive, the Inspector of Nuisances or any other officer appointed by the said Council shall make an inspection of the premises complained of; and the officer of the said Council shall have the full power, without any other authority than this by-law, to go upon such premises for the aforesaid purpose, and any person who shall personally, or by any person in his employment or under his control, suffer any waste or stagnant water or any muck, filth, soil, or other offensive matter in any cellar or place within any dwelling-house or premises within the said Municipality, or shall in like manner suffer the contents of any water-closet, privy, or cesspool to overflow or soak therefrom, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Various obstructions and annoyances.

36. Every person who in any street or other public place or passage within the said Municipality, to the obstruction, annoyance, or danger of the residents or passengers, shall commit any of the following offences, shall on conviction for any and every such offence forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than two pounds:—

- (1.) Every person who shall hoist or cause to be hoisted, or lower or cause to be lowered, goods of any description from any opening in any house fronting any street or public place and close to the footway thereof without sufficient and proper ropes and tacklings.
- (2.) Every person who shall carry or convey, or cause to be carried or conveyed, in any street or public place the carcase or any part of the carcase of any newly-slaughtered animal without a sufficient and proper cloth covering the same for the concealment from the public view, or shall hawk or carry about butchers' meat for sale without covering the same as aforesaid.
- (3.) Every person who shall place any line, cord, or pole across any street, lane, or passage, or hang or place clothes thereon, or allow any tree or shrub overhanging the footpath to the danger or annoyance of any person.
- (4.) Every person who shall place any flower-pot in any upper window near to any street or public place without sufficiently guarding the same from being thrown down.
- (5.) Every person who shall throw or cast from the roof or any part of any house or other building any slate, brick, part of a brick, wood, rubbish, or other material or thing (unless within a hoard or enclosure, when any house or building is being erected, pulled down, or repaired).
- (6.) Every blacksmith, whitesmith, anchorsmith, nail-maker, metalfounder, limeburner, brickmaker, potter, or other person using a forge, furnace, or kiln, and having a door, window, or aperture fronting or opening into or towards any street, lane, or passage, and not enclosing such door, or not fastening the shutters or other fastenings of such windows and closing such aperture or placing a screen before the same every evening within one hour after sun-set, so as effectually to prevent the light from showing through the doorway, window, or aperture next or upon such street, lane, or passage.
- (7.) Every person who shall within the distance of one hundred yards from any dwelling-house burn any rags, bones, cork, or other offensive substance to the annoyance of any inhabitant.
- (8.) Every person who shall carry goods or any frame to the annoyance of any person upon the footway of any street or other public footway.
- (9.) Every person who shall be the keeper of or have any dog or other animal which shall attack or endanger the life or limb of any person who may have the right-of-way or use of any private yard, alley, street, or any other place within the said Municipality.

Premises in state to endanger public health.

House to be purified on certificate of two medical practitioners.

31. If upon the certificate of any two duly qualified medical practitioners it appears to the Council that any house or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith within the Municipality, is or are in such a filthy or unwholesome condition that the health of any person is or may be liable to be affected or endangered thereby, and the whitewashing, cleansing, or purifying of any house or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, would tend to prevent or check infectious or contagious disease, the said Council shall give notice in writing to the owner or occupier of such house or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, to whitewash, cleanse, or purify the same, as the case may require; and if the person to whom notice is so given shall fail to comply therewith within such time as shall be specified in the said notice he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten shillings for every day during which he continues to make default: Provided that no such penalties shall collectively amount to any greater sum than twenty pounds.

Offences against public decency.

38. Any person who shall bathe near to or within view of any inhabited house, or of any bridge, street, road, or other place of public resort within the limits of the Municipality, between the hours of 6 o'clock in the morning and 8 in the evening, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding one pound nor less than ten shillings for every such offence.

Penalty on indecent exposure of the person.

39. Any individual who shall offend against decency by exposure of his or her person in any street or public place within the said Municipality, or in the view thereof, shall on conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than five pounds.

Throwing rubbish on private property without permission.

40. No kind of rubbish or offensive matter shall be thrown upon any public or private property within the Municipality without permission first obtained from the Municipal Council and the owner or owners of such property. Persons found guilty of a breach of this by-law shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than ten shillings.

41. The Council shall have the power to plant trees, shrubs, or plants in the streets and public ways of the Municipality, and any person wilfully or carelessly injuring or destroying any of such trees, shrubs, or plants, or any railing fence or thing protecting the same, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds, in addition to the value of the trees, shrubs, plants, railing fence, or thing so injured.

PART V.

No noisome or offensive trade to be carried on to the injury of any person.

1. No person shall carry on any noisome or offensive trade within the said Municipality so as to injure or be a nuisance as hereinafter stated to the inhabitants thereof.

Definition of "Noisome and offensive trades."

2. Any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation in the conducting, following, or carrying on of which, or in consequence of, or in connection wherewith, or from the premises where the same is conducted, followed, or carried on, any gas, vapour, or effluvia, or any large quantities of smoke, shall be evolved or discharged, which gas, vapour, effluvia, or smoke shall be calculated to injure animal or vegetable life, or in any other way to injure or be a nuisance to the inhabitants of the said Municipality, shall be considered a "noisome and offensive trade" within the meaning of these by-laws.

Complaint—Inquire and report—Order of Council thereon—Notice to discontinue, &c.—Penalty.

3. Upon complaint in writing by any householder that any noisome or offensive trade is being so followed, conducted, or carried on in the vicinity of his or her residence or property as to injure his or her health, or the health of any member of his or her family, or to be a nuisance to such householder and to his or her family, the Inspector of Nuisances, or any other person or persons appointed by the Council, shall make an inspection of the premises in which such trade is alleged to be so conducted, followed, or carried on as aforesaid, and of the premises or property of the complainant, and shall inquire into the grounds for such complaint, and shall report thereon to the said Council: And if the said Council shall on the consideration of such report, or after any such further inquiry as may be deemed necessary, be of opinion that the said complaint is well founded, and that any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation so complained of and so being conducted, followed, or carried on as aforesaid, is a "noisome and offensive trade" within the meaning of these by-laws, notice shall be given to the person or persons conducting, following, or carrying on such trade to cease and discontinue the same within such reasonable time, not being less than thirty days nor more than sixty days, as the said Council may direct, or so to conduct, follow, or carry on his, her, or their manufacture, trade, calling, or operation as that within such reasonable time as aforesaid, the same shall wholly and permanently cease to be noisome and offensive within the meaning of these by-laws, either to the said complainant or to any other resident within the said Municipality. And if such trade shall not be discontinued as aforesaid, or shall not be so conducted as that it shall wholly cease to be noisome and offensive as aforesaid, within the time named in such notice as aforesaid, any person conducting, following, or carrying on such trade aforesaid shall for the first offence forfeit and pay a sum not less than forty shillings nor more than five pounds; for a second offence a sum of not less than five pounds nor more than twenty-five pounds; and for the third and every subsequent offence a sum of not less than ten pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Mode of proceeding where "Noisome and offensive trade" is about to be commenced—Penalty.

4. The like proceedings shall be taken as aforesaid whenever there shall be a complaint as aforesaid that any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation is about to be commenced or entered upon which is likely to prove "noisome and offensive" within the meaning of these by-laws, save and except the notices to be given as aforesaid, shall be given to the person or persons about to commence or enter upon such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, and shall require him or her, or them, not to commence or enter upon the same, or to take such measures as shall effectually and permanently prevent the same from becoming "noisome and offensive" within the meaning of these by-laws to any resident within the Municipality. And any person who shall in any such case commence, enter upon, or continue any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, so that the same shall be in any way "noisome and offensive" within the meaning of these by-laws, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum of not less than ten pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Inspector of Nuisances may take legal proceedings.

5. The Inspector of Nuisances or other person appointed by the Council may take legal proceedings against any person or persons committing any offence or offences against any of the by-laws of the said Municipality.

Service of notice—Liabilities.

6. Service of any such notice as aforesaid upon the occupier or owner of any premises or land wherein or whereon any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation is being conducted, followed, or carried on, or is about to be commenced or entered upon, or at the last known place of abode of such occupier or owner, or upon any person on the said premises or land, shall be a good and sufficient service of such notice for all the purposes of these by-laws. And every person who shall be actually engaged in superintending, directing, or managing, or who shall be in any other way actually engaged or employed in any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation as aforesaid, shall be liable to be regarded and treated as a person conducting, following, or carrying on such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation within the meaning and for all the purposes of these by-laws.

Penalties to be paid over to Treasurer.

7. All penalties under any of these by-laws shall be paid over to the Treasurer of the said Municipality to be appropriated as the Council may direct.

Interpretation of Mayor and Municipality.

8. Whenever in any of these by-laws the word "Mayor" is made use of it shall, unless the context shall indicate a contrary intention, be construed also to signify and include any alderman lawfully acting for the time being in the place or stead of the Mayor; and whenever the word "Municipality" is made use of in the said by-laws it shall be understood to signify the "Municipality of Bowral."

PART VI.

Public Exhibitions.

Exhibitions, &c., to be licensed

1. No exhibition other than exhibitions licensed by the Colonial Secretary under the provisions of the Act 14 Vic.

No. 23, or exhibitions of a temporary character hereinafter specially provided for, shall be held or kept for hire or profit within the said Municipality; nor shall any bowling alley, dancing saloon, or other place of public amusement other than place licensed as aforesaid, or a place for temporary amusement hereinafter specially provided for, be used as such for hire or profit within the said Municipality, unless and until permission in writing be granted by the Mayor.

Penalty for exhibiting, &c., without license.

2. Every person holding or keeping any such exhibition, or using any place within the said Municipality for public amusement as aforesaid, or causing, or permitting such place to be so used without such permission of such Mayor, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than five shillings nor more than forty shillings for every day that such exhibition shall be so held or kept, or such place shall be so used for public amusement as aforesaid.

No exhibitions on Sundays, &c.

3. No such exhibition or place of public amusement as aforesaid shall be held or kept open or used for the purposes of such public amusement on Sunday, Christmas Day, or Good Friday; and every person offending against this by-law in this behalf shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds for every such offence.

PART VII.

Miscellaneous.

Damning up without consent.

1. Whosoever shall, without the consent in writing of the Council, construct or place any dam or embankment, or allow any accumulation of drift or silt, to accumulate in or across any river, creek, or natural watercourse, shall forfeit and pay any sum not less than one pound nor more than twenty pounds, and shall remove such dam or embankment within a reasonable time after such conviction, or shall forfeit and pay any sum not less than five pounds nor more than fifty pounds. And if after such second conviction such person shall fail to remove such dam or embankment within a further reasonable time he shall forfeit and pay a sum of not less than twenty pounds nor more than fifty pounds; and if within a reasonable time after a third or further conviction he shall still fail to remove such dam or embankment, he shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum of fifty pounds.

Passed and adopted by the Council of the Municipal District of Bowral on the thirteenth day of August, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six, as the By-laws of the said Municipal District.

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 10th March, 1887.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF ST. PETER'S—AMENDED BY-LAWS.

THE following amended By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of St. Peter's, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

THAT By-law No. 10, Part 3, be altered as follows:—After the word "of," and before the word "stating," in the fifth line, there be inserted 5 to 7.30 p.m. in lieu of 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

That No. 11, part 4, be rescinded, and that the following be substituted therefor:—

Entrances to Cellars, &c., to be covered, &c.

If the owner or occupier of any premises, having any rails or bars over the areas or openings to any kitchen or cellars, or other part of the said premises beneath the surface of the footway of any streets or public places, or having any door or entrance into the basement or cellar story thereof, shall not either keep the same, or the rails of such kitchen, cellars, or other parts in sufficient and good repair, or constantly keep the same securely guarded by rails, or cover the same over with a strong flap or trap-door, according to the nature of the case, and so as to prevent danger to persons passing and repassing; or if any such owner or occupier shall leave open, or not sufficiently nor substantially keep covered and secured any coal or other hole, funnel, trap-door, or cellar-flap belonging to or connected with his premises (save and except only during reasonable time) for use, alteration, or repair, or if such owner or occupier shall not repair and from time to time keep in good and substantial repair all and every or any such rails, guardrails, flaps, trap-doors, and other covering, then and in every such case the person neglecting so to do shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds.

Places of Amusement to be Licensed.

No dancing saloon, bowling or skittle alley, shooting gallery, or similar place of amusement (other than entertainments requiring to be licensed by law) shall exist or be established within the Borough, unless and until such place of amusement shall have been licensed by the Council, as hereinafter provided; and in the event of any such licensed place of amusement being improperly conducted, or becoming a nuisance or annoyance to any inhabitant, or violating public decency, or endangering the public peace, the Mayor shall, on representation to that effect being made, forthwith suspend the said license, and the Council at its next meeting shall by resolution cause the said license to be cancelled or otherwise, as may appear necessary or desirable; and any person or persons having already established such places of amusement who shall not within thirty days after these By-laws come into force apply for such license, or any person or persons who shall open, establish, or maintain any such place of amusement as aforesaid, without having obtained such license, shall forfeit and pay a sum of not more than twenty-five pounds nor less than ten pounds.

Mode of Granting Licenses.

Applications for licenses as aforesaid must be in writing, addressed to the Mayor and Aldermen, and must be endorsed by two householders testifying to the respectability of the applicant. The application must describe clearly the nature of the entertainment for which the license is sought, and the premises in which it is to be held.

License Fees.

Licenses shall be granted by resolution of the Council upon payment of License Fees as follows:—For every license granted between the 1st January and 31st December, one pound one shilling. All licenses shall expire on the 31st December in each year, and may be renewed by resolution of the Council upon written application, and on payment of the annual fee of one pound one shilling.

That No. 40, part 4, fine, to be altered to not less than £5, and not to exceed £20.

That No. 14, part 4, be rescinded, and the following be substituted therefor:—

Erection of Verandahs.

No person shall be permitted to erect verandahs unless the same be in accordance with the plan adopted by the Sydney Council, with the following modifications:—Posts to be 6 x 6 inches, height not less than 9 feet, and the permission of the Council to be first obtained under a penalty of not less than ten pounds, and not exceeding twenty pounds.

MUNICIPALITIES.

(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF MUSWELLBROOK—AMENDED BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 10th March, 1887.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF MUSWELLBROOK.—AMENDED BY-LAWS.

THE following Amended By-Laws made by the Council of the Municipal District of Muswellbrook, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," for the regulation and management of the Waterworks of the Municipality, having been confirmed by his Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

At a meeting of the Municipal Council of Muswellbrook, held on the 17th day of December, 1886, the following resolutions were passed:—

1st. That on and after the first day of January, 1887, all By-laws relating to the Municipal Waterworks be rescinded, and of no effect.

2nd. That the following By-laws for the regulation and management of the said waterworks be adopted in lieu thereof.

(L.S.) S. J. DOWELL,
Mayor.

Municipal Council Chamber,
Muswellbrook, 21st January, 1887.

J. STAFFORD,
Council Clerk.

BY-LAWS relating to the Municipal Waterworks.

On and after the first day of January, 1887, water may be obtained at the Municipal Waterworks under the following conditions and regulations, viz. :—

1st. Persons wishing to obtain water from the said waterworks must first obtain a license from the Municipal Council for each cart used.

2nd. Monthly licenses will be issued by the said Council, as hereinafter provided, but no licenses will be issued for a less term than one calendar month.

3rd. Any person taking water from the said waterworks without having obtained the necessary license shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

4th. Carriers of water for sale may obtain licenses on application to the Council Clerk. The amount payable in advance for such licenses shall be according to the following scale, viz. :—

For the month of January .....	£1 15 0

August .....	0 15 0
September .....	1 5 0
October .....	1 5 0
November .....	1 15 0
December .....	1 15 0

5th. Persons drawing water for their own bond fide use only can obtain licenses by making application to the Municipal Council according to form attached hereto, and the Council shall assess the amounts payable by each applicant as such license fee, and on payment of the same a license shall be granted.

6th. Any person drawing water from the waterworks may be called upon by any alderman or authorized officer of the Municipal Council to produce his license, and failing or refusing to do so, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding two pounds.

7th. The names of each licensee carting water for sale, together with the words "Licensed Water-cart," shall be legibly painted on some conspicuous place on his water-cart. Any person omitting to comply with this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one pound.

8th. The Municipal Council reserves to itself the right to close the said waterworks between the hours of 6 p.m. and 6 a.m.

9th. All penalties under these By-laws may be recovered in a summary way before two Justices in Petty Sessions, as the law directs.

Form of application for Private License.

Muswellbrook,

.....1887 .

To the Municipal Council of Muswellbrook.

I hereby make application for a license for one cart to draw water from the Municipal Waterworks for the month of .....1887. I estimate the number of casks of 56 gallons each which I shall require during the said month to be ....., and I undertake that any water drawn by my cart shall be for my own bond fide use only.

Erections of balconies, awnings, &c.

1. No person or persons shall be permitted to erect any house, shop, arcade, balcony, or other building or erection whatsoever in any street, lane, or place in the Municipality, without first serving notice in writing upon the Mayor or Town Clerk on any lawful day between the hours of nine a.m. and four o'clock p.m., stating such intention and describing the proposed situation of the building or other erection, together with a plan or sketch showing the design and general dimensions of any such erection, and also showing that wherever a petition dividing any such balcony, or colonnade, or other erection is required the same shall not exceed three feet in height from the floor of such balcony or colonnade to the full width of the same, so as to allow an uninterrupted view and a current of air to continuously pass through the same without any obstruction whatever, and the same shall be settled by the Mayor or Town Clerk for the time being and shown on the plan or sketch sent for the approval of the said Mayor or Town Clerk, who shall give the required level and alignment of any street on payment of a fee of five shillings. No person shall be at liberty to encroach beyond the building-line of any street or lane when erecting any building or buildings or forming the foundation of any building or buildings upon or under the surface of any land within the Municipality, or by any door, steps, fences, or any other obstructions whatever. This portion only applies to encroachments, buildings, and other erections on the surface of the land, and not the erections hereinbefore mentioned. If any person shall erect or cause to be erected any of the aforesaid erections, except as aforesaid, contrary to the approval of the Mayor or Town Clerk, as shown on the plan or sketch approved of by the Mayor or Town Clerk, after a notice has been given by the Mayor or Town Clerk to remove the same, either may authorise any officer or officers, servant or servants of the Council to remove any such erection or any part or parts thereof that is not in strict accordance with such plan or sketch, and all expenses incurred in such removal may be recovered by the Council from such person or persons so offending in any court of competent jurisdiction; or the Mayor or Town Clerk may cause such person or persons to be summoned before any Justice of the Peace, and such person or persons so offending shall be liable for every day the same shall remain unaltered to a penalty not less than forty shillings nor exceeding ten pounds.

Excavations to be erected.

2. Any person or persons who shall dig or make or cause to be dug or made any hole, or leave or cause to be left any hole adjoining, near to, or in any street or public place within the Municipality of Newcastle, for the purpose of making any vault or vaults or the foundation or foundations of any house or building, or for any other purpose whatsoever, or shall erect or pull down any building and shall not forthwith enclose the same and keep the same enclosed in a good and sufficient manner, in accordance with the plan and specification adopted by the Council of the aforesaid Municipality, and to the satisfaction of the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer of the aforesaid Council; and any person or persons who shall keep up or cause to be kept up and continued any such enclosure for any time which shall be longer than shall have been allowed by the said Council in their notice of permission to enclose as aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay for every such refusal or neglect any sum not less than forty shillings nor exceeding five pounds.

Dead animals, filth, &c., not to be thrown.

3. Any person who shall cast any filth, rubbish, or any dead animal, or any animal, with intent of drowning, into any public watercourse, sewer, waterhole, river, creek, or canal, or who shall suffer slops, suds, or filth of any kind to flow from his or her premises over any of the footways or streets of the Municipality, or shall permit or cause by means of pipes, shoots, channels, or other contrivances suds or filth of any kind whatever to flow into or upon any lane or right-of-way, or who shall cast any suds, filth, or rubbish upon any such street, lane, or right-of-way, or any owner or occupier who shall neglect to keep clean any enclosed or open land or vacant building lot within the Municipality, shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds and not less than one pound.

4. No person or persons shall drive or cause to be driven any horse or horses, cattle, or other animals through or upon any public street or place within the Municipality of Newcastle between the hours of six o'clock a.m. and eleven o'clock p.m., except as hereinafter provided; and any person or persons found driving, or who shall cause to be driven, any such animals as aforesaid shall forfeit and pay a penalty not less than forty shillings nor exceeding five pounds. Provided always that this By-law does not apply to horses or cattle driven in or attached to any vehicle under the control of any owner or driver thereof, or to any animal or animals led or controlled by a halter or halters, bridle or bridles, or other secure fastenings, when under the control of any person or persons then in charge of the same.

Made and passed by the Council of the Borough of Newcastle, this fifth day of July, in the year of Our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six.

MUNICIPALITIES.
(BOROUGH OF NEWTOWN—ADDITIONAL BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 10th March, 1887.

BOROUGH OF NEWTOWN.—ADDITIONAL BY-LAWS.

The following additional By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of Newtown, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the "Municipalities Act of 1867."

HENRY PARKES.

BOROUGH OF NEWTOWN.

BY-LAWS for regulating the traffic in the streets of the Borough of Newtown.

Vehicles, &c., to be driven at a walking pace over crossings.

No person shall drive any vehicle, or ride any horse, or propel any velocipede, whilst turning the corners of any of the streets of the said Borough of Newtown, at a pace faster than a walk.

Vehicles to be driven on near side.

All persons driving any vehicle through any street or roadway in the said Borough shall, except in crossing for the purpose of setting down or taking up goods or passengers, keep such vehicle, as near as practicable, to the left hand or near side of the street.

Vehicles to stand alongside foot-path.

No person shall permit or suffer any vehicle under his or her charge or control to stand or remain in any street or roadway in the said Borough (except for the purpose of loading or unloading) without causing such vehicle to be placed alongside of and parallel with the footway of such street or roadway.

Lights to be carried on vehicles, &c.

No person shall use, drive, or conduct any vehicle along any street or roadway within the said Borough of Newtown, between sunset and sunrise, without carrying a light upon some conspicuous part of such vehicle, in such manner as that the same shall be distinctly visible to persons either meeting or following such vehicle.

Drivers of vehicles to give way.

The driver of any vehicle shall give way, if he conveniently can, to any other vehicle during the taking up or the setting down of any person into or from such vehicle.

Drivers to give notice when stopping.

The driver of any vehicle stopping the same in any street or roadway of the said Borough of Newtown for any purpose whatever, shall give notice of his intention so to do by holding up his whip or hand, so that the same may be visible to the driver of any vehicle immediately following; and upon stopping he shall so place his vehicle as to cause as little obstruction as possible to the traffic; and if the stoppage of such vehicle prevent the passing of any other vehicle, such driver shall, upon being thereto required by the driver of such other vehicle, or by any officer or servant of the Municipal Council of Newtown, or police officer, remove his vehicle so as to permit such other vehicle to pass.

Offensive or indecent placards.

No person shall, in any street or place within the said Borough, post or expose to view or distribute any placard, handbill, or other document whatever of an offensive or indecent character.

Placing fruit skins, &c., on roadway.

No person shall throw or place upon any street, crossing, or footpath in the said Borough any fruit skin, rind, or peel.

Bands not to play.

No band or bands of music shall be allowed to be played in the streets of the said Borough on Sundays.

Penalty.

Any person offending against any of the foregoing By-laws shall for each offence upon conviction forfeit and pay a penalty or sum not exceeding ten pounds.

Various obstructions and annoyances.

Every person who, in any street or other public place or passage within the said Borough, to the obstruction, annoyance, or danger of the residents or passengers, shall commit any of the following offences shall on conviction for any and every such offence, forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds nor less than five shillings.

Every person who shall hoist or cause to be hoisted, or lower or cause to be lowered, goods of any description from any house fronting any street or public place, and close to the foot-way thereof, without sufficient and proper ropes and tackling.

Every person who shall carry or convey or cause to be conveyed in any street or public place, the carcase, or any part of the carcase, of any newly slaughtered animal without a sufficient and proper cloth covering the same for the concealment from public view, or shall hawk or carry about butcher's meat for sale without covering the same as aforesaid.

Every person who shall place any wire, line, cord, or pole, across any street, lane, or passage; or hang or place clothes thereon to the danger, obstruction, or annoyance of any person.

Every person who shall place any flower-pot, vase, or utensil in any upper window, near to any street or public place, without sufficiently guarding the same from being thrown down.

Every person who shall throw or cast from the roof or any part of any house or other building, any slate, brick, wood, rubbish, or other material or thing (unless within a board or enclosure when any house or building is erected, pulled down, or repaired.

Every person who shall, within the distance of one hundred yards from any dwelling-house, burn any rags, bones, cork, or other offensive substance (garden refuse excepted) to the annoyance of any inhabitant.

Every person who shall carry goods or any frame to the annoyance of any person upon any public footway.

Every person who shall be the keeper of or have any dog or other animal which shall attack or endanger the life or limb of any person in any street or other public place within the said Borough.

Public Health.

Allowing filth to remain, &c.

Any person or persons allowing any filth or offensive matter to lie or remain on his or her or their premises shall be liable to a penalty of not more than ten pounds.

Allowing filth to flow, &c.

Any person or persons allowing any filth or offensive matter to flow or come from his, her or their premises shall be liable to a penalty of not more than ten pounds.

Closets to be provided, &c.

Every building already built, or hereafter to be built, shall be provided with sufficient privy or closet accommodation for the sole use of the occupants of such building; and if any owner or occupier who shall fail to provide sufficient privy or closet accommodation to meet the requirements of the occupants of any building or premises, or of the persons employed therein, within the space of thirty days after having received from the Inspector a written notice to make such provision, shall be liable to a penalty of a sum not less than one pound nor more than twenty pounds for every day after such time that the said privy or closet accommodation shall remain unprovided. Before any building is commenced, sufficient privy or closet accommodation shall be provided by the owner or builder thereof for the use of the employees during the erection of such building.

Mayor or Officers to enter upon, &c.

The Mayor, Surveyor, Health Officer, Inspector of Nuisances, or any person authorized by them or either of them, shall be entitled at any time between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., to enter upon any premises for the purpose of inspecting any portion of the said premises in the Borough, or for the better carrying into effect of these By-laws.

Cleansing, purifying, fumigating &c.

If upon the certificate of any two duly qualified medical practitioners it appear to the Council or Mayor thereof that any house or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, within the limits of the said Borough, is in such a filthy or unwholesome state that the health of any person is or may be liable to be affected or endangered thereby, and that the whole washing, cleansing, purifying, or fumigating of any house or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, would tend to prevent or check infection or contagious disease, the said Council or Mayor shall give notice in writing to the owner or occupier of such house or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connexion therewith, to whitewash, cleanse, purify, or fumigate the same, as the case may require; and if the person to whom notice is so given shall fail to comply therewith within the time specified in the said notice, he or she shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten shillings for every day during which he or she continues to make default, provided that no such penalties shall collectively amount to any greater sum than fifty pounds.

Care and management of streets, &c.

Opening roadways.

Any person being desirous of opening any street, roadway, or footpath within the said Borough for the purpose of laying on service-pipes for water or gas, or drain-pipes, or any other thing, shall, before doing so, give notice to the Council Clerk at his office, and pay a fee of five shillings. In every case where the roadway has been laid with blue metal cubes, an extra fee of twenty shillings must be paid. Any person failing to comply with any of the provisions of this By-law shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings, in addition to the fees herein imposed.

Relating to stop-cocks.

Any person or persons requiring a stop-cock or tap attached to any service-pipe in any footpath within the said Borough shall provide and fix around such stop-cock or tap an iron box, the covering of which shall be made flush with the surface of the said footpath, and in default thereof shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings.

Penalties where no special penalty mentioned, and for obstructing enforcement of By-laws.

Every person committing a breach of any of these By-laws shall, where no penalty is mentioned for such offence, be liable to a penalty of a sum not exceeding twenty pounds; and any person obstructing any person in the discharge of any duty imposed, or in the exercise of any privilege conferred by any of these By-laws, shall be liable to a penalty of a sum not exceeding twenty pounds.

(BOROUGH OF EAST MAITLAND--AMENDED BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 25th March, 1887.

BOROUGH OF EAST MAITLAND.--AMENDED BY-LAWS.

THE following amended By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of East Maitland, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," for the regulating and licensing of vehicles plying for hire within the Municipality, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

BY-LAWS for the regulating and licensing of vehicles plying for hire within the Borough of East Maitland.

THE Council of the Borough of East Maitland, by virtue of the power and authority vested in such Council by the Municipalities Act of 1867, do hereby make the following By-laws for regulating and licensing vehicles plying for hire within the said Borough, to be read with the By-laws for regulating and licensing vehicles plying for hire within the said Borough, made and passed by the Borough Council of East Maitland on the 10th day of November, A.D. 1880, and hereinafter referred to as the principal By-laws:—

1. In lieu and in substitution of Rule 8 of the principal By-laws, which is hereby repealed, the following By-law is made, that is to say: Every license granted by the Mayor shall be signed by him in duplicate, and countersigned by the Council Clerk, and shall be in force, in the case of proprietors, to the 30th of June or 31st of December next ensuing the date thereof, accordingly as the same shall be issued between the 31st of December and the 30th of June, or between the 30th of June and the 31st of December, and in the case of drivers and conductors to the end of the yearly quarter next ensuing the date of such license, and no longer; and no such license shall include more than one vehicle, but shall extend to any vehicle which shall bear the same number, and shall be used in substitution of any vehicle already licensed, subject, however, to the certificate of the Inspector mentioned in number five of the said principal By-laws being first obtained in respect of such substituted vehicle.

2. In lieu and in substitution of Rule 9 of the principal By-laws, which is hereby repealed, the following By-law is made, that is to say: For every proprietor's license, and for every renewal thereof, there shall be paid to the Council the sum of one pound.

3. In lieu and in substitution of Rule 10 of the principal By-laws, which is hereby repealed, the following By-law is made, that is to say: For the license of every driver or conductor, and for every renewal thereof, there shall be paid to the Council the sum of two shillings and sixpence.

4. The proceeding upon his journey by any driver without any stoppage or detention at No. 2 stand, as provided for under the 34th Rule of the principal By-laws, is hereby declared to be equivalent to a starting from such stand within the meaning of the 35th Rule of the said principal By-laws.

5. Between the 35th and 36th Rules of the principal By-laws the following By-law is made and inserted, that is to say: The driver of any vehicle which shall start from No. 1 stand shall pass or stop at No. 2 stand within the space of 13 minutes from the time of his departure from No. 1 stand, and no later; and the driver of any vehicle which shall pass or start from No. 2 stand shall stop at No. 1 stand within the space of twenty minutes from the time of his so passing or starting from No. 2 stand, and no later.

6. Schedule B of the said principal By-laws, which is hereby repealed, is made, altered, and is hereby declared to be the Form referred to in Rule 7 of the principal By-laws, that is to say:

BY-LAW 7.

Form of License.

No. _____ This is to certify that _____, residing in _____ street, _____ Maitland, is hereby licensed to ply (or drive or conduct as the case may be) a certain (state kind of vehicle), number _____ within the Borough of East Maitland, from the day of the date hereof, to the _____ next, subject, nevertheless, to all and every the By-laws, Rules, and Regulations in force relating thereto at any time during the currency thereof.

THE following amended By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Lismore, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF LISMORE.

AMENDED BY-LAWS of the Municipal District of Lismore, under the provisions of the "Municipalities Act of 1867."

By-laws repealed.

By-laws numbers 19 and 20 in the code of By-laws made and passed by the Municipal Council of Lismore on the 22nd September, 1879, are hereby repealed.

Licensing vehicles, carts, and timber-carriages

1. All owners of vehicles plying or carrying passengers, goods, or other materials for hire, all water, firewood, and coal carters, and all owners of vehicles used for selling or hawking vegetables and fruit in the Municipal District shall be licensed by the Council, and the license fees shall be at the rate of seven shillings and sixpence per wheel per annum.

2. The owner of every timber-carriage or vehicle used for that purpose, or dray attached as a substitute for the conveyance of timber, using the streets of the Municipal District with such timber-carriage, vehicle, or dray, as aforesaid, for the conveyance of timber in logs or otherwise shall be licensed by the Council, and the license fee shall be at the rate of ten shillings per wheel per annum.

3. The owners of all vehicles, carts, water-carts and timber-carriages licensed under the foregoing By-laws, numbered 1 and 2 respectively, shall have their names and places of abode painted in legible letters at least 2 inches high and proportionately broad in white letters on a black ground on the off side of each such vehicle, cart, water-cart, and timber-carriage respectively.

4. Before any license for plying a vehicle or to drive or conduct the same shall be granted, the person requiring such license shall obtain from the Council Clerk free of charge a requisition in the form of the Schedule hereunto annexed, marked with the letter A, or to the like effect, and duly fill up and sign the same and deliver it to the Council Clerk, and all drivers or conductors shall obtain a certificate from two respectable householders setting forth that the applicant is of good character and competent to act as such driver or conductor as the case may be.

5. No license shall be granted if in the opinion of three Aldermen, who shall be appointed by a resolution of the Council, any vehicle is unsafe or in bad repair, or otherwise unfit for the accommodation and conveyance of passengers therein, nor shall it be licensed until the number of such vehicle be painted thereon as provided by number 3 of these By-laws.

6. Licenses for proprietors, drivers, and conductors of passenger-carrying vehicles shall be in the form contained in the Schedule hereunto annexed marked with the letter B, or to the like effect, and no person shall ply, drive, or conduct any vehicle for hire without such license, and every owner who shall omit or fail to comply with the provisions of this or any of the foregoing By-laws numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, respectively, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds.

7. Every license granted under these By-laws shall be under the common seal of the Municipal District of Lismore, and signed by the Mayor and countersigned by the Council Clerk, and shall be in force from the date of such license until the 31st day of December next ensuing, subject to the conditions in By-law 11, and no such license shall include more than one vehicle, provided that where the licensed vehicle shall be under repair, if the proprietor shall so desire he may be permitted to substitute another for a period to be then specified and endorsed on the license signed by the Mayor and countersigned as aforesaid.

8. No license shall be granted to any person to drive any passenger-carrying vehicle who shall be under the age of eighteen years.

9. All licenses shall be made out by the Council Clerk, and numbered consecutively.

10. The person in whose name a license shall appear to have been obtained shall be prima facie deemed to be the owner of the vehicle in respect of which the same shall have been taken out.

11. The three Aldermen aforesaid shall as often as they may deem it necessary cause an inspection to be made of all or any licensed vehicles, and of the harness, horse, or horses, and if any such vehicle, harness, horse, or horses shall at any time be found by the said Aldermen to be unfit for use, the Mayor may cancel the license of such vehicle on the written report of the said Aldermen.

12. Every person driving any vehicle within the Municipal District between sunset and sunrise shall carry two lights, one on each side of the outside of such vehicle, in a conspicuous place, and every person riding on a bicycle or tricycle as aforesaid shall carry a conspicuous light attached thereto. Any one offending against this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one pound, nor less than two shillings and sixpence.

13. Any person who shall ride on horseback, or on any bicycle or tricycle, or drive in a vehicle round the corners of any street within the Municipal District at a pace faster than a walk, shall on conviction forfeit and pay any sum not more than one pound, nor less than two shillings and sixpence.

Loitering, &c., on streets.

14. All persons standing, laying down, kneeling down, or loitering upon any of the footways, carriage-ways, or other public places in the Municipal District to the inconvenience of the passers-by, or in any way, either singularly or collectively interrupting the traffic, who shall not discontinue to do so on being required by any officer of the Council of the Municipal District, or by any police constable, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding two pounds, nor less than five shillings.

15. The word vehicle in any of the foregoing By-laws shall mean and apply to any omnibus or other conveyances carrying passengers, cart, van, wain, waggon, or dray used for any of the purposes mentioned therein.

16. When any carriage is submitted for inspection by the owner or other applicant, with the view to obtain a license, the Aldermen appointed by the Council to that duty shall then determine upon the number of passengers the vehicle shall be permitted to carry and give a certificate to that effect, such number to be mentioned in the license.

17. The number of passengers each vehicle is licensed to carry shall be printed or painted in legible characters and affixed within and without the vehicle, as directed by the inspecting Aldermen.

18. No person suffering from any infectious disease shall ride in or upon any licensed vehicle, and no driver or conductor shall knowingly carry or permit to be carried any such person, or (except to some police-office or watch-house) any corpse, or any person in a state of intoxication, or who is so noisily or violently conducting himself, or otherwise so misbehaving, as to occasion any annoyance, or to disturb the public peace; and no passenger shall carry on any licensed passenger carrying vehicle any animal, or any substance of any offensive character, or that might soil or damage the vehicle or the apparel of other passengers; and no driver or conductor shall sleep in or upon any licensed vehicle, or use the same for eating his meals therein.

19. No driver of any licensed vehicle shall be or remain at such a distance from his licensed vehicle anywhere within the said Municipal District, so as not to have immediate and full control over the same.

20. All hackney carriages and cabs carrying passengers shall (except when turning street corners or going over crossings), proceed at a speed of not less than 6 miles an hour, unless when attending funerals or when otherwise ordered by the hirer.

21. Copies of all By-laws passed by the Council for the regulation of licensed vehicles shall be delivered with each license issued.

MUNICIPALITIES.

(BOROUGH OF VICTORIA—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 30th March, 1887.

BOROUGH OF VICTORIA—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of Victoria, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," for regulating the proceedings of the Council, the collection of rates, the care and management of public roads and streets, and the general good rule and government of the Borough, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

BOROUGH OF VICTORIA.

BY-LAWS the better to enable the Municipal Council to regulate the proceedings of the Council, for the collection of rates, the care and management of public roads and streets, and for the general good rule and government of the Borough, made under the "Municipalities Act of 1867."

Preamble.

WHEREAS the Borough of Victoria, prior to its incorporation in 1871, formed part of the Borough of St. Leonards, and under the provisions of section 160 of the "Municipalities Act of 1867," the By-laws in existence in the Borough of St. Leonards at the time of the division of the Borough of Victoria from the said Borough of St. Leonards remain in force in the Borough of Victoria until the same shall be repealed, amended, or altered; and whereas it is expedient to alter, repeal, and amend the said By-laws, and it is hereby ordered.

Repeal of By-Laws.

1. The By-laws made and passed by the Borough Council of St. Leonards, so far as the same may be in force in the Borough of Victoria are hereby repealed.

Proceedings of the Council and Committees.—Preservation of order at Council meetings.—Duties of officers and servants, &c.

Meetings of the Council.

Ordinary meetings.

2. Unless otherwise ordered, the Council shall meet for the despatch of business on the first Monday in every month, at the hour of 8 p.m., unless such day shall happen to be a public holiday. In the latter case the meeting shall be held on the day following.

Election of Chairman in absence of Mayor.—Adjournment for want of quorum.

3. If at any meeting of the Council the Mayor be absent at the expiration of fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding such meeting, the Aldermen then present shall proceed to elect from among themselves a Chairman for such meeting. Whenever there shall be an adjournment of any such meeting for want of a quorum, the names of the members present shall be taken down and recorded in the minute book.

Business of ordinary meetings.

4. The following shall be the order of business at all meetings of the Council other than special meetings:—

1. The minutes of the last preceding meeting to be read, corrected if erroneous, and signed by the Mayor or other Chairman. No discussion to be permitted on such minutes, except as to whether they are correct.
2. Correspondence to be read and orders made thereon if expedient.
3. Petitions (if any) to be read and dealt with.
4. Reports from Committees and minutes from the Mayor (if any) to be presented and orders made thereon.
5. Questions as to any matters under the jurisdiction or within the official cognizance of the Council to be put and replied to, and statements as to any facts, matters, or circumstances requiring attention by the Council, or any of the committees or officers to be made.
6. Motions, of which notice has been given, to be dealt with in the order in which they stand on the business paper.
7. Orders of the day to be disposed of as they stand on the business paper.

Business at Special Meetings.

5. At special meetings of the Council the business, after the minutes shall have been read and confirmed, which shall be done in the same manner as at an ordinary meeting, shall be taken in such order as the Mayor or the Alderman at whose instance the special meeting shall be called, may have directed.

Absence of proposed mover.

6. No motion, of which notice shall have been entered on the business paper, shall be proceeded with in absence of the Alderman by whom such notice shall have been given, unless by some other Alderman producing a written authority for that purpose from such first-named Alderman.

Motion to be seconded.

7. No motion shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Motion to be in writing and not withdrawn without leave.

8. Every motion of which notice has been given shall be in writing—shall be signed by the mover, and no motion when seconded shall be withdrawn without leave of the Council.

Amendments may be moved.

9. When a motion shall have been moved and seconded, any Alderman shall be at liberty to move an amendment thereon, but no such amendment shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Only one amendment at a time.

10. No second or subsequent amendment shall be taken into consideration until the previous amendment shall have been disposed of.

Petitions and correspondence.

11. The Council may at any meeting resolve, without previous notice, that any petition be received, and that the same or any correspondence read, be referred to a Committee for report, or that the requests therein contained be granted.

Mayor to preserve order.

12. The Mayor shall preserve order, and may at any time call to order any Alderman who may appear to him to be out of order.

Calls to order.

13. Any Alderman may at any time call the attention of the Mayor to any Alderman being out of order, or to any point of order.

Mayor's decision on points of order final.

14. Every point of order shall be taken into consideration immediately upon its arising, and the decision of the Mayor thereon shall be conclusive, except as hereinafter provided.

Power of the Council as to laying down general rules, &c.

15. Any Alderman who is dissatisfied with the decision of the Mayor or Chairman on any such question of order or of practice may, by motion on notice, respectfully worded, invite the Council to lay down a different rule or principle for the determination of any similar question of order or of practice which may hereafter arise. Any rule or principle thus laid down shall be binding upon all parties, unless and until it be rescinded, but shall have no retrospective operation.

Mayor may take part in proceedings.

16. The Mayor may take part in all the proceedings of the Council, or Committees thereof.

Questions put by Mayor.

17. The Mayor shall put all questions, first in the affirmative and then in the negative (provided that where an amendment is moved to any motion, the amendment shall be first put), and may do so as often as may be necessary to enable him to determine the sense of the Council thereon, and thereupon he shall declare his decision, which shall be final, unless a division be called for.

Mayor to decide as to pre-audience of Aldermen.

18. If two or more Aldermen rise to speak at the same time, the Mayor shall decide which of them shall be entitled to pre-audience.

No Alderman to speak twice on same question or amendment, except in Committee.

19. No Alderman shall speak twice on the same question, unless in Committee, or in explanation, where he shall have been misrepresented or misunderstood: Provided that any Alderman, although having previously spoken, may speak once on every amendment, and that the mover of every question shall always have a right of final reply.

No Alderman to make personal reflections.

20. No Alderman shall digress from the matter under discussion, or make personal reflections on, or impute motives to, any other Alderman.

No Alderman to speak for more than ten minutes.

21. No Alderman shall speak upon any motion or amendment for a longer period than ten minutes without the consent of the Council.

Aldermen using offensive expressions to apologise.

22. When any member of the Council shall make use of any language or expression offensive or capable of being applied offensively to any Alderman, the member so offending shall be required to withdraw such language or expression, and to make an apology satisfactory to the Council.

Debate may be adjourned.

23. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the same day, or another day.

Aldermen adjourning debate entitled to precedence on resumption.

24. The Alderman upon whose motion any debate shall be adjourned shall be entitled to precedence on the resumption of the debate.

Adjournments.

25. Any motion for adjournment, if seconded, shall be immediately put without discussion; but if such motion be negatived, it shall not be competent for any Alderman to make a similar motion until thirty minutes shall have elapsed.

Any Alderman may divide Council.

26. It shall be competent for any Alderman to divide the Council on any question, both in full Council and in Committee of the whole Council; and no Alderman shall leave his seat or place till the names of the Aldermen and how voting shall have been taken down by the Council Clerk or person officiating for him.

Divisions to be entered on minutes.

27. All divisions of the Council shall be entered on the minutes of the proceedings.

Questions to be read when required.

28. Any Alderman may require the question or matter under discussion to be read once for his information, and upon such request the question or matter under discussion shall be read.

Suspension of By-laws.

29. Any of these By-laws relating to or affecting proceedings at meetings of Council may be suspended pro tempore in cases of emergency by resolution of the Council.

Rescinding motion already passed.

30. No motion to rescind any decision of the Council shall be entertained except at a Council of the whole specially called for the purpose.

Standing and Special Committees.

Standing Committees.

31. There shall be a Committee of Works, a Finance Committee, and a Committee for General Purposes. These Committees shall be re-appointed every year after the first meeting of the Council which shall be holden after the election of the Mayor.

Committee of Works.

32. The Committee of Works shall have the general direction of all works ordered or sanctioned by the Council, and the general inspection of all streets, roads, ways, bridges, public reserves, and other places under the care and management of the Council. They shall also inquire and report from time to time upon such improvements, repairs, or other matters, as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Finance Committee.

33. The Finance Committee shall examine and check all accounts, and shall watch generally over the collection and expenditure of the Municipal revenues. They shall inquire and report from time to time as to all matters which they may consider to affect the finances of the Borough, and as to such matters or subjects of the like nature as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Committee for General Purposes.

34. The Committee for General Purposes shall take cognizance of every matter, subject, or question within the jurisdiction of the Council, not coming within the province of one or other of the before-mentioned Standing Committees, and shall from time to time inquire into and report upon any such subject, matter, or question as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire into and report upon.

Special Committees.

35. Special Committees may consist of any number of members, and may be appointed for the performance of any duty which may be lawfully entrusted to a Committee, and for which, in the opinion of the Council, a Special Committee ought to be appointed; and no Standing Committee shall interfere with the performance of any duty which may for the time have been entrusted to any such Special Committee. The appointment of every such Special Committee shall be made by resolution, and it shall be incumbent on the mover of such resolution to embody therein a statement of the duties proposed to be entrusted to such Special Committee. The mover of any such resolution may name therein any such members as, in his opinion, ought to constitute such Committee, or he may propose that such Committee consist of a certain number of members to be appointed by ballot; or an amendment to the effect that such Special Committee be appointed by ballot may be carried.

Duration of Special Committees.

36. Special Committees shall continue until the specific duty for which they have been appointed shall have been discharged: Provided that such Committees may at any time be dissolved by vote of the Council.

Rules to be observed in Committee.

37. The rules of the Council shall be observed in a Committee of the whole Council, except the rule limiting the number of times of speaking.

Reports of Committee to be signed.

38. Every report of a Committee shall be signed by the Chairman thereof.

Protection of Funds and Records.Member or officer of Council not to be surety.

39. In cases where surety is required by the Municipalities Act, it shall not be competent for the Council to accept as surety any of their members, or any person holding office under the Council.

40. The Council Clerk shall attend at the office of the Council, at the Council Chamber, for the purpose of receiving payment of rates and transacting the ordinary business of the Council, on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays, from 9 till 11 a.m., and on Tuesdays and Fridays, from 7 till 9 p.m., public holidays excepted.

Custody of records, seal, &c.

41. The common seal and all charters, deeds, muniments, books, papers, and records of the Council shall be kept in the Council Chambers or office of the Council, in the custody of the Council Clerk, unless the Council shall otherwise order for any purpose; and the common seal shall not be used except with the signature of the Mayor.

Records, &c., not to be defaced or altered.

42. Any person who shall deface, alter, or destroy, or attempt to deface, alter, or destroy, any such common seal, charter, deed, muniment, book, paper, or record, shall, on conviction thereof, forfeit and pay for the first offence a penalty not exceeding fifty pounds nor less than five pounds, and upon every subsequent conviction a penalty of not less than twenty pounds.

Nor removed.

43. Any person who shall remove or attempt to remove (except for the purpose of any legal proceedings) any such seal, charter, deed, muniment, book, paper, or record from the Council Chamber, without leave from the Council first had and obtained, shall, on conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than twenty pounds nor less than two pounds, and for every subsequent offence a penalty of not less than five pounds.

Expenses of proposed works to be first ascertained.—Accounts to be examined by Finance Committee.

44. No work shall be undertaken until the probable expense thereof shall have been ascertained by the Council; and all accounts to be paid by the Council shall be examined by the Finance Committee and reported on by them before any warrant shall be issued for the payment thereof.

Outlay in urgent cases.

45. In cases of emergency arising between meetings of the Council, it shall be lawful for necessary works to be ordered without vote of the Council, viz.: By the Mayor to the extent of £5: Provided that in the absence of the Mayor any three Aldermen shall have that power.

Levying Rates, &c.Due dates for rates.—Defaulters.

46. The rates and taxes levied by the Council shall be held to be due and payable on such day or days as the Council shall, by resolution, from time to time appoint. Every person not paying his or her rates or taxes at the office of the Council, within thirty days after any of the days so appointed for payment thereof, shall be deemed a defaulter: Provided that due notice of such rate shall have been given in manner as required by the Municipalities Act of 1867.

Council Clerk to furnish lists of defaulters.

47. It shall be the duty of the Council Clerk to furnish the Mayor and Council, or any Committee as directed, with lists of all persons so in default.

Mayor to enforce payment.

48. It shall be the duty of the Mayor to cause such defaulters to be sued for the amount of such rates in any Court of competent jurisdiction.

Rates on damaged premises.

49. In the event of any premises being wholly or partially destroyed by fire or other accident, the Council shall have power to accept an equitable proportion of the assessed rates of such premises for the remainder of any municipal year.

Streets and Public Places, &c.New roads to be reported upon.

50. No new public road, street, way, park, or other place proposed to be dedicated to the public, shall be taken under the charge and management of the Council until after such road, street, way, or park shall have been examined by a Committee for Works and reported upon to the Council by such Committee.

Plans of proposed new road, &c., to be deposited.

51. Whenever any proprietor or proprietors of land within the said Borough shall open any road, street, or way, or lay out any park or other place for public use or recreation, through or upon such land, and shall be desirous that the Council shall undertake the care and management of such road, street, way, park, or other place, he or they shall furnish the Council with a plan or plans, signed by himself or themselves, showing clearly the position and extent of such road, street, way, park, or other place as aforesaid; and he or they shall execute any instrument dedicating such road, street, way, park, or other place, as the Council may consider necessary.

Change of street levels.

52. Whenever it may be deemed necessary to alter the level of any public road, street, or way, the Committee for Works shall cause a plan and section showing the proposed alteration to be exhibited at the Council Chamber for fourteen days, for the information and inspection of rate-payers, and shall notify, by advertisement in some newspaper circulating in the Borough, that such plan is so open to inspection. At a subsequent meeting of the Council the said plan and section shall, if adopted, be signed by the Mayor or Chairman and the proposer and seconder of the motion for such adoption, and countersigned by the Council Clerk; and such plan and section so signed and countersigned shall be a record of the Council.

Footways may be levelled, &c.

53. When any footway shall have been marked out in manner hereinbefore directed, the Surveyor or such officer or persons so authorized as hereinbefore mentioned may cause the same to be levelled and made as nearly as practicable of equal height and breadth, and with an equal slope and inclination; and for this purpose may remove any flagging, steps, or other matter, thing, or obstruction that may injure or obstruct the said footway, or render it unequal or inconvenient, and which now is or may hereafter be erected or placed on the space marked out for any of the said footways.

Temporary stoppage of traffic for repairs, &c.

54. The Council may at any time cause the traffic of any street, lane, or thoroughfare, or any portion thereof, to be stopped for the purpose of repairing the same, or for any necessary purpose; and any person who shall travel on such street, lane, or thoroughfare, or remove or destroy any obstruction that may be placed thereon for the purpose of suspending the traffic, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of any sum not exceeding five pounds for every such offence.

No encroachment allowed on streets, &c.

55. Whenever any road, street, or lane has been marked out in manner herein provided, no house, shop, or fence, other structure shall, except as hereinafter mentioned, be allowed to project or encroach on any part thereof. And it shall not be lawful for any person to erect or put up any building, erection, obstruction, fence, or enclosure, or to make any excavation, hole, or opening in, under, upon, or near to any such road, street, lane, or thoroughfare, unless the consent of the Council or Mayor has been obtained to the erecting or making of any such building, erection, obstruction, fence, or enclosure, excavation, hole, or opening as aforesaid. And every person offending against this By-law, shall forfeit and pay for the first offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than forty shillings, and for the second and every subsequent offence a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than three pounds.

Obstructing public pathways.

56. If the owner or occupier of any land situate on the side of any street or road in this Borough shall permit any tree, shrub, or plant, kept for ornament or otherwise, to overhang any footpath or footway on the side of any such street or road, and on demand made by the Council shall not cut, lop, or cause to be lopped, all such trees, shrubs, or plants to the height of eight feet at the least, the said Council, by their servants, labourers, and workmen may cut, or caused to be cut or lopped, all such overhanging trees, plants, or shrubs, and to remove or burn any such trees, plants, or shrubs so cut or lopped, without being deemed a trespasser or trespassers; and in case any person or persons shall resist or in any manner forcibly oppose the said Council or their servants, labourers, or workmen in the due execution of the powers given in this behalf by virtue of the Municipalities Act of 1867, every person so offending shall, on conviction for every such offence, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds.

No balcony, &c., to project.

57. With regard to buildings hereafter to be built or rebuilt, it shall not be lawful for any awning, verandah, portico, balcony, coping, parapet, overhanging eaves, cornice, windows, string-cornice, string-course, dressing, or other architectural decoration forming part of, or attached to, any external wall, to project beyond the building line of any street or road, except with the consent of the Council first obtained; nor shall any balcony, or any other external projection as aforesaid, which may hereafter be added to any existing building, be allowed to project as aforesaid, under a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound, except with the consent of the Council first obtained: Provided that no such awning, verandah, portico, or balcony shall be permitted to be erected in any street less than 30 feet wide; provided also that any person desiring to erect any such structure shall first submit a plan for the approval of the Council.

Encroachments must be removed on notice.

58. The Surveyor or other such officer or person may at any time, on the order of the Council, and upon due notice of thirty days, direct the removal of any building, fence, or other obstruction or encroachment in and upon any road, street, lane, or thoroughfare under the charge of the Council. Notice shall, in this case, be served either personally or at the usual or last known place of abode of the person to whom such obstruction or encroachment in structure belongs, or who has erected the same, or caused it to be erected.

Council may remove encroachments.

59. In any case where, after service of notice for the removal of any obstruction or encroachment as aforesaid, the person causing the same shall not remove it within a reasonable time, it shall be lawful for the Council to direct the removal of the same under the superintendence of its own proper officer, and at the cost of the person so offending, provided that the expenses thereby incurred shall in no case exceed the sum of ten pounds, or, at the Council's option, to proceed against the offender for breach of By-law, the penalty not to exceed twenty-five pounds nor be less than one pound; and in case of every successive offence, the penalty on conviction not to be less than five pounds.

Or may proceed by action.

60. In every case where the obstruction or encroachment cannot be removed unless at a greater cost than ten pounds, it shall be open to the Council either to direct such removal and to pay all the costs thereof above ten pounds from the funds of the Council, or to proceed by action for trespass against the person causing such obstruction or encroachment, or to proceed as for a breach of such By-laws as aforesaid.

To apply also to obstructions by digging, &c.

61. The foregoing provisions shall be equally applicable to all obstructions by digging or excavations; and any person who shall wilfully obstruct or interfere with the Surveyor or other officer as aforesaid, or any person acting for or under him, or either of them, in the exercise of any of the duties or powers by these By-laws imposed or cast on the said Surveyor or officer shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a penalty not less than two pounds nor more than twenty pounds.

Hoards or fences to be erected.

62. Every person intending to build or take down any building within the limits of the Borough of Victoria, or to cause the same to be so done, or to alter or repair the outward part of any such building, or to cause the same to be done where any street or footway will be obstructed or rendered inconvenient by means of such work, shall, before beginning the same, cause sufficient hoards or fences to be put up in order to separate the building where such works are being carried on from the street with a convenient platform and handrail, if there be room enough to leave as a footway for passengers outside of such hoard or fence, and shall continue such hoard or fence, with such platform and handrail as aforesaid standing in good condition, to the satisfaction of the officer of the Council of the said Borough during such time as the public safety or convenience requires, and shall, in all cases in which it is necessary, in order to prevent accidents, cause the same to be sufficiently lighted during the night; and every such person who shall fail to put up such fence, or hoard, or platform with such handrail as aforesaid, or to continue the same respectively standing in good condition as aforesaid during the period of such building or taking down, or who shall not, while the said hoard or fence is standing, keep the same sufficiently lighted in the night, or who shall not remove the same when directed by the officer of the Council of the said Borough within a reasonable time afterwards, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings for every day such default is continued.

Offences, Nuisances.—General Good Order of the Borough.

Damaging public buildings, &c.

63. Any person who shall damage any public building, wall, parapet, sluice, bridge, road, street, sewer, watercourse, or other property of the Municipality, shall pay the cost of repairing the same; and if the same be wilfully done shall also forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than five pounds: Provided that such cost and penalty shall not exceed in the whole the sum of fifty pounds.

Injuring public fountains, &c.

64. Any person who shall injure any public fountain, pump, cock, or water-pipe, or any part thereof, shall pay the cost of repairing the same, and if the injury be wilfully done shall also forfeit a sum not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than one pound; and any person who shall have in his possession any private key for the purpose of opening any cock, or who shall in any manner clandestinely or unlawfully appropriate to his own use any water from any public fountain or pipe, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than five pounds; and any person who shall open or leave open any cock of any public fountain or pump, so that the water shall or may run to waste, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than five shillings; and any person who shall wash any clothes, omnibus, carriage, cart, or other vehicle, or any horse, at any public fountain or pump, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding one pound nor less than five shillings.

Injuring or extinguishing lamps.

65. Any person who shall wantonly or maliciously break or injure any lamp or lamp-post, or extinguish any lamp set up for public convenience in the said Borough, shall, over and above the necessary expense of repairing the injury committed, forfeit and pay for such offence any sum not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

Damaging trees.

66. Any person who shall wilfully or without the authority of the Council cut, break, bark, root up, or otherwise destroy or damage the whole or any part of any tree, sapling, shrub, or underwood growing in or upon any street or place under the management of the Council, or in or upon any public reserve or park, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds.

Throwing dead animals, &c., into any watercourse, &c.

67. Any person who shall throw or cast any filth, rubbish, or any dead animal, or any animal with intent to drown the same, into any drain, gutter, watercourse, waterhole, creek, or canal, or who shall cast or permit or suffer slops, suds, night-soil, sewerage, or offensive fluid, or matter, or filth of any kind to flow or be cast from his or her premises into any such drain, gutter, watercourse, waterhole, creek or canal; or who shall cast, or permit or suffer any such slops, suds, night-soil, sewerage, or offensive fluid, or matter or filth to flow from his or her premises over any of the footways or streets of the Borough; or shall permit or cause by means of drains, pipes, shoots, channels, or other contrivances, night-soil, sewerage, or offensive fluid or matter, slops, suds, or filth of any kind whatsoever to flow or to be cast in or upon any drain, gutter, watercourse, waterhole, creek, or canal; or shall obstruct or divert from its channel any drain, gutter, sewer, or watercourse, creek or canal, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound, and shall, in addition to such forfeiture, pay the cost of removing such filth or obstruction, or of restoring such drain, gutter, watercourse, or canal into its proper channel.

Throwing filth on roadway, &c.

68. If any person shall, in any street, road, lane, or public place, throw, cast, or lay, or shall cause, permit, or suffer to be thrown, cast, or laid, any ashes, rubbish, offal, dung, soil, dead animal, blood, or other filth, or shall kill, slaughter, dress, sell, or cut up any beast, swine, calf, sheep, lamb, or other animal in or so near to any of the said streets or roads as that any blood or filth shall run or flow upon or over, or be on any carriage or footway; or shall run, roll, drive, draw, place, or cause, permit, or suffer to be run, rolled, driven, drawn, or placed upon any footway, any waggon, cart, dray, sledge, or other carriage, or any wheel-barrow or truck, or any cask; or shall wilfully lead, drive, or ride any horse or other beast upon any footway aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Placing goods, &c., on roadway, &c.

69. If any person shall set or place, or cause or permit to be set or placed, any stall, show-board, basket, or goods of any kind whatsoever, or shall hoop, place, wash, or cleanse, or cause to be hooped, placed, washed or cleansed, any cask or vessel in or upon or over any road, footway, or public place within the said Borough; or shall set out, lay, or place, or shall cause or procure, permit or suffer to be set out, laid, or placed, any coach, cart, dray, barrow, truck, or other carriage upon any footway, or if any person shall set or place, or caused to be set or placed, in, upon, or over any of the said carriage or footways, any timber, stone, bricks, lime, or other materials or things for building whatsoever (unless the same shall be enclosed as hereinafter directed), or any other matters or things whatsoever; or shall hang out or expose, or shall cause or permit to be hung out or exposed, any meat or offal, or other thing or matter whatsoever, from any house or premises, over any part of such footways or carriage-ways, or over any area of any house, or premises, or any other matter or thing from and on the outside or any part of any house or premises, over or next to any such street or road, and shall not immediately remove all or any such matters or things, being thereto required by the Council or any officer thereof, and shall not continue and keep the same so removed; or if any person having, in pursuance of any such requisition as aforesaid, removed, or caused to be removed, any such stall, showboard, basket, goods, coach, cart, dray, barrow, truck, carriage, timber, stone, brick, lime, meat, offal, or other matter or things, and shall at any time thereafter again set, lay or place, expose, or cause, procure, permit or suffer to be set, laid, placed, or exposed, the same or any of them, or any other article or thing whatsoever (save and except as aforesaid) in, upon, or over any of the carriage or foot ways of or next unto any streets or roads as aforesaid, in every such case every person so offending shall forfeit a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than ten shillings.

Drawing or trailing timber, &c.

70. If any person shall haul or draw, or cause to be hauled or drawn, upon any part of any street, road, or public place, any timber, stone, or other thing, otherwise than upon wheeled carriages, or shall suffer any timber, stone, or other thing which shall be carried principally or in part upon wheeled carriages to drag or trail upon any part of such carriage so as to occupy or obstruct the street or road beyond the breadth of said carriage, every such person so offending shall forfeit and pay for every such offence the sum of forty shillings over and above the damages occasioned thereby: Provided that such penalty and damages shall not together exceed the sum of fifty pounds.

No turf, gravel, &c., to be removed from the streets without leave, &c.

71. Any person who, from any part of the roads, streets, thoroughfares, or public places, shall remove, or cause to be removed, any turf, clay, sand, soil, gravel, stone, or other material, without leave first had and obtained from the officers or persons having lawful charge of such roads, streets, thoroughfares, or public places, or who shall wantonly break up or otherwise damage any part of the said roads, streets, thoroughfares, or public places, shall on conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than five shillings, and for every subsequent offence shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one pound.

No driver to ride on vehicle without a person to guide his beasts (vehicles with reins excepted), or go to a distance from his vehicle, or drive on wrong side, &c.

72. If the driver of any waggon, cart, dray, or vehicle of any kind shall ride upon the same in any street, road, or thoroughfare, not having some person on foot to guide the animals drawing the same (such vehicles as are drawn by horses driven or guided with reins only excepted); or if the driver of any carriage or vehicle whatsoever shall wilfully be at such a distance from such carriage or vehicle, or in such a situation whilst it shall be passing upon such street, road, or thoroughfare that he cannot have the direction or government of the horse or horses or cattle drawing the same; or if the driver of any waggon, cart, dray, coach, carriage, or other vehicle shall not drive on the left or near side of any such road, street, or thoroughfare; or if any person shall in any manner wilfully prevent any other person or persons from passing him or her, or any vehicle under his or her care, upon such street, road, or thoroughfare, or by negligence or misbehaviour prevent, hinder, or interrupt the free passage of any person or vehicle, or carriage, in or upon the same,—every such driver or person so offending shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than ten shillings.

As to riding or driving improperly through streets, &c.

73. Any person who shall ride or drive through any road, street, or public place negligently, carelessly, or furiously, or so as to endanger the life or limb of any person or to the common danger of the passengers, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds.

74. Any person who shall ride or drive round the corner of any street, road, or public place within the said Borough, at a pace faster than a walk, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than ten shillings for every such offence.

Erection of houses, &c.—Fee for permission.

75. No person shall be permitted to erect any fence, house, shop, or other building in any street, lane, or place within the Borough without having first served notice in writing to the Mayor or Council Clerk before commencing the same, stating his intention and describing the proposed situation of the building or erection, and shall, at the time the said notice is given as aforesaid, for permission to erect any such fence, house, shop, or building in any street, lane, or other place within the said Borough; and every owner thereof, and every contractor for such fence, house, shop, or other building, or any part thereof, commencing to build or work thereon without such notice having been given, shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

Affixing placards on walls or chalking thereon.

76. It shall not be lawful for any person to paste or otherwise affix any placard or other paper upon any wall, fence, house, or building, nor to deface any such wall, fence, house, or building by chalk or paint, or in any other manner, unless with the consent of the owner thereof; and any person who shall be guilty of any such offence shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten shillings.

Swine, &c., not to wander about streets.

77. Any person who shall breed, feed, or keep any kind of swine in any house, yard, or enclosure, situate and being in or within forty yards of any street or public place in the Borough, or who shall suffer any kind of swine, or any horse, ass, cattle, mule, sheep, goat, or any other animal of like nature belonging to him, or under his charge, to stray or to go about, or to be tethered or depastured in any street, road, or public place within the Borough, shall forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

Restrictions on certain trades, &c.

78. It shall not be lawful for the business of soap-boiler, tallow-melter, tripe-boiler, tanner, currier, or pig keeper, or any other occupation, trade, or manufacture of an obnoxious or unwholesome nature, prejudicial to the health of, or otherwise offensive to, any of the inhabitants thereof, to be commenced or established within the limits of this Borough; and whosoever shall offend against this By-law shall forfeit and pay on conviction a penalty not exceeding fifty pounds nor less than ten pounds, and a further sum of two pounds for each and every day during which he continues to offend.

Hours for removing night-soil, &c.

79. Any person who shall remove any night-soil or ammoniacal liquor, bones, or other offensive matter, or shall come with carts or carriages for that purpose between the hours of five in the morning and eleven o'clock at night; or shall at any time remove any such night-soil or ammoniacal liquor, otherwise than in properly covered and water-tight carts or vehicles, or in such a manner so as to upset, cast, spill, or strew any of the said night-soil, ammoniacal liquor, slop, urine, or filth, in or upon or near to any of the streets, roads, public places, or footways of the Borough; or shall deposit or throw night-soil, ammoniacal liquor, bones, or other offensive matter nearer to any street, road, or dwelling-house than shall from time to time be directed by the Council or by the Inspector of Nuisances; or shall deposit or throw night-soil, ammoniacal liquor, bones, or other offensive matter upon any street, road, or lane; or shall allow vehicles used for this purpose to stand on any premises nearer to any road, street, or dwelling-house than shall from time to time be directed by the Council or Inspector of Nuisances, shall upon conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound; and in case the person or persons so offending cannot be found, then the owner or owners of such carts, carriages, or other vehicles employed in and about emptying or removing such night-soil, bones, ammoniacal liquor, or other offensive matter, and also the employer or employers of the person or persons so offending, shall be liable to and forfeit and pay such penalty as aforesaid.

80. If any person shall take away night-soil from any house or premises within the said Borough, or shall come with carts or carriages for that purpose, except between the hours of eleven at night and five in the morning; or if any person or persons shall cast, or permit to leak or slop out of any cart or tub, or otherwise, any night-soil, in or near any of the streets or public places, he shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds nor less than one pound for every such offence; and in case the person or persons so offending cannot be found, then the owner or owners of such cart, carriage, or other vehicle employed in and about emptying and removing such night-soil, and also the employer or employers of the person or persons so offending, shall be liable to and forfeit and pay such penalty as aforesaid.

Inspection of premises.—Yards, &c., to be kept clean.

81. Upon the reasonable complaint of any householder that the house, premises, yards, closets, or drains of the neighbouring or adjoining premises are a nuisance or offensive, the Inspector of Nuisances, or any other person appointed by the Council, shall make an inspection of the premises complained of; and the officers of the Council shall have full power, without any other authority than this By-law, to go upon such premises for the aforesaid purpose. Any owner or occupier of any house or place within the said Borough who shall neglect to keep clean all private avenues, passages, yards, paddocks, and ways within, attached to, or occupied in conjunction with the said house or place, so as by such neglect to cause a nuisance by offensive smell, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings and not less than ten shillings.

Discharging firearms, &c.

82. Any person who shall discharge any firearms without lawful cause, or let off any fireworks or other explosive matter in or near to any road or street, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings.

No rock to be blasted without notice to the Surveyor, &c.

83. Any person who shall be desirous of blasting any rock within the distance of fifty yards of any dwelling-house, street, road, or other public place, shall give notice in writing, twenty-four hours previously, to the said Council or Surveyor thereof, who shall appoint in writing a time when the same may take place, and give such other directions as they or he may deem necessary for the public safety; and if any person shall blast or cause to be blasted any rocks within the limits aforesaid without giving such notice, or shall not conform to the directions given to him by the said Council or Surveyor, he shall forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than one pound, and for every subsequent offence shall pay a penalty of not less than five pounds.

Entrances to cellars, &c., to be covered, &c.

84. If the owner or occupier of any premises, having any rails or bars over the areas or openings to any kitchen or cellars or other part of the said premises beneath the surface of the footway of any streets or public places, or having any doorway or entrance into the basement or cellar story thereof, shall not either keep the same, or the rails of such kitchen, cellars, or other parts in sufficient and good repair, or constantly keep the same securely guarded by rails, or cover the same over with a strong flap or trap-door, according to the nature of the case, and so as to prevent danger to persons passing and re-passing; or if any such owner or occupier shall leave open, or not sufficiently nor substantially keep covered and secured, any coal or other hole, funnel, trap-door, or cellar-flap belonging to or connected with his premises (save and except only during reasonable time for use, alteration, or repair); or if such owner or occupier shall not repair, and from time to time keep in good and substantial repair, all and every or any such rails, guard-rails, flaps, trap-doors, and other covering, then and in every such case the person neglecting so to do shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than forty shillings.

Cellars or openings beneath footways prohibited.

85. It shall not be lawful for any person to make any cellar, or any opening, door, or window, in or beneath the surface of the footway of any road, street, or public place within the said Borough, except by permission of the Council; and if any person shall so offend he shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds over and above the expense of remedying or removing any such cellar, opening, door, or window, such expense to be assessed and allowed by the convicting Justice or Justices: Provided that such expenses and penalty shall not together exceed fifty pounds.

Wells to be covered over, &c.

86. Every person who shall have a well situated between his dwelling-house, or the appurtenances thereof, and any public place, road, street, or footway within the limits of the said Borough, or at the side of such public place, road, street, or footway, or in any yard or place open and exposed to such public place, road, or footway, shall cause such well to be securely and permanently covered over; and if any person having such a well as aforesaid shall fail to cover and secure the same within twenty-four hours after notice in writing shall have been given him or her by any officer of the said Council, or shall have been left at such person's usual or last known abode, or at the said premises, in the manner and with such materials as the Council or its officer shall direct, and to their satisfaction, such person shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten shillings for every day that such well shall remain open or uncovered contrary to the provisions hereof: Provided that, with respect to wells open at the time when this By-law shall come into operation, such penalty shall not be recoverable if the same be properly covered within one week thereafter.

Notices not to be painted on pavement.

87. Any person who shall stamp, stain, paint, write, or post any advertisement or notice upon any footway or kerbstone within the Borough of Victoria shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings.

Offensive or indecent placards.

88. Any person who shall, in any street or place within the Borough of Victoria, post, expose to view, or distribute any placard, handbill, or other document whatever of an offensive or indecent character, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings.

Musicians to move on.

89. Any street musician or vocalist who shall not, when requested by any householder within the Borough of Victoria, or his servant, or by any officer or servant of the Council of the Borough aforesaid, or by any police officer, depart from the neighbourhood of the premises of such householder, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings.

Persons not to stand or loiter in streets.

90. All persons standing or loitering upon any of the streets, footways, or other public places in the Borough of Victoria, to the inconvenience of passers-by, or in any way interrupting the traffic, who shall not discontinue to do so on being required by any officer or servant of the Council of the said Borough, or by any police officer, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings.

Holes made for vaults, &c., to be enclosed, &c.

91. If any person shall dig or make, or cause to be dug or made, any hole, or leave, or cause to be left, any hole in or adjoining any street, road, lane, or public place, for the purpose of making any vault or vaults, or the foundation or foundations to any house or other building, or for any other purpose whatsoever, and shall not forthwith enclose the same in a good or sufficient manner, and keep up or cause to be kept up and continued, any such enclosure, or shall not, when thereunto required by the said Council or officer thereof, well and sufficiently fence or enclose any such hole, within the time and in the manner provided by the preceding By-laws, and shall not place a light upon the said enclosure and keep the same constantly burning from sunset to sunrise during the continuance of such enclosure, then every such person so offending shall forfeit and pay for every such offence, and for every such refusal or neglect, any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings, and on conviction for every subsequent offence not less than one pound.

Excavations, &c., to be protected by fence or wall.

92. It shall not be lawful for any person to make any quarry, excavation, or opening in the ground, on any property adjoining or near to any public road or footpath within the limits of this Borough, until the owner or occupier of the said property shall have erected a good substantial fence or wall at the least four feet high around such parts of the said property as adjoin such public road or footpath; and any person neglecting or refusing to enclose any premises upon which any such quarry or excavation shall be made, shall forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings; and all existing quarries, excavations, or precipices situated within the limits of this Borough shall be closed and protected in the manner aforesaid, within one week after due notice to that effect shall have been given by the said Council; and in the event of the failure or neglect of the owner or occupier of any such last-mentioned property to enclose the same, after notice as aforesaid, such persons so offending shall be subject to the penalty before mentioned.

Various obstructions and annoyances.

93. Every person who, in any street or other public place or passage within the said Borough, shall commit any of the following offences, shall on conviction for any and for every such offence forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than two pounds:—

Every person who shall hoist or cause to be hoisted, or lower or caused to be lowered, goods of any description from any opening in any house fronting any street or public place, and close to the footway thereof, without sufficient and proper ropes and tackling.

Every person who shall carry or convey, or cause to be carried or conveyed, in any street or public place, the carcase or any part of the carcase of any newly slaughtered animal, without a sufficient and proper cloth covering the same, for the concealment from public view, or shall hawk or carry about butcher's meat for sale without covering the same as aforesaid.

Every person who shall place any line, cord, or pole across any street, lane, or passage, or hang or place clothes thereon to the danger or annoyance of any person.

Every person who shall place any flower-pot in any upper window, near to any street or public place, without sufficiently guarding the same from being thrown down.

Every person who shall throw or cast from the roof or any part of any house or other building, any slate, brick, wood, rubbish, or other material or thing (unless within a hoard or enclosure, when any house, or building is being erected, pulled down, or repaired).

Every blacksmith, metal-founder, lime-burner, brick-maker, potter, or other person using a forge, furnace, or kiln, and having a door, window, or aperture fronting or opening into or towards any street, lane, or passage, and not enclosing such door, or not fastening the shutters or other fastenings of such window, and closing such aperture, or placing a screen before the same every evening, within one hour after sunset, so as effectually to prevent the light from showing through the doorway, window, or aperture next or upon such street, lane, or passage.

Every person who shall, within the distance of one hundred yards from any dwelling-house, burn any rags, bones, cork, or other offensive substance (garden refuse excepted), to the annoyance of any inhabitant.

Every person who shall carry goods or any frame to the annoyance of any person upon any public footway.

Every person who shall be the keeper of or have any dog or other animal which shall attack or endanger the life or limb of any person in any street or other public place within the said Borough.

Noisome and Offensive Trades.

No noisome or offensive trades to be carried on to the injury of any inhabitants.

94. No person shall carry on any noisome or offensive trade within the said Borough, so as to injure or be a nuisance as hereinafter stated to the inhabitants thereof.

Definition of "noisome and offensive trades."

95. Any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, in the conducting, following, or carrying on of which, or in consequence of, or in connection therewith, or from the premises where the same is conducted, followed, or carried on, any gas, vapour, effluvia, liquid, or any large quantities of smoke shall be evolved or discharged, which gas, vapour, effluvia, liquid, or smoke shall be calculated to injure animal or vegetable life, or in any other way to injure or be a nuisance to the inhabitants of the said Borough, shall be considered a "noisome and offensive trade" within the meaning of those By-laws.

Complaint.—Inquire and report.—Order of Council thereon.—Notice to discontinue, &c.—Penalty.

96. Upon complaint, in writing, by any householder that any noisome or offensive trade is being so followed, conducted, or carried on in the vicinity of his or her residence or property, as to injure his or her health, or the health of any member of his or her family, or to be a nuisance to such householder and to his or her family, the Inspector of Nuisances, or any other person or persons appointed by the Council, shall make an inspection of the premises where such trade is alleged to be so conducted, followed, or carried on, and of the premises or property of the complainant, and shall inquire into the grounds for such complaint, and shall report thereon to the said Council; and if the said Council shall, on the consideration of such report, or after any such further inquiry as may be deemed necessary, be of opinion that the said complaint is well founded, and that any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation so complained of, and so being conducted, followed, or carried on as aforesaid, is a "noisome or offensive trade" within the meaning of these By-laws, notice shall be given to the person or persons conducting, following, or carrying on such to cease and discontinue the same within such reasonable time, not being less than thirty days nor more than sixty days, as the said Council may direct, or so to conduct, follow, or carry on his, her, or their manufacture, trade, calling, or operation as that within such reasonable time as aforesaid, the same shall wholly and permanently cease to be noisome and offensive within the meaning of these By-laws either to the said complainant or to any other resident within the said Borough; and if such trade shall not be discontinued, or shall not be so conducted as that it shall wholly cease to be noisome and offensive within the time named in such notice as aforesaid, any person conducting, following, or carrying on such trade as aforesaid shall for the first offence forfeit and pay a sum of not less than forty shillings nor more than five pounds, for a second offence a sum of not less than five pounds nor more than twenty-five pounds, and for a third and every subsequent offence a sum of not less than ten pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Mode of proceeding when "noisome and offensive trade" is about to be commenced.—Penalty.

97. The like proceedings shall be taken whenever there shall be a complaint as aforesaid that any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation is about to be commenced or entered upon which is likely to prove "noisome and offensive" within the meaning of these By-laws; and the notice to be given as aforesaid shall be given to the person or persons about to commence or enter upon such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, and shall require him, her, or them not to commence or enter upon the same; and the Council shall take such measures as shall effectually and permanently prevent the same from becoming "noisome or offensive" within the meaning of these By-laws to any resident within the Borough. And any person who shall in any such case commence, enter upon, or continue any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, so that the same shall be in any way "noisome or offensive" within the meaning of these By-laws, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum of not less than ten pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Service of notice.—Liabilities

98. Service of any such notice as aforesaid upon the occupier or owner of any premises or land wherein or whereon any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation is being conducted, followed, or carried on, or is about to be commenced or entered upon, or at the last known place of abode of such occupier or owner, or upon any person on the said premises or land, shall be a good and sufficient service of such notice for all the purposes of these By-laws. And every person who shall be actually engaged in superintending, directing, or managing, or who shall be in any other way actually engaged or employed in any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation as aforesaid, shall be liable to be regarded and treated as a person conducting, following, or carrying on such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation within the meaning and for all the purposes of these By-laws.

Public Health.

Houses to be purified on certificate of two medical practitioners.

99. If, upon the certificate of any duly qualified medical practitioner, it appear to the Council that any house or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, within the limits of the Borough, is in such a filthy or unwholesome condition that the health of any person is or may be liable to be affected or endangered thereby, and that the whitewashing, cleansing, purifying, or fumigating of any house or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, would tend to prevent or check infectious or contagious disease, the said Council shall give notice in writing to the owner or occupier of such house or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, to whitewash, cleanse, purify, or fumigate the same, as the case may require; and if the person to whom notice is so given shall fail to comply therewith within the time specified in the said notice, he or she shall be liable to a penalty of not less than forty shillings nor more than ten pounds: provided that each day during which such house shall, after such notice as aforesaid, remain uncleansed, or unfumigated, shall be a separate offence; provided also that no such penalties shall collectively amount to any greater sum than fifty pounds.

Sale or letting of infected premises or goods.

100. If any person shall sell, let, or cause to be sold or let, any dwelling-house or part thereof, or premises occupied in connection therewith in the said Borough, which then is, or shall have been within thirty days prior to the date of such sale or letting, occupied by any person suffering from any infectious or contagious disease, without giving due notice thereof to the person or persons purchasing, renting, or hiring any such house or premises, the person so selling, letting, or causing to be sold or let, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty pounds nor less than ten pounds. And any person who shall sell, let, or cause to be sold or let, in the said Borough, any article of furniture, bedding, household or personal effects, knowing the same to have been, within three months prior to the date of such sale or letting, used by any person or persons suffering from any infectious or contagious disease, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding fifty pounds nor less than ten pounds.

101. Any person who shall expose or cause to be exposed, in any road, street, public place, or unclosed land adjacent to any dwelling, road, street, or public place, any article whatsoever, knowing the same to have been in the use or occupation of any person suffering from any infectious or contagious disease within thirty days prior to the date of such exposure as aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding fifty pounds nor less than ten pounds.

102. No kind of rubbish or offensive matter shall be thrown upon any public or private property within the Borough without permission first obtained from the Municipal Council and the owner or owners of such property. Persons found guilty of a breach of this By-law shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than ten shillings.

Sewerage and Drainage.

No private sewers to be made to communicate with the public sewers without notice.

103. It shall not be lawful for any person, without notice to the Council or otherwise than according to such plans and directions as such Council make and give, to make or branch any private drain or sewer into any of the public drains or sewers, or into any drain or sewer communicating therewith; and in case any person or persons shall make or branch any private drain or sewer communicating or to communicate therewith without such notice, or otherwise than as aforesaid, every person so offending shall for every such offence forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding fifty pounds, and shall at his own expense make good all roads, streets, kerbing, &c., which shall have been injured by or through any such work; and all such repairs shall be performed, to the satisfaction of such officer as the Council shall appoint to superintend such work; and any person who shall do or perform anything contrary to this clause, or shall neglect to make good all such damage as aforesaid, shall on conviction thereof forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding fifty pounds nor less than one pound.

Proprietors of private sewers, &c., to repair and cleanse same.

104. All private drains or sewers communicating with any public drain or sewer shall from time to time be repaired and cleansed under the inspection and direction of the Council or officer thereof, at the cost and charges of the occupiers of the houses, buildings, lands, and premises to which the said private sewers or drains shall respectively belong; and in case any person shall neglect to repair and cleanse, or cause any such private drain or sewer to be repaired or cleansed, according to the direction of the said Council, he shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds.

105. Every owner or occupier of any dwelling-house, shop, or other building who shall permit rain water to fall from any roof, balcony, or other projection, upon any street, road, lane, or footway, or to flow over the pathway of any such street, road, or lane, or shall cause or permit any such roof or rain water to be discharged by any pipe upon any such street, road, lane, or footway, shall, if such nuisance be not abated within seven days after notice to abate the same shall have been given by the Council, forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Drains in footpaths.

106. No surface drain shall be made in any footpath, nor any pipes laid under or across the same, without the authority of the Council; and no such pipe or drain shall be used for the discharge into any street or roadway of any offensive liquid or matter of any kind whatsoever; and any person who shall so offend shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding fifty pounds nor less than one pound.

Drains for discharge of surface water from land.

107. Every owner or occupier of land so situated that surface or storm water from or upon the same shall overflow, or shall tend naturally, if not otherwise discharged, to overflow any road, lane, or footway, shall, within seven days next after the service of notice by the Council, abate such nuisance where possible; and in default of compliance with any such notice within the period aforesaid, such owner or occupier shall forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds; and if within seven days after such conviction such owner or occupier shall still have failed to comply with such notice, or be otherwise in default as aforesaid, he shall forfeit and pay any sum not less than two pounds nor more than twenty pounds. And every such owner or occupier who shall still have made defaults as aforesaid for more than seven days after such second or any future conviction, shall be held guilty of a further offence within the meaning of this section.

108. Any person who shall close or intercept any natural watercourse, by building or otherwise, shall provide another outlet for the surface water with pipes or sewers of a size and in a manner to be approved by the Council; and any person failing to comply with the provisions of this By-law shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding fifty pounds.

Preventing and Extinguishing Fires.Fires or combustible materials, &c.

109. Every person who shall place, or knowingly permit to be placed, in any house, yard, workshop, out-offices, or other premises, fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable article of any kind, in such a manner as to endanger contiguous buildings (except with the consent of the owners and occupiers thereof), shall, on conviction for every such offence, forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds nor less than one pound, and shall forthwith remove such fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable article. And every such person who shall suffer any such fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable article to remain as aforesaid for forty-eight hours after any such conviction, shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Inflammable fence, &c.

110. Every person who shall erect any fence of brushwood, bushes, or other inflammable material, or shall make or place any stack of hay, corn, straw, or other produce, or place as or for the covering of any such stack, any inflammable material, or shall place, keep, or store any hay, straw, or other inflammable material in any building so as to endanger contiguous buildings or properties, or any trees, shrubs, or other produce of such properties, or any chattels in or upon such buildings or properties, shall forfeit, on conviction for every such offence, a penalty of not more than five pounds nor less than one pound, and also remove such fence, stack, covering, or inflammable material, within forty-eight hours after such conviction. And any person failing to remove such fence, stack, covering, or inflammable material within a reasonable time after any such conviction as aforesaid shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Burning shavings, &c., in streets.

111. Any person burning any shavings or other matters or things, in any street, road, or public place, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

Fireworks.

112. Every person who shall light any bonfire, tar-barrel, or firework upon or within sixty feet of any building, public or private street, or any public place, or shall sell gunpowder, fireworks, or other combustible matter by any artificial light, other than gas, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Willfully setting fire to chimneys.

113. Every person who willfully sets or causes to be set on fire, any chimney, flue, smoke-vent, or stove-pipe, herein called in common a "chimney," shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Public Amusements.

114. No games with dice or other games of chance for money, prize-fighting, or any dog-fighting, cock-fighting, or other exhibition or entertainment opposed to public morality, or involving cruelty to animals, or likely to cause a breach of the peace, shall be established, held, or given within this Borough; and any person or persons who shall establish, hold, give, or cause to be established, held, or given, any such game, exhibition, or entertainment, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not less than ten pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Water Supply.Polluting water, reservoirs, &c.

115. Whosoever shall bathe in any stream, reservoir, conduit, aqueduct, or other water-works belonging to or under the management or control of the Council; or shall wash, cleanse, throw, or cause to enter therein, any animal, whether alive or dead, or any rubbish, filth, or thing of any kind whatsoever; or shall cause or permit or suffer to run, or to be brought therein, the water of any sink, sewer, drain, engine or boiler, or other filthy, unwholesome, or improper liquid; or shall wash any clothes at any public fountain or pump, or in or at any such stream, reservoir, conduit, aqueduct, or other water-works as aforesaid; or shall do anything whatsoever whereby any water or water-works belonging to the said Council, or under their management or control, shall be fouled, obstructed, or damaged, shall for the first offence forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds, for a second offence any sum not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds, and for a third and every subsequent offence any sum not less than five pounds nor more than twenty pounds.

116. Whosoever shall, without the consent in writing of the Council, construct or place any dam or embankment in or across any river, creek, or natural watercourse, shall forfeit and pay any sum not less than one pound nor more than twenty pounds, and shall remove such dam or embankment within a reasonable time after such conviction, or shall forfeit and pay any sum not less than five pounds nor more than fifty pounds; and if, after such second conviction, such person shall fail to remove such dam or embankment within a further reasonable time, he shall forfeit and pay a sum of not less than twenty pounds nor more than fifty pounds; and if within a reasonable time after a third or any further conviction he shall fail to remove such dam or embankment, he shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum of fifty pounds.

Supply of water in time of drought

117. In time of drought or scarcity of water, the Council may, by resolution to that effect, cause water to be supplied to the inhabitants of this Borough by water-curts or otherwise, and shall, by such resolution as aforesaid, fix a price to be charged for water so supplied.

Trees in Streets.

118. The Council shall have power to plant trees in the streets and public ways of this Borough; and any person willfully injuring or destroying any of such trees, or any railing or fence protecting the same, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than ten pounds nor less than two pounds, in addition to the value of the tree, railing, or fence so injured or destroyed.

Made and passed by the Municipal Council of the Borough of Victoria, on this 7th June, 1886.

(BOROUGH OF BALMAIN—AMENDED BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 158.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 25th March, 1887.BOROUGH OF BALMAIN.—AMENDED BY-LAWS.

The following amended By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of Balmain, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," for the regulation of Public Wharves within the Municipality having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

BOROUGH OF BALMAIN.

BY-LAWS of the Borough of Balmain, made under the "Municipalities Act of 1867."

1. That the 46th, 47th, 48th, 49th, and 50th of the By-laws of the Borough of Balmain, made and passed by the Council of the Borough of Balmain, on the 20th day of July, in the year 1883, are hereby repealed without prejudice to any rights of action or contracts existing thereunder or made or entered into by virtue thereof at this date, and the following By-laws shall be made and adopted in lieu of the said repealed By-laws.
2. That the wharves situate within and belonging to the Borough of Balmain are public wharves, at which tolls, rates, and dues may be collected under the Municipalities Act of 1867.
3. That the Municipal Council for the time being of the Borough of Balmain, or any person or persons authorized by and acting for and on behalf of the said Council, or any lessee or lessees of any of the said wharves, shall be entitled to and may charge, demand, and receive, at each of the said wharves respectively, such tolls, rates, and dues as shall from time to time be named or fixed by any resolution of the said Council, but not exceeding the amounts following, that is to say:—For each steamer embarking or landing passengers or cargo at any of the said wharves, for each trip two shillings and sixpence; from every licensed waterman plying for hire to or from any of the said wharves, for each week one shilling; for all other vessels embarking, loading, or discharging any cargo at any of the said wharves, sixpence for each ton or for any quantity less than a ton embarked, loaded, or discharged at one time; and for every steamer or vessel moored or fastened to or lying alongside any of the said wharves, and from or in which passengers or cargo are not actually being landed, embarked, loaded, or discharged, the sum of twelve shillings for each day or part of a day during which such steamer or vessel shall be so moored, fastened, or lying; but it shall be lawful for the said Council from time to time to enter into any agreement with the owners or proprietors, or persons in charge or command of such steamers or vessels, for the payment of a certain sum weekly or otherwise for and in respect of such landing or embarkation of passengers as aforesaid, or in respect of the embarking, loading, or discharging of any such cargo as aforesaid, or of such steamer vessel being so moored, fastened, or lying alongside as aforesaid.

4. If any person shall embark or land any passenger or cargo from any steamer, or cause or permit any passenger or cargo to be so embarked or landed, or shall embark, load, or discharge, or cause or permit to be embarked, loaded, or discharged, any cargo at, upon, or from any of the said wharves; or, being a licensed waterman, shall ply for hire to or from any of the said wharves, or if any person shall cause any steamer or other vessel to be fastened by a warp or otherwise to, or to be moored or lie alongside, any of the said wharves without having first paid the said tolls, rates, or dues, or entered into the agreement referred to by these By-laws; or if any person shall cause any steamer or vessel to lie alongside of, or to be fastened to, any of the said wharves for any period beyond what may be reasonably necessary for the purpose of landing or embarking passengers, or embarking, loading, or discharging cargo as aforesaid; or if any person who shall be apparently in charge or command of any steamer or vessel shall not remove the same from any of the wharves immediately upon being required so to do by any authorized officer of the said Council,—every person so offending shall be liable, on summary conviction, to pay a penalty for the first offence not exceeding £5, for the second offence a sum not less than £5 nor exceeding £10, and for the third and every subsequent offence not less than £10 nor exceeding £20. And all such tolls, rates, and dues may be sued for and recovered by or on behalf of the said Borough in any Court of competent jurisdiction.

Made and passed by the Council of the Borough of Balmain, this fifth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six.

MUNICIPALITIES.

(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF CASINO—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 26th April, 1887.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF CASINO.—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Casino, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

PART I.

Date and hour of meeting.

1. The Council shall meet for the transaction of ordinary business on every alternate Tuesday, or such other day at 7.30 p.m. as the Mayor shall appoint; five members to form a quorum at all ordinary or special meetings.
2. If at any meeting of the Council the Mayor be absent at the expiration of thirty minutes after the time appointed for holding such meeting, the Aldermen then present shall proceed to elect from themselves a chairman for such meeting. Whenever there shall be an adjournment for want of a quorum, the names of the members present shall be taken down and recorded in the minute-book.
3. The following shall be the course of procedure at such meetings, viz. :—
  1. The reading and confirmation of minutes of the proceedings of previous meetings.
  2. Questions and complaints.
  3. Statement of accounts.
  4. Reports from committees.
  5. Reading of correspondence and presentation of petitions.
  6. Adjourned motions and motions of which notice has been given.
  7. Such other business as may lawfully be brought before the Council.

Business paper—Ordinary Meetings.

4. The business paper of every ordinary meeting of the Council shall be made up by the Council Clerk or substitute, and delivered to the Mayor and Aldermen, or left at their respective residences, at least twenty-four hours before the time appointed for such meeting: Provided that the Mayor or any Alderman shall not reside within half-a-mile of the Council Chambers, the notice may be posted.

Business at Special Meetings.

5. At Special Meetings of the Council the business shall be in such order as the Mayor or Alderman at whose instance such meeting shall have been called may have directed. The business-paper for such meeting shall contain only such matters as shall have been specially ordered to be entered thereon by the Mayor or Alderman calling such meeting.

Business paper—how prepared.

6. The business paper for every meeting of the Council, other than a Special Meeting, shall be made up by the Council Clerk or substitute not less than one or more than three days before the day appointed for the meeting. He shall enter on such business paper a copy of every notice of motion, and of every requisition or order as to business proposed to be transacted at such meeting which he shall have received or shall have been required or directed so to enter. Every such entry shall be made in the same order as such notice, requisition, or direction shall have been received.

Notices of motion and requisitions.

7. All notices of motion and all requisitions from Aldermen and directions from the Mayor as to the entry of any particular matters of business for the consideration of the Council at its then next or any future meeting shall be numbered by the Council Clerk as they are received, and each such notice or requisition shall be preserved by such Clerk until after the matter to which it relates shall have been disposed of, and the record in the minute book of the manner in which such matters have been disposed of shall have been duly verified as required by Part III. of these By-laws: Provided, however, that the person giving or forwarding any such notice of motion, requisition, or direction to the Council Clerk shall be at liberty to withdraw the same any time before the making up of the business papers.

8. After the business paper shall have been made up as aforesaid, all the said notices of motion, requisitions, and directions as to which entries have been made thereon shall be the property of the Council, and shall not be withdrawn, altered, or amended without leave having been first obtained from the Council for such withdrawal, alteration, or amendment.

Absence of proposed mover.

9. No motion, of which notice shall have been entered on the business paper, shall be proceeded with in the absence of the Alderman by whom such notice shall have been given, unless by some other Alderman producing a written authority for that purpose from such first-named Alderman.

Motion to be seconded.

10. No motion shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Motion to be in writing, and not withdrawn without leave.

11. Every motion, notice of which has been given, shall be in writing, shall be signed by the mover, and no motion, when seconded, shall be withdrawn without leave of the Council.

Amendments may be moved.

12. When a motion shall have been moved and seconded, any Alderman shall be at liberty to move an amendment thereon; but no such amendment shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Only one amendment at a time.

13. No second or subsequent amendment shall be taken into consideration until the previous amendment shall have been disposed of.

Orders of the day.

14. The orders of the day shall consist of any matters other than notices of motion which the Council shall at any previous meeting thereof have directed to be taken into consideration, or which the Mayor or any Committee of the Council shall have directed to be entered on the business paper for consideration.

How they are to be dealt with.

15. The Alderman who has the charge of, or who has previously moved in reference to that particular business to which any such order related, shall be the person called upon to move: Provided that the Mayor may, as to any order of the day entered by his direction, move the same.

Petitions.

16. It shall be incumbent on every Alderman presenting a petition to acquaint himself with the contents thereof, and to ascertain that it does not contain language disrespectful to the Council. The nature and prayer of every such petition shall be stated to the Council by the Alderman presenting the same.

Petitions may be received and dealt with at once.

17. The Council may at any meeting resolve, without previous notice, that any petition be received, and the same or any correspondence read may be referred to a Committee for report, or the request therein granted.

Correspondence.

18. The Mayor shall have the same duty in reference to letters addressed to the Council before directing the same to be read as by section 16 of this part of these By-laws is imposed upon Aldermen presenting petitions. The Mayor shall direct as to the order in which correspondence shall be presented or read by any Alderman. If the Mayor be absent, and shall not have examined any such letters addressed to the Council, or have given such directions as aforesaid, then the duties imposed by this section shall devolve upon the presiding Alderman.

19. No discussion shall be permitted in reference to any letters which have been written or sent by the Mayor, or by any officer of the Council, authorised by the Council, and copies of which may be read to such Council.

Reports from Committees.

20. Every report from a Committee shall be in writing, and signed by the Chairman of such Committee, or in his absence by some other member of the same.

Mayor's minutes.

21. The Mayor shall have the right of directing the attention of the Council to any matter or subject within its jurisdiction or official cognisance, by minute in writing or verbally.

Questions and statements.

22. No question shall be put to the Mayor or Chairman which is inconsistent with good order, or couched in language disrespectful to any member of the Council.

23. No discussion shall be permitted as to any such question or as to any reply or refusal to reply thereto, or as to any such statement at the time when such question is put, or such reply or refusal to reply is given, or such statement is made. Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the taking of any objections to any such question or statement being out of order, or shall prevent the discussion, after due notice as hereinbefore provided, of any matter properly arising out of, or relating to any question or reply, or refusal to reply, or any such statement aforesaid.

Order of debate.

24. No Alderman shall be interrupted while speaking, unless for the purpose of calling him to order, as hereinafter provided.

No Alderman to speak twice on the same question or amendment, except in Committee.

25. No Alderman shall speak twice on the same question, unless in Committee or in explanation, when he shall have been misrepresented or misunderstood: Provided that any Alderman, although having previously spoken, may speak once on every amendment, and that the mover of every question shall always have a right of final reply.

No Alderman to make personal reflections.

26. No Alderman shall digress from the matter under discussion, or make personal reflections, or impute improper motives to any other Alderman.

No Alderman to speak more than ten minutes

27. No Alderman shall speak upon any motion or amendment for a longer period than ten minutes without the consent of the Council.

Debates may be adjourned.

28. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the day, or to any other day specified, and the Alderman upon whose motions such debate shall have been so adjourned shall be entitled to pre-attendance on the resumption of the same.

Priority of right in address.

29. If two or more Aldermen rise to speak at the same time the Mayor shall decide which of such Aldermen shall be first heard.

Aldermen may have the matter of discussion stated.

30. Any Alderman may request the question or matter under discussion to be read or stated for his information, or may require the production of any records of the Council bearing upon such question or matter which are readily accessible: Provided, however, that no such request or requisition shall be so made as to interrupt any other Alderman when speaking or materially to interrupt the discussion. Also that if such request or requisition shall appear to the Mayor or Chairman not to have been made bona fide, it shall not be complied with.

Aldermen to stand while speaking, &c.

31. Every Alderman shall stand while speaking, and shall address the Chair, and the members of the Council shall, on all occasions when in such Council, address and speak of each other by their official designations—as Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be.

Aldermen using offensive expressions to apologise.

32. When any member of the Council shall make use of any language or expression offensive, or capable of being applied offensively, to any Alderman, the member so offending shall be required to withdraw such language or expression, and to make an apology satisfactory to the Council, and if any Alderman shall refuse to withdraw such language and apologise he shall be deemed guilty of misconduct, and be liable to a fine not less than twenty shillings nor more than five pounds.

Any Alderman may divide Council.

33. It shall be competent for any Alderman to divide the Council on any question, both in full Council and in Committee of the whole Council; and no Alderman shall leave his seat or place till the name of the Alderman and how voting shall have been taken down by the Council Clerk, or person officiating for him. All such divisions shall be entered on the minutes.

Mayor to preserve order

34. The Mayor or Chairman shall preserve order, and may at any time call to order any Alderman who may appear to him to be out of order.

Calls to order.

35. Any Alderman may at any time call the attention of the Mayor to any Alderman being out of order, or to any point of order.

Mayor's decision on points of order final.

36. Every point of order shall be taken into consideration immediately upon its arising, and the decision of the Mayor or Chairman thereon shall be conclusive, except as hereinafter provided.

Power of the Council as to laying down General Rules, &c.

37. Any Alderman who is dissatisfied with the decision of the Mayor or Chairman on any question of order or of practice may, by motion respectfully worded, invite the Council to lay down a different rule or principle for the determination of any similar question of order or of practice which may hereafter arise. Any rule or principle thus laid down shall be binding on all parties, unless and until it be rescinded, but shall have no retrospective operation.

Mode of Voting.

38. The Mayor or Chairman shall put to the Council all questions on which it shall be necessary that a vote be taken, and shall declare the sense of the Council thereon. And he shall be at liberty to put any question as often as may be necessary to enable him to form and declare his opinion as to the opinion of the majority.

Calls of the Council.

39. A call of the Council may be ordered by any resolution of which due notice shall have been given for consideration of any motion or matter of business before such Council.

40. There shall, without special order to that effect, be a call of the Council for the consideration of every motion which may be made under section 37 of this part of these By-laws, and of every motion for the rescission of any resolution, order, or decision of such Council.

41. The call shall be made immediately before such motion or business for which such call has been ordered or required to be made by the last preceding section shall be moved or considered, such call shall be made as follows:—The Council Clerk shall call the names of all the members in their alphabetical order; such member present shall answer to his name as so called, and if any members are absent, a record shall be made of such absence; but if leave of absence to any such member shall have previously been given, or if such an excuse in writing shall have been forwarded to the Mayor or Council Clerk as a majority of the Council then present shall consider satisfactory, such absent member shall stand excused, and a record shall be made of such excuse and of the reasons for the same.

Mode of proceeding in cases not provided for.

42. In all cases not herein provided for, resort shall be had to the rules, forms, and usages of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales so far as the same are applicable to the proceedings of the Council.

Standing and Special Committees.

43. Besides such Special Committees as may from time to time be found necessary, there shall be three Standing Committees, each consisting of not less than three members, namely: The Finance Committee, the Public Works Committee, and the General Purposes Committee.

44. Every Committee of which the Mayor is not a member, before proceeding to business, shall choose its chairman. If the Chairman of a Committee shall cease to be a member of the Council, or shall decline to act further as such Chairman, a new Chairman shall be chosen before any further business is entered upon.

45. When the report of a Select Committee is brought up and presented to the Council, the question as to its reception may be moved and put at once; but it shall not be adopted or taken into consideration without notice in the usual way.

46. Every Committee shall have a right to take evidence upon any question or questions of fact, wherein it is the duty of such Committee to report. A minute of the evidence thus taken, or of its substance, must, however, in all cases, be appended to the Committee's report.

47. Minutes of all proceedings of Committees, as well as their reports, numbered in consecutive order, shall be entered in the Committee's minute-book, and, being signed by the Chairman of the Committee, or in his absence by some other member of the Committee, shall be delivered by him to the Council Clerk twenty-four hours previous to the meeting of the Council, when such report is to be brought up.

48. The Chairman of every Committee shall have the right, without asking leave of the Council, to remove from the Council Chamber, for any space of time not exceeding sixty hours, any book, document, or paper, other than the minute-book, either for inspection by such Committee or for reference in preparation of the report. In all such cases, however, he shall deliver to the Council Clerk an acknowledgment under his hand of having received such book, document, or paper, and shall be held responsible for the safe keeping of the same.

49. The Standing Committee shall be reappointed within one month after the commencement of the municipal year.

50. Any Alderman moving for a Select Committee may propose certain Aldermen as members of the same; or he may simply state the nature of such intended Committee, leaving the selection to be made by ballot.

51. Every Alderman proposing the appointment of a Select Committee must name himself as one.

52. The appointment of every Special Committee shall continue until the specified duty for which it has been appointed shall have been discharged.

53. Before any proposed By-law is discussed in Council, a copy thereof shall be open for public inspection in the office of the Corporation not less than seven days.

54. No By-law shall be passed until it has been reported upon by a Committee of the whole Council, nor until it has been twice read in Council on different days.

55. No matter of account shall be disposed of by the Council until they have been examined and reported upon by the Finance Committee.

56. No payments out of the funds of the Corporation shall be made but such as are authorized by a vote of the Council. Provided always that the Mayor, or in his absence any two members of the Committee of Public Works, may in cases of emergency authorize the expenditure of any sum not exceeding ten pounds (£10), but such discretionary expenditure shall be reported to the Council at its next meeting.

Finance Committee.

57. The Finance Committee shall examine and check all accounts, and shall watch generally over the collection and expenditure of the Municipal revenues; they shall inquire and report from time to time as to all matters which they may consider to affect the finances of the Municipality, and as to such matters or subjects of the like nature as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Public Works Committee.

58. The Public Works Committee as such shall have the general inspection of all public works in progress throughout the Municipality, and shall have the right of calling the attention of the Council by report to any matter connected with such works or with the state of any public thoroughfare which may seem to require such attention or which they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire into and report upon.

Common Seal—how secured.

59. The Common Seal shall be secured by a cover or box which shall be kept at the Council Chambers in the custody of the Council Clerk. There shall be duplicate keys to the lock of this cover or box, of which keys one shall be kept by the Mayor and the other by the Council Clerk.

Common Seal—how used.

60. The Seal of the Corporation shall not be affixed to any document of the Municipality without the express authority of the Council, and every impression thereof so authorized shall be verified by the signature of the Mayor, or in the case of illness or absence of the Mayor by any two Aldermen, and countersigned by the Council Clerk.

Custody of Books, Records, &c.

61. All books, deeds, memorials, letters, documents, and other records of the Council, except as hereinafter mentioned, shall be kept at the Council Chambers in the custody or care of the Council Clerk who shall be responsible for the safe custody of same, but the Mayor may for special purpose authorize their removal.

Books not to be shown without leave.

62. No member or officer of the Council shall be at liberty to show, lay open, or expose any of the books, papers, or records of the Council to any person not a member of the Council, without the written permission of the Mayor, unless as otherwise provided by law.

Records not to be removed.

63. Any person removing any such book, paper, or record from the Council Chamber without leave from the Mayor, shall be subject to a penalty of not more than ten pounds; and nothing therein contained shall be held to affect the further liability of any person who shall have removed such book, paper, or record, and shall not have returned the same, to prosecution for stealing such book, paper, or record, or to an action at law for detention of same as the circumstances of the case may warrant.

Receipts for documents.

64. Every person removing any document or record with such consent as aforesaid, shall give a receipt under his hand for every such document or other record, which receipt shall be carefully preserved among the records until the documents shall have been returned, when such receipt shall be destroyed.

Penalty for defacing or destroying records.

65. Any person destroying, defacing, or wilfully or improperly altering any books, papers, or records shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty of not more than twenty pounds.

Appointment of Officers and Servants.

66. Every permanent appointment shall be made by ballot or in such mode as may be determined upon whenever there is more than one candidate for such permanent office.

Exceptional cases.

67. Nothing herein contained shall be held to prevent the employment, as may from time to time be found necessary, and as may be ordered by the Council, of any workman or labourer on the public works of the Municipality.

Bonds for good conduct.

68. All bonds given by officers or servants of the Council for the faithful performance of their duties shall be deposited in such custody as the Council may order, and no member, officer, or servant of the Council shall be received as security for any officer or servant.

Council Clerk, duties of.

69. The Council Clerk shall perform all the duties which, by the Municipalities Act of 1867, or by the present or any other By-laws hereunder, he may be required to perform. He shall be the Clerk of all Revision Courts held in the Municipality under the provisions of the Municipalities Act. He shall pay into the bank appointed by the Council, every Tuesday previous to the meeting, all moneys received by him for the Council. He shall also, under the direction of the Mayor, conduct all correspondence which may be necessary on the part of the Council, and shall generally assist the Mayor in carrying out the orders of the Council and the duties of such Mayor.

Office hours of Council Clerk.

70. The Council Clerk shall attend at his office, for the purpose of transacting the ordinary business of the Council, on every Tuesday and Friday, from 2 to 4 p.m.

Complaints against officers.

71. All complaints against officers or servants of the Corporation must be in writing, addressed to the Mayor, and must in every case be signed by the person or persons complaining; and no notice whatever shall be taken of any complaint which is not in writing or is anonymous, and such complaint as aforesaid shall be laid by the Mayor before the Council at the next meeting thereof which shall be holden after the Mayor shall have received the same, and shall be duly recorded.

Special powers of the Mayor.

72. The Mayor may from time to time define the duties of the officers and servants of this Corporation, and shall exercise a general supervision over all such officers and servants, and may order the preparation of any such return or statement, or the giving of any such explanation or information by any such officer or servant as he may think necessary, unless the Council shall have expressly forbidden or dispensed with the preparation of such return or statement, or the giving of such explanation or information.

Lapsed business.

73. Whenever the consideration of any motion or matter of business shall have been interrupted by reason of a quorum not having been present, the consideration of such business shall be resumed at the next meeting at the point where it was interrupted.

Public notice.

74. In all cases where public notice is or shall be required to be given by any By-law of any appointment, resolution, act, order, or regulation done, made, or passed, or proposed to be made, done, or passed by the Council or by any Committee thereof, or by the Mayor or any officer of the said Council, such notice may be given and published by posting the same on or near the outer door of the Council Chambers for the space of seven days, or by advertising the same once in some newspaper circulating in the municipal district.

Power to suspend temporarily portions of the By-laws.

75. Any of the foregoing By-laws which relate to or affect the proceedings at meetings of the Council may be suspended pro tempore without notice, in cases of emergency, if all the members of the Council then present shall deem such suspension necessary.

Rescinding motion already passed.

76. No motion to rescind any decision of the Council shall be entertained, except at a Council of the whole, specially called for the purpose.

PART II.

Collection and enforcement of Rates.

1. All rates levied and imposed by the Council shall be held to be due and payable on and after such days as the Council shall by resolution from time to time appoint.

Time and place of payment.

2. All such rates shall be paid at the office of the Council Clerk during the hours appointed, unless paid to Rate Collector, or other duly authorized officer of the Council.

Defaulters.

3. Every person not paying his or her rates as aforesaid within sixty days after the day so appointed for the payment thereof shall be deemed a defaulter; and it shall be the duty of the Council Clerk to furnish the Mayor from time to time with a list of the names of all persons so in default.

Mayor to enforce payment.

4. It shall be the duty of the Mayor to take proceedings to enforce the payment of all rates in default, either by action at law, or by issuing warrants of distress upon the goods and chattels of defaulters.

Bailiff, how appointed.

5. The Bailiff of the Municipality shall be appointed by the Council, and may from time to time be removed by them.

Duties of Bailiff.

6. It shall be the duty of the Bailiff or other authorized person to make levies by distraint for the recovery of rates in the manner hereinafter provided.

Warrant of distress.

7. All levies and distresses shall be made under warrant in form of Schedule A hereto, under the hand of the Mayor or any Alderman who may for the time being be duly authorized to perform the duties of that office.

Distress and sale, &amp;c.

8. It shall be lawful for the Bailiff or his deputy and such assistants as he may take with him to enter into any part of the land, building, tenement, or other property in respect of which such rate or rates shall have been made as aforesaid, and to distraint the goods therein or thereon, and to remain in such building, tenement, or other property, in charge thereof, and if the sum for which any distress shall have been made or taken, together with all costs of such distraint, shall not have been paid on or before the expiration of three clear days, the Bailiff or his deputy may, between the hours of 11 in the morning and 2 in the afternoon on the next day thereafter, cause the goods so distrained, or a sufficient portion thereof, to be sold by public auction, either on the premises or at such other place within the Municipality as the Bailiff may think proper to remove them for such purpose, and shall pay over the surplus (if any) that may remain after deducting the amount of the sum distrained for and the costs of such distraint, to the owner of such goods so sold, on demand of such owner; and any person interfering with the said Bailiff in the execution of any duties devolving upon him under these By-laws, or hindering or preventing him from delivering to the purchaser thereof any property so sold by the said Bailiff, shall be liable to a penalty of five (5) pounds.

Inventory.

9. At the time of making a distress the Bailiff shall make out a written inventory in the form of Schedule B hereto, which inventory shall be delivered to the occupant of the land or premises, the owner of the goods so distrained, or to some person on his or her behalf resident at the place where the distress shall be made; and in case there shall be no person at such place with whom the inventory can be left as aforesaid, then such inventory shall be posted on some conspicuous part of the land or premises on which the distress is made, and the Bailiff shall give a copy of the inventory to the Council Clerk.

Goods may be impounded.

10. The Bailiff, on making a distress as aforesaid, may impound or otherwise secure the goods or chattels so distrained, of what nature or kind soever, in such place or places, or in such part of the land or premises chargeable with rates as shall be most fit and convenient for this purpose, and it shall be lawful for any person whomsoever, after the expiration of three days as hereinbefore mentioned, to come and to go to and from such place or part of the land or premises where such goods or chattels shall be impounded and secured as aforesaid in order to view and buy, and in order to carry off and remove the same on account of the purchasers thereof.

Owners may direct order of sale.

11. Owners of the goods or chattels so distrained may at their option direct and specify the order in which they shall be successively sold, and the said goods or chattels shall in such case be put for sale according to such direction.

Proceeds of distress.

12. The Bailiff shall hand over to the Council Clerk all proceeds of every distress within forty-eight hours after having received same.

Bailiff's Deputy.

13. The Bailiff may, with the sanction, in writing, of the Mayor, or, in his absence, with the sanction of any two Aldermen of the Municipality, authorize, by writing under his hand, any person to act temporarily as his deputy, and the person so authorized shall have and exercise all the powers of the Bailiff himself; but the Bailiff and his surties shall in every case be responsible for the acts of his deputy.

Costs.

14. There shall be payable to the Bailiff, for the use of the Council, for every levy and distress made under this By-law, the costs and charges in the schedule hereunto annexed marked C.

SCHEDULE A.

PART IV.

Licensing public vehicles.

1. No vehicle shall ply for hire within the Municipality of Casino unless licensed for such purposes in the manner hereinafter mentioned, nor during the suspension or after cancellation of such license as hereinafter provided.

2. Before any license for any vehicle plying for hire shall be granted, the party requiring such license shall deliver to the Council Clerk a requisition in form of Schedule A hereto or to like effect.

Mayor to grant licenses.

3. The Mayor for the said District for the time being shall be and is hereby authorized to issue all such licenses, in the name and on behalf of the said Municipal Council.

4. Every license granted by the Council shall be signed by the Mayor, and countersigned by the Council Clerk, and shall be in force until the end of quarter next ensuing the date thereof, and no such license shall include more than one vehicle.

Person in whose name vehicle is licensed to be deemed the proprietor.

5. The person or persons in whose name or names a license shall have been obtained shall be deemed the proprietor of the vehicle in respect of which such license shall have been taken out.

6. Any proprietor transferring or selling his licensed vehicle shall immediately give notice thereof to the Council Clerk, and the transferee or purchaser shall thereupon apply to have the license transferred to him, and shall sign his name in the books of the said Council, and on the license, and until this By-law shall have been complied with the transferrer or seller shall remain liable as owner for any breach of any of these By-laws, and no transferee or purchaser shall use such vehicle, or allow it to ply for hire until the By-law shall have been complied with.

7. No driver of any licensed vehicle shall lend or part with his license.

Registered proprietors or driver deemed as such.

8. Every proprietor of any and every vehicle shall be deemed to be licensed on production of the license register book containing a copy of such license, and it shall not be necessary to call upon the person prosecuted to produce the original license to enable the prosecutor to give secondary evidence of its contents.

License may be cancelled or suspended.

9. The license of the proprietor of any vehicle may be cancelled or suspended by the Mayor for the time being of the said Municipal Council as he shall deem right (after three days' notice in writing, signed by the Council Clerk and served upon such proprietor, or left at his usual abode), calling upon him to show cause why such license should not be cancelled or suspended, and opportunity given such proprietor to show such cause, in case the proprietor shall have been convicted of two offences against these By-laws, committed within a period of six months next preceding.

10. Such person or persons as may from time to time be appointed by the said Municipal Council shall be the Inspector or Sub-inspector of all licensed vehicles plying for hire within the said Municipality, and such Inspector or Sub-inspector shall, as often as he or they may deem necessary, inspect all licensed vehicles, and also the harness and horse, or horses or other animal or animals used in drawing the same, and if such vehicle, horse, or harness, animal or animals shall, in his or their opinion, be unfit for public use, he shall report the same in writing to the Mayor, who shall have the power to suspend the license of such vehicle until such vehicle, horse, or horses, or harness, or animal or animals used in drawing the same, shall be in a fit state for public use, and it shall be the special duty of such Inspector at all times to see that, as far as possible, these By-laws are duly observed and enforced.

Inspectors not to be hindered.

11. Any proprietor or driver of any vehicle, or any other person hindering or obstructing such Inspector or Sub-inspector in the execution of any of his or their duties shall be subject to a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

SCHEDULE A.

To the Municipal Council, Casino,—

I, _____ residing in _____ street, do hereby request that a license may be granted to me _____ No. _____, within the said Municipality.
Dated _____ 188 _____

SCHEDULE B.

This is to certify that _____ is hereby licensed to a certain _____ No. _____ within the Municipality of Casino, from the date thereof, to the quarter ending _____ subject, nevertheless, to all and every the By-laws, Rules, and Regulations in force relating thereto.

Given under the common seal of the Municipal Council of Casino, this _____ day of _____ 188 _____
Mayor.

Council Clerk.

PART V.

Carter's license for carts.

1. The Council may, from time to time, license to ply for hire within the said Municipality, carts or other vehicles approved of by the Works Committee for any or either of the following purposes, namely:—Drawing wood, water, earth, stone, gravel, timber, bricks, passengers, or for any other purpose, whenever hired by the day or load, and whether driven by the owner or by any person in the owner's employ; the license of any cart or other vehicle may be transferred with the cart or other vehicle to any person upon approval, as aforesaid, and for every such license, &c.

Application for license.

2. Every such license shall be granted on the written application for the same of the owner, or if there be more owners than one, of some one owner of the cart or other vehicle to be licensed, and in every such application shall be set forth truly the name and surname and place of abode of the applicant, and the like shall be set forth in the license when granted, which should be in form of Schedule D hereto, or the like effect, and any person who shall wilfully omit from any such application any particulars hereby required to be stated therein, or shall wilfully state anything falsely touching any such particulars shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Numbering, &amp;c., of license and carts.

3. Every such license for cart or other vehicle shall be numbered and registered by the Council Clerk, and shall be in force from the date until the next ensuing quarter, and the owner named in any such license shall cause to be painted or marked, and to be kept so painted or marked, on some conspicuous place on the right or off side of the cart or other vehicle thereby licensed with the number of such license in legible figures and letters, and the words, "Licensed cart" (or vehicle) in the like letters, and every such owner who shall omit or fail to comply with the provisions of this section shall forfeit a sum not exceeding forty shillings.

Plying without license.

4. If any owner of any cart or other vehicle permit the same to stand or ply for hire within the Municipality without having a license in force for such cart or other vehicle licensing or authorizing such standing or plying for hire or use respectively within such Municipality, or if any person be found within such Municipality standing or plying for hire with any cart or other vehicle for which no such license is in force, without having the number of such license, and the words "Licensed cart," or other vehicle, displayed upon such cart or other vehicle openly, and in manner herein provided, shall on conviction forfeit a sum not exceeding forty shillings.

Leaving carts unattended.

5. If the driver of any cart or other vehicle shall leave the same unattended in any street, whether public or private, or shall go for a distance of more than five feet from the side of such cart or other vehicle being in any such street, without passing through the rear wheel or wheels a suitable chain or chains, so as to effectually prevent the rotation of such wheel or wheels, whether in any such case the cart or other vehicle be hired or not, or if he shall go to such a distance from such vehicle as to render it beyond his immediate attention or control, every person so offending shall on conviction forfeit a sum not exceeding forty shillings.

Lights for carts, &amp;c.

6. The driver of every coach or other vehicle carrying passengers or goods at a pace faster than a walk, which shall during the hours after sunset of any day, or before sunrise of the following day, be in any street or public place within the said Municipality, shall keep a light attached to or suspended from the off or right side of such cart or other vehicle, so as to be plainly visible to the driver of any vehicle proceeding along or through such street or place in a contrary direction to that in which the first-mentioned cart or other vehicle shall be directed, and every driver who shall fail to comply with this section shall forfeit a sum not exceeding forty shillings.

Interpretation.

7. The word "cart" and "vehicle" shall for the purpose of this part of these By-laws include every waggon, dray, or other carriage whatever its construction, drawn by horses or other animals used for any of the purposes hereinbefore described in section 7 of this part.

SCHEDULE C.

Table of charges for carter's license.

For every water-cart, dray, cart, goods-van, or waggon, plying for hire, per quarter, 5s. For each omnibus, cab, hackney-carriage, or coach, or buggy, plying for hire, per quarter, 7s. 6d.

SCHEDULE D.

Municipality of Casino, cart or passenger vehicles.

Issued to _____, subject, nevertheless, to all By-laws, Rules, or Regulations in force thereto.

Given under the Common Seal of the Municipal Council of Casino, this _____ day of _____, 188 _____.

Council Clerk.

Mayor.

PART VI.

Care and management of streets; change of level of streets.

1. Whenever it may be deemed necessary to alter the level of any street, road, or way, the Council shall cause a plan of the section showing the proposed cuttings and fillings to be exhibited at the Council Chambers for fourteen days for the information and inspection of ratepayers, and shall notify by some newspaper circulating in the Municipality, or in some other public manner, that such plan is open for inspection. At a subsequent meeting of the Council, the said plan and section shall, if adopted, be signed by the Mayor or Chairman, and countersigned by the Council Clerk, and such plan so signed and countersigned shall be a record of the Council.

Persons not to open drains, or remove soil, &amp;c.

2. Any person who shall form, dig, or open any drain or sewer, or remove or cause to be removed any turf, clay, sand, soil, gravel, stone, or other material in, or from any part of the carriage or footway of any street or other public place, without leave first had and obtained by a written order from the Mayor, or who shall wantonly break up or otherwise damage any such carriage or footway, shall on conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds.

Persons not to dig holes, &amp;c.; persons to enclose buildings and building materials; lights to be provided.

3. Any person or persons who shall dig, make, or cause to be dug or made, any hole, or leave or cause to be left, any hole adjoining or near to any street or public place within the said Municipality for the purpose of making any vault or vaults, or the foundations of any house or other buildings, or for any other purpose whatsoever, or shall erect or pull down any building, and shall not forthwith enclose the same, and keep the same enclosed in a good and sufficient manner to the satisfaction of the Council of the said Municipality, or who shall keep up, or cause to be kept up and continued any such enclosure for any length of time which shall be longer than shall be absolutely necessary in the opinion of the said Council, and shall not place lights upon each side of the said enclosure, and keep the same constantly burning from sunset to sunrise during the continuance of such enclosure, shall forfeit and pay for every such refusal or neglect any sum not being more than five pounds.

Persons not to leave dangerous places exposed or obstructions on public ways, &amp;c.

4. Every owner or occupier of any house, buildings, premises, or land within the said Municipality having any entrance, area, garden, or other open space, or any vacant building lot, waterhole, or excavated space adjoining the footway, or any street or public place in such Municipality shall protect and guard the same by good and sufficient rails, fences, or other enclosures so as to prevent danger to persons passing and repassing; and every such owner or occupier of any such house, building, premises, or land having any steps adjoining the footway of such street or public place shall, in like manner, protect and guard the same by fences, rails, or other enclosures so as to prevent the like danger to persons passing and repassing, and on failure thereof every such owner or occupier shall, as often as he shall be convicted of such offence, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds, and every such owner or occupier as aforesaid who shall fail to erect such rails, fences, or other enclosures as aforesaid within fourteen days after any such conviction as aforesaid shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Thoroughfare may be stopped by the Council.

5. The Works Committee or officer or person acting under the authority of such Committee may at any time cause the traffic of any street, lane, or thoroughfare, or any portion thereof, to be stopped for the purpose of repairing the same, or for any necessary purpose; and any person or persons offending against this By-law either by travelling on such street, lane, or thoroughfare, or by removing or destroying any obstruction that may be placed thereon for the purpose of suspending the traffic, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a penalty of any sum not exceeding five pounds for every such offence.

Careless riding or driving.

6. Any person who shall ride or drive through or upon any street or public place within the said Municipality so negligently, carelessly, or furiously that the safety of any other person may be endangered, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Rolling and driving on footways, &amp;c.

7. Any person who shall run, roll, drive, draw, place, or cause or permit, or suffer to be run, rolled, driven, drawn, or placed upon any footway, any waggon or omnibus, cart, dray, stage, bicycle, carriage, wheelbarrow, cask, wheel, or vehicle of any kind, or shall lead, drive, ride, or place any horse, cattle, or other beast upon any footway, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

Placing obstructions on footways, &amp;c.

8. If any person shall set or cause or permit to be set or placed any stall, show-board, sign-board, basket, or goods of any kind whatsoever, or shall hoop, place, wash, or cleanse, or shall cause to be hooped, placed, washed, or cleansed any cask or vessel in or upon or over any road, footway, or public place within the Municipality, or shall set out, lay, or place, or shall cause or procure, permit, or suffer to be set out, laid, or placed any coach, cart, dray, barrow, truck, or other carriage upon any footway, or shall allow any vehicle, goods, or property to remain in or obstruct any road, street, lane, or way, or if any person shall set or place or cause to be set or placed in, upon, or over any of the said carriage and footways any timber, stones, bricks, lime, or other materials or things for building whatsoever (unless the same shall be enclosed as hereinbefore directed), or any other goods or things whatsoever, or shall hang out or expose, or shall cause or permit to be hung out or exposed any meat or offal or other commodity or thing whatsoever from any house or premises over any part of such footways or carriage ways, or over any area of any house or premises over or next to any such street, road, or public place, in every case every such person so offending shall forfeit and pay on conviction a sum not exceeding forty shillings.

Penalty for damaging water-tables.

9. Any person driving any waggon, dray, cart, or other carriage whatsoever in any water-table of any street or road, or in any other way damaging such street or road shall be liable on conviction to a penalty of not more than forty shillings.

Careless use of gunpowder.

10. Every person who shall place or knowingly permit to be placed in any house, yard, workshop, out offices, or other premises, fire, gunpowder, or combustible or other inflammable material of any kind in such manner as to endanger contiguous buildings, shall on conviction of such offence forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds, and shall forthwith remove such fire, gunpowder, combustible, or inflammable material; and every such person who shall suffer any fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable material to remain as aforesaid for seven days after such conviction shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

PART VII.

Nuisances.

Casting filth or rubbish into streets, &c.

1. Any person who shall cast or cause to be cast any filth, rubbish, or any dead animal into any street, lane, public watercourse, drain, or waterhole, or who shall suffer any dead animal to remain upon his or her land or premises to become a nuisance or otherwise offensive, or who shall permit any filth to flow from his or her premises, or shall permit or cause by pipes, channels, or other contrivances, filth from closets to flow from his or her premises into any street, lane, public watercourse, drain, or waterhole, shall on conviction forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds, and shall pay the cost of removing such filth or obstruction or of restoring such drain or watercourse to its proper channel.

Keeping swine.

2. Any person who shall breed, feed, or keep any kind of swine in any building, yard, garden, or other hereditament situate and being in or within sixty yards of any street or public place in the said Municipality, shall on conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings.

Straying animals.

3. Any person who shall suffer any kind of swine, or any horse, ass, mule, sheep, goat, or cattle belonging to him or her, or under his or her charge, to stray or go about or be depastured or tethered within the Municipality or within such boundaries as the Council may from time to time see fit in such a manner so as to become a nuisance, shall on conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings.

Premises and private avenues to be kept clean.

4. Any owner or occupier of any house or place within the said Municipality who shall neglect to keep clean all private avenues, passages, yards, and ways within the said premises, so as by such neglect to cause a nuisance by offensive smell or otherwise, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings for every such offence.

Inspectors of nuisances to visit butchering establishments.

5. For preserving the cleanliness of the said Municipality and the health of the inhabitants thereof it shall be lawful for the Inspector of Nuisances, or for any other officer or officers appointed by the Council from time to time and as often as he or either of them shall see occasion, to visit and inspect the butchers' premises, boiling down establishments, tanneries, and felmongery establishments in the said Municipality, and to give such directions concerning the cleansing of the said premises, tanneries, and establishments both within and without as to him shall seem needful; and any butcher, or the owner or occupier of any such tannery or establishment, who shall refuse or neglect to comply with such directions within forty-eight hours shall on conviction forfeit a sum not exceeding ten pounds.

Restrictions on certain trades, &c.

6. It shall not be lawful for the business of soap boiler, tallow melter, tanner, currier, pig keeper, slaughter man, or any occupation, trade, or manufacture of any obnoxious or unwholesome nature, prejudicial to the health of or otherwise offensive to any of the inhabitants thereof, to be commenced or established within the limits of that portion of the Municipality to be defined from time to time by resolution of this Council, without consent of the Council first had and obtained, and whosoever shall offend against this By-law shall forfeit and pay on conviction a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than five pounds.

Premises to be inspected on complaint.

7. Upon the reasonable complaint of any householder that the house, premises, yards, closets, or drains of the neighbouring or adjoining premises are a nuisance or offensive, the Inspector of Nuisances, or any other person appointed by the Council, shall make an inspection of the premises complained of, and the officer of the Council shall have full power, without any other authority than this By-law, to go upon the said premises for such purpose.

Persons committing offences, &c.

8. Every person who, in any street or public place or passage within the said Municipality to the obstruction, annoyance, or danger of the residents or passengers, shall commit any of the following offences shall on conviction forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds:—

Hoisting goods.

1. Every person who shall hoist, or cause to be hoisted, or lowered, or cause to be lowered, goods of any description from any opening in any house fronting any street or public place and close to the footway thereof without sufficient and proper ropes and tackling.

Conveyance of meat.

2. Every person who shall carry or convey, or cause to be carried or conveyed, in any street or public place the carcase, or any part of the carcase, of any newly slaughtered animal without a sufficient and proper clean cloth covering the same for the concealment from public view, or shall hawk or carry about butchers' meat, putrid fish, fruit, or other edibles unfit for food for sale without covering the same as aforesaid.

Placing lines, &c., across the streets, &c.

3. Every person who shall place any line, cord, or pole across any street, lane, or passage, or hang or place clothes thereon to the danger or annoyance of any person.

4. Every person who shall place any flower-pot in any upper window near to any street or public place without sufficiently guarding the same from being thrown down.

Casting building material, &c., from roofs.

5. Every person who shall throw or cast from the roof, or any part of any house or other building, any slate, brick, part of a brick, wood, rubbish, or other material in or upon the carriage or footways of any streets or public place (unless within a hoard or enclosure) when any house or building is being occupied, erected, pulled down, or repaired.

Blacksmiths to close doors and windows after sunset.

6. Every blacksmith, whitesmith, anchormsmith, nailmaker, metal founder, lime burner, brickmaker, potter, or other person using a forge, furnace, or kiln, and having a door, window, aperture fronting or opening into or towards any street, lane, or passage, and not closing such door or not fastening the shutters or other fastenings of such window, and closing such aperture or placing a screen before the same every evening within one hour after sunset so as to effectually prevent the lights from shining through the doorway, window, or aperture next or upon such street, lane, or passage.

Persons burning bones, rags, &c.

7. Every person who shall within one hundred yards of any dwelling-house burn any rags, bones, corks, or other offensive substance to the annoyance of any inhabitant.

Carrying goods, &c.

8. Any person who shall carry goods upon the footpath of any street or other public footway, in such a manner as to be dangerous or an annoyance to passengers.

Keeping ferocious animals.

9. Any person who shall be the keeper of, and have any dog or other animal which shall attack any person within the Municipality.

Filthy premises injurious to health.

10. If upon the certificate of any duly qualified medical practitioner it appears to the Council that any house or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, within the limits of the said Municipality, is in such a filthy or unwholesome state that the health of any person is or may be affected or liable to be affected or endangered thereby, and that the white washing, cleansing, or purifying of any house or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, would tend to prevent or check any infectious or contagious disease, the said Council shall give notice in writing to the owner or occupier of such house or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, to whitewash, cleanse, or purify the same, as the case may be required; and if the person to whom the notice is so given shall fail to comply therewith within such time as shall be specified in the said notice, he or she shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten shillings for every day during which he or she continues to make default, provided that no such penalty shall collectively amount to any greater sum than twenty pounds; and the said Council shall, if they shall think fit, cause such house, building, or part thereof, or the premises occupied in connection therewith, to be whitewashed, cleansed, or purified; and for such purpose the proper officers, servants, and workmen of the said Council shall have power to enter the same, and the expense incurred by the Council in so doing shall be paid by the owner or occupier.

Bathing in public places.

11. Any person who shall bathe near to or within view of any public wharf, quay, or bridge, street, road, or other place of public resort within the limits of the said Municipality, between the hours of 8 in the morning and 6 in the evening to the annoyance of any person, shall on conviction pay a sum not exceeding one pound for every such offence.

12. Any individual who shall offend against decency by the exposure of his or her person in any street or public place within the said Municipality, or in view thereof, shall on conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Connecting drains with sewers.

13. Any person who shall connect any pipe or drain with any sewer or drain belonging to the said Council, without permission first obtained from the Council, shall on conviction forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding twenty pounds.

Earth closets.

14. Every closet or cesspit shall be built with walls seven feet high, and shall not be less than three feet six inches wide and four feet six inches long, and must not be less than fifteen feet from any dwelling-house or public street, and shall be provided with a door capable of being fastened from the inside, and shall be ventilated; and every person having or building any earth-closet contrary to this By-law shall on conviction be liable to a penalty of not more than five pounds.

15. Any person who shall close or intercept any natural watercourse by building or otherwise, shall provide another outlet for the surface water with pipes or sewers of a size and in a manner to be approved by the Council. Any person failing to comply with the provisions of this By-law shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding fifty pounds nor less than one pound.

16. That the owners of houses, or agents thereof, who have laid pipes or drains to convey slops, suds, refuse, or dirty water of any kind whatsoever into the street, water channel, watercourse, waterhole, river, or creek, or canal, shall construct a cesspit and charcoal filter of a design hereinafter mentioned to each house. Such cesspit to be made according to plan and specification to be seen at the Council Chambers. The said cesspit and filter to be constructed to the satisfaction of the Public Works Committee or other duly authorized officer, and any owner of such house, or his agent, who shall refuse or neglect to construct such cesspit and charcoal filter within thirty days after receiving a written notice, signed by the Mayor or Council Clerk, or other duly authorized officer, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds, nor less than one pound. Should any owner of such house, or his agent, refuse or neglect to cleanse such cesspit and charcoal filter after twenty-four hours' notice from a duly authorized officer, he shall forfeit any sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than five shillings.

Persons not to stand or loiter in streets.

17. All persons standing or loitering upon any of the carriage-ways, footways, or other public places within the Municipality to the annoyance or inconvenience of passers-by, or in any way interrupting the traffic, who shall not discontinue to do so on being requested by any officer or servant of the Council, or by any police officer, shall be liable to a penalty, upon conviction, not exceeding two pounds or less than five shillings.

Erection of houses, &c.: Fee for permission.

18. No person shall be permitted to erect any house, shop, or other building in any street, lane, or place within the Municipality without having first served notice in writing to the Mayor or Council Clerk before commencing the same, stating his intention, and describing the proposed situation of the building or erection, and shall at the time the said notice is given as aforesaid pay to the Council Clerk a fee of five shillings for permission to erect any such house, shop, or building in any street, lane, or other place within the said Municipality; and every owner thereof and every contractor for such house, shop, or building, or any part thereof, commencing to build or work thereon without such notice having been given shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than five shillings.

Extirpation of noxious weeds.

19. Any owner or occupier of land within the Municipality who shall permit to grow on the said land or place upon the public streets or roads weeds known as Bathurst burr, Scotch thistle, prickly-pear, sweet-briar, or any noxious weed, and who shall fail to extirpate or destroy the same within thirty days after the receipt of a notice in writing, by post or otherwise, from the Council, or proper officer of the Council, so to do, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings.

Drawing or trailing timber, &c.

20. If any person shall haul, or draw, or cause to be hauled or drawn, upon any part of any street, road, or other public place, any timber, stone, or other thing otherwise than upon wheeled carriages, or shall suffer any timber, stone, or other thing which shall be carried principally or in part upon wheeled carriages, to drag or trail upon any part of such street or public place to the injury thereof, or to hang over any part of such carriage so as to occupy or obstruct the street, every such person so offending shall forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings over and above the damage occasioned thereby. Proviso that such penalty and damages shall not together exceed the sum of ten pounds.

No turf, gravel, &c., to be removed from streets without leave.

21. Any person who from any part of the road, street thoroughfares, or public places shall remove, or cause to be removed, any turf, clay, sand, soil, gravel, stone, or other material, without leave first had and obtained, from the officers or persons having lawful charge of such roads, streets, thoroughfares, or public places, or who shall wantonly break up or otherwise damage any part of the said roads, streets, thoroughfares, or public places, shall on conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than five shillings, and for every subsequent offence shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one pound.

22. If any person shall in any street, road, lane, or public place, throw, cast, or lay any ashes, rubbish, offal, dung, soil, dead animals, blood, or other filth, or shall kill, slaughter, dress, scald, or cut up any beast, swine, calf, sheep, or other animal in or so near to any of the said streets or roads as that any blood or filth shall run or flow upon or over, or be on any carriage or footway, or shall run, roll, drive, draw, place, or cause, permit, or suffer to be run, rolled, driven, drawn, or placed upon any footway, any waggon, cart, dray, sledge, or other carriage, or on any wheelbarrow or truck, or any cart, or shall wilfully lead, drive, or ride any horse or other beast upon any footway aforesaid shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings.

Allowing dead animals to remain on premises.

23. Any owner or occupier of any land or premises who shall cause or suffer to be placed, or permit any dead animals' blood, offal, night-soil, or any other offensive matter, to remain upon the said land or premises after notice shall have been given to remove the same, shall be subject to a penalty not exceeding two pounds nor less than ten shillings for every day that the same shall so remain.

Council may remove encroachments.

24. In any case where after service of notice for the removal of any obstruction or encroachment as aforesaid, the person causing the same shall not remove it within thirty days, it shall be lawful for the Council to direct the removal of the same under the superintendence of its own proper officer, and at the cost of the person so offending, provided that the expenses thereby incurred shall in no case exceed the sum of ten pounds, or at the Council's option to proceed against the offender for breach of By-laws, the penalty not to exceed twenty-five pounds, and in case of every successive offence the penalty, on conviction, not to be less than five pounds.

Or may proceed by action.

25. In every case where the obstruction or encroachment cannot be removed, unless at a greater cost than ten pounds, it shall be open to the Council, either to direct such removal, and to pay all the cost thereof above ten pounds from the funds of the Council, or to proceed by action for trespass against the person causing such obstruction or encroachment, or to proceed as for a breach of such By-law as aforesaid.

Damaging trees.

26. Any person destroying or injuring any tree, or guard for the protection of the same, situate on any street or reserve within the Municipality, shall forfeit and pay on conviction any sum not exceeding ten pounds.

PART VIII.

Buildings.

Verandahs and awnings may be erected.

1. Nothing in these By-laws contained shall be deemed to prevent any person from placing or fixing a movable or permanent awning, or erecting a verandah in front of his or her shop or house: Provided that such awning shall be at least nine feet, and such verandah ten feet above the proper level of the footways, and according to the plans and specifications of the Council for the time being, and that the posts of the said awning and verandah together, with all framework connected therewith, shall be prepared and erected to the satisfaction and approval of the Council, as they may from time to time direct.

Houses to be properly spouted.

2. All proprietors of houses and other buildings within this Municipality having a frontage to any main thoroughfare shall be required to have the roofs of the said buildings sufficiently spouted and connected with suitable down pipes, and emanators to be carried under the surface of the footpaths into the gutters or away from the public streets, to the satisfaction and approval of the Council, under a penalty of ten shillings on conviction, and if not remedied at the expiration of seven days after such conviction the offender shall be again liable for a like penalty for every day or part of a day that the same shall not be remedied, together with the cost of repairing all damage to such footpaths resulting from such neglect.

Houses, &amp;c., not to encroach on the footpaths.

3. Whenever any road, street, or lane has been marked out in manner herein provided, no house, shop, fence, or other structure shall, except as hereinafter mentioned, be allowed to project or encroach on any part thereof, and it shall not be lawful for any person to erect or put up any building, erection, obstruction, fence, or enclosure, or to make any excavation, hole, &c., or opening in, under, or upon or near to any such road, street, lane, or thoroughfare, unless the consent of the Council has been obtained for the erecting or making of any such building, erection, or obstruction, fence or enclosure, excavation, hole, or opening as aforesaid; and every person offending against this By-law shall on conviction forfeit and pay for the first offence a sum not exceeding five pounds, and for every subsequent offence a sum not exceeding ten pounds.

Footway may be levelled.

4. When any footway shall have been marked out in manner herein directed, the surveyor or other person as aforesaid may cause the same to be levelled and made as nearly as practicable of equal heights and breadth and with an equal slope or inclination, and may remove any flagging, steps, or other matter or thing or obstruction that may injure or obstruct the said footway, or render it unequal or inconvenient and which now is or may hereafter be erected or placed in the space marked out for the said footway.

Encroachments to be removed on notice.

5. The surveyor, or such other officer or person as aforesaid, may at any time on the order of the Council, and upon due notice of thirty days, direct the removal of any building, fence, or other obstruction or encroachment in or upon any road, street, lane, or thoroughfare under the charge of the Council. Notice shall, in this case, be served either personally or at the usual or last known place of abode of the person to whom such obstruction or encroaching structure belongs, or who has erected the same or caused it to be erected.

No balcony shall be erected.

6. No balcony shall be erected so that the same shall project or hang over the footway of any street, road, or thoroughfare; and every person who shall offend against this By-law shall on conviction forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds for every day that such balcony shall be allowed to remain after such conviction.

PART IX.

Houses of ill-fame.

1. Upon representation by any respectable ratepayer that any house or premises within the Municipality and near to the residence of such ratepayer is of ill-fame, it shall be lawful for the By-law Committee to cause the residents of such house or premises to furnish to the Council a list of names, ages, sexes, and occupations of all the inmates of the said house or premises, and upon non-compliance with such request, or if, upon consideration, the said Committee consider the house to be of ill-fame, they shall, with the sanction of the Council, declare the same to be a nuisance, and shall cause a notice in writing to be served upon the holder of such house or premises, or any person resident or being therein, to discontinue or abate the said nuisance within forty-eight hours after the receipt of such notice; and if such nuisance be not abated, the holder of such house or premises, or other person residing or being therein and acting as such holder, shall be liable to be proceeded against for such nuisance, and shall on conviction thereof forfeit and pay any sum not more than twenty pounds; and if such nuisance shall not be abated within forty-eight hours after conviction, such holder of such house, or such other person residing or being therein as aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay for such second offence a sum not more than fifty pounds, and if a further period of forty-eight hours elapse after such second conviction without the abatement of such nuisance, such holder of such house, or other person residing therein as aforesaid, shall for such third offence forfeit and pay a sum not more than fifty pounds.

Penalties where not otherwise specified.

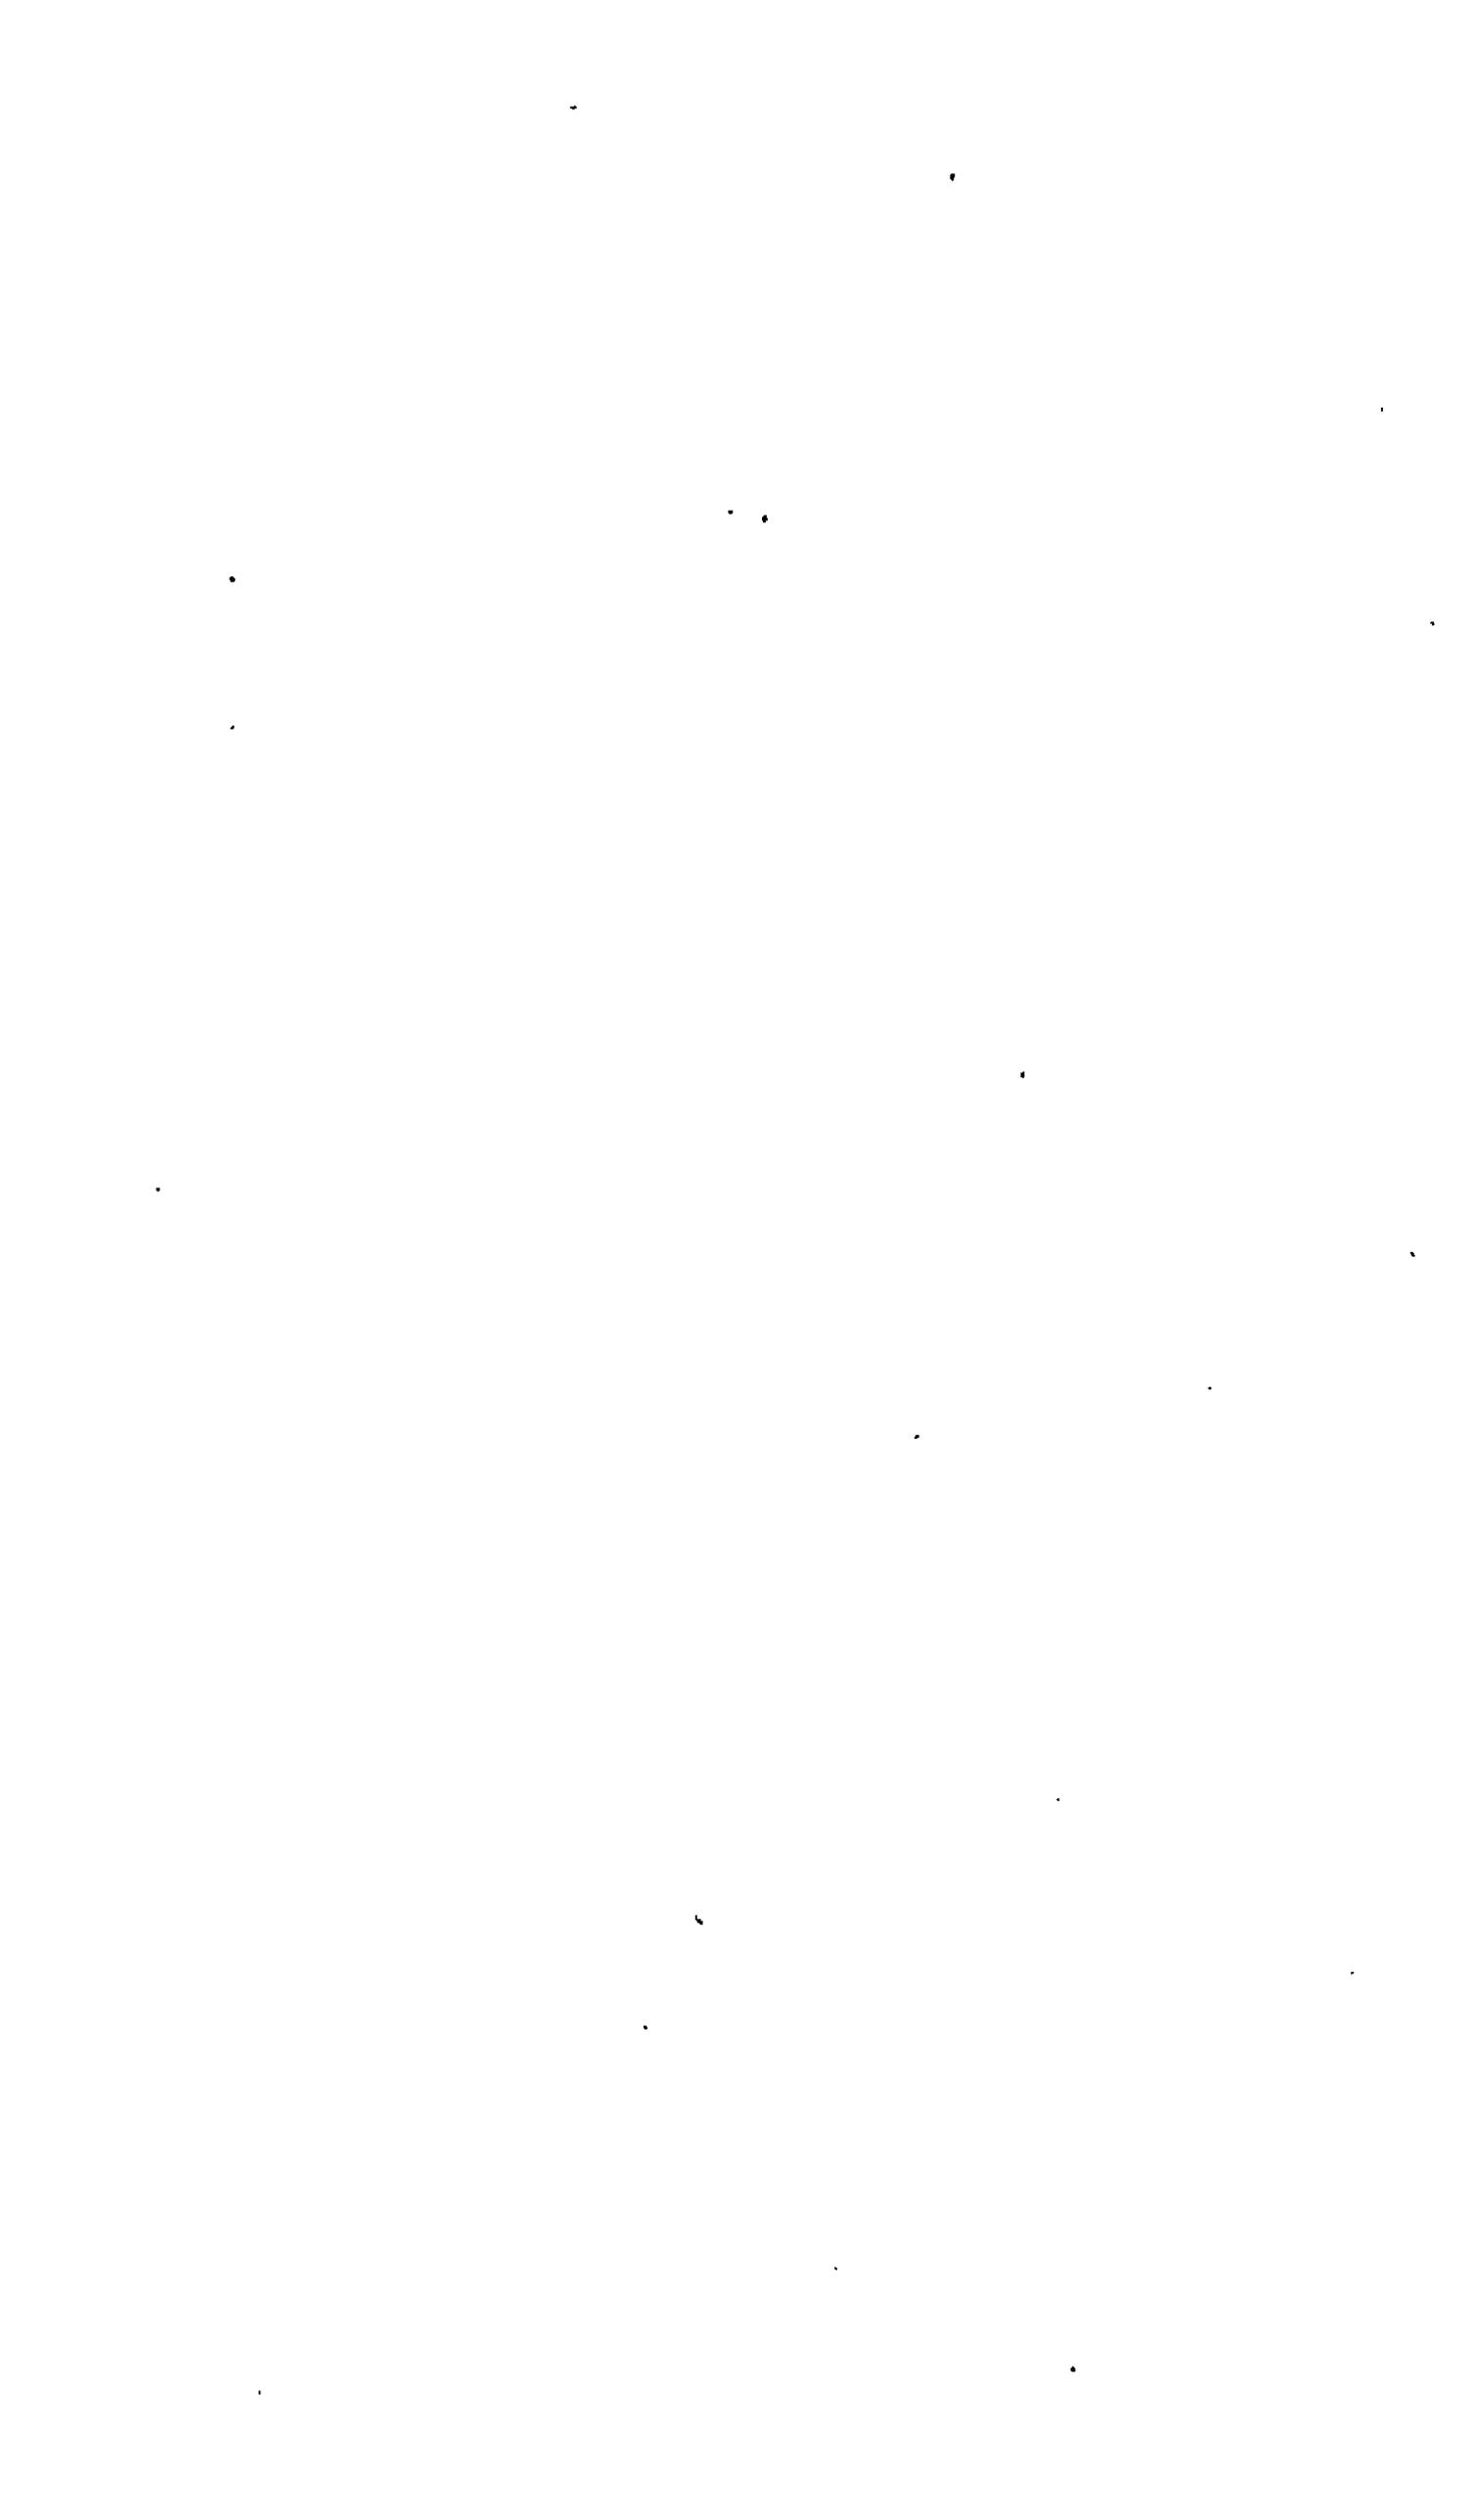

2. Every person committing a breach of these By-laws, shall where no penalty is mentioned for any such offence be liable on conviction to a sum not exceeding twenty pounds; and any person obstructing any person in the discharge of any duty imposed or in the exercise of any privilege conferred by any of these By-laws, shall be liable on conviction to a sum not exceeding twenty pounds.

The foregoing are the By-laws of the Municipal District of Casino, passed at a meeting of the Municipal Council, held this 31st August, 1886.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

MUNICIPALITIES.

(BOROUGH OF JUNEE—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 13th June, 1887.

BOROUGH OF JUNEE.—BY-LAWS.

The following By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of Junee, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

PART I.

BY-LAWS.

1. That the following be and are confirmed as the By-laws of the Council of the Borough of Junee.

Meetings of the Council.

Ordinary meetings.

2. Unless otherwise ordered, the Council shall meet for the dispatch of business on every alternate Thursday, at the hour of 3:30 p.m., unless such day shall happen to be a public holiday. In the latter case the meeting shall be held on such day as the Mayor may appoint.

Election of chairman in absence of Mayor.—Adjournment for want of quorum.

3. If at any meeting of the Council the Mayor be absent at the expiration of fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding such meeting, the Aldermen then present shall proceed to elect from among themselves a chairman for such meeting, to give place to the Mayor if he should arrive at a later hour during the meeting. Whenever there shall be an adjournment of any such meeting for want of a quorum the names of the members present shall be taken down and recorded in the minute book.

Course of procedure.

4. The following shall be the course of procedure at such meetings, viz. :—

- A. The reading and confirmation of minutes of the proceedings of the previous meeting. No discussion to be permitted on such minutes, except as to whether they be correct.
- B. Reading and consideration of correspondence.
- C. Presentation of petitions.
- D. Reports from committees.
- E. Adjourned motions, and motions of which notice has been given.
- F. Such other business as may lawfully be brought before the Council.

Business at special meetings.

5. At special meetings of the Council the business, after the minutes shall have been read and verified, which shall be done in the same manner as at ordinary meetings, shall be taken in such order as the Mayor or Aldermen at whose instance the special meeting shall have been called may have directed.

Business may be dealt with out of regular order.

6. It shall be competent to the Council at any time, by resolution without notice, to entertain any particular motion or to deal with any particular matter of business, out of its regular order on the business paper, without any formal suspension of this section; also, and in like manner, to direct that any particular motion or matter of business shall have precedence at a future meeting.

Business paper for ordinary meeting—how prepared.

7. The business paper for every meeting of the Council, other than a special meeting, shall be made up by the Council Clerk or other person acting as his substitute not less than three days nor more than four days before the day appointed for such meeting. He shall enter upon such business paper a copy of the substance of every notice of motion and of every requisition or order as to business proposed to be transacted at such meeting which he shall have received or shall have been required or directed so to enter in due course of law, and as hereinafter provided. Every such entry shall be made subject to the provisions of section 4 of this "Part" of these By-laws in the same order as such notice, requisition, or direction, shall have been received.

Business paper for special meeting.

8. The business paper for each special meeting shall contain only such matters as shall have been specially ordered to be entered thereon by the Mayor or Aldermen calling such meeting, Council Clerk to enter fully particulars of motions or notices.

Summons to members.

9. The summons to Members of the Council of every meeting thereof shall be prepared from the business paper of such meeting, and shall embody the substance of such business paper.

How business paper is to be disposed of.

10. The business paper for each meeting of the Council shall at such meeting be laid before the Mayor or Chairman, who shall cause a note to be made upon such business paper of the mode in which each matter entered thereon has been dealt with, and such business paper, so noted, shall be a record of the Council.

Absence of proposed mover.

11. No motion of which notice shall have been entered on the business paper, shall be proceeded with in the absence of the Alderman by whom such notice shall have been given, unless by some other Alderman producing a written authority for that purpose from such first-named Alderman.

Motion to be seconded.

12. No motion shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Motion to be in writing and not withdrawn without leave.

13. Every motion, notice of which has been given, shall be in writing, shall be signed by the mover; and no motion, when seconded, shall be withdrawn without leave of the Council.

Amendments may be moved.

14. When a motion shall have been moved and seconded, any Alderman shall be at liberty to move an amendment thereon, but no such amendment shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Only one amendment at the time.

15. No second or subsequent amendment shall be taken into consideration until the previous amendment shall have been disposed of.

Petitions.

16. The Council may at any meeting resolve, without previous motion, that any petition be received; and that the same or any correspondence read, be referred to a committee for report, or that the requests therein contained be granted.

Mayor to preserve order.

17. The Mayor shall preserve order, and may at any time call to order any Alderman who may appear to him to be out of order.

Calls to order.

18. Any Alderman may at any time call the attention of the Mayor to any Alderman being out of order, or to any point of order.

Mayor's decision on points of order final.

19. Every point of order shall be taken into consideration immediately upon its arising, and the decision of the Mayor thereon shall be conclusive except as hereinafter provided.

Power of Council as to laying down general rules, &c.

20. Any Alderman who is dissatisfied with the decision of the Mayor or Chairman on any such question of order or of practice may, by motion on notice respectfully worded, invite the Council to lay down a different rule or principle for the determination of any similar question of order or of practice which may thereafter arise. Any rule or principle thus laid down shall be binding upon all parties unless and until it be rescinded, but shall have no retrospective operation.

Mayor to take part in proceedings.

21. The Mayor may take part in all the proceedings of the Council or committees thereof.

Questions put by Mayor.

22. The Mayor shall put all questions first in the affirmative and then in the negative (provided that where an amendment is moved to any motion the amendment shall be first put), and may do so as often as may be necessary to enable him to determine the sense of the Council thereon, and thereupon he shall declare his decision, which shall be final, unless a division be called for.

Mayor to decide as to precedence of Aldermen.

23. If two or more Aldermen rise to speak at the same time, the Mayor shall decide which of them shall be entitled to precedence.

No Alderman to speak twice on same question or amendment.

24. No Alderman shall speak twice on the same question, unless in committee or in explanation, where he shall have been misrepresented or misunderstood. Provided that any Alderman, although having previously spoken, may speak once on every amendment, and that the mover of every question shall always have a right of final reply.

No Alderman to make personal reflections.

25. No Alderman shall digress from the matter under discussion, or make personal reflections on or impute motives to any other Alderman.

No Alderman to speak for more than fifteen minutes.

26. No Alderman shall speak on any motion or amendment for a longer period than fifteen minutes without the consent of the Council; and every Alderman shall stand when speaking and address the Chair.

Aldermen using offensive expressions to apologise.

27. When any member of the Council shall make use of any language or expression offensive or capable of being applied offensively to any Alderman, the member so offending shall be required to withdraw such language or expression, and to make an apology satisfactory to the Council.

Debate may be adjourned.

28. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour the same day, or to another day.

Alderman adjourning debate entitled to precedence on resumption.

29. The Alderman upon whose motion any debate shall be adjourned shall be entitled to precedence on the resumption of the debate.

Adjournments.

30. Any motion for the adjournment of the Council, if seconded, shall be immediately put without discussion; but if such motion be negatived, it shall not be competent for any Alderman to make a similar motion until thirty minutes shall have elapsed.

Any Alderman may divide Council.

31. It shall be competent for any Alderman to divide the Council on any question, both in full Council and in committee of the whole Council; and no Alderman shall leave his seat or place till the names of the Aldermen, and how voting, shall have been taken down by the Council Clerk or person officiating for him.

Division to be entered on minutes.

32. All divisions of the Council shall be entered on the minutes of the proceedings.

Questions to be read when required.

33. Any Alderman may require the question or matter under discussion to be read once for his information, and upon such request the question or matter under discussion shall be read.

Suspension of By-laws.

34. Any of these By-laws relating to or affecting proceedings at meetings of the Council may be suspended pro tempore in cases of emergency, by resolution of the Council.

Rescinding motion already passed.

35. No motion to rescind any decision of the Council shall be entertained except at a Council of the whole specially called for the purpose.

Questions may be put.

36. No question shall be put to the Mayor when in Council requiring the production of papers, or which cannot be replied to without reference to books or papers, unless twenty-four hours notice in writing shall have been given thereof to the Council Clerk.

Questions put without discussion.

37. Every question shall be put without any argument or discussion whatever.

Standing and Special Committees.

Standing Committees.

38. There shall be three Standing Committees, viz. :- a By-laws, Works, and Finance Committee. These committees shall be reappointed every year at the first meeting of the Council, which shall be holden after the election of Mayor.

Committee of Works.

39. The Committee of Works shall have the general direction of all works ordered or sanctioned by the Council, and the general inspection of all streets, roads, ways, bridges, public reserves, and other places under the management of the Council. They shall also inquire and report from time to time upon such improvements, repairs, or other matters as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Finance Committee.

40. The Finance Committee shall examine and check all accounts, and shall watch generally over the collection and expenditure of the municipal revenues. They shall inquire and report from time to time as to all matters which they may consider to affect the finances of the municipality, and as to such matters or subjects of the like nature as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

By-law Committee.

41. The By-law Committee shall prepare, for the consideration of the Council, drafts of such By-laws as may be required for the good government of the municipality.

Rules to be observed in committees.

42. The rules of the Council shall be observed in a committee of the whole Council, except the rule limiting the number of times of speaking.

Records of transactions in Committees.

43. The Chairman of each Standing Committee shall make, or cause to be made, in a book kept by him for that purpose memoranda of all the transactions of such committee, which book he shall, on ceasing to be such Chairman, hand over to his successor.

Form of report.

44. All reports from committees shall be written on foolscap paper, with a margin of at least one-fourth of the width of such paper, and shall be signed by the chairman of such committee, or, in his absence, by some other member of the same.

Protection of Funds and Records.

Members or officers of Council not to be surety.

45. In cases where surety is required by the Municipalities Act, it shall not be competent for the Council to accept as surety any of their members, or any person holding office under the Council.

Custody of records, seals, &amp;c.

46. The common seal and all charters, deeds, muniments, books, papers, and records of the Council shall be kept in the Council Chambers or office of the Council, in the custody of the Council Clerk, unless the Council shall otherwise order for any purpose; and the common seal shall not be in use except with the signature of the Mayor and authority of the Council.

Records, &amp;c., not to be defaced or altered.

47. Any person who shall deface, alter, or destroy, or attempt to deface, alter, or destroy any such common seal, charter, deed, muniment, book, paper, or record shall, on conviction thereof, forfeit and pay for the first offence, a penalty not exceeding fifty pounds, nor less than five pounds, and for every subsequent conviction a penalty of not less than twenty pounds.

No remove.

48. Any person who shall remove, or attempt to remove (except for the purpose of any legal proceedings) any seal, charter, deed, muniment, book, paper, or record from the Council Chamber without leave from the Council first had and obtained, shall, on conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than twenty pounds nor less than two pounds, and for every subsequent offence a penalty of not less than five pounds.

Expense of proposed works to be first ascertained.—Accounts to be examined by Finance Committee.

49. No work shall be undertaken until the probable expense thereof shall have been ascertained by the Council; and all accounts to be paid by the Council shall be examined by the Finance Committee, and reported on by them before any warrant shall be issued for the payment thereof.

Outlay in urgent cases.

50. In cases of emergency arising between meetings of the Council, it shall be lawful for necessary works to be ordered without vote of the Council, viz.:—By the Mayor, to the extent of five pounds; and, with the consent of three Aldermen, any sum not exceeding twenty pounds.

Officers and servants.

Notice to candidates.

51. No appointment to any permanent office at the disposal of the Council shall take place until notice shall have been given as hereinafter provided, inviting applications from qualified candidates for the same. The salary or allowance attached to the office shall in every case be fixed before such advertisement is published, and shall be stated in such advertisement.

Mode of appointment.

52. Every such appointment shall be made by ballot, in such mode as may at the time be determined upon.

Appointment of officers, &amp;c.

53. The officers of the Council shall be appointed annually; and the engagement of any officer may be determined at any time by a vote of a majority of the whole Council: Provided that one month's notice shall be given to every such officer whose services are to be dispensed with, and that any officer may resign his appointment by giving the Council one month's notice in writing of his desire and intention to do so: And provided, further, that nothing herein contained shall be taken or construed in any way to affect the powers of suspending officers, and of dismissing men for misconduct, vested in the Council by the 152nd section of the Municipalities Act of 1867, 31 Vic. No. 12.

Exceptional cases.

54. Nothing herein contained shall be held to prevent the employment, as may be from time to time found necessary, and as may be ordered by the Council, of any workmen or labourers on the public works of the municipality.

Bonds for good conduct.

55. All bonds given by officers or servants of the Council for the faithful performance of their duties, shall be deposited with the attorney or bankers of the Corporation, as the Council may order.

Duties of Council Clerk.

56. The Council Clerk, in addition to the duties which by the Municipalities Act of 1867, and the Municipalities Act of 1867 Amendment Act of 1874, or by the present or any other By-laws thereunder he may be required to perform, shall be the Clerk of all Revision Courts held in the Municipality under the provisions of the said Municipalities Acts. He shall also, under the directions of the Mayor, conduct all correspondence which may be necessary on the part of the Council. He shall likewise have charge of all the records of such Council, except such books or documents as may be entrusted to any other officer, and shall be responsible for the safe keeping of such records. He shall generally assist the Mayor in carrying out the orders of the Council and the duties of the Mayor, and shall make a half-yearly return of the revenue and expenditure.

Levying rates, &amp;c.

Due date for rates.—Defaulters.

57. The rates and taxes levied by the Council shall be held to be due and payable on such day or days as the Council shall by resolution from time to time appoint. Every person not paying his or her rates or taxes at the office of the Council, or to the Council Clerk or other proper officer of the Council, within thirty days after any of the days so appointed for payment thereof shall be deemed a defaulter: Provided that due notice of such rate shall have been given in manner as required by the Municipalities Act of 1867.

Mayor to sue defaulters.

58. It shall be the duty of the Mayor to cause such defaulters to be sued for the amount of such rates in any court of competent jurisdiction, or to issue distress warrants against all such persons, and to cause such warrants to be enforced.

Council Clerk to furnish list of defaulters.

59. It shall be the duty of the Council Clerk to furnish the Mayor and Council, or any committee, as directed, with lists of all persons so in default.

Rates on damaged premises.

60. In the event of any premises being wholly or partially destroyed by fire or other accident, the Council shall have power to accept an equitable proportion of the assessed rates of such premises for the remainder of any municipal year.

Streets, and public places, &amp;c.

New roads to be reported upon.

61. No new public road, street, way, park, or other place proposed to be dedicated to the public, shall be taken under the charge and management of the Council until after such road, street, way, or park shall have been examined by a Committee of Works, and reported upon to the Council by such committee.

Plans of proposed new roads, &amp;c., to be deposited.

62. Whenever any proprietor or proprietors of land within the said municipality shall open any road, street, or way, or lay out any park or other place for public use or recreation, through or upon such land, and shall be desirous that the Council shall undertake the care and management of such road, street, way, park, or other place, he or they shall furnish the Council with a plan or plans, signed by himself or themselves, showing clearly the position and extent of such road, street, way, park, or other place as aforesaid; and he or they shall execute any instrument dedicating such road, street, way, park, or other place, as the Council may consider necessary.

Temporary stoppage of traffic for repairs, &amp;c.

63. The Council may at any time cause the traffic of any street, lane, or thoroughfare, or any portion thereof, to be stopped for the purpose of repairing the same, or for any necessary purpose; and any person or persons offending against this By-law, either by travelling on such street, lane, or thoroughfare, or by removing or destroying any obstruction that may be placed thereon for the purpose of suspending the traffic, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of any sum not exceeding five pounds for every such offence.

No encroachment allowed on streets.

64. Whenever any road, street, lane, or thoroughfare has been marked out, no house, shop, fence, or other structure shall be allowed, except as hereinafter mentioned, to project or encroach on any part thereof; and, in order that the due alignment of the roads, streets, lanes, or thoroughfares within the said municipality shall be observed, and that no encroachment shall be made thereon, it shall not be lawful for any person, unless for any temporary or other purpose permitted by the Council, to erect or put up any building, erection, obstruction, fence, or enclosure, or make any excavation or hole on, under, or near such road, street, lane, or thoroughfare, unless due notice of the same shall have been given to the Clerk of the Council at least one week before any such building, erection, obstruction, fence, or enclosure, excavation, or hole as aforesaid shall be commenced to be erected, or put up, or made, and the assent of the Council first obtained.

And, in default of the same, the person so offending shall forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than forty shillings; and on every successive conviction for a similar offence shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than three pounds.

Obstructing public pathways.

65. If the owner or occupier of any land situate on the side of any street or road in this municipality shall permit any tree, shrub, or plant, kept for ornament or otherwise, to overhang any footpath or footway on the side of any such street or road so as to obstruct the passage thereof, and, on demand made by the Council, shall not cut, lop, or caused to be lopped, all such trees, shrubs, or plants, to the height of eight feet at the least, the said Council, by their servants, labourers, and workmen, may cut, or caused to be cut or lopped, all such overhanging trees, plants, and shrubs, and to remove or burn any portion of such trees, plants, or shrubs so cut or lopped, without being deemed a trespasser or trespassers; and in case any person or persons shall resist or in any manner forcibly oppose the said Council, or their servants, labourers, or workmen in the due execution of the powers given in this behalf by virtue of the Municipalities Act of 1867, every person so offending shall, on conviction for every such offence, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds.

Erection of awnings.

66. No person shall erect an awning in front of any house or shop without first making application to the Council, and any person so doing without authority shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds, and have such awning removed.

Encroachments must be removed on notice.

67. The Inspector of Nuisances or other such officer or person may at any time, on the order of the Council, and upon due notice of thirty days, direct the removal of any building, fence, or other obstruction or encroachment in and upon any road, street, lane, or thoroughfare under the charge of the Council. Notice shall in this case be served either personally or at the usual or last known place of abode of the person to whom such obstruction or encroaching structure belongs, or who has erected the same or caused it to be erected.

Council may remove encroachments.

68. In any case where, after service of notice for the removal of any obstruction or encroachment, the person causing the same shall not remove it within a reasonable time, it shall be lawful for the Council to direct the removal of the same under the superintendence of its own proper officer, and at the cost of the person so offending, provided that the expenses thereby incurred shall in no case exceed the sum of ten pounds, or at the Council's option to proceed against the offender for breach of By-law, the penalty not to exceed twenty-five pounds nor be less than one pound; and, in case of every successive offence, the penalty, on conviction, not to be less than five pounds.

Or may proceed by action.

69. In every case where the obstruction or encroachment cannot be removed unless at a greater cost than ten pounds, it shall be open to the Council either to direct such removal and to pay all the costs thereof above ten pounds from the funds of the Council, or to proceed by action for trespass against the person causing such obstruction or encroachment, or to proceed as for a breach of such By-laws as aforesaid.

To apply also to obstructions by digging, &c.

70. The foregoing provisions shall be equally applicable to all obstructions by digging or excavation; and any person who shall wilfully obstruct or interfere with the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer as aforesaid, or any person acting for or under him, or either of them, in the exercise of any of the duties or powers by these By-laws imposed or cast on the said Inspector or officer shall, on conviction, forfeit a penalty of not less than two pounds or more than twenty pounds.

Erection of houses, &c.

71. No person shall be permitted to erect any house, shop, or other building in any street, lane, or place in the borough without first serving notice, in writing, on the Mayor or Council Clerk, on any lawful day, between the hours of 8 o'clock a.m. and 8 o'clock p.m., stating such intention, and describing the proposed situation of the building or erection, and without having received an authority from the Mayor or Council Clerk, who will give the required level and alignment, if in a proclaimed street, on a payment of a fee of ten shillings. No person shall be at liberty to encroach beyond the building line in any street or lane, by the erection of houses, verandahs, doorsteps, fences, or other obstruction whatever.

Houses, &c., to be spouted.

72. All proprietors of houses within the municipality having a frontage to any main thoroughfare shall be bound to have the same sufficiently spouted with down pipe, to be carried under the surface of the footpath into the gutter, under a penalty of ten shillings on conviction; and, if not remedied at the expiration of seven days after such conviction, the offender shall be again liable to a like conviction and penalty also for every succeeding seven days.

Vehicles to be licensed.

73. No vehicle shall ply or be used for hire within the borough of Junee unless the same be duly licensed in the manner herein described.

Requisition to be made for license.

74. Before any license for plying a vehicle, or to drive, or to conduct the same, shall be granted, the party requiring such license shall obtain from the Council Clerk, free of charge, a requisition in the form of the Schedule hereunto annexed, marked with the letter D, or to the like effect, and duly fill up and sign the same, and deliver it to the Council Clerk; and, in the case of drivers and conductors, shall also obtain a certificate from two respectable householders, to the effect that the applicant is of good character, and competent to act as such driver or conductor, as the case may be.

Conditions under which license to be granted.

75. No license shall be granted in respect of any vehicle which—in the opinion of three Aldermen, who shall be appointed by a resolution of the Council of the said borough—is unsafe or in bad repair, or otherwise unfit for the accommodation and conveyance of passengers therein; nor until the number of such vehicle be painted thereon on a plate or plates affixed thereon outside on the panel of each door of such vehicle, or on such other place or places, and in such manner as the said three Aldermen may direct.

Licenses, and how to be issued.

76. Licenses for proprietors, drivers, and conductors of vehicles shall be in the form contained in the Schedule hereunto annexed, marked with the letter E or the like effect; and any person plying, driving, or conducting any vehicle for hire with passengers without such license, shall be deemed guilty of a breach of these By-laws.

Licenses to be under Corporate Seal.

77. Every license granted under these By-laws shall be under the common seal of the Borough Council of Junee, and signed by the Mayor and countersigned by the Council Clerk, upon production of a certificate signed by the Aldermen who shall be appointed as aforesaid, and shall be in force from the date of such license until the 31st day of December next ensuing; and no such license shall include more than one vehicle: Provided that where the licensed vehicle shall be under repair, if the proprietor shall so desire, he may be permitted to substitute another for a period to be then specified and endorsed on the license signed by the Mayor and countersigned as aforesaid.

OFFENCES, NUISANCES—GENERAL GOOD ORDER OF THE BOROUGH.

Damaging public buildings, &c.

78. Any person who shall damage any public building, wall, parapet, sluice, bridge, road, street, sewer, watercourse, or other property of the borough, shall pay the cost of repairing the same; and if the same be wilfully done, shall also forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than five pounds; provided that such cost and penalty shall not exceed in the whole the sum of fifty pounds.

Injuring or extinguishing lamps.

79. Any person who shall wantonly or maliciously break or injure any lamp or lamp-post, or extinguish any lamp set up for public convenience in the said borough, shall, over and above the necessary expense of repairing the injury committed, forfeit and pay for such offence any sum not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

Damaging trees.

80. Any person who shall wilfully and without the authority of the Council, cut, break, bark, root up, or otherwise destroy or damage the whole or any part of any tree, sapling, shrub, or underwood, growing in or upon any street or place under the management of the Council, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Throwing dead animals, &c., into any watercourse.

81. Any person who shall throw or cast any filth, rubbish, or any dead animal, or any animal, with intent to drown the same, into any watercourse, river, creek, or canal, or who shall permit or suffer slops, suds, nightsoil, sewerage matter, or any filth of any kind, to flow or be cast from his or her premises into any such watercourse, waterhole, river, creek, or canal, or who shall permit or suffer any such slops, suds, or filth to flow from his or her premises over any of the footways or streets of the borough, or shall permit, or cause by means of pipes, shoots, or channels, or other contrivances, nightsoil, sewerage matter, slops, suds, or filth of any kind whatsoever, to flow or be cast into any watercourse, waterhole, river, creek, or canal, or shall obstruct or divert from its channel any sewer or watercourse, river, creek, or canal, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound, and shall, in addition to any such forfeiture pay the cost of removing such filth or obstruction, or of restoring such watercourse or canal into its proper channel.

82. If any person shall in any street, road, lane, or public place, throw, cast, or lay, or shall cause, permit, or suffer to be thrown, cast, or laid any ashes, rubbish, offal, dung, soil, dead animal, blood, or other filth, or shall kill, slaughter, dress, scald, or cut up any beast, swine, calf, sheep, lamb, or other animal in or so near to any of the said streets or roads as that any blood or filth shall run or flow upon or over, or be on any carriage or footway, or shall run, roll, drive, draw, place, or cause, permit, or suffer to be run, rolled, driven, drawn, or placed upon any footway, any waggon, cart, dray, sledge or other carriage, or any wheelbarrow or truck, or any cask, or shall wilfully lead, drive or ride any horse or other beast upon any footway aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds or less than one pound.

Damaging or pulling up alignment marks or posts.

83. Any person pulling down or pulling up, destroying, or injuring any alignment or other boundary marks or stones, notice-boards, public notices, or other erection on any reserve, public place, or road, without the authority of the Council, shall forfeit and pay any amount not exceeding ten pounds.

Placing goods, &c., on roadway, &c

84. If any person shall set or place, or cause or permit to be set or placed, any stall, show-board, basket, or goods of any kind whatsoever, or shall hoop, place, wash, or cleanse, or cause to be hooped, placed, washed, or cleansed, any case or vessels in or upon or over any road, footway, or public place within the said borough, or shall set out, lay, or place, or shall cause or procure, permit or suffer to be set out, laid, or placed, any coach, cart, dray, barrow, truck, or other carriage upon any footway; or if any person shall set or place, or cause to be set or placed in, upon, or over any of the said carriage or footways, any timber, stones, bricks, lime, or other materials or things for building whatsoever (unless the same shall be enclosed as hereinafter directed), or any other matters or things whatsoever, or shall hang out or expose, or shall cause or permit to be hung out or exposed, any meat or offal, or other things or matter whatsoever from any house or premises, over any part of such footways or carriage-ways, or over any area of any house or premises or any other matter or thing from and on the outside of any part of any house or premises, over or next to any such street or road, and shall not immediately remove all or any such matters or things, being thereto required by the Council or any officer thereof, and shall not continue and keep the same so removed; or if any person having in pursuance of any such requisition as aforesaid, removed, or cause to be removed, any such stalls, show-board, basket, goods, coach, cart, dray, barrow, truck, carriage, timber, stone, brick, lime, meat, offal, or other matters or things, and shall at any time thereafter again set, lay, or place, expose, or cause, procure, permit, or suffer to be set, laid, placed, or exposed, the same or any of them, or any other article or thing whatsoever (save and except as aforesaid) in, upon, or over any of the carriage or footways of or next unto any streets or roads as aforesaid,—in every such case every person so offending shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than ten shillings.

Drawing or trailing timber, &c.

85. If any person shall haul or draw, or cause to be hauled or drawn upon any part of any street, road, or public place, any timber, stone, or other thing, otherwise than upon wheel carriages, or shall suffer any timber, stone, or other thing, which shall be carried principally or in part upon wheel carriages, to drag or trail upon any part of such street or public place to the injury thereof, or to hang over any part of such carriage so as to occupy or obstruct the street or road beyond the breadth of the said carriage, every such person so offending shall forfeit and pay for every such offence the sum of forty shillings over and above the damage occasioned thereby; provided that such penalty and damages shall not together exceed the sum of ten pounds.

No turf, gravel, &c., to be removed from streets without leave, &c.

86. Any person who from any part of the road, street, thoroughfares, or public places, shall remove or cause to be removed any turf, clay, sand, soil, gravel, stone, or other material without leave first had and obtained from the officers or persons having lawful charge of such roads, streets, thoroughfares, or public places, or who shall wantonly break up or otherwise damage any part of the said roads, streets, thoroughfares or public places, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than five shillings, and for every subsequent offence shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one pound.

No driver to ride on vehicle without a person to guide his beasts (vehicles with reins excepted) or go to a distance from his vehicle, or drive on wrong side, &c.

87. If the driver of any waggon, dray, or vehicle of any kind shall ride upon the same in any street, road, or thoroughfare, not having some person on foot to guide the animals drawing the same (such vehicles as are drawn by horses driven or guided by reins only excepted), or if the driver of any vehicle whatsoever shall wilfully be at such a distance from such vehicle, or in such a situation whilst it shall be passing upon such street, road, or thoroughfare that he cannot have the direction or government of the horse or horses or cattle drawing the same, or if the driver of any waggon, cart, dray, coach, carriage, or other vehicle, shall not drive on the left or near side of any such road, street, or thoroughfare; or if any person shall in any manner wilfully prevent any other person or persons from passing him or her on any other vehicle under his or her care upon such street, road, or thoroughfare, or by negligence or misbehaviour prevent, hinder, or interrupt the free passage of any person or vehicle or carriage in or upon the same, every such driver or person so offending shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than ten shillings.

As to driving or riding improperly through streets.

88. Any person who shall ride or drive through any road, street, or public place, negligently, carelessly, or furiously, or so as to endanger the life or limb of any person, or to the common danger of the passengers, or who shall not carry a light upon any vehicle after an hour after sundown or daylight, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Affixing placards on walls and chalking thereon.

89. It shall not be lawful for any person to paste or otherwise affix any placard or other paper upon any wall, fence, house, or building, nor to deface any such wall, fence, house, or building, by chalk, paint, or in any other manner, unless with the consent of the owner thereof; any person who shall be guilty of any such offence shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings.

Cattle, &c., not to wander about streets, &c.

90. It shall not be lawful for any person to suffer any kind of cattle, horse, ass, mule, sheep, swine, or goat belonging to him or under his charge, to stray, or go about, or to be depastured in any road, street, or public place in this borough; and any person who shall so offend shall forfeit and pay, in respect of every such offence, a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

As to private avenues.

91. Any owner or occupier of any house, place, or land, within the said borough, who shall neglect to keep clean all private avenues, passages, yards, and ways within the said premises, so as by such neglect to cause a nuisance by offensive smell or otherwise, or who shall allow stagnant water to become a nuisance on his land, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings for every such offence; and upon the reasonable complaint of any householder that the house, premises, yards, closets, or drains of the neighbouring or adjoining premises are a nuisance or offensive, the Inspector of Nuisances, or any other person appointed by the Council, shall make an inspection of the premises complained of, and the officer of the Council shall have full power, without any other authority than this By-law, to go upon such premises for the aforesaid purpose.

Placing dead animals on premises.

92. Any person who shall place, or cause or suffer to be placed, upon any land or premises within the borough, any dead animal, blood, offal, night-soil, or any other offensive matter, so as to become a nuisance to the inhabitants thereof, shall, on conviction, suffer and pay a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings for such offence.

Allowing dead animals to remain on premises.

93. Any owner or occupier of land or premises who shall suffer or permit any dead animal, blood, offal, night-soil, or any other offensive matter to remain upon the said land or premises after notice shall have been given to remove the same, shall be subject to a penalty not exceeding two pounds nor less than ten shillings for every day that the same shall so remain.

Removal of night-soil.

94. It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to drive, or cause to be driven, any cart or carriage of any kind with night-soil, ammoniacal liquor, slop, urine, or channel dirt, or filth, in or upon or near to any of the said streets, roads, or other public places; and, in order to prevent nuisances, it shall not be lawful for any person to deposit night-soil, ammoniacal liquor, or other offensive matter, nearer to any street, road, or dwelling-house than shall be directed by the said Council or its officer; and all night-soil and other offensive matter shall be removed within the hours hereinafter prescribed, in properly covered and water-tight carts or other vehicles; and no vehicles used for this purpose, shall be allowed to stand on any premises nearer to any road, street, or dwelling-house than shall be directed by the said Council or its officer; and every person offending against this By-law shall for every such offence, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings.

Hours for removing night-soil, &c.

95. If any person shall take away night-soil from any house or premises within the said borough, or shall come with carts or carriages for that purpose, except within the hours of ten at night and five in the morning, or if any person or persons shall cast or permit to leak or slop out of any cart or tub, or otherwise, any night-soil in or near any of the streets or public places, he shall forfeit and pay a penalty of five pounds for every such offence; and in case the person or persons so offending cannot be found, then the owner or owners of such cart, carriage, or other vehicle employed in and about emptying and removing such night-soil, and also the employer or employers of the persons so offending, shall be liable to and forfeit any penalty as aforesaid.

Discharging firearms, &c.

96. Any person who shall discharge any firearms without lawful cause, or let off any fireworks or any other explosive matter in or near to any road or street, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than five shillings.

No rock to be blasted without notice to the Council, &c.

97. Any person who shall be desirous of blasting any rock within the distance of one hundred feet of any dwelling-house, street, road, or other public place, shall give forty-eight hours' notice to the Council or Aldermen thereof, who shall appoint a time when the same may take place, and give such other directions as they or he may deem necessary for the public safety; and if any person shall blast, or cause to be blasted, any rock within the limits aforesaid without giving such notice, or shall not conform to the directions given to him by the said Council, he shall forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than five shillings.

Cellars or openings beneath footpaths prohibited.

98. It shall not be lawful for any person to make any cellar or any opening, door, or window in or beneath the surface of the footway of any road, street, or public place within the said borough, except by permission of the Council; and if any person shall so offend, he shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds over and above the expense of remedying or removing any such cellar, opening, door, or window, such expense to be assessed and allowed by the convicting Justices: Provided that such expense and penalty shall not exceed fifty pounds.

Wells to be covered over, &c.

99. Every person who shall have a well between his dwelling-house or the appurtenances thereof and any public place, road, street, or footway within the limits of the said borough, or at the side of such public place, road, street, or footway, or in any yard or place open and exposed to such public place, road, or footway, shall cause such well to be securely and permanently closed over; and if any person having such well as aforesaid shall fail to cover and secure the same within forty-eight hours' after notice in writing shall have been given to him or her by any officer of the said Council, or shall have been left at such persons' usual or last known abode, or at the said premises, in the manner and with such materials as the Council or its officers shall direct, and to their satisfaction, such person shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five shillings every day that such well shall remain open or uncovered contrary to the provisions hereof: Provided that with respect to wells or underground tanks open at the time when this By-law shall come into operation such penalty shall not be recoverable if the same be properly covered in one month thereafter.

Various obstructions and annoyances.

100. Every person who in any street, or other place, or passage within the said borough shall commit any of the following offences, shall, on conviction, for any and every such offence forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than two pounds.

Every person who shall hoist, or cause to be hoisted, or lower, or cause to be lowered, goods of any description from any opening in any house fronting any street or public place, and close to the footway thereof, without sufficient and proper ropes and tackling.

Every person who shall carry or convey, or cause to be carried or conveyed, in any street or public place, the carcase, or any part of the carcase, of any newly slaughtered animal without a sufficient and proper cloth covering the same from the concealment from public view, or shall hawk or carry about butchers' meat for sale, without covering the same as aforesaid.

Every person who shall place any line, cord, or pole across any street, lane, or passage, or hung or place clothes thereon to the danger or annoyance of any person.

Every person who shall, within the distance of one hundred yards from any dwelling-house, burn any rags, bones, or corks, or other offensive substance (garden refuse excepted) to the annoyance of any inhabitant.

Every person who shall be the keeper of or have any dog or other animal which shall attack or endanger the life or limb of any person in any street or other public place within the said borough.

Every person or persons who shall persist in playing, in a public place, any musical instrument or instruments to the annoyance of any ratepayer who may object to it.

Water from roofs, &c.

101. Every owner or occupier of any dwelling-house, shop, or other building, who shall permit rain-water to fall from any roof, balcony, or other projection, upon any street, road, lane, or footway, or shall cause or permit any such roof or rain-water to be discharged by any pipe upon any such street, road, lane, or footway, shall, if such nuisance be not abated within seven days after notice to abate the same shall have been given by the Council, forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Drains to footpaths.

102. No surface drain shall be made in any footpath, nor any pipes laid under or across the same without the authority of the Council; and no such pipe or drain shall be used for the discharge into any street or roadway of any offensive liquid or matter of any kind whatsoever; and any person who shall so offend shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings.

Drains for discharge of surface water from land.

103. Every owner or occupier of land so situated that surface or storm-water from or upon the same shall overflow, or shall tend naturally, if not otherwise discharged, to overflow any road, lane, or footway, shall within seven days next after the service of notice by the Council abate such nuisance where possible; and in default of compliance with any such notice within the period aforesaid, such owner or occupier shall forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds.

Natural watercourses.

104. Any person who shall close or intercept any natural watercourse, by building or otherwise, shall provide another outlet for the surface water with pipes or sewers of a size and in a manner to be approved of by the Council, and any person failing to comply with the provisions of this By-law shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than one pound.

Cleansing butchers' shambles, slaughter-houses, &c.

105. For preserving the cleanliness of the said borough and the health of the inhabitants thereof, it shall be lawful for the Inspector of Nuisances, or for any other officer or officers appointed by the Council, from time to time, and when and as often as he or either of them shall see occasion, to visit and inspect the butchers' shambles, slaughter-houses, boiling-down establishments, tanneries, fellmongering establishments, and manufactories in the said borough, and to give such directions concerning the cleansing of the said shambles, slaughter-houses, tanneries, and establishments and manufactories, both within and without, as to him shall seem needful; and any butcher, or the owner or occupier of any such shamble, slaughter-house, tannery establishment, or manufactory, who shall refuse or neglect to comply with such directions within a reasonable time shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than ten shillings.

Houses of ill-fame.

106. Upon representation of any respectable ratepayer that any house or premises within the borough, and near to the residence of such ratepayer, is of ill-fame, it shall be lawful for the By-law Committee to cause the residents of such house or premises to furnish to the Council a list of names, ages, sexes, and occupation of all the inmates of the said house or premises; and, upon non-compliance with such request, or if, upon consideration, the said committee consider the house to be one of ill-fame, they shall, with the sanction of the Council, declare the same to be a nuisance, and shall cause a notice in writing to be served upon the holder of such house or premises, or any person resident or being therein, to discontinue or abate the said nuisance within forty-eight hours after the receipt of such notice; and if such nuisance be not so abated, the holder of such house or premises, or other person residing or being therein and acting as such holder, shall be liable to be proceeded against for such nuisance, and shall, on conviction thereof, forfeit and pay any sum not less than two pounds nor more than twenty pounds; and if such nuisance be not abated within forty-eight hours after such conviction, such holder of such house, or such other person residing or being therein as aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay for every such second offence a sum not less than five pounds nor more than fifty pounds; and if a further period of forty-eight hours shall elapse after such second conviction without the abatement of such nuisance, such holder of such house, or other person residing or being therein as aforesaid, shall for such third offence forfeit and pay any sum not less than ten pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Preventing and extinguishing fires.

Fire or combustible material, &c.

107. Every person who shall place or knowingly permit to be placed in any house, yard, workshop, out offices, or other premises, fire, gunpowder, or other combustible or inflammable article of any kind in such a manner as to endanger contiguous buildings (except with the consent of the owners and occupiers thereof), shall, on conviction of every such offence, forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds nor less than one pound, and shall forthwith remove such fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable article; and every such person who will suffer any such fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable article to remain as aforesaid for forty-eight hours after any such conviction, shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Water Supply.

Polluting water, reservoirs, &c.

108. Whoever shall bathe in any stream, reservoir, conduit, aqueduct, or other waterworks belonging to or under the management of the Council, or shall wash, cleanse, throw, or cause to enter therein any animal, whether alive or dead, or any rubbish, filth, or thing of any kind whatsoever, or shall cause or permit or suffer to run or to be brought therein, the water of any sink, sewer, drain, engine, or boiler, or other filthy, unwholesome, or improper liquid, or shall wash any clothes at any public fountain or pump, or in any such stream, conduit, or other waterworks as aforesaid, or shall do anything whatsoever whereby any water or waterworks belonging to the said Council, or under their management or control, shall be fouled, obstructed, or damaged, shall for the first offence forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds; for a second offence any sum not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds; for a third and every subsequent offence, any sum not less than five pounds nor more than twenty pounds.

Damming up water without consent.

109. Whoever shall, without the consent in writing of the Council, construct or place any dam or embankment in or across any river, creek, or natural watercourse, shall forfeit and pay any sum not less than one pound nor more than twenty pounds, and shall remove such dam or embankment within a reasonable time after such conviction, or shall forfeit and pay any sum not less than five pounds nor more than fifty pounds; and if within a reasonable time after a third or any further conviction he shall fail to remove any such dam or embankment, he shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum of fifty pounds.

Supply of water in time of drought.

110. In time of drought or scarcity of water, the Council may, by resolution to that effect, cause water to be supplied to the inhabitants of this borough by water carts or otherwise, and shall, by such resolution as aforesaid, fix a price to be charged for water so supplied.

Licensed water-carts.

111. Every owner and driver of a licensed water-cart, shall keep such cart loaded with water during all times after sunset and before sunrise, and shall, if any building, premises, or other property be on fire within the municipality, attend at the place of such fire with such cart loaded with water, and shall continue to cart water by full loads to such place, and shall deliver such water in such manner as shall be required by the Mayor, or by any Alderman, or officer or person duly authorised by the Council in that behalf, and then present, for extinguishing such fire. And every such owner or driver who shall, without reasonable excuse, fail to comply with the provisions of this section, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds.

112. There shall be paid out of the funds of the municipality to the owner of every licensed water-cart who shall have attended with water at the place of any such fire, as herein provided, and delivered the same as required, such reasonable compensation as the Council shall have appointed in that behalf, and also to such owner of such cart as shall have first in order attended with loads of water at the place of such fire, such further sum by way of reward as the Council may have determined.

113. The Council shall from time to time license to ply within the municipality such carts for the carrying and sale of water as shall upon inspection be found fit for that purpose. Every such cart or vessel contained therein for the holding of water for sale shall be capable of containing not less than fifty gallons, and shall have the name of the owner, and the words "licensed water-cart" painted on such cart in legible letters.

114. Every such license shall be issued on the written application of the owner thereof, in which application shall be set forth the name and surname and place of abode of the applicant; and for every such license there shall be paid to the Council the sum of two shillings and sixpence; and every such license shall be in force until the 31st December next ensuing, after the granting of said license.

115. Any person hawking or carrying water for sale or hire, otherwise than in a licensed water-cart as aforesaid, shall, upon conviction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding one pound.

Motions for rescission of previous orders, &c.

116. Whenever a motion for the rescission of any order, resolution, or vote of the Council shall have been negatived, no other motion to the same effect shall be permissible until a period of three months shall have elapsed from the time of negativing such first-mentioned motion: Provided that nothing herein contained shall be held to prohibit the reconsideration and amendment of any proposed By-law which may have been submitted to the Governor for confirmation, and may have been remitted to the Council with suggested amendments of the same, or the passage, after due notice, as hereinbefore provided, and in due course of law of any By-law for the repeal and amendment of any other By-law.

Mode of proceeding in cases not provided for.

117. In all cases not herein provided for, resort shall be had to the rules, forms, and usages of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, so far as the same are applicable to the proceedings of the Council.

PART II.

Collection and Enforcement of Rates.

Rates under section 164 of the 31st Victoria No. 12, to be collected half-yearly.—Times and modes of collection.

1. All rates levied or imposed by the Council under the provisions of section 164 of the Municipalities Act of 1867, and for the purpose mentioned in the said section, shall be collected by half-yearly instalments. Each such instalment shall, as to every such rate and every such instalment thereof, be held to be due and payable on and after such day as the Council shall by resolution appoint at the time of making or imposing such rate.

Special rates.

2. All rates levied or imposed by the Council under sections 165, 166, and 167 of the Municipalities Act of 1867, and for the purposes mentioned in the sections, or under the provisions of any of the said sections, or for any of the purposes mentioned therein, shall be collected in such manner, and shall be held to be due and payable on and after such day or days as the Council may by resolution at the time of making or imposing of such rates, or any of them, have appointed.

Office hours.

3. All rates shall be paid at the Council Chambers during the hours appointed by the Council for that purpose.

Defaulters.

4. It shall be the duty of the Council Clerk to furnish the Mayor with a list of the names of all persons whose rates are unpaid at the expiration of the time fixed for the payment of the same as aforesaid.

Mayor to enforce payment.

5. It shall be the duty of the Mayor to issue distress warrants against all such persons, and to cause such warrants to be enforced, or to cause such defaulters to be sued for the amount of such rates in a Court of Petty Sessions for small debts or District Court.

Bailiff.

6. A Bailiff shall, when found necessary, be appointed by the Mayor.

Bailiff's sureties.

7. The Bailiff shall find two sureties, to the satisfaction of the Mayor, to the extent of twenty-five pounds each, for the faithful performance of his duty.

Duty of Bailiff.

8. It shall be the duty of the Bailiff to make all levies by distress for the recovery of rates, in the manner hereinafter provided.

Warrant of Distress.

9. All levies and distresses shall be made under warrant in the form of schedule A hereto, under the hand of the Mayor or any Alderman who may for the time being be duly authorised to perform the duties of that office.

Distress and sale, &c.

10. If the sum for which any such distress shall have been made shall not be paid, with costs as hereinafter provided, on or before the expiration of five days, the Bailiff shall sell the goods as distraint, or a sufficient portion thereof, by public auction, either on the premises or at such other place within the said borough as the Bailiff may think proper to remove them to for such purpose; and shall pay over the surplus (if any) that may remain, after deducting the amount of the sum distrained for and costs, as hereinafter provided, to the owner of the goods so sold, on demand of such surplus by such owner.

Inventory.

11. At the time of making a distress the Bailiff shall make out a written inventory in the form of schedule B hereto, which inventory shall be delivered to the occupant of the land or premises, or the owner of the goods so distrained, or to some person on his or her behalf residing at the place where the distress shall be made; and, in case there shall be no person at such place with whom such inventory can be left as aforesaid, then such inventory shall be posted on some conspicuous part of the land or premises on which the distress is made; and the Bailiff shall give a copy of the inventory to the ratepayer on demand at any time within one month after such distress.

Goods may be impounded.

12. The Bailiff, on making distress as aforesaid, may impound or secure the goods or chattels so distrained, of what nature or kind soever, in such place or places, or in such part of the land or premises chargeable with rates, as shall be most fit and convenient for this purpose; and it shall be lawful for any person whomsoever, after the expiration of the five days, as hereinbefore mentioned, to come and go to and from such place or part of the said land or premises where such goods or chattels shall be impounded and secured as aforesaid, in order to view and buy and in order to carry off and remove the same on account of the purchaser thereof.

Owner to direct order of sale.

13. The owner of any goods or chattels so distrained upon may, at his or her option, direct and specify the order in which they shall be successively sold, and the said goods or chattels, shall in such case, be put up for sale according to such directions.

Proceeds of distress.

14. The Bailiff shall hand over to the Council Clerk all proceeds of every distress within forty-eight hours after having received the same.

Costs.

15. There shall be payable to the Bailiff, for the use of the Council, for every levy and distress made under this By-law, the cost and charges of the schedule hereunto annexed marked C.

Deputy.

16. The Bailiff may, with the sanction in writing of the Mayor, or, in his absence, with the sanction of any two Aldermen of the municipality, authorise, by writing under his hand, any person to act temporarily as his deputy; and the person so authorised shall have the exercise of all the powers of the Bailiff himself, but the Bailiff and his sureties shall in every case be responsible for the acts of such deputy.

SCHEDULE A.

MUNICIPALITIES.

(BOROUGH OF GOSFORD—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 158.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 22nd June, 1887.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of Gosford, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

THE following By-laws made by the Council of the Municipality of Gosford, for regulating their own proceedings and the duties of the officers and servants of the Council—for the collection and enforcement of rates—in relation to roads and streets and encroachments thereon, and to offences and nuisances—and for the general good rule and government of the Municipality.

Adopted by the By-laws Committee, this twelfth day of April, 1887.

BY-LAWS OF THE MUNICIPALITY OF GOSFORD.

PART I.

PROCEEDINGS of the Council and Committees—Preservation of order at Council Meetings—Duties of officers and servants, &c.

Meetings of the Council.

Ordinary meetings.

1. The Council shall meet for the despatch of business at the hour of 8 o'clock p.m. on every second Wednesday in each month, unless such day shall happen to be a public holiday. In the latter case the meeting shall be held on the following evening at the hour above named.

Election of Chairman in absence of Mayor—Adjournment for want of a quorum.

2. If at any meeting of the Council the Mayor be absent at the expiration of fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding such meeting the Aldermen then present shall proceed to elect from among themselves a Chairman for such meeting. Whenever there shall be an adjournment of any meeting for want of a quorum the names of the members present shall be recorded in the minute book.

Order of Business.

Business of ordinary meetings.

1. The minutes of the last preceding meeting to be read, corrected if erroneous, and verified by the signature of the Mayor, or other Chairman. No discussion to be permitted on such minutes, except as to whether they are correct.

2. Petitions (if any) to be presented and dealt with.
3. Correspondence to be read, and, if necessary, dealt with.
4. Reports from Committees, and minutes from the Mayor, to be dealt with.
5. Questions as to any matters under the jurisdiction or within the official cognizance of the Council to be put and replied to; and statements as to any facts, matters, or circumstances requiring attention by the Council or any of its Committees or officers to be made.
6. Motions of which notice has been given to be dealt with in the order in which they stand on the business paper.
7. Orders of the day to be disposed of as they stand on the business paper. Provided that it shall be competent to the Council at any time, by resolution, without notice, to entertain any particular motion, or to deal with any particular matter of business, out of its regular order on the business paper, without any formal suspension of this section; also, and in like manner, to direct that any particular motion or matter of business shall have precedence at any future meeting.
3. All motions shall be made and petitions presented by Aldermen in their places, and every Alderman shall stand when speaking and addressing the Chair.
4. The order of the day shall include all business of which no notice has been given, and all matters arising out of former meetings of the Council.
5. Any motion entered on the notice paper, and the Alderman having given notice of the same being absent, and no other Alderman having been deputed to bring forward such motion when the business is called on, shall be struck out of the paper.

6. Any number of amendments may be proposed on a motion before the Council, and when more than one amendment is moved the question shall first be put on the last amendment, and then on the next preceding, and so on, in the reverse order in which they were moved; except when such motion or amendment shall relate to the acceptance of tenders, the fixing of salaries, or other matters of finance, in which case the lowest sum shall be put first, then the next lowest, and so on to the highest.

Petitions.

7. All petitions shall be received as the petitions of the persons signing the same only; and it shall be incumbent on any Alderman presenting a petition to acquaint himself with the language thereof, and to report to the Council that he considers it unobjectionable.

Petitions and correspondence may be dealt with without previous notice.

8. The Council may at any meeting resolve, without previous notice, that any petition be received, and that the same or any correspondence read be referred to a Committee.

Mayor to preserve order.

9. The Mayor shall preserve order, and may at any time call to order any Alderman who may appear to him to be out of order.

Calls to order.

10. Any Alderman may at any time call the attention of the Mayor to any Alderman being out of order, or to any other point of order.

Mayor's decision on points of order final.

11. Every point of order shall be taken into consideration immediately on its arising, and the decision of the Mayor thereon shall be conclusive.

Mayor may take part in proceedings.

12. The Mayor may take part in all the proceedings of the Council.

Questions put by Mayor.

13. The Mayor shall put all questions, first in the affirmative and then in the negative, and may do so as often as may be necessary to enable him to determine the sense of the Council thereon, and thereupon he shall declare his decision, which shall be final.

Mayor to decide as to pre-audience of Aldermen.

14. If two or more Aldermen rise to speak at the same time the Mayor shall decide which of them shall be entitled to pre-audience.

No Alderman to speak twice on same question or amendment except in Committee.

15. No Alderman shall speak twice on the same question, unless in Committee, or in explanation when he shall have been misrepresented or misunderstood: Provided that any Alderman, although having previously spoken, may speak once on every amendment, and that the mover of every question shall always have the right of final reply.

No Alderman to make personal reflections.

16. No Alderman shall digress from the matter under discussion, or make personal reflections on, or impute motives to, any other Alderman.

No Alderman to speak for more than fifteen minutes.

17. No Alderman shall speak upon any motion or amendment for a longer period than fifteen minutes, without the consent of the Council.

Aldermen using offensive expressions to apologize.

18. When any Alderman shall make use of any language or expression offensive, or capable of being applied offensively, to any other Alderman, the Alderman offending shall be required by the Mayor, or if in Committee by the Chairman, to withdraw such language or expression, and to make an apology satisfactory to the Council.

Debate may be adjourned

19. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the same day or to another day.

Alderman adjourning debate entitled to precedence on resumption.

20. The Alderman upon whose motion any debate shall be adjourned shall be entitled to precedence on resumption of the debate.

Divisions to be entered on minutes.

21. All divisions of the Council shall be entered on the minutes of the proceedings.

Questions to be read when required.

22. Any Alderman may require the question or matter under discussion to be read for his information, and upon such request the question or matter aforesaid shall be read.

Any Alderman may divide the Council, &c.

23. It shall be competent for any Alderman to divide the Council on any question, both in full Council and in Committee of the whole Council. And in all divisions every Alderman present shall be compelled to vote.

Motions must be seconded

24. No notice shall be taken by the Mayor of any motion unless it be seconded.

Motions to be in writing, and not withdrawn without leave.

25. The Council Clerk shall put every motion into writing, which shall be signed by the mover; and every motion when seconded and read by the Clerk shall be considered the property of the Council, and shall not be withdrawn without leave of the Council.

Council Clerk to give notice of Committee meetings.

26. The Council Clerk shall give notice of the intended meetings of any Committee to the members thereof whenever requested so to do by the Chairman of such Committee.

Report of Committee to be signed by Chairman.

27. Every report of a Committee shall be signed by the Chairman thereof.

Proceedings.

By-laws may be suspended on emergency.

28. Any of these By-laws relating to or affecting proceedings at meetings of the Council may be suspended pro tem in cases of emergency, if all the members of the Council then present shall deem such suspension necessary.

Treasurer's accounts to be laid before Council.

29. The Treasurer's accounts shall be laid before the Council once in each month, or oftener if required by the Council.

Protection of Funds and Records.

Officer of Council may not be surety.

30. In cases where security is required by the Municipalities Act, it shall not be competent for the Council to accept as surety any of its members, nor any person holding office under the Council.

Expense of proposed works to be first ascertained.—Accounts to be examined by Finance Committee.

31. No work affecting the funds of the Municipality shall be undertaken until the probable expense thereof shall have been previously ascertained by the Council; and all accounts to be paid by the Council shall be examined by a Finance Committee and reported on by them before any warrant shall be issued for the payment thereof.

Records, &c., to be kept private.

32. Excepting as otherwise provided by law, if any person, being a member or officer of the said Council, shall, without permission of the Council first had and obtained, show, lay open, or expose any of the books, papers, or records, he shall on conviction thereof forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than five shillings nor more than forty shillings, and on every subsequent conviction a penalty of not less than twenty shillings.

Custody of records, seal, &c.

33. The common seal and all charters, deeds, muniments, papers, and records of the Council shall be kept in the Council Chambers or office of the Council, in the custody of the Council Clerk, unless the Council shall otherwise order for any purpose. And the common seal shall not be used except at a meeting of the Council and with the signatures of the Mayor and Council Clerk.

Records, &c., not to be defaced or altered.

34. Any person, being a member or officer of the said Council, who shall deface, alter, or destroy, or attempt to deface, alter, or destroy, any such common seal, charter, deed, muniment, paper, or record, shall on conviction thereof forfeit and pay for the first offence a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than five pounds, and upon every subsequent conviction a penalty of not less than ten pounds.

Nor removed.

35. Any person, being a member or officer of the said Council, who removes or attempts to remove any such seal, charter, deed, muniment, paper, or record from the Council Chambers, without leave from the Council first had and obtained, shall on conviction thereof forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than twenty pounds, nor less than two pounds, and for every subsequent offence a penalty of not less than two pounds.

Due dates for Rates—Defaulters.

36. The rates and taxes levied by the Council shall be held to be due and payable on such day or days as the Council shall by resolution from time to time appoint. Every person not paying his or her rates and taxes at the office of the Council within thirty days after any of the days so appointed for payment thereof shall be deemed a defaulter, provided that due notice of such rate shall have been given in manner as required by the Municipalities Act of 1867.

Council Clerk to furnish list of defaulters.

37. It shall be the duty of the Council Clerk to furnish the Mayor and Council, or any Committee, as directed, with lists of all persons so in default.

Mayor to issue distress warrants.

38. It shall be the duty of the Mayor to issue and direct the enforcement of distress warrants against the goods, chattels, and effects of all such defaulters, as by resolution of Council from time to time directed.

How distress to be made.

39. All levies and distresses shall be made under warrant signed by the Mayor, and all proceedings under or in respect of such distresses and warrants, and the sale of goods levied upon by virtue thereof, shall be the same as in distresses for rent under a lease or demise.

No encroachment allowed on streets, &c.

40. Whenever any road, street, lane, or thoroughfare has been marked out no house, shop, fence, or other structure shall be allowed, except as hereinafter mentioned, to project or encroach on any part thereof; and in order that the due alignment of the roads, streets, lanes, or other thoroughfares within the said Municipality shall be observed, and that no encroachment shall be made thereon, it shall not be lawful for any person, unless for any temporary or other purpose permitted by the Council, to erect or put up any building erection, obstruction, fence, or enclosure, or make any excavation or hole, on, under, or near such road, street, lane, or thoroughfare, unless due notice of the same shall have been given to the Council of the Municipality at least three weeks before any such building, erection, obstruction, fence, or enclosure, excavation, or hole, as aforesaid, shall be commenced to be erected, or put up, or made, and the assent of the Council first obtained in writing. And in default of the same the person so offending shall forfeit and pay a penalty of a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds for every such offence, and on every successive conviction for a similar offence shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than three pounds.

Footways may be levelled.

41. When any footway shall have been marked out the surveyor or other such person as the Council may direct, may cause the same to be levelled, and made as nearly as practicable of equal height and breadth and with an equal slope and inclination, and for this purpose may remove any flagging steps or other matter, thing, or obstruction that may injure or obstruct the said footway, or render it unequal or inconvenient, and which now is or may hereafter be erected or placed on the space marked out for any of the said footways.

Encroachments must be removed on notice.

42. The surveyor or other such officer or person may at any time, or on the order of the Council, and upon due notice of thirty days, direct the removal of any buildings, fence, or other obstruction or encroachment in and upon any road, street, lane, or thoroughfare under the charge of the Council. Notice shall in this case be served either personally or at the usual or last known place of abode of the person to whom such obstruction or encroaching structure belongs, or who has erected the same or caused it to be erected.

43. In any case where, after service of notice for the removal of any obstruction or encroachment as aforesaid, the person causing the same shall not remove it within a reasonable time, it shall be lawful for the Council to direct the removal of the same under the superintendence of its own proper officer, and at the cost of the person so offending, provided that the expenses thereby incurred shall in no case exceed the sum of ten pounds, or at the Council's option to proceed against the offender for breach of By-law, the penalty not to exceed twenty-five pounds nor be less than one pound; and in every case of successive offence the penalty on conviction not to be less than five pounds.

Or may proceed by action.

44. In every case where the obstruction or encroachment cannot be removed unless at a greater cost than ten pounds, it shall be open to the Council either to direct such removal and to pay all the costs thereof above ten pounds from the funds of the Council, or to proceed by action of trespass against the person causing such obstruction or encroachment, or to proceed as for breach of such By-laws as aforesaid.

To apply also to obstructions by digging, &c.

45. The foregoing provisions shall be equally applicable to all obstructions by digging or excavation, and any person who shall wilfully obstruct or interfere with the Surveyor or other officer as aforesaid, or any person acting for or under him, or either of them, in the exercise of any of the duties or powers by these By-laws imposed or cast on the said Surveyor or officer, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than twenty pounds.

Offences, nuisances.—General good order of Municipality, &c.

46. No person shall be at liberty to enter upon any road, street, or lane within the Municipality, for the purpose of opening any drain or sewer, or to remove any stone, sand, gravel, or turf, or to cut down trees thereon, without leave being first obtained from the Council or their proper officer; and any person who shall offend against this By-law shall pay a sum not exceeding five pounds.

47. Any person who shall ride any horse, or shall drive any horse or other animal harnessed to any carriage, cart, dray, gig, omnibus, or any vehicle, furiously on any road or street or lane within the Municipality, so as to create alarm, or so as to endanger the safety of any person or any property in any public thoroughfare, shall for every such offence pay a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

As to damaging public buildings, &c.

48. Any person who shall damage any public building, wall, parapet, sluice, bridge, road, street, sewer, water-course, or other property of the Municipality, shall pay the cost of repairing the same, and if the same be wilfully done shall also forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than five pounds. Provided that such cost and penalty shall not exceed in the whole the sum of fifty pounds.

Dead animals, &c., not to be thrown into any public water-course, &c.

49. Any person who shall cast any filth, rubbish, or any dead animal, or any animal with intent of drowning, into any public water-course, sewer, waterhole, river, creek, road, street, lane, or pathway, or who shall suffer filth of any kind to flow from his or her premises into any such waterhole, water-course, river, creek, or canal, or shall permit or suffer any filth to flow from his or her premises over any of the footways or streets of the Municipality, or shall permit or cause, by means of pipes, shoots, channels, or other contrivances, filth of any kind whatsoever, to flow into any public water-course, waterhole, river, creek, or canal, or shall obstruct or divert from its channel any sewer or water-course, river, creek, or canal, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds.

Bathing prohibited within certain limits.

50. It shall not be lawful for any person to bathe within the said Municipality in any waters exposed to view from any road, street, or dwelling-house, in or near to the said Municipality between the hours of six in the morning and eight in the evening; and any person who shall offend against this By-law shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding twenty shillings; and it shall be lawful for any Constable to arrest any person who shall be found bathing contrary to the provisions hereof, and to convey such person before any Justice of the Peace to be dealt with according to law.

Nuisance from closets, &c.

51. Upon representation by any respectable householder that the closets, drains, ashpits, grounds, or hog-sties of the neighbouring or adjoining premises are a nuisance or offensive, the Inspector of Nuisances, or any other person appointed by the Council, shall make an inspection of the premises complained of, and the officer of the Council shall have full power, without any other authority than this By-law, to go upon such premises for the aforesaid purpose; and if any such premises shall be found a nuisance or otherwise offensive notice in writing shall be given to the proprietor or resident of such premises that if, within forty-eight hours after the service of such notice, the nuisance shall not be removed the proprietor, tenant, or occupant of the aforesaid premises shall upon conviction before any two Justices of the Peace be liable to any penalty not exceeding twenty pounds.

Riding or driving furiously, &c.

52. Any person who shall ride or drive through or upon any street or public place within the said Municipality so negligently, carelessly, or furiously that the safety of any person shall or may be endangered, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds.

Expenditure.

Except in emergent matters cost of all work to be estimated before undertaken.

53. With the exception of emergent matters hereinafter provided for, no work effecting the funds of the Borough shall be undertaken until the probable expense thereof shall have been first ascertained by the Council.

Emergent matters and necessary current expenses.—Expenses authorized to be reported.—Outlay to be in accordance with orders of the Council.

54. For emergent matters and for necessary current expenses during the intervals which may elapse between the meetings of the Council outlays to the following extent may be incurred.

1. By order of the Committee for Works, or of the Mayor and one member of the Committee, for repairs or emergent works, to the extent of five pounds.
2. By order of the Mayor for necessary current expenses to the extent of two pounds.
3. By order of the Mayor and any two Aldermen, or without the Mayor, of any four Aldermen, for any emergent purpose, to the extent of five pounds.

Provided that in every case a detailed report in writing of every such outlay shall be laid before the Council at its next meeting, such report to be signed by the Chairman of the Committee of Works, or the Mayor or the Mayor and Alderman, or the Alderman without the Mayor, as the case may be, by whom such outlay shall have been authorized—also, that such outlay shall only be permissible in reference to matters coming strictly within the jurisdiction or functions of the Council, and that no outlay involving a disobedience or evasion of any order or resolution of such Council shall on any pretence be thus authorized.

Houses of ill-fame.

55. Upon the representation of any respectable ratepayer that any house or premises within the Municipality, and near to the residence of such ratepayer, is of ill-fame, it shall be lawful for the By-law Committee to cause the residents of such house or premises to furnish to the Council a list of the names, ages, sexes, and occupations of all the inmates of the said house or premises; and upon non-compliance with such request, or if upon consideration the said Committee consider the house to be one of ill-fame, they shall, with the sanction of the Council, declare the same to be a nuisance, and shall cause a notice in writing to be served upon the holder of such house or premises, or any person resident or being therein, to discontinue or abate the said nuisance within forty-eight hours after the receipt of such notice; and if such nuisance be not so abated the holder of such house or premises, or any person resident or being therein and acting as such holder, shall be liable to be proceeded against for such nuisance, and shall on conviction thereof forfeit and pay any sum not less than two pounds nor more than twenty pounds: And if such nuisance shall not be abated within forty-eight hours after such conviction such holder of such house, or such other person residing or being therein as aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay for such second offence a sum of not less than five pounds nor more than fifty pounds; and if a further period of forty-eight hours shall elapse after such second conviction without the abatement of such nuisance, such holder of such house, or other person residing or being therein as aforesaid, shall for such third offence forfeit and pay any sum not less than ten pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Excavations to be protected by fence or wall.

56. It shall not be lawful for any person to make any quarry, excavation, or opening in the ground, on any premises within six feet of any public road or footpath within the limits of the Municipality until the owner or occupier of the said property shall have erected a good substantial fence or wall at least four feet high around such parts of the said property as adjoin such public road or footpath; and any person neglecting or refusing to enclose any premises upon which any such quarry or excavation shall be made shall forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings; and all existing quarries or excavations situated within the limits of this Municipality shall be enclosed and protected in the manner aforesaid within one month after due notice to that effect shall have been given by the Municipal Council; and in the event of the failure or neglect of the owner or occupier of any such last-mentioned premises to enclose the same after notice as aforesaid such person so offending shall be subject to the penalty aforesaid.

Works and Contracts for same.

57. Tenders shall be called for all works undertaken by the Council, upon such terms and subject to such conditions as to the Council may seem expedient; and no tender shall be entertained unless it be accompanied by an agreement signed by two or more responsible parties agreeing to become sureties for the due fulfilment of the contract if tender be accepted: Provided that this law shall not apply to any labourers employed by authority of the Council. Contractors shall with sufficient sureties give bonds to the Council for the due performance of their contracts in such sum as the Council shall fix.

Finally passed by the Council, this thirteenth day of April, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

NUISANCES PREVENTION ACT, 1875.

(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF WICKHAM—AMENDED BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 18.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 21st February, 1887.

The following Amended By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Wickham for carrying into effect the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

BY-LAWS UNDER THE "NUISANCES PREVENTION ACT, 1875."

THE Council of the Municipal District of Wickham, do, by virtue of the authority vested in them by the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," hereby make and establish the following By-laws for the regulation of Nuisances within the said Municipality, and generally for carrying into effect the purposes and provisions of the said Act, and declare that the same shall stand in the place and instead of the By-laws hereto in force, which By-laws heretofore made are hereby repealed.

By-laws of the Council of the Municipal District of Wickham made under and for carrying into effect the several provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875."

To regulate the construction, cleaning, situation, and keeping of privies, cesspools, cesspits, earth and ash closets.

1. Every dwelling-house, factory, workshop, or establishment within the boundaries of the Municipal District of Wickham, where one or more persons reside or are employed in or at any occupation thereat, must have provided by the owner or occupier of such premises when directed by the Inspector of Nuisances, or other appointed officer, one or more cesspits for the reception of night-soil, constructed in manner hereafter described, together with an approved class of wooden or brick buildings or superstructure erected over the said cesspit or cesspits, together with sufficient trap-door appliances at the rear or inside of each building, cesspit sufficient to admit of the introduction of dry ashes, earth, or lime, upon the contents of each cesspit, and also for admitting of the removal of the contents of each cesspit, when within an average fulness equal to within six inches of the top of any such cesspit.

Notice of building closets to be given to the Council Clerk.

2. Every person about to erect a closet or form a cesspit, shall, before he shall commence any such work, give to the Inspector of Nuisances seven days' notice in writing of his intention, and of the proposed position of such closet or cesspit; and in default thereof, or in case of his commencing such work without such notice, he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ($10) ten pounds.

Position of closets.

3. No closet shall be erected or cesspit formed except in such position as shall be approved of by the Council, or by the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council: Provided that, where practicable, no cesspit shall be formed within (20) twenty feet of any dwelling-house or factory.

Cesspits and closet accommodation to be supplied.

4. A separate closet and cesspit shall be provided for every tenement within the Municipality. For houses containing not more than four rooms and out-offices, the cesspool or cesspit shall not be less than 8 feet by 5 feet by 3 feet 6 inches inside measurement in the clear. For workshops and factories the closet accommodation shall, where ten or more persons are employed, be not less than 3 feet 6 inches inside by 5 feet long by 3 feet 6 inches deep, inside measurement. Each hotel shall be provided with one or more public closets built in accordance with the foregoing dimensions, and not less than one private one of the same dimensions as stated for houses of four rooms, &c.

Closet accommodation at schools.

5. In places of business or schools at or in which a number of persons not exceeding fifty shall ordinarily frequent, reside, or be occupied or employed, one closet shall be provided, with a cesspit of a capacity of not less than 90 cubic feet, and separate closets shall be provided for each sex, and for persons in excess of the number of 50; and every owner, occupier, or tenant of any such school, factory, or other place of business who shall offend against this By-law, or fail to provide the number of closets and of the capacity mentioned in this By-law, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than twenty pounds nor less than two pounds.

6. Every cesspit within the Municipality of Wickham shall be constructed and kept so as not to be a nuisance or injurious to health, and so as there shall be no overflow, soakage, or leakage therefrom; and every cesspool within the said Municipality which shall be formed or made below the surface of the ground shall also be constructed so that the walls, sides, and bottoms thereof shall be water-tight, and shall project on all sides at least six inches above the surface of the ground in which such cesspool shall be formed or made, and shall be built of nine (9) inch brickwork set in best approved mortar, the finished or top course of brickwork to be brick set on edge in cement, in an approved manner, and must be floated over the top, insides, and bottoms with not less than half-an-inch in thickness of approved best cement, which must in all cases be mixed for cesspits with clean sharp sand, at the rate of two of sand to one of cement, for floating the interior of all cesspits.

Dimensions.

7. Every closet shall be built 7 feet 3 inches high from the floor to wall-plate of roof, and shall be constructed of timber, brick, or stone, to the dimensions shown, or plans and specifications provided by the Municipal Council of Wickham, and which said plans and specifications will be placed at the disposal of any householder, ratepayer, or authorized contractor for inspection, and for the purpose of taking copies thereof at all reasonable times during office hours.

8. No double cesspits or closets are to be erected under any circumstances; and in the case of closets required to be erected over cesspits or schools of larger capacity than Council's plans, the required closet shall be similar in construction, but of a width to correspond with the cesspits required at such places aforesaid. Persons requiring pans or boxes in their closets instead of cesspits must apply for the same to the Council in writing.

9. The owner or occupier of every house, building, or other tenement within the Municipality shall at all times cause to be kept adjacent to every privy or closet a supply of dry powdered earth, ashes, charcoal, lime, or some other material in some water-tight vessel, efficient and sufficient for deodorising the night-soil deposited therein, and shall also cause all such night-soil deposited in any box, pan, bucket, or other receptacle in such privy or closet to be immediately, on the deposit thereof, covered with a quantity of dry powdered earth or such other deodorising material as aforesaid, sufficient to thoroughly and effectually deodorise the contents of such bucket, pan, or other receptacle; and shall, at least twice in each week, keep the contents of all cesspits, boxes, &c., levelled after being blinded, and shall, after the process of levelling, again give a liberal blinding with the materials aforesaid; and shall also, in all cases when any cesspit or box approaches fulness, give to the Inspector of Nuisances an order in writing to have the said cesspits or boxes emptied and cleaned; and any person violating the provisions of this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than one pound.

Owners or occupiers of existing closets shall be compelled to alter, &c.

10. If any alteration to any existing closet or cesspit shall, in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council in that behalf, be requisite for preserving public health or decency, the Council, upon complaint of the Inspector, shall adjudge such closet or cesspit to be injurious to health or opposed to decency by exposure or otherwise. The Inspector shall give the owner or occupier notice in writing to make such alterations as may therein be stated, so that the closet or cesspit shall be brought into conformity with these By-laws. And if such owner or occupier shall not comply with the terms of such notice within twenty-one days after the same shall be served upon him or her, which service may be effected either by leaving the same with him or her personally, or upon the premises with any adult person, he or she shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds, and a like penalty for every succeeding seven days during which such owner or occupier shall fail to comply with the terms of the notice.

The Council to appoint Depôts.

11. The Council may from time to time, by regulation or regulations, appoint depôts wherein the contents of cesspools, cesspits, and other offensive matter shall be deposited, taking every precaution so that it shall not become a nuisance or injurious to health: Provided also that nothing herein contained shall prevent the said Council from making arrangements to deposit night-soil on private lands, or disposing of such by sale or otherwise, if such deposits or sales be made in accordance with the general provisions of these By-laws.

To prevent cesspits, earth-closets, &c., becoming a nuisance to neighbouring householders.

12. All privies, earth-closets, or other receptacles wherein night-soil may be deposited, shall be kept in such a state of decency and cleanliness so as not to be a nuisance or offensive to neighbouring householders or residents, under a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds.

Night-soil to be removed by contract.—Charges to be recovered, &c.

13. The contents of cesspools, cesspits, earth-closets, or other receptacles for night-soil, shall be removed by contract, in properly constructed water-tight carts; and the said Council is hereby empowered to enter into any contract or contracts with any person or persons for the performance of any or all matters connected with the removal and deposit of night-soil, and to charge such sums to any owner, or householder, or occupier for the emptying of any cesspits or boxes, &c., as the Council may from time to time decide upon: Provided that the contents of any cesspool, cesspit, privy, or closet-pan shall not be removed or discharged therefrom, except by some nightman or nightmen duly authorized or licensed as such by the aforesaid Council, and only during such hours as the Council may from time to time appoint. No cesspool, cesspit, or privy shall have connected therewith or attached thereto any pipe or other appliance capable of being used for the purpose of discharging or removing the contents of such cesspool, cesspit, or privy upon or under the surface of any adjoining ground, or into any drain or sewer, or into any other place or places whatsoever. Any person or persons wilfully violating this By-law in any respect shall be liable to and forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than twenty shillings.

Inspection of premises, &c.

14. It shall be lawful for the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer or officers for the time being duly appointed by the said Council, he or they having reasonable grounds for believing that any nuisance exists, to demand admission from the owner or occupant to enter in and upon the premises, to inspect any premises within the said Municipality, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act of 1875," and the whole of these By-laws, between the hours of 9 o'clock a.m. and 4 o'clock p.m. on any lawful working day; and any person violating the provisions of this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than two pounds.

Impeding Council or officer, &c.

15. Any person or persons in any manner wilfully obstructing the said Council or their duly appointed officers or contractors, or any or either of them, in the execution of their duty, shall be liable to a fine or penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds.

Complaint of nuisances.

16. Upon complaint or notice in writing by any householder to the said Council that any cesspool or cesspools, closets, or other receptacles wherein night-soil is deposited, any neighbouring or adjoining premises is or are a nuisance, the said Inspector of Nuisances, or any other person or persons duly appointed as aforesaid by the said Council, shall make an inspection of the premises complained of; and the said officer or officers of the said Council shall have full power, without any authority than this By-law, to enter upon such premises for the aforesaid purpose; and if any such premises shall be found to be a nuisance or otherwise offensive, notice in writing to abate such nuisance shall be given by the said officer or officers, by delivering the same to such proprietor or resident; and if within seven days after the service of such notice the said nuisance shall not be abated, in accordance with said notice, the proprietor, tenant, or occupier of the aforesaid premises shall for such neglect or default, upon conviction thereof, be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than two pounds.

Breach of By-laws.

17. Every person guilty of a breach of any of the provisions of the foregoing By-laws shall be liable for every such offence (when not otherwise expressly mentioned) to a fine or penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than five shillings.

Made and passed by the Council of the Municipal District of Wickham, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six, this 9th day of June, 1886.

NUISANCES PREVENTION ACT, 1875.

(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF CONCORD—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 18.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 10th March, 1887.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF CONCORD.—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-Laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Concord, under the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

BY-LAWS made by the Municipal Council of Concord, in accordance with the provisions of the "Nuisance Prevention Act of 1875."

1. After the expiration of three months from the date of the passing of these By-laws no person or persons shall be permitted to have on their premises any open closet or cesspit for the deposit of faecal matter, and any person or persons allowing any such closet or cesspit to remain after receiving twenty-eight days' notice to remove the same, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound, and after such conviction if not removed within a further period of fourteen days, shall upon conviction forfeit a further sum not exceeding five shillings nor more than two pounds for every day that the same shall remain unaltered or unremoved.

2. All closets shall be supplied with one or more iron pans with two side handles or one over handle, and shall be not more than fourteen inches in depth, and not more than fourteen inches in diameter, and shall be kept in good order, to the satisfaction of the Inspector of Nuisances. Breach of this By-law to carry a penalty not less than ten shillings and not more than forty shillings.

3. No person shall be permitted to cover up or cause to be covered up any existing cesspit with earth or any other material prior to giving notice to the Inspector of Nuisances, until the same shall have been properly emptied by the Council's contractor. Any person offending against this By-law shall be liable to penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

4. A separate closet shall be provided for every tenement. In schools or factories, where a number of persons shall be employed, separate closets shall be provided for each sex; with a door to fasten on the inside. When two or more closets adjoin each other, there shall be a dividing wall between each to effect a complete separation; and any persons offending against the provisions of this By-law shall incur a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds.

5. If in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances any alteration is required in existing cesspits or closets, he shall report the same to the Council, who shall determine what alteration is necessary for the preservation of health and decency; and such alteration shall forthwith be made by the owners of the premises after receiving seven days' notice to that effect, under a penalty for each week's neglect or delay in effecting such alteration not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds.

6. The night-soil shall be removed by contract in properly constructed watertight carts, between such hours as the Council may determine; and the contractor shall be held responsible for the careful conveyance of the night-soil outside the limits of the Borough under a penalty for neglect not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than five pounds.

7. The Inspector of Nuisances shall have power to visit and inspect any premises on any lawful day between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.; and any person refusing admittance or obstructing or hindering the officer in the discharge of his duty, shall incur a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

8. The Council shall from time to time fix the charges to be made for emptying and removing night-soil from closets, which shall be emptied as often as may be necessary in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances.

9. No closet shall be erected or commenced to be erected except in such place or position as shall be approved of by the Council, and any person being guilty of a breach of the By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

10. When any new building is about to be constructed, the builder or builders thereof shall first erect, or cause to be erected on the premises, a temporary closet not less than three feet by two feet six inches, for the use of the workmen employed in the construction of the new building; and any person neglecting to conform to this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

11. No person shall be permitted to connect any closet with any drain, watercourse, or sewer, without the sanction of the Council. Any person so offending shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than five pounds.

12. Persons requiring their closets emptied shall send a written notice to the Council or the Inspector of Nuisances; and no person shall be at liberty to use the refuse from dry earth closets without applying for and receiving permission in writing from the Council, and making proper provision for emptying the same to the satisfaction of the Inspector of Nuisances; and any person causing a nuisance by a breach of this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

13. Written notice must be given to the Council or the Inspector of Nuisances by all persons about to construct new or alter existing closets, to enable the Inspector to visit and report on the same, under a penalty for neglect not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound; and closets constructed without such notice being given must be removed or altered if judged necessary by the Council, under a further penalty not exceeding two pounds nor less than five shillings, for each and every day they may remain unremoved or unaltered after due notice to that effect.

Adopted at a meeting of the Concord Council, held on the twenty-first December, A.D. 1886.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

NUISANCES PREVENTION ACT, 1875.

(BOROUGH OF PARRAMATTA—AMENDED BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 18.

Colonial Secretary's Office,

Sydney, 12th March, 1887.

THE following amended By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of Parramatta, for carrying into effect the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

BY-LAWS to amend certain of the By-laws at present in force within the Borough of Parramatta, and to further provide for carrying into effect the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," within the said Borough.

1. From and after the passing of the following By-laws and the confirmation and publication thereof according to law, so much of the By-laws numbered 96 to 113 inclusive, passed by the Council of the Borough of Parramatta, on the 25th day of August, 1884, for carrying into effect the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," within the Borough of Parramatta, as is or shall be repugnant to or inconsistent with the following By-laws, or any of them, shall be and the same is hereby repealed; but in all other respects the said By-laws shall continue in full force and effect.

2. After the expiration of six calendar months from the date of the confirmation of these By-laws and the publication thereof in the New South Wales Government Gazette, no person or persons shall be permitted to excavate or construct or place any cesspit for the purpose of being used for closets or privies, or for the deposit of faecal matter, within the boundaries of the Borough of Parramatta; and all closets and privies, from and after the said date, shall be constructed and made on the dry earth system only; and the penalty for any breach of this By-law shall be not exceeding ten pounds (£10) nor less than one pound (£1).

3. Every person about to erect or place any closet within the boundaries of the said Borough shall, before commencing any such work, give to the Council Clerk seven days previous notice in writing of his intention so to do, and of the proposed position of such closet; and every person commencing any such work without having given such notice shall be liable to a penalty of not more than ten pounds (£10) nor less than one pound (£1).

4. No closet shall be erected except in such position and of such materials as shall be approved of in writing by the Council, or by the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council.

5. Every closet shall be built at least seven feet high from the floor to the wall-plate of roof, and shall not be less than three feet six inches wide and four feet six inches long, internal measurement, and shall be provided with a door capable of being fastened from the inside, and shall have ventilating holes four and a half inches wide, or a window that will open.

6. A separate closet shall be provided for every tenement; and the owner or occupier of any tenement not provided with such separate closet accommodation shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound (£1) nor more than ten pounds (£10).

7. When two or more closets adjoin each other, there shall be a brick or stone dividing wall of not less than four and a half inches in thickness, if of wood a double sheeted wall between every two closets, and each wall shall extend from below the floor through the roof of the closets, so as to effect a complete separation; and any person making or placing, or causing to be made or placed, any such adjoining closets, except as aforesaid, shall be liable to a penalty not less than one pound (£1) nor more than ten pounds (£10).

8. Until otherwise provided by the Council, all night-soil shall be removed from cesspits by the servants of, or the contractors with, the Council, in water-tight covered vehicles, between the hours of 11 o'clock in the evening and 5 o'clock in the morning.

9. Until and unless otherwise provided by the Council, night-soil shall be disposed of by burying it in the earth.

10. In case the Council shall sell or give away any night-soil, the same shall be removed in the same manner as above provided, and on being removed from the vehicle in which it is carried shall, by the person so using or removing the same, be deodorized forthwith by chemicals or in some other manner, or covered with earth, so as to prevent any offensive smell arising therefrom; and any person who shall purchase or receive any night-soil or faecal matter on to his premises, which shall afterwards cause any offensive smell or nuisance whatever, shall be liable to a penalty not less than two pounds (£2) nor more than ten pounds (£10).

11. Every earth-closet now built, or hereafter to be built or placed on any premises, shall be kept provided with a suitable galvanized iron pail of the following dimensions, namely, thirteen inches in diameter and fourteen inches in depth, such pails to be provided by the Council, and sold at cost price ; and the owners and occupiers respectively of any premises on which there shall be any closet not so provided shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound (£1) nor more than ten pounds (£10).

12. Every earth-closet, whether already built or hereafter to be built, shall be provided with a box or earth compartment, and provided, where necessary, with a scoop for each occupant to throw in stored dry earth or ashes through the seat into the galvanized iron pail ; and in case of any breach or neglect of this By-law, the owner and occupier of the premises respectively shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound (£1) nor more than ten pounds (£10).

13. The Council may recover, and the owner or occupier of any premises shall pay, such reasonable sums for the emptying of cesspits or dry earth closets as may be decided upon from time to time by resolution of the Council.

14. No owner or occupier of any premises within this Borough, or any other person, shall erect or construct upon his premises any closet otherwise than in accordance with these By-laws.

15. The place of deposit for night-soil shall be the land in the parish of the Field of Mars approved by the Governor and about to be granted for that special purpose, or such other land as may be from time to time determined upon by the Council ; and no night-soil shall be deposited in any other locality, except as allowed by the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," or these By-laws.

16. No person shall empty, or aid or assist in emptying, whether entirely or only partially, any cesspit or dry earth closet within the said Borough without the authority in writing of the Council or of the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council.

17. The occupier or owner of any premises containing any cesspit or dry earth closet requiring to be emptied shall forthwith send written notice thereof to the Council Clerk or the Inspector of Nuisances, or failing so to do shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound (£1) nor more than ten pounds (£10).

18. The Inspector of Nuisances shall furnish the Council with a monthly return showing the number of cesspits emptied and earth-closets attended to, the amount due and payable for each cesspit and earth-closet attended upon, and the amount of arrears due for emptying cesspits and attending on earth-closets. He shall also collect the amounts so due and payable, and account for same to the Council at least once in seven days, or oftener, if required to do so by the Mayor for the time being.

19. The time which, under and by virtue of the 15th section of the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," any owner or occupier of any premises shall be allowed in order to fill up, remove, alter, or otherwise deal with any gutter, drain, closet, cesspit, or well, or perform or carry out any other work which, under the authority of the said Act, he may lawfully be required to do, shall be three days from the expiration of the notice by the said section directed to be given him requiring performance of such work.

20. All words occurring in these By-laws, and which also occur in the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," shall have the like meaning assigned to them as are provided in the 4th section of the same Act.

21. The Inspector of Nuisances, or any other officer duly appointed by the Council, shall be the person to see the foregoing By-laws carried into effect, and to institute and prosecute all legal proceedings thereunder.

22. Any person offending against the provisions of any of the foregoing By-laws by any act of omission or commission shall upon conviction thereof, where no other punishment is specially provided, be liable to forfeit and pay a sum not more than ten pounds (£10) nor less than one pound (£1) ; and all fines, penalties, and forfeitures under the said By-laws shall be recovered in a summary way before any two or more Justices.

All the foregoing By-laws were passed by the Municipal Council of the Borough of Parramatta, at a meeting held on Wednesday, the 1st day of December, 1886.

(BOROUGH OF ORANGE—ADDITIONAL BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 18.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 12th March, 1887.

BOROUGH OF ORANGE—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of Orange, under the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

ADDITIONAL By-laws in accordance with the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875."

1. That all existing By-laws of this Council relating to the care, management, and construction of closets and cesspits, under the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," be and are hereby repealed.

2. On and after the first day of March, in the year A.D., one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven, no person or persons shall be permitted to have on their premises any open closet or cesspit for the deposit of fecal matter, and any person or persons allowing any such closet or cesspit to remain after receiving seven days' notice to remove the same, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds, nor less than one pound; and after such conviction, if not removed within a further period of seven days, shall forfeit a further sum not exceeding five shillings nor more than two pounds for every day that the same shall remain unaltered or unremoved.

3. No person shall be permitted to cover up or cause to be covered up any existing cesspit with earth or other material, unless and until the same shall be properly emptied by the Council's servants or contractors. Any person offending against this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

4. A separate closet shall be provided for every tenement. In schools or factories, where a number of persons shall be employed, separate closets shall be provided for each sex, with a door to fasten on the inside; where two or more closets adjoin each other there shall be a dividing wall between each to effect a complete separation, and any person offending against the provisions of this By-law shall incur a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds.

5. If in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances any alteration is required in any existing cesspit or closet, he shall report the same to the Council who shall determine what alteration is necessary for the preservation of health or decency, and such alteration shall forthwith be made by the owner of the premises after receiving seven days' notice to that effect, under a penalty for every week's neglect or delay in effecting such alteration not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds.

6. All closets shall be supplied with two iron pans, each pan shall be supplied with two side-handles, or one over-handle, and shall not be more than fourteen inches in depth, and not more than fourteen inches in diameter, and of the pattern to be approved by the Council, such pans to be kept in good order to the satisfaction of the Inspector of Nuisances. Breach of this By-law to carry a penalty of not more than two pounds and not less than ten shillings.

7. The night-soil shall be removed by contract, or by persons employed by the Council, in properly constructed water-tight carts between such hours as the Council may determine; and the contractor or persons employed by the Council will be held responsible for the careful conveyance of the night-soil to the appointed depot, and shall dispose of the same in such a manner as may be determined by the Council under a penalty for neglect not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds.

8. The Inspector of Nuisances shall have power to visit and inspect any premises on any lawful day between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., and any person refusing admittance or obstructing or hindering that officer in the discharge of his duty shall incur a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

9. No closet shall be erected, or commenced to be erected, except in such place or position as shall be approved of by the Council, and any person being guilty of a breach of this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

10. The Council shall from time to time fix the charges to be made for emptying and removing night-soil from closets which shall be emptied as often as may be necessary in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances.

11. Persons requiring their closets emptied shall send written notice to the Council or the Inspector of Nuisances, and any person wishing to use the refuse from dry earth closets shall be at liberty to do so by making proper provision for emptying the same to the satisfaction of the Inspector of Nuisances; and any person causing a nuisance from the careless use of such closet shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

12. Written notice must be given to the Council or Inspector of Nuisances by all persons about to construct new or alter existing closets to enable the Inspector to visit and report on the same under a penalty for neglect not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound; and closets constructed without such notice, and without the approval of the Council, must be removed or altered, if judged necessary by the Council, under a further penalty not exceeding two pounds nor less than five shillings for each and every day they may remain unremoved or unaltered after due notice to that effect.

13. No person shall be permitted to connect any closet with any drain, water-courses, or sewer without the sanction of the Council; any person so offending shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than five pounds.

Made and passed at a meeting of the Municipal Council of Orange, held at the Council Chamber, Orange, on the nineteenth day of October, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six, at seven o'clock p.m.

(BOROUGH OF THE GLEBE—AMENDED BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 18.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 6th April, 1887.

BOROUGH OF THE GLEBE.—AMENDED BY-LAWS.

THE following amended By-laws, made by the Council of the Borough of The Glebe, under the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875" having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

BOROUGH OF THE GLEBE.

AMENDED By-laws made under, and for carrying into effect the provisions of, the "Nuisances Prevention Act 1875."

1. Every person who shall be about to construct a closet, or to form, excavate, or make a cesspit, shall, before he shall commence to construct such closet, or to form, excavate, or make any such cesspit, deliver to the Council Clerk of the Borough of The Glebe a notice in writing of the intention of such person to construct such closet, or to form, excavate, or make such cesspit, and of the place or position in which it is intended that such closet shall be constructed, or such cesspit formed, excavated, or made; and if any person shall commence to construct any closet, or to form, excavate, or make any cesspit within the said Borough without having given such notice in writing as aforesaid, and before the expiration of seven days after the delivery of such notice (except by written authority of the Inspector of Nuisances for the said Borough, or other officer for the time being appointed by the Council of the said Borough in that behalf), he shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than twenty shillings nor more than sixty shillings.

2. No person shall construct or commence to construct any closet except in such place or position as shall be approved by the said Inspector of Nuisances or other officer as aforesaid; and any person who shall construct or commence to construct any closet without having obtained the approval of the said Inspector or other officer, or in any place or position other than the place or position approved of by the said Inspector or other officer as aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than twenty shillings nor more than sixty shillings; and any person who shall feel aggrieved by the decision of such Inspector or other officer may appeal against the same to the Council.

3. Every cesspit shall be at least 4 feet long by 3 feet wide, internal measurement, and shall be at least 4 feet (but not more than 6 feet) below the surface of the ground; and the top of such cesspit shall be at least 6 inches higher than the highest part of the surface of the ground immediately adjoining such cesspit; and every such cesspit shall have walls on each side of brick of at least 9 inches thick; and such walls shall be built in cement and rendered at least  $\frac{3}{4}$  of an inch thick inside with cement in such a manner as to make such walls thoroughly water-tight; and no cesspit shall be formed, excavated, or made under any dwelling-house, nor at a less distance therefrom than 6 feet; and if any person shall form, excavate, or make any cesspit which shall not be in accordance with the provisions of this By-law, or shall form, excavate, or make any cesspit under any dwelling-house, or at a less distance than 6 feet therefrom, he shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than twenty shillings nor more than sixty shillings.

4. Every dry earth closet shall be provided with a seat, a pan, and an earth box, according to the sample kept at the Town Hall. Any person constructing a dry earth closet otherwise than in accordance with this By-law, or shall neglect to provide the earth closet on his premises with a pan of the dimensions and style before mentioned, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than twenty shillings nor more than sixty shillings.

5. Every closet shall be built with walls 7 feet high, and shall not be less than 3 feet 6 inches wide and 4 feet 6 inches long, and shall be provided with a door capable of being fastened inside; and every cesspit closet shall be provided with a man-hole in the floor not less than 2 feet square, clear internal measurement, to be covered with a trap-door; and every person who shall build or erect any closet which shall not be in accordance with this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than twenty shillings nor more than sixty shillings.

6. Where two or more closets adjoin each other, there shall be a sufficient dividing wall not less than 9 inches in thickness between every two closets; and such wall shall extend from the foundation up to the roof of the closet so as to effect a complete separation; and if any person shall erect any two or more closets adjoining each other, and not in accordance with this By-law, he shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than twenty shillings, nor more than sixty shillings.

7. A separate closet shall be provided for each tenement; and any person offending against the provisions of this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than twenty shillings nor more than sixty shillings.

8. In schools, factories, or other places of business where a number of persons exceeding twelve shall ordinarily reside, or be occupied or employed, one cesspit closet shall be provided for every twenty persons, with a cesspit of a capacity of not less than 80 cubic feet, or in every instance where dry earth closets are used, there shall be one dry earth closet to every ten persons, and separate closets shall be provided for each sex; and every owner, occupier, or tenant of any such school, factory, or other place of business, and every other person who shall offend against this By-law, or fail to provide the number of closets and of the capacity in this By-law mentioned, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than twenty shillings nor more than sixty shillings.

9. If any alteration shall be requisite, in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council in their behalf, for preserving public health or decency in case of any existing cesspit or closet, and the Council shall adjudge such cesspit or closet to be injurious to the health or opposed to decency, by exposure or otherwise, and the owner or occupier shall not make the necessary alterations after receiving fourteen days' notice from the Council Clerk, it shall be lawful for the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council to remove the said nuisance, and any expense incurred thereby may be sued for and recovered in a summary way before any two or more Justices of the Peace.

10. Until otherwise provided for by the Council, all night-soil shall be removed from closets by contract, in water-tight covered vehicles, between the hours of ten o'clock in the evening and five o'clock in the morning; and if any person shall remove from any closet any night-soil in any other manner or at any other time than as provided by this By-law, he shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than twenty shillings nor more than sixty shillings.

11. In case the Council shall sell or give away any night-soil, the same shall be removed in the same manner and between the same hours as above provided, and on being removed from the vehicles in which it is carried, shall be deodorized by chemicals or in some other effective manner, or covered with earth, so as to prevent any offensive smell arising therefrom; and if any offensive smell shall arise therefrom, the person or persons to whom the said night-soil shall be sold or given shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than twenty shillings nor more than sixty shillings.

12. The Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council may visit and inspect any premises, or do any work authorized by the "Nuisances Prevention Act 1875," therein on all days except Sundays and holidays; and any person who shall hinder or obstruct any Inspector of Nuisances or other officer as aforesaid upon any such visitation or inspection, or in the doing or performing of any work, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than twenty shillings nor more than sixty shillings.

13. All expenses incurred by the Council in removing any night-soil from any closet shall be repaid to the Council by the owner or occupant of the premises whereon such closet is situated, within one week after a written demand of the amount, made by the Council or Inspector of Nuisances, shall have been served upon him, otherwise the same may be recovered in a summary way before any two Justices of the Peace.

14. The Inspector of Nuisances shall furnish the Council with a monthly return showing the number of closets emptied, the amount due and payable for each closet, and the amount of arrears due for emptying closets. He shall collect the amounts so due and payable, and account therefor to the Council at least once in every month, or as may be determined upon by such Council.

Passed by the Municipal Council of the Borough of The Glebe, on the first day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six.

NUISANCES PREVENTION ACT, 1875.

(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF FIVE DOCK—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 18.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 26th May, 1887.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF FIVE DOCK—BY-LAWS.

THE following By-laws made by the Council of the Municipal District of Five Dock for carrying into effect the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

BY-LAWS OF THE MUNICIPALITY OF FIVE DOCK.

Made under and for carrying into effect the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act."

1. Every person who shall be about to erect a closet, or form, excavate, or make a cesspit, shall, before he shall commence to erect such closet, or to form, excavate, or make any such cesspit, deliver to the Council Clerk of the Municipality of Five Dock, a notice in writing of the intention of such person to erect such closet, or form, excavate, or make such cesspit, and of the place or position in which it is intended that such closet shall be erected, or such cesspit formed, excavated, or made; and if any person shall commence to erect any closet, or to form, excavate, or make any cesspit within the said Municipality without having given such notice in writing as aforesaid, and before the expiration of seven days after the delivery of such notice (except by the written authority of the Inspector of Nuisances for the said Municipality or other officer for the time being appointed by the Council of the said Municipality in that behalf) he shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds.

2. No person shall erect or commence to erect any closet, or to form, excavate, or make any cesspit, or form any earth-closet, except in such place or position as shall be approved by the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer as aforesaid; and any person who shall erect or commence to erect any closet, or to form, excavate, or make any such cesspit, or form any such dry earth-closet without having obtained the approval of the said Inspector or other officer, or in any place or position other than the place or position approved of by the said Inspector or other officer as aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than forty shillings. But any person who shall feel aggrieved by the decision of such Inspector or other officer may appeal against the same to the Council.

3. Every cesspit to be constructed within the Municipality shall be built of 9-inch brickwork, and the top of such cesspit shall be at least 6 inches higher than the highest part of the surface of the ground immediately adjoining such cesspit; and no cesspit shall be formed, excavated, or made under any dwelling-house, nor at a less distance than 20 feet therefrom, area permitting. If any person shall so form, excavate, or make any cesspit which shall not be in accordance with the provisions of this By-law, or shall form, excavate, or make any cesspit under any dwelling-house, or at a less distance than 20 feet, area permitting, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds.

4. For houses containing not more than four rooms and out-offices, the cesspit shall not be less than 3 feet by 4 feet and 5 feet deep, inside measurement; for houses containing more than four rooms and out-offices, the cesspit shall not be less than 3 feet 6 inches by 4 feet and 5 feet deep, inside measurement.

5. Every closet shall be built with walls 7 feet high, and shall not be less than 3 feet 6 inches wide and 4 feet 6 inches long, and shall be provided with a door capable of being fastened inside and with a man-hole in the floor not less than 2 feet square, clear internal measurement, to be covered with a trap-door, and shall have ventilated holes  $4\frac{1}{2}$  inches wide; and every person who shall build or erect any closet which shall not be in accordance with this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than two pounds.

6. Where two or more closets adjoin each other, there shall be a sufficient dividing wall not less than 9 inches in thickness between every two closets, and such wall shall extend from the bottom of the cesspit up to the roof of the closet, so as to effect a complete separation; and if any person shall erect any two or more closets adjoining each other, and not in accordance with this By-law, he shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than two pounds.

7. A separate closet shall be provided for each tenement; and any person offending against the provisions of this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds.

8. In schools, factories, or other places of business where a number of persons exceeding 12 shall ordinarily reside or be occupied or employed one closet shall be provided for every twenty persons with a cesspit of a capacity of not less than 80 cubic feet, and separate closets shall be provided for each sex; and every owner, occupier, or tenant of such school, factory, or other place of business, and every other person who shall offend against this By-law or fail to provide the number of closets and of the capacity in this By-law mentioned, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds.

9. If any alteration shall be requisite, in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council in their behalf, for preserving public health or decency in case of any existing cesspit or closet, and the Council shall adjudge such cesspit or closet to be injurious to the health or opposed to decency by exposure or otherwise, and the owner or occupier shall not make the necessary alterations after receiving fourteen days' notice from the Council Clerk, it shall be lawful for the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council to remove the said nuisance, and any expense incurred thereby may be sued for and recovered in a summary way before any two or more Justices of the Peace.

10. Owners of existing closets and soilpits may be required to alter or improve them in such manner as may be necessary in order to bring them into conformity with these regulations on notice being given by the Inspector of Nuisances to that effect; persons failing to make such alterations or improvements within one month after the receipt of such notice shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding the sum of three pounds for each and every week or portion of a week, during which they shall fail to comply with the terms of said notice.

11. The night-soil shall be removed by contract in properly constructed water-tight covered vehicles, between the hours of 10 p.m. and 5 a.m., from the 1st day of October to the last day of March, and between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. from the 1st day of April to the last day of September.

12. Persons desirous of using earth closets may be permitted to do so on making written application to the Council, and intimating the arrangements to be made for their construction and management, provided that such arrangements shall be approved by the Council.

13. Every person shall be at liberty to use on his own premises all night-soil collected thereon, but if any nuisance shall arise therefrom he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

14. No person shall be at liberty, without the permission of the Council, or of the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed on their behalf, to use on his premises any night-soil brought from elsewhere, and for every such offence he shall forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

15. The Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council may visit and inspect any premises, or do any work authorized by the Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875 therein, on all days except Sundays and holidays, between the hours of 6 a.m. and 6 p.m., and any person who shall hinder or obstruct any Inspector of Nuisances, or other officer as aforesaid, upon such visitation or inspection, or in the doing or performing of any work, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than two pounds.

16. All expenses incurred by the Council in emptying any cesspit shall be repaid to the Council by the owner or occupant of the premises whereon such cesspit is situated, within one week after a written demand of the amount made by the Council or Inspector of Nuisances shall have been served upon him, otherwise the same may be recovered in a summary way before any two Justices of the Peace.

17. The Inspector of Nuisances shall furnish the Council with a monthly return, showing the number of cesspits emptied, the amount due and payable for each cesspit, and the amount of arrears due for emptying cesspits. He shall collect the amounts so due and payable, and account therefor to the Council at least once in every month, or as may be determined upon by such Council.

Passed by the Municipal Council of the Municipality of Five Dock, on the fifth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven.

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 18.Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 26th May, 1887.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF NOWRA—BY-LAWS.

The following By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Nowra, under the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

BY-LAWS for carrying into effect the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act 1875."

1. Every person about to erect a closet, or form a cesspit, shall, before commencing any such work, give to the Council Clerk seven days' notice in writing of his intention, and of the proposed position of such closet or cesspit, and in default thereof, or in case of his commencing such work without such notice, he shall be liable to a penalty not less than £1 nor more than £5.

2. No closet shall be erected or cesspit formed except in such position as shall be approved by the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council, or shall be approved by the Council, and any person being guilty of a breach of this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than £1 nor more than £5.

3. No cesspit shall be less than 3 feet by 3 feet in length and breadth internal measurement, nor of a less depth than 4 feet nor more than 6 feet below the ground surface; every cesspit shall have walls on each side of brick or stone at least 4½ inches thick built in cement and rendered at least ½-inch thick inside with cement so as to make it thoroughly water-tight, such cesspits may be diminished, modified, or altered, as circumstances may require in the opinion of the Council or its proper officer; and any person having or making a cesspit contrary to this By-law, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than £1 nor more than £5.

4. A separate closet shall be provided for every tenement, any breach of this By-law shall render the person so offending liable to a penalty of not less than £1 nor more than £5.

5. Every closet shall be built with walls 7 feet high, and shall not be less than 3 feet 6 inches wide and 4 feet 6 inches long, and shall be provided with a door capable of being fastened inside and with a man-hole not less than 2 feet square, clear internal measurement, to be covered with a trap-door; and every person who shall build or erect any closet which shall not be in accordance with this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than £2 nor less than 10s.

6. In schools, factories, or other places of business where a number of persons exceeding twelve shall ordinarily reside or be occupied or employed, one closet shall be provided for every twenty persons, with a cesspit of a capacity of not less than 80 cubic feet, and separate closets shall be provided for each sex; and every owner, occupier, or tenant of such school, factory, or other place of business, and every other person who shall offend against this By-law, or fail to provide the number of closets and of the capacity in this By-law mentioned, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than £5 nor less than £1.

7. The top of every cesspit shall not be less than 6 inches higher than the highest part of the ground immediately adjoining it, and any person having or building a cesspit contrary to this By-law, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than £1 nor more than £5.

8. If any alteration shall be requisite, in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances, or any officer of the Council appointed in that behalf for preserving public health or decency, in the case of any existing cesspit or closet, the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer shall report the same to the Council; and if the Council shall adjudge such cesspit or closet to be injurious to health or opposed to decency, the same shall be altered by the occupier or owner of the premises upon which such cesspit or closet exists, after due notice has been served upon such owner or occupier; and should such owner or occupier neglect or refuse to alter the same, the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council shall forthwith make the necessary alterations, and the cost of same shall be paid by the owner or occupier of the premises whereon the same shall be.

9. Until and unless otherwise provided by the Council, all nightsoil shall be disposed of by burying it in the earth.

10. The place of deposit shall be in such locality as may from time to time be determined upon by the Council.

11. Until otherwise provided by the Council, all nightsoil shall be removed from cesspits in water-tight covered vehicles, between the hours of 11 o'clock in the evening and 5 o'clock in the morning.

12. Persons desirous of using earth closets may be permitted to do so on making written application to the Council, and intimating the arrangements to be made for their construction and management, provided that such arrangements shall be approved by the Council.

13. Every person shall be at liberty, on the written authority of the Mayor, to use on his own premises all nightsoil collected thereon, by burying the same at least 2 feet in the earth, but if any nuisance shall arise therefrom he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than £1 nor more than £5.

14. The Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council may visit and inspect any premises or do any work authorized by the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," therein on all days except Sundays and public holidays between the hours of 10 o'clock in the morning and 4 o'clock in the evening.

15. In any case where no special penalty is fixed in these By-laws for any breach of the same, the maximum penalty for any such breach shall be £20 and the minimum £1, unless otherwise provided by the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875."

16. These By-laws to be in force within the town of Nowra and the following boundaries:—South, by Jervis-street as far as East-street; east, by East-street, and the continuation of East-street to Graham's sub-division road, to Greenhill's road, thence by a direct line north 10 chains; thence by a line west to Graham and Halcrows' boundary line, and by said line north to Shoalhaven River, and by the river and Nowra Creek to Jervis-street, the point of commencement.

Made and passed by the Council of the Municipal District of Nowra, under the Municipalities Act of 1867, at a Special Meeting held on Monday, 17th January, 1887.

MUNICIPALITIES ACT OF 1867, AND NUISANCES PREVENTION ACT, 1875.

(BOROUGH OF NARRABRI—ADDITIONAL BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Acts 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153, and 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 18.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 12th March, 1887.

THE following additional By-laws made by the Council of the Borough of Narrabri, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," and the "Nuisances Prevention Act 1875," respectively, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Acts.

HENRY PARKES.

BOROUGH OF NARRABRI.

ADDITIONAL BY-LAWS made by the Council of the Borough of Narrabri under the "Municipalities Act of 1867," and the "Nuisances Prevention Act 1875," respectively.

Tree-planting.

1. The Council shall have power to plant trees on any public street, thoroughfare, or place within the said Borough.

2. The Council may, by a resolution annually, place upon the estimates a sum of money to be expended in the planting and preserving trees and shrubs in the public streets, thoroughfare, or places within the Borough, and from time to time determine what streets, thoroughfare, or places shall be so planted.

3. The Council shall cause trees or shrubs to be planted in any street, thoroughfare, or place in accordance with these By-laws in the following manner, that is to say:—Where the streets are over one and a half chains wide at a distance of eighteen feet from the kerbing, and at a distance of thirty feet apart, and upon recreation grounds in accordance with a plan to be approved of by resolution of the Council. Where streets are one and a half chains or less in width the trees to be planted six feet from the kerbing.

4. The trees to be planted in the public streets shall consist of such as may be authorized by resolution of the Council, and such other trees in addition upon recreation grounds as the Council may determine.

Exposing Infected Articles.

1. Any person who shall expose, or cause to be exposed, in any road, street, public place, or inclosed land adjacent to any dwelling, road, street, or public place, any article whatsoever knowing the same to have been in the use or occupation of any person suffering from infectious or contagious disease within thirty days prior to the date of such exposure as aforesaid shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding fifty pounds nor less than one pound.

Rates on Damaged Premises.

1. In the event of any premises being wholly or partially destroyed by other accident the Council shall have power to accept an equitable proportion of the assessed rates of such premises for the remainder of any municipal year.

Public Baths.

1. The Council shall have power to erect and maintain or cause to be erected and maintained Public Baths within the said Borough.

2. The Narrabri Public Baths shall be leased annually, every such lease to expire on 31st day of December in each year.

3. Every such lease shall be sold by public auction to the highest bidder, notice of such sale to be advertised at least fourteen days previous to the day of sale in some newspaper published in the Borough, the upset price, the conditions of such sale, and the covenants of such lease having first been fixed by resolution of the Council.

4. The purchaser of every such lease shall within seven days from the date of purchase pay into the funds of the Council or their agent the amount of the purchase money, and shall also within a like period execute the lease.

5. Such lessee shall also within the time specified in the above clause provide two sureties who shall execute a bond to the Council in a penal sum to be fixed by the Council for the faithful discharge of all the covenants of the said lease, and all the expenses in connection with such bond and lease shall be paid by the said lessee.

6. The lessee shall from the date of his lease be entitled to receive and collect all fees and dues sanctioned by these By-laws, as in schedule "A" hereunto annexed, and shall not demand or receive any other fee than those therein specified.

7. The lessee shall provide and have placed at convenient places at the baths, at least two life-buoys, and ropes for the same, and keep the same constantly ready and fit for use.

8. The lessee shall cause to be affixed near the said baths a notice board setting forth in plain letters the name of the baths and the lessee, the scale of charges, and a table of the hours when the baths are open to the public.

9. The lessee shall be responsible for the maintainance of good order of persons using the baths, and shall remove therefrom any person causing a disturbance, riot, or being guilty of cursing or swearing, or behaving in an indecent manner.

10. Every person guilty of a breach of these By-laws shall be deemed guilty of an offence, and shall be liable to a fine of not less than one shilling nor more than ten pounds, to be recovered before any Court of Petty Sessions held at Narrabri.

3. No person shall walk on the grass edging bordering any path therein.

4. No person shall ride or drive within the Park except on the roads laid out therein.

5. No cart or waggon used for heavy loading shall be allowed within the Park unless by permission of the Council.

6. No person unless authorised by the Council shall offer or expose any article for sale therein.

7. No person shall throw any stone or other missile or deposit therein any bottle, broken glass, fruit skins, bones, paper, cast-off clothing, or litter of any kind; and no person shall light fires therein, or annoy visitors.

8. No person in a state of intoxication or of a reputed bad character shall enter or remain within the Park, and no person shall behave in a disorderly or offensive manner, or use any bad language or commit any act of indecency therein.

9. No person shall depasture any horses, cattle, sheep, or stock of any kind in the Park without proper authority.

10. All pigs and goats (except Angora goats) found therein may be destroyed by any employé or police constable.

11. No performance or entertainment of any kind shall be permitted in the Park, nor shall any charge be made for admission to the Park, or money be collected at the gates or elsewhere therein without the authority of the Council.

12. No person in addressing a public meeting or assemblage of persons in the Park for any purpose shall be permitted to do so in a violent or unseemly language calculated to inflame the minds of the hearers or cause a breach of the peace, and, if, in the opinion of the Council, or its appointee, such is being done, he may order the removal of the person so offending from the Park.

13. Every person offending against these regulations shall be liable to a fine of ten pounds or not less than five shillings, and may be forthwith removed from the Park.

14. The employés and police on duty in the Park are enjoined to enforce the foregoing resolutions, and visitors are requested to bring under the notice of the Council any breach of the same coming under their observation.

15. The Council shall have power upon any special public occasion or demonstration to close the said Park, and collect such fees for admission thereto as they may think fit, or to dispose of the right to collect such fees, provided that such fee shall in no case exceed one shilling to each person.

16. The Municipal Council of the Borough of Narrabri shall expend in the improvement of Public Parks all such sums as may be derived as revenue from such parks including sale of grass right, fees collected, donations, public subscriptions, or Government grant in aid thereof, and such sums in addition as shall be voted by the Council from the Borough revenue.

17. A copy of these Regulations shall be printed upon a notice-board, and placed in some conspicuous place in the Park for public information.

Made and passed by the Borough Council of Narrabri, at a meeting held on the 28th September, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six.

MUNICIPALITIES ACT OF 1867, AND NUISANCES PREVENTION ACT, 1875.

(BOROUGH OF ST. LEONARDS—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Acts 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 158, and 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 18.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 4th June, 1887.

BOROUGH OF ST. LEONARDS—BY-LAWS.

The following By-Laws, made by the Council of the Borough of St. Leonards, under the provisions of the "Municipalities Act of 1867" and the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875" respectively, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Acts.

HENRY PARKES.

BY-LAWS for regulating the proceedings of the Council of the Borough of St. Leonards and the duties of the officers and servants of such Council; for preserving order at meetings of the Council; for determining the times and modes of collecting and enforcing payment of rates, and other moneys due for penalties or other charges; for preventing and extinguishing fires; for suppressing nuisances and houses of ill-fame; for preventing or regulating and licensing exhibitions held or kept for hire or profit, bowling alleys, and other places of amusement; compelling owners and residents to keep their premises free from offensive or unwholesome matters; opening and naming new public roads, ways and parks; aligning and cleansing roads and streets; regulating the supply and the distribution of water, sewerage, and drainage; preserving trees and shrubs; regulating free libraries; preventing or regulating the bathing or washing the person in any public water near a public thoroughfare or place; preserving public decency; providing for the health of the Municipality, and against the spreading of contagious or infectious diseases; restraining noisome and offensive trades; regulating, controlling, and managing the public reserves within the Borough, and for planting and preserving trees and shrubs therein; and generally maintaining the good rule and government of the said Borough.

PART I.

PROCEEDINGS of the Council and Committees.—Preservation of order at Council Meetings.—Duties of officers and servants, &c.

By-laws repealed.

1. All existing By-laws of the Council of the Borough of St. Leonards, published in the Government Gazette from time to time prior to the adoption of the following, shall be and are hereby repealed.

Meetings of the Council.

Ordinary meetings.

2. The Council shall meet for the despatch of business at the hour of 7-30 p.m. on the first and third Tuesday in every calendar month, unless such day shall happen to be a public holiday. In the latter case the meeting shall be held on such other day as the Mayor may appoint.

Election of Chairman in absence of Mayor.—Adjournment for want of quorum.

3. If at any meeting of the Council the Mayor be absent at the expiration of fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding such meeting, the Aldermen then present shall proceed to elect from among themselves a Chairman for such meeting. Whenever there shall be an adjournment of any such meeting for want of a quorum, the names of the members present shall be taken down and recorded in the minute book.

Order of Business.

Business of ordinary meetings.

4. The following shall be the order of business at all meetings of the Council other than special meetings:—

1. The minutes of the last preceding meeting to be read, corrected if erroneous, and verified by the signature of the Mayor or other Chairman. No discussion to be permitted on such minutes, except as to whether they are correct.
2. Petitions (if any) to be presented and dealt with.
3. Correspondence to be read, and, if necessary, ordered upon.
4. Reports from Committees and minutes from the Mayor (if any) to be presented and ordered upon.
5. Questions as to any matters under the jurisdiction or within the official cognizance of the Council to be put and replied to; and statements as to any facts, matters, or circumstances requiring attention by the Council or any of the Committees or officers to be made.
6. Matters which have been specially ordered to be placed on the business paper by the Mayor.
7. Motions of which notice has been given to be dealt with in the order in which they stand on the business paper.
8. Orders of the day to be disposed of as they stand on the business paper.

Business may be dealt with out of regular order.

Provided that it shall be competent to the Council at any time, by resolution, without notice, to entertain any particular motion, or to deal with any particular matter of business, out of its regular order on the business paper, without any formal suspension of this section; also, and in like manner, to direct that any particular motion or matter of business shall have precedence at a future meeting.

Business at special meetings.

5. At special meetings of the Council the business, after the minutes shall have been read and verified, which shall be done in the same manner as at an ordinary meeting, shall be taken in such order as the Mayor, or the Aldermen at whose instance such special meeting shall have been called, may have directed.

Business paper for ordinary meeting—how prepared.

6. The business paper for every meeting of the Council, other than a special meeting, shall be made up by the Council Clerk, or other person acting as his substitute, not less than forty-eight nor more than seventy-two hours before the day appointed for such meeting. He shall enter on such business paper a copy or the substance of every notice of motion and of every requisition or order as to business proposed to be transacted at such meeting which he shall have received, or shall have been required or directed so to enter, in due course of law, and as hereinafter provided. Every such entry shall be made subject to the provisions of section 4 of this "Part" of these By-laws, in the same order as such notice, requisition, or direction shall have been received.

Business paper for special meeting.

7. The business paper for each special meeting shall contain only such matters as shall have been specially ordered to be entered thereon by the Mayor or Aldermen calling such meeting.

Summons to members.

8. The summons to members of the Council for every meeting thereof shall be prepared from the business paper for such meeting, and shall embody the substance of such business paper.

How business paper is to be disposed of.

9. The business paper for each meeting of the Council shall, at such meeting, be laid before the Mayor or Chairman, who shall make a note upon such business paper of the mode in which each matter entered thereon has been dealt with; and such business paper so noted shall be a record of the Council.

Notices of motion, &c., to be numbered as received, and preserved until matter disposed of, unless withdrawn before business paper made up.

10. All notices of motion, and all requisitions from Aldermen, and directions from the Mayor as to the entry of any particular matters of business for the consideration of the Council at its then next or any future meeting, shall be numbered by the Council Clerk as they are received; and each such notice, requisition, and direction shall be preserved by such Clerk until after the matter to which it relates shall have been disposed of, and the record in the minute book of the manner in which such matter has been so disposed of shall have been duly verified as required by section 3 of this "Part" of these By-laws: Provided, however, that the person giving or forwarding any such notice of motion, requisition, or direction to the Council Clerk shall be at liberty to withdraw the same at any time before the making up of the business paper.

After business paper made up, all notices, &c., to be the property of the Council.

11. After the business paper shall have been made up as aforesaid, all the said notices of motions, requisitions, and directions, as to which entries have been made thereon, shall be the property of the Council, and shall not be withdrawn, altered, or amended without leave having been first obtained from the Council for such withdrawal, alteration, or amendment.

Motions and Amendments.Motions—how to be moved.

12. Except by leave of the Council, motions shall be moved in the order in which they stand on the business paper, and if not so moved or postponed shall be struck from such business paper, and be considered to have lapsed.

Absence of proposed mover.

13. No motion of which notice shall have been entered on the business paper shall, except as hereinafter provided, be proceeded with in the absence of the Alderman by whom such notice shall have been given, unless by some other Alderman producing a written authority for that purpose from such first-named Alderman.

Motion to be seconded.

14. No motion in Council shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Amendments may be moved.

15. When a motion in Council shall have been made and seconded, any Alderman shall be at liberty to move an amendment thereon, but no such amendment shall be discussed unless and until it be seconded.

Motions and amendments to be in writing.

16. No motion or amendment shall be discussed until it shall have been reduced into writing.

Only one amendment at a time.

17. No second or subsequent amendment shall be taken into consideration until the previous amendment or amendments shall have been disposed of.

Amended question—further amendment may be moved thereon.

18. If an amendment be carried, the question as amended thereby shall become itself the question before the Council, whereupon any further amendment upon such question may be moved.

How subsequent amendments may be moved.

19. If any amendment, either upon an original question or upon any question amended as aforesaid, shall be negatived, then a further amendment may be moved to the question to which such first-mentioned amendment was moved, and so on: Provided that not more than one question and one proposed amendment thereof shall be before the Council at any one time.

Motions for adjournment.

20. No discussion shall be permitted on any motion for adjournment of the Council; and if, upon the question being put on any such motion, the same be negatived, the subject then under consideration, or the next in order on the business paper, or any other on such paper that may be allowed precedence, shall be discussed before any subsequent motion for adjournment shall be receivable.

Requisitions from Aldermen how to be dealt with.

21. Every requisition by an Alderman, that any particular matter of business be brought before the Council, shall be regarded and treated as a notice of motion by such Alderman that such business be taken into consideration by the Council. And he shall be called upon in due order to move that such business be so considered, or to make any other motion which he may think fit in reference thereto, which shall be consistent with the notice of such business and with good order. And if such Alderman be absent, or, if being present and so called upon, he shall make no such motion, then it shall be open to any other Alderman to make such motion. And when any such motion shall have been made, it shall be dealt with in precisely the same manner as if notice thereof had been given, subject, however, to any objection which may exist as to its not being in accordance with the notice actually given of such business, or with good order; and if no notice shall be made in reference to such business, the entry relating thereto shall be struck from the business paper.

Orders of the Day.Of what orders of the day shall consist.

22. The orders of the day shall consist of any matters other than motions on notice, which the Council shall at a previous meeting thereof have directed to be taken into consideration, or any Committee of the Council shall have directed to be entered on the business paper for consideration.

How they are to be dealt with.

23. Section 21. of this "Part" of these By-laws shall be considered applicable to orders of the day. And the Alderman who has the usual charge of, or who has previously moved in reference to, the particular business to which any such order of the day relates, shall be the person called upon to move.

Petitions.Petitions to be respectfully worded.

24. It shall be incumbent on every Alderman presenting a petition to acquaint himself with the contents thereof, and to ascertain that it does not contain language disrespectful to the Council. The nature and prayer of every such petition shall be stated to the Council by the Alderman presenting the same.

Petitions—how received.

25. All petitions shall be received only as the petitions of the parties signing at the same time.

How Petitions are to be dealt with.

26. No motion shall, unless as hereinafter provided, be permissible on the presentation of a petition, except that the same be received, or that it be received and referred to one of the permanent Committees hereinafter mentioned, or to some special Committee appointed to consider and report on the same; or that it be received, and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice of a motion in reference to any petition, and such petition shall have been presented before such Alderman shall have been called upon to move such motion, the said motion shall, if otherwise unobjectionable, be considered in order.

Correspondence.

Duties of Mayor as to correspondence.

27. The Mayor shall have the same duty in reference to letters addressed to the Council, before directing the same to be read, as by section 24 of this "Part" of these By-laws is imposed upon Aldermen presenting petitions. The Mayor shall direct as to the order in which all correspondence shall be read, and no letter addressed to the Council shall be presented or read by any Alderman. If the Mayor be absent, and shall not have examined any such letters addressed to the Council, or have given any such directions as aforesaid, then the duties imposed by this section shall devolve upon the presiding Alderman.

Section 26 to apply to letters.

28. Section 26 of this "Part" of these By-laws shall be considered as fully applicable to letters addressed to the Council as to petitions.

Letters sent not to be discussed, but every letter may be subject to motion.

29. No discussion shall be permitted in reference to any letters which have been written and sent by the Mayor or by any officer of the Council, and copies of which may be read to such Council: Provided, however, that any notice of motion, consistent with good order, may be entertained with reference to any such letters, whether read or not, or with reference to any letters addressed to the Council, which the Mayor or presiding Alderman may not have ordered to be read as aforesaid.

Reports from Committees and Minutes from the Mayor.

Form of Report.

30. All reports from Committees shall be written on foolscap paper with a margin of at least one-fourth of the width of such paper, and shall be signed by the Chairman of such Committee, or, in his absence, by some other member of same.

Mayor's minute.

31. The Mayor shall have the right of directing the attention of the Council to any matter or subject within its jurisdiction or official cognizance, by a minute in writing. Every such minute shall be written upon paper of any kind, and with the same margin as a report from a Committee, and shall be signed by such Mayor.

How reports, &c., are to be dealt with.—Duties of Chairman, &c., in certain cases.

32. No motion shall (unless as hereinafter provided) be permissible on the presentation of a report from a Committee or a minute from the Mayor, except that the same be received, or that it be received and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice in reference to any such report or minute, or if an order for the consideration of such report or minute shall have been entered among the orders of the day, such motion or order may, if otherwise unobjectionable, be moved or considered in due course. And whenever any such report or minute embodies any recommendation which cannot legally be carried out without any due notice, and it is nevertheless desirable that such report or minute shall be definitely ordered upon during the meeting of the Council at which such report or minute is presented, it shall be the duty of the Chairman or member of such Committee signing such report, or of such Mayor, as the case may be, to give or transmit to the Council Clerk such a notice of motion, requisition, or direction as aforesaid as will enable such Council Clerk to make the necessary entry on the business paper, and to give such due notice.

Report of Finance Committee on payment of accounts.

33. The adoption of the report of the Finance Committee on the payment of accounts shall take precedence of every other report.

Questions and Statements.

Limitations as to questions and statements.

34. No question or statement shall be allowed to be put or made which is inconsistent with good order, or is not in strict accordance with the requirements of section 4 of this "Part" of these By-laws.

Notice to be given.

35. Four clear days notice of every question shall be given to the person who is expected to reply thereto, to allow for the consideration of such reply, and, if necessary, for a reference to other persons or to documents: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prevent any question being put and answered without notice, by the permission of the Mayor and Council.

Answer not compulsory.

36. It shall not be compulsory upon any person questioned as aforesaid to answer the question so put to him.

Question to be put without argument, &c.

37. Every such question must be put categorically, without any argument or statement of fact.

Similar provision as to statements.

38. Every such statement must be made without argument.

No discussion on question, &c.—Rights of objection and of subsequent motion reserved.

39. No discussion shall be permitted as to any such question, or as to any reply or refusal to reply thereto, or as to any such statement, at the time when such question is put, or such reply or refusal to reply is given, or such statement is made: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the taking of any objection as to any such question or statement being out of order, or shall prevent the discussion, after due notice, as hereinbefore provided, of any matters properly arising out of or relating to any such question, or reply, or refusal to reply, or any such statement as aforesaid.

Mode of addressing the Council, &c.

40. Every Alderman who shall make or second any motion, or shall propose or second any amendment, or shall take any part in any debate or discussion, or shall put or reply to any question, or shall make any statement, or shall in any other way or for any other purpose address observations to the Council, shall, while so doing, stand up in his customary place (unless he shall be prevented from so doing by reason of some bodily infirmity), and shall address himself to the Mayor or other Chairman then presiding: Provided that in the case of a question, such question may, by permission of such Mayor or Chairman, be put directly to the Alderman or officer to be questioned, and may be replied to in like manner; but in every such case the question so put and the answer thereto shall be subject to every legal objection, on the ground of disorder or irrelevancy. And all members of the Council shall, on all occasions, when in such Council, address and speak of each other by their official designations, as Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be.

Speaker not to be interrupted if in order.

41. No Alderman shall be interrupted while thus speaking, unless for the purpose of calling him to order, as hereinafter provided.

Limitation as to number of speeches, &c.

42. Every mover of an original motion shall have a right of general reply to all observations which may have been made in reference to such motion, and to any amendments moved thereon, as well as a right to speak upon every such amendment. Every Alderman, other than mover of such original motion, shall have a right to speak once upon such motion and on every amendment thereon. No Alderman shall speak upon any question other than a question of order, unless when misrepresented or misunderstood, in which case he shall be permitted to explain, without adding any further observation than may be necessary for the purpose of such explanation.

Mover and seconder.

43. An Alderman who has moved any motion or amendment shall be considered to have spoken thereon; but an Alderman who shall have seconded any such motion or amendment without any further observation than that he seconded the same, shall be at liberty to speak on such motion or amendment.

Limited time of speaking on motion or amendment.

44. No Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman shall speak upon any motion or amendment for a longer time than ten minutes except by permission of the Council.

Speaker not to digress, &c.

45. No Alderman shall digress from the subject under discussion, or shall make personal reflections or, or impute improper motives to, any other Alderman.

Adjournment of debate.

46. A debate may be adjourned to a later hour of the day, or to any other day specified; and the Alderman upon whose motion such debate shall have been so adjourned shall be entitled to pre-audience on the resumption of the same.

Mayor to decide as to pre-audience.

47. If two or more Aldermen rise to speak at the same time, the Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of such Aldermen shall be first heard.

Aldermen may require questions to be stated, &c., under certain restrictions.

48. Any Alderman may request the question or matter under discussion to be read or stated for his information, or may require the production of any records of the Council bearing upon such question or matter which are readily accessible: Provided, however, that no such request or requisition shall be so made as to interrupt the discussion. Also, that if any such request or requisition shall appear to the Mayor or Chairman not to have been made bona fide it shall not be complied with.

Mayor or Chairman not to move or second motion, &c., but may address Council thereon:

49. The Mayor or Chairman shall not move or second any motion or amendment, nor put any question, as provided for by section 4 of this "Part" of these By-laws, except as is further provided for by the section 39 of the same. But such Mayor or Chairman shall have the same right as any other Alderman to speak once upon every such subject or amendment. The Mayor or Chairman shall rise when so speaking (unless prevented by some bodily infirmity from so doing), but shall be considered as still presiding.

Questions of Order.

Mayor or Chairman to decide points of order.

50. The Mayor or Chairman shall preserve order, and his decision on disputed points of order or practice shall be final, except in so far as the same may be questioned, as in the manner hereinafter provided.

Acts of disorder.

51. Every member of the Council who shall commit a breach of any section of this "Part" of these By-laws, or who shall move or attempt to move any motion or amendment embodying any matter as to which the Council has no legal jurisdiction, or who shall in any other way raise or attempt to raise any question or shall address or attempt to address the Council upon any subject which the said Council has no legal right to entertain or to discuss, or who shall use any other language which according to the common usage of gentlemen would be held disorderly, or who shall say or do anything calculated to bring the Council into contempt, shall be out of order.

Mayor, &c., may call Member to order.

52. The Mayor or Chairman may, without the interposition of any other member of the Council, call any Alderman to order whenever, in the opinion of such Mayor or Chairman, there shall be a necessity for so doing.

Any Member may raise question of order.

53. Every member of the Council shall have the right of calling the attention of the Mayor or the Chairman to any motion, amendment, statement, argument, or observation moved, used, or made by any other member which such first-named member may consider out of order.

Mode of proceeding thereon.

54. A member called to order shall withdraw while the question of order is being discussed and decided upon, unless specially permitted to offer an explanation, retraction, or apology; but on obtaining such special permission such member may explain, retract, or apologize for the matter or remark alleged to have been out of order. And if such explanation, retraction, or apology be deemed satisfactory, no further discussion on the question of order shall be permitted. If any member, on being called to order, shall ask such permission to explain, retract, or apologize as aforesaid, the Mayor or Chairman may, of his own authority, grant or refuse such permission, as he may think fit, unless any member shall require the sense of the Council to be taken on this question. In such case it shall be the duty of the Mayor or Chairman to take the sense of the Council at once, and without discussion, as to whether such permission shall be granted. And when any such explanation, retraction, or apology shall have been made or offered by permission of the Mayor or Chairman, the latter shall in like manner decide, or, if required so to do, shall take the sense of the Council as to whether such explanation, retraction, or apology is considered sufficient. If such permission be refused, or if such explanation, retraction, or apology be considered insufficient, the question of order shall be considered and decided before any further business is proceeded with: Provided that if such Mayor or Chairman shall have decided the question of order before any member shall have required the sense of the Council to be taken in reference thereto, such question of order shall not be re-opened: And provided further that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect the right of such Mayor or Chairman to decide finally, as hereinbefore provided, upon any such point of order, after the same shall have been discussed.

Decision of points of order.

55. The Mayor or Chairman, when called upon to decide points of order or practice, shall state the provision, rule, or practice which he shall deem applicable to the case, without discussing or commenting upon the same.

Motion out of order to be rejected.—Members to explain, retract, or apologize, &c.

56. Whenever it shall have been decided as aforesaid that any motion, amendment, or other matter before the Council is out of order, the same shall be rejected; and whenever anything said or done in Council by any Alderman shall be similarly decided to be out of order, such Alderman shall be called upon by the Mayor or Chairman to make such explanation, retraction, or apology, as the case may require.

Penalties for persisting in disorderly conduct.

57. Any member of the Council who shall have been called to order, and who, after having been twice directed to withdraw as aforesaid, shall refuse to do so, or who shall persist in any line of conduct or argument or of observations which shall have been decided as aforesaid to be disorderly, or who shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology as aforesaid, when required so to do, or who shall be guilty of any other act of disorder, as defined in section 49 of this "Part" of these By-laws, and shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology as a majority of the Aldermen then present shall consider satisfactory, shall be liable, on conviction for the first offence, to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds; and on second conviction for the like offence he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds; and on the third conviction and for every further conviction for the like offence he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than twenty pounds.

Power of Council as to laying down general rules, &c.

58. Any Alderman who is dissatisfied with the decision of the Mayor or Chairman on any such question of order or of practice, may, by motion on notice, respectfully worded, invite the Council to lay down a different rule or principle for the determination of any similar questions of order or of practice which may thereafter arise. Any rule or principle thus laid down shall be binding upon all parties, unless and until it be rescinded, but shall have no retroactive operation: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be held to bind any Mayor or Chairman to put any motion to the Council which, in his opinion, is contrary to law.

Mode of Voting.

How questions are to be put.

59. The Mayor or Chairman shall put to the Council all questions on which it shall be necessary that a vote be taken, and shall declare the sense of such Council thereon; and he shall be at liberty to put any such question as often as may be necessary to enable him to form and declare his opinion as to the opinion of the majority.

Divisions.—Penalty for refusing to vote.

60. Any Alderman shall be at liberty to call for a division; in such case the question shall be put first in the affirmative and then in the negative; and the Aldermen shall vote by show of hands, and the names and votes of the Aldermen present shall be recorded. Any Alderman who shall be present when a division is called for, and shall not vote on such division, not being disabled by law from so voting, shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds.

Protests.

Mode of protesting.—Protest to be recorded, but may, under certain circumstances, be expunged.

61. Every member of the Council (the Mayor included) may protest against any resolution or vote by the Council; notice of the intention so to protest must, however, be given at the meeting when such resolution is passed, or such vote is arrived at, and the protest itself must be handed or sent to the Council Clerk not later than seven days after such notice. The Council Clerk shall enter every such protest in the minute book; but if, in the opinion of the Council, it be inconsistent with the truth, or disrespectfully worded, it may (by resolution on notice) be ordered to be expunged. In such case the expunction shall be made by drawing a perpendicular line with the pen through the entry of such protest, with reference in the margin to the resolution ordering such expunction.

Rules applicable to business in Committee.

62. The following sections of this "Part" of these By-laws shall (except as is herein excepted) be taken to apply to the conduct of business in committee of the whole Council, namely—sections 15 (except that it shall not be necessary that any motion or amendment in Committee shall be seconded), 16, 17, 18, 19, 39, 40, 43, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 59, and 60.

Disorderly conduct in Committees—Refusal to vote.

63. Whenever any member of the Council shall, while the Council is in Committee of the Whole, be considered guilty of an offence against good order within the meaning of section 54 of this "Part" of these By-laws, it shall be competent to any Alderman to move that the Council resume its sitting, and that such matter be reported; and if such motion be carried, such matter shall be reported accordingly, and an entry of such report shall be made in the minute book; and whenever any Alderman shall have failed to vote on any occasion in Committee of the whole Council, as required by section 60 of this "Part" of these By-laws, the facts shall be reported to the Council, and such report on such facts shall be duly recorded in the minute book: Provided that in the case of an Alderman failing to vote as aforesaid, no special motion that the Council resume its sitting shall be necessary, but it shall be the duty of the Chairman of such Committee of the Whole, in making his report of the proceedings in such Committee, whenever such report may be made, to include in such report a statement of such failure to vote as aforesaid, and of the question as to which such Alderman has so failed to vote.

Decisions in Committee on points of order may be reported.

64. Whenever a decision upon any question of order shall have been given by the Chairman of a Committee of the whole Council, under the provision of section 50 of this "Part" of these By-laws, any Alderman may move that such decision be embodied in the report to the Council of the proceedings in such Committee; and if such motion be carried, such decision shall be so embodied in such report, whenever the same shall be made.

How progress may be reported, &c.

65. Any Alderman may at any time during the sitting of a Committee of the whole Council move that the Chairman report progress (or no progress, as the case may be), and that leave be asked to sit again at a later period of the same day, or on any further day; or that no leave be asked to sit again; and if any such motion be carried, the Council shall resume its sittings, and a report shall be made accordingly; but no discussion shall be permitted on any such motion, and if the same be negatived, the subject then under consideration shall be discussed before another such motion shall be receivable.

Reports of proceedings in Committee.—Want of quorum in Committee.

66. All reports of proceedings in Committee of the whole Council shall be made to the Council, videlicet by the Chairman of such Committee; and a report of such proceedings shall be made in every case, except when it shall be found, on counting the number of members during the sitting of any such Committee, that there is not a quorum present. In the latter case the sitting of the Council shall be resumed without any motion for that purpose, and the proceedings in Committee shall be considered to have lapsed: Provided that in making of any such report as aforesaid it shall not be necessary to report any such proceedings in extenso, but only to state the result, general effect, or substance of such proceeding.

How reports are to be dealt with.

67. All such reports of proceedings in Committee of the whole Council shall be recorded in the minute book; but except as hereinafter mentioned, no such report shall be considered as adopted by the Council, nor shall any such application as aforesaid for leave to sit again be considered to have been granted by such Council until a motion shall have been made and passed for such adoption or for the granting of such leave. And every such motion for the adoption of a report or for the granting of leave as aforesaid and the order of debate on such motion shall be subject to all the same rules as other motions in Council and the order of debate on such other motions: Provided, however, that where a report shall have been made under section 63 of this "Part" of these By-laws of disorderly conduct in Committee, or under section 60 of this "Part" of these By-laws, of failure to vote on division, or of any decision in Committee upon any question of order, such report shall, so far as it relates to such facts, be regarded and recorded as a statement thereof; and to that extent shall not, unless for the correction of a manifest error, be interfered with upon any pretext whatever.

Calls of the Council.

How call may be ordered.

68. A call of the Council may be ordered by any resolution of which due notice shall have been given for the consideration of any motion or matter of business before such Council.

Mode of proceeding.—Such call compulsory in certain cases.

69. There shall, without any special order to that effect, be a call of the Council for the consideration of every motion which may be made under section 56 of this "Part" of these By-laws, and of every motion for the rescission of any resolution, order, or decision of such Council.

Mode of proceeding.

70. The call shall be made immediately before the motion or business for which such call has been ordered, or is required to be made by the last preceding section, shall be moved or considered. Such call shall be made as follows:—The Council Clerk shall call the names of all members in their alphabetical order; each member present shall answer to his name as so called; and if any members are absent a record shall be made of such absence; but if leave of absence to any such member shall have previously been granted, or if such an excuse in writing shall have been forwarded to the Mayor or Council Clerk, as a majority of the Council then present shall consider satisfactory, such absent member shall stand excused, and a record shall be made of such excuse and of the reasons for the same.

Penalty for absence without legal excuse.—Further call when question adjourned.

71. Any member of the Council who, having had notice of such call of the Council, shall not answer to his name as aforesaid, or who, being absent, shall not be legally excused as aforesaid, or who, if absent and not so excused, shall fail to show that by reason of extreme illness or any other sufficient cause he has been unable to send an excuse in writing as aforesaid, or who, having answered to his name as aforesaid, shall not be present when a vote is taken on the motion or business as to which such call has been made as aforesaid, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds: Provided that if the consideration of every such motion or matter of business be adjourned to a future day, there shall be a further call on the resumption of such consideration; and the provisions herein as to penalties for absence shall have reference to such further call. And if there shall be more than one adjournment this proviso shall be taken to extend to the resumption of the consideration of such motion or matter of business after every such adjournment.

Standing and Special Committees.

Standing Committees.

72. There shall be five Standing Committees, namely—a By-law Committee, a Committee for Works, a Finance Committee, a Parks Committee, and a Committee for General Purposes. These Committees shall be re-appointed every year, at the first meeting of the Council which shall be holden after the election of the Mayor.

Constitution of Standing Committees.

73. Each of the three Committees first named in the last preceding section shall consist of three members, of whom one shall be taken from among the Aldermen of each Ward. The Parks Committee shall consist of three members chosen from any of the Aldermen, irrespective of the Wards they represent. The Committee for General Purposes shall consist of the Chairmen of the three said first-named Committees.

Mode of re-appointing Standing Committees.

74. The re-appointment of the three said first-named Committees may, on resolution of the Council, be made by ballot. In such case a list or lists of the members for each Ward shall be handed to each member then present, who shall mark against the name of each such member the title of the Committee to which, in his opinion, such member ought to belong. And the Mayor or Chairman shall thereupon examine such list so marked, and shall declare the result. And if there shall be an equal number of votes for the appointment of any two or more members to any one of such first-named Committees, such Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of such members shall be appointed to such Committee.

By-law Committee.

75. The By-law Committee shall prepare for the consideration of the Council, drafts of all such By-laws as may be required for the good government of the Borough. They shall also watch over the administration of the By-laws and of any statute of which the operation has been or may be extended to the Borough; and shall take such steps as may be necessary for the prevention or punishment of offences against such By-laws or statutes, and for the preservation of public health, order, and decency.

Committee for Works.

76. The Committee for Works shall have the general direction of all works ordered or sanctioned by the Council, and the general inspection of all streets, roads, ways, and bridges under the care and management of the Council, with the exception of any reserves set apart, or dedicated by the Government and Executive Council for recreation or other public purposes. They shall also inquire and report from time to time as to such improvements or repairs as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Finance Committee.

77. The Finance Committee shall examine and check all accounts, and shall watch generally over the collection and expenditure of the Municipal revenues. They shall inquire and report from time to time as to all matters which they may consider to affect, or to be likely to affect, the finances of the Borough, and as to such matters or subjects of the like nature as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Parks Committee.

78. The Parks Committee shall have the care, custody, and control of all public reserves and other public places under the care and the management of the Council; and all works ordered or sanctioned by the Council to be made therein shall be under their general direction. They shall also inquire and report from time to time as to such improvements or repairs as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire and report upon.

Committee for General Purposes.

79. The Committee for General Purposes shall take cognizance of every matter, subject, or question within the jurisdiction of the Council not coming within the province of one or other of the before-mentioned Standing Committees, and shall from time to time inquire into and report upon any such subject, matter, or question as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire into and report upon.

Special Committees.

80. Special Committees may consist of any number of members, and may be appointed for the performance of any duty which may be lawfully entrusted to a Committee, and for which, in the opinion of the Council, a Special Committee ought to be appointed. And no Standing Committee shall interfere with the performance of any duty which may for the time being have been entrusted to any such Special Committee. The appointment of every such Special Committee shall be made by resolution of the Council; and it shall be incumbent on the mover of such resolution to embody therein a statement of the duties proposed to be entrusted to such Special Committee. The mover of any such resolution may name therein such members as, in his opinion, ought to constitute such Committee, or he may propose that such Committee consist of a certain number of members to be appointed by ballot; and in the latter case, or if an amendment to the effect that such Special Committee be appointed by ballot be carried, each member then present shall receive a list of all the members of the Council, from which list he shall strike out all names but those of the persons of whom, in his opinion, such Special Committee ought to be composed; and the Mayor or Chairman shall examine such list, and shall declare the result. And in the event of its becoming necessary, through an equality of votes, to decide as to which of two or more Aldermen shall serve on such Committee, such Mayor or Chairman shall so decide.

Chairman of Committees.

81. Every Committee of which the Mayor shall not be a member shall elect a permanent Chairman of such Committee, within seven days after their appointment.

Term of service in Committees.

82. Appointments to the By-law Committee, the Committee of Works, the Finance Committee, and the Parks Committee shall be for the whole municipal year. The Chairman of these four Committees, as appointed to or removed from the chairmanship of the same, shall be thereby and without any further order regarded as having been appointed to or removed from the Committee for General Purposes. The appointment of every Special Committee shall be considered to endure until the duties for which such Committee have been appointed shall have been fully performed: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect in any way the right of such Committee to remove any Chairman of such Committee, or to appoint another such Chairman in his stead, or to mitigate against the general provisions as to Committees in sections 109 and 110 of the Municipalities Act of 1867; and that so much of this By-law as relates to the appointment, powers, and duties of Committees shall be read and interpreted in connection with such last-mentioned general provisions.

Committee Meeting, how called.

83. The Council Clerk shall call a meeting of any Committee when requested so to do by the Chairman or any two members of such Committee.

Records of transactions in Committee.

84. The Chairman of each Standing Committee shall make or cause to be made, in a book to be kept by him for that purpose, memoranda of all the transactions of such Committee, which book he shall, on ceasing to be such Chairman, hand over to his successor.

Expenditure.

Except in emergent matters cost of all work to be estimated before undertaken.

85. With the exception of emergent matters hereinafter specially provided for, no work affecting the funds of the Borough shall be undertaken until the probable expense thereof shall have been first ascertained by the Council.

Emergent matters and necessary current expenses—Expenses authorized to be reported.—Outlay to be in accordance with orders of the Council.

86. For emergent matters and for necessary current expenses during the intervals which may elapse between the meetings of the Council, outlays to the following extent may be incurred:—

1. By order of the Committee for Works, or of the Mayor and one member of such Committee, for repairs or emergent works, to the extent of five pounds.
2. By order of the Mayor for necessary current expenses, to the extent of ten pounds.

3. By order of the Mayor and any two Aldermen, or without the Mayor, of any four Aldermen, for any emergent purpose, to the extent of five pounds.

Provided that in every case a detailed report in writing of every such outlay shall be laid before the Council at its next meeting; such report to be signed by the Chairman of the Committee of Works, or the Mayor, or the Mayor and Aldermen, or the Aldermen without the Mayor, as the case may be, by whom such outlay shall have been authorized. Also, that such outlay shall only be permissible in reference to matters coming strictly within the jurisdiction or functions of the Council, and that no outlay involving a disobedience or evasion of any order or resolution of such Council shall on any pretence be thus authorized.

All claims to be examined and reported upon by Finance Committee.

87. All accounts and demands of money against or from the Council shall be examined and reported on by the Finance Committee before any order shall be made for payment of such accounts or demands.

Certificate required with each claim.—Salaries and wages to be payable on Mayor's order.—Certificate to be attached to report.

88. No payment shall be so ordered unless there shall be a certificate memorandum from the Committee, Mayor, or officer of the Council to whom the direction or guardianship of such expenditure properly belongs, showing that the demand is a legitimate one, and has been duly authorized or inquired into. It shall be the imperative duty of the Finance Committee to see that this requirement is fulfilled, or to report specially as to the reasons for its non-fulfilment, before recommending payment: Provided, however, that such special report as last herein mentioned may be embodied with a report by which payment of the amount in question is recommended: Provided also, that in cases of special expenditure under section 83 of this "Part" of these By-laws, the report directed by that section to be laid before the Council shall, if the outlay shall have been lawfully incurred, be deemed a sufficient certificate: And provided further, that in regard to salaries and wages of labour for officers, servants, and labourers employed at fixed rates of payment, by order of the Council, the certificate of the Mayor of the amount due to any such officer, servant, or labourer, and the order of such Mayor for the payment of such amount, shall be a sufficient authorization for such payment; and such certificates, memoranda, and authorizations shall be attached respectively to the reports from the Finance Committee on the payments or outlays to which such certificates, memoranda, or authorizations have reference.

Common seal and records of the Council.

Common seal and press how secured.—Care of same.

89. The common seal and the press to which the same is attached shall be secured by a cover or box, which, except when such seal and press are in use, shall be kept locked. There shall be duplicate keys to the lock of this cover or box, of which keys one shall be kept by the Mayor and the other by the Council Clerk. Such common seal and press shall be in the custody and the care of the Council Clerk.

When and how common seal to be used.

90. The common seal shall not be attached to any document without an express order of the Council. In every case when such common seal has been ordered to be attached to any document, such document shall also be signed by the Mayor, or, in case of the absence or illness of such Mayor, by two Aldermen, and countersigned by the Council Clerk.

How books of account are to be kept and inspected.

91. The Council Clerk shall keep such books of account and such records, statements, and memoranda of receipts and expenditure in such manner and form as the Council may from time to time direct. It shall be the duty of the Finance Committee to inspect all such books of account, records, statements, and memoranda from time to time, to ascertain that the same are properly kept, and to report at once to the Council any act of neglect or appearance of inefficiency which they may have discovered in the keeping of the same; also, to report to the Council, from time to time, any changes which such Committee may think advisable in the mode of keeping the accounts.

Records of the Council defined.—Provisions for proper keeping of the same.

92. The minute book, letter book, and all rate and assessment books, books of account, records, statements, and memoranda of receipts and expenditure, electoral rolls and other records relating to elections, business papers, reports from Committees, minutes from the Mayor, petitions, letters on municipal business, addressed to the Council or to the Mayor, or to any officer or servant of the Council, orders, reports, returns, and memoranda relating to municipal business, drawings, maps, plans, contracts, specifications, agreements, and all other books and papers connected with the business of the Council, shall be deemed records of the Council. All such records other than the minute book and other books, and other than electoral rolls and other records relating to elections, shall be numbered and filed in due order, and shall be duly registered by the Council Clerk in a book to be kept by him for that purpose. Upon the face of every document thus registered, to which there is any reference in the minute book, there shall be a note of the page wherein it is so referred to. And when any order has been made by the Council, or a report has been brought up by any Committee thereof, in reference to any document so registered as aforesaid, a note of such order or report shall be made upon such document. It shall be the duty of the By-law Committee to inspect the records from time to time to ascertain that the same are properly kept as aforesaid, and to report at once to the Council any act of neglect or appearance of inefficiency which they may discover in the keeping of such records.

Impression upon seal not to be taken, &c., without leave of Council.—Penalties.

93. No member or officer of the Council shall be at liberty to take any impression of the corporate seal, or to show, lay open, or expose any of the books or records of the Council to any person other than a member of the same, without leave from such Council, except as otherwise provided by law. Any member or officer of the Council who shall be guilty of a breach of this section shall be liable on conviction for the first offence to a penalty of not less than five shillings nor more than two pounds, for a second offence to a penalty not less than one pound or more than ten pounds, and for a third and every subsequent offence to a penalty of not less than five pounds or more than twenty-five pounds.

Impression of seal not to be taken, &c., without leave of Council.—Penalties.—Records not to be removed, &c.—Penalties.—Exceptional circumstances.—Receipt to be given in every case before document received.—Proviso as to use of records as matter of evidence.

94. Any person removing any such book or other record of the Council as aforesaid, from the Council Chamber, or the place where by direction of the Council such book or other record is usually kept, without leave for such removal having been first obtained from such Council, or without other lawful cause for such removal, as hereinafter provided, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than ten pounds. And nothing herein contained shall be held to affect the further liability of any person who shall have removed such book or other record as aforesaid, and shall not have returned the same, to prosecution for stealing such book or record, or to an action at law for detention of the same, as the circumstances of the case may warrant: Provided that leave for temporary removal of a book or other record may be granted to the Council Clerk by the Mayor, in order that such Clerk may post up entries, prepare returns, or perform any other duty which it may be necessary that he should perform; also, that the Mayor, or the Chairman of any Committee, or any Alderman acting for any such Chairman, may temporarily remove any record necessary for the preparation of a minute or a report, or for the purposes of any prosecution at suit at law by, against, or at the instance of the Council; but in all such cases such Council Clerk, Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be, shall give a receipt under his hand for every document so removed, and every such receipt shall be carefully preserved among the records until the book or other record to which it refers shall have been returned, when such receipt shall be destroyed: And provided also, that the Mayor, Council Clerk, or other officer of the Council, who may be subpoenaed to produce any book or other record of the Council in a Court of law shall have the right to remove such book or other record for the purpose of obeying such summons, but shall return such book or record as speedily as may be, and shall, before removing the same leave at the Council Chamber a receipt for such book or other record as aforesaid; and every such person so temporarily removing any book or other record of the Council as aforesaid shall be legally responsible for the safe keeping and return of the same.

Penalty for defacing or destroying record.

95. Any person destroying, defacing, or altering any record of the Council shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty of not less than five pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Officers and Servants.

Notice to candidates in certain cases.

96. No appointment to any permanent office at the disposal of the Council, to which a salary or allowance of fifty pounds per annum, or a salary or allowance exceeding that amount, is attached, shall be made until public notice shall have been given, as hereinafter provided, inviting applications for qualified candidates for the same; the salary or allowance attached to such office shall in every case be fixed before such notice is given, and shall be stated in such notice.

Mode of appointment.

97. Every such appointment shall be made by ballot in such mode as may at the time be determined on, whenever there is more than one candidate for such permanent office.

Exceptional cases.

98. Nothing herein contained shall be held to prevent the appointment by the Council, without advertisement, of any salaried office or servant of the Corporation to any other permanent office or employment at the disposal of the Council to which no further salary is attached; or to prevent the appointment in like manner of any such officer or servant to any other office or employment of which the duties require only occasional attention, and are to be paid by allowances proportionate to the extent of such duties; or to prevent any similar appointment or employment by the Mayor or by any Committee or officer of the Council under the authority of any By-laws; or to prevent the employment as may be from time to time found necessary, and as may be ordered by the Council, of any workmen or labourers on the public works of the Borough.

Bonds for good conduct.

99. All bonds given by officers or servants of the Council for the faithful performance of their duties shall be deposited with the Council Clerk or the Bankers of the Corporation, as the Council may order; and no officer or servant of the Council shall be received as surety for any other such officer or servant.

Duties of Council Clerk.

100. The Council Clerk, in addition to the duties which, by the Municipalities Act of 1867 or by the present or any other By-laws thereunder, he may be required to perform, shall be the Clerk of all Revision Courts held in the Borough under the provisions of the said Municipalities Act. He shall also, under the direction of the Mayor, conduct all correspondence which may be necessary on the part of the Council. He shall likewise have charge of all the records of such Council, except such books or documents as may by order of the Council (as hereafter provided) be entrusted to any other officer, and shall be responsible for the safe keeping of such records. He shall generally assist the Mayor in carrying out the orders of the Council and the duties of such Mayor; and shall, when ordered by the Mayor or Finance Committee, make a half-yearly return of the revenue and expenditure.

Duties of Treasurer, &c.

101. Any officer of the Council, other than the Council Clerk, may have any records of the Council, other than those mentioned in section 90 of this "Part" of these By-laws, committed to his charge by an order of the Council, and he shall in such case be responsible to the Council for the safe keeping of such records.

Duties of other officers and servants.

102. The duties of all officers and servants of the Corporation shall be defined by such regulations as may, from time to time, and in accordance with law, be made, as follows, viz:—As to the duties of the Council Clerk other than those under section 90 of this "Part" of these By-Laws, and his assistance (if any)—by the Mayor or Council. As to duties of the Council Clerk under section 91 of this "Part" of these By-laws, of all collectors of rates, bailiffs, bailiff's assistants, and other officers and servants employed in and about the collection of revenue, whose superintendence is not hereinafter specially entrusted to any other Committee—by the Finance Committee. As to all surveyors, architects, clerks of works, overseers, inspectors of water supply, sewerage, or drainage, or other officers and servants employed in and about the public works of the Borough, and in the supply of water therefor or the sewerage or drainage thereof, whose superintendence is not herein specially entrusted to any other Committee—by the Committee of Works. As to the attorney for the Corporation, Inspector of Nuisances, and other officers and servants employed in and about the carrying out and enforcement of the general provisions of the Municipalities Act of 1867, and of any other statute of which the operation has been extended to the Borough, and of the By-laws for the general good government of such Borough, whose superintendence is not herein specially entrusted to any other Committee—by the By-law Committee. As to managers, overseers, workmen, and other officers and servants employed in and about any public reserves and other public places under the care and management of the Council by the Parks Committee. And as to librarians, managers of public institutions under the charge of the Council, and all other officers and servants employed in or about any matter over which the Council has control, and whose superintendence is not herein specially entrusted to any other Committee or to the Mayor—by the Committee for General Purposes: Provided that all such regulations shall be in writing, and shall be in all cases laid before the Council at the first meeting thereof, which shall be holden after the making of any such regulations, and shall be in strict accordance with any such orders or directions as may have been at any time given by such Council touching the matters to which any such regulations may have reference.

Special powers of Mayor.

103. The Mayor shall exercise a general supervision over all officers and servants of the Corporation, and may order the preparation of any such return or statement, or the giving of any such explanation or information by any such officer or servant as he may think necessary, unless such return or statement shall have been already prepared, or such explanation or information already given, and such return, statement, explanation, or information is so on record as hereinbefore provided; or unless the Council shall have expressly forbidden or dispensed with the preparation of such return or statements, or the giving of such explanation or information. All such returns or statements as aforesaid shall be in writing, and shall be recorded. All such explanation or information may, except as hereinafter provided, be either rendered videlicet or put into writing, as the Mayor may direct.

How complaints against officers be dealt with.

104. All complaints against officers or servants of Corporation must be in writing, and must in every case be signed by the person or persons complaining; and no notice whatever shall be taken of any complaint which is not in writing, or is anonymous. All such complaints may be addressed to the Mayor, who, immediately upon the receipt of any such complaint, and without laying the case before the Council, shall have power to investigate the same. And if any such complaint be made to the Council or to any member or officer thereof, it shall be referred to, and investigated by, the Mayor before it shall be in any way (otherwise than by such reference) ordered upon or dealt with by such Council: Provided that every report, explanation, and information which may be made or rendered in reference to every such complaint shall be in writing. And such Mayor shall state in writing the result of every such investigation, and his opinion as to what order (if any) ought to be made in connection therewith; and such complaints, with all reports, explanations, and information as aforesaid, in connection therewith, and the Mayor's statement as aforesaid thereon, shall be laid before the Council at the next meeting thereof which shall be holden after the Mayor shall have made such statement, and shall be duly recorded: Provided, further, that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect in any way the special power conferred upon the Mayor by section 152 of the Municipalities Act of 1867, or any other special power which now is, or hereafter may be, conferred by statute upon such Mayor.

Miscellaneous.

Leave of absence.

105. No leave of absence shall be granted to the Mayor or to any Aldermen, otherwise than by a resolution of the Council, adopted after due notice.

Motions for rescission of previous orders, &c.

106. Whenever a motion for the rescission of any order, resolution, or vote of the Council shall have been negatived, no other motion to the same effect shall be permissible until a period of three months shall have elapsed from the time of negativing such first-mentioned motion: Provided that nothing herein contained shall be held to prohibit the reconsideration and amendment of any proposed By-law which may have been submitted to the Governor for confirmation, and may have been remitted to the Council with suggested amendments of the same, or the passage, after the notice as hereinbefore provided, and in due course of law, of any By-law for the repeal or amendment of any other By-law.

Lapsed business.

107. Whenever the consideration of any motion or matter of business shall have been interrupted by reason of a quorum not having been present, the resumption of such consideration may be ordered by resolution of the Council, after due notice; and such consideration shall in such case be resumed at the point where it was so interrupted as aforesaid.

Suits and prosecutions for penalties, &c.

108. Such suits or information for the enforcement of penalties for or in respect of breach of the Municipalities Act of 1867, or of any By-law made thereunder, or of any statute, the operation of which may have been extended to the Borough, as may have been directed by the Council, or by the By-law Committee, or by the Mayor, to be commenced or laid, shall be so commenced or laid, as follows, namely:—When against a member of the Council or an Auditor or any officer of the Corporation—by the Council Clerk, unless such Council Clerk shall be the officer to be proceeded against, and in such case by any other officer named by the Council for that purpose; when against any other person, by the officer to whom the carrying out of the statutory provision or By-law imposing the penalty sought to be enforced has been entrusted, and if there shall be no such officer, then by any such officer or person as shall be appointed for that purpose by the Council, or the By-law Committee, or the Mayor, as the case may be, on directing such suit or information as aforesaid; and no such suit shall be brought or information laid as aforesaid against any member of the Council or Auditor, except by order of such Council; nor shall any similar proceedings be taken against any officer of the Council, except on the order of such Council or of the Mayor, nor against any other person, except upon the order of the Council, or of the Mayor, or of the By-law Committee. And no such suit shall be directed to be brought, nor shall any such information be directed to be laid as aforesaid, except on an express resolution of the Council, in any case where the bringing of such suit or the laying of such information will be adverse to any previous direction by such Council, or where, on the trial or hearing of any such suit or information, the same shall have been dismissed on the merits: Provided that in any such case the conduct or prosecution of any such suit or information may, on the order of the Council, be entrusted to an attorney.

Mode of calling for tenders.

109. Whenever it is decided that any work shall be executed, or any materials supplied by contract, tenders for the execution of such work or the supply of such material shall be called for by public notice, as hereinafter provided.

Drafts of intended By-laws.

110. A draft of every intended By-law shall lie in the office of the Council for at least seven days before such draft shall be taken into consideration by such Council, and shall be open to the inspection of any ratepayer who may desire to inspect the same; and public notice shall be given as hereinafter provided that such draft is so lying for inspection.

How notices are to be published.

111. In all cases where public notice is or shall be required to be given by any By-law of any appointment, resolution, act, order, or regulation done, made, or passed, or proposed to be made, done, or passed by the Council, or by any Committee thereof, or by the Mayor or any officer of the said Council, such notice shall be given and published by posting the same on or near the outer door of the Council Chambers for the space of seven days, and by advertising the same twice in some newspaper circulating in the Borough.

Persons obstructing officers of the Council.

112. Any person or persons who shall obstruct any officer of the said Council while in the performance of his duty, or who shall interfere with any officer of the said Council doing or performing, or going to perform, or returning from the performance of any duty or act under these By-laws, by using any threats, offensive language, hindrance, or insulting language, towards the said officer, in any street, road, or other place within the said Borough, shall forfeit and pay for every such offence a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than two pounds.

Mode of proceeding in cases not provided for.

113. In all cases not herein provided for, resort shall be had to the rules, forms, and usages of the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, so far as the same are applicable to the proceedings of the Council.

Power to suspend, temporarily, certain portions of this Part of these By-laws.

114. Any such section or sections of this "Part" of these By-laws, or any portion or portions of such sections or section as are not hereinafter excepted, may be suspended by resolution on notice at any meeting of the Council: Provided that there shall be a distinct statement in every such resolution, and in the notice of the motion whereon the same shall have been adopted, of the purpose for which such suspension is required, and that for every separate matter or business as to which such suspension is so required there shall be a separate resolution as aforesaid: And provided also, that the following sections hereof shall never be suspended, nor shall any one of them, nor any portion of any such sections, be suspended on any pretence whatever, namely:—Sections 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 21, 22, 23, 24, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 36, 40, 44, 45, 47, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 84, 85 to 94 inclusive, 98, 101, 102, 103, 104, 105, 107, 108, 109, 110, and 112.

PART II.

Collection and Enforcement of Rates.—Times and modes of Collection.

Rates under sec. 164 of the 81st Vic. No. 12 to be collected half-yearly.

1. All rates levied or imposed by the Council under the provisions of section 164 of the Municipalities Act of 1867, and for the purposes mentioned in the said section, shall be collected by annual or half-yearly instalments, as the Council shall from time to time direct, and shall be due and payable on and after such days as the Council shall by resolution appoint at the time of making or imposing such rate.

Special rates.

2. All rates levied or imposed by the Council under sections 165, 166, and 167 of the said Municipalities Act of 1867, and for the purposes mentioned in the said sections, or under the provisions of any of the said sections, or for any of the purposes mentioned therein, shall be collected in such manner, and shall be held to be due and payable on and after such day or days as the Council may, by resolution, at the time of making or imposing such rates, or any of them, have appointed.

Office hours.

3. All rates shall be paid at the Council Chambers during the hours appointed by the Council by resolution from time to time for that purpose.

Defaulters.

4. Every person not paying his or her rates as aforesaid within thirty days after the day so appointed as aforesaid for payment thereof, shall be deemed a defaulter, and it shall be the duty of the Council Clerk to furnish the Mayor with a list of the names of all persons so in default.

Mayor to enforce payment.

5. It shall be the duty of the Mayor either to issue distress warrants against all such persons so in default as aforesaid, and to cause such warrants to be enforced, or to cause such defaulters to be sued for the amount of such rates in a Court of competent jurisdiction.

Enforcement by Distress.

Bailiff.

6. A bailiff shall, when found necessary, be appointed by the Mayor.

Bailiff's sureties.

7. The bailiff shall find two sureties to the satisfaction of the Mayor, to the extent of £25 each, for the faithful performance of his duty.

Duty of Bailiff.

8. It shall be the duty of the bailiff to make all levies by distress for the recovery of rates in the manner hereinafter provided.

Warrant of distress.

9. All levies and distresses shall be made under warrant in the form of Schedule A hereto, under the hand of the Mayor or any Alderman who may for the time being be duly authorized to perform the duties of that office.

Distress and sale, &c.

10. If the sum for which any such distress shall have been made shall not be paid, with costs as hereinafter provided, on or before the expiration of five days, the bailiff shall sell the goods so distrained, or a sufficient portion thereof, by public auction, either on the premises or at such other place within the said Borough as the bailiff may think proper to remove them to for such purpose; and shall pay over the surplus (if any) that may remain, after deducting the amount of the sum distrained for, and costs, as hereinafter provided, to the owner of the goods so sold, on demand of such surplus by such owner.

Inventory.

11. At the time of making a distress, the bailiff shall make out a written inventory in the form of Schedule B hereto, which inventory shall be delivered to the occupant of the land or premises, or the owner of the goods so distrained, or to some person on his or her behalf resident at the place where the distress shall be made; and in case there shall be no person at such place with whom such inventory can be left as aforesaid, then such inventory shall be posted on some conspicuous part of the land or premises on which the distress is made; and the bailiff shall give a copy of the inventory to the ratepayer on demand, at any time within one month after making such distress.

Goods may be impounded.

12. The bailiff, on making a distress as aforesaid, may impound or otherwise secure the goods or chattels so distrained, of what nature or kind soever, in such place or places, or in such part of the land or premises chargeable with rates as shall be most fit and convenient for this purpose; and it shall be lawful for any person whomsoever, after the expiration of the five days as hereinbefore mentioned, to come and go to and from such place or part of the said land or premises where such goods or chattels shall be impounded and secured as aforesaid, in order to view and buy, and in order to carry off and remove the same, on account of the purchaser thereof.

Owner to direct order of sale.

13. The owner of any goods or chattels so distrained upon may, at his or her option, direct and specify the order in which they shall be successively sold; and the said goods or chattels shall in such case be put up for sale according to such direction.

Proceeds of distress.

14. The bailiff shall hand over to the Council Clerk all proceeds of every such distress within forty-eight hours after having received the same.

Costs.

15. There shall be payable to the bailiff for the use of the Council, for every levy and distress made under this By-law, the costs and charges in the Schedule hereunto annexed marked C.

SCHEDULE A.

PART III.

Preventing and Extinguishing Fires.

Fire or combustible materials, &c.

1. Every person who shall place, or knowingly permit to be placed, in any house, yard, workshop, out-offices, or other premises, fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable materials of any kind, in such a manner as to endanger contiguous buildings, shall on conviction for every such offence forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds, and shall forthwith remove such fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable materials. And every such person who shall suffer any such fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable materials to remain as aforesaid for forty-eight hours after any such conviction, shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Setting fire to matter without notice.

2. Any person who shall wilfully set fire to any inflammable matter whatever in the open air, within five yards of any dwelling-house or other building, or boundary or dividing fence, within the said Borough, without having given notice in writing to the occupiers of the lands or premises adjoining the lands or premises upon which such matter shall be, of his intention so to do, or shall wilfully set fire to such inflammable matter as aforesaid between the hours of six in the afternoon of any day and six in the morning of the following day, shall for every such offence forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Fireworks.

3. Every person who shall light any bon-fire, tar-barrel or firework upon or within 20 feet of any public or private street or any public place shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Negligently suffering chimneys to be on fire.

4. If any chimney accidentally catch or be on fire, the person occupying or using the premises in which such chimney is situated shall forfeit a sum not exceeding forty shillings: Provided always that such forfeiture shall not be incurred if such person prove to the satisfaction of the Stipendiary Magistrate before whom the case is heard, that such fire was in no wise owing to the omission or carelessness, whether with respect to cleaning such chimney or otherwise, of himself or his servant.

Burning shavings, &c., in the streets.

5. Any person who shall burn any shavings, rubbish, or any other matter or thing, in any road, street, lane, or public place within the said Borough shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

PART IV.

Streets and public places.—Public health and decency, &c.

New roads to be reported upon.

1. No new public or intended public road, street, lane, way, park, reserve, or other place proposed to be dedicated to the public shall be taken under the charge and management of the Council until after such road, street, lane, way, park, reserve, or other place as aforesaid shall have been formed by the proprietor or proprietors to the reasonable satisfaction of the Committee of Works or some officer of the Council duly authorized in that behalf, or until the said road, street, lane, way, park, reserve, or other place as aforesaid shall have been duly examined by the Committee of Works or such duly authorized officer as aforesaid, and reported upon to the Council by such Committee or duly authorized officer as aforesaid.

Plan of proposed new roads, &amp;c., to be deposited.

2. Whenever any proprietor or proprietors of land within the Borough shall open any road, street, lane, or way, or lay out any park, reserve, or other place for public use or recreation through or upon such land, and shall be desirous that the Council shall undertake the care and management of such road, street, lane, way, park, reserve, or other place, he, she, or they shall furnish the Council with a plan or plans, signed by himself, herself, or themselves, showing clearly the position and extent of such road, street, lane, way, park, reserve, or other place as aforesaid.

Dedication of new roads, &amp;c.

3. If the Council shall determine to take charge of any such road, street, lane, way, park, reserve, or other place as aforesaid, the plan or plans, so signed as aforesaid, shall be preserved as a record or records of the Council; and the proprietor or proprietors aforesaid shall execute such further instrument dedicating such road, street, lane, way, park, reserve, or other place to public use or recreation as aforesaid as may be considered necessary by the Council; and such further instrument or dedication shall also be preserved as a record of the Council.

Roads and streets and encroachments thereon, &amp;c.

4. The Committee for Works, or the Surveyor of the Borough, or other officer or person duly authorized by the Council in that behalf, shall be the proper officer for marking out, and shall fix, mark, and lay out the levels of all public roads, streets, lanes, ways, and thoroughfares, and the carriage and foot ways thereof, which now are or shall hereafter be under or subject to the control, construction, care, or management of the Council. In marking out such roads, streets, lanes, ways, and thoroughfares, recourse shall be had, when practicable, to the plans under which the land, with frontage to the road, street, lane, way, or thoroughfare in question, shall have been sold or let. And it shall be the duty of such Committee for Works, or Surveyor, or other officer or person as aforesaid, to place or cause to be erected, posts at the corners or intersections of such streets, roads, lanes, and thoroughfares, whenever the same may be deemed necessary or desirable by the Council, so as to give a width of 42 feet for the carriage-way and 12 feet for the footway on each side, where the road, street, lane, way, or thoroughfare shall be 66 feet wide, and in proportion, and in the discretion of the Council in any such road, street, lane, way, or thoroughfare, or other public place of other width than 66 feet: Provided that there shall be no change of level in any such public road, street, lane, thoroughfare, or public place until the same shall have been submitted to and adopted by the Council as hereinafter provided: Provided further, that this By-law shall be read subject in all respects to "The Width of Streets and Lanes Act of 1881."

Change of street levels.

5. Whenever it may be deemed necessary to alter the level of any such public road, street, lane, way, or thoroughfare as aforesaid, the Committee for Works shall cause a plan and section, showing the proposed cuttings, to be exhibited at the Council Chamber for fourteen days, for the information and inspection of ratepayers, and shall notify, by advertisement in some newspaper circulating in the Borough, that such plan is so open to inspection. At a subsequent meeting of the Council, the said plan and section shall, if adopted, be signed by the Mayor or Chairman and the proposer and seconder of the motion for such adoption, and countersigned by the Council Clerk. And such plan and section so signed and countersigned shall be a record of the Council.

Footway or pathway, when flagged or asphalted, not to be interfered with without permission.

6. Whenever the footway or pathway in front of any house or ground, along any road, street, private street, or lane within the Borough has been flagged or asphalted by the Council, the same and the asphalt or flagging thereon shall not be removed, taken up, or otherwise interfered with by any person whomsoever without the permission of the Mayor or Committee for Works first being had and obtained. And every person removing, taking up, or otherwise interfering with such footway or pathway, or the flagging or asphalt thereon, without first obtaining the permission of the Mayor so to do, and every person wilfully or maliciously injuring or destroying such footway or pathway, or the asphalt or flagging thereon, shall on conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding ten pounds and not less than five shillings.

Erection of house, fee for permission, &amp;c.

7. Every person intending to erect or put up any fence, house, shop, or other erection or building, in, upon, or near to any road, street, lane, passage, thoroughfare, place, or premises within the Borough shall, either by himself or by his contractor, serve or cause to be served seven days notice in writing on the Mayor or Council Clerk or other duly authorized officer before commencing the same, stating his intention, and describing the proposed situation of the proposed fence, house, shop, or other erection or building, and shall at the time the said notice is given as aforesaid, pay unto the Council Clerk or other duly authorized officer a fee of five shillings for permission to erect any such fence, or any such house, shop, or other erection or building; and every owner of every such fence, house, shop, or other erection or building who shall, by himself or his contractor, commence to put up or erect any such fence, house, shop, or other erection or building, without having first given such notice as aforesaid, or without having paid such fee as aforesaid, shall be liable to forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

Pipes, gutters, &amp;c.

8. It shall not be lawful for any person to carry, by means of pipes, gutters, or other contrivances, any rain-water from the roof of his or her premises or house upon any of the footways of any road, street, lane or public place within the Borough. Any owner or occupier of any such house or premises who shall neglect or refuse to remedy or remove any such pipes, gutters, or contrivances when required so to do by any officer of the said Council, shall on conviction forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding twenty shillings nor less than five shillings: Provided that the owner or occupier of any such premises or house may convey any such rain-water by means of pipes laid under the surface of any such footways into the gutter adjoining the same, and subject to the approval of the Committee for Works or some officer of the Council duly authorized in that behalf.

No balcony, &amp;c., to project.

9. With regard to buildings hereafter to be built or rebuilt, it shall not be lawful for any verandah, portico, or balcony to project beyond the building line of any street, road, lane, or thoroughfare, except with the consent of the Council first obtained; nor shall any balcony or any other external projection as aforesaid, which may hereafter be added to any existing building, be allowed to project as aforesaid, under a penalty not exceeding two pounds nor less than one pound, except with the consent of the Council first obtained: Provided that no such awning, verandah, portico, or balcony shall be permitted to be erected in any street, road, or thoroughfare less than 30 feet wide: Provided also, that any person desiring to erect any such structure shall first submit a plan for the approval of the Council.

Encroachments must be removed on notice.

10. The Surveyor or other officer or person duly authorized by the Council in that behalf may at any time, on the order of the Council, and upon due notice of thirty days, direct the removal of any building, fence, or other obstruction or encroachment in and upon any road, street, lane, passage, thoroughfare, or public place under the charge of the Council. Notice shall in this case be served either personally, or at the usual or last known place of abode of the person to whom such obstruction or encroachment in structure belongs, or who has erected the same, or caused it to be erected.

Council may remove encroachments.

11. In any case where, after service of notice for the removal of any obstruction or encroachment as aforesaid, the person causing the same shall not remove it within a reasonable time, it shall be lawful for the Council to direct the removal of the same, under the superintendence of its Overseer of Works or other proper officer duly appointed in that behalf, and at the cost of the person so offending (provided that the expenses thereby incurred shall in no case exceed the sum of ten pounds), or at the Council's option, to proceed against the offender for the breach of this By-law, the penalty for the first offence not to exceed twenty-five pounds nor to be less than one pound; and in case of the second and every successive offence, the penalty on conviction not to be less than two pounds nor more than twenty-five pounds.

Or may proceed by action.

12. In every case where the obstruction or encroachment cannot be removed unless at a greater cost than ten pounds, it shall be open to the Council, either to direct such removal and to pay all the costs thereof above ten pounds from the funds of the Council, or to proceed by action for trespass against the person causing such obstruction or encroachment.

To apply also to obstructions by digging, &c.

13. The foregoing provisions shall be equally applicable to all obstructions by digging or excavations; and any person who shall wilfully obstruct or interfere with the Overseer of Works or other officer of the Council as aforesaid, or any person acting for or under him or either of them, in the exercise of any of the duties or powers by these By-laws imposed or cast on the said Overseer of Works or other such officer as aforesaid, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than twenty pounds.

Hoads or fences to be erected.

14. Every person intending to build or take down any building within the limits of the Borough, or to cause the same to be so done, or to alter or repair the outward part of any such building, or to cause the same to be done, where any street, road, passage, thoroughfare, or public place, or any part thereof will be obstructed or rendered inconvenient by means of such work, shall, before beginning the same, cause sufficient hoards or fences to be put up in order to separate the building where such works are being carried on from the street with a convenient platform and hand-rail, if there be room enough to leave as a footway for passengers outside of such hoard or fence, and shall continue such hoard or fence, with such platform and hand-rail as aforesaid standing in good condition, to the satisfaction of the Overseer of Works or other officer of the Council of the Borough duly appointed in that behalf, during such time as the public safety or convenience requires, and shall, in all cases in which it is necessary, in order to prevent accidents, place lights on each side of the said hoards or fences, and keep the same burning from sunset to sunrise; and every such person who shall fail to put up such fence, or hoard, or platform with such hand-rail as aforesaid, or to continue the same respectively standing in such good condition as aforesaid during the period of such building or taking down, or who shall not, while the said hoard or fence is standing, place lights on each side of the said hoards or fences, and keep the same burning from sunset to sunrise, or who shall not remove the same when directed by the Overseer of Works or such other officer of the Council of the Borough within a reasonable time afterwards as aforesaid, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings for every day such default is continued.

No turf, gravel, &c., to be removed from streets without permission.

15. Any person who shall form, dig, or open any drain or sewer, or remove or cause to be removed, any turf, clay, sand, scil, gravel, stone, or other material in or from any part of the carriage or foot way of any street, road, lane, or other public place within the said Borough, without leave first had and obtained from the Council, or who shall wantonly break up or otherwise damage such carriage or foot way, shall on conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Holes to be enclosed.

16. Any person or persons who shall dig or make, or cause to be dug or made, any hole, or leave or cause to be left, any hole adjoining or near to any street, road, lane, passage, thoroughfare, or public place within the said Borough, for the purpose of making any vault or vaults, or the foundation or foundations to any house or other building, or for any other purpose whatsoever, or shall erect or pull down any building, and shall not forthwith enclose the same and keep the same enclosed in a good and sufficient manner, to the satisfaction of the Committee for Works or Foreman of Works of the said Borough, or shall keep up or cause to be kept up and continued, any such enclosure, for any time which shall be longer than shall be absolutely necessary in the opinion of the said Committee, and shall not place lights on each side of the said enclosure, and keep the same constantly burning from sunset to sunrise during the continuance of such enclosure, shall forfeit and pay for every such refusal or neglect any sum not being less than forty shillings nor exceeding ten pounds.

for building whatsoever (unless the sanction of the Overseer of Works or other officer of the Council duly authorized in that behalf has been first had and obtained, or unless the same shall be enclosed to the satisfaction of the Overseer of Works or such other officer as aforesaid) or any other matters or things whatsoever; or shall hang out or expose, or shall cause or permit to be hung out or exposed, any meat or offal, or other thing or matter whatsoever, from any house or other building or premises, over any part of any such footway, carriage-way, gutter, or water-table, or over any area of any house or other building premises, or any other matter or thing from and on the outside of the front or any other part of any house or other building or premises over or next unto any such street, road, lane, passage, thoroughfare, or public place, and shall not immediately remove all or any such matters, or things, being thereto required by the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer of the Council duly authorized in that behalf; or if any person who, having, in pursuance of any such requisition as aforesaid, removed or caused to be removed, any such stall-board, chopping-block, basket, wares, merchandise, casks, goods, coach, cart, wain, waggon, dray, wheelbarrow, hand-barrow, sledge, truck, carriage, timber, stones, bricks, lime, meat, offal, or other matters or things, shall at any time thereafter again set, lay, or place, expose or put out, or cause, procure, permit, or suffer to be set, laid, placed, exposed, or put out, the same or any of them, or any other stall-board, chopping-block, basket, wares, merchandise, goods, timber, stones, bricks, lime, coach, cart, wain, waggon, dray, truck, wheelbarrow, hand-barrow, sledge, meat, offal, or other things or matters whatsoever (save and except as aforesaid) in, upon, or over any such carriage or footway or next unto any such street or public place as aforesaid, shall upon conviction for every such offence forfeit and pay for the first offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings, for the second offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings, and for a third and every subsequent offence a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound: Provided that nothing herein contained shall be deemed to prevent any person from placing an awning in front of his or her shop or house in such a manner as that such an awning shall be at least eight feet above the proper level of the footway, and that the posts be placed close to the curbstone or outer edge of such footway, and that the said posts and any framework be erected to the satisfaction of the Council, and as may from time to time be directed by the Council.

Slop, night-soil, &c., to be conveyed away only at certain hours.

23. Any person or persons who shall drive, or cause to be driven, any cart or other carriage with night-soil or ammoniacal liquor therein, through or in any street, road, lane, passage, thoroughfare, or public place within the said Borough, between the hours of five o'clock in the morning and ten o'clock at night; or shall fill any cart or other carriage so as to turn over or cast any night soil, ammoniacal matter, slop, mire, or channel dirt or filth, in or upon any such street, road, lane, passage, thoroughfare, or public place, or shall deposit night-soil, ammoniacal liquor, or other offensive matter nearer to any street, road, or dwelling-house than shall be directed by the said Council or by the Inspector of Nuisances; or shall remove night-soil or other offensive matter otherwise than in properly covered and water-tight carts or other vehicles; or shall cause any vehicle used for this purpose to stand on any premises nearer to any such road, passage, thoroughfare, public place, or dwelling-house than shall be directed by the said Council or the said Inspector of Nuisances, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds; and in case the person so offending shall not be known to the said Council or Inspector, then the owner of such cart or carriage in which such night-soil or other offensive matter shall be put or placed, and also the employer of the person so offending, shall be liable to and forfeit and pay such penalty as aforesaid.

Riding on drays, careless driving, &c.

24. If the driver of any waggon, wain, cart, or dray of any kind shall ride upon any such carriage in any street, road, lane, passage, thoroughfare, or public place within the Borough, not having some person on foot to guide the same (such carts as are drawn by one horse and driven or guided with reins only excepted); or if the driver of any carriage whatsoever shall wilfully be at such a distance from such carriage, or in such a situation whilst it is passing upon such street, road, passage, thoroughfare, or public place that he cannot have the direction and government of the horse or horses or cattle drawing the same; or if the driver of any waggon, cart, dray, or coach, or any other carriage whatsoever meeting any other carriage shall not keep his waggon, cart, dray, or coach or other carriage on the left or near side of the road, street, or thoroughfare; or if any person shall in any manner wilfully prevent any other person or persons from passing him or her, or any carriage under his or her care, upon such street; or by negligence or misbehaviour prevent, hinder, or interrupt the free passage of any carriage or person in or upon the same, every such driver or person so offending shall upon conviction forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding forty shillings.

Lights to carriages, &c.

25. The driver of any carriage, buggy, waggon, wain, cart, dray, bicycle, tricycle, or other wheeled vehicle, when driving the same in or upon any street, road, lane, passage, thoroughfare, or public place within the Borough, between the hours of sunset and sunrise, shall provide such carriage, buggy, waggon, wain, cart, dray, bicycle, tricycle, or other wheeled vehicle with a lamp on each side of the same, outside, and shall keep such lamps lighted; and any person offending against the provisions of this By-law shall for every offence forfeit and pay a penalty of any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than five shillings.

Riding or driving furiously.

26. Any person who shall ride or drive through or upon any street, road, lane, passage, thoroughfare, or public place within the said Borough, so negligently, carelessly, or furiously as to create alarm, or so as that the safety of any other person or of any property shall or may be endangered, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds.

Loitering in the streets, &c.

27. Any person loitering or standing on the footway or carriage-way of any road, street, lane, or other public place within the said Borough, so neglecting or refusing without reasonable cause or excuse to move on after having been requested so to do by any constable or other police officer, or any officer duly authorized by the Council of the said Borough in that behalf, shall on conviction forfeit any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than five shillings.

Blasting Rock.

No rock to be blasted without notice to the Council Clerk.

28. Any person or persons who shall be desirous of blasting any rock within one hundred yards of any street, road, lane, passage, thoroughfare, or public place or dwelling-house in the Borough, shall give notice in writing twenty-four hours previously to the Council Clerk, who shall appoint a time when the same may take place, and give such other directions as he may deem necessary for the public safety; and if any person or persons shall blast, or cause to be blasted, any rock within the limits aforesaid, without giving such notice, or shall not conform to the directions given to him or them by the said Council Clerk, he, she, or they shall on conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not less than five pounds nor more than twenty pounds.

Public Property.

Injuring or extinguishing lamps.

29. Any person who shall wantonly or maliciously break or injure any lamp or lamp-post, or extinguish any lamp set up for public convenience in the said Borough shall, over and above the necessary expense of repairing the injury committed, be liable to forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

As to damaging buildings.

30. Any person who shall damage any public building, gate, wall, parapet, fence, sluice-bridge, culvert, sewer, watercourse, or other public property within the Borough, shall pay the costs of repairing the same; and if such damage be wilfully done, shall be liable to forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than five pounds.

Affixing placards on walls, &c.

31. If any person or persons shall paste, or cause to be pasted, or otherwise affix any placard or other paper, or chalk or paint upon any wall, house, fence, culvert, curbstone, pathway, hand-rail, or other property of the Council, or in any other manner deface the same without authority of the Council, he or they shall be liable to forfeit and pay for every such separate offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Damaging trees.

32. Any person who shall wilfully, and without the authority of the Council, cut, break, bark, root up, or otherwise destroy or damage the whole or any part of any tree, sapling, shrub, or underwood growing in or upon any street, road, lane, passage, thoroughfare, or public place under the management of the Council, shall be liable to forfeit any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Obstructing public pathways.

33. If the owner or occupier of any land situate on the side of any street, road, lane, thoroughfare, or other public place within the Borough, shall permit any shrub or plant, kept for ornament or otherwise, to overhang any footpath, footway, or carriage-way on the side of any such street, road, lane, passage, thoroughfare, or other public place so as to obstruct the passage thereof, and shall not, on demand made by the Council or their Inspector, Overseer, or other officer duly authorized on that behalf, cut or cause to be cut, or lop or cause to be lopped, all such trees, shrubs, or plants, to the height of eight feet at the least, the Council and their servants, labourers, and workmen may cut, lop, or cause to be cut or lopped, all such overhanging trees, plants, and shrubs, and may remove or burn, or cause to be removed or burnt, any portion of such trees so cut and lopped, without being deemed a trespasser or trespassers; and in case any person or persons shall resist or in any manner forcibly oppose the said Council or their servants, labourers, or workmen in the due execution of the powers given in this behalf by virtue of the Municipalities Act of 1867, every such person so offending shall on conviction for every such offence be liable to forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds.

Injuring public fountains, &c.

34. Any person who shall injure any public fountain, pump, cock, water-pipe, or any other thing connected with the preservation or supply of water to the Borough, or to any portion thereof, shall forfeit and pay the amount of such damage, and any further sum not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than one pound.

Dead animals, &c., not to be thrown into any public watercourses, &c.

35. Any person who shall cast any filth, rubbish, or any dead animal, or any animal with intent of drowning, into any public watercourse, sewer, waterhole, river, creek, road, or pathway; or who shall suffer any slops, suds, or filth of any kind to flow from his or her premises into any such watercourse, waterhole, river, creek, or sewer; or shall permit or suffer any such slops, suds, or filth to flow from his or her premises over any of the footways, water-tables, or streets of the Borough; or shall permit or cause, by means of pipes, shoots, channels, or other contrivances, any such suds or filth of any kind whatsoever to flow into any public watercourse, waterhole, river, creek, or sewer; or shall obstruct or divert from its channel any sewer or watercourse, creek or canal, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds, and shall pay cost of restoring such obstructed or diverted watercourse, creek, or canal.

Dead animals—mode of removal.

36. If any animal shall die in any part of the Borough, and the owner of such animal, or the occupier of the place, if private property, where such animal shall have died, shall not cause such animal to be immediately destroyed by fire, or so effectually removed and disposed of that no nuisance can possibly result therefrom in any part of the said Borough, he shall for every such offence forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding fifty pounds nor less than two pounds.

Power of Inspector as to dead animals on private premises.

37. The Inspector of Nuisances, or any other officer appointed by the Council of the Borough, may at any hour in the day-time enter upon any premises or place within the said Borough where any animal has died, and require the owner or occupier of such premises or place immediately to destroy such animal by fire, and, if necessary, to remove the same for that purpose, as such Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council shall direct, or otherwise forthwith effectually to remove and dispose of the same as aforesaid, in default of which it shall be lawful for any one or more of such officers to cause such animal to be removed for that purpose; and every owner or occupier of such premises or place failing, neglecting, or refusing to comply with such requisition shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding thirty pounds nor less than three pounds.

Dead animals, in certain cases, to be removed at cost of Municipality.

38. If any animal shall die in any public street or place within the Borough, it shall be immediately removed by the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the said Council, and destroyed in the manner aforesaid, at the cost of the owner.

Hog-sties to be one hundred feet from streets, and animals suffered to stray, &c.

39. Any person who shall keep, breed, or feed any kind of swine in any house, building, yard, garden, or other place situated and being within sixty feet of any street, road, lane, thoroughfare, or public place in the Borough, or nearest dwelling-house, or shall suffer any kind of swine, or any horse, ass, mule, sheep, goat, cow, or any other animal of a like nature belonging to him or her, or under his or her charge, to stray or go about, or to be tethered or depastured in any street, road, lane, thoroughfare, or public place, shall on conviction forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings for each and every animal so kept, bred, fed, suffered to stray or go about, or to be tethered or depastured in any such street or public place as aforesaid; and the owner or occupier of any house or premises, or other place within the said Borough, wherein any such swine, horse, ass, mule, sheep, goat, cow, or any other animal is kept, fed, milked, or used in any way whatsoever, shall, within the meaning of these By-laws, be deemed the owner of such animal so kept, bred, fed, suffered to stray, or to be tethered or depastured in any such street or public place as aforesaid; and the words "any house," "building," "yard," "garden," or "other place," wherein any kind of swine shall be bred or kept as aforesaid, shall respectively be deemed hog-sties within the meaning of these By-laws; and the word "horses" shall be sufficient designation for any entires, geldings, mares, or foals, and the word "cattle" for any bulls, oxen, cows, or calves, when more than one is the subject of any information and summons under the provisions of these By-laws.

As to private avenues, &c.

40. Any owner or occupier of any house, building, yard, garden, premises, or other place within the Borough, who shall neglect to keep clean, any private avenues, passages, yards, thoroughfares, and ways within the said premises so occupied or belonging to him, so as by such neglect to cause a nuisance by offensive smell or otherwise, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than ten shillings for every such offence.

Cleansing butchers' shambles, slaughter-houses, &c.

41. For preserving the cleanliness of the Borough and the health of the inhabitants thereof, it shall be lawful for the Inspector of Nuisances, or for any other officer or officers appointed by the Council from time to time, and when and as often as he, they, or any of them shall see occasion, to visit and inspect the butchers' shambles, slaughter-houses, boiling-down establishments, tanneries, and felmongering establishments, manufactory, factory, or establishments in the Borough, and give such directions concerning the cleansing the said shambles, slaughter-houses, tanneries, and establishments, both within and without, as to him, them, or any of them shall seem needful; and any butcher, or the owner or occupier of any such shamble, slaughter-house, tannery, or establishment who shall refuse or neglect to comply with such directions within a reasonable time, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds and not less than ten shillings.

Complaints respecting dirty premises, &c.

42. Upon the complaint of any householder that the house, premises, yards, closets, or drains of the neighbouring or adjoining premises are a nuisance or offensive, the Inspector of Nuisances or any other officer appointed by the said Council shall make an inspection of the premises complained of and the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council as aforesaid have full power, without any other authority than this By-law, to go upon such premises for the aforesaid purpose; and any person who shall personally, or by any person in his employment or under his control, suffer any waste or stagnant water, or any muck, filth, soil, or other offensive matter to remain and be in any cellar or place within any dwelling-house or premises within the said Borough, or shall in like manner suffer the contents of any water-closet, privy, or cesspool to overflow or soak therefrom, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Various obstructions and annoyances.

43. Every person who, in any street, road, lane, thoroughfare, or other public place or passage within the said Borough, to the obstruction, annoyance, or danger of the residents or passengers in or through the Borough, shall commit any of the following offences, shall on conviction for any and every such offence forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than two pounds:—

- (1.) Every person who shall hoist or cause to be hoisted, or lower or cause to be lowered, goods of any description from any opening in any house fronting any street, road, lane, passage, thoroughfare, or public place, and close to the footway thereof without sufficient and proper ropes and tacking.
- (2.) Every person who shall carry or convey, or cause to be carried or conveyed, in any street, road, lane, passage, thoroughfare, or public place, the carcase or any part of the carcase of any newly-slaughtered animal, without a sufficient and proper cloth covering the same, for the concealment from public view, or shall hawk or carry about butcher's meat for sale, without covering the same as aforesaid.
- (3.) Every person who shall place any line, cord, or pole across any street, road, lane, passage, thoroughfare, or public place within the Borough, or hang or place clothes thereon, or allow any tree or shrub to overhang the footpath, to the danger or annoyance of any person.
- (4.) Every person who shall place any flowerpot in any upper window, near to any street, road, lane, passage, thoroughfare, or public place within the Borough, without sufficiently guarding the same from being thrown down.
- (5.) Every person who shall throw or cast from the roof, or any part of any house or other building, any slate, brick, part of a brick, wood, rubbish, or other material or thing (unless within a hoard or enclosure when any house or buildings are being erected, pulled down, or repaired).
- (6.) Every person who shall carry goods or any frame to the annoyance of any person upon the footway of any street, road, lane, or other public footway.
- (7.) Every person who shall be the keeper of, or have any dog or other animal which shall attack or endanger the life or limb of any person who may have the right of way or use of any private yard, alley, street, or any other place within the said Borough.

Offences against public decency.

Bathing prohibited within certain limits.

44. Any person who shall bathe without proper dress near to or within view of any inhabited house, or of any public wharves, quay, bridge, street, road, lane, passage, thoroughfare, public place, or other place of public resort within the limits of the said Borough, between the hours of six o'clock in the morning and eight in the evening, shall on conviction forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding one pound for every such offence.

Penalty on indecent exposure of the person.

45. Any individual who shall offend against decency by exposure of his or her person in any street, road, lane, passage, or thoroughfare, or public place within the said Borough, or in the view thereof, shall on conviction forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than five pounds.

Houses of ill-fame.

46. Upon representation of any respectable ratepayer that any house or premises within the Borough, and near to the residence of such ratepayer, is of ill-fame, it shall be lawful for the By-law Committee to cause the residents of such house or premises to furnish to the Council a list of names, ages, sexes, and occupations of all the inmates of the said house or premises; and upon non-compliance with such request, or if, upon consideration, the said Committee consider the house to be one of ill-fame, they shall, with the sanction of the Council, declare the same to be a nuisance, and shall cause a notice in writing to be served upon the holder of such house or premises, or any person resident or being therein, to discontinue or abate the said nuisance within forty-eight hours after the receipt of such notice. And if such nuisance be not so abated, the holder of such house or premises, or other person residing or being therein and acting as such holder, shall be liable to be proceeded against for such nuisance, and shall on conviction thereof forfeit and pay any sum not less than two pounds nor more than twenty pounds. And if such nuisance shall not be abated within forty-eight hours after such conviction, such holder of such house, or such other person residing or being therein as aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay for such second offence a sum of not less than five pounds nor more than fifty pounds; and if a further period of forty-eight hours shall elapse after such second conviction without the abatement of such nuisance, such holder of such house, or other person residing or being therein as aforesaid, shall for such third offence forfeit and pay any sum not less than ten pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

PART V.

Noisome and Offensive Trades.

Complaint.—Inquire and report.—Order of Council thereon.—Notice to discontinue, &amp;c.—Penalty.

1. Upon the complaint, in writing, by any householder that any noisome or offensive trade is being so followed, conducted, or carried on in the vicinity of his or her residence or property as to injure his or her health, or the health of his or her family, or to otherwise annoy, injure, or be a nuisance to such householder and to his or her family, the Inspector of Nuisances, or any other person or persons appointed by the Council, shall make an inspection of the premises where such trade is alleged to be so conducted, followed, or carried on as aforesaid, and of the premises or property of the complainant, and shall inquire into the grounds for such complaint, and shall report thereon to the said Council. And if the said Council shall, on the consideration of such report, or after any such further inquiry as may be deemed necessary, be of opinion that the said complaint is well founded, and that any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation so complained of, and so being conducted, followed, or carried on as aforesaid, is a noisome or offensive trade within the meaning of these By-laws, notice shall be given to the person or persons conducting, following, or carrying on such trade to cease and discontinue the same within such reasonable time, not being less than thirty days nor more than sixty days, as the said Council may direct, or so to conduct, follow, or carry on his, her, or their manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, as that within such reasonable time as aforesaid the same shall wholly and permanently cease to be noisome and offensive within the meaning of these By-laws, either to the said complainant or to any other resident within the said Borough. And if such trade shall not be discontinued as aforesaid, or shall not be so conducted as that it shall wholly cease to be noisome and offensive as aforesaid, within the time named in such notice as aforesaid, any person conducting, following, or carrying on such trade as aforesaid shall for the first offence forfeit and pay a sum not less than forty shillings nor more than five pounds, for a second offence a sum of not less than five pounds nor more than twenty-five pounds, and for the third and every subsequent offence a sum not less than ten pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Mode of proceeding when noisome and offensive trade is about to be commenced.—Penalty.

2. The like proceedings shall be taken as aforesaid whenever there shall be a complaint as aforesaid that any manufacture, trade, calling, or operation is about to be commenced or entered upon which is likely to prove noisome and offensive within the meaning of those By-laws, save and except the notice to be given as aforesaid, shall be given to the person or persons about to commence or enter upon such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, and shall require him, her, or them not to commence or enter upon the same, or to take such measure as shall effectually and permanently prevent the same from becoming noisome or offensive within the meaning of these By-laws to any resident within the Borough. And any person who shall in any such case commence, enter upon, or continue any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, so that the same shall be in any way noisome and offensive within the meaning of these By-laws, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not less than ten pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Service of notice.—Liabilities.

3. Service of any such notice as aforesaid upon the occupier or owner of any premises or land wherein or whereon any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation is being conducted, followed, or carried on, or is about to be commenced or entered upon, or at the last known place of abode of such occupier or owner, or upon any person on the said premises or land, shall be a good and sufficient service of such notice for all the purposes of these By-laws. And every person who shall be actually engaged in superintending, directing, or managing, or who shall be in any other way actually engaged or employed in any such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation as aforesaid, shall be liable to be regarded and treated as a person conducting, following, or carrying on such manufacture, trade, calling, or operation, within the meaning and for all the purposes of these By-laws.

PART VI.

Public Exhibitions, &c.

Exhibitions, &amp;c., to be licensed.

1. No exhibition, other than exhibitions licensed by the Colonial Secretary under the provisions of the Act 14th Victoria No. 23, or exhibitions of a temporary character hereinafter specially provided for, shall be held or kept for hire or profit within the Borough, nor shall any bowling alley, dancing saloon, or other place of public amusement other than a place licensed as aforesaid, or a place for temporary amusement hereinafter specially provided for, be used as such, for hire or profit, within the Borough, unless and until the same shall be duly registered as hereinafter prescribed.

Temporary license by Mayor.—Penalty for exhibiting, &amp;c., without license.

2. It shall be lawful for the Mayor, by writing under his hand and without charge, to permit any such exhibition as aforesaid (other than an exhibition requiring to be licensed by the Colonial Secretary under the said Act), and which shall not be held or kept for more than one week, and in like manner to allow any place within the Borough to be used for purposes of public amusement other than entertainments requiring to be licensed as aforesaid for not more than one week: Provided that it shall be incumbent upon such Mayor to inquire strictly as to the nature of such proposed exhibition or amusement before granting such permission, and to refuse such permission if it shall appear that such proposed exhibition or amusement is of such a nature as to require to be licensed by the Colonial Secretary as aforesaid, or if there shall be reasonable cause for believing that such exhibition or amusement will be likely to entail any violation of public decency, to endanger the public peace, or to be a nuisance to any inhabitant of the Borough. Every person holding or keeping any such exhibition, or using any place within the Borough for public amusement as aforesaid, or causing or permitting such place to be used, without such permission of such Mayor, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than five shillings nor more than forty shillings for every day that such exhibition shall be so held or kept, or such place shall be used for public amusement as aforesaid.

Public buildings, &amp;c., to be registered.

3. Every occupier of any building or ground in which any exhibition is held or kept, or any public amusement conducted as aforesaid, shall in each year register at the office of the Council, such building or ground, together with the situation and description thereof, and of the exhibition proposed to be held or kept, or the public amusement proposed to be conducted as aforesaid, in or upon such building or ground, and the name of such occupier. And every person who causes, and every occupier of any such building or land who permits, any such exhibition to be held or kept, or any public amusement to be conducted for a longer period than one week, in or on any such building or land not being registered for the purpose, or without such certificate of registration as hereinafter mentioned having been obtained for the same, shall forfeit for every such offence any sum not less than one pound nor more than twenty pounds.

Certificates of registration, &amp;c.

4. The Council, upon the written application of any such occupier as aforesaid, stating the particulars aforesaid, and if, upon inspection by the proper officer, the building or land shall have been found to be secure and proper for the purpose stated, and if the proposed exhibition or amusement shall not be such as to require a license from the Colonial Secretary as aforesaid, and shall not be thought likely to entail any violation of public decency, or to endanger the public peace, or to be a nuisance to any inhabitants of the said Borough, the said Council shall cause the aforesaid premises to be registered in a registry book to be kept for that purpose, and shall thereupon grant to the applicant a certificate of such registration of such premises. And the said Council may at any time, and for any of the causes hereafter mentioned, suspend for a stated period the effect of or cause of any such registration, and shall forthwith give notice of such suspension or cancellation to the occupier of the registered building or land; and during such suspension, or after such cancellation, such premises shall be deemed to be unregistered in respect of the purpose mentioned in the certificate of registration, and such certificate shall be of no force or virtue.

Inspection.

5. The proper officer of the Council duly authorized in that behalf may at all reasonable times enter into or upon and inspect any such registered building or land.

No exhibition, &c., on Sundays, &c.

6. No such exhibition or place of public amusement as aforesaid shall be held or kept open or used for the purposes of such public amusements on Sunday, Christmas Day, or Good Friday; and every person offending against this By-law in this behalf shall on conviction forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds for every such offence.

Registration fee.—Time for which registration shall be in force.

7. For every such registration as aforesaid the occupier of the building or land so registered shall pay to the Council Clerk, for the benefit of the said Borough, a fee of one pound; and every such registration, whenever the same may be made, shall be in force until the thirty-first day of December then next ensuing and no longer.

Certificate of registration to operate as license for exhibition, &c., named therein and no other.

8. The certificate of registration aforesaid shall be regarded as a license from the Council for the holding or keeping of the exhibition or for carrying on the public amusements therein mentioned, but for none other. Any occupier of such building or land who shall hold or keep therein or thereon any exhibition, or shall use such building or land for any public amusements other than such exhibition or amusements mentioned in such certificate or license, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay any sum not less than ten shillings nor more than ten pounds.

Unlawful games and exhibitions.

9. No license shall be granted as aforesaid to or for any building or land wherein or whereon any game with dice, or other games of chance for money, or any bull-baiting, dog-fighting, cock-fighting, or other exhibitions or amusements opposed to public morality or involving cruelty to animals, or likely to cause any breach of the peace, are proposed to be had or carried on; and the occupier of any building or land so registered as aforesaid who shall permit any such game of chance or exhibition or amusement as are in the section before-mentioned, to be had, held, or carried on in or upon such building shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum of not less than ten shillings nor more than ten pounds.

Suspension or revocation of license.—Notice to be given, and licensee to be allowed to show cause.

10. The effect of any such registration as aforesaid may be suspended, or such registration may be cancelled, as the Council shall think fit, for any of the following causes, namely:—Whenever the occupier of the registered building or land, or the manager of any such exhibition or amusement as aforesaid, held, kept, conducted, or carried on, in, or upon such building or ground shall have been twice convicted of offences against these By-laws within a period of twelve months; or whenever it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the said Council that the superintendent, director, or manager, or other person in charge of any such exhibition or amusement is a confirmed drunkard, or that such exhibition or amusement is being conducted in such a manner as to violate public decency, to endanger the public peace, or become a nuisance to any inhabitants of the Borough: Provided that before any such suspension or cancellation as aforesaid, the occupier of such registered building or land shall have notice of the fact, the said Council is about to consider whether there shall be any such suspension or cancellation, and of the causes of this proceeding, and shall be allowed to show cause against such suspension or cancellation before the same shall be ordered.

Construction of term "occupier."—Change in occupancy.—False statement.

11. Any person who shall superintend, direct, or manage, or shall be otherwise in charge of any such exhibition or public amusement as aforesaid, in or upon any such building or land as aforesaid; or who shall reside in or upon any such building or land wherein or whereon any such exhibition or public amusement shall be held, kept, or carried on; or who, being the owner, lessee, or tenant of any such building or land, shall permit the same to be used for the purposes of any such exhibition or public amusement, shall be deemed the occupier of such building or land for all the purposes of these By-laws. And the said By-laws shall be held to be as applicable in every case to any number of such occupiers as to any single occupier; and every such occupier whose name shall have been so registered as aforesaid shall be deemed and taken to be, and continue to be, such occupier for all these purposes of these By-laws: Provided that in the event of any change in the occupancy of any such building or ground as aforesaid, it shall be competent for the parties concerned to notify the same, by writing under their hands, to the said Council Clerk, who shall lay such notification before the Council at its next meeting; and if, after such inquiry as such Council may deem necessary, there shall seem to be no valid objection to such change of occupancy, a corresponding entry shall be made in the registry aforesaid, and a new certificate shall be issued, which shall be in force until the then next ensuing 31st day of December, and no longer. And for every such new certificate a fee of five shillings shall be paid to the said Council Clerk for the benefit of the said Borough. And any person who shall make any false statement in any such application or notice as aforesaid as to any of the facts or particulars required by these By-laws to be stated in such application or notice, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay any sum not less than one pound nor more than twenty pounds.

PART VII.

Water Supply.

Polluting water, reservoirs, &c.

1. Whosoever shall bathe in any stream, reservoir, conduit, aqueduct, or other waterworks belonging to or under the management or control of the Council, or shall wash, cleanse, throw, or cause to enter therein, any animal whether alive or dead, or any rubbish, filth, stuff, or thing of any kind whatsoever; or shall cause or permit, or suffer to be run or to be brought therein, the water of any sink, sewer, drain, engine, or boiler, or other filthy, unwholesome, or improper water; or shall wash any clothes at any public fountain or pump, or in or at any such stream, reservoir, conduit, aqueduct, or other waterworks as aforesaid; or shall do anything whatsoever whereby any water or water-work belonging to the said Council, or under their management or control, shall be fouled, obstructed, or damaged, shall for the first offence be liable to forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds, for a second offence any sum not less than ten shillings nor more than five pounds, and for the third and every subsequent offence any sum not less than one pound nor more than twenty pounds.

Wilful waste of water.

2. Whosoever being supplied with water by the Council from any waterworks, fountain, reservoir, or standpipe of or belonging to, or under the control or management of the said Council, or having access to any such waterworks, fountain, or reservoir, for the taking of water therefrom, shall wilfully or negligently suffer any water to run to waste from any pipe, pump, or conduit, from or by which he shall be so supplied, or to which he shall have such access, shall forfeit and pay for the first offence any sum not exceeding five pounds, for a second offence any sum not less than one pound nor more than twenty pounds, and for a third and every subsequent offence any sum not less than five pounds nor more than forty pounds.

Damming up water without consent.

3. Whosoever shall, without the consent in writing of the Council, construct or place any dam or embankment, or allow any accumulation of drift or silt to accumulate in or across any river, creek, or natural watercourse, shall forfeit and pay any sum not less than one pound nor more than twenty pounds, and shall remove such dam or embankment within a reasonable time after such conviction, or shall forfeit and pay any sum not less than five pounds nor more than fifty pounds. And if after such second conviction such person shall fail to remove such dam or embankment within a further reasonable time, he shall forfeit and pay a sum of not less than twenty pounds nor more than fifty pounds; and if within a reasonable time after a third or any further conviction he shall still fail to remove such dam or embankment, he shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum of fifty pounds.

Diverting water from reservoirs of Council in certain cases.

4. In any case in which the Council shall have the exclusive right of collecting for the supply of any reservoir or waterworks belonging to the said Council, or under their management or control, the storm-water having fallen on any gathering ground, whosoever shall, by any means whatsoever, divert any such water from the course of its natural flow, so that the same shall tend to flow elsewhere than to such reservoir or waterworks or some watercourse leading thereto, or shall flow to the same respectively in a foul state, shall forfeit and pay for the first offence any sum not less than one pound nor more than twenty pounds, for a second offence any sum not less than two pounds nor more than forty pounds, and for a third and every subsequent offence any sum not less than five pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

PART VIII.

Severage and drainage.

No private sewers to be made to communicate with the public sewers without notice.

1. It shall not be lawful for any person, without notice to the Council, or otherwise than according to such plans and directions as such Council may make and give, to make or branch any private drain or sewer into any of the public drains, sewers, or channels, or into any drain or sewer communicating therewith; and in case any person or persons shall make or branch any private drain or sewer into any of the said public drains or sewers, or into any drain or sewer communicating or to communicate therewith, without such notice, or otherwise than as aforesaid, every person so offending shall for every such offence forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds.

Proprietors of private sewers, &c., to repair and cleanse same.

2. All drains or sewers communicating with any public drain or sewer shall from time to time be repaired and cleansed under the inspection and direction of the Council, at the costs and charges of the occupiers of the houses, buildings, lands, and premises to which the said private sewers or drains shall respectively belong; and in case any person shall neglect to repair and cleanse, or cause any such private drain or sewer to be repaired and cleansed, according to the direction of the said Council, he shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds.

PART IX.

Public Parks, &c.Appointment of Ranger.

1. The Council may appoint a ranger, bailiff, or overseer over the reserves and other public places within the said Borough, with powers and authorities necessary to enable him to perform his duties as they may from time to time think fit.

Ranger to protect reserves and remove disorderly persons.

2. The said ranger, bailiff, or overseer, or any officer of the Council shall protect the said reserves, and for that purpose shall be at liberty to call in the aid of the police for the removal, by force if necessary, of any person or persons who shall be found committing a breach of these By-laws, or who shall by disorderly or insulting conduct cause annoyance or inconvenience to any person on the said reserves, or any of them, or going to or coming from the same; and such person so offending shall also forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

[Penalty for removing firewood and setting fire to timber, &c.

3. Any person who shall remove any firewood or timber from any of the said reserves, or who shall wilfully destroy or damage any of the trees or shrubs growing thereon, or who shall wilfully set fire to any grass, tree, or shrub, or timber growing thereon, or shall injure any fence, gate, seat, or turnstile therein, shall on conviction before any two or more Justices of the Peace forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding ten pounds.

Penalty for injuring dams, &c.—Injuring water.

4. Any person who shall injure or destroy any dam, well, fountain, or reservoir in any of the said reserves; or who shall wash any clothes, or the person, or any animal, or in any way pollute the water in any such stream, dam, well, fountain, or reservoir; or who shall bathe in any of the said waters (except such as may be set apart for bathing purposes, and during the hours appointed for such purposes), shall on conviction before any two or more Justices of the Peace forfeit and pay a penalty of not exceeding ten pounds.

Penalty for offending against decency.

5. Any person who shall offend against decency by the exposure of his or her person in any of the said reserves, or in view thereof, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not exceeding ten pounds.

Penalty for erecting tents, &c., without permission.

6. No tents, booths, or stalls shall be erected on any of the said reserves, without the consent of the Council first had and obtained, under a penalty not exceeding ten pounds.

Penalty for horse-racing, &c.

7. No horse-racing or horse-breaking shall be allowed on any of the said reserves under a penalty of not exceeding ten pounds.

Penalty for depositing rubbish and removing material.

8. Any person who shall deposit any rubbish on any of the said reserves, or who shall remove any rock, stone, earth, or other material therefrom, without the leave of the Council first had and obtained, shall upon conviction forfeit and pay a penalty of not exceeding ten pounds.

Power to grant right of pasturage, &c.

9. The Council may annually let from year to year, or for any less term, by public auction or by tender, the exclusive right to depasture stock on all or any of the said reserves, and may delegate to any lessee power to impound any swine, goats, horses, sheep, or cattle straying thereon.

Power to grant right to cut timber, &c.

10. The Council may also annually let from year to year, or for any less period, by public auction or by public tender, the exclusive right to remove any trees, firewood, or timber not required for ornamental purposes from any of the said reserves; and they may make such regulations as may be necessary from time to time for the protection of trees and shrubs required for ornamental purposes.

Power to detain and impound trespassing stock.

11. The Ranger or any other officer of the Council duly authorized in that behalf shall have power to detain and impound any cattle or other stock found trespassing upon the said reserves or other public places or any of them, and also to claim and or demand and recover such damage (not exceeding ten pounds) in respect of such cattle or other stock so detained or impounded as could or might be claimed by the owner of private land in respect of animals found trespassing and doing damage upon the same.

Penalty for crossing fences except by proper openings.

12. If any person shall cross, or pass or attempt to cross or pass any fence on or enclosing any of the reserves or other public places within the Municipality, otherwise than by the gates or other openings left for passage, he shall on conviction forfeit and pay a penalty for each offence of not exceeding five pounds nor less than five shillings.

Wilful trespass.

13. Every person who shall wilfully let in or knowingly suffer to enter upon the said reserves, or any of them, any animals, without due authority, shall be deemed guilty of wilful trespass, and shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Penalty for persons causing annoyance in use of reserves.

14. Any person who shall unlawfully cause any annoyance or inconvenience to any other persons in the free use and enjoyment of the said reserves, or any of them, shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

15. Any person who shall be found committing any breach of any By-law affecting the said reserves, or any of them, not expressly provided for in this "Part" of these By-laws, or who shall, by disorderly or insulting conduct in the immediate neighbourhood of such park or public recreation ground, cause annoyance or inconvenience to persons on the said reserves, or any of them, or going to or coming from the same, may be removed by force by any Ranger or other proper officer appointed by the Council, which officer shall have the power to call in the aid of the police; and such persons so offending shall also forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

BY-LAWS made under and for carrying into effect the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875"

1. Every person about to erect a closet, or form, excavate, or make a cesspit, shall, before commencing to erect such closet, or to form, excavate, or make any such cesspit, deliver to the Council Clerk of the Borough of St. Leonards a notice in writing of his intention to erect such closet, or form, excavate, or make such cesspit, and of the place or position in which it is intended that such closet shall be erected, or such cesspit formed, excavated, or made; and if any person shall commence to erect any closet or to form, excavate, or make any cesspit within the said Borough without having given such notice in writing as aforesaid, and before the expiration of seven days after the delivery of such notice (except by the written authority of the Inspector of Nuisances for the said Borough, or other officer for the time being appointed by the Council of the said Borough in that behalf), he shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

2. No person shall erect or commence to erect any closet, or to form, excavate, or make any cesspit, except in such place or position as shall be approved of by the said Inspector of Nuisances or other officer as aforesaid; and any person who shall erect or commence to erect any closet, or to form, excavate, or make any such cesspit, without having obtained the approval of the said Inspector or other officer, or in any place or position other than the place or position approved of by the said Inspector or other officer as aforesaid, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds. But any person who shall feel aggrieved by the decision of such Inspector or other officer may, at any time within fourteen days after such Inspector or other officer shall have made his decision, appeal in writing against the same to the Council.

3. Every cesspit shall be at least 4 feet long by 3 feet wide, internal measurement, and shall be at least 4 feet (but not more than 6 feet) below the surface of the ground; and the top of such cesspit shall be at least 6 inches higher than the highest part of the surface of the ground immediately adjoining such cesspit; and every such cesspit shall have walls on each side of brick or stone of at least 9 inches thick, and such wall shall be built in cement and rendered at least  $\frac{1}{2}$  of an inch thick inside with cement in such manner as to make such walls thoroughly water-tight; and no cesspit shall be formed, excavated, or made under any dwelling-house, nor at a less distance than 20 feet therefrom; neither shall any cesspit be formed, excavated, or made at a less distance than 20 feet from any well or underground tank, whether on the same property in which the cesspit is intended to be formed, excavated, or made, or on the adjoining property. And if any person shall form, excavate, or make any cesspit which shall not be in accordance with the provisions of this By-law, or shall form, excavate, or make any cesspit under any dwelling-house, or at a less distance than 20 feet therefrom or from any such well or underground tank as aforesaid, he shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

4. Every closet shall be built with walls 7 feet high, and shall not be less than 3 feet 6 inches wide and 4 feet 6 inches long, and shall be provided with a door capable of being fastened inside, and each seat shall have a moveable cover, and the closet be ventilated; and every person who shall build or erect any closet which shall not be in accordance with this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than forty shillings.

5. Where two or more closets adjoin each other, there shall be a sufficient dividing wall not less than 9 inches in thickness between every two closets, and such wall shall extend from the bottom of the cesspit or closet up to the roof of the closet so as to effect a complete separation; and if any person shall erect any two or more closets adjoining each other, and not in accordance with this By-law, he shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

6. A separate closet shall be provided for each tenement; and any person offending against the provisions of this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than five pounds.

7. In dwelling-houses where the number of persons who shall ordinarily sleep there exceed twelve, the capacity of the cesspit shall be increased by at least 4 cubic feet for every person beyond the number of twelve persons, or else a separate closet shall be provided for every twelve persons or fraction of twelve; and any person guilty of a breach of this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound and not more than five pounds.

8. In schools, factories, or other places of business, where a number of persons exceeding twelve shall ordinarily reside or be occupied or employed, one closet shall be provided for every twenty persons, and if a cesspit is used in connection with any such closet, with a cesspit of a capacity of not less than 80 cubic feet for every such twenty persons, and separate closets shall be provided for each sex; and every owner, occupier, or tenant of any such school, factory, or other place of business, and every other person who shall offend against this By-law, or fail to provide the number of closets and of the capacity in this By-law mentioned, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

9. Every closet shall be built in such a position that the same may be emptied without the contents being carried through any dwelling-house; and any person having or building a closet contrary to this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than two pounds and not more than ten pounds.

10. If any alteration shall be requisite, in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council in that behalf, for preserving public health or decency in case of any existing cesspit or closet, and the Council shall adjudge such cesspit or closet to be injurious to the health or opposed to decency by exposure or otherwise, and the owner or occupier shall not make the necessary alterations after receiving fourteen days' notice so to do from the Council Clerk, it shall be lawful for the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council to make the necessary alteration, and the cost of such alteration shall be paid by the owner or occupier of the premises whereon the same shall be.

11. Until otherwise provided by the Council, all night-soil shall be removed from cesspits, by contract, in water-tight covered vehicles between the hours of eleven o'clock in the evening and five o'clock in the morning; and if any person shall remove from any cesspit any night-soil in any other manner or at any other time than as provided by this By-law, he shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

12. Until and unless otherwise provided for by the Council, all night-soil shall be disposed of by burying it in the earth.

13. The place of deposit shall be in such locality as may from time to time be determined by the Council.

14. In case the Council shall sell or give away any night-soil, the same shall be removed in the same manner and between the same hours as above provided, and on being removed from the vehicles on which it is carried shall be decolorized by chemicals or in some other effective manner, or covered with earth, so as to prevent any offensive smell arising therefrom; and if any offensive smell shall arise therefrom, the person or persons to whom the said night-soil shall be sold or given shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

15. Any person desirous of erecting an earth-closet or using an earth-closet in place of cesspit, must deliver to the Council Clerk seven days previous notice in writing of his intention so to do, and make provision for emptying the same to the satisfaction of the Inspector of Nuisances; and any person causing a nuisance from the careless use of such closet shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

16. All earth-closets shall be emptied once in seven days, or oftener if required, and the contents buried in the earth; and every person infringing this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than two pounds.

17. Every person shall be at liberty (with the sanction of the Mayor) to use on his own premises all night-soil collected therefrom, by burying the same at least one foot in the earth, but if any nuisance shall arise therefrom, he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound and not more than five pounds.

18. No person shall be at liberty, without the permission of the Council, or the Inspector of Nuisances, or the officer appointed by the Council in that behalf, to use on his own premises any night-soil brought from elsewhere; and any person committing a breach of this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than ten pounds.

19. The Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council may visit and inspect any premises, or do any work authorized by the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875" therein, on all days except Sundays and holidays; and any person who shall hinder or obstruct any Inspector of Nuisances or other officer as aforesaid upon any such visitation or inspection, or in the doing or performing of any work, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than ten shillings nor more than forty shillings.

20. The Inspector of Nuisances shall furnish the Council with a monthly return showing the number of cesspits emptied and earth-closets attended upon, the amount due and payable for each cesspit and earth-closet attended upon, and the amount of arrears due for emptying cesspits and attending on earth-closets. He shall collect the amounts so due and payable and account therefor to the Council, at the least once in every month, or as may be determined upon by such Council.

21. Any persons requiring their cesspits emptied shall send written notice to the Council or Inspector of Nuisances; and persons emptying or causing to be emptied any closet without the sanction of the Council or Inspector of Nuisances shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

22. The Council may charge such sum for the emptying of cesspits or attendance upon earth-closets as may be decided upon from time to time by resolution of the Council, and the Council, or the Inspector of Nuisances on their behalf, may at any time after seven days previous notice of their or his intention so to do shall have been left upon the premises in respect of which such sums are payable, sue for and recover the same.

23. Every closet hereafter to be built shall either have a separate child's seat or a child's seat over the centre of the larger one; and any person committing a breach of this By-law shall forfeit a sum not exceeding one pound nor less than five shillings.

24. Every earth-closet hereafter to be built shall be provided with a galvanized iron pail, capable of containing not less than six gallons, and having handles attached to two sides thereof.

25. Every earth-closet, whether already built or hereafter to be built, shall be provided with a box or earth compartment, such box or earth compartment to be without lid, and provided with a pint scoop for each occupant to throw in a pint of the stored dry earth or dry ashes through the seat into the galvanized iron pail.

26. The Inspector of Nuisances shall not take any legal proceedings under these By-laws without informing the Mayor of his intention so to do.

Amended and passed by the Municipal Council of the Borough of St. Leonards, this fourth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

MUNICIPALITIES ACT OF 1867, AND NUISANCES
PREVENTION ACT, 1875.

(BOROUGH OF CAMPERDOWN—AMENDED BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Acts 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 153, and 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 18.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 8th June, 1887.

BOROUGH OF CAMPERDOWN—AMENDED BY-LAWS.

THE following amended By-laws made by the Council of the Borough of Camperdown, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867" and the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875," respectively, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above cited Acts.

HENRY PARKES.

AMENDED GENERAL BY-LAWS OF THE BOROUGH OF CAMPERDOWN.

- 1.—That By-law 57 of the existing General By-laws be rescinded and that the following By-law be substituted, viz. :—

No projections beyond the general line of frontage.

That with regard to buildings hereafter to be built or rebuilt it shall not be lawful for any awning, verandah, portico, or balcony forming part or attached to any external wall to project beyond the general line of front in any street or road except with the consent of the Municipal Council first obtained, nor shall any balcony or any other external projection as aforesaid, which may hereafter be added to any existing building be allowed to project as aforesaid under a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds, except with the consent of the Council first obtained: Provided however that no balcony or other projection shall be erected in any street or road of less than 66 feet wide.

2. That By-Law 78 of the existing general By-laws be rescinded, and that the following be substituted, viz. :—

Dirty or unwholesome premises.

Any owner or occupier of any house or place who shall neglect to keep clean all private avenues, passages, yards, and ways within or connected with the said premises so as by such neglect to cause a nuisance by offensive smell or otherwise, or who shall keep or permit or suffer to remain on any such premises within the above Borough any vehicle, article, or thing from which any unwholesome or offensive smell shall arise shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds for each and every such offence.

Drains, privies, &c., to be kept clean.

All drains, water-closets, privies, and cesspits shall be maintained and kept by the owner, occupant, or agent of such premises so as not to be a nuisance or injurious to health, and so as there shall be no soakage therefrom.

Inspector or other officer authorized to inspect premises.

For preserving the cleanliness of the said Borough and the health of the inhabitants thereof, it shall be lawful for the said Council and for any officer authorized and deputed by any writing under the hand of the Mayor of the Council from time to time and when and as often and at any time as he or either of them shall see occasion, to visit and inspect the butchers' shambles and slaughter-houses or other premises both within and without, as to him or either of them shall seem needful; and any butcher and the owner and occupier of any such shamble or slaughter-house or other premises who shall obstruct or molest any such officer in the inspection thereof, or shall refuse or neglect to comply with such directions as may be given by such officer within a reasonable time, such person shall be dealt with according to law.

Fines for offences against foregoing By-laws.

Any person offending against any of the foregoing Amended By-laws shall for each offence upon conviction before one or more of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds.

- 3.—That By-law 74 of the existing General By-laws be rescinded, and that the following be substituted in lieu thereof, viz. :—

Straying of Cattle.

1. It shall not be lawful for any person to suffer any kind of cattle, horse, ass, mule, sheep, or goat belonging to him or her or under his or her charge to stray or go about or be depastured in any road, street, or public place within the Borough; and any person who shall so offend shall forfeit and pay in respect of each and every such offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings for each and every animal so found straying.

- 4.—That the following By-laws be added to the existing General By-laws, viz. :—

Keeping of swine, &c.

1. Any person who shall breed, feed, or keep any kind of swine in any house, building, yard, garden, or other hereditament situate and being in or within forty yards of any street or public place, or any dwelling-house within the said Borough, shall on conviction forfeit and pay for every head of swine so kept a sum of not less than ten shillings and not exceeding forty shillings.

Cattle-sheds, pig-styes, &amp;c.

2. The occupier of any land within this Borough on which there shall be erected any stable, cow-yard, cattle-shed, or pig-stye beyond the limit of forty yards as aforesaid, shall cause such premises to be kept in such a state in respect of cleanliness as not to be a nuisance or injurious to health, and shall cause all dung, soil, or manure produced or accumulated thereon to be collected in a place (to be approved of by the Inspector of Nuisances) in the yard of such premises, and to be there in an inoffensive condition and so as not to be productive of any nuisance, and shall cause such dung, soil, or other manure to be from time to time removed from such premises as often as the quantity of the same so collected or accumulated shall amount to two cubic yards; and if at any time the owner or occupier of any such premises shall neglect or fail to have such dung, soil, or other manure removed therefrom as aforesaid, the same shall be removed under the instructions of the Inspector of Nuisances and by the Council's employés at the expense of such owner or occupier. For an offence against this By-law, any person so offending shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds over and above the expense of such removal as before stated.

Passed by the Municipal Council of the Borough of Camperdown, this fourteenth day of February, A.D. 1887.

(L.S.) GEO. H. SPARKES,
Mayor.

AMENDED BY-LAWS OF THE BOROUGH OF CAMPERDOWN, under the Nuisances Prevention Act of 1875.

That the existing By-laws as hitherto carried out under the Nuisances Prevention Act be and are hereby rescinded, and that the following By-laws be substituted in place thereof:—

Cesspits not to be constructed.

1. That from and after the passing of these By-laws no person shall be permitted to construct any cesspit upon any premises whatever within the Borough of Camperdown, but that the owner of such premises shall provide dry-earth closets, and of the description as hereinafter provided; any person offending against this By-law shall in each and every case forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than ten pounds.

Existing cesspits to be allowed to remain as such until condemned.

2. All existing cesspits shall be allowed to remain as such until it is deemed desirable by the Council that any or all of them shall be discontinued, or which may be condemned as a nuisance by the Inspector of Nuisances, or other officer appointed by the Council, when dry-earth closets shall in each case be substituted.

Notice of erection of closets to be given to the Council Clerk.

3. Every person who shall be about to erect or provide any earth-closet or closets shall, before commencing to erect or provide such closet or closets, deliver to the Council Clerk of the said Borough of Camperdown a notice in writing of his or her intention to erect or provide such earth closet or closets, and if any person shall commence to erect or provide any such closet or closets within the said Borough without having given such notice as aforesaid (except by the written authority of the Inspector of Nuisances, or other officer appointed for the time being by the Council of the said Borough, in that behalf) shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

Site for erection of closet to be approved of by Inspector.

4. No person shall erect or commence to erect or provide any dry-earth closet, except in such place or position as shall be approved of by the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer as aforesaid; any person or persons offending against this By-law shall in each case forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than ten pounds.

Size of closets and pans.

5. Every closet to be erected shall be built with walls seven feet high, and shall not be less than three feet six inches wide, and four feet six inches long, and shall be provided with a door capable of being fastened inside; the seat with the receptacle for earth-pan to be at the least three feet long by eighteen inches wide, internal measurements. The earth pans shall be of uniform size, of circular shape, not exceeding eighteen inches high by sixteen inches across the mouth, and fourteen inches across the bottom, and with handles on sides; any person who shall erect or provide any earth-closet which shall not be in accordance with this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than ten pounds.

Dividing wall between every two or more closets.

6. When two or more earth-closets adjoin each other there shall be a sufficient dividing wall not less than nine inches in thickness between every two such closets, and such wall shall extend from foundation through the roof so as to effect a complete separation; and if any person shall erect or provide any two or more earth closets adjoining each other not in accordance with this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than ten pounds.

A separate closet for each tenement.

7. A separate closet shall be provided for each tenement; and any person offending against this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than ten pounds.

Number of closets for factories or where numbers of persons are employed.

8. In factories or other places of business where a number of persons shall ordinarily reside or be occupied or employed therein, one earth-closet shall be provided for every ten persons or under, and separate closets at the same rates shall be provided for either sex; and every owner, occupier, or tenant of any such factory or other place of business, and every other person who shall offend against this By-law or fail to provide the required number of earth-closet as stated in this By-law, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than ten pounds.

Alterations if necessary for preserving health.

9. If any alteration shall be requisite in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer as aforesaid for preserving public health or decency in case of any existing cesspit or earth-closet, and the Council shall adjudge such cesspit or earth-closet as injurious to public health, or opposed to decency by exposure or otherwise, and the owner or occupier shall fail to make the necessary alterations after receiving seven days notice from the Council Clerk, it shall be lawful for the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council to cause such alterations to be made, and any expense incurred thereby may be sued for and recovered in a summary way before a Court of Petty Sessions.

Dépot for Night-soil.

10. The place for the deposit of night-soil shall be in such locality as may be from time to time approved by the Council.

Removal of Night-soil.

11. Until otherwise provided for by the Council, all night-soil from all closets shall be removed by contract in water-tight covered vehicles between the hours of eleven o'clock at night and five o'clock in the morning; and if any person shall remove any night-soil from any closet in any other manner or at any other time than as provided by this By-law shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two pounds and not more than ten pounds.

In case of sale, &amp;c., of Night-soil, and same to be deodorized.

12. In case the Council shall sell or give away any night-soil, the same shall be removed in the same manner and between the same hours as hereinbefore provided, and on being removed from the vehicles in which it is carried shall be deodorized by chemicals, or in some other effective manner, or covered with earth so as to prevent any offensive smell arising therefrom; and if any offensive smell therefrom shall arise, the person or persons to whom the said night-soil shall be sold or given, shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than ten pounds.

Hours for visiting and inspecting premises.

13. The Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council may visit and inspect any premises or do any work authorized by the "Nuisances Prevention Act of 1875," therein on all days except Sundays and public holidays, between the hours of ten o'clock in the morning and four o'clock in the afternoon, and any person who shall hinder or obstruct the Inspector of Nuisances or other officer appointed by the Council upon any such visitation or inspection or in the doing or performing any work on such premises shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than ten pounds.

No utilization or disposal of Night-soil except as hereinbefore provided.

14. No person or persons shall utilize or dispose of any kind of night-soil except as hereinbefore provided under a penalty of not less than two pounds nor more than ten pounds.

Passed by the Municipal Council of the Borough of Camperdown, this fourteenth day of February, A.D. 1887.

MUNICIPALITIES ACT OF 1867, AND NUISANCES PREVENTION ACT, 1875.

(MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF KOGARAH—BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Acts 31 Vic. No. 12, sec. 158, and 39 Vic. No. 14, sec. 18.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 27th June, 1887.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF KOGARAH.—BY-LAWS.

The following By-laws, made by the Council of the Municipal District of Kogarah, under the "Municipalities Act of 1867" and the "Nuisances Prevention Act 1875," respectively, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above cited Acts.

HENRY PARKES.

MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF KOGARAH.

BY-LAWS made by the Council of the Municipal District of Kogarah, under the Municipalities Act of 1867.

PART I.

Ordinary Meeting of Council.

1. Unless otherwise ordered, the Council shall meet for dispatch of business on every alternate Tuesday, at the hour of 7-30 p.m., unless such day shall happen to be a public holiday. In such case the meeting shall be held on such day as the Mayor may appoint.

Election of Chairman in absence of Mayor.

2. If, at any meeting of the Council, the Mayor be absent, at the expiration of fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding such meeting the Aldermen then present shall proceed to elect from among themselves a Chairman for such meeting.

Adjournment for want of quorum.

3. In the event of a quorum not being present at any meeting of the Council within half an hour after the time appointed for holding such meeting, the Aldermen then present shall be entered in the minute-book by the Council Clerk, and the meeting shall lapse. Should it appear at any time during the holding of any meeting that there is not a quorum of members present, the Mayor shall have the power to adjourn such a meeting, or intended meeting, to some other time.

Order of business.

4. The following shall be the order of business at all meetings of the Council, other than special meetings :—

1. The minutes of the preceding meeting to be read, corrected if erroneous, and signed by the Mayor or other Chairman. No discussion to be permitted on such minutes except as to whether they are correct.

2. Correspondence to be read and orders made thereon, if expedient.

3. Reports from Committees and minutes from the Mayor (if any) to be presented, and orders made thereon.

Petitions (if any) to be read and dealt with.

445—A

5. Questions as to any matters under the jurisdiction, or within the official cognizance of the Council, to be put and replied to, and statements as to any facts, matters, or circumstances requiring attention by the Council, or any of the Committees or officers to be made, or any other special business, but shall not be debated.

6. Orders of the day.

7. Motions of which due notice has been given to be dealt with in the order in which they stand on the business paper.

Other motions.

5. Provided that it shall be competent for the Council, by consent of all members present, at any time, to entertain any particular motion, or to deal with any particular matter of business, out of its regular order on the business paper, without any formal suspension of this section.

Business paper for special meetings.

6. The business paper for a special meeting shall contain only such matters as shall have been specially ordered to be entered thereon by the Mayor or Aldermen calling such meetings.

Minutes, how confirmed.

7. The question for confirming the minutes shall be proposed and seconded immediately upon their being read, and shall be to the effect that the minutes now read be confirmed as a correct record of the proceedings, and no discussion shall be allowed thereon, except on the point of accuracy. Minutes of the previous meetings to be read and verified at special meetings.

Answers to questions.

8. It shall not be compulsory for the Mayor to give official replies to questions put to him, unless he shall have had twenty-four hours' notice thereof.

Business paper, how prepared. See sec. 104 of Act.

9. The business paper for every meeting of the Council shall be made up by the Council Clerk, and sent by post to the Mayor and Aldermen, or left at their respective residences, at least twenty-four hours before the time appointed for such meeting.

The Council Clerk shall enter on such business paper a copy or the substance of every notice of motion, and of every order referring to business proposed to be entertained at such meeting.

Notices of motion, &c., to be numbered as received and preserved until matter is disposed of.

10. All notices of motion, &c., for consideration at general meetings shall be delivered to the Council Clerk at least four days before such meeting, in writing, and shall be numbered by him as they are received, and entered on the business paper according to their number; and each notice shall be preserved by such Clerk until after the matter to which it relates shall have been disposed of. Provided, however, that the person giving or forwarding any such notice of motion, &c., shall be at liberty to withdraw the same at any time before the making up of the business paper.

Motion, &c., withdrawn or altered.

11. No notice of motion, &c., shall be withdrawn from the business paper, altered, or amended without leave having been first obtained from the Council.

Motion to rescind by call of Council.

12. No motion, the effect of which if carried would be to rescind any motion which has already passed the Council during the preceding twelve months, shall be entertained unless a "call of the whole Council" has been duly made and granted for that purpose, and no such motion shall be discussed until the previous resolution be rescinded.

How business paper is to be disposed of.

13. The business paper for each meeting of the Council shall at such meeting be laid before the Mayor or Chairman, who shall make a note upon such business paper of the mode in which each matter entered thereon has been dealt with. And such business paper, so noted, shall be a record of the Council.

Motions, how to be moved.

14. Except by leave of the Council, motions shall be moved in the order in which they stand in the business paper, and if not so moved or postponed shall be struck from such business paper and be considered to have lapsed.

Amount of vote to be included on business paper.

15. All notices of motion and orders of the day involving an expenditure must include the amount proposed to be expended. No amendment shall be proposed to incur a greater expenditure than the original motion of which due notice has been given to the Aldermen, nor shall there be entertained any motion incidentally involving an expenditure without such notice. (See also By-laws 63 and 65).

Motion for adjournment.

16. No discussion shall be permitted on any motion for adjournment of the Council; and if, upon the question being put on any such motion, the same be negatived, the subject then under consideration, or the next in order on the business paper, or any other on such paper that shall be allowed precedence, shall be disposed of before any subsequent motion of adjournment shall be in order.

Of what orders of the day shall consist.

17. The orders of the day shall consist of all matters (other than notices of motion) which the Council shall, at a previous meeting thereof, have directed to be taken into consideration, or which shall necessarily arise out of the proceedings of a former meeting, or which the Mayor or any Committee of the Council shall have directed to be entered on the business paper for consideration.

Petitions.

Petitions to be respectfully worded.

18. It shall be incumbent on every Alderman presenting a petition to acquaint himself with the contents thereof, and to ascertain that it does not contain language disrespectful to the Council. The nature and prayer of every such petition shall be stated to the Council by the Alderman presenting the same; and all petitions shall be received only as the petitions of the parties signing the same.

How petitions are to be dealt with.

19. No motion shall, unless as hereinafter provided, be permissible on the presentation of a petition, except that the same be received, or that it be received and referred to a Committee, or that it be received and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice of motion in reference to any petition, and such petition shall have been presented before such Alderman shall have been called upon to move such motion, the said motion shall, if otherwise unobjectionable, be considered in order.

Reports from Committees.

Form of report.

20. All reports from Committees shall be in writing, and signed by the Chairman of such Committee.

Mayor's minutes.

21. The Mayor shall have the right of directing the attention of the Council to any matter or subject within its jurisdiction or official cognizance by a minute, in writing, signed by himself.

How reports, &c., are to be dealt with.

22. No motion shall be permissible on the presentation of a report from a Committee or a minute from the Mayor, except that the same be received, or that it be received and that its consideration stand an order of the day for some future meeting: Provided, however, that if any Alderman shall have given due notice in reference to any such report or minute, or if an order for the consideration of such report or minute shall have been entered among the orders of the day, such motion or order may be moved or considered in due course.

Order of Debate.

Amendments, how disposed of.

23. Whenever an amendment is moved upon an original proposition, no second amendment shall be taken into consideration until the first amendment has been disposed of. If the first amendment be carried, it shall displace the original question and become itself the question subject to any further amendment. If the first amendment be negatived, then a second amendment may be moved upon the original question under consideration; but only one amendment shall be submitted to the Council for discussion at one time.

Mode of addressing the Council, &c.

24. Every Alderman who shall propose or second any motion, or shall propose or second any amendment, or shall take part in any debate or discussion, or shall put or reply to any question, or shall make any statement, or shall in any other way or for any other purpose address observations to the Council, shall, while so doing, stand up in his customary place (unless he shall be prevented from doing so by some bodily infirmity), and shall address himself to the Mayor or other Chairman then presiding: Provided that in the case of a question, such question may, by permission of such Mayor or Chairman, be put directly to the Alderman or officer to be questioned, and may be replied to in like manner; but in every such case the question so put and the answer thereto shall be subject to every legal objection on the ground of disorder or irrelevancy. And all members of the Council shall, on all occasions when in such Council, address and speak of each other by their official designations, as Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be.

Speaker not to be interrupted if in order.

25. No Alderman shall be interrupted while thus speaking, unless for the purpose of calling him to order, as hereinafter provided.

Speaker not to digress, &c.

26. No Alderman shall digress from the subject under discussion, or shall make personal reflections on, nor impute improper motives to, any other Alderman.

Mayor to decide as to pre-audience.

27. If two or more Aldermen rise to speak at the same time, the Mayor or Chairman shall decide which of such Aldermen shall be first heard.

Aldermen may require question to be stated, &c., under certain restrictions.

28. Any Alderman may request the subject-matter under discussion to be read or stated for his information, or may require the production of any records of the Council bearing upon such matter which are readily accessible: Provided, however, that no such request shall be so made as to interrupt any other Alderman when speaking, or materially to interrupt the discussion: Provided, also, that if any such request shall appear to the Mayor not to have been made bona-fide, it shall not be complied with.

Lapsed business.

29. Whenever the consideration of any motion or matter of business shall have been interrupted by reason of a quorum not having been present, the consideration of such question shall, in such case, be resumed, at the point where it was so interrupted as aforesaid, at the next fortnightly meeting, and in its proper order.

Previous question.

30. On the previous question being moved and seconded, no debate shall be permitted.

Motion, debate, &c., may be adjourned.

31. Any particular motion or business may be adjourned to a later hour, or to any other day specified. A debate also may be so adjourned, and the Alderman upon whose motion such debate shall have been so adjourned shall be entitled to pre-audience on the resumption of the same.

Members speaking.

32. No member shall speak on any motion or amendment longer than ten minutes, without the consent of the Council.

Absence of proposed mover.

33. No notice of motion which shall have been entered on the business paper shall be proceeded with in the absence of the Alderman by whom such notice shall have been given, unless by some other Alderman producing a written authority for that purpose from such first-named Alderman.

Motion to be seconded.

34. No motion shall be discussed until it be seconded.

Motion may be divided.

35. The Mayor shall have power to order a complicated question to be divided and put to the meeting separately.

Limitation as to number of speeches, &c.

36. Every mover of an original motion shall have a right of one general reply to any objections which may have been made in reference to such motion (but not otherwise), and shall not introduce any new matter—the word objections to mean amendments and motions to postpone. Every other Alderman shall be at liberty to speak once upon such motion, unless when misrepresented or misunderstood, in which case he may, by permission of the Mayor, be permitted to explain only, without adding any further observations.

Mover and seconder.

37. An Alderman who has moved any motion or amendment shall be considered to have spoken thereon; but any Alderman who shall have seconded any such motion or amendment, without any further observation than that he seconded the same, shall be at liberty to speak on such motion or amendment, as the case may be.

Amendment may be moved.

38. When a motion has been proposed and seconded, any Alderman shall be at liberty to move an amendment thereon, in writing, but no such amendment shall be discussed until it be seconded.

Amendments to be in writing.

39. All amendments must be in writing, signed by mover and delivered to the Clerk, who shall add thereto the name of the seconder. Any member, excepting the mover and seconder, having previously spoken to the original motion, shall not at this stage speak, but may do so on the amendment becoming the question before the Council.

Questions of Order.Mayor or Chairman to decide points of order.

40. The Mayor or Chairman shall preserve order, and his decision on disputed points of order or practice shall be final in that particular case; and the Mayor or Chairman may, without the interposition of any other member of the Council, call any Alderman to order, whenever, in the opinion of such Mayor or Chairman, there shall be a necessity for so doing; and every member of the Council shall have the right of calling the attention of the Mayor or Chairman to any motion, amendment, statement, argument, or observation moved, used, or made by any other member which such first-named member may consider out of order. And the Mayor or Chairman, when called upon to decide points of order or practice, shall state the provisions, rule, or practice which he shall deem applicable to the case, without discussing or commenting upon the same.

Penalties for persisting in disorderly conduct.

41. Any member of the Council, either in Council or Committee, who shall have been called to order by the Mayor or Chairman, and who shall still persist in any line of conduct or argument which shall have been decided as aforesaid to be disorderly, and shall refuse to make such explanation, retraction, or apology, as a majority of the Aldermen then present shall consider satisfactory, shall be liable on conviction for each offence to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds.

Mode of Voting.How questions are to be put.

42. The Mayor or Chairman shall put to the Council all questions on which it shall be necessary that a vote be taken, and shall declare the sense of such Council thereon; and he shall be at liberty to put any such question as often as may be necessary to enable him to form and declare his opinion as to the decision of the majority of members present.

Division penalty for refusing to vote.

43. Any Alderman shall be at liberty to call for a division. In such case, the question shall be put first in the affirmative and then in the negative, and the Aldermen shall vote by show of hands, and the names and votes of the Aldermen present shall be recorded. Any Alderman present when a division is called for, and in any way refusing to vote on such division, shall be liable, for every such offence, to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

Protests.Mode of protesting.—Protest to be recorded.

44. Every member of the Council (the Mayor included) may protest against any resolution or vote by the Council: Notice of the intention so to protest must, however, be given at the meeting when such resolution is passed or such vote is arrived at, and the protest itself must be handed or sent to the Council Clerk not later than seven days after such notice.

Special powers of Mayor.

45. The Mayor shall exercise a general supervision over all officers and servants of the Corporation, and may order the preparation of any return or statement, or the giving of any explanation or information by any such officer or servant in connection with his duties as he may think necessary.

Usage of Houses of Parliament to be observed, unless other provision made.

46. In all cases not herein provided for, resort shall be had to the rules, forms, and practices of the New South Wales Parliament, which shall be followed, as far as they can be applied to the proceedings of this Council.

Calls of the Council.How call may be made.

47. A call of the Council may be ordered by any resolution of which due notice shall have been given, for the consideration of any motion or matter of business before such Council.

Mode of proceeding.

48. The call shall be made immediately before the motion or business for which such call has been ordered shall be moved or considered. Such call shall be made as follows:—The Council Clerk shall call the names of all the members in their alphabetical order, each member present shall answer to his name so called, and if any members are absent a record shall be made of such absence; but if leave of absence to any such member shall have previously been granted, or if such an excuse in writing shall have been forwarded to the Mayor or Council Clerk as a majority of the Council then present shall consider satisfactory, such absent member shall stand excused, and a record shall be made of such excuse, and of the reasons for the same.

Penalty for absence without legal excuse.—Further call when question adjourned.

49. Any member of the Council who, having had notice of such call of the Council, shall not answer to his name as aforesaid, or who, being absent, shall not be legally excused as aforesaid, or who, if absent, and not so excused, shall fail to show that by reason of extreme illness or any other sufficient cause he has been unable to send an excuse in writing as aforesaid, or who, having answered to his name as aforesaid, shall not be present when a vote is taken on the motion or business as to which such call has been made as aforesaid, shall, for every such offence, be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds: Provided that if the consideration of every such motion or matter of business be adjourned to a future day, there shall be a further call on the resumption of such consideration; and the provisions herein as to penalties for absence shall have reference to such further call: And if there shall be more than one adjournment, this proviso shall be taken to extend to the resumption of the consideration of such motion or matter of business after every such adjournment.

Standing and Special Committees.Standing Committees.

50. There shall be five Standing Committees, viz., Works or Improvement, Finance, By-laws, Lighting, and General Purposes Committee. These Committees shall be reappointed every year at the first meeting of the Council which shall be held after the election of the Mayor, and shall hold office until their successors are appointed.

Works or Improvement Committee.

51. The Works Committee shall consist of the whole Council, three to form a quorum, and shall have the general direction of all works ordered or sanctioned by the Council, and the general inspection of all streets, roads, ways, bridges, public reserves, and other public places under the care and management of the Council. They shall also inquire and report from time to time as to such improvements or repairs as they may think necessary, or as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire into and report upon.

Finance Committee.

52. The Finance Committee shall consist of four Aldermen and the Mayor, three to form a quorum, and shall examine and check all accounts, and shall watch generally over the collection and expenditure of the Municipal revenues. They shall inquire and report from time to time as to all matters which they may consider to affect, or to be likely to affect, the finances of the Borough; and as to such matters or subjects of the like nature as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire into and report upon.

By-law Committee.

53. The By-law Committee shall consist of three Aldermen and the Mayor, two to form a quorum. It shall be their duty to prepare for the consideration of the Council drafts of all such by-laws as may be required. It shall be the duty of the By-law Committee to inspect the records from time to time to ascertain that the same are properly kept, as aforesaid, and to report at once to the Council any act of neglect or appearance of inefficiency which they may discover in the keeping of such records. They shall also consider and report in due course upon any matter referred to them by the Council.

Lighting Committee.

54. The Lighting Committee shall consist of four Aldermen, two to form a quorum. It shall be their duty to carefully consider all matters referred to them by the Council, from time to time, in connection with or appertaining to the lighting of the Municipal District, the supply of gas or otherwise under control; and such Committee shall, without delay, report to the Council in writing, with such recommendations as they may deem necessary.

General Purposes Committee.

55. The General Purposes Committee shall consist of four Aldermen, two to form a quorum. It shall be their duty to take cognizance of every matter, subject, or question within the jurisdiction of the Council not coming within the province of one or other of the before-mentioned Standing Committees, as they may be directed by resolution of the Council to inquire into and report upon.

Special Committees.

56. Special Committees may consist of any number of members, and may be appointed for the performance of any duty which may be lawfully entrusted to a Committee, and for which, in the opinion of the Council, a Special Committee ought to be appointed. And no Standing Committee shall interfere with the performance of any duty which may, for the time being, have been entrusted to any such Special Committee. The appointment of every such Special Committee shall be made by resolution, after due notice, and it shall be incumbent on the mover of such resolution to embody therein a statement of the duties proposed to be entrusted to such Special Committee. The mover of any such resolution may name therein such members as in his opinion ought to constitute such Committee, or he may propose that such Committee consist of a certain number of members.

Chairman of Committee.

57. Every Committee of which the Mayor shall not be a member shall elect a permanent Chairman of such Committee within seven days after their appointment.

Term of service in Committees.

58. The appointment of every Special Committee shall be considered to endure until the duties for which such Committee have been appointed shall have been fully performed: Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be held to affect in any way the right of such Committee to remove any Chairman of such Committee, or to appoint another Chairman in his stead.

Committee meetings—how called.

59. The Council Clerk shall call a meeting of any Committee when requested so to do by the Chairman or any two members of such Committee, or the Chairman thereof may call a meeting if he shall think fit.

Records of transactions in Committee.

60. The Chairman of each Standing Committee shall make, or cause to be made, in a book to be kept by him for that purpose, memoranda of all the transactions of such Committee, which book he shall, on ceasing to be such Chairman, hand over to his successor.

61. No person, except a member of a Committee, shall be admitted at any meeting of such Committee, without the consent of the Chairman, and the approval of the majority of members present.

Expenditure.

Except in emergent matters, cost of all works to be estimated before undertaken.

62. With the exception of emergent matters hereinafter specially provided for, no work affecting the funds of the Borough shall be undertaken until the probable expense thereof shall have been first ascertained by the Council.

Emergent matters and necessary current expenses.—Expenses authorized to be reported.—Outlay to be in accord with orders of the Council

63. For emergent matters and for necessary current expenses during the intervals which may elapse between the meetings of the Council, outlays to the following extent may be incurred:—

1. By order of the Works Committee, or of the Mayor and one member of such Committee,—for repairs or emergent works in one place, to the extent of five pounds.
2. By order of the Mayor,—for necessary current expenses, the extent of two pounds.

Provided, in every case, a detailed report in writing of every such outlay shall be laid before the Council at its next meeting; such report to be signed by the Chairman of the Works Committee or the Mayor, by whom such outlay shall have been authorized. Also, that such outlay shall only be permissible in reference to matters coming strictly within the jurisdiction or functions of the Council; and that no outlay, involving a disobedience or evasion of any order or resolution of such Council, shall on any pretence be thus authorized.

Estimate of expenditure.

64. No resolution, motion, or report, involving the expenditure of Municipal funds exceeding in amount the sum of twenty-five pounds, shall be adopted by the Council, unless an estimate of cost of the same shall have been previously made and submitted to the Council or a Committee by some responsible officer of the Council or other competent person, in either case duly appointed for that purpose.

All claims to be examined and reported upon by Finance Committee.

65. All accounts and demands of money against or from the Council shall be examined and reported on by the Special Committee for that purpose before any order shall be made for payment of such accounts or demands.

Certificate required with each claim.

66. No payment shall be ordered unless there shall be a certificate or memorandum from the Committee, Mayor, or officer of the Council to whom the direction or guardianship of such expenditure properly belongs, showing that the demand is a legitimate one, and has been duly authorized or inquired into. It shall be the imperative duty of the Finance Committee to see that this requirement is fulfilled before recommending payment: Provided that in cases of special expenditure under section 62 of this part of these by-laws, the report directed by that section to be laid before the Council shall, if the outlay shall have been lawfully incurred, be deemed a sufficient certificate.

Common Seal and Records of the Council.Common Seal.

67. The Common Seal shall be in the custody and care of the Council Clerk, and shall not be attached to any document without an express order of the Council. In every case when such common seal has been ordered to be attached to any document, such document shall also be signed by the Mayor, or, in case of the absence or illness of such Mayor, by two Aldermen, and countersigned by the Council Clerk.

Records of the Council defined.

68. The minute-book, letter-book, and all rate and assessment books, books of account, records, statements and memoranda of receipts and expenditure, electoral rolls, and records relating to elections, business papers, reports from Committees, minutes from the Mayor, petitions, letters on municipal business addressed to the Council or to the Mayor or to any officer or servant of the Council, orders, reports, returns, and memoranda relating to Municipal business, drawings, maps, plans, contracts, specifications, agreements, and all other books and papers connected with the business of the Council, shall be deemed records of the Council.

Records not to be removed, &c.—Penalties.—Exceptional circumstances.—Receipt to be given in every case before document received.—Proviso as to use of records as matters of evidence.

69. Any person removing any book or other record of the Council as aforesaid from the Council Chamber, without leave for such removal having been first obtained from such Council, or without other lawful cause for such removal, as hereinafter provided, shall, for every such offence, be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds. And nothing herein contained shall be held to affect the further liability of any person who shall have removed such book or other record as aforesaid to prosecution for stealing such book or record, or to an action at law for detention of the same: Provided that leave for temporary removal of a book or other record may be granted to the Council Clerk or the Treasurer by the Mayor, in order that such Clerk or Treasurer may post up entries or perform any other duty which it may be necessary that he should perform; also, that the Mayor, or the Chairman of any Committee, or any Alderman acting for any such Chairman, may temporarily remove any record necessary for the preparation of a minute or a report, or for the purposes of any prosecution or suit at law, by, against, or at the instance of the Council; but, in all such cases, such Clerk, Treasurer, Mayor, Chairman, or Alderman, as the case may be, shall give a receipt under his hand for every document so removed, and every such receipt shall be preserved among the records until the book or other record to which it refers shall have been returned, when such receipt shall be destroyed. And provided, also, that the Mayor, Council Clerk, or other officer of the Council who may be subpoenaed to produce any book or other record of the Council in a Court of Law, shall have the right to remove such book or other record for the purpose of obeying such summons, but shall return such book record as speedily as possible; and every such person so removing any book or other record of the Council as aforesaid shall be legally responsible for the safe keeping and return of the same.

Penalty for defacing or destroying record

70. Any person destroying, defacing, or altering any record of the Council, shall, for every such offence, be liable to a penalty of not less than five shillings, or more than fifty pounds.

Officers and Servants.

Bonds for good conduct.

71. All bonds of officers or servants of the Council for the faithful performance of their duties shall be deposited as the Council may order; and no officer or servant of the Council shall be received as surety for any other officer or servant.

Duties of Council Clerk.

72. The Council Clerk, in compliance with the Municipalities Act of 1867, or by the present or any other by-laws made thereunder, shall perform the following duties, viz.:—

1. Attend all Council Meetings.
2. Attend all Courts of Revision and Appeal.
3. Summon the members of the Council to all Council or Committee Meetings.
4. Take notes of all minutes and prepare reports of all Committees.
5. Conduct all correspondence ordered by the Council, or under the direction of the Mayor, and give all other officers instructions as directed by the Minutes.
6. To see that the accounts are audited and the balance-sheet duly submitted twice a year within the times specified by law.
7. To see to the gazetting of all By-laws and necessary advertisements.
8. To see that the assessment books and the Municipal Lists and Rolls are duly prepared, examine proofs of latter, and arrange for distribution of copies, on payment, to electors, prior to the elections.
9. Make all necessary arrangements for the elections, preparing all papers, &c., for presiding officers and poll-clerks.
10. Prepare all bonds of officers, see that the guarantees are given, and agreements duly signed, &c., and report same to the Council.
11. Advise with the officers from time to time as to their duties and the mode of carrying them out.
12. See that all levels and names of streets have been duly advertised, as provided for by law, and authenticated by the Mayor's signature.
13. To bring under the notice of the Mayor any matter or thing requiring his prompt attention.
14. He shall likewise have charge of all the records of the Council, except such books or documents as may be entrusted to any other officer of the Council, and shall be responsible for the safe keeping of such records. He shall generally assist the Mayor in carrying out the orders of the Council.
15. He shall enter into a Guarantee Society's security for an amount fixed by the Council from time to time, for not less than £300, for the faithful performance of his duties.
16. And otherwise as provided for by any Act in force relating to the Municipal District of Kogarah.

Complaints against officers, &c.—how dealt with.

73. All complaints against officers or servants of the Corporation must be in writing, and must in every case be signed by the person or persons complaining; and no notice whatever shall be taken of any complaint which is not in writing or is anonymous. All such complaints may be addressed to the Mayor, who, immediately upon the receipt of any such complaint, and without laying the same before the Council, shall have power to investigate the same, and report thereon at the next meeting; or he may, if necessary, suspend such officer or servant till the Council shall have dealt with the charge.

Miscellaneous.

Leave of absence.

74. No leave of absence shall be granted to the Mayor or to any Alderman otherwise than by resolution of the Council, adopted after due notice.

PART II.

Collection and enforcement of Rates.

Times and modes of collection.—Rates to be collected yearly.

75. All rates levied or imposed by the Council under the provisions of the Municipalities Act of 1867 and its amendments, shall be levied and collected for the year, and be due and payable on and after such days as the Council shall, by resolution, appoint at the time of making or imposing such rates.

Rates on damaged premises.

76. In the event of any premises being wholly or partially destroyed by fire or other accident, the Council shall have power to accept an equitable proportion of the assessed rates of such premises for the remainder of any municipal year.

Rates to be paid at office of Council Clerk.

77. All persons liable to pay any rates as aforesaid, shall pay the amount thereof, within the time prescribed by the said resolution, into the office of the Council Clerk, during the office hours appointed by the Council.

Defaulters.

78. It shall be the duty of the Council Clerk to furnish the Mayor with a list of the names of all persons whose rates are unpaid at the expiration of the times fixed for payment of the same as aforesaid.

Mayor to enforce payment.

79. The Mayor shall issue distress warrants against all such persons, and cause such warrants to be enforced, or cause such defaulters to be sued for the amount of such rates, in a Court of competent jurisdiction.

Enforcement by Distress.

Bailiff.

80. A Bailiff shall, when found necessary, be appointed by the Council, and the said Bailiff shall find sureties, to the satisfaction of the Council, to the extent of not less than twenty pounds each for the faithful performance of his duties; and it shall be the duty of the Bailiff to make all levies by distress for the recovery of rates, in the manner hereinafter provided.

Warrant of distress.

81. All levies and distresses shall be made under warrant, in the form of Schedule A hereto, under the hand of the Mayor or any Alderman who may for the time being be duly authorized to perform the duties of that office.

Distress and sale, &c.

82. If the sum for which any such distress shall have been made shall not be paid with costs, as hereinafter provided, on or before the expiration of five days, the Bailiff shall cause to be sold the goods so distrained, or a sufficient portion thereof, by public auction, either on the premises or at such other place within the said Municipal District as the Bailiff may think proper to remove them to for such purpose, and shall pay over the surplus (if any) that may remain, after deducting the amount of the sum distrained for and costs, as hereinafter provided, to the owner of the goods so sold, on demand of such surplus by such owner.

Inventory.

83. At the time of making a distress, the Bailiff shall make out a written inventory, in the form of Schedule B hereto, which inventory shall be delivered to the occupant of the land or premises, or the owner of the goods so distrained, or to some person on his or her behalf resident at the place where the distress shall be made; and in case there shall be no person at such place with whom such inventory can be left as aforesaid, then such inventory shall be posted on some conspicuous part of the land or premises on which the distress is made; and the Bailiff shall give a copy of the inventory to such person, on demand, at any time within one month after making such distress.

Goods may be impounded.

84. The Bailiff, on making a distress as aforesaid, may impound or otherwise secure the goods or chattels so distrained, of what nature or kind soever, in such place or places, or in such part of the land or premises chargeable with rates as shall be most fit and convenient for this purpose; and it shall be lawful for any person whomsoever, after the expiration of the five days as hereinbefore mentioned, to come and go to and from such place or part of the said land or premises where such goods or chattels shall be impounded and secured as aforesaid, in order to view and buy, and in order to carry off and remove the same on account of the purchaser thereof.

Owner to direct order of sale.

85. The owner of any goods or chattels so distrained upon may, at his or her option, direct and specify the order in which they shall be successively sold, and the said goods or chattels shall in such case be put up for sale according to such direction.

Proceeds of Distress.

85. The Bailiff shall hand over to the Council Clerk all proceeds of every such distress within forty-eight hours after having received the same.

Costs.

87. There shall be payable to the Bailiff, for the use of the Council, for every levy and distress made under these By-laws the costs and charges in the Schedule hereto annexed marked C.

SCHEDULE A.

Warrant of Distress.

PART III.

Preventing and Extinguishing Fires.

Fire or combustible materials, &amp;c.

91. Every person who shall place, or knowingly permit to be placed, in any house, yard, or workshop, out-offices, or other premises, fire, gunpowder, or combustible, or inflammable material of any kind, in such a manner as to endanger contiguous buildings, shall, on conviction for every such offence, forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than five pounds, and shall forthwith remove such fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable materials. And every such person who shall suffer any such fire, gunpowder, or combustible or inflammable materials to remain as aforesaid for twenty-four hours after any such conviction, shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Inflammable fences, &amp;c.

92. Every person who shall erect any fence of brushwood, bushes, or other inflammable material, or shall make or place any stack of hay, corn, straw, or other produce, or place, as or for the covering of any such stack, any inflammable material, so as to endanger contiguous buildings or properties, or any trees, shrubs, or other produce of such properties, or any chattels in or upon such buildings or properties, shall forfeit, on conviction for every such offence, a penalty of not more than five pounds, and also shall remove such fence, stack, or covering within a reasonable time after such conviction. And any person failing to remove such fence, stack, or covering within a reasonable time after any such conviction as aforesaid, shall be deemed guilty of a further offence against this By-law.

Discharging fireworks, firearms, &amp;c.

93. Every person who shall light any bonfire, tar-barrel, or fireworks, or shall discharge any firearms, or who shall light any combustible matter to the endangering of property upon or within sixty yards of any public or private street, or any public place, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Wilfully setting fire to chimneys.

94. Every person who wilfully sets or causes to be set on fire any chimney flue, smoke-vent, or stove-pipe, herein called in common a "chimney", shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds:

PART IV.

Tenders.

1. Whenever it is decided that any work shall be executed or material supplied to exceed the sum of £5, the same shall be executed or supplied by contract, and tenders for the execution of such work or the supply of such material shall be called for by public notice, as hereinafter provided. Each tender must be accompanied by a bond from two householders who shall become sureties for the due performance of the work by the person tendering. The Council shall not be bound to accept any tender, but in all cases the preference shall be given to the lowest tender if the price and sureties be approved of.

Notices.

2. In all cases where public notice is or shall be required to be given by any By-law of any appointment, resolution, act, order, or regulation of the Council or any Committee thereof, or by the Mayor or any officer of the said Council, such notice shall be given and published by posting the same on or near the outer door of the Council Chambers for the space of seven days, and by advertising the same twice in some newspaper circulating in the Municipality.

Persons obstructing officers of the Council.

3. Any person or persons who shall obstruct any officer of the said Council while in the performance of his duty, or who shall interfere with any officer of the said Council doing or performing, or going to perform, or returning from the performance of any duty or act under these By-laws, by using any threat, offensive language, hindrance, or insulting language towards the said officer in any street, road, or place within the said Municipality, shall forfeit and pay, for every such offence, a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than two pounds.

New roads to be reported on.

4. No new public road, street, way, park, or other place proposed to be dedicated to the public, shall be taken under the charge and management of the Council until after such road, street, way, or park shall have been formed by the proprietor or proprietors to the reasonable satisfaction of the Committee of Works or any duly authorized officer, or until the said road, street, way, or park shall have been reported upon to the Council by such Committee or duly authorized officer.

Dedication of new roads, &amp;c.

5. If the Council shall determine to take charge of any such road, way, or other place, as aforesaid, the plan or plans so signed, as aforesaid, shall be preserved as a record or records of the Council; and the proprietor or proprietors aforesaid shall execute such further instrument dedicating such road, way, park, or other place to public use or recreation, as aforesaid, as may be considered necessary by the Committee for General Purposes, and such further instrument of dedication shall also be preserved as a record of the Council.

Change of street levels.

6. Whenever it may be deemed necessary to alter the level of any such public road, street, or way, as aforesaid, the Committee for Works shall cause a plan and section, showing the proposed cuttings, to be exhibited at the Council Chamber for fourteen days for the information and inspection of rate-payers, and shall notify by advertisement in some newspaper circulating in the Municipality that such plan is open to inspection. At a subsequent meeting of the Council, the same plan and section shall, if adopted, be signed by the Mayor or Chairman and the proposer and seconder of the motion for such adoption and countersigned by the Council Clerk. And such plan and section so signed, and countersigned, shall be a record of the Council.

Roads and streets, and encroachments therein, &amp;c.

7. The Committee of Works, or the Surveyor of the Municipality, or other officer or person duly authorized by the Council in that behalf, shall be the proper officer for marking out, and shall fix, mark, and lay out the levels of all public roads, streets, lanes and thoroughfares, and the carriage and foot ways thereof, which now are or shall hereafter be under or subject to the control, construction, care, or management of the Council. In marking out such roads, streets, lanes, and thoroughfares, recourse shall be had, when practicable, to the plans under which the land with frontage to the road, street, lane or thoroughfare in question shall have been sold or let. And it shall be the duty of such Committee of Works, or Surveyor, or other officer, to place posts at the corners of intersections of such streets, roads, lanes, and thoroughfares, whenever the same may be deemed necessary or desirable by the Council so as to give 42 feet for the carriage-way and 12 feet for the foot-way on each side where the road, street, lane, or thoroughfare shall be 66 feet wide; and in proportion, and in the discretion of the Council, in any such road, street, lane or thoroughfare, or other public place of other width than 66 feet. Provided that there shall be no change of level in any such public road, street, lane, thoroughfare, or public place, until the same shall have been submitted to and adopted by the Council, as hereinafter provided.

This By-law shall be subject in all respects to "The Width of Streets and Lanes Act of 1881." (45 Vic. No. 28.)

Kerbing, &amp;c.

8. The Council may cause any work, such as kerbing, guttering, road-making, and other required works, to be executed under its control in any case, upon receiving a request for the same to be done, and upon the person requesting same agreeing to pay not less than 45 per cent. of the cost of the same.

Erection of houses, &amp;c.

9. No person shall be permitted to erect any house, shop, or other building in any street, lane, or place, within this Municipality, without his serving notice in writing on the Mayor or Council Clerk, stating such intention, and describing the proposed situation of the building or erection, nor without having received an authority from the Mayor or Council Clerk, who will give the required level and alignment, if in a proclaimed street, on payment of a fee of five shillings. No person shall be at liberty to encroach beyond the building line in any street or lane by the erection of verandahs, overhanging balconies, doorsteps, fences, or any other obstruction whatever. Any person offending against this by-law shall be liable to a fine of not less than ten shillings and not exceeding ten pounds; and, in the case of encroachment, shall be liable to a further fine of not less than five shillings nor more than two pounds for every day the same shall remain unremoved or unaltered after receiving seven days' notice to that effect.

Subdivision of lands.

10. Any person or persons being desirous of subdividing any land into allotments, shall submit a plan to the Council for their approval, showing the extent of each such proposed subdivision and the provision for drainage, one month prior to disposal of the same being made. For neglecting to do so, they shall be liable to a penalty of not less than ten pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Change of street names.

11. The Council shall have power from time to time, as they may deem expedient, to alter the name of any street, road, lane, avenue, or other public road situate within the Municipality, and so soon thereafter as may be convenient shall cause a notification thereof to be inserted in the Government Gazette and one or more daily newspapers circulating within the municipality.

No private sewers to be made to communicate with the public sewers without notice.

12. It shall not be lawful for any person, without permission from the Council, to make or branch any private drain or sewer into any of the public drains or sewers, or into any drain or sewer communicating therewith; and in case any person or persons shall make or branch any private drain or sewer into any of the said public drains or sewers, or into any drain or sewer communicating or to communicate therewith, without such notice, or otherwise than as aforesaid, every person so offending shall, for every such offence, on conviction, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds, and shall close such private drain, under a further penalty of two pounds a week or part of a week, so long as such private drain remains after such conviction.

Proprietors of private sewers, &amp;c., to repair and cleanse same.

13. All drains or sewers communicating with any public drain, or sewer, shall from time to time be repaired and cleansed, under the inspection and direction of the Council, at the costs and charges of the occupiers of the houses, buildings, lands, and premises to which the said private sewers or drains shall respectively belong; and in case any person shall neglect to repair and cleanse, or cause any such private drain or sewer to be repaired and cleansed, according to the direction of the said Council, he shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds.

Drains for discharge of surface water from land.

14. Every owner or occupier of land in, adjoining to, or near any street, if such land shall be so situated that surface or storm water from or upon the same shall overflow, or shall tend naturally, if not otherwise discharged, to overflow any foot-way of such street shall, within seven days next after the service of notice from the Council for that purpose, construct and lay a covered drain from such point upon such land, being near to the foot-way, as shall be specified in such notice by plan appended or otherwise, and higher in level than the bottom of the channel at the outer edge of the footway to the said channel, and through, under, and transversely to the foot-way, and keep in good condition such covered drain, as and subject to the inspection of the Council or its proper officers; and in default of compliance with any such notice within the period aforesaid, or with the provisions of this by-law, such owner or occupier shall forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than ten shillings. And if after such conviction, such drain shall not be constructed as herein specified, or kept in good condition, such owner or occupier shall forfeit any sum not less than five shillings nor more than two pounds per day for each and every day after such conviction.

Houses, &amp;c., spouted.

15. All proprietors of houses within the municipality having a frontage to any street shall be bound to have the same sufficiently spouted with down-pipe, to be carried under the surface of the footpath into the gutter, under a penalty of ten shillings on conviction; and, if not remedied at the expiration of seven days after such conviction, the offender shall be again liable to a like conviction and penalty, also for every succeeding seven days.

No turf, gravel, &amp;c., to be removed from streets without permission.

16. Any person who shall form, dig or open any drain or sewer, or remove, or cause to be removed, any turf, clay, sand, soil, gravel, stone, or other material used in the formation of the streets, in or from any part of the carriage or foot-way of any street or other public place within the said Municipal District, without leave first had and obtained from the Council, or who shall wantonly break up or otherwise damage any such carriage or foot-way, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Digging holes, &amp;c.

17. If any person shall make, or dig, or cause to be made or dug, any hole, or leave, or cause to be left, any hole in or adjoining to any street, road, or public place within the said Municipality, for the purpose of making any vault or vaults, or the foundation or foundations to any house or other building, or for any other purpose whatsoever, and shall not forthwith enclose the same in a good and sufficient manner, or shall keep, or cause to be kept up and continued, any such enclosure for any time, which shall not be longer than shall be reasonably required, or shall not when thereunto required by the said Council, well and sufficiently fence or enclose any such hole within twenty-four hours after he shall be required to do so by the said Council, and in the manner and with such materials as they shall direct, and to their satisfaction, and shall not place a light upon the said enclosure and keep the same constantly burning from sunset to sunrise during the continuance of such enclosure, then and in every such case the person so offending shall forfeit and pay, for every such offence, and for every such refusal or neglect, any sum not exceeding five pounds.

Lights on obstructions, hoardings, &amp;c.

18. Any person who shall have caused building materials, or hoarding enclosing such building materials, or any obstruction whatever, to be placed on any portion of the foot-way or road-way in any street or streets of this Municipality, without having first obtained permission from the Council, and paid a fee of five shillings, and shall also keep the same properly lighted from sunset to sunrise, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Temporary stoppage of traffic for repairs, &amp;c.

19. The Committee for Works, or any officer or person acting under the authority of such Committee, may at any time cause the traffic of any street, lane, or thoroughfare, or any portion thereof, to be stopped for the purpose of repairing the same, or for any necessary purpose; and any person or persons offending against this By-law, either by travelling on such street, lane, or thoroughfare, or by removing or destroying any obstruction that may be placed thereon for the purpose of suspending the traffic, shall forfeit and pay penalty of any sum not exceeding five pounds for every such offence.

Drawing or trailing timber, &amp;c.

20. Any person who shall haul or draw, or cause to be hauled or drawn, upon any part of any street or public place within the said Municipality, any timber, stone, or other thing, otherwise than upon wheeled vehicles, or to drag or to trail upon any part of such street or public place, to the injury thereof, shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum of not more than forty shillings nor less than five shillings over and above the damages occasioned thereby.

Throwing filth, &amp;c., on footways, &amp;c. - Killing animals.

21. Any person who shall throw, cast, or lay, or shall cause, permit, or suffer to be thrown, cast, or laid, or to remain, any ashes, rubbish, offal, dung, soil, dead animal, blood, slops, suds, or filth, or annoyance, or any matter or thing, into any public, watercourse, sewer, or canal, or in or upon the carriage-way, foot-way or water-table of any street, lane, or other public place in the said Municipality, or shall kill any beast, swine, calf, sheep, lamb, or other animal for the purpose of sale, upon any premises, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a fine not less than forty shillings nor more than five pounds, and shall, in addition to any such forfeiture, pay the cost of removing such filth or obstruction.

Driving carriages, &amp;c., on footways.

22. Any person who shall run, drive, draw, or cause, permit or suffer to be run, driven, or drawn upon any of the said footways of any such street or public place, any waggon, cart, dray, sledge, or other carriage, or any wheel-barrow, hand-barrow or truck, or any hoghead, cask, or barrel, or shall wilfully lead, drive, or ride any horse or other beast upon any such foot-way, shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay for the offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than five shillings.

Placing carriages, goods, &c., on footways, &c.—Not removing when required.—Replacing the same after removal.

23. Any person who shall set or place, or cause or permit to be set or placed, any stall-board, chopping-block, show-board (on hinges or otherwise), basket, wares, merchandise, casks, or goods of any kind whatsoever, in or upon or over any carriage or foot way in any street or public place within the said Municipality—or shall place, or cause to be placed, any coach, cart, waggon, dray, wheel-barrow, hand-barrow, sledge, truck, or any carriage upon any such carriage-way or foot-way, except for the necessary time of loading or unloading, or taking up or setting down any fare, or waiting for passengers when actually hired, or harnessing or unharnessing the horses or other animals, or if any person shall set or place, or cause to be placed, in or upon or over any such carriage or foot way, any timber, stones, bricks, lime, or other materials or things whatsoever, or shall hang out or expose, or shall cause or permit to be hung out or exposed, any meat or offal, or other thing or matter whatsoever, from any house or other building or premises, over any part of such foot-way or carriage-way, or over any area of any house or other building or premises, and shall not immediately and permanently remove all or any such matters or things, being thereto required by the Inspector of Nuisances or other proper officer of the Council—shall, upon conviction for every such offence, forfeit and pay for the first offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than ten shillings, for the second offence a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound, and for a third and every subsequent offence a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds.

Obstructing public pathways.

24. If the owner or occupier of any land situate on the side of any street or road in this Municipality shall permit any tree, shrub, or plant, kept for ornament or otherwise, to overhang any footpath or footway on the side of any such street or road, and, on demand made by the Council, shall not cut, lop, or cause to be lopped, all such trees, shrubs or plants to the height of eight feet at the least, the said Council, by their servants, labourers, and workmen, may cut, or cause to be cut or lopped, at the expense of such owner or occupier, all such overhanging trees, plants, or shrubs, and to remove or burn any such trees, plants, or shrubs so cut or lopped, without being deemed a trespasser or trespassers; and in case any person or persons shall resist, or in any manner forcibly oppose the said Council or their servants, labourers, or workmen in the due execution of the powers given in this behalf by virtue of the Municipalities Act of 1867, every person so offending shall, on conviction for every such offence, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Notices not to be painted on pavement.

25. Any person who shall stamp, stain, paint, write, or post any advertisement or notice upon any foot-way or kerb-stone within this Municipality, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings.

Offensive or indecent placards.

26. Any person who shall in any street or place within this Municipality post, expose to view, or distribute any placard, handbill, or other document whatever of an offensive or indecent character, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings.

Placards not to be fixed to walls, &c., without consent.

27. It shall not be lawful for any person to paste or otherwise affix any placard or other paper upon any wall, house, fence, or other erection, nor deface any such wall, house, fence, or erection by chalk or paint, or in any other manner, unless with the consent of the owner thereof; and every person who shall be guilty of any such offence shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding twenty shillings nor less than ten shillings.

No rock to be blasted without notice to the Council Clerk.

28. Any person who shall be desirous of blasting any rock or earth within fifty yards of any road, street, public place, or dwelling, shall give notice in writing twenty-four hours previously to the Council Clerk, who shall appoint a time when the same may take place, and give such other directions as he may deem necessary for the public safety, on payment of a fee of five shillings; and if any person shall blast, or cause to be blasted, any rock or earth within the limits aforesaid without giving such notice, or shall not conform to the directions given to him by the Council Clerk, he shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not less than one pound nor more than ten pounds.

Slop, nightsoil, &c., to be conveyed away only at certain hours.

29. Any person or persons who shall drive, or cause to be driven, any cart or other carriage with nightsoil therein through or in any street or public place within the said Borough, between the hours of five o'clock in the morning and ten o'clock at night, or shall fill any cart or other carriage so as to turn over, cast any nightsoil, slop, mire, or channel-dirt or filth, in or upon any such street or public place, or shall deposit, or cause to be deposited, any nightsoil or other offensive matter nearer to any street, road, or dwelling-house than shall be directed by the said Council or by the Inspector of Nuisances, or shall remove nightsoil or other offensive matter otherwise than in properly covered and watertight carts or other vehicles, or shall cause any vehicle used for this purpose to stand on any premises nearer to any street, road or dwelling-house than shall be directed by the said Council or the said Inspector of Nuisances, shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound; and in case the person so offending shall not be known to the said Council or Inspector, then the owner of such cart or carriage in which such nightsoil or offensive matter shall be put or placed, and also the employer of the person so offending, shall be liable to and forfeit and pay such penalty as aforesaid.

Riding on drays, careless driving, &c.

30. If the driver of any vehicle whatsoever shall wilfully be at such a distance from such a vehicle, or in such a situation whilst it shall be passing upon any street or road that he cannot have the direction and government of the horse or horses, or by negligence or misbehaviour, prevent, hinder, or interrupt the free passage of any other vehicle or person in or upon the said thoroughfare, every such driver or person so offending shall upon conviction, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than ten shillings.

Riding or driving furiously, &c.

31. Any person who shall ride or drive through or upon any street or public place within the said Municipality so negligently, carelessly, or furiously that the safety of any other person shall or may be endangered, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Injuring or extinguishing lamps.

32. Any person who shall wantonly or maliciously break or injure any lamp or lamp-post, or extinguish any lamp set up for public convenience in the said Municipality, shall, over and above the necessary expense of repairing the injury committed, forfeit and pay for such offence any sum not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

As to damaging buildings.

33. Any person who shall damage any public building, toll-gate toll-bar, toll-board, wall, parapet, fence, sluice, bridge, culvert, sewer, watercourse, or other public property within the said Municipality, shall pay the costs of repairing the same; and, if such damage be wilfully done, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than one pound.

Persons not to stand or loiter in streets.

34. All persons standing or loitering upon any of the footways or other public places in this Municipality to the inconvenience of the passers-by, or in any way interrupting the traffic, and shall not discontinue to do so on being requested by any officer or servant of this Municipal District, or any police officer, shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Rubbish.

35. No kind of rubbish or offensive matter shall be thrown upon any public or private property within the Municipality without permission first obtained from the Municipal Council or the owner or owners of such property. Persons found guilty of a breach of this by-law shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding two pounds nor less than ten shillings.

36. All vehicles driven upon any roads, streets, lanes, or thoroughfares within the said Municipality after sunset and before sunrise, shall carry on the off side a lamp to be kept lighted. Any person neglecting to comply with this by-law shall forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding two pounds and not less than ten shillings.

Nuisances.

Dead animals, &c., not to be thrown into any public watercourse, &c.

37. Any person who shall cast any filth, rubbish, or any dead animal, or any animal with intent of drowning, into any public watercourse, sewer, or waterhole, or who shall suffer slops, suds, or filth of any kind to flow from his or her premises into any such watercourse, sewer, or waterhole, or who shall permit or suffer any such slops, suds, or filth to flow from his or her premises over any of the foot-ways or streets of the Municipality, or shall permit or cause, by means of pipes, shoots, channels, or other contrivances, filth of any kind whatsoever to flow into any public watercourse, gutter, or waterhole, or shall obstruct or divert from its channel any sewer, watercourse, or creek, shall, on conviction, forfeit any sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound.

Swine not to be kept.

38. Any person who shall breed, feed, or keep any kind of swine in any house, building, yard, garden, or other hereditament situate and being in or within forty yards of any street or public place or any dwelling-house in the said Municipality, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than ten shillings.

Cattle, &c., straying in the streets.

39. Any person who shall suffer any kind of swine, or any horse, ass, mule, sheep, goat, or other cattle belonging to him or her, or under his or her charge, to stray or go about, or to be tethered or depastured in any such street or public place, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than ten shillings.

Stables, cow-sheds, and pig-sties.

40. The occupier of any land within this Municipality on which there shall be erected any stable, cow-yard, cattle-shed, or pig-stye, shall cause such premises to be kept in such a state in respect to cleanliness, as not to be a nuisance or injurious to health, and shall cause all dung, soil, or manure produced or accumulated thereon to be collected in a place (to be approved of by the Inspector of Nuisances) in the yard of such premises, and there to be in an inoffensive condition, and so as not to be productive of any nuisance; and shall cause such dung, soil, or other manure to be, from time to time, removed from such premises, as often as the quantity so collected shall amount to two cubic yards. And if at any time the owner or occupier of any such premises shall neglect or fail to have such dung, soil, or other manure removed therefrom, as aforesaid, the same shall be removed by the Inspector of Nuisances, at the expense of such occupier. For an offence against this By-law, any person shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one pound nor more than five pounds.

As to private avenues, &c.

41. Any owner or occupier of any house, place, or land within this Municipality who shall neglect to keep clean all private avenues, passages, yards, and ways within the said premises, so as by such neglect to cause a nuisance by offensive smell or otherwise, or who shall allow stagnant water to become a nuisance on his land shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding forty shillings nor less than ten shillings for every such offence; and upon the reasonable complaint of any householder that the house, premises, yards, closets, or drains of the neighbouring or adjoining premises are a nuisance or offensive, the Inspector of Nuisances, or any person appointed by the Council, shall make an inspection of the premises complained of; and the officer of the Council shall have full power, without any other authority than this By-law, to go upon such premises for the aforesaid purpose.

Cleansing butchers' shambles, slaughter-houses, &c.

42. It shall be lawful for the Inspector of Nuisances, or for any other officer or officers appointed by the Council, as often as he shall see occasion, to visit and inspect the butchers' shambles, slaughter-houses, boiling-down establishments, tanneries, and fellmongering establishments or manufactories, in the Municipality, and to give such directions concerning the cleansing the said shambles, slaughter-houses, tanneries and establishments, both within and without, as to him shall seem needful; and any owner or occupier of any such shamble, slaughter-house, tannery, or establishment, who shall refuse or neglect to comply with such directions within a reasonable time, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Placing dead animals on premises.

43. Any person who shall place, or shall cause or suffer to be placed, upon any land or premises within the Municipality any dead animal, blood, offal, night-soil, or any other offensive matter, so as to become a nuisance to the inhabitants thereof, shall, on conviction, suffer and pay a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound for every such offence.

Deposit of rubbish, manure, &c.

44. No person shall deposit, or cause or suffer to be deposited, in or by the side of or on any road, street, right-of-way, lane, passage, water-channel or gutter, or in any creek, or in any other public place within the Municipality, any dust, mud, ashes, rubbish, filth, offal, manure, liquid manure, dung, or soil; and no person shall deposit, or cause or suffer to be deposited, on any land, field, or garden, within the Municipality, any night-soil, blood, offal, or other offensive matter or thing without the written consent of the Mayor or Council; and any such offensive matter or thing which shall, with such consent of the said Mayor or Council, be so deposited, shall, immediately on the deposit thereof be covered over by the person depositing the same with such a quantity of earth as will at once prevent the escape of any noxious or offensive effluvia from any such manure, soil, or other offensive matter before-mentioned.

Planting trees.

45. The Council shall have power to plant trees in the streets and public ways of this Municipality; and any person wilfully injuring or destroying any of such trees, or any railing or fence protecting the same, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than ten pounds nor less than two pounds, in addition to the value of the trees, railing, or fence so injured or destroyed.

Damaging trees.

46. Any person who shall wilfully, and without the authority of the Council, cut, break, bark, root-up, or otherwise destroy or damage the whole or any part of any tree, sapling, shrub or underwood growing in or upon any street or place under the management of the Council, shall forfeit any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than one pound.

Allowing dead animals to remain on premises.

47. Any owner or occupier of any land or premises who shall suffer or permit any dead animal, blood, offal, night-soil, or any other offensive matter to remain upon the said land or premises after notice shall have been given to remove the same, shall be subject to a penalty not exceeding two pounds nor less than ten shillings for every day that the same shall so remain.

Various obstructions and annoyances.

48. Every person who, in any street or other public place or passage within the Municipality, to the obstruction, annoyance, or danger of the residents or passengers, shall commit any of the following offences, shall, on conviction for any and every such offence, forfeit and pay a penalty of not more than two pounds nor less than ten shillings.—

1. Every person who shall hoist or cause to be hoisted, or lower or cause to be lowered, goods of any description from any opening in any house, fronting any street or public place, and close to the footway thereof, without sufficient and proper ropes and tackling.
2. Every person who shall place any line, cord, or pole across any street, lane, or passage, or hang, or place clothes thereon to the danger or annoyance of any person.
3. Every person who shall place any flower-pot, box, or other thing, in any upper window, near to any street or public place, without sufficiently guarding the same from being thrown out.
4. Every person who shall throw or cast from the roof, or any part of any house or other building, any slate, brick, part of a brick, wood, rubbish, or other material or thing (unless within a hoard or enclosure), when any house or building is being erected, pulled down, or repaired.
5. Every person who shall, within the distance of one hundred yards from any dwelling-house, burn any rags, bones, cork, or any other offensive substances, to the annoyance of any inhabitant.
6. Every person who shall carry goods or any frame, to the annoyance of any person upon the foot-way of any street or other public foot-way.
7. Every person who shall be the keeper of, or have any dog or other animal which shall attack or endanger the life or limb of any person who may have the right-of-way or use of any private yard, alley, street, or any other place within the Municipality.

Offences against public decency.

Bathing prohibited within certain limits.

49. Any person who shall bathe near to or within view of any inhabited house, or of any bridge, street, road, or other place of public resort, within the limits of the Municipality, between the hours of six o'clock in the morning and eight in the evening, shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding one pound nor less than ten shillings for every such offence.

PART V.

Noisome and Offensive Trades.

No noisome or offensive trades to be carried on to injury of any inhabitants.

1. No person shall carry on any manufacture or trade, in the conducting or carrying on of which, or from the premises where the same is carried on, any gas, vapour, or effluvia, or any large quantities of smoke shall be evolved or discharged, which shall be calculated to injure animal or vegetable life, or in any other way to injure or be a nuisance to the inhabitants of the Municipality; and upon complaint in writing by any householder that any offensive trade is being so conducted or carried on in the vicinity of his or her residence or property as to injure his or her health or the health of any member of his or her family, or be a nuisance to such householder, the Inspector of Nuisances, or any other person or persons appointed by the Council, shall make an inspection of the premises where such trade is alleged to be so conducted or carried on as aforesaid, and of the premises or property of the complainant, and shall inquire into the grounds for such complaint, and shall report thereon to the Council. And if the Council shall, on the consideration of such report, or after any such further inquiry as may be deemed necessary, be of opinion that the said complaint is well founded, notice shall be given to the person or persons conducting, following, or carrying on such trade to cease and discontinue the same within such reasonable time as the Council may direct. And if such trade shall not be discontinued as aforesaid, or shall not be so conducted as that it shall wholly cease to be offensive within the time named in such notice as aforesaid, any person conducting or carrying on such trade as aforesaid shall, for the first offence, forfeit and pay a sum of not less than twenty shillings nor more than five pounds, for a second offence a sum of not less than two pounds nor more than twenty pounds, and for the third and every subsequent offence a sum not less than five pounds nor more than fifty pounds.

Mode of proceeding when noisome and offensive trade is about to be commenced.

2. The like proceedings shall be taken as aforesaid whenever there shall be a complaint as aforesaid that any manufacture, trade, or operation is about to be commenced or entered upon, which is likely to prove offensive within the meaning of these By-laws, save and except the notice to be given as aforesaid, shall be given to the person or persons about to commence or enter upon such manufacture, trade, or operation, and shall require him, her, or them not to commence or enter upon the same, or to take such measures as shall effectually and permanently prevent the same from becoming offensive, within the meaning of these By-laws, to any resident within the Municipality. And any person who shall in any such case commence, enter upon, or continue, any such manufacture, trade, or operation, so that the same shall be in any way offensive within the meaning of these By-laws, shall, for every such offence, forfeit and pay a sum of not less than two pounds nor more than twenty pounds.

Service of No-liabilities.

3. Service of any such notices as aforesaid upon the occupier or owner of any premises or land wherein or whereon any such manufacture, trade, or calling is being carried on, or is about to be commenced or entered upon, or at the last-known place of abode of such occupier or owner, or upon any person on the said premises or land, shall be a good and sufficient service of such notice for all the purposes of these By-laws. And every person who shall be actually engaged in superintending, directing, or managing, or who shall be in any other way actually engaged or employed in any such manufacture, trade, or operation as aforesaid shall be liable to be regarded and treated as a person conducting, following, or carrying on such manufacture, trade, or operation, within the meaning and for all the purposes of these By-laws.

Damming up without consent.

4. Whosoever shall, without the consent in writing of the Council, construct or place any dam or embankment in or across any creek or natural watercourse, shall forfeit and pay any sum not less than one pound nor more than twenty pounds, and shall remove such dam or embankment within a reasonable time after such conviction, or shall forfeit and pay any sum of not less than five pounds nor more than fifty pounds. And if after such second conviction such person shall fail to remove such dam or embankment within a further reasonable time, he shall forfeit and pay a sum of not less than twenty pounds nor more than fifty pounds; and if within a reasonable time after a third or any further conviction he shall still fail to remove such dam or embankment, he shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum of fifty pounds.

Disposal of sewage, &c.

5. The Council shall have power from time to time to enforce the adoption or alteration of any system, which to them may appear necessary, for the better regulation, disposal, or treatment of night-soil, sewerage, or other drainage, and may suspend the use or further extension of any system which to them may seem detrimental to public health. Any person refusing to comply with any requisition made under this By-law after receiving notice from the Council or an officer under them, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound for each offence.

Making By-laws.

6. No by-law shall be passed until it has been reported upon by the By-law Committee.

Made and passed by the Municipal Council of the Municipal District of Kogarah, this eighth day of October, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six.

(L.S.) EDWARD HOGBEN,
Ma yo.

H. O'N. MACDONNELL,
Council Clerk.

BY-LAWS made by the Municipal Council of Kogarah in accordance with the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act, 1875."

I.

No person shall hereafter be permitted to have on their premises any gutter, drain, or well which may be adjudged by the Council to be injurious to the health, or which may hereafter be made or constructed or placed contrary to the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act of 1875," or to any of these By-laws.

II.

No persons shall hereafter be permitted to have on their premises any cesspits or closets which shall be adjudged by the Council to be (1) injurious to public health, or (2) to be opposed to decency by exposure or otherwise, or (3) which may present obstacles to the emptying or cleansing of cesspits, or (4) which may hereafter be made or constructed or placed contrary to the provisions of the "Nuisances Prevention Act of 1875," or to any of these By-laws.

And for the purposes of this By-law, the following shall be deemed to be contrary thereto:—

- (a) All cesspits excavated in the ground and not bricked and cemented at the side and bottom.
- (b) All cesspits constructed within 20 feet at the nearest point from the nearest part of any well.
- (c) All cesspits constructed within 30 feet of any street, or within 5 feet of any lane or other thoroughfare.
- (d) All closets or cesspits which are not enclosed by a close fence, constructed of paling or other material to a height of 5 feet at least.
- (e) All closets or cesspits which may from their construction be liable to leak or soak into the adjoining soil.
- (f) All cesspits constructed within 20 feet of any tenement now or hereafter to be erected.

III.

No person shall be permitted to cover up or caused to be covered up any existing cesspit with earth or other material unless and until the same shall be properly emptied by the person appointed by the Council for that purpose. Any person offending against this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds.

IV.

A separate closet shall be provided for every tenement. In schools or factories, where a number of persons are employed, separate closets shall be provided for each sex, with a door to fasten on the inside; where two or more closets adjoin each other there shall be a dividing wall between each to effect complete separation; and any person offending against any of the provisions of this By-law shall incur a penalty not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds for each such offence.

V.

No pan or bucket used as a receptacle in a dry earth closet shall exceed in measurement more than one and a half cubic feet.

VI.

Any person desirous of having the Council's contractor to attend to their premises for the removal of refuse from a dry earth closet, must provide a galvanised iron pan or bucket to hold such refuse, with two handles, and not of a larger capacity than to hold one and a half cubic feet.

VII.

All night-soil shall be removed by the contractor to the Council in carts to be constructed in an approved and water-tight manner to the satisfaction of the Council, and between the hours of ten p.m. and five a.m. The contractor shall convey the same without delay to an appointed depot, and shall dispose of the same by burying in the earth to a depth of two feet from the top of the night-soil and covering with earth, so as to prevent any nuisance. And any contractor neglecting to comply with this By-law shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding twenty pounds and not less than ten pounds for every such offence.

VIII.

The Council shall from time to time fix the charges to be made for emptying and removing night-soil from closets, which shall be emptied as often as may be necessary in the opinion of the Inspector of Nuisances. And no person shall remove such night-soil unless appointed so to do by the Council or permitted under By-law 10 hereafter.

IX.

No person shall hereafter make or place any cesspit upon any part of his premises, nor place any closet upon any part of his premises which may not be fenced off from any public street, lane, or thoroughfare, or adjoining property by a paling or other close fence at least five feet high, and distant from such street, lane, or thoroughfare at least twenty feet, and any person so offending against this By-law shall be liable to a penalty of not exceeding twenty pounds nor less than two pounds. And in case of breach of this By-law by any person the Inspector of Nuisances is authorized to remove such closet and fill up such cesspit, and thereupon the person so offending shall also be liable to pay all expenses incurred hereby, to be recovered as in the said Act provided.

X.

When any new building is about to be erected, the builder thereof shall first erect and fence off with a close paling fence five feet high on the premises a temporary closet, not less than three feet by two feet six inches for the use of the workmen employed on such building, and any person neglecting to conform to this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds and not less than two pounds.

XI.

Persons requiring the cesspits or closets on their premises to be emptied shall send written notice to the Inspector of Nuisances, and any person desiring to use the contents of any dry earth closet may be permitted to do so upon request in writing, and upon making proper provision for emptying the same to the satisfaction of the Inspector of Nuisances. Provided that such permission shall be in writing and signed by the Inspector of Nuisances to be of effect.

XII.

No person shall permit, or cause or suffer to be permitted or conceal, any nuisance by the careless use of any closet, or by the careless emptying of the same. And any person so offending against this By-law shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than two pounds.

XIII.

Written notice must be given to the Council or the Inspector of Nuisances by all persons about to construct new, or alter existing closets, to enable the Inspector to visit and report on the same, under a penalty for neglect not exceeding five pounds and not less than two pounds. And all closets constructed without such notice given must be removed or altered, if judged necessary by the Council, under a further penalty not exceeding two pounds nor less than five shillings for each and every day they may remain unremoved or unaltered after due notice to that effect.

XIV.

The maximum penalty for a breach of any of these By-laws shall in each case be ten pounds, and the minimum penalty two pounds, unless otherwise provided for.

Made and passed by the Municipal Council of the Municipal District of Kogarah, this eighth day of October, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six.

PUBLIC VEHICLES REGULATION ACTS OF 1873-1886.

(BY-LAWS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 36 Vic., No. 14, sec. 15.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 12th April, 1887.

THE following By-laws made by the Metropolitan Transit Commissioners under the "Public Vehicles Regulation Act of 1873" and the "Public Vehicles Regulation Act Amendment Act of 1886" respectively, having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Acts.

HENRY PARKES.

THE Board of Metropolitan Transit Commissioners do, by virtue of the power and authority in them vested by the "Public Vehicles Regulation Act Amendment Act of 1886," hereby make and establish the following By-laws, viz. :—

1. The Metropolitan Transit Commissioners may employ any licensed auctioneer to sell by public auction, in lots to be arranged by such auctioneer, all unclaimed articles found in public vehicles after the expiration of three months from the finding of such articles.

2. Cash must be paid on fall of the hammer.

3. In case of any dispute at any such sale, or in case of neglect to pay cash as aforesaid, the auctioneer shall at once submit any article the subject of such dispute or non-payment for fresh bidding.

4. Fourteen days' notice of any sale of unclaimed articles must be given, by advertisement in some daily newspaper published in Sydney, and the number and description of articles to be sold shall be stated in such advertisement.

Passed by the Board of Metropolitan Transit Commissioners, this sixteenth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven.

(L.S.) A. J. RILEY, Chairman.
W. J. TRICKETT, Commissioner.

METROPOLITAN FIRE BRIGADES BOARD.
(THIRD REPORT.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 47 Vic. No. 3, sec. 7.

To the Honorable the Colonial Secretary,—

Sir, Fire Brigades Board, Bathurst-street, Sydney, 28 February, 1887.

In compliance with the 7th section of the Fire Brigades Act of 1884, the Board has the honor of submitting its Report for the year ending 31st December, 1886. Incorporated with it will be found the annual returns and Report of the Superintendent.

By virtue of the 1st section of the Fire Brigades Act, the seats held by the Municipal, Insurance, and Volunteer representatives became vacant in the month of March.

The following members were elected, viz.:—For the Sydney Municipal Council, Mr. S. E. Lees, in lieu of Mr. William Kippax; for the Suburban Municipalities, Mr. R. McCoy (re-elected); for the Foreign Insurance Companies, Mr. M. W. S. Clarke (re-elected); for the local Insurance Companies, Mr. Walter Church (re-elected). The Volunteer Fire Companies failing to make proper regulations as provided by the 3rd section of the Act, for the election of a representative, and no appointment having been made by the Governor within fourteen days, as provided by the 1st section of the Act, the sixth seat at the Board remains unfilled.

Detailed lists of the various Insurance Companies and Municipal Councils which contributed in accordance with the 15th section of the Act, are appended. The list of the Insurance Companies shows the total amount held at risk by each on the 31st December, 1885, in the Municipalities enumerated in Schedule A., and Parramatta.

In comparison with the previous year there has been a considerable increase in the aggregate amount declared, as the undermentioned figures will show, viz.:—

31st December, 1885	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	£46,253,370
31st December, 1884	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	41,631,582
Total increase...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	£4,621,788

There have been several alterations in the list of Insurance Companies during the past year. Several offices have relinquished fire business, owing to the unprofitable nature of the business in Australasia. Some new local offices have come into existence, and a few fresh agencies have been added. At the end of the past year the following Insurance Companies ceased fire business in the Colony, viz.:—Prussian National, Hanseatic, Australian Mercantile Union, and London and Provincial.

The list of the Municipalities shows the value of the assessed amount of rateable property in each. In comparing the returns of 1884 and 1885 the following increase will be noticed in the aggregate amount of rateable property in the city of Sydney and the Municipalities enumerated, viz.:—

1885	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	£3,673,154
1884	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	3,291,905
Total increase	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	£381,249

To this Parramatta contributes £68,029.

This Borough came under the jurisdiction of the Board in the beginning of the year 1885. In the month of May the first district suburban fire station was opened, and was occupied by four married members of the Metropolitan Fire Brigade (including the officer in charge). This station, which is designated as the No. 3 Station (Marrickville), is located in the Stanmore Road, Marrickville, and is intended to protect the districts of Petersham, Stanmore, Newtown, Leichhardt, Marrickville, St. Peters, Cook's River, and other western suburbs, as they are all within an easy distance. The question of extending fire protection to several parts of the foregoing districts is now engaging the attention of the Board and the Superintendent. The No. 2 Station (George-street West) was completed and formally opened in the month of August. It is occupied by eight members of the Brigade (six married and two single), including the officer in charge. As to the effective character and situation of this station, too much cannot be said, as every care has been taken in its construction; and, being fitted up with the most modern modern appliances, there is no doubt that it will be a great acquisition in protecting the districts surrounding it, including Pyrmont and Ultimo and the Boroughs of Redfern, Darlington, Newtown, The Glebe, and Macdonald Town. The plant therein consists of two steam engines and one manual engine. Two horses are kept immediately in the rear of the engine-room. In both the stations every care has been taken to provide for the prompt turning out of the various engines and appliances. The Board regrets very much that no station has been erected in the northern part of the city. The former recommendations of the Board to the Government have remained dormant; and consequently one of the most important parts of the city is left almost wholly unprotected. The scheme recommended by the Board to the late Sir Alexander Stuart, when holding the office of Colonial Secretary, was the erection of a fire station in the neighbourhood of the Circular Quay. A site was selected adjoining the Sailors' Home in George-street, which would have had the additional advantage of being the headquarters of a steam floating engine, should such ever be established by the Government. The efforts of the Board to extend fire protection to the northern part of the city have not so far met with success; but it is hoped that during the present year a step in the direction named will be taken. The Board would, therefore, respectfully invite attention to this important subject, with a view to the matter being again considered at an early date.

Steps towards the erection of the New Central Fire Station have at last been taken. The site is in Castlereagh-street, near Bathurst-street, and it is generally considered to be centrally situated. The advantages to be derived from this station are obvious, and having been fully mentioned in former reports there is no necessity to do more than refer to them.

The Board, fully alive to the fact that no fire brigade is of real service unless prompt notice can be sent of the occurrence of fire, has paid especial attention to the question of fire alarms and telephones. It has introduced a fire alarm similar to that in use in some parts of London. Six "points" have been fitted, as may be seen on reference to the Superintendent's Report.

Considerable difficulty has been experienced in making a selection from systems in use in various countries, and, doubtless, the best selected would require modification to suit the climate and local circumstances.

The Superintendent is engaged in elaborating a scheme for the better connection of the headquarters with the outlying districts. It is not astonishing that the Board should receive numerous applications from patentees and others to try the merits of rival systems, but relying upon the practical good sense and experience of the Superintendent, it has not had much trouble in disposing of them.

In addition to the stations now occupied by the Brigade, there are three others, which may be considered of a somewhat permanent character, though occupied by Volunteer Companies, viz.:—Alexandria, East St. Leonards, and Waterloo. In each case the site is on the ground belonging to the Borough. The Borough of East St. Leonards erected a handsome town hall, and devoted a considerable portion of the building for a fire station, for which the moderate rental of £5 is charged; thus setting an example which might well be copied in other places.

The Board would again urge upon the Government the necessity of conferring greater powers, or rather some power of action, in dealing with matters which cause most of the fires in this city. This has been specially referred to in other reports; and a draft Bill dealing with some of the matters was included in the Board's Report for 1885. It is apparent to the Board that, if the Fire Brigade is maintained solely to have a race with a fire, when it breaks out, the fire, even if promptly extinguished, will have the best of it. There is not a warehouse in this city which does not contain huge elements of danger to whole blocks of property, to say nothing of loss of life.

The greatest benefit in America is derived not from the services of the Fire Brigade proper at a fire, but from the system of ferreting out possible causes of fire, by which the chances of the occurrence of fire are minimised. The old proverb of "Prevention is better than cure" is as true in this matter as in others. The Board should be armed with full authority to deal with all matters concerning the element which it is called upon to fight. Its function of reporting is next to useless when the reports are simply thrown on one side; or, if not, only useful in proving the worthlessness of the various Acts in force for the protection of life and property against fire and explosion. The Gunpowder Act, the Kerosene Act, the City of Sydney Improvement and Building Acts, and the Municipalities Act, all want reconstruction, and some central authority independent enough and powerful enough to enforce them. To the defects of the Building Acts, in the direction of supervision and enforcing of the penalties, may be attributed the serious spread of conflagrations, and the almost inevitable death of the firemen thereat. The fear that the law has not been complied with paralyzes their energies. It is notorious that open violations of the above Acts are frequent, and even when detected, that they are passed over and winked at. The following matters may be referred to as requiring attention:—

1. The holding of inquisitions as to causes and circumstances of a fire.
2. The inspection of new, and of alteration to old buildings, as regards minimising the hazard of fire.
3. The removal and destruction of all possible sources of fire caused by rubbish heaps, packing cases, &c.
4. The law as to storage, manufacture, importation, and handling of kerosene.
5. Prosecution for using open fires in proximity to fences and wooden buildings, and other inflammable materials.
6. The law as to gunpowder and other explosives.
7. Chimney fires.
8. Shingle roofs.
9. The cubic capacity of buildings, and openings of doors and windows.
10. Communications between buildings previously separate.
11. Use of steam pipes, stoves, hoists, and lifts.
12. Provision against fire, adopted in all places of public resort and in manufactories.
13. Manufacture and storage of dangerous articles.
14. Use of naked lights, and principally the danger of shop window lights.

As most of the suburbs are now quite urban in character, and are no longer merely villages surrounding the City, and as the various towns in the county of Cumberland may come under the Board's jurisdiction, jurisdiction, it is the duty of the Board to point out that any improved Building or other Acts should be made applicable to such places as well as to the City proper. Necessarily the suburbs must contain large manufactories, and they already contain large and lofty buildings which from their construction may prove fatal to life in the event of fire. To bad construction may be attributed the death of a member of the Brigade, on the 25th May, 1886, at the Leichhardt fire, and the serious injuries of four members of the Standard Brewery Volunteer Fire Company.

During the year 1886 this question proved very serious. In the early part of that year an intermittent supply only was given to the public, although arrangements were made by which the trunk mains were kept charged in case of an outbreak of fire. Fortunately, only one serious fire occurred, requiring the service of the steam fire engine. During this time the pumps at the Botany Waterworks gave out, and the City authorities thereupon sought the aid of the Board, which was readily granted, for the use of the steam fire engines of the Brigade, in order to pump the water from the Lachlan Swamp into the service known as the "Busby's Bore." Water supply.

The water supply at present may be stated as being fairly plentiful, yet in high situations it lacks the necessary pressure, unless the mains are connected with either the Paddington or Waverley reservoirs. Valuable time is thus often lost by the turncocks having frequently to travel some distance to various locks in order to open or shut them as the case may demand.

The Board regrets that in many parts of the city the water mains are too small to be of much service in the event of a fire, owing to the size of the buildings, which are now, or may hereafter, be erected on either side of the street. In many instances they are only makeshifts it is true, but causing much unnecessary expense in laying and replacing with suitable sizes.

Statistical returns are appended showing the extent of assistance rendered by Volunteer Fire Companies. It must be remembered that prior to the formation of the Board these Companies had considerable difficulties in financial matters, owing to the fact that volunteer movements gradually succumb to impecuniosity when the spirit and liberality of the founders die out. Moreover, the public have a natural aversion to be called on frequently for subscriptions, especially on behalf of persons who volunteer their services, should such subscriptions be mainly devoted for purposes of show and amusements, as the accounts of some of these companies would prove. Volunteer Fire Service.

The amounts paid by the Board to Volunteer Fire Companies are shown in the Board's Annual Account appended to this Report. The Board has had considerable trouble in endeavouring to impress upon these companies that for the subsidies granted, some return by way of service must be expected. The least which could be expected has been asked, viz., that there should always be at night some person sleeping, if not on watch at the station, in order to summon the members of the company and to communicate with the Brigade's central station any alarm of fire. This very reasonable request has at times been resented and absolutely refused in many instances. It has been discovered that financial difficulties were at the bottom of most of the troubles of some of the volunteer companies, and the money grants have been in many instances devoted towards debts incurred long anterior to the Board's existence, without clearing them off. Many companies were hopelessly insolvent prior to the passing of the Act, and it seems a misuse of money raised for the purpose of carrying out the said Act to so spend it. There are some companies who are not actual owners of the necessary plant. The subsidies which were intended to stimulate service have thus so far failed. The Board being aware of the value of volunteer service, if rendered in the spirit which once existed, but being of the opinion that it is not possible to obtain it while the companies are hampered with debt, are determined that satisfactory arrangements must be made before the subsidies are renewed. In some cases it has been found necessary to transfer the plant to the Board, in consideration of the legitimate debts of the companies being paid. It is a matter for consideration whether it might not be better that all plant be under the control of the Board, and that retaining fees be paid to picked men in certain districts who could be readily summoned from the local stations, and thus to have a body of men who could be absolutely depended upon. At present, in spite of the subsidies paid, it is a matter of doubt whether more than two or three men are available at any time at the various volunteer stations. It seems only a question of time when a more reliable organization must come into existence.

In the early part of the year the original Alexandria Brigade disbanded, and the Superintendent was empowered to take charge, and for several weeks afterwards members of the Brigade were kept on duty night and day. The Alexandria Company has, however, since been reconstructed, and at the end of the year was working fairly well. The Surry Hills Volunteer Company, whose station was situated in Palmer-street, disbanded in the first quarter of the year, and the telephone was removed. Another telephone was removed from the station of the Pymont and Ultimo Volunteer Company. This company refused to attend calls of fire, or to send notice of same by telephone or otherwise to the head station. An instance of this occurred on the occasion of the fire on board the s.s. "Whamboa." The alarm was sent to the Pymont Volunteer Company's station; several members were present in the station at the time, and refused to turn out the engine, or to send on the message by telephone. A person had, therefore, to run all the distance to Bathurst-street, in order to give the alarm. The instrument was therefore removed to the Police Station. The No. 5 Volunteer Company (whose station is situated in Campbell-street) was not registered during the year owing to irregularities, which were not amended. In consequence of this, no doubt, several members left, and the Paddington Brewery Volunteer Company was formed. (This latter company has a station situated at the corner of Dowling and Oxford streets). As the stations of these two companies are close to one another, the Board determined not to register or subsidize either, until such time as an arrangement is made for amalgamation.

Two Volunteer Fire Companies in Parramatta were registered and subsidized by the Board. A prescribed district for each was defined by the Superintendent.

The Board much regret that during the year defalcations were discovered in the accounts of Mr. A. J. L. Bone, the late Secretary of the Board. Mr. Bone was thereupon arrested and charged with embezzlement. He was subsequently indicted at the Quarter Sessions, and having pleaded guilty, was sentenced to five years penal servitude. The Board was protected by a guarantee policy. Mr. William Ager, formerly Assistant Secretary, was appointed Secretary to the Board, in the room of Mr. A. J. L. Bone. The late Secretary's defalcations.

A new Bill has been drafted by the Board, at the request and instance of the Ex-Colonial Secretary, the Hon. G. R. Dibbs, on the representations of the Board as to the uselessness of the present Act, Storage of kerosene.

in protecting the public from danger from the manufacture of the article itself, or from its storage in large quantities. The Acts of the Imperial Parliament, and those of the neighbouring Colonies, have been carefully examined, and such alterations as appeared necessary under the circumstances of this Colony, have been adopted and incorporated in the proposed Bill. The Board, with the assistance of the Superintendent, have taken great pains in formulating the proposed new Bill, with a view that in the future better precautions will be adopted in the manufacture, storage, importation, and sale of kerosene, gasoline, and other volatile oils and substances.

It is to be hoped that a Bill on the proposed lines will shortly be introduced in the Legislative Assembly, and become law.

I have, &c.,
CHARLES BOWN,
Chairman.

Superintendent Bear's Report.

Gentlemen,

Metropolitan Fire Brigade, Sydney, 8 January, 1887.

I do myself the honor to hand to your Board the following report, being the annual return of fires in the City and suburbs of Sydney for the year ending 31st December, 1886, attended by the Metropolitan Fire Brigade and the several Volunteer Fire Companies.

The total number of alarms received for fires, or supposed fires, were 250; of these 32 were false alarms; 13 proved to be only chimney alarms; and 205 were actual fires. Of the actual fires 150 were slight or trifling; 21 were serious; and 34 resulted in total destruction.

Of the 205 actual fires, 127 were insured; 19 not insured; and 59 insurances on the buildings or contents could not be ascertained.

In addition to the ordinary fires there have been 27 chimney fires requiring the attendance of firemen with hand-pump only; making an aggregate total of 277 for fires, false alarms, and chimneys on fire.

The fires of 1886 compared with those of 1885 show an increase of 9. In chimney fires attended with engines the same as the year 1885, namely 13. Fires attended by firemen with hand-pump, a decrease of 24; and in false alarms a decrease of 10.

In fires which were slight there has been a decrease of 33, in serious an increase of 6, and in the fires which resulted in total destruction an increase of 36. It may be here recorded that in the latter class of fires several were comparatively small in regard to the extent of damage done, such as shed-buildings, and weather-board cottages, &c.

Appended are detailed statements of the various fires attended by the Brigade, the Volunteer Companies, and others unattended by Brigades, but which have been reported to the Brigade from various sources. In each of the latter cases, however, a member of your Brigade was sent to obtain the necessary particulars.

The various summaries appended show the particular dates, time of calls, time of outbreak, trades, localities, insurances, hourly and daily, weekly and monthly, &c.

There is also appended summary of the "Origins of Fires" for the past ten years, viz., from 1877 to 1886, both years inclusive, together with a comparison of all calls received during the same period.

Referring to the summary of localities it will be noticed that in the City of Sydney alone there were 163 calls, 110 of which were actual fires, 21 false alarms, 9 chimney fires reported as houses on fire, and 23 chimneys attended by firemen with hand-pump only.

Of the 110 actual fires in the city there were in Denison Ward, 24; Brisbane and Phillip, 16 in each; Cook, 15; Macquarie, 13; Bourke, 10; Fitzroy and Gipps, 8 in each. In the suburbs there were 114 calls, of which 95 were actual fires, 11 were false alarms, 4 were chimneys reported as houses on fire, and four were chimneys attended with hand-pump only. The suburbs affected in regard to actual fires only, were as follows, viz.:—Balmain, 11; Paddington, 8; Redfern, 8; Glebe, 7; Leichhardt, 6; Woollahra, 6; Camperdown, 5; Marrickville, 5; Newtown, 4; Waterloo, 4; Parramatta, 3; Waverley, 3; St. Leonards, 3; Alexandria, 2; Burwood, 2; Darlington, 2; Enfield, 2; North Willoughby, 2; Petersham, 2; Randwick, 2; Five Dock, St. Peters, Druid Town, Croydon, the Harbour, Granville, Strathfield, and Canterbury, one each.

Of the 40 chimney fires, 19 of them happened in dwellings belonging to poor persons, therefore proceedings were not taken against them in accordance with the 66th clause of the City of Sydney Improvement Act. 7 persons were fined in the aggregate amount of £7 10s. and costs. 6 persons have not been summoned, and the remainder, 8, were outside of the city boundary, and therefore not amenable to the before mentioned Act.

In summarizing the trades the following will be observed, that private dwellings have been most affected by fires, the number being 66 for all classes of damage; but taking actual trades into consideration, the most notable stand in the following order, viz.: licensed victuallers, 10; grocers, 5; bootmakers and ironmongers, 5 each; bakers, boarding houses, commission agents, drapers, and stables, 4 each; the respective number of each other trade affected is below the above mentioned figures, and can be found in the summary of trades.

I regret to inform your Board that the lives lost or seriously endangered by fire, during the past year, were as follows:—

- January 10th—At 31, Lodge-street, Forest Lodge. Ellen Wilson, aged 18 years, very severely burned about the body; since dead.
- February 25th—At Arthur-street, St. Leonards. Charles Wilchan, aged 30 years, slightly burned on hands; since recovered.
- March 11th—At 33, George-street West. John Terris, aged 27 years, very severely burned about the body, and Sebastian Hill, aged 25 years, also very severely burned about the body; both since dead.
- April 25th—At 593, Dowling-street, Moore Park. John Mackellar, aged 6 months, very severely burned on hands, face, and body; since dead.
- July 3rd—At Smith-street, Camperdown. Claud Grant Arnold, aged 50 years, slightly burned on arms; since recovered.
- July 9th—At Evans-street, Balmain West. Miss Treacy, aged 60 years, very severely burned about the body; since dead.
- August 15th—At 228, Hereford-street, Glebe. Mrs. Sarah Wilson, aged 23 years, severely burned on hands and face; since recovered.
- August 31st—1, Hart-street, Surry Hills. James Collins, severely burned on hands and face; since recovered.
- September 7th—At 4, George-street, Waterloo. Mrs. A. Moon, aged 29 years, severely burned on hands and face; since recovered.

- December 5th—Messrs. Foley Bros., 113, Sussex-street.

Most

Most of the Volunteer Fire Companies' Stations, and Police Stations, as well as the turncocks' quarters at the Town Hall, are in direct telephonic communication with your Board's Head Fire Station. The various wharves, warehouses, and other business houses, besides many public buildings, are in a like manner connected with the Head Fire Station, though indirectly, through the Telephone Exchange at the General Post Office, which is open to receive and transmit to our station calls for fires at any hour of the day or night.

During the past year the erection of our new No. 3 Branch Station at Marrickville was completed, occupied on the 29th May, and telephonic communication extended thereto. I need hardly state that this station has been the means of greatly reducing the needless running of engines to such distances from the City, thereby saving a considerable amount of time, expense, and trouble, which would be otherwise lost.

During the year 1887, I hope to see an extension of either the telephone or fire alarm communication from this station to the other municipalities surrounding it. With reference to the latter subject I may say that the cost of erecting poles, telephone or fire alarm wires in the suburban districts being so great, has caused me only to recommend to your Board so much to be done each year, as could be reasonably expected; but I trust that some arrangements may be made shortly between your Board and the Electric Telegraph Department to erect these lines in future at a more reasonable rate, or merely at a nominal cost to cover the expenses, as it is for the public benefit.

Our No. 2 Branch Station in George-street West, was also completed, occupied on the 9th of August, and in direct communication with the Head Station, the Glebe, and Rodfern Volunteer Fire Stations.

This station is fitted up with a heater for the steam fire-engines which allows one of the two steam fire-engines stationed there to be at all times under a low head of steam, thereby permitting 120 lbs. of steam to be raised in about three to three and a half minutes from the start.

The horses at this station are supplied with American snap harness for the sake of expedition in turning out the engines.

Great attention has been paid to the erection of these two stations for the purpose of expedition in getting the engines and men away at the time of a fire, and I may say with confidence that your Board may be well satisfied with the results obtained therefrom.

I have much pleasure in stating that the whole of the members living out at our head station are in complete communication with it, either by means of electric house bells or telephones. This your Board will observe, means solidity of action at any time in case of fire, as any of the engines, and the whole of the members, together with most of the Volunteer Fire Companies can be turned out by the duty man at the head station by a lever for the electric house bells, and the telephones for the different stations. This has enabled me to discontinue ringing the large bell for gathering the members together, which at all times caused a great deal of unnecessary excitement, and was also the means of gathering a larger crowd of persons together at the fire, thereby obstructing the operations of the firemen in getting the engines expeditiously to work.

Six fire alarms have been fitted up on a circuit in the following localities, viz.: corner of Pitt and Market Streets; corner of Erskine and Sussex Streets; corner of William and Yarrong Streets; corner of College and Oxford Streets; at Horder's, in George-street, Haymarket; at Parliament House, in Macquarie-street. I may here remark that I am not very sanguine as to their working continually with success, although we have received a few alarms of fires, or supposed fires by them. The non-success of such alarms on circuit is partly due to the large number of wires running together through the streets, thereby causing constant contact with each other; another defect being the delicate parts of the machinery, and the salt atmosphere acting on such parts. Within the present year I hope to be able to erect a fire alarm which shall not be so delicate in its construction, and each instrument having its own direct wire to the fire station; but, ultimately, it may perhaps be found better and cheaper to adopt the German principle of placing telephones in boxes on the telegraph poles, at the corners of certain streets.

Your Department has been greatly augmented by additional steam and manual engines, and other plant. Also a telescopic fire ladder and van for same. In the latter case, I am sorry to state that I am unable to make use of it, as I have no place convenient for stationing such a ladder. However, as the Head Fire Station is now being erected, this difficulty will eventually be overcome.

The strength of the Brigade is as follows:—

- |                                 |  |
|---------------------------------|--|
| One large steam fire engine     | One hose van   |
| Five small steam fire engines   | Two hose reels   |
| One 7-inch manual               | 11,500 feet of hose  |
| Three 6-inch manual engines     | 7 horses   |
| Two under 6-inch manual engines | 30 firemen, including superintendent, principal foreman, and the coachman. |
| One telescopic ladder and van   |  |
| One American ladder truck.      |  |

And I may say that Mr. W. Ager, your Board's Secretary, attends fires in general. Your Board's plant does not only comprise the plant in the permanent Fire Stations, but some of the engines, &c., are lent to the undermentioned Volunteer Fire Stations—

Alexandria Volunteer Fire Company
Burwood " " "

Balmain Volunteer Fire Company
St. Leonards " " "

Three Volunteer Fire Stations are also vested in the hands of your Board. Although the length of hose appears at first sight a large quantity, it is not so when it is considered that it is distributed throughout seven fire stations situated a great distance from each other. Therefore at the commencement of the year I shall feel it my duty to ask your Board for a further supply.

The approximate value of the whole of your Board's stations and plant is £21,931 13s. 6d.

The undermentioned are the whole of the members in the Metropolitan Fire Brigade on the 31st of December, 1886.

Your Brigade has been called upon to mourn the loss of one of its members during the past year, that of Frederick Patrick Fisher, who was killed instantaneously at the fire in Parramatta Road, Leichhardt, on the morning of the 25th of May, by a falling wall through great defects in a building being erected on unsafe principles. Frederick Patrick Fisher was formerly a member of the No. 1 Volunteer Fire Company, became a member of the Metropolitan Fire Brigade on the 1st of July, 1884, and served from that time until his death with zeal and energy.

At this same fire four volunteer firemen belonging to the Standard Brewery Volunteer Fire Company, namely :— Henry Woods, aged 31, married ; James Brady, aged 20, single ; William Glenn, aged 22, single ; William S. Jones, aged 21, single, were seriously injured by the same falling wall, but I have much pleasure in stating that three out of the number have wholly recovered, and the fourth, Wm. S. Jones, is getting on as well as can be expected.

I desire to draw the attention of your Board to the fact of the utter impossibility of the Fire Brigade being able to effectually cope with any fire, which might have a firm hold of any of the high warehouses, that have been, and are now being erected in this city, owing to their tremendous cubical capacity, and the great difficulty of approach, as in many instances they are surrounded by other warehouses and buildings, separated only by means of narrow lanes and thoroughfares. It must be apparent to any one that should a fire get a firm hold of one of these warehouses, it would not only result in destruction to itself, but also to others, as the heat would be so intense as to prevent the Brigade from effectually protecting one warehouse from another with such narrow spaces intervening.

Perhaps I shall not be out of place in suggesting that the City Council be asked to join the Paddington reticulating water mains to those of Crown-street, as much as possible when new ones are being laid down, with stop valves at the intersection of the streets. This, I may say, would greatly assist the Brigade in dealing with these high buildings in the event of a large fire such as Messrs. Cameron & Co.'s.

Through your Board I desire to thank the whole of the officers and members of the various Volunteer Fire Companies, for their valuable co-operation and assistance during the past year. And I have much pleasure in stating that the whole of the Volunteer Fire Companies throughout, whether subsidized by your Board or not, have worked in harmony, both with the Metropolitan Fire Brigade, and also amongst themselves in general at all fires, an instance being at Messrs. Cameron's fire on the 23rd of September.

I have also much pleasure in expressing my obligations to the officers and members of the Police Force, the City Turncocks, and the citizens generally, who invariably assist the Brigade in every possible way.

In conclusion I have to state that the condition of the Brigade with regard to discipline and general efficiency is very satisfactory. And I also take this opportunity of offering your Board my sincere acknowledgments for the great support it has given me on all occasions.

I have, &c.,
WILLIAM D. BEAR,
Superintendent of M.F.B. and Kerosene Inspector.

The Chairman, Deniliquin Fire Brigades Board, to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Deniliquin Fire Brigades Board, Deniliquin, 18 April, 1887.

I have the honor to forward herewith the balance-sheet of this Board, in accordance with the 7th section of the Fire Brigades Act of 1884, which has been audited this day.

There were no fires in Deniliquin since the previous report under the same clause was sent to your Department on April 12th, 1886. One or two alarms were given, but no damage was done.

I have, &amp;c.,

GEO. CHANDLER,

Chairman.

HAY FIRE BRIGADE BOARD, REPORT FOR 1886.

DURING the past year the Board have held regular monthly meetings and have succeeded in placing the Brigade on a sound footing, twelve regular paid firemen have been appointed, and a number of volunteers from which the Board choose men to recruit the ranks of the staff as vacancies occur; this system has proved a great success, as it enables the Board to select men who show an aptitude for the work.

The Board are pleased to report that a Reel-hose, and other necessary appliances have been added to the apparatus, amongst which is a Meroweathers, London Brigade pattern, Fire Engine, Manual, No. 3, mounted on wrought-iron wheels and fitted with double delivery outlets, so that the Engine can throw two jets of water at once; gun-metal pump barrels, and double turnover levers; the Engine is handsomely painted in vermilion lined in gold, and nicely lettered "Hay Fire Brigade"; it is well finished and fitted with all the latest improvements.

The paid members of the Brigade have been supplied with a neat uniform of blue serge piped and faced in red, and undress cap of very neat design, supplied by G. Friday, of Paddington; and also leather helmets with brass mountings, and all other necessary accoutrements, as belts, hatchets, &c.

Fortunately there has only been one fire in the town, that of a small wooden cottage valued at £100; but every member of the Brigade turned out with marked promptness, the water being on within eight minutes from the time of first alarm; the distance from the dépôt was  $\frac{1}{4}$  of a mile, and had it not been necessary to run 350 feet of hose through a chinese garden, the water would have been on in a much shorter time; herewith is a statement of Receipts and Expenditure for the year.

FIRE BRIGADES ACT, 1884.

(GOULBURN FIRE BRIGADES BOARD—REPORT.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 47 Vic. No. 3, sec. 7.

The Goulburn Fire Brigades Board to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir,

Goulburn Fire Brigades Board, 22 March, 1887.

The Goulburn Fire Brigades Board, in presenting their second annual report, are pleased to state that satisfactory progress has been made during the past twelve months.

A fire station has been erected at North Goulburn, in which one of the engines and other necessary apparatus is kept; and this will doubtless prove a glad additional safeguard against the spread of fires in that portion of the borough.

Considerable additions to the stock of appliances have been made, including 1,100 feet of hose, a canvas dam for portable hand-pump, stand-pipes, hydrants, &c. An additional hose-reel has been ordered.

The Brigade are well up to their work, and are fully efficient; as a proof of which, it may be mentioned, that at the recent contest in Sydney, in November last, the Goulburn Brigade carried off several prizes.

The Board have held twelve meetings during the eleven months; Mr. Wombey (mayor) attended twelve, and Mr. Betts and Mr. Riley ten each.

The reticulation of the city, in connection with the water supply, has now been completed through nearly all the streets; and the chances of fire spreading to any great extent is thereby greatly diminished, and the city is much safer than before against anything like an extensive conflagration. The water supply has already on one occasion proved of service. At a recent fire at the rear of large business premises in Auburn-street, the pressure of water, some 64 lb. to the square inch, was sufficiently powerful to extinguish the fire without the necessity for using an engine.

The Superintendent's report shows that five fires have occurred in the Municipality during the year; the damage, however, has been but trifling, being estimated at under £275.

A statement of the Board's receipts and expenses, from 29th January to 31st December, 1886, is appended. This embraces eleven months only, the previous accounts having, through misconception, been made up to the end of January, 1886, instead of December, 1885. In explanation of the amount, as a "Fixed Deposit" in the Bank, your board report that they were desirous of procuring a steam fire-engine and raised a portion of the cost accordingly; but on finding that the pressure of water was satisfactory, and that Mr. Bear considered a steamer unnecessary in Goulburn, they have abandoned for the present their first intention. The amount now in hand will enable them to provide for any unusual expenditure, such as the erection of a new central station, should this become necessary.

During the past year the Board requested Mr. Bear, the Metropolitan Superintendent, when visiting Goulburn to inspect their appliances, which he did accordingly, and expressed himself satisfied therewith.

The engines and appliances heretofore vested in the Municipal Council have been formally handed over to the Board.

The property of the Board has been examined by Mr. R. T. Ball, engineer, and is by him valued at £730 5s. 6d.

The Board have noticed that in Wagga several insurance companies were proceeded against under section 18 of the statute for the recovery of their contributions, but that the Bench of Magistrates decided adversely to the claim. The Board have received a circular, of which they attach a copy, from a number of the companies. The Board would respectfully submit that if the ruling of the Wagga Bench, or the opinion of counsel as referred to, be correct, the law urgently requires amendment.

We have, &amp;c.,

Chairman.

The Local Manager, Queen Insurance Company, to The Secretary, Fire Brigade Board, Goulburn.

Dear Sir,

Sydney, 31 December, 1886.

In anticipation of receiving from you, at the beginning of the ensuing year, a request to furnish you with a declaration stating the amount held at risk by this Company, I deem it my duty, as a matter of courtesy and precaution, to inform you that, though such declaration may be forwarded as before, it will depend upon the rate of levy made by your Board whether the companies will not be recommended to stand upon their legal rights and to refuse to contribute.

The companies have taken the opinion of a leading counsel, who clearly advises that, so far as concerns the districts beyond the control of the Metropolitan Board, Fire Brigade Boards have no legal status, and cannot recover either contribution or penalty—that, in fact, so far, the Fire Brigade Act of 1884 is unworkable.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

FIRE BRIGADES ACT, 1884.

(DENILIQUN FIRE BRIGADES BOARD—REGULATIONS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 47 Vic. No. 3, sec. 21.

Colonial Secretary's Office,

Sydney, 21st February, 1887.

THE following Regulations, made by the Fire Brigades Board for the Municipal District of Deniliquin, under the "Fire Brigades Act, 1884," for regulating the meetings and conduct of business, &c., having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above-cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

MUNICIPALITY OF DENILIQUN.

FIRE BRIGADES BOARD.

WHEREAS by Proclamation in the Government Gazette of the 18th July, 1884, the Fire Brigades Act of 1884, was extended to the Municipality of Deniliquin; and whereas, at a meeting of Insurance Companies held in the Town Hall, Deniliquin, on the 23rd day of January, 1885, by authority of a notice issued in the Gazette of the 13th January, 1885, James Watson was elected a Member of the Deniliquin Fire Brigades Board; and whereas, on the 8th day of February, 1886, Joseph George Evans was chosen Mayor of Deniliquin, in accordance with the Municipalities Act of 1867, became, in virtue of his office and of clause 20 of the Fire Brigades Act of 1884, a Member of the Deniliquin Fire Brigades Board; and whereas, on the 16th day of March, 1886, Murdoch Mackenzie was, by virtue of a notice in the Government Gazette, appointed a Member of the Deniliquin Fire Brigades Board. The Board thus legally constituted have formed the following Regulations for meeting and conduct of business by the Deniliquin Fire Brigades Board, as constituted under the Fire Brigades Act of 1884.

1. The Board shall meet together for the despatch of business, adjourn, and otherwise regulate its meetings as it thinks fit. Two to form a quorum.

2. The Board shall elect one of its Members to be Chairman, who shall preside at all meetings of the Board.

3. The sum of one guinea shall be paid to each Member of the Board in attendance at the time specified for each meeting convened.

4. The Secretary shall send notice of each meeting to each Member of the Board, in which shall be stated the business to be transacted at that meeting; such notice to be delivered not later than twenty-four hours previous to such meeting.

5. The Chairman or Secretary may call meetings as may be deemed necessary, provided notice be given as above.

6. Members of the Board shall not vote on any matter in which they shall be personally interested, and during the discussion of any such matters members so interested shall withdraw from the Board Room.

7. The Board may from time to time appoint as Secretary and such other officers and servants as it may deem necessary, and shall determine their duties, salaries, and wages, and may at any time, with or without notice, suspend or dismiss any such Secretary, officer, or servant. The Secretary and such other officers as the Board may deem expedient shall give security for the faithful discharge of their duties.

8. The Secretary, or other officer acting in his stead, shall attend all meetings of the Board, and shall enter the minutes of resolutions and proceedings in a minute book to be kept for that purpose; he shall lay all correspondence before the Board; and he shall also discharge all such duties as the Board may from time to time direct.

9. A book shall be kept showing all receipts of money on account of the Board, and all disbursements made. A balance shall be made half-yearly, or oftener if desired, and shall be verified, if deemed expedient, in such way as the Board may think fit. The Bank pass-book made up to date shall be laid before the Board at each meeting.

10. The Board shall open an account at such Bank as they may from time to time determine, and until otherwise ordered the account shall be kept at the Australian Joint Stock Bank, Deniliquin, in the name of the Deniliquin Fire Brigades Board. All moneys shall be banked on the day after the receipt of a total of £5, or in the event of the Bank being closed, on the next banking day.

11. The Secretary, or other officer authorized by the Board, shall give receipts for all moneys payable to the Board, drawn on printed forms consecutively numbered, with corresponding butts.

12. All payments of one pound or upwards shall be made by cheques upon the Bank, signed by the Chairman or by two other Members, and countersigned by the Secretary or other officer authorized by the Board.

13. The accounts of the Board shall be made up in the months of January and July of each year, for the half-year expiring the 31st December and 30th June respectively, and shall be examined and verified by at least one auditor, to whom shall be produced by the Secretary all vouchers, books, and documents necessary to verify the balance sheets.

14. Any Member wishing to rescind, alter, or add to these Regulations must give to the Secretary seven days' notice in writing to that effect, such notice to contain copies in full of his proposals.

15. For regulating the proceedings of the Board in respect of inquests on fires:—On the day after any fire a report shall be made in writing by the Superintendent, of any fire which may come under the notice of the Brigade, in which report, information as far as can be ascertained shall be given under the following heads:—

1. Hour and date of each alarm of fire.
2. By whom and how reported.
3. Name and occupier and owner of premises, and purposes for which occupied.
4. Origin of supposed cause of fire.
5. Particulars as to insurance of premises and contents.
6. Construction of buildings.
7. General remarks, extent of damages, &c.

The form of report to be determined by the Board from time to time. If necessary, the Board shall, on receipt of notice of a fire, be convened to decide whether the Coroner shall be directed to hold an inquest thereon; and the Secretary shall convey to the Coroner the resolution directing such inquest to be held, if so decided upon.

16. The Board shall appoint a Superintendent who shall be the officer in charge of all Volunteer Fire Companies under the Board, and who shall have control when on duty, practice, drill, or parade, of such Companies; and he shall be paid such salary as the Board may determine. During his absence the senior officer next under him shall fulfil all such duties and have charge of such Companies. The Superintendent shall instruct the Company in their practices, drills, and parades, and direct them when on active duty at fires.

17. All acts done by any meeting of the Board, or of a Committee thereof at which a quorum as provided by the Board is present, shall be deemed to be the act of the Board or Committee as the case may be, and notwithstanding it be afterwards discovered that there was some defect in the appointment of any such members or persons aforesaid, or that they or any of them were disqualified, shall be as valid as if every such person had been appointed and was duly qualified.

18. Subject to the approval of the Board, the Secretary may furnish abstracts of the proceedings to the press, but in no case shall the presence of strangers be permitted unless with the unanimous consent of the members present, such consent to be obtained before admission to the Board Room.

19. The Secretary of each Company shall, in the month of January every year, furnish the Board with the particulars of receipts and disbursements of such Company for the preceding year ended 31st December, verified by the officer in charge of the Company, and countersigned by the Secretary of the Company.

20. The Fire Brigades Board may at any time appoint an officer to audit the books of the Brigade, subject to a notice of at least seven clear days.

Passed at a meeting of the Board, held on the 29th day of November, 1886.

Members of the Deniliquin Fire Brigades Board (L.S.)	}	J. G. EVANS, Chairman.
		M. MACKENZIE,
		Government Representative.
		JAMES WATSON,
		Representative of Fire Insurance Offices.

AND the Board so constituted as aforesaid have agreed upon the following Rules and Regulations under which the Deniliquin Fire Brigades Board will register Volunteer Fire Companies:—

1. None but physically strong men, free from defect in sight and limb, and without organic disease, shall be enrolled as a member of any Volunteer Fire Company registered under this Board, and before enrolment, if required by the Board, shall produce a certificate from some duly qualified medical man to that effect.

2. No person shall be enrolled under the age of eighteen years or over forty years, unless by special permission of the Board.

3. No person over the age of fifty years shall remain on the effective working staff of any Company, unless by special resolution of the Company, reported to and approved by the Board.

4. No person under 5 feet 3 inches in height, or less than 34 inches round the chest shall be enrolled.

5. No person shall be enrolled should his occupation, in the opinion of the Board, unfit him for the duties of a fireman. No person who has been convicted of any felony or misdemeanour shall be allowed to remain or to be enrolled in any Company.

6. Any member of a Company guilty of intoxication, disobedience of orders, insubordination, abusive or obscene language, smoking in uniform at fires or on duty, wanton destruction of property, interference with fireplugs and other appliances, or other unseemly conduct, or shall be guilty of any other breach of these rules or the Company's regulations, shall be at once suspended from duty, and shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding £5 or dismissal.

7. Members of Brigade shall at no time attend Fire Brigade Demonstrations outside a radius of 5 miles from the Deniliquin Post Office, without leaving a sufficient number of effective within the Municipality. No apparatus shall be taken to a demonstration without the written consent of the Board.

8. The person first giving the alarm of a fire and leaving his name with the Superintendent shall be paid as a reward the sum of ten shillings.

9. The Board shall pay all firemen enrolled on a certificate of the captain, the sum of 2s. 6d. per each attendance at drill, practice, or parade, two to be held in each month, and 5s. if engaged two hours in the extinction of a fire; if under two hours the payment be made at the discretion of the Board; and if over two hours the Board may vote such sums as may be deemed commensurate with the value of the work done.

10. The Company shall have its own printed rules of internal and general working, which must, in all cases, be subject to the approval of the Fire Brigades Board, all proposed alterations and additions must be submitted to the Board for approval or otherwise. All fines and punishments fixed by such rules shall be strictly enforced under penalty of deducting from the subsidy voted such sums as it may appear that the Company has failed to recover.

11. The number of effective working members shall not be less than fifteen nor more than twenty, if at any time, the number shall fall below the minimum, the registration of the Company may be suspended and the subsidy cease.

12. Appointments to the usual offices in the Company shall be made by the members of the Company in meeting assembled, subject, however, to confirmation by the Board; the officers shall have such titles as the Board may permit.

13. On all occasions of fire, in the absence of the Superintendent, the members of the Brigade shall abide by the instructions given by the senior officer of the Company present; members of Brigade shall not take orders from owners of property, bystanders, or other persons not in authority.

14. The Board shall supply all firemen with such uniforms as they (the Board) may decide; and all such uniforms shall remain in the custody of the firemen as long as they continue to be enrolled, and shall be delivered up to the Superintendent upon the firemen ceasing to be a member of the Company.

15. No member shall be permitted to lend his uniform to any person not a member of the Company; members when on duty must wear a badge, mark of distinction, or number, in order that they may be recognised; all such marks, badges, or numbers, must be approved by the Fire Brigades Board.

16. Members of Companies shall not be allowed to take any intoxicating liquor while on duty, without the permission of the officer in command at a fire or practice.

17. The bells or other signalling apparatus shall only be used for giving or receiving alarms, and for sending messages on service.

18. The Superintendent shall once in every month report on the efficiency of the Company, such report to be in writing under his hand.

19. Any member of the Company not attending paid practice shall, unless he furnish satisfactory excuse for his absence, be fined in such sums as the Company's rules may permit.

20. The Secretary of the Board shall be the person appointed to lay all informations necessary under all regulations made by the Board in the terms of the "Fire Brigades Act of 1884."

Passed at a meeting of the Board held on the 29th day of November, 1886.

(SECOND SESSION.)

NEW SOUTH WALES.

FIRE BRIGADES ACT, 1884.

(GLEN INNES FIRE BRIGADES BOARD—REGULATIONS.)

Presented to Parliament, pursuant to Act 47 Vic. No. 3, sec. 21.

Colonial Secretary's Office,
Sydney, 8th June, 1887.

The following Regulations made by the Fire Brigades Board of the Municipal District of Glen Innes, under the "Fire Brigades Act, 1884," having been confirmed by His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, are published in accordance with the requirements of the above cited Act.

HENRY PARKES.

MUNICIPALITY OF GLEN INNES.—FIRE BRIGADES BOARD.

WHEREAS by Proclamation in the Government Gazette of December 15th, 1885, the "Fire Brigades Act of 1884" was extended by the Governor to the Municipal District of Glen Innes; and whereas by appointment, notice of which appeared in the Government Gazette of April 9th, 1886, Edmund Henry Hodde was made a member of the Fire Brigades Board; and whereas at a meeting of the Insurance Companies, held in the Municipal Council Chambers, Glen Innes, on May 12th, 1886, by authority of a notice issued in the Gazette of 4th May, 1886, Edward Grover was elected a member of the Fire Brigades Board; and whereas Joseph Moses, who was on March 3rd, 1886, chosen Mayor of Glen Innes, in accordance with the "Municipalities Act of 1867," became, in virtue of his office and of clause 20 of the "Fire Brigades Act of 1884," a member of the Fire Brigades Board.

The Board thus legally constituted have framed the following Regulations for meeting and conduct of business by the Glen Innes Fire Brigades Board, as constituted under the "Fire Brigades Act, 1884":—

1. The Board may meet together for the despatch of business, adjourn, and otherwise regulate its meetings as it thinks fit.
2. The Mayor of Glen Innes for the time being shall be Chairman, and shall preside at all meetings of the Board.
3. No business shall be transacted unless all the members of the Board are present.
4. The sum of one guinea shall be paid to each member of the Board in attendance at the time specified for each meeting that is held.
5. The Board may, from time to time, appoint a Secretary and such other officers and servants as it may deem necessary, and shall determine their duties, salaries, and wages, and may at any time, with or without notice, suspend or dismiss any such Secretary, officer, or servant. The Secretary and such other officers as the Board may deem expedient, shall give security for the faithful discharge of their duties.
6. The Secretary shall attend all meetings of the Board and shall enter the minutes of resolutions and proceedings in a minute-book to be kept for that purpose; he shall conduct and lay all correspondence before the Board; he shall also discharge all such duties as the Board may from time to time direct.
7. A book shall be kept showing all the receipts of money on account of the Board, and all disbursements made; a balance shall be made up quarterly, or oftener if desired, and shall be verified if deemed expedient in such way as the Board may think fit; the Bank pass-book, made up to date, shall be laid before the Board at each meeting.

8. The Board shall open an account at such Bank as they may from time to time determine; all moneys shall be banked on the day after the receipt of the same, or in the event of the Bank being closed, on the next banking day.

9. The Secretary, or other officer authorized by the Board shall give receipts for all moneys payable to the Board, drawn on printed and consecutively numbered forms with corresponding butts.

10. The Secretary shall send notice of each meeting to each member of the Board, in which shall be stated the business to be transacted at that meeting,—such notice to be delivered not later than two days previous to such meeting.

11. The Chairman or Secretary may call meetings as may be deemed necessary, provided notice be given as above.

12. Members of the Board shall not vote on any matter in which they may be personally interested in any way whatever.

13. All payments of one pound or upwards shall be made by cheques upon the Bank, signed by the Chairman or by two other members, and countersigned by the Secretary or other officer authorized by the Board.

14. The accounts of the Board shall be made up in the months of January and July in each year, for the half-year expiring the 31st December and 30th June respectively, and shall be examined and verified by at least one Auditor, to whom shall be produced by the Secretary all vouchers, books, and documents necessary to verify the balance sheets.

15. Any member wishing to rescind, alter, or add to these Regulations must give to the Secretary seven days' notice in writing to that effect,—such notice to contain copies in full of his proposals.

16. For regulating the proceedings of the Board in respect of inquests on fires,—on the day after any fire a report in writing shall be made to the Board by the Superintendent of any fire which may come under the notice of the Brigade, in which report information, so far as can be ascertained, shall be given under the following heads:—

Hour and date of each alarm of fire.

By whom and how reported.

Name of occupier and owner of premises and purposes for which occupied.

Origin or supposed cause of fire.

Particulars as to insurance of premises and contents.

Construction of buildings.

General remarks, extent of damages, &c.

Whether an inquest into cause of fire be desirable.

The form of report to be determined by the Board from time to time. If necessary, the Board shall, on receipt of notice of a fire, be convened to decide whether the Coroner shall be directed to hold an inquest thereon; and the Secretary shall convey to the Coroner the resolution directing such inquest to be held, if so decided upon.

17. The Board shall appoint a Captain, who shall be the officer in charge of all Volunteer Fire Companies under the Board, and who shall have control when on duty, practice, drill, or parade of such Companies. He shall be paid such salary as the Board may determine. During his absence the senior officer next under him shall fulfil all such duties and have charge of such Companies. The Captain shall instruct the Company in their practices, drills, and parades, and direct them when on active duty at fires.

18. The Captain shall have possession and be responsible for all engines, machinery, or other appliances, for the purpose of extinguishing fires, saving life or property, belonging to the Glen Innes Fire Brigade Board.

19. The Board shall, as they deem necessary, purchase or lease any land, houses, or other buildings for the purpose of providing engine-houses, brigade offices, or alarm stations, and may purchase or hire any engine, machinery, or other appliances for the purpose of extinguishing fires or saving life or property, and may place such appliances at the disposal of any Volunteer Fire Company that may be from time to time established and registered under the Board in terms of these Regulations; and the Board may by resolution permit any part of these appliances to be used for any purpose, providing the expenses and charges are paid by the party or parties using same, and that the said party shall have entered into a guarantee with the Board against all loss or damage to such appliances.

20. The Captain shall keep a roll of all members, with a record of their attendance at drills, practices, parades, and fires; he shall report all breaches of Rules or disobedience of orders and, pending inquiry, shall suspend any member, and report such suspension to the Board, who shall inquire into the cause of complaint, and if sustained, such member shall at once be dismissed from the Company and his name removed from the roll, or he shall pay such fine as the Board may impose, and failing so to pay, may be sued for same before any two Justices of the Peace. In no case shall a fine be imposed exceeding £5 in addition to any damage done to any plant, uniform, or other property of the Board.

21. The Board shall pay all firemen enrolled, on the certificate of the Captain, the sum of two shillings and sixpence for each attendance at drill, practice, or parade, and ten shillings when on duty at fires if not detained more than four hours; after that time at the rate of two shillings per hour.

22. The Captain shall receive all fines imposed and all enrolment fees, and pay the same to the Secretary, giving all necessary particulars required by the Board.

23. Appointments to the usual offices in the Company shall be made by the members of the Company in meeting assembled subject however to confirmation by the Board. The officers shall have such titles as the Board may permit.

24. The Board may supply all firemen with such uniforms as they decide and approved of by the Board, and all such uniforms shall remain in the custody of the firemen so long as they continue to be enrolled, and shall be delivered up to the Captain upon the firemen ceasing to be a member of the Company.

25. The Secretary of the Board shall be the person appointed to lay all informations necessary under all Regulations made by the Board in terms of the Fire Brigades Act of 1834.

26. The Board shall, on receipt of notice of a fire, be convened to decide whether the Coroner shall be directed to hold an inquest thereon; and the Secretary shall convey to the Coroner the resolution directing such inquest to be held if so decided upon.

Passed at a meeting of the Fire Brigades Board, Municipality of Glen Innes, held on the 24th day of March, 1887.

J. MOSES,
Chairman of Board, Mayor of Glen Innes.
EDMUND H. HODD,
Government Representative.
EDWARD GROVER,
Fire Insurance Companies' Representative.

AND the said Board, so constituted as aforesaid, have agreed upon the following Rules and Regulations under which the Glen Innes Fire Brigades Board will register Volunteer Fire Companies:—

1. None but physically strong men, free from defect in sight and limbs, and without organic disease, shall be enrolled as a member of any Volunteer Fire Company registered under this Board, and before enrolment shall produce a certificate from some duly qualified medical man to that effect.

2. No unnaturalized foreigner shall be enrolled.

3. No person shall be enrolled under the age of eighteen years or over forty years, unless by special permission of the Board.

4. No person enrolled shall, after attaining the age of forty years be permitted to remain a member unless upon a medical certificate of health and a certificate of proficiency from the officer in charge of the Company, and then only until he attains the age of forty-five years.

5. No licensed victualler shall be eligible to be enrolled a member.

6. No person under 5 feet in height nor less than 32 inches round the chest shall be enrolled.

7. No person shall be enrolled should his occupation, in the opinion of the Board, unfit him for the duties of a fireman. No person who has been convicted of any felony or misdemeanour shall be allowed to remain or to be enrolled in any Company.

8. Any member of a Company guilty of intoxication, disobedience of orders, insubordination, abusive or obscene language, smoking in uniform at fires or on duty, wanton destruction of property, interference with fire-plugs and other appliances, or other unseemly conduct, or shall be guilty of any other breach of these Rules or the Company's Regulations, shall be at once suspended from duty, and shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding £5.

9. All persons enrolled as members of a Company shall be required to pay an enrolment fee of two shillings and sixpence.

10. Members of Brigade shall at no time attend Fire Brigade demonstrations, nor shall apparatus, &c., be taken to a demonstration without the written consent of the Board.

11. The Company, in order to be registered and subsidized, must send an application to that effect to the Board, together with a list of its members, giving their names in full, with age, occupation, residence, height, measurement round the chest, state of health, any physical defects (if any). On the Board being satisfied with said roll, the Company or Brigade shall be deemed to be established, and will be registered and subsidized accordingly.

12. The Company shall have its own printed Rules of internal and general working, which must in all cases be subject to the approval of the Fire Brigades Board. All proposed alterations and additions must be submitted to the Board for approval or otherwise. All fines and punishments fixed by such Rules shall be strictly enforced, under penalty of deducting from the subsidy voted such sums as it may appear that the Company has failed to recover.

13. Attached to the roll shall be an undertaking, signed by each member, stating his willingness to abide by the Rules of the Company and by the Regulations of the Board. A similar return shall be furnished in January in every year, but the signatures of those who have already signed need not be again attached unless required by the Board.

14. The number of effective working members shall not be less than fifteen nor more than twenty-five. If at any time the number shall fall below the minimum, the registration of the Company shall be suspended and the subsidy cease.

15. On all occasions of fire, in the absence of the Superintendent, the members of the Brigade shall abide by instructions given by the senior officer of the Company present. Members of Brigade shall not take orders from owners of property, bystanders, or other persons not in authority.

16. No member shall be permitted to lend his uniform to any person not a member of the Company. Members when on duty must wear a badge, mark of distinction, or number, in order that they may be recognised. All such marks, badges, or numbers must be approved of by the Fire Brigades Board.

17. Members of Companies shall not be allowed to take any intoxicating liquors while on duty, without the permission of the Officer in Command at a fire or practice.

18. The bells or other signalling apparatus shall only be used for giving and receiving alarms and for sending messages on service.

19. The Members of Brigade shall meet twice in every month for practice, &c. The Brigade may appoint its own day for practice.

20. Any Member not attending said practice shall, unless he furnish satisfactory excuse for his absence, be fined in such sum as the Company's Rules may permit.

21. The Captain shall once in every three months report on the efficiency of the Company; such report to be in writing under his hand.

Passed at a Meeting of the Fire Brigades Board, Municipality of Glen Innes, held on the 24th day of March, 1887.

J. MOSES,
Chairman, Mayor of Glen Innes.

(SECOND SESSION.)

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

SUPREME COURT SIXTH JUDGE.

(CORRESPONDENCE RESPECTING APPOINTMENT OF.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 20 May, 1887.

The Colonial Secretary to The Attorney-General.

(Private.)

My dear Mr. Foster,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 13 April, 1887.

I do not know whether you have any thought of a seat on the bench of the Supreme Court. When I mentioned the matter to you, in speaking of the Chair of the Assembly, you did not give me any definite reply.

We are nearing the time when the appointment must be made, and I feel that I ought to make known to you the view I take of the matter. I think it would, at the present time, be prejudicial to us if we were to make any change in the constitution of the Government. Indeed, as a rule, such changes are always prejudicial. But at the present time we are in the midst of important and critical public business—about as grave as could engage the attention of Government at any time; and the entrance into the Cabinet of a new man who knew nothing of the considerations which led to our conclusions would be embarrassing. I do not want you to leave us in any case until the Government is a little older. I am aware that Mr. Justice Faucett is likely soon to retire, and I should think Sir William Manning could not long remain, so that in all probability, in the ordinary course of things, you might, if you desire it, obtain a seat on the Bench within a short time, leaving this new appointment for some new man.

Yours sincerely,

HENRY PARKES.

The Attorney-General to The Colonial Secretary.

(Private.)

My dear Sir Henry Parkes,

Attorney-General's Chambers, 18 April, 1887.

You are so busy that conversation is not always attainable, so to put pros and cons shortly as to Judgeship.

I think you have put the cons fairly enough: such changes in personnel of a Ministry are always more or less prejudicial; the work engaging our attention is most grave and important, and I should certainly from inclination prefer that the Ministry should be older before I should leave it; indeed my inclination would be to share its expiring breath as I did its initiation. But the other side of the question: The Government has overwhelming majority, my absence would not only not wreck it, but would not more seriously inconvenience it than such an event at another time, and there are gaping successors. Independent of political position, I am looked upon as entitled to the office, not absolutely, but relatively, to others available. This is a great consideration, as public opinion ought to be in favour of such an appointment; although I have not neglected Equity in my profession, yet, if Manning's place were vacant, people might desire for Primary Judge in Equity a man whose main experience had been Equity. For such a Judgeship as the new one, I think even an adverse Government would have had difficulty in passing me over, though I might have had difficulty in accepting it from them. If Faucett's Judgeship were vacant, the Protestant and Catholic question would be introduced, especially as to a pronounced Protestant. Human life is uncertain as well as that of Ministries—and a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush.

No subsequent Judgeship would give me the same position. The next one will give seniority over the two subsequent appointments, and the right to preside at a Court constituted by them, which is no mean advantage.

The Patent Act must take away the patent fees, and my professional income will have been so reduced by my Ministerial duties that it seriously inconveniences my family for me to continue in office. This may apply to others, but past experience shows that it has never done so to the same extent as it does to me—why, none can tell? So much for pros and cons, which, I think, you will say are worthy of consideration, and now I must get to my work.

Remaining yours very faithfully,

W. J. FOSTER.

The Colonial Secretary to The Attorney-General.

My dear Mr. Foster,

11 May, 1887.

I hope you have made up your mind to stay in the boat with us until we float into haven from this Session. For several reasons, which I do not wish to state, I think the new appointment to the Supreme Court should be made outside the Government, and I cannot but think that your reputation would be served by declining the office.

But it is within my knowledge that Mr. Justice Faucett will retire in a short time—in all probability before the end of the year; and should it meet with your wishes, I shall raise no objection to your taking the Judgeship so vacated. I hope this will be accepted as an evidence of my good feeling in the matter.

Yours sincerely,

HENRY PARKES.

The Attorney-General to The Colonial Secretary.

My dear Sir Henry Parkes,

Attorney-General's Department, Sydney, 12 May, 1887.

I have just received your note dated yesterday.

I have not been able to make up my mind to "stay in the boat," much as I could have wished to assist my colleagues, and willing as I have always been to make considerable private sacrifice to promote what I have believed to be the real interests of the Colony. I feel this must be a turning point in my life, and I have strong reasons for believing there is no such certainty of another like opportunity as you have been led to suppose.

I am quite certain that to pass me over upon this occasion in the matter of the Judgeship would be to do me an irreparable injury in my professional character, even though another Judgeship should afterwards be offered me.

I cannot forget that when the question of the Speakership was before us you told me that my taking that office would make no difference to me in respect of a Judgeship, that if you should have a Judgeship of the Supreme Court to fill, which you thought was extremely probable, you would feel bound in any case to offer it to me, and if you should be in office you would do so if the opportunity offered, and I confess I have looked upon this as certain.

I am sorry it should occur in the middle of a Session, and should much prefer that it had been in recess, but my removal for this purpose is certainly expected by a considerable part of the community, and would not give less satisfaction than the appointment of any other person available, and in my opinion would be as little likely to injure the Government now as at any future time.

Further, at present, I have nothing to say but that I do not think the matter ought to remain longer unsettled.

Yours sincerely,

W. J. FOSTER.

The Colonial Secretary to The Attorney-General.

My dear Mr. Foster,

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 17 May, 1887.

I have thought over the matter of your appointment as Judge at the present time, and I cannot bring myself to the conclusion that you ought to ask me to agree to it.

We have not been in existence as a Government four months, and we are in the midst of difficult and critical business before Parliament. Any change in the composition of the Ministry would be disturbing and fraught with unavoidable trouble. Apart from other considerations, I could not at the present time fill the office of Attorney-General (who must be in the Assembly) without extreme unpleasantness to which I ought not to be subjected.

I do not suppose that any one of us would say that he took office four months ago with a view to office being a stepping stone to something else more agreeable or more conducive to his personal interests. This certainly never entered into my estimate of our obligations.

I trust therefore that you will not press this matter further upon me.

Yours sincerely,

HENRY PARKES.

The Attorney-General to The Colonial Secretary.

My dear Sir Henry Parkes,

Attorney-General's Department, Sydney, 18 May, 1887.

I have given most anxious thought to the question of the sixth Judgeship. I have considered in the light of your former letters as well as your last, the inconveniences and advantages of my accepting it. I do not fail to see that there is some considerable disadvantage to the Government in changing Attorneys-General, but consider myself sufficiently able to appreciate the position of the Government to which I still belong, to form an opinion as to whether my removal under the circumstances would be of so serious a character as to justify my colleagues in refusing me a position to which I am satisfied, without egotism, no one open to the appointment is better entitled upon any ground, and to which no other person can be appointed more to the interests of the community. I do not enter into the other suggestions at the conclusion of your letter, which I think you would agree with me are petty in comparison.

At last I have come to the conclusion that so far from falling in with your suggestion with a good grace, my mind has been after mature reflection so set upon this matter, that were it possible for me to accede to your suggestion (which it is not), it would be with an amount of dissatisfaction with my colleagues for requiring it, which would be incompatible with that united action which ought to characterise gentlemen united as we have been in Cabinet.

I do not think it desirable, under the circumstances, that I should attend the Cabinet to-day, as the action taken must be that of the Cabinet and not mine. I therefore prefer to await your decision either here or at my own chambers where any communication will reach me.

I remain, yours sincerely,

W. J. FOSTER.

P.S.—I have barely had time to scribble the above since I received your letter, though dated yesterday.

The

The Colonial Secretary to The Attorney-General.

My dear Mr. Foster, Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 18 May, 1887.
I am in receipt of your note of this morning which I have read to the Cabinet, all the Ministers being present.

The tenor of your note gives us all some surprise and pain, but it is useless to enter into explanations which could not be other than unpleasant.

I regret that we cannot consent to your appointment to the Judgeship created by the recent Act.

Yours sincerely,
HENRY PARKES.

The Attorney-General to The Colonial Secretary.

Sir, Attorney-General's Department, Sydney.
Your letter just received, refusing the consent of the Cabinet to my appointment as Judge under the recent Act, is so totally at variance with your statement to me when the Speakership was under consideration, that if you should have a Judgeship at your disposal you would offer it to me, that you cannot be surprised at my tendering my resignation of the Attorney-Generalship in your Ministry, which I accordingly do.

Yours obediently,
W. J. FOSTER.

The Colonial Secretary to The Attorney-General.

My dear Mr. Foster, Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 18 May, 1887.
I am in receipt of your note, resigning the office of Attorney-General. I regret that you should have considered it your duty to take this step on grounds which appear to me and my colleagues so inadequate on public grounds. I shall of course recommend His Excellency to accept your resignation. I must add that I cannot admit the justice of the construction which you put upon my remarks to you when speaking on the subject of the Speakership before the meeting of Parliament.

Yours sincerely,
HENRY PARKES.

The Colonial Secretary to The Attorney-General.

My dear Mr. Foster, Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 19 May, 1887.
I beg to inform you that His Excellency the Governor has, upon my advice, accepted your resignation of the office of Attorney-General.

Yours sincerely,
HENRY PARKES.

(MESSAGE No. 46.)

---

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 12 July, 1887.

---

CARRINGTON,
Governor.

Message No. 46.

In accordance with the provisions contained in the 54th section of the Constitution Act, the Governor recommends for the consideration of the Legislative Assembly the expediency of making provision to meet the requisite expenses in connection with a Bill to enable the Chief Commissioner of Insolvent Estates to sit and act as a Judge of the Supreme Court on the hearing of certain new trial motions and appeals.

Government House, Sydney,

“That such Return in future be laid upon the Table of this House as soon after the close of the year as possible.”

(Mr. Hutchinson.)

The Chief Inspector of Distilleries to The Under Secretary for Finance and Trade.

Sir, Distilleries Department, Sydney, 24 February, 1887.

I have the honor to forward herewith, the Annual Return of spirits, wines, and beers, for the year 1886, as called for by Order of the Assembly on the motion of Mr. Hutchinson, dated 15th February, 1884.

As stated in my letter, forwarding on the 15th February, 1886, a similar return for 1885, the large Metropolitan and Newcastle brewers refuse to give any information as to their output, and other means have therefore been resorted to for obtaining the information sought.

I have, &c.,

G. H. BARNEY,

Chief Inspector of Distilleries.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

THE "CRITERION HOTEL."

(DEPOSITIONS IN THE MATTER OF AN APPLICATION FOR A PUBLICAN'S LICENSE.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 21 April, 1887.

RETURN to an Address of the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 29th March, 1887, That there be laid upon the Table of this House,—

"(1.) Copies of the Depositions taken before the Licensing Bench in connection with an application made by John Solomon for the granting of a Publican's License for premises to be erected at the corner of Pitt and Park Streets, in the City of Sydney, when the license was refused.

"(2.) Also, copies of the Depositions taken—both at the first and at the adjourned hearing—before the Bench, upon an application made by John Solomon for a Publican's License for the same premises (now known as the 'Criterion Hotel') when the license was granted, during the present year."

(Mr. Henson.)

The "Criterion Hotel."

BEFORE the Metropolitan Licensing Court, Central Police Office, presided over by Messrs. T. K. Abbott, S.M. (Chairman), Whittingdale Johnson, S.M., and John Macintosh, L.M.

In re John Solomon, applicant, for a Publican's License for premises situate at Pitt and Park Streets, Sydney.

Messrs. W. Roberts, scnr., and F. Gannon appear for applicant, and Dr. Sly to oppose the application.

The application, together with the objections lodged, were placed before the Bench, as also petitions for and against the granting.

By Dr. Sly: Mr. Inspector Anderson stated that he opposed the application on the grounds set forth in his objection.

The hotel was not required, there being twenty-one houses between Elizabeth, Market, and Bathurst Streets.

The school and church buildings adjoins the hotel proposed to be licensed. The site on which the church is built was originally a licensed house. There is an internal communication between the theatre and the place sought to be licensed.

Every additional house now licensed would cause disorder.

By Mr. Roberts: The internal communication could be done away with. It would be a deal dependent on the way in which a licensed house was conducted as to the quiet and good order of the neighbourhood being disturbed.

By Dr. Sly: Rev. Dr. Jeffries stated he opposed the application on the grounds that the quiet and good order of the neighbourhood would be disturbed, his congregation would be annoyed, as a licensed house always had a tendency to collect men about the premises. He held divine service in the church every Sunday, and during the week days the school-room was used for societies, classes and other meetings. The hotel license, if granted, would disturb the quiet and good order of the neighbourhood; it was not required, as there were already too many in the neighbourhood. He opposed it on religious principle, and as the pastor of the church.

By

By Mr. Roberts : It would depend on the management of licensed premises as regards the quiet and good order ; if conducted properly it would not necessarily disturb the quiet and good order of the neighbourhood ; possibly customers would come from all parts to patronise a well conducted house ; would not say it would not be well conducted.

By Dr. Sly : Mr. Salisbury, who has an office at the Temperance Hall, stated it was not required ; and in his opinion the quiet and good order of the neighbourhood would be disturbed.

By Dr. Sly : Mr. Thompson stated it was not required, and the quiet and good order of the neighbourhood would be disturbed.

By Mr. Roberts : Reside at Double Bay.

Mr. Banner, (Superintendent of Sunday School) stated it was not required as service was held next door, and the congregation would be annoyed.

By Mr. Gannon : Do not want any hotels ; never frequent hotels or go to theatres.

By Dr. Sly : Mr. Reading—It is not required, there are already too many ; the quiet and good order of the neighbourhood would be disturbed if a license were granted.

By Mr. Roberts : It would not benefit me, I am a deacon of the church.

By Dr. Sly : Mr. Downing, member of City of Sydney Mission, have office opposite. It is not required as there is already sufficient accommodation.

By Mr. Roberts : Reside at Potts Point, and would not suffer inconvenience if no hotels.

Mr. Miller, Manager of Building Society, Pitt and Park Streets : It is not required ; wants of neighbourhood already amply supplied ; there being seven hotels within a radius of 200 yards ; the quiet and good order will probably be disturbed.

By Mr. Roberts : I reside at Petersham and do not require any hotels.

By Dr. Sly : Mr. Aitken—It is not necessary ; already too many.

By Mr. Gannon : Other hotels in neighbourhood do not disturb the quiet and good order of the neighbourhood ; never go to hotels or theatres.

By Dr. Sly : Mr. Pullin, decorator—It is not required ; the quiet and good order of the neighbourhood would be disturbed if license granted.

By Mr. Gannon : I have not been to church for many years.

By Mr. Roberts : Mr. John Solomon, the applicant, stated he had expended over £33,000 in the erection of the premises sought to be licensed ; it was urgently required for accommodating persons attending the theatre, and for the convenience of the public in general, who required a first-class hotel ; and if the license was granted he intended to conduct the hotel himself in a superior way.

Mr. Jennings, contractor, stated the hotel was required in every way as a public convenience, and for persons attending the theatre ; he had travelled all over the world and never yet saw a theatre without having licensed premises attached thereto. It was wanted as a superior house as frequenters of the theatre could not get accommodation of the class required within easy distance of the theatre.

By Mr. Gannon : Mr. Allison, theatrical manager, stated it was urgently required by the residents in the locality, and by the people frequenting the theatre ; it could not possibly disturb the quiet and good order of the neighbourhood if well conducted, and he was satisfied Mr. Solomon would conduct it in a superior manner.

Mr. George Thornton stated it would be a great convenience to persons frequenting the theatre ; he had occasion to feel the want of a house of this description in visiting the theatre a few evenings ago.

Mr. Saywell gave similar reasons for the necessity of granting the license, and Mr. Roberts informed the Court that a dozen or more witnesses were in attendance to urge valid reasons why the Court should grant the application, but in order to expedite the business by saving the time of the Bench he would not call them.

Mr. Inspector Anderson at this stage of the case stated that the premises did not contain the necessary accommodation, and the Bench decided to adjourn the further hearing of the application until the 1st February next.

Metropolitan Licensing Court, Central Police Office, }
Sydney, 25th January, 1887. }

Adjourned Licensing Court holden at Central Police Office.

PRESENT :—

T. K. ABBOTT, S.M., Chairman.

Whittingdale Johnson, S.M.,

John Macintosh, L.M.

Mr. Inspector Anderson produced the description of the premises sought to be licensed when first inspected, and description when afterwards inspected, which he handed to the Court, showing sufficient accommodation.

Dr. Sly, in addressing the Court, submitted that as the requisite number of rooms were not in existence at the time of making the application the Bench should refuse the application. As at present shown there were more rooms than required by the Act, as it was not intended that a licensed house should have more than the usual number when used only for the purpose of drinking, and asked that the license should not be granted.

Mr. Roberts, in reply, stated he would leave the matter in the hands of the Bench, as he had shown ample reasons why the license should be granted.

The Bench unanimously decided to grant the application.

Metropolitan Licensing Court, Central Police Office, }
Sydney, 1st February, 1887. }

NOTE.—No application was made by John Solomon for a publican's license for premises at the corner of Pitt and Park Streets, and refused.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

WILLIAM SPANGENBERG'S APPLICATION FOR A BILLIARD LICENSE.

(PAPERS, &amp;c.)

Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 12 July, 1887.

RETURN to an Address of the Honorable the Legislative Assembly, dated 11th May, 1887, praying that His Excellency will be pleased to cause to be laid upon the Table of this House,—

“Copies of all papers and Police Reports, together with copy of the depositions relating to the application made by William Spangenberg for a Billiard License, to the Metropolitan Licensing Court, held on 14th December, 1886.”

(Mr. Reid.)

6 December, 1886.

To the Licensing Court of the Metropolitan Licensing District acting in and for the City and District of Sydney.

I, SILAS ALFRED BANKS, licensed billiard-room owner for premises situate at 418, George-street, in the city of Sydney, being desirous of relinquishing my business as a licensed billiard-room proprietor for the above-described house, beg respectfully to submit to your Worships the name of Mr. William Spangenberg, of 221, Oxford-street, as my appointee, to whom I am solicitous your Worships will be pleased to transfer the rights and privileges of my billiard license for the residue of the term the same has now to run, in accordance with the provisions of an Act intituled the “Billiard and Bagatelle Licensing Act of 1882.”

Given under my hand at Sydney, this 3rd day of December, 1886.

S. A. BANKS.

I, WILLIAM SPANGENBERG, householder, of 221, Oxford-street, in the city of Sydney, hereby respectfully request that your Worships will be pleased, in compliance with the above request of Mr. Silas Alfred Banks, licensed billiard-room proprietor, for premises situate in 418, George-street, in the city of Sydney, to transfer to me the license he holds for such house.

Given under my hand at Sydney, this 3rd day of December, 1886.

WILLIAM SPANGENBERG.

For Mr. Inspector Anderson's report.—S.B., 4/12/86. Postponed one week.—S.B., 6/12/86. Refused.—S.B., 14/12/86.

No. 1 Police Station, Sydney, 6 December, 1886.

The Worshipful the Magistrates of the Metropolitan Licensing Court, Sydney.

Gentlemen,

I beg to oppose the application of Silas Alfred Banks, licensee of a billiard-room, at 418, George-street, to transfer his license to William Spangenberg, of No. 221, Oxford-street, on the following grounds, viz. :—

- (1.) That the said William Spangenberg recently held a publican's license for the house known as the “Freemasons' Hotel,” Castlereagh-street, and I am informed that the house was very badly conducted, being frequented by prostitutes and persons of bad repute, and he was convicted on the 12th September, 1884, of selling liquor on Sunday.

- (2.) That I am also informed that the said William Spangenberg permitted a dancing-saloon to be carried on at his premises, No. 221, Oxford-street, where a large number of young girls were admitted who were apparently not more than 14 years of age.
- (3.) That the said William Spangenberg was refused a publican's license at the Water Police Court on the 18th ultimo. He was also tried at the Sydney Quarter Sessions in August last on a charge of maliciously wounding one Mabel Haynes while in a brothel, and acquitted.

I have, &c.,

ROBERT ANDERSON,

Inspector.

Deposition that four persons are material Witnesses.

New South Wales, Sydney, } to wit. }

THE deposition of William Spangenberg, of 221, Oxford-street, Sydney, in the Colony of New South Wales, taken on oath before me, the undersigned, one of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace in and for the Colony of New South Wales, at the Central Police Office, Sydney, in the said Colony, this 10th day of December, in the year of our Lord 1886, who saith:—James Barnett, of the Police Force, in the said Colony, Senior-constable—Samuel Glanville, of said Force, in the said Colony, Senior-constable—Edwin C. Lewis, of said Force. Senior-constable—and John Roche, of said Force, in the said Colony, Senior-constable, are likely to give material evidence on behalf of the transferee in this behalf, touching the matter of the application of William Spangenberg for a billiard license, and I verily believe that the said James Barnett, Samuel Glanville, Edwin C. Lewis, and John Roche will not voluntarily appear for the purpose of being examined as witnesses for the transferee, at the time and place appointed for the hearing of such application, namely, on Tuesday, the 14th day of December instant, at Licensing Court, Central Police Office, Sydney, and I therefore pray that process may issue according to law.

Taken and sworn at Sydney aforesaid, on the day }
first above-written, before me,— }

WILLIAM SPANGENBERG.

W. R. STEWART, J.P.

Deposition that three persons are material Witnesses.

New South Wales, }
to wit. }

THE deposition of William Spangenberg, of 221, Oxford-street, Sydney, in the Colony of New South Wales, taken on oath before me, the undersigned, one of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace in and for the Colony of New South Wales, at the Central Police Office, Sydney, in the said Colony, this 10th day of December, in the year of our Lord 1886, who saith:—

Edward Keatinge, of the Police Force, in the said Colony—Eugene Lark, of said Force, in the said Colony—and — M'Leod, of said Force, in the said Colony, constables, are likely to give material evidence on behalf of the transferee in this behalf, touching the matter of the application of William Spangenberg for a billiard license; and I verily believe that the said Edward Keatinge, Eugene Lark, and — M'Leod will not voluntarily appear for the purpose of being examined as witnesses for the transferee at the time and place appointed for the hearing of such application, namely, on Tuesday, the 14th day of December instant, at the Licensing Court, Central Police Office, Sydney, and I therefore pray that process may issue according to law.

Taken and sworn at Sydney aforesaid, on the day }
first above written, before me,— }

WILLIAM SPANGENBERG.

W. R. STEWART, J.P.

Before Messrs. Whittingale Johnson, S.M., and John Macintosh, L.M.

Banks to Spangenberg—Transfer of a billiard license.

Mr. Thomas Williamson appears for applicant; Mr. Inspector Anderson to object.

By Mr. Anderson: Senior-constable John Roche stated that during the time Spangenberg kept hotel in Castlereagh-street the house was not well conducted; rogues, vagrants, and prostitutes were continually going in and out; other houses in same locality are badly conducted; Spangenberg is a respectable man to his knowledge; thinks he is a proper person to hold a billiard license; the prostitutes and bad characters who frequented the house came from some distance; the house had been much better conducted since Spangenberg has left it.

By the Bench: Senior-constable Glanville stated he knew nothing against the character of Spangenberg; rough characters frequented his place and some other bad hotels in the neighbourhood; had seen prostitutes going in and out with German sailors; could not say that Spangenberg is a fit and proper person to hold a billiard license.

By Mr. Williamson: Senior-sergeant Broderick stated that if the police gave evidence as to the good character of Spangenberg it would be a bad job for them; prostitutes frequenting the hotel lived near and others some distance away; the place had been better conducted since Spangenberg had left.

Senior-constable Lewis stated he had known Spangenberg two or three years, and had found him to be a respectable man; he might be a fit person to hold a billiard license; had never seen prostitutes following their avocation in house formerly kept by Spangenberg; the hotels in that locality were frequented by prostitutes as a rule.

By Mr. Williamson: Senior-sergeant Broderick had said that if any one gave evidence on behalf of Spangenberg he would make it a hot shop for them, and would see that they did not go unpunished.

By Mr. Anderson: Prostitutes frequenting Spangenberg's lived at Waterloo and near the hotel; some lived at Woolloomooloo; Spangenberg allowed them to stop there, and he (Broderick) had turned them out on different occasions; the house had been much better conducted since Spangenberg had left it.

By Mr. Williamson: Bad characters met there from all parts; he had given people in charge for misbehaviour from there.

Constable

Constable George M'Leod knew Spangenberg; he always found him sober and respectable; had seen prostitutes going in and out of Spangenberg's house three or four times in an hour; German sailors used to frequent there when in harbour; Sergeant Broderick did not say anything in his presence.

By Mr. Anderson: A great number of prostitutes used to frequent there; it was a favourite place of meeting, and disturbances were not so frequent since Spangenberg had left.

By Mr. Williamson: Detective Keatinge knew applicant; his character was good; he thought he was a fit person to hold a billiard license; he had at times given information that led to the apprehension of offenders; prostitutes frequented that locality (in which Spangenberg kept an hotel); they went in and out for a drink.

By Mr. Anderson: Sergeant Hogan knew that Spangenberg had, since leaving the hotel, a room where dancing was carried on, and frequented by the larrikin class of about the age of 14 years.

By Mr. Williamson: Do not know any of the people, and will not swear they are not respectable; the restaurant he kept was well conducted, and the saloon had since been closed up.

By Mr. Anderson: Senior-constable Day knew the house formerly kept by Spangenberg; it was badly conducted and frequented by prostitutes and bad characters, who came from a considerable distance; it was a great deal better conducted since he left; he is not a respectable man to keep a billiard-room; larrikins would spoil a billiard-room.

By Mr. Anderson: Senior-constable Wilkinson knew house formerly kept by Spangenberg; he conducted it very badly; prostitutes frequenting there had to pass other hotels before going there; Spangenberg used to encourage them, and allow them to remain there longer than necessary for the purpose of procuring refreshments; house much better conducted since Spangenberg left.

By Bench: Sergeant Collins stated the house formerly kept by Spangenberg was a great deal better conducted since he had left; he allowed prostitutes to remain longer than necessary; Spangenberg was not a fit person to hold a billiard license.

By Mr. Anderson: The frequenters came from all parts; they go to other houses in the neighbourhood; they are supported by that class.

Inspector Anderson stated the premises for which transfer was sought was at present well-conducted; if Spangenberg went there it would be a nuisance; the class frequenting his former place would follow him.

William Spangenberg, transferee, stated: The house proposed to be transferred was well-conducted, and frequented by bank clerks and business people; he was to pay a rental of £6 6s. per week; he had been arrested in a licensed house for inflicting grievous bodily harm.

By Mr. Williamson: Silas Banks stated he was the proposed transferee, and his present place was frequented by a respectable class; he never served drinks there; Spangenberg is to forfeit £50 if license is refused.

By Mr. Williamson: Mr. Ivan Henry stated that the purchase-money was lying in the bank pending transfer, and a clause was inserted in the lease that the house was to be respectably conducted.

By Mr. Williamson: Mr. Watson stated he was the lessee of the dancing-saloon referred to; it was used for the purpose of teaching dancing; no girls under 14 years of age frequented there.

Refused.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON THE

ALBURY CATTLE SALE-YARDS BILL.

TUESDAY, 17 MAY, 1887.

Present:—

MR. DAY,	MR. S. SMITH,
MR. HAYES,	MR. BURDEKIN,
MR. BARBOUR,	MR. LYNE.

GEORGE DAY, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

L. Gibson, Esq., appeared as Solicitor for the Bill.

Thomas Hodges Mate, Esq., called in, sworn, and examined:—

1. Chairman.] You were formerly a Member of the Legislative Assembly? I was.
2. You are an old resident of the Albury District? I have been connected with Albury since 1849 or 1850.
3. You are largely interested in squatting and commercial pursuits in the district? I am.
4. You are a member of the Borough Council of Albury? Yes.
5. You have had a lot of experience with regard to sales of cattle and sheep? I have.
6. You are aware that the Borough Council propose to build cattle sale-yards? Yes; the matter has been under consideration for years, and I believe that yards would have been erected years ago but for the Government refusing a piece of land which was applied for. The application was refused in consequence of the locality. I asked Mr. Copeland, who was Minister for Lands at the time, whether his refusal meant an absolute denial of a piece of land for cattle sale-yards, and he said, "Certainly not; you select another piece of land, and we will get the district surveyor to report on it, and if he approves of it you shall have it." This was done, and it is only lately that the land has been dedicated.
7. Mr. Gibson.] Have you seen the Bill which is before the Committee? I have.
8. Do you know the piece of land described in the Schedule? Yes.
9. Has that piece of land been gazetted by the Crown for the purpose of cattle sale-yards for Albury? Yes; I produce the Gazette containing the notification. [Appendix A.]
10. In your opinion, it is expedient that yards for the sale of cattle should be erected on that land? Highly expedient, in my opinion, from my knowledge and experience of the district.
11. For that purpose, is it necessary that full power should be given to the Council to erect and maintain suitable buildings and yards on the land? It is.
12. It is also necessary for that purpose that the Borough Council should be authorized to borrow money? It is.
13. And to charge fees and to make by-laws in connection with the sale-yards? Highly necessary.
14. Chairman.] Why do you believe that it is highly expedient to erect these sale-yards? Because I have had so many applications from different parties in the district, graziers and others, showing the necessity, at any rate, for establishing a market where they would be sure of selling stock and meeting with fair competition. I have frequently been asked if there was any probability of such a thing being done.
15. Are there not private sale-yards in Albury at the present time? Yes.
16. Are those yards sufficient for the sale of the cattle and the sheep which come to Albury? They are not sufficient for the cattle and sheep which would be brought into market if there were more extensive and

T. H. Mate,
Esq.

17 May, 1887.

T. H. Mate, Esq. and better yards. I am aware that a large number of cattle are sent to Victoria, and I have been told by certain parties that they would sooner sell in Albury if there were sufficient accommodation for the sale of stock there.

17 May, 1887.

17. Is any charge made on cattle which cross over the river into Victoria? 5s. a head.
18. Are you aware how often sales are held in Albury at the present time? I think once a fortnight.
19. How many private sale-yards are there? I think there are two.
20. Do they hold sales in those yards at the same time? I believe so. I believe that the different salesmen conduct their business about the same hour, which is an inconvenience to people bringing their stock to market, because there is not that competition which there would be if there was one general market, at which there would be fair competition; and they would have a better chance of getting more remunerative prices for their stock. I have heard complaints on that head from sellers; they have been disappointed.
21. Is there a large number of stock sold every fortnight? Yes.
22. Can you give us any idea of the number? From the 22nd December last to the present date the number of cattle and sheep sold in the private yards was about 75,000. I gathered this information from the advertisements which the salesmen have inserted in the local newspapers. I produce a statement made up from these advertisements. [Appendix B.]
23. If corporation sale-yards are established, I suppose a charge will be made for all stock brought into them? Most assuredly. The object will be to establish as small a fee as possible to remunerate the Council for its expenses, to pay interest on the money required to be borrowed, and to make good damages which the Council are now called upon to repair, without getting any return.
24. Mr. Barbour.] What damages? A large number of cattle going in and out of the yards damage the roads; and another thing is, that many ratepayers are deprived of a privilege which they ought to have—that is, of being allowed to turn out cows on the reserve. The cattle which are brought to market are driven on to the reserves, with the result that every bit of grass is eaten off them. I have seen as many as from 5,000 to 10,000 sheep at a time on the reserves which strictly belong to the municipality, they having been dedicated to them.
25. Mr. Lyne.] In the event of a charge being made, that would not prevent cattle going on to the reserve, or give a privilege to the small people to whom you refer? At any rate there would be some remuneration to the Council.
26. But not to the people? The people would be able to participate in the improvements which the Council would make from the fees.
27. Chairman.] Being an old resident of the district, have you any idea what effect the fees will have on the sales of cattle in Albury—whether they will be likely to induce the owners to take away their stock to Wodonga, where they will have nothing to pay? If good substantial yards are made, I think there will be a great increase in the sales of cattle and sheep in Albury. Many people coming from long distances with their stock would be glad to put the stock into good yards at Albury rather than cross the river, and have to pay 5s. a head for them. In many instances the money might be refunded; but it is very difficult to get a refund.
28. Your opinion, as one of the oldest squatters there, is that the erection of cattle sale-yards would be an acceptable and a popular thing among the stockowners of the district? No doubt of it. Many of them will be attracted there by reason of there being one set of yards where all buyers would be in attendance, instead of, as at present, being scattered over different parts of the town.
29. Do you know of any objection to the erection of the yards, either private or public? I do not know of any public objection. I have heard it said that Mr. Griffith, one of the local salesmen, is opposed to the erection of Corporation yards on the score that it would interfere with his business.
30. Has he cattle sale-yards of his own? Yes; but when the Corporation were in treaty for the piece of land which I have already described, and which was refused to them because it was too low, and too near the centre of the town, Mr. Griffith was also in treaty with the Government for the same piece of land. Of course you all know what delays take place in Government departments dealing with such matters, and before the application of the Council was refused Mr. Griffith had erected his yards. He was perfectly aware when he erected those yards that the Council had made application to the Government for that land.
31. Is there any provision in the Municipalities Act giving power to Corporations to erect cattle sale-yards? I cannot speak positively, but I think that it is necessary for them to get an Act of Parliament passed to enable them to erect yards and to charge fees.
32. You are under the impression, taking all things into consideration, that the erection of these yards would be a great public benefit? No doubt about it; it would be the greatest boon ever conferred on the district. It would be a good thing for the district and for the advancement of the town, and it would be an advantage to sellers and buyers.

T. H. Mate, Esq.
18 May, 1887.

33. Mr. Gibson.] Suppose municipal sale-yards were erected in Albury, would cattle have to pass through more or less of the inhabited part of the town than they do in going to the present sale-yards? They would not pass through the town at all—I mean cattle which come from the Sydney side, or from up or down the river.
34. Would more cattle come from other parts than would come from Victoria? Yes, decidedly.
35. How long would it take to erect these yards? It would take the best part of a twelvemonth.

T. H.
Mate, Esq.
18 May, 1887

36. The Bill authorizes the Borough Council to charge certain fees? Yes, as soon as the by-laws are gazetted.
37. How many sale-yards are there in Albury? I know of only two.
38. Do you know how much the Borough Council proposes to borrow for the purposes of this Bill? I do not believe that the yards would cost more than £2,000; but it is well not to tie them down to a few pounds. It is proposed to erect first-class yards with every convenience.
39. Does the Bill provide for any scale of fees to be levied? No; that will be dealt with under the by-laws.
40. Mr. McLaughlin.] Have you ever attended any sale in the present yards? No; I may have passed the yards while a sale has been taking place, but I have never attended a sale.
41. Neither at Chenery's nor at Griffith's yards? No.
42. Have you ever had any stock sold in either of these yards? Yes, at Griffith's yards.
43. When? At various times; I am not prepared to give the dates at this moment.
44. Have you had many head of cattle sold there? Not many cattle. They have sold a great many sheep for me. The sheep do not go into the yards.
45. Can you mention any time when these two yards could not accommodate all the cattle which had been brought into Albury? I have never heard of a want of sufficient accommodation.
46. Have you ever heard of any particular occasion when they were unable to accommodate all the cattle? I cannot recollect an instance.
47. Do you know Griffith's sale-yards pretty well? Yes, from observation; I have never been close to them.
48. Are they not rather superior yards? I think not, but mind I speak only from report.
49. Have you never examined the yards? No; I cannot say whether they are superior yards or otherwise.
50. Can you give any idea of either the value or the cost of them? Only from report, if that is of any service to the Committee.
51. Do they cover a large area of land? I do not know.
52. Did it so appear to you? The yards are so situated that you cannot tell the area of them until you have examined them.
53. Do cattle coming to these yards from New South Wales have to pass through the town? No. They would have to pass the municipal yards in order to go to Griffith's yards.
54. They are outside the town? They are surrounded by houses at any rate.
55. How far are they from the municipal yards? I should imagine that they are about a mile or more.
56. How many houses do cattle pass that pass the site of the proposed yards? I cannot answer the question; I have never counted the houses.
57. Is the locality populated? I have never examined the land sufficiently to answer the question.
58. Are there a dozen houses? I should say that there are a good many more than that number.
59. Suppose the same number of cattle were still sold at the existing yards, would there be sufficient business for the municipal yards? I cannot say; it is an increasing trade.
60. Suppose the existing yards were to continue to do their present business, would there be any business for the municipal yards? It is impossible for me to say.
61. Your evidence is of a speculative character? I think it is a fair presumption that a great deal of business would come to the municipal yards.
62. Assuming that none of the present business would go to those yards, would they pay? It is impossible for me to say; it is beyond human consideration.
63. Would you like to swear that they would pay? I would not like to swear anything at all about the matter.
64. Do you know that the sale-yards in Wodonga are all free? I do not know whether they are free or not.
65. Mr. Barbour.] Are the yards in Wodonga private yards? I cannot tell.
66. Mr. Dawson.] Is it a fact that since Mr. Griffith commenced business in Albury the cattle and sheep traffic has increased to a great extent? No doubt; it has increased yearly since he commenced business there.
67. It is not probable that you will get his business by erecting sale-yards in the town? I cannot say that; I cannot command the people.
68. Mr. McLaughlin.] The Council ask for power to borrow money—have they not borrowed pretty extensively already? I do not know.
69. How long have you been in Albury? About eighteen months.
70. Have you any idea of the finances of the Council—how much do they owe now? I do not know.
71. Sales take place in Griffith's sale-yards only once a fortnight? I believe so.
72. If there were more business to be done I suppose that the public requirements would be met by having weekly sales? I cannot say that.
73. All your evidence has been given on information which you have received? I have spoken only from hearsay. I have never inspected the present sale-yards. I know nothing about the accommodation which they afford.
74. Mr. Gibson.] Do you mean to infer that because Mr. Griffith opened sale-yards in Albury that the sheep and cattle trade has increased, or do you attribute the increase in this business to the natural growth of the district? To the natural growth of the district, certainly.
75. If anybody else had erected sale-yards in the first instance the same result would have been brought about? Yes.
76. Mr. McLaughlin.] There was no such thing as a regular sale day before Mr. Griffith went to Albury? I cannot recollect.
77. The Bill asks for power to compel Mr. Griffith to pay dues in respect of any cattle sold in his yards? Not unless he continues to hold sales beyond a certain period from the time the Bill has come into force. We do not deprive him of the right to hold sales in his yards; we ask him only to pay dues.

Mr. Edward Chenery called in, sworn, and examined:—

78. Chairman.] What is your name? My name is Edward Chenery. I reside in Albury, and am a stock and station agent.
79. You have some experience, I suppose, in the sale and disposal of cattle and sheep in the town and district of Albury? Yes.

Mr
E. Chenery.
80. 18 May, 1887.

- Mr. E. Chenery.
18 May, 1887.
80. Have you lived in the district any length of time? I have lived there on and off for ten or eleven years.
81. What were you engaged in at first? I was engaged at first on Ournee, my father's station, and then I became a stock and station and commission agent.
82. Are you carrying on that description of business now? Yes.
83. You have some experience with regard to the public requirements in that respect? Yes.
84. Mr. Gibson.] Do you know the piece of land which is described in the Schedule of this Bill? Yes; the Municipal Council proposes to erect sale-yards on this site.
85. Do you, from your experience of the sale of cattle, consider that it is a suitable site for the purpose? Yes.
86. Would cattle in going to the municipal yards have to pass through more or less of the town than they do in going to the existing yards? There is no population near this site.
87. Would they pass more or less people in going to these yards than they do at present? Considerably less.
88. Have you heard of any complaints against the erection of municipal yards? I have heard of none.
89. Have you heard of any opposition to the Bill? Yes, by Griffith & Company.
90. Is it the wish of the people that municipal yards should be erected? Yes.
91. As regards the sales of cattle in Albury, are they on the increase or the decrease? Considerably on the increase, I think.
92. Is Albury the centre of a stock district? Yes.
93. Do you think that this trade will increase or decrease in the future? I think it will increase.
94. Do you know Griffith's yards? Yes; I have been in them.
95. What sort of yards are they? They are very good private yards.
96. You have yards of your own? Yes.
97. Are there any other sale-yards in the town besides yours and Griffith's? No.
98. Looking at the increase which has taken place, do you think that these two yards will be sufficient in the future to accommodate the stock? I do not think so.
99. You think that it is for the benefit of the public that municipal yards should be erected? Yes.
100. How often do stock sales take place in Albury? Once a fortnight. All the sales are advertised for the same day at half-past 10 o'clock.
101. What is the distance between the two existing yards? By road, I think it is nearly 2 miles.
102. Can a person conveniently attend the sales in both yards? I do not think so.
103. If municipal yards were erected, and all the sales were held, would it be for the advantage of the buyers and the sellers and the public generally? Yes.
104. Have you known of any stock being sent from Albury and sold on the other side of the river? Yes. I remember an instance in which I had 1,700 head of store cattle placed in my hands on account of Mr. James Mitchell, of Tabletop Station. We had to cross to Wodonga to sell them.
105. Is there any due for crossing? We had to pay a due of 5s. on each head of cattle.
106. Are you here as an independent witness, or have you been sent here? I am here as an independent witness.
107. Have you any interest in the Municipal Council? No.
108. Mr. McLaughlin.] How long have you been in business as a commission agent? About nine months.
109. Have you purchased sale-yards? No.
110. The yards in which you sell are rented yards? Yes.
111. There is plenty of land for sale, I suppose, outside the town of Albury? Yes, at a price.
112. On which good yards might be erected? Yes.
113. You have not thought that the speculation is good enough yet to build substantial yards? Yes, I have.
114. Have you purchased ground to build yards on? I have rented ground on which to build yards in Albury.
115. Not where your present yards are? No.
116. Have you taken a long lease? I have taken a lease.
117. You sold 1,700 head of cattle in Wodonga because you could not get accommodation in Albury? I should have had to apply to another agent in order to get the accommodation.
118. Is not that very often done? Yes, with some agents.
119. Did you apply to the other agent? No.
120. His yards would have accommodated more than 1,700 head of cattle? Certainly.
121. Were you under any impression that the cattle would sell better in Wodonga than in Albury? No.
122. Are you sure? I am quite sure.
123. Are you sure that you did not advise your constituents that their cattle would sell better in Wodonga than in Albury? Yes.
124. Originally, when you entered into business, Mr. Griffith had yards close to yours? I believe so.
125. And then he removed his yards out of town? No.
126. What is the sale day in Albury? Wednesday, usually.
127. That was the day on which Mr. Griffith used to sell before you went into business? I believe so.
128. You fixed your sale simultaneously with his? Yes. I may state that when I first started in business I rented yards other than those I rent now, alongside of Mr. Griffith's yards. He bought them over my head, and so I had to rent other yards.
129. Would not the sales in the municipal yards take place simultaneously with the sales in Griffith's yards? It is a matter for the Municipal Council to arrange for in their by-laws.
130. Do you know that the yards in Wodonga are private yards? Yes.
131. And that there are no dues for selling cattle there? Yes.
132. Upon whom would those dues fall—the commission agent or the seller? It is a matter of arrangement between the parties.
133. Have you any experience with respect to selling cattle in yards where dues are charged? I have had four years' experience.
134. Upon whom did the dues usually fall? Upon the seller; it is purely a matter of arrangement.
135. Suppose the dues fell on the seller, would he not prefer to sell in Wodonga, where the yards are free, than in Albury? I should imagine that the seller would rather pay 8d. or 4d. a head than a stock tax of 5s. a head in order to sell cattle at Wodonga.

136. Mr. Dawson.] Your interest in the sale-yards is merely that of a lessee? Yes.
 137. You would lose very little by the erection of municipal yards? No.
 138. Mr. Barbour.] Suppose the municipal yards were erected, who would advertise the hour at which the sales would commence—the Council or the salesmen? The municipality, I should imagine. A regular hour would be fixed by arrangement.
 139. Mr. Hayes.] Is it not a regular custom with respect to municipal yards for the auctioneers to draw lots, and arrange amongst themselves as to the various sales? I think so.
 140. Mr. Burdekin.] Would it be a convenience to the buyer as well as to the seller if the sales were held in one yard? Yes.
 141. Mr. Hayes.] Would the erection of municipal yards improve the market at Albury? Yes.
 142. Mr. Dawson.] It would not drive cattle to Wodonga? No.
 143. Mr. Gibson.] Is it not usual in country towns for stock and station agents to hold their sales on the same day so that the people would not have to come in from the outlying districts more than is necessary? Yes.
 144. Mr. McLaughlin.] If you and Mr. Griffith still held your sales there would be very few sales in the municipal yards? A number of people would sell their cattle in the municipal yards instead of at Wodonga.
 145. Mr. Gibson.] Have you ever heard of arrangements by which the salesmen pay the dues of the yard? Oh, yes.

Mr.
E. Chenery

THURSDAY, 19 MAY, 1887.

Present:—
 MR. BARBOUR, MR. DALTON,
 MR. BURDEKIN, MR. DAWSON,
 MR. H. CLARKE, MR. HAYES,
 MR. LYNE.

GEORGE DAY, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

L. Gibson, Esq., appeared as Solicitor for the Bill.
 Jno. McLaughlin, Esq., appeared for C. L. Griffith & Co., against the Bill.

Mr. Alexander Frew called in, sworn, and examined:—

146. Chairman.] What is your name? Alexander Frew.
 147. You live in Albury, and are a member of the Borough Council? Yes.
 148. What business do you carry on? I am a contractor and builder.
 149. How long have you lived in the township? About nineteen years; I arrived in Albury in January, 1868.
 150. Are you well acquainted with all local questions? Yes.
 151. Have you taken an interest in nearly all of them? Yes.
 152. You have taken a great interest, I suppose, in the projected municipal yards? Yes.
 153. Mr. Gibson.] How long have you been in the Borough Council? Nearly nine years; I am in my ninth year.
 154. Is Albury the centre of a large stock district? Yes.
 155. And very large sales of stock take place in the town? Yes.
 156. Are the sales on the increase? The trade has increased rapidly during the last two years.
 157. Would it be to the advantage of the town and of the district if municipal yards were established? Yes.
 158. Is it the wish of the people to have such yards? Yes.
 159. How do you know? From persons waiting upon me and asking me to move in the matter.
 160. Representative people of both the town and district have asked you to have these yards erected? Yes.
 161. Do you know of any objections to the proposal? None, except that of Mr. Griffith.
 162. What class of yards would the municipal yards be? First-class yards; something similar to the yards at Homebush, but smaller.
 163. How long would it take to build them? About a twelvemonth.
 164. Do you know how many sale-yards there are in Albury? Two. There are two yards in use; there are other yards, but they are seldom used.
 165. You know Griffith's and Chenery's yards? I have seen them.
 166. What class of yards are they? Very fair.
 167. Is there any accommodation irrespective of those two yards for the sale of stock? No.
 168. Are the present yards sufficient to meet the public requirements? I really cannot give a definite opinion, because I do not attend the sales.
 169. Do you think that the sales will increase in the future? They have increased during the last two years.
 170. Do you know when Griffith's yards were built? About two and a half years ago.
 171. How long has the question of municipal yards been discussed in Albury? About six years.
 172. Were meetings held with respect to the matter? One or two private meetings were held, and money was subscribed.
 173. How long ago? Lately.
 174. Do you recollect whether any meetings were held any time ago? None were held at first; I mean six years ago.
 175. Was there a meeting held at first? Yes; it was attended by three aldermen, Mr. Day, and myself.
 176. How long ago? I think it was in 1878.
 177. Chairman.] How long is it since the Borough Council moved in the matter? Shortly after that meeting was held I submitted a motion to the Council.
 178. How long is it since the Council applied for a site for municipal yards? About four years ago.
 179. Mr. McLaughlin.] What was the date of the auctioneers' meeting? About a couple of years after the Goulburn Bill was passed.

Mr. A. Frew.
19 May, 1887.

- Mr. A. Frew. 180. Mr. Dalton.] Was your motion carried in the Council? No; I withdrew the motion because only three out of nine aldermen supported it. I reintroduced it in the course of six months, then I postponed it for another six months; I let the matter rest for two years, and then, at my instance, the Council approved of the proposal.
- 19 May, 1887. 181. Mr. Gibson.] Who was at the auctioneers' meeting? Mr. Griffith, Mr. North, and the name of the other I forget.
182. What was the opinion of that meeting? That it was desirable to erect municipal yards.
183. Do you know Mr. Thomas Hunter Griffith? Yes; he is partner with his brother in the business of cattle salosmen.
184. He is one of the firm who are opposing the Bill? He opposed the motion in the Borough Council.
185. Have you seen him at any of the meetings at which this question was brought up? He attended them all.
186. Did he express any dissent from the proposal? No.
187. Did he express his assent? Yes.
188. Did he take any steps towards sending you to give evidence here? I moved that he attend the meetings of this Committee, and he proposed a motion, which was carried, that I should attend, as I was the prime mover in the matter.
189. Do you produce a letter promising a grant of land for these yards from the Under Secretary of Lands to the Council Clerk of Albury? Yes. [Letter produced.] I hand in a copy of it. [Handed in, Appendix C.]
190. Is the land vested in the Council? Yes.
191. Has the Council been promised the ground? Yes.
192. Mr. Dalton.] Has the Council taken possession of the land? Yes.
193. Chairman.] Has it been dedicated? Yes.
194. Do you think it would be for the benefit of producers and buyers of cattle that these yards should be erected? Yes.
195. Mr. McLaughlin.] Will you state the names of the people who asked you to move in the matter? Mr. James Mitchell, of Tabletop, Mr. Andrew Hore, of Mugwee, and Dr. Andrews. One lived in the town, and the other two outside.
196. Do you mean Mr. Hore, senior, or Mr. Hore, junior? Both of them.
197. Do they reside in New South Wales or Victoria? In New South Wales.
198. Mr. Dalton.] What are these gentlemen? Graziers.
199. Mr. McLaughlin.] Did the Council negative the motion which you moved shortly after this meeting was held? It was not put to the vote; I saw that only three aldermen were in favour of it, therefore I withdrew it for six months.
200. Did you bring it forward again? Yes, in six months' time.
201. And you were still in a minority on the question? Yes.
202. And in view of that fact Mr. Griffith erected yards of his own? No.
203. Was it not after the Council negatived your motion that he purchased land and erected yards of his own? Not his present yards.
204. Do you mean that he erected his yards before you submitted your motion? No, after I moved in the matter. My motion was carried before his present yards were erected. He had other yards at that time.
205. On what date was your motion carried? I cannot say at this moment.
206. Did you not know that this Bill was to be opposed by Griffith & Co.? No.
207. When did you learn of it first? When I came here.
208. About what time was your motion carried in the Council? I cannot say exactly; I could telegraph for the information.
- 208½. When did Mr. Griffith erect his yards? It was about two and a half years ago.
209. And your motion was carried in the Council about two and a half or three years ago? It was carried before Mr. Griffith built his present yards.
210. Why did not the Council apply for a Bill before? We applied for a piece of ground on the "Flat" upon which to build the yards as soon as my motion was carried. Mr. Griffith had applied for this site before. His application was refused on the ground that the Minister was about to cut up the ground into blocks, being close to the town. Mr. Griffith and Mr. Affleck opposed our application. We then applied for another site, and it was granted after a twelvemonth. That was about four years ago.
211. Was Mr. Griffith's brother in the Council at the time? No; he has been there only about eight months.
212. How did the Council divide on your motion? Ayes 5, and noes 4.
213. When did the Council decide to apply for power to borrow money for this purpose? I can obtain the information from the books of the Council.
214. It is only recently that they arrived at a decision on the subject—when did they decide to apply to Parliament? About eighteen months ago, I think.
215. Was Mr. Griffith Mayor of Albury at the time? Yes.
216. What was the division on that motion? Ayes 4, noes 3.
217. Did Mr. Griffith vote for or against it? He did not vote.
218. Did he state as a reason why he did not vote that he was interested in the matter? He gave no reason.
219. Suppose that he had voted with the noes? His casting vote would have thrown out the motion.
220. Assuming that he was opposed to the Bill, then a majority of the Council was opposed to it? Only by the casting vote of the Chair. One alderman who was in favour of the Bill was absent when the division was taken. I know that there was a majority in favour of the Bill.
221. How much money does the Council owe already for water-works—I mean, how much are their rates mortgaged for? To tell you the truth, I do not know whether they are mortgaged or not.
222. You are the treasurer? No; I was treasurer for a good while.
223. What did the Council owe when you gave up that office? They owed about £40,000 to the Government at the time.
224. What amount did the Council owe on rates for local purposes, independent of water-works? They were in funds.
225. Mr. Dalton.] Have you an overdraft? No.
226. Or any debentures? No. I believe that we owed £1,800 when I left office.

227. Mr. McLaughlin.] Up to the present all the cattle have been accommodated in certain yards? No; Mr. A. Frew.
they are kept in paddocks, and lanes sometimes. 19 May, 1887.
228. How many cattle would Griffith's yard accommodate? I do not know.
229. Would they accommodate all the cattle that ever came into Albury in a week? Yes.
230. But you said you did not know how many cattle his yards would accommodate? I could not say without measuring the yards.
231. When did he ever have cattle in lanes? A few months ago he had in the lanes about 1,000 cattle which his yards would not hold.
232. Mr. Dalton.] What is the area of his yards? I could hardly say.
233. How many pens do they contain? I have never counted them.
234. Mr. McLaughlin.] You cannot tell whether they could hold all the cattle that come into Albury? I could tell if I knew the size of the yards.
235. Do they not look very large? No.
236. Have you heard of a proposal on the part of the aldermen of Wagga to erect municipal yards there? I have heard that yards were to be put up there. Mr. Griffith told me that he would erect yards there.
237. If he did, would it not seriously affect the business of your municipal yards? I do not think it would; it might improve it.
238. They would prefer to sell their cattle in Albury, notwithstanding the municipal dues? Decidedly.
239. Do you know that the aldermen of Wodonga proposed to erect municipal yards, and charge fees? I have heard that they did.
240. And that they abandoned it because they thought that it would drive the trade to Albury? Nothing of the sort.
241. Do you know why it was abandoned? It has not been abandoned to my knowledge.
242. They have no municipal yards there? No.
243. They have private yards and free yards? Yes.
244. Mr. Hayes.] Is the £40,000 which the Council owes to the Government for water-works secured on the water rates, and not on the general rates? On the water rates alone.
245. If you had not come down from Albury, would His Worship Mr. Griffith have come down in your place? I believe he would have come, because he voted for the appropriation of £25 in connection with the Bill, £15 for my travelling expenses, and £1,600 with which to begin the erection of the yards. He attended three meetings, and on each occasion he voted for the proposal.
246. Are the vendors and buyers of cattle in favour of municipal yards? Yes, to my knowledge.
247. Mr. Barbour.] Was a petition got up and signed by the ratepayers in favour of these yards? Yes.
248. Mr. Lyne.] Are you certain that no rates other than the water rates are mortgaged, or that the Country Towns Water Supply Act does not require all rates to be mortgaged? I cannot tell you that now.
249. Mr. Gibson.] Has the question as to whether the yards will pay ever been discussed by the Council? Yes.
250. What conclusion was come to? That they would pay about £1,500 a year.
251. Mr. Dalton.] Do you base your calculations on the tariff of the Goulburn cattle sale-yards? Yes.
252. Mr. Hayes.] What rates do you propose to charge? 6d. for fat cattle, 2d. for stores, a 1d. for sheep and cows, 6d. for horses, and 2d. for pigs.
253. Mr. McLaughlin.] How do you propose to distinguish between stores and fat cattle? Graziers would tell you better than I can; one is fat, and the other is poorer.
254. Mr. Gibson.] Will it be part of your duty to distinguish between these things? No; the buyers will do that.
255. Mr. McLaughlin.] Will it not be necessary to maintain an officer to look after the yards and to collect the fees? The Inspector of Nuisances will do that. He will take the number of "stores" from the advertisements in the papers.
256. If cattle are taken over the river to Wodonga for sale, would they not use your roads without paying you anything at all? It is not likely that people will pay a stock tax of 5s. a head if they can sell their cattle in Albury for a fee of 2d. a head.
257. But cattle sometimes go through to Wodonga? Yes.
258. Mr. H. Clarke.] It depends upon the market? Yes.
259. Mr. McLaughlin.] Does not the bulk of the cattle sold in Wodonga come from New South Wales and Queensland? I do not think so. Mr. Griffith generally sells them.
260. These cattle would pass by your yards, and use your streets without paying you anything? Yes.
261. By this Bill you propose to make Mr. Griffith pay fees for all the cattle that he shall sell in his yards? He will pay the dues.
262. The same as if he used the Corporation yards? It will be considered by the Borough Council.
263. Do you propose to make him pay the same as if he had used the Corporation yards? Nothing will be charged until the yards have been erected.
264. But you will charge him the same then as if he had used those yards? Only the ordinary dues.

Mr. T. H. Mate recalled and further examined:—

265. Mr. Gibson.] Can you tell the Committee what has been proposed as a likely charge for selling stock in the municipal yards? I do not think that there has been any definite decision. Mr. T. H. Mate.
19 May, 1887.
266. Chairman.] Has the Council fixed no scale of charges yet? No.
267. Have they ever discussed the question? I do not recollect; certainly not since I have been in the Council.

Alexander Frew recalled and further examined:—

268. Mr. Dalton.] Are Griffith's yards large enough to meet the present requirements of this trade? No. Mr. A. Frew.
19 May, 1887.
269. Even if this Bill be passed the Council could not purchase those yards? The yards would be of no use to the Council; the timber would be useful though.

Mr. Charles Lucas Griffith called in, sworn, and examined:—

270. Mr. McLaughlin.] You are a member of the firm of C. L. Griffith & Co., auctioneers and cattle salesmen, carrying on business in Albury? Yes. Mr. C. L. Griffith.
271. 19 May, 1887.

- Mr. C. L. Griffith.
19 May, 1887.
271. When did you first act there as cattle salesman? About the 1st of November, 1878.
272. Was there a good cattle market at the time? There was no regular cattle market; few stock were sold in the district.
273. Where were they sold then? Principally the auction business was done in Beechworth, in Victoria, and private sales were held in Wagga, New South Wales.
274. When did you first erect sale-yards? I think it was in the early part of 1882. I first commenced regular auction sales in 1879, and I have continued until the present time. I rented yards at first, and I built yards early in 1882.
275. Did you build close to the town, or in the town? It was not very close to the town at the time; the town has extended since I built my yards.
276. Do you remember that as the town was extending the Municipal Council refused to erect yards? I recollect the matter cropping up in the Council from time to time, and being negatived.
277. Did you, when you found that the Council would not construct yards, erect yards of your own outside the town? I removed my yards from the populous part of the town to a site—which could not possibly be objected to—outside the town, out of deference to the public opinion that the traffic was dangerous.
278. When was that? In June, 1884.
279. Did you purchase land for the purpose? Yes.
280. What was the area? Roughly speaking, it was about 39 or 40 acres in one block, and 5 acres across the road.
281. Did you erect yards on a portion of that block? Yes. My present yards (in one block) cover about  $3\frac{1}{4}$  acres. I have other land outside which I can use in an emergency, making about 4 acres in all, besides paddocks which can be used for yards.
282. How much have you spent on the purchase of land and the erection of yards and houses in connection with this property and your business? Between £4,000 and £4,500.
283. It is stated that there is not sufficient accommodation in the present cattle sale-yards? I have never been short of room for cattle since I first commenced my sales. I have accommodation for four times the average supply of stock.
284. Still you are not overcrowded? No.
285. Are your sales not limited to once a fortnight? Usually, except for very special sales.
286. Have you always been willing to lend your yards to anyone who wished to rent them? I have offered them free to at least seven or eight agents. I have requested them to sell.
287. Have you offered them from time to time to Melbourne agents? Yes; on a recent occasion to bring the Melbourne trade over to the town.
288. Can you give the names of the agents? Yes; recently King & Company had to sell 1,000 "Forest Vale" bullocks, and I pressed them very hard to sell them in the town quite free.
289. Mr. Lync.] Did they sell them? No; they sold them at Wodonga.
290. Mr. McLaughlin.] Any other Melbourne agents? Gibson & Company, Peck, Hudson, & Raynor, Thomas Mates, and others, I believe, whose names I cannot remember at present.
291. What is the average number of cattle sold in Albury every fortnight? I should think, roughly speaking, it is between 600 and 700.
292. How many sheep? Perhaps from 5,000 to 6,000.
293. Mr. Hayes.] How many fat cattle? Probably 150.
294. Mr. McLaughlin.] About how many horses? From 1,500 to 2,000 horses a year are offered.
295. About how many cattle and sheep will your yards accommodate? I can accommodate, I suppose, about 400 fat cattle in the pens.
296. Mr. Dawson.] How many do you put in a pen? If I have a big market I have big pens; it is of no use to sell them in small lots. I have had 2,000 cattle in a day, and they had plenty of room.
297. Mr. Dalton.] You usually sell to the local butchers? Not altogether. Butchers come from other towns, and the graziers buy a good many fat cattle.
298. What is the average number that the butchers purchase on a sale day? About 100 fat cattle.
299. But a single butcher? Two butchers might buy thirty or fifty fat cattle, while another butcher might buy only two or three.
300. Are not the butchers of the surrounding towns in the habit of coming to Albury for their supplies? Yes.
301. Mr. McLaughlin.] How many store cattle can you accommodate? I have had nearly 2,000 stores in my yard, and still I have had plenty of room.
302. Are fat cattle frequently purchased at Wodonga and brought over to Albury by the local butchers? Yes.
303. Equally as free of restrictions as if they were bought in Albury? Yes.
304. There is no duty on cattle coming across the border into this Colony? No. A New South Wales butcher can buy cattle in Wodonga just as advantageously as he can in Albury, and if the cattle should have been sent from this Colony he gets a refund of 5s. a head.
305. What would be the effect of charging dues in Albury? Any lots of cattle of considerable size would have a tendency to go to Wodonga in order to avoid municipal rates. There is a first-class market established there, and in my opinion a better market than we have in Albury. In my own case, in order to protect my interests, I should be obliged to go to Wodonga too. If you sold 1,000 cattle at 6d. a head you would make £25 by selling them in Wodonga.
306. Mr. H. Clarke.] Do not stores and fats pay 5s. to cross the river? Yes.
307. Mr. McLaughlin.] Suppose a Victorian buyer wanted our cattle, he would have to pay the stock-tax whether he bought them in Albury or Wodonga, and if a New South Wales man bought some in Wodonga the stock-tax would be refunded to him? Yes.
308. Mr. Dalton.] What is the rate of commission? For store cattle  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. where the seller takes settlement, and 5 per cent if you guarantee and pay cash.
309. What is the usual commission in other parts of the Colony? The same.
310. Are you not aware that the salesman takes the risk for  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent.? No. I should be very sorry to be the salesman.
311. Mr. McLaughlin.] There are other yards besides yours in Albury? Yes; there are Mr. Phillips's yards, occupied by Chenery Brothers; and an old yard the property of the Commercial Bank, in another part of the town, is not used now.

312. Would there be more sales in Albury if there were municipal yards? In my opinion it would ruin Albury, and make Wodonga.

313. Did Chenery Brothers fix upon your day of sale, or did you alter yours? I have always sold on the same day, that is every alternate Wednesday, from the time I started, saving when some extraordinary local event would clash with a sale. I have never altered my time.

314. That firm fixed on your hour and day? Yes.

315. As a matter of fact, do you not wait for their sale to be over before you commence yours? I wait out of courtesy to the buyers.

316. Mr. Dalton.] How many fat cattle pass through your yards in the course of a year? It would be very difficult to state. Approximately, you might average 150 a sale, and there are twenty-six sales in the year.

317. Mr. McLaughlin.] Is your yard as convenient to Chenery's as the municipal yards would be to yours? Yes, much more so; it would be more convenient for buyers to get from one to the other.

318. Would it not be very inconvenient to have sales going on at the municipal yards and yours at the same time? Yes.

319. What is the distance between the two? A good mile, I should say.

320. I suppose that sales would have to be held on the same day because people come into town only once a fortnight? I do not know that. I should not alter my day of sale.

321. Would it not be inconvenient to the people if there were two sales a week? I suppose it would be.

322. Do you produce a plan of your yards? Yes. [Plan produced.]

323. Mr. Dalton.] Are your yards paved? No. I have put in gravelly stuff—I mean cemented stuff.

324. Are they cut up? No, not much, only a little.

325. Mr. McLaughlin.] They will provide accommodation for some time to come? Ample, and if the trade increases I have plenty of ground to build on.

326. I suppose there is plenty of ground for other people if they think it is a good business? Lots of ground.

327. Are some Victorian cattle sold in Albury? Yes.

328. Do a large number of your cattle go to Victoria? A great proportion,

329. Do a large proportion of the cattle sold in Wodonga come from New South Wales? The largest proportion of them do. They pass through Albury at the back of my yards.

330. Although they use the public roads just as freely as if they went to your yards they pay nothing to the Council? Nothing.

331. This Bill would have the effect of making you pay the same rent as if you wanted the Municipal Council to erect yards for you? Yes.

332. Did you notice how the aldermen voted when it was decided to apply for this Bill? Yes.

333. Mr. Gibson.] How did you find it out? I read the report in the newspaper; there were four aldermen for and three against the proposal.

334. Was your brother in favour of or against it? He was against it. Had he voted he would have made a tie, and as Mayor his casting vote would have thrown it out.

335. Having a personal interest in the matter, he did not vote at all? No.

336. Had two more of these four aldermen walked out of the Council, and not left a quorum, how would he have voted? The motion would have been lost, I suppose.

337. Is your brother opposed to it? Yes.

338. Is it true that the people of Albury, as a community, have no wishes in the matter one way or the other? I believe that they are pretty equally divided in opinion; I will not swear it.

339. What view does the Press of Albury take? Both newspapers have always been opposed to any increased expenditure in this direction; they do not like the policy of the Council.

340. If the yards should not pay the Council will have to find the deficiency in the revenue? Yes.

341. Do you remember an agitation being got up in Wodonga for municipal yards? Yes.

342. What was the result? It was dropped owing to some of the agents stating that if the Council put up yards and charged rates they would take their business from Wodonga and sell elsewhere.

343. And you say that that would be the effect in Albury if this Bill were passed? I am quite sure that a man will never pay money if he can be equally well accommodated without any expenditure.

344. I suppose that 6d. a head would make a difference in the sale of stock? Yes.

345. What would it cost a head to drive a mob of 400 or 500 cattle from Albury to Wodonga? Very little; nothing approaching 1d. a head.

346. Mr. H. Clarke.] Do you charge any fees for selling in your yards? No.

347. Mr. McLaughlin.] No fees are charged in Wodonga? No.

348. Mr. H. Clarke.] Is that the only reason why you think it would injure Albury? No; I think that things are so equally divided that the fact of rates being charged in Albury while Wodonga was free would turn the scale in favour of Wodonga.

349. Mr. Dalton.] What is the population of Wodonga? I do not know.

350. Of Albury? I do not know exactly; I should think it is about 6,000.

351. Mr. Barbour.] I suppose that Albury is eight or ten times larger than Wodonga? I do not think so; I think it is from three to four times larger.

352. Mr. Hayes.] Wodonga is absolutely dying? I do not think it is; I think it has improved very much within the last year or two. There is not an empty house in Wodonga; there are plenty of empty houses in Albury.

353. Chairman.] Do you think that Albury is 100 times as big as Wodonga? No.

354. Mr. Barbour.] How much did your yards cost? About £1,000.

355. The rest of the expenditure was all on account of buildings and land? Yes, including my private residence, which I would not have built otherwise.

356. Would £2,000 be sufficient to cover the cost of municipal yards? Very likely.

357. Do you know whether any ratepayers object to these yards? Yes; you will see one or two presently.

358. How is public opinion on the question? I think it is equally divided. It would require a poll to ascertain the opinion of the majority.

359. Mr. Dalton.] Are your yards in the municipality? Yes; I pay rates for them.

360. Mr. Lyne.] On which side of the railway line are they from town? On the side which is comparatively unsettled—I mean on the hilly side of the town.

- Mr. C. L. Griffith.
19 May, 1887.
361. Mr. McLaughlin.] Are your yards a benefit to Albury? I consider that they are a clear benefit to it.
362. Mr. Gibson.] Do you sell in Wodonga? I have sold there; I very seldom sell there now.
363. When did you sell stock there last? I have sold stock there only once during the last twelve months I think. I very rarely sell in Wodonga; I try to concentrate my business in Albury.
364. Mr. Dalton.] Is Wodonga a good market? I consider that it is the best market in Australia.
365. Mr. Gibson.] Do you ever hear of any injury to or loss of stock in crossing to Wodonga? I cannot call a particular case to mind.
366. Can you remember a case recently? No; I have not heard of any stock being lost.
367. Your present yards were finished in 1884? Yes.
368. At the time you built them, were you not aware that it was contemplated by the Council to erect yards of their own? No; I had heard of the question being brought up in the Council. I do not remember that anything definite had been done in the matter.
369. Before you erected your yards, were you told by the Council or did you understand that the whole thing was abandoned. Was it reported in the newspapers that the Council had abandoned the idea? I never saw it.
370. Mr. McLaughlin.] When did the division take place in the Council? Quite recently—not eighteen months ago.
371. Mr. Gibson.] Do you know of any municipal yards in this country? Not of my own knowledge. I have been in only the Homebush yards. I know that there are other yards in the Colony.
372. Would it not be better to have the buyers and sellers concentrated in one market? Yes, decidedly.
373. Mr. Dalton.] Is it customary for graziers and others who have fat and store cattle to sell, more especially fat cattle, to secure the yards just before the sale takes place? No; we make no difference at all in the matter. Our rule is first come first served. We draw lots for sale, and we treat everybody alike.
374. You have never refused anybody for any particular day? No.
375. Mr. Gibson.] You have never had to refuse anybody from want of room? No.
376. Suppose the people were not to deal with you, is there accommodation in Albury now for the ordinary stock coming in, independent of your yards? It depends on the number of cattle.
377. What number can be accommodated in Chenery's yards? I should not think that he could sell all the cattle that come into Albury. I would be very happy to lend the firm my yards if they should want the use of them.
378. Seeing that the whole of your yards are not used, smaller yards would have suited your purpose? At one sale there may be 300 cattle, and at another a thousand head. I have never had my yards quite full. They are pretty well filled as a rule.
379. You need not have spent so much money on them? I do not consider that I have more accommodation than I require.
380. Do you think that you were wise in building yards of that size? I think so.
381. Do you ever offer the use of your yards to local people—did you ever make such an offer to Mr. Chenery? No; he had yards of his own.
382. Mr. McLaughlin.] Did he ever ask you for the use of yours? No.
383. Mr. Gibson.] Are the firms you mentioned a little while ago large sellers of stock? They are about the most extensive sellers in Australia; they are the leading Melbourne agents. They sell in Wodonga.
384. To any very great extent? Yes.
385. How many of them? Several of them—King & Co. and Gibson.
386. Has Mate got any yards? No; he has yards at the Corryong, Victoria.
387. How far away from Albury? Ninety miles up the Murray.
388. Have King & Company yards of their own? They borrow Gibson's yards.
389. Have Peck, Hudson, & Raynor yards? No. They sell in Gibson's yards.
390. How many sets of yards are there in Wodonga? Two.
391. Mr. Dalton.] What quantity of cattle passed through the Wodonga sale-yards last year? It would be very difficult to guess. Dougharty alone sells fortnightly; I think he sells as many as we do in a year. I think that 15,000 head is a fair estimate.
392. They sell more there than in Albury? Decidedly more.
393. Principally stores or fats? It is principally stores in both Wodonga and Albury.
394. What proportion? The big lots of Queensland cattle are all stores.
395. Would nine-tenths be a fair proportion? I should think so.
396. Mr. Gibson.] Would it be advisable to have more than one sale in Albury in a fortnight? It is a matter for the auctioneers' consideration.
397. In the interest of the people, would it not be better to have one day than two days? It looks like that.
398. Did you not tell Mr. Chenery that you would not wait until his sale was over? I do not recollect.
399. Did you tell anyone that you would sell at your own time, and would not wait for anyone? I remember that he said that; I have no recollection of saying so.
400. What is the state of your yards in wet weather? Wet.
401. At the present time? I have not been there for some days. I hear the rain at this moment.
402. Is it not a fact that they are in a dreadful state sometimes? I decline to answer that question until I amend an answer which I gave at the request of Mr. Barbour. My yards are pretty bad when it is very wet, as nearly every yard is that is not exactly paved. If you want the municipal yards paved £2,000 will not be half enough for the purpose. It would take £5,000 or £6,000 to put up palatial yards.
403. Mr. McLaughlin.] To prevent them from being muddy in wet weather? Yes.
404. Mr. Gibson.] As regards the site of the proposed yards, what is the nature of the soil—is it the same as yours? It may be a little more granity.
405. Would it be better or worse than yours? Probably it would gutter more when the rain commenced to fall.
406. Is it not a fact that quite close to the site of these yards there is a decayed granite stuff which will not go into mud, but beats quite as hard as pavement? I cannot endorse your description of the stuff. There is decayed granite near the site. I have decayed granite quite close to my yards.
407. You say that the Press of Albury is against these yards—do you advertise in the newspapers? Certainly.
408. What is the value of your advertisements in a week? I really could not tell you at this moment.

409. Are you the only person in Albury who has actually taken steps to oppose the Bill—I mean you and your brother? We are the only persons directly interested as far as I can see in opposing it.
410. Has there been any agitation got up to oppose the Bill? We have not bothered about a petition; I have no doubt that we could get any number of signatures if we liked.
411. Mr. McLaughlin.] You know Mr. Chenery? Yes.
412. He is a rival auctioneer? Yes; we are very good friends though.
413. He has no yards of his own? I believe that he has a lease of Mr. Phillips's yards.
414. It would be a convenience to him if municipal yards were erected? I should think so.
415. Do you remember an agitation in Echuca for municipal yards? Yes.
416. What was the result? The Melbourne agents—I mean Messrs. Peck, Hudson, & Raynor; Ryan & Hammond; King & Co.; George Howat; Richard Gibson & Co.; Powers, Rutherford, & Co.; Raleigh, Aitken, & Co.; Dougharty, Son, & Parker; Fiskin, Gibson, & Co.; J. C. Walker & Co.—sent a circular to the Municipal Council stating that if municipal yards were erected they would remove their business to Moama or Rochester, either of which places would suit their trade equally well.
417. Mr. Gibson.] Do you know Rochester—are there municipal yards there? It is some fourteen or fifteen years since I was there. It had no municipal yards then.
418. Mr. Lyne.] Have the agents whom you mentioned signed a petition to have municipal yards in Albury? I do not know; I have never seen a petition. A copy of the petition which was sent to the Echuca Borough Council was published in the Albury Banner and Wodonga Express. I may state that three-fourths of the stock sold in Albury and Wodonga are not for local consumption. These towns are simply arbitrary points fixed upon by the agents for the distribution of the stock. If the trade were interfered with at either point they would move further down the line and sell elsewhere. It is not like Homebush or Flemington. The stock is not wanted for consumption in the district, and if the trade were interfered with, or capital disturbed, they could be distributed just as easily lower down.
419. Before you opened your yards, how was the business carried on? The whole of the district's business was carried on in Beechworth and Wagga.
420. Mr. Gibson.] And since then? It has increased.
421. Is not the population very much larger now than it was then? Yes.
422. Is not the present consumption, too, very much greater than it was then? I do not think so.
423. Would not the sellers of fat cattle increase with the population? Yes.
424. Mr. Hayes.] Could you avoid payment of the municipal dues by removing your yards outside the municipality? Yes.

Mr.
C. L. Griffith.
19 May, 1887.

TUESDAY, 31 MAY, 1887.

Present:—

MR. BURDEKIN, | MR. BARBOUR,
MR. LYNE, | MR. HAYES.

GEORGE DAY, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. L. Gibson appeared as Solicitor for the Bill.
Mr. John McLaughlin appeared for C. L. Griffith & Co. against the Bill.

Charles Lucas Griffith called in and further examined:—

425. Mr. McLaughlin.] Have you read the present Bill? Yes.
426. If the Parliament should pass the Bill, you are desirous, I understand, of a provision being made to exempt you from paying dues in the same manner as owners of cattle? Yes; I am desirous of being exempted.
427. Have you any knowledge of the number of cattle sold in Albury? No.
428. Are there more cattle sold in Wodonga than in Albury? Yes.
429. Mr. Gibson.] I understand that although Wodonga is smaller than Albury yet the sales are larger in the former town—is this so? Yes.
430. Will you give the Committee your opinion, as an expert, on the following:—In the event of removing your yards to Wodonga, would the municipal yards in Albury pay the interest on the amount necessary for their construction? It is very doubtful, and even if they paid the interest they would lose a great deal in trade.
431. Mr. McLaughlin.] Would it make a big difference to the squatters sending their cattle to Albury if they thought they would be charged a commission as well as yard dues? Yes; it would be the means of driving the stock over the river.
432. Has this question been put before the ratepayers? No; but it was a test question at the election of 1886.
433. Mr. Gibson.] Do you know if there are any yards at a place called Rochester? I am not aware of any being there.

Mr.
C. L. Griffith.
31 May, 1887.

Mr. Thomas Hunter Griffith called in, sworn, and examined:—

434. Mr. McLaughlin.] Are you a member of the firm of C. L. Griffith & Co., stock and station agents, Wodonga? Yes.
435. I believe you are the Mayor of Albury? Yes.
436. When were you first elected as alderman? In February, 1886.
437. Had there been any talk about that time about the municipal cattle-yards being erected? Yes; and I stood in opposition to them, and in addressing the ratepayers I said I would stand against the cattle-yards being erected.
438. By what majority were you elected? I cannot say from memory. Three other members were elected who held my views, namely, Mr. Mate, Mr.—, and myself. Mr. Scanlon and Mr. Wilkinson were thrown out; they were in favour of the establishment of the cattle-yards.

Mr.
T. H. Griffith.
31 May, 1887.

- Mr. T. H. Griffith.
31 May, 1887.
439. Was the motion passed before your election that the cattle-yards should be established? No, after my election. On the 10th November, 1886, a motion was submitted that application should be made to Parliament for a Bill. It was carried by a majority of one.
440. Did you vote? No.
441. Supposing you had voted as alderman and Mayor? It would have been thrown out.
442. What was your reason for abstaining from voting? Because I had a personal interest in the matter. I was pressed by the former Mayor repeatedly to vote.
443. The motion having been carried, did you use your power as Mayor to obstruct it? Never.
444. Are you still Mayor? Yes.
445. Do you think these yards are required in the interest of Albury? I do not. Albury is very close to Wodonga, where they have a free market, and without exception one of the driest and best in Victoria. I have great experience in markets, and have no hesitation in saying that were the distance between Albury and Wodonga 60 miles it would be different. Three-fourths of the cattle we now sell go to Victorian buyers.
446. Is the competition between Wodonga and Albury pretty keen? They have free markets, and that makes the competition very keen.
447. Do you think if you were hampered with rates, payable on your yards, that it would turn the scale? Yes, it would make a difference.
448. Where do your buyers come from? The majority from Victoria.
449. Has Wodonga any advantage over Albury? Yes; one advantage is in selling store stock. The stock is always sold on terms of three or four months' bill; the buyers of cattle in Wodonga have the tax included in the promissory note, amounting to 5s. per head, but the Albury agents do not include the tax in the promissory note, and a Victorian buyer therefore would have to pay £25 per 100 head of cattle.
450. Mr. Lyne.] In reality, any buyers buying their cattle in Wodonga get a premium of six months interest on their cattle? No; three or four months'. The New South Wales buyer can recover this drawback—the stock tax is refunded.
451. Mr. McLaughlin.] Did you receive a letter in 1884 from the Council Clerk complaining of the nuisance caused by your then existing yards? I do not remember such a letter; but perhaps it was received during my absence, and consequently did not come under my notice.
452. Will you look at that correspondence [Appendix D]? Yes.
453. You remember that correspondence taking place, and it was after that that you closed for the purchase of the present site? We were frequently annoyed by the inspector, and were restricted to certain hours.
454. And it was after that that you expended the money on the present yards? Yes.
455. Mr. Lyne.] I remember that Mr. Frew stated that a motion was passed in the Council—can you say when the first motion was passed? I cannot say; but when it took a definite form was on the 13th November, 1886. I am not aware of any previous motion.
456. Chairman.] Did Mr. Griffith make application to build the cattle-yards in 1883 or 1884? I cannot remember the date. I came to Albury in March, 1883.
457. I suppose your firm had permission from the borough to erect the yards in the town? I cannot say; they were erected before I came to Albury. They were looked upon as a nuisance, and we moved out.
458. Mr. Gibson.] When did you first go to Albury? In March, 1883.
459. Did you hear as far back as that that the Municipal Council were moving for the establishment of these cattle-yards? Ever since I came to Albury they have been talking about it.
460. Was it still being talked about when you erected these yards in 1884? It was still being talked about.
461. Then it was in November, 1886, that it assumed a definite form in the Council? Yes; it was only sixteen months after we had erected the yards.
462. Are you prepared to swear that as far back as 1883 the Council did not refer the matter of these yards to some engineers, who were requested to make a report as to what was required for building these yards and their probable cost? I am not aware of that.
463. Are you aware of anything having been done at an earlier date? No.
464. At the time of your election in February, were you carrying on business with your brother as stock and cattle agent? Yes.
465. Do you sell at Wodonga? Yes we do (the firm), when our constituents prefer it as a market.
466. When did you sell last there? I cannot speak from memory, but it is more than a year ago.
467. As regards crossing over to Wodonga from New South Wales side, is there any risk? Yes, if the cattle are affected with disease.
468. Is there any chance of accidents? I do not remember an accident.

---

Mr. Charles Lucas Griffith recalled and further examined:—

- Mr. C. L. Griffith.
31 May, 1887.
469. Mr. Gibson.] When you were requested by the aldermen to remove your yards out of the town as a nuisance, was it done officially or privately? The then Mayor, Mr. Thorold, and Mr. Lamport waited on me, as I understood at the time, in a formal manner, and requested me to try and find a better site, so as to stop people complaining of the nuisance. Yes, I certainly consider they came in an official capacity. Mr. Thorold spoke several times after about the matter.
470. Mr. McLaughlin.] When was this? About 1883 or 1884, as far as I can remember, and I was trying to find a site at the time.
471. Mr. Gibson.] Had any resolution been carried by the Council to erect yards at the time you removed to your present site? No. I moved my yards in June, 1884; this resolution was carried early in September, 1885.
472. At the time you erected the yards, were you told officially or had you heard that the Municipal Council had given up all thoughts of erecting the yards? I understood that they would abandon them if I moved, as it would satisfy the public.

Mr.

Mr. George Adams called in, sworn, and examined:—

473. Mr. McLaughlin.] What are you by profession? Newspaper proprietor of the Albury Banner, published in Albury.

Mr.
G. Adams.

474. How long has this paper been in existence? Since 1862.

475. How long have you had possession of it? Twenty-five years.

476. Do you take considerable interest in municipal matters at Albury? Yes.

477. Do you remember Griffith first establishing cattle-yards in Albury? Yes, eight or nine years ago.

478. Had there been any extensive sales of cattle in Albury before Griffith went there? No.

479. Then is it a fact that he brought that class of business to Albury? Yes.

480. Were any sales held in Wagga before that? Yes.

481. Do you know their present yards? Yes.

482. Have you been through them? Yes.

483. Give us your opinion about the yards? They are quite capable of accommodating a very large amount of stock. So far as I can judge, I should say that they occupy about 6 acres of ground.

484. Have you ever heard that they could not accommodate the cattle that came to Albury? Never.

485. Then there is no doubt about the fact that Griffith's & Chenery's yards could accommodate all the cattle? Not so long ago there were 1,100 head of cattle in Griffith's yard, and 200 in Chenery's, and they could have held more, because the pens were not full.

486. You never heard any complaint about the accommodation? No.

487. Have you paid any attention to the number of cattle sold in Wodonga, or the number of sales held there? Yes; sales are held once a fortnight, but as to the number of cattle sold I cannot say.

488. Are they advertised sometimes in your newspaper? Yes, regularly; same as the Albury sales.

489. Are more cattle sold in Wodonga than in Albury? More fat cattle are sold in Albury than in Wodonga, but more store cattle are sold in Wodonga than in Albury.

490. Do you think the people agitating for the erection of the municipal cattle-yards form the majority of the ratepayers? It is my opinion that the bulk of the ratepayers do not care for them; and I think this agitation has arisen out of jealousy towards Mr. Griffith because he has been the means of making a market there, and they want to compel him to pay dues, and to get the benefit of his connection.

491. Would it be a benefit to Albury if Mr. Griffith were to go to Wodonga? No; it would be a loss.

492. I believe there is a great deal of rivalry between Wodonga and Albury? Yes.

493. Is it a rivalry about the cattle sales? Yes.

494. Do Griffith & Co. hold out any advantages in Albury? Yes; they give liberal terms.

495. If rates were charged, would it affect the market? Yes, certainly, for people do not care about paying taxes, and therefore they would go to a free market like Wodonga, only 3 miles from Albury.

496. Messrs Griffith & Co. lend their yards to whoever likes to use them? Yes. I am a ratepayer, and have always been opposed to these municipal yards. If the municipality had erected them before Griffith I should have taken a different view of the matter; but now that we have sufficient yards it would be useless to establish others.

497. Would it be a good thing to compete against Griffith & Co? No. Moreover, it would cost about £6,000 to put up good yards, and then if Griffith were running in opposition they would not get the trade.

498. Can you tell us of any other advantages in connection with Griffith's yard? Griffith's yards are very well situated, about two minutes from the railway station, and that is a great convenience to buyers from Sydney and Melbourne. Formerly Griffith & Co. had cabs waiting to convey the buyers to the train.

499. Give your opinion about the feeling the Albury people have about the expenditure on fresh yards? If the question were properly understood they would not be in favour of new yards, but there are only a few persons who take any interest in these matters. I may also mention that certain parties feel annoyed with Griffith because he gave a booth to a publican without putting it up to auction.

500. You have written against the municipal cattle-yards in your paper;—has the fact that Griffith advertises with you influenced you at all? No, nothing whatever. This Committee has been told that there is a possibility of borrowing the money at 8 per cent. I have no doubt of that.

501. Mr. Gibson.] Has Albury and its surroundings increased during the last eight or nine years? Yes, but the town has more than the district.

502. Has there been any increase in the district? Not so much within the last nine or ten years as before.

503. Do more cattle come from outlying districts than before? Yes; we had never more than twenty, thirty, or forty head of cattle, whereas at the last cattle sale we had 1,300 head of cattle.

504. How far is Albury from Wagga? About 90 miles.

505. Do you know Chenery's yards? Yes.

506. Are they sufficiently large for the stock coming to Albury? No; if anybody brings a large number of cattle they have to go to Griffith, and if he were not there they would have to go to Wodonga.

507. If the cattle went to Wodonga, would they have to pay anything for taking them and bringing back to Albury? No; they would go and come back in bond.

508. I mean, would there be anything to pay for droving? No; there would be no charge.

509. Have you yourself had any experience in selling cattle? No, not much.

510. You know Chenery's yards—have you noticed if his business has increased lately or not? Chenery only started about nine months ago, and I think his business has increased, and he is doing a fair trade at present.

511. Have you ever seen Griffith's yards after a rainfall? They are like other yards—muddy.

512. Are they paved? No.

513. In your evidence you stated that had the municipality erected or purposed erecting these yards in Albury before Griffith's started it would have been different—you would not have been against them? Yes, I stated that, because he would not have expended all the money, nor would he have brought the trade to Albury.

514. Can you remember how long it is since the Municipal Council first mooted this question? No; I cannot say.

515. Mr. Lyne.] You said it would cost about £6,000 to erect municipal yards? Yes; in fact it would cost more than that if they wanted them properly paved and finished.

516. Griffith's yards are not paved? No; but they are nevertheless very good, being situated on the top of a hill.

- Mr. G. Adams.
31 May, 1887.
517. Do you think they should be paved? No, not if they are properly drained; of course if cattle are allowed in week after week it will get cut up.
518. You have been asked your reason for advocating the prevention of the establishment of the sale-yards, and you replied it is because Griffith has increased the sales and established a market in Albury? Undoubtedly Griffith has established the market.
519. Further, when Griffith came there, there was no market then, and consequently had the municipality erected yards then there would have been no market to destroy, and the municipal yards would have been an advantage to the town in creating a market? Yes.
520. Mr. Barbour.] You said it would be necessary to expend £6,000? Yes, if they were paved.
521. Mr. Lyne.] In reference to Mr. Griffith's yards, you said that if they are drained and looked after there is no necessity for paving? Yes; but if they are constructed at the foot of a hill they would require paving, as the ground is very soft. The site proposed is at the foot of a hill.
522. Mr. Barbour.] Do you know the amount they estimate the cost at—did you hear it was to be £2,000? I heard it was to be £1,000; that is the amount I think mentioned in the Bill.
523. Are you aware that Mr. Griffith's yards cost about £1,000? Yes.
524. Could yards be established similar to Griffith's for the corporation? I do not know, because if you have more than one seller you would want greater accommodation. If you have four or five salesmen more room is required than if there were only one.
525. Mr. McLaughlin.] Is there room for a third yard, supposing all in full swing? Of course it would divide the trade.
526. Could cattle-yards be built as good as Griffith's for £1,000? No.

Mr. William Turner called in, sworn, and examined:—

- Mr. W. Turner.
31 May, 1887.
527. Mr. McLaughlin.] What are you? I am a grazier residing at Stony Park, in New South Wales, about 18 miles from Albury.
528. Have you had much experience of cattle sales in Albury? I have been about eighteen years in the district, and I have attended the markets, both as a buyer and a seller, regularly during that time.
529. Is there sufficient yard accommodation there for all the cattle that are sent in for sale? Yes, ample.
530. Have you ever heard the regular buyers and sellers make bona fide complaints about the want of accommodation? No.
531. Do you know Griffith's yards and Chenery's yards? Yes.
532. Have you ever seen either of them overcrowded? No.
533. Have you never heard of any sellers being unable to get yard accommodation in Albury for their cattle? No; I am sure it has never been the case.
534. Have Griffith & Co. done anything towards establishing a market in Albury? There is no doubt that they have. I went to the district just about the time when they opened business in Albury. There was really no market there at that time. Butchers had to go to Beechworth for their beef, and the cattle-owners for 20 and 30 miles round had to take their stock to Beechworth, which is about 30 miles from Albury. Mr. Griffith soon obtained the confidence of buyers and sellers.
535. He has the reputation of being a man of capital in Albury? He must be a man of capital, or he could not be so liberal in his terms.
536. He has that reputation there? Certainly.
537. Do you think that if he were to transfer his business to Wodonga it would make a difference to the cattle-market at Albury? It would be a bad day for Albury, in my opinion. I am not prejudiced in the matter.
538. You do not want any terms either one way or the other? They are always very acceptable.
539. You think that the people of Albury cannot afford to lose such a business firm as Griffith & Co.? They would be very blind to their own interests if they took any steps which would have the effect of driving the firm out of the town.
540. Do you think that there is an overwhelming majority of stock-owners in favour of municipal yards? I am pretty well conversant with the majority of stock-owners, and as a rule they sympathize with Mr. Griffith on account of the good he has done, not only to them, but to the town.
541. They are not dissatisfied with the present state of affairs? Not as a rule. There are always a few grumblers, you know.
542. Do you think that if they had to pay fees for cattle sold in Albury it would turn the scale in favour of Wodonga? I think it would. Things are cut so fine now that they have to calculate every penny in connection with the sale of a beast.
543. You know Mr. Mate and Mr. Frew? Yes.
544. Has either of them as much to do with the sale of cattle as you have? Not in the Albury market. Mr. Mate is the owner of a station, and may do more business than I do outside of Albury.
545. I refer to his experience in the matter of cattle-sales? I consider that both these gentlemen are inexperienced as far as their attendance at the sales is concerned. They may hear of what goes on in Albury.
546. I suppose that you would not accept them as authorities on the requirements of Albury in this matter of yard accommodation? They are not practical authorities.
547. Are you giving your evidence perfectly independent of the Municipal Council and everyone else? Yes, in every shape and form.
548. You are giving your evidence without any restriction? Just so.
549. Mr. Gibson.] Do you sell many stock in Albury? I sell a good many.
550. Do you sell all your stock there? No; I send some to Melbourne and to Sydney; I send them wherever I think I can get the best prices.
551. Do you sell many out at your own place? Occasionally I do.
552. How many do you sell there in proportion to the number you sell in Albury? There have been a good many sheep sold at my place through the firm of Griffith & Company, which is the same as if they were sold in Albury. I have sold cattle without putting them through any agent.
553. What number do you sell privately at Stony Park to the butchers? I have been selling very few lately. I used to sell some a few years ago. The last two years the principal part of my stock has been sold either in the market or at my place through the firm of Griffith & Company. I do not know whether I have sold through Mr. Chenery; I have bought through him.

554. Have you been selling the best of your stock privately? I have not.
 555. Did not you? I did not. The last transaction I had through Griffith & Company was for the sale of 3,000 of the best sheep I have had for two years. They brought a buyer to my place.
 556. Do you continue to sell privately? I make no rule to sell privately; occasionally I sell in that way. If any agent brings a buyer to my place, and he gives me my price, he can have the stock.
 557. Mr. McLaughlin.] You are independent of any of them? Yes.

Mr.
W. Turner.
31 May, 1887.

Mr. George Henry Bilson called in, sworn, and examined:—

558. Mr. McLaughlin.] You are an alderman of the Borough Council of Albury? Yes.
 559. How long have you held that office? I was first elected six years ago last February.
 560. You have been Mayor of the town for some time? Yes, for the last two years.
 561. Do you remember when the question of cattle sale-yards was first agitated in Albury? I do.
 562. Has it cropped up in the Council from time to time? Yes.
 563. Have you been in favour of or against the movement? I have always opposed it.
 564. On what grounds? I thought that it would not be a profitable speculation for the Council to enter into.
 565. Did you think that the yards were required by the people? I did not at the time the agitation was got up.
 566. At the present time, is there, or is there not, sufficient yard accommodation in the town for cattle? There is sufficient for all the cattle that are now sold there.
 567. Do you remember Mr. Griffith removing his yards from Olive-street to their present site? I do.
 568. Was that done before or after the Council decided to erect municipal yards? It was before.
 569. Are you quite sure of that? Yes.
 570. When did the Council first decide that it was necessary to establish yards of their own? About September, 1885.
 571. And when did Mr. Griffith remove his yards to their present site? About sixteen months before that decision was arrived at.
 572. What is your business? I am a brewer.
 573. Are you an extensive ratepayer? I am.
 574. Do you, as one of a number of ratepayers, object to the expense of erecting these yards? I have always objected to the proposal.
 575. Have you read the provisions of the Bill? No.
 576. But as a ratepayer you decidedly object to the Bill? Yes.
 577. Do you think that a number of the ratepayers object to the experiment? Yes. At my last two elections I condemned this proposal. I declared on each occasion that I would oppose it as long as I was an alderman.
 578. And notwithstanding that you were opposed to these yards the ratepayers elected you? Yes. I got more votes at the last election than I did at any previous one.
 579. You have as good an opportunity of ascertaining the feeling of the people on this question as either Alderman Frew or Mr. Mate has? Yes; I move about among the ratepayers just as much as either of them does. My business brings me into contact with nearly everybody in the town.
 580. And you think that a majority of the ratepayers are opposed to this proposal? I think so.
 581. Would it be a desirable thing in the interests of Albury to drive such a firm as Griffith & Company over to Wodonga? No; I think it would be a great loss to the borough.
 582. Do they spend a good deal of money there, and bring a lot of trade to the town? Yes, they bring a lot of trade to the town.
 583. Would municipal yards, without auctioneers, be any benefit to the town? No.
 584. There were only occasional cattle sales before Messrs. Griffith & Company started business in Albury? Yes.
 585. Competition is pretty keen between Albury and Wodonga? Yes, in all kinds of business.
 586. Mr. Gibson.] When did you first get a seat in the Municipal Council? In February, 1881.
 587. Have you had a seat ever since? Yes. I was Mayor of the borough during part of the time.
 588. When was this question of municipal yards first brought before the Council? There was some talk in the Council about the matter for some two or three years before it took any tangible form.
 589. When was it first brought under the consideration of the aldermen? About 1883, I think.
 590. Chairman.] When did the Council apply to the Government for a site for these yards? I cannot say just now; we made no application until we had arrived at a decision on the main question.
 591. Did the Council make application for a site on the Flat? Yes, about 1884 or 1885.
 592. Did Mr. Griffith make a similar application at the same time? No; he applied about two years before for this site.
 593. Both the Council and Mr. Griffith applied for this site on the Flat? Mr. Griffith made an application about eighteen months or two years before the Council did. The members of the Council signed a petition in favour of this application.
 594. The Government would not grant the site to either of the parties? No; they refused the application at the end of 1885.
 595. Mr. Gibson.] Do you recollect the Council, as far back as 1883, getting a report of the probable cost of establishing sale-yards? I think that Alderman Frew asked for such a report. Our surveyor was asked to send in plans and specifications of yards, but he never did so.
 596. Do you recollect the return being moved for? Yes.
 597. Do you recollect in 1883 an offer being made to the Council to erect yards on a certain piece of land? No.
 598. Do you remember any offer coming from Dr. Andrews to give a piece of land for this purpose to the Council? I recollect that some offer was made to erect sale-yards.
 599. In what year? I cannot say.
 600. How did you vote on Alderman Ten-Brink's motion to rescind the resolution ordering the necessary steps to be taken to have a reserve gazetted as a site for sale-yards? I cannot say.
 601. What was the result of the division? I cannot say.

Mr.
G. H. Bilson.
31 May, 1887.

- Mr. G. H. Bilson, 31 May, 1887.
602. Do you recollect that on the 9th of November, 1885, the Council appointed a deputation to ask the Minister for Lands to grant a site for sale-yards—who composed that deputation? Alderman Thorold and myself. We saw the Minister in Sydney; but the interview had no result, for it took place on the day that the Dibbs-Abbott Government resigned office; we were asked to call again. I was the Mayor at the time.
603. Do you recollect that on the 23rd December of that year you gave a verbal account to the Council of that interview? I was Mayor at the time.
604. Mr. McLaughlin.] The motion was carried against your will? Yes.
605. And as Mayor you carried out the will of the majority? Yes.
606. Mr. Gibson.] What was the result of the motion proposed on the 3rd December last to rescind the resolution of the Council? I cannot say.
607. Did you vote with the majority? I cannot say whether I did or not.
608. Chairman.] Will you swear that you did not vote with the majority on that occasion? I have voted against every proposal to erect municipal sale-yards.
609. And you never voted in favour of the proposal? Never. On one occasion I voted in favour of a site for the yard.
610. Mr. Lyne.] Do you know whether there are or have been during the last eight or ten years any other yards besides the existing ones? There was an old yard behind the Bank of New South Wales, in Smollett-street.
611. Not at the back of the old Exchange stables? I mean those yards.
612. Have the yards at the back of the Bank of New South Wales been pulled down? They were sold some time ago and pulled down. They had not been used for many years.
613. Mr. Barbour.] Is it a fact that the people of the town do not show much feeling on this question one way or the other—is not the majority indifferent as to whether there are municipal yards or not? Yes; there is only a very small proportion of the people interested in the matter.
614. Albury has improved very much of late? Yes, during the last few years.
615. Is there not a demand arising every day for greater yard accommodation? No; the town has not been moving much for the last twelve months. Very few buildings have been erected.

WEDNESDAY, 1 JUNE, 1887.

Present:—

Mr. BARBOUR,	Mr. RYRIE,
Mr. DALTON,	Mr. HAYES,
Mr. DAWSON,	Mr. LYNE.

GEORGE DAY, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

L. Gibson, Esq., Solicitor for the Bill.

Jnc. McLaughlin, Esq., for C. L. Griffith & Co., against the Bill.

Mr. Warden Harry Graves called in and examined:—

- Mr. W. H. Graves, 1 June, 1887.
616. Mr. McLaughlin.] You are a stock and station agent carrying on business now in Sydney, but formerly in Melbourne and Deniliquin? Yes.
617. Your are well acquainted with the intercolonial stock trade? Thoroughly.
618. Have you been in Griffith's yards at Albury? Yes.
619. Are they, in your opinion, equal to the requirements of the trade at Albury? Decidedly.
620. Have you attended cattle sales in Albury? Yes.
621. Did you notice any want of yard accommodation? No.
622. Do you think that there is any necessity for additional yard accommodation? No; I should say that there is ample accommodation.
623. Have you ever attended any sales in Wodonga? No.
624. I suppose you know that the rivalry between Albury and Wodonga is pretty keen? I am aware of that.
625. Would it take much to influence sellers to send their cattle to Wodonga instead of to Albury? I think that it would take very little to turn the scale one way or the other.
626. Do you think that if a yard fee of 6d. a head were imposed in Albury it would turn the scale in favour of Wodonga? I have no doubt of it.
627. Is it desirable in the interests of Albury that fees should be so charged? I do not think that the people would stand it, and considering that the buyers who attend the sales in Albury also attend the sales in Wodonga, sellers would use free yards in preference to paying yard fees. I do not think that the mere question of 6d. a head would influence sellers, for my experience is that every time you yard a mob of cattle you have to pay the dues.
628. You think that municipal yards in Albury would decrease the number of cattle sales, and help Wodonga? Yes, at the expense of Albury.
629. Chairman.] Would not the New South Wales sellers have to pay 5s. a head to cross the river? Certainly.
630. Would not that amount to more than 6d. a head? I apprehend that it would not affect the question at all if it was a Victorian who bought the cattle. I understand that the cattle can cross the river in bond.
631. Would not the stock tax be eventually borne by the sellers—would not a Victorian sooner buy in Wodonga than in Albury? Yes. There would be no risk in crossing the Murray. In almost all instances terms are given with the cattle, and instead of paying money out of his pocket, as he would if he bought in Albury, it would be tacked on to the bill.
632. There is no such thing as paying 5s. cash and the balance by bill? It may be done, but it has not come within my cognizance. The buyer pays partly in cash and partly by bill.
633. If you were selling New South Wales cattle in Wodonga, would you make it a condition that the buyer should pay 5s., that is the stock tax, over and above what he pays for the cattle? No; I would take care that I offered the cattle duty free. The buyer, instead of paying the duty in cash at Albury, would have that amount included in his bill.

634. Who would pay the stock tax, the buyer or the seller? In the first place the seller would pay a duty of 5s., but that amount would be recouped to him by the purchaser in Wodonga.

635. Do you think that cattle would be 5s. dearer in Wodonga than in Albury? I do not say that. I say that if cattle are bought in Albury and then taken to Wodonga it necessitates an additional expenditure of 5s. a head, which expenditure would not have to be incurred if the cattle were retained in New South Wales.

636. Can you buy cattle at the same price in Wodonga as you can in Albury, notwithstanding that a stock tax is imposed on our cattle crossing the river? I do not know what the state of the market is at the present time. I know that any Victorian who was buying New South Wales cattle would give 5s. a head more for them in Wodonga than he would give for them on the same day in Albury, and that in all probability he would get terms in Wodonga for the payment of this 5s. as well as the price of the beast. It would be better too for the commission agent. He would get a commission on the 5s., the same as we get a commission at Homebush on the railway freight.

637. Would you sooner pay 6d. a head to sell store cattle at Albury than take them to Wodonga and pay the poll tax? I should decidedly take them where I could get free yards, and if they were sold to New South Wales buyers the duty would be refunded.

638. Do you think that store cattle are 5s. a head higher in Wodonga than they are in Albury? I do not think that there would be much difference between the two markets; there might be slight fluctuations.

639. Mr. Lyne.] Suppose I sent stock to a municipal yard, would I or the vendor have to pay the yard dues whether they were sold or not? If I bring in a couple of thousand sheep or a couple of hundred head of cattle to Homebush and withdraw them for a better market I have to pay yard dues on them in each instance. I do not know whether the Albury Council propose to adopt that plan.

640. In what other municipal yards have you sold cattle? I have sold in country places, but never at any place where yard dues were charged. I have sold thousands of cattle in Sandhurst, Melbourne, and Homebush, but I do not remember selling in any yards where I have had to pay dues.

641. Chairman.] Suppose a grazier brings cattle into Homebush, and the market is not as good as he anticipated, has he to pay the yard dues if he withdraws them? Yes.

642. And he has to pay yard dues if he brings the same cattle into another market? Yes.

643. What are the yard dues at Homebush? 1d. on sheep, and 6d. on cattle, whether they are stores or fat.

644. Mr. Hayes.] Who pay the yard dues? The vendors in all cases.

645. Is there any arrangement under which the auctioneers pay the dues? I have never heard of such an arrangement; they would not have much left if they paid them. If I think that I can get better prices for my clients by waiting for another market I frequently withdraw the cattle. I have to pay the dues on each occasion.

646. Mr. Gibson.] Is there not the same risk in crossing the river whether the cattle come from Victoria or from New South Wales? I should imagine that the risk would be the same one way or the other. I do not know whether there is a fall in the river at Albury, but generally speaking there is no more risk in crossing from one side than there is in crossing from the other.

647. When were you in Albury last? I was one of the judges at the Show in September last.

648. Were you at the cattle sales on that occasion? To the best of my recollection, I did not sell on that day. I know that immediately after the cattle were judged I had to rush to the train, as I had to sell at Homebush the next day.

649. Do you recollect the last time you attended a sale in Albury? I think it was just before that Show. I have been in Griffith's yards several times. I have seen what I consider wonderful sales there.

650. When you spoke of the present accommodation being sufficient you referred to those yards? Yes.

651. Independent of these yards, is there sufficient accommodation? I am not aware.

652. Are there any other yards? I have seen other agents selling in other yards; I do not know whose yards they were.

653. What accommodation did those yards afford? I do not like to make invidious comparisons.

654. Is the accommodation of those other yards sufficient for the requirements of the district? I do not think so.

655. Have you had much experience in the Albury sales for years past? No; I have not attended them. I have always been engaged in selling in Melbourne, Sydney, or Homebush. I know of the Albury sales only by report.

656. Do you think that the sales of stock have increased during the last few years? Yes. I recollect the time when no cattle were sold there.

657. Is the trade increasing now? I believe it is increasing. At the same time I must say that if the dues are charged the sales will diminish.

658. Have you had any practical experience of sales in Wodonga? I do not recollect that I ever attended a sale there; if I have it is so long ago that I have forgotten all about it.

659. Mr. Hayes.] Have you had any experience of municipal sale-yards? Yes; about twenty-two years' experience. I do not think that I have sold in any other municipal yards than the Sydney, Melbourne, and Homebush yards. I have sold very large quantities of stock in Deniliquin and in Melbourne. I have had considerable experience in country sale-yards. I used to sell in Deniliquin for many years. I was an alderman of that town, and although a good many stock were sold there we never thought of putting up municipal yards; I would not have voted for any such proposal.

660. Mr. Lyne.] Are there municipal yards in Deniliquin now? I have never heard of any.

661. Mr. Hayes.] Would municipal yards have the effect of increasing or decreasing the trade in Albury? I am perfectly certain that it would be a most suicidal thing to erect municipal yards there.

William Teece, Esq., M.P., called in, sworn, and examined:—

662. Chairman.] You are Member for Goulburn, in the Legislative Assembly? Yes; I have represented Goulburn for sixteen years.

663. Have you resided there on and off all that time? Yes.

664. And you have had considerable experience with respect to public questions in that town? Yes.

665. Mr. Gibson.] Are there municipal yards in Goulburn? Yes; they were erected in 1876.

666. Previous to that time, how were the sales carried on? By auctioneers, in separate sale-yards.

W. Teece,
Esq., M.P.
1 June, 1887.

667. Do those auctioneers now use the municipal yards? Yes. I may state that one of those auctioneers has ceased to carry on business in Goulburn, but the principal firm at that time have sold in the municipal yards ever since they were erected.
668. How do the sales in the municipal yards compare with the sales which were held prior to 1876? It was complained before those yards were erected that the townspeople were endangered by the driving of the stock through the streets in the daytime. The stockowners complained that there was not that competition which would exist if there were central yards. There was some objection on the part of stockowners to the original Bill. It had reference to a provision which empowered the Municipal Council to impose fees within a radius of 10 miles from the boundary of the municipality. The Council agreed to the elimination of that provision, and the Bill was passed without opposition. Goulburn has become, I know, a very important stock market. Last week alone one auctioneer must have sold over 25,000 sheep. I believe that the municipal yards are a source of considerable revenue to the municipality. I have referred to the Gazettes which contain abstracts of the revenue for the last three half-years, and I find that for the half-years ending 2nd February, 1885, 3rd August, 1885, and 1st February, 1886, it was £487 19s., £802 Os. 10d., and £422 5s. 10d. respectively.
669. In your opinion, is it beneficial to centralize the sales in this way? It has been so in Goulburn.
670. Have you read the provisions of this Bill? Yes, while I was waiting outside.
671. Is it free from the objection which was raised to the Goulburn Bill? Yes.
672. Mr. McLaughlin.] Have you ever been in Albury? Yes.
673. Have you been present at a cattle sale there? No.
674. Have you any knowledge of the cattle market in Albury or Wodonga? No.
675. Is there any rival town close to Goulburn where cattle sales can take place? Oh, yes; there are Braidwood (a very important cattle district), about 58 miles, and Yass, which is 54 miles away. Braidwood and Queanbeyan may be said to be the same distance from Goulburn.
676. Have you any town in competition with Goulburn which is nearer to it than 50 miles? No.
677. Mr. Dalton.] Since the municipal yards were established in Goulburn, have there been any competitive yards erected just outside the municipality? No.
678. Is there any intention to erect competitive yards? No.
679. The people are all satisfied with the existing yards? Yes. The yards are almost on the boundary of the municipality. Other yards could be erected within two or three hundred yards of them.
680. Mr. Lync.] What is the area of the municipality? About 13 square miles. It is about 1½ miles by 4 miles. The yards are near the south-west boundary.
681. Mr. McLaughlin.] How many yards were there in Goulburn before these yards were erected? There were two very large yards. Finlay & Co. had yards, and costly yards were erected by Dignam & Company.
682. What has happened to those yards? The auctioneers have abandoned them in favour of the municipal yards.
683. Do you not know that Dignam & Company abandoned their yards before those yards were erected? I think that they did.
684. Did they not ask for municipal yards to be erected? I do not think that that is the case.
685. Are you sure? They might have been in favour of the proposal.
686. Do you not know that Finlay & Company were in favour of municipal yards, and that a certain arrangement was made between that firm and the Council? I know that they are strongly in favour of the yards at the present time.
687. And then, too? I do not know. A petition was got up against the yards. It was signed by stockowners, but I understand that they did not oppose the Bill because the provision I have mentioned was struck out.
688. Was there not an arrangement between Finlay & Company and the Council in reference to these yards? I do not think that there was any arrangement whatever as regards compensation.
689. Was there not a private arrangement between them? I do not think so.
690. You know that Finlay & Company were not opposed to the erection of municipal yards? I do not think that they were, else they would have opposed the Bill. I may say that the present auctioneers can and do sell in other yards. They have small yards in which they sell saddle and draught horses, but I think that they pay fees to the municipality.
691. What was the cost of the Goulburn yards? It has been pretty considerable. The first cost was about £1,000, but the yards have been greatly improved since then.
692. About how much did the improvements cost? I cannot say.
693. Mr. Lync.] Are the yards paved? I think not.
694. Mr. McLaughlin.] You cannot draw any comparison between Goulburn and Albury with respect to the number of cattle sold in each town? No.
695. Goulburn is a very important market? Yes.
696. How many sales take place there in a month? There is a regular sale every Wednesday.
697. Is there more than one sale a week? There is a sale on every Wednesday, and very often sales are held on other days of the week.
698. It is an important centre of the Colony? Yes. I fancy that the fees are a farthing for a sheep and 3d. for a head of stock.
699. Mr. Gibson.] How many sales used there to be before the municipal yards were erected? I think that there were as many sales then as there are now, but they were more scattered. The sellers can all bring their stock to market now on a regular sale day, when the buyers and the auctioneers are all together. They say that there is far more competition among the buyers now than there was formerly.
700. Notwithstanding that these yards cost a large sum of money they are a paying concern? Yes.
701. Mr. McLaughlin.] If cattle sales are held in Albury and Wodonga on the same day you could not concentrate the buyers? No.
702. Mr. Lync.] Are there sale-yards at Yass, Queanbeyan, or Braidwood? No. I think that there are municipal yards at only Goulburn, Bathurst, Orange, Musclebrook, and Dubbo. In every Bill, except the Orange Bill, I think that the yards are limited to the boundaries of the municipality.
703. Was there any regular sale day in Goulburn before these yards were erected? There were two regular sale days, Tuesday and Thursday; now they have special sales perhaps on every day of the week, but Wednesday is the principal sale day—in fact it is the market day.

704. Were the old yards erected by the stock agents who used them? I do not know. I think it is probable that Mr. Dignam erected his yards, and that Mr. Sands did the same.

705. Who used Dignam's yards principally? I think that they were very rarely used.

706. Who built Finlay's yards? I do not know whether he erected yards of his own or not; I do not think he did.

707. Was he renting yards from somebody else? I think so.

708. Dignam's yards were abandoned before the new yards were put up? Yes, but not Sands's.

709. Were any vested interests affected by the erection of municipal yards? There was some talk about compensation, but no claim of that kind was ever made.

710. Was there any necessity on the part of stock agents to oppose the Goulburn Bill? There was some talk about opposition. The Council, from the very initiation of the measure, refused to acknowledge any vested interests in the matter.

711. There were not any vested interests which caused opposition to the Bill? It was virtually unopposed.

712. Mr. Hayes.] What became of Finlay & Co.'s yards after it was passed—was there any compensation given to the firm? None whatever.

713. Mr. McLaughlin.] How do you know—were you an alderman? No.

714. Mr. Gibson.] Were there any auctioneers in the Council at the time the Bill was brought forward? No; neither Mr. Sands nor Mr. Finlay was an alderman.

W. Teeco,
Esq., M.P.

1 June, 1887.

John Moore Chanter, Esq., M.P., called in and examined:—

715. Chairman.] You are one of the Members for The Murray in the Legislative Assembly? Yes.

716. Have you had any experience with respect to cattle sale-yards in that district? Yes.

717. Mr. Gibson.] Have you had any experience in the cattle trade? Yes; I have sold stock in Echuca, Moama, and Rochester.

718. In the pursuit of your business have you had occasion to sell stock in municipal yards? Yes, at Rochester, which is about 9 miles from Moama.

719. When were those yards erected? About seven years ago.

720. Had you any experience of cattle sales in Rochester before that time? Yes.

721. How do the present sales compare with the sales of seven years ago? They are very much better now.

722. Have the municipal yards had anything to do with that result? I think that they were the cause as far as Rochester was concerned.

723. In what way? By concentrating the trade.

724. Do you happen to know if those yards have paid? Yes; they have been a profitable concern.

725. Has it had any effect on the dues? Dues were imposed in the first instance, but the auctioneers arranged to pay fees in the place of dues to the Council. As a matter of fact no dues are charged there on the owners of cattle.

726. Do you know of any other such yards in the district with which you are acquainted? There is an agitation going on now in the town of Echuca for municipal yards.

727. Do you, as a stock and station agent, think that it is a good thing for the district to concentrate the whole of this trade in the municipal yards? I do; but there are certain circumstances to be taken into consideration—I mean the situation of the yards. There are circumstances as regards the Border which would not apply inland.

728. Have you sold in any other town besides Rochester where there are municipal yards? No.

729. Mr. McLaughlin.] Have you held sales in Echuca? Yes.

730. Are the yards there private or municipal yards? Private yards.

731. Do you know that there are free yards in Wodonga? I do not know that as a matter of fact.

732. What is your opinion of the Echuca yards? They are very inferior yards.

733. Is that the reason why the auctioneers agitated for municipal yards? It was the principal reason.

734. Do you know Griffith's yards in Albury? I have seen them in passing through the town.

735. Do they appear to be extensive yards? Yes, from the train.

736. Have you heard of them being overcrowded? No.

737. Chairman.] Has the Borough Council of Echuca shown any disposition to erect yards of their own? They have decided to do so.

738. Where did the salesmen sell in Echuca previous to the erection of municipal yards at Rochester? In their own private yards in Echuca.

739. Do sales ever take place at Moama? Yes; I have yards there. All the sales in the Echuca and Moama districts are conducted in private yards.

740. There are no public yards in Deniliquin? Yes, municipal yards.

741. Were they established under the authority of an Act of Parliament? I do not know. They are under the supervision of the Town Council, and large sales of fat and store cattle take place there. The sales are not held regularly, but sometimes large quantities of stock are sold in these yards.

742. I suppose that if any salesman applies to the Council he can have the use of the yards at any time? Yes.

743. You know, as an auctioneer, that the Council charge fees for the use of their yards? Yes.

744. Mr. Lyne.] Do you know that in Victoria every Municipal Council has power to build yards of their own without a special Act of Parliament? Yes; there is a provision to that end in the municipal law.

745. Mr. McLaughlin.] Have you any experience of the cattle market in Albury? No, not personally.

746. Who asked you to attend this afternoon? The Clerk of the Assembly.

747. Not the Municipal Council of Albury? No; I got a notice through the post to attend here.

748. Chairman.] Did you know on what points you were going to give evidence? I knew that I was going to give evidence with respect to cattle sale-yards in Albury; I was not aware that there was even a Bill before the Committee.

749. Mr. Dalton.] Do you think that municipal yards would benefit the Council of Albury? I should say from my experience that they would.

750. Mr. Barbour.] As an expert, do you approve of the Municipal Council of Echuca erecting municipal yards—do you think that it would be a benefit to the salesmen and stockowners in that district? As regards Echuca, undoubtedly.

751.

J. M. Chanter,
Esq., M.P.

1 June, 1887.

- J. M. Chanter, Esq., M.P.
1 June, 1887.
751. Mr. Dawson.] More than if good private yards were put up? Yes. The stock tax very materially affects sales on the Southern Border. It is to the advantage of Echuca to erect municipal yards, because they get over the difficulty of this tax. I cannot say that it would apply to Albury or Moama.
752. Mr. McLaughlin.] Do Victorian buyers prefer Echuca to Moama? They prefer to buy in Echuca because the stock tax has been paid.
753. If municipal yards were erected in Albury, and the yards were free in Wodonga, would the Albury cattle market be affected in any way? I do not think so. I think that the auctioneers would study their own interests, and prevent the stock from going to Wodonga, which they can do by paying the stock tax in Albury.
754. Mr. McLaughlin.] But suppose an owner sends his cattle to a Victorian agent? He would not send to a Victorian agent in preference to a New South Wales agent if all things were alike.
755. But if all things are not? Then it would be a matter for the New South Wales agent to consider whether it would not pay him to pay the municipal dues in order to keep the trade.
756. But he might not have the opportunity to decide the place of sale—the vendor might send the cattle to Albury irrespective of him? I know that I conduct sales at Moama, and that I arrange with the vendor in every case.
757. Would it not pay Mr. Griffith to sell free in Wodonga? I do not think so.
758. He could place himself in the same position as regards Albury? It would be at a loss.
759. Can he not sell free at Wodonga? It depends upon whether the Wodonga yards would remain free.
760. Would not the Wodonga people be glad to welcome him there? Yes, very glad.
761. Mr. Gibson.] What is the fee for an auctioneer's license in this Colony? It is £15 for a general license, and £2 for a district license. It is £25 for a general license in Victoria.

Mr. A. Frew.

1 June, 1887.

Mr. Alexander Frew recalled and further examined:—

762. Mr. Gibson.] Have you the minute-book of the Borough Council of Albury? Yes.
763. At the fortnightly meeting held on the 23rd March, 1883, what took place with respect to the matter of these sale-yards? I proposed that the engineer be requested to bring up a report as to the requirements for building cattle sale-yards, and the probable cost of them. Alderman Gulson seconded the motion, which was lost.
764. Is there not another entry on the same date about a letter of Dr. Andrews's? Yes. He wrote a letter offering to erect sale-yards on terms.
765. Was the offer accepted? No.
766. Was it decided on the 6th August, 1885, that the Council should apply for the dedication of the punt reserve as a site for sale-yards? Yes.
767. On the 23rd July, 1885, the engineer was instructed to prepare plans and specifications for the erection of cattle sale-yards? Yes, by five votes to four. The Mayor, Alderman Bilson, voted against the motion.
768. Did the "Sales-yards Committee" bring up a report on the 12th August, 1885, as to the mode which should be adopted to obtain this Bill? Yes.
769. What was done at the meeting of the Council on the 2nd September, 1885? The minute is as follows:—

Call of the whole Council to consider the advisability of erecting Cattle Sale-yards,

Alderman Frew proposed,—“That this Council take the necessary steps to erect cattle sale-yards.” Seconded by Alderman Gulson.

Amendment proposed by Alderman Thorold, and seconded by the Mayor,—“That the Mayor cause a poll of the ratepayers to be taken on the question whether the Council shall erect cattle sale-yards or not, within one month.”

Alderman Wallder called for a division.

For the motion—Alderman Wallder, Alderman Ten Brink, Alderman Gulson, and Alderman Frew.

For the amendment—Alderman Bilson (Mayor), Alderman Thorold, and Alderman Scanlon.

770. Now, without further reference to the minute-book, is it or is it not a fact that this question has since been before the Council from time to time when you have been present? Yes.
771. Do you think that this Bill will have the effect of driving the trade to Wodonga? Certainly not.
772. Is the Municipal Council about to fence the punt reserve? Yes; there is a sum of £150 on the Estimates for that purpose.
773. Will that fence interfere with the approach to Griffith's yards? Yes, to this extent, that the cattle will have to go down a narrow street. At the present time there are 7 or 8 acres of land on which they can muster the cattle.
774. Mr. McLaughlin.] This question has been before the Borough Council for the last four or five years? I think so.
775. Sometimes the majority was against the proposal, and eventually it was carried by only one vote? There was a majority against my motion on the first two occasions, therefore I did not put it to the vote. On the next occasion it was carried by a majority of one.
776. Do not Power, Rutherford, & Company advertise Queensland cattle for sale in Wodonga, and hold sales there? Yes, both in large and small numbers.
777. These cattle go through the streets of Albury? Through a portion of our streets.
778. You will not be able to make them pay anything for the use of the roads even if you get this Bill? We can put a toll on them.
779. It was on the 6th August, 1884, that the Council passed a resolution in favour of this proposal—do you remember swearing that it was passed before Griffith & Company erected their yards? No; I said that there was an agitation in favour of municipal yards.
780. Did not Mr. Griffith erect his yards before your motion was carried? I am not aware of it; I cannot swear that he did.
781. You have sworn as follows:—“My motion was carried before his present yards were erected; he had other yards at that time.” Now did he or did he not erect his yards before your motion was carried? I am not sure of it; I cannot swear to it.
782. Do you still adhere to the fact that his yards were erected after your motion was carried? No; I say that my motion was moved before he erected his yards.

783. Were not his yards erected before your motion was carried? Yes.
 784. You have been the principal mover in this matter? Yes.
 785. How long is it since you first commenced to agitate? I think it was in 1833.
 786. Did you not commence to agitate as early as 1878? Yes; I submitted motions, but I did not put them to the vote. When I first brought the question forward I had only three supporters out of nine aldermen, therefore I withdrew my motion. I submitted another motion at the end of six months, and I withdrew it on a similar ground.
 787. Do you still adhere to your evidence that Mr. Andrew Hore, senior, told you that he was in favour of the erection of municipal yards? Yes; he told me so in his own place.
 788. You state that, notwithstanding anything to the contrary? Yes.

Mr. A. Frew
 1 June, 1887.

THURSDAY, 2 JUNE, 1887.

Present:—

MR. BARBOUR,		MR. HAYES,
MR. H. CLARKE,		MR. LYNE,
	MR. S. SMITH.

GEORGE DAY, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

L. Gibson, Esq., Solicitor for the Bill.
 Jno. McLaughlin, Esq., for O. L. Griffith & Co., against the Bill.

Mr. Patrick Edwin Fallon called in and examined:—

789. Mr. McLaughlin.] You are a resident of Albury? Yes; I have resided there for thirty-three years. I am a storekeeper and a wine and spirit merchant. I have a large vineyard in the district.
 790. You know the present cattle yards in Albury? I do.
 791. Is there sufficient accommodation for all the cattle that are sold in the town? I think so.
 792. Do you know Griffith's yards? Yes.
 793. What is your opinion of them? They are fair yards.
 794. Do you also know Chenery's yards? I do.
 795. Do you know Wodonga? I know Wodonga very well, but I do not know anything about its sale-yards.
 796. Do you know that a large number of cattle are sold in Wodonga from time to time? Yes, by the Albury papers.
 797. Are New South Wales cattle sold there? I cannot say where the cattle come from.
 798. Is there any necessity for the Borough Council of Albury to bother about the erection of sale-yards? I do not know. I think that they could spend the money more economically in other directions.
 799. Griffith & Company have a pretty large business there? Yes.
 800. Would it be beneficial to Albury if their business were removed to Wodonga? I do not think so; I think that it would be quite the opposite.
 801. Do the principal buyers in Albury come from New South Wales or from Victoria? I think that the buyers of fat stock come principally from Victoria.
 802. I suppose that they would buy just as cheerfully in Wodonga as they do in Albury if they had the opportunity? I cannot say.
 803. Mr. Gibson.] Are you in the habit of attending the cattle sales in Albury? Occasionally, but not regularly.
 804. When did you attend a sale last? About six or seven weeks ago.
 805. Do you carefully note the number of stock that are sold on each occasion? I do not.
 806. Is the stock trade decreasing or increasing? I think that it is on the increase.
 807. Would Chenery Brothers by themselves be able to provide for the accommodation of the stock? By building yards they would.
 808. Would their present yards provide that accommodation? I do not think so.
 809. Do you know how the stock tax is paid when cattle are taken over to Wodonga? I believe that it has to be paid when the cattle cross the river. I think that it is 5s. on cattle and 6d. on sheep.
 810. Is it the rule that the bond for cattle crossing the Murray into Wodonga is 5s. each, that if they are not sold they can return within twenty-four hours, but that if they are sold, even if they are returned to New South Wales, they must pay the Customs duty of 5s. each? I do not know anything about that matter.

Mr.
 P. E. Fallon.
 2 June, 1887.

Mr. Joseph Tilly Brown called in and examined:—

811. Mr. McLaughlin.] You are an auctioneer and stock agent, residing at Echuca? Yes.
 812. How long have you been in business there? Since 1874.
 813. Do you know the Albury and Wodonga districts? Yes; I was once Relieving Manager of the Bank of New South Wales in Albury.
 814. Have you any knowledge of the cattle market in Albury? No; it has developed since my day.
 815. Have you any knowledge of the stock trade on the Southern Border? Yes, both ways.
 816. You know there are sale-yards in Albury belonging to Griffith & Company and to Chenery Brothers? Yes, as a matter of hearsay.
 817. Would it be to the advantage of Albury to have municipal yards in which dues would be charged on all cattle sold there, although there are free yards in Wodonga? I think that it would be certainly detrimental to the interests of Albury to have such yards. I think that people who had large numbers of stock to sell would prefer to sell them in a market where there was no taxation; I think that if dues be charged in Albury agents will prefer to sell in Wodonga.
 818. Have you had any experience of the municipal yards in Rochester? Yes; I sell there once a month—at least my salesman does.
 819. Do they charge so much a head there? They attempted to do so in the first instance. The people opposed the attempt, and it was abandoned.
 820. There is no charge per head then? No.

Mr.
 J. T. Brown.
 2 June, 1887.

Mr.
J. T. Brown.
2 June, 1887.

821. Mr. Barbour.] Is there not something which is equivalent to a tax paid there? No. The Council imposes a tax of 25s. a head on every auctioneer who effects a sale in the yards. About six auctioneers hold sales. If you do not sell no charge is made. It happens sometimes that an auctioneer's cattle do not arrive in time for the sale, and in all these cases no charge is made, for the reason that no sale has been made.

822. Mr. Hayes.] A charge is made on each day that an auctioneer effects a sale? Yes. The auctioneers sell there once a month.

823. Mr. McLaughlin.] Does it take the revenue which is obtained in this way to keep the yards in order? I do not think that it takes that much. We are now considering the desirability of making certain improvements which that revenue I am sure will not cover.

824. Mr. Lyne.] Are you a member of the Shire Council of Echuca? Yes.

825. Mr. McLaughlin.] Do you think that it would be a good thing for Albury to have municipal yards? Certainly not, if there is sufficient accommodation at the present time. If there is not that accommodation it is a question how the Council shall provide the necessary accommodation, and what charges shall be imposed. I am satisfied that if the Albury Council impose municipal dues they will drive the trade away to Wodonga.

826. Do you remember an agitation in Echuca in favour of municipal yards? It is going on now.

827. Do you remember whether the auctioneers and cattle salesmen threatened to remove their yards from the town if dues were imposed? I do; I think they sent a letter to that effect to the Borough Council.

828. Was that the reason why municipal yards were not constructed there? It helped to delay the erection of them. Two polls have been taken on the question. In the first case, about four years ago, the ratepayers declared by a majority that it was undesirable to erect municipal yards, and the other day they affirmed by a small majority the desirability of having them.

829. The present yards in Echuca are very inferior ones? I do not know the state of the yards in Albury. I think that the yards in Echuca are centrally situated, and are more than sufficient for the purposes of the trade.

830. Chairman.] Are they municipal yards? No; there are two sets of private yards.

831. Mr. McLaughlin.] If municipal yards were erected in Echuca, would not the Melbourne agents prefer to sell in Moama where the yards are free? I have no doubt of it.

832. Chairman.] Did the salesmen, in their letter to the Borough Council, say anything about removing their yards to Moama? Decidedly; they said that if municipal yards were built, and dues were imposed, instead of selling in the railway yards, they would sell in Moama and Rochester.

833. Are you sure that Moama was mentioned in the letter? Yes, and Pine Grove as well. The latter place is 18 miles to the west.

834. Mr. McLaughlin.] Do the principal buyers in the Albury District come from Victoria or from New South Wales? From Victoria, I think.

835. What is the rule of the Custom-house in respect to cattle crossing the Murray in bond? We cross our cattle or sheep to Echuca on the morning of the sale, and if a man buys them for New South Wales they go back in bond.

836. Has no duty been paid? It is just a question which way you choose to do it.

837. But a man who buys New South Wales cattle in Echuca for this Colony is entitled to a refund? Yes; it is so arranged.

838. Is there not also a possibility of arranging that the duty shall not be collected until it is ascertained that the cattle have actually been sold to a Victorian buyer? Yes.

839. Mr. Gibson.] Has not the duty to be paid in all cases within twenty-four hours of the cattle crossing the river? I do not think that it is paid as a rule. We frequently pay the duty. We have paid thousands of pounds on account of pastoralists in Riverina. We have a six months' bond, and at the end of the time we frequently renew it.

840. Is it a private arrangement of the Customs authorities? It is an official arrangement. There is no favouritism in the matter. Suppose you bring twenty-five head of cattle into the yards, the inspector comes round after the sale is over and sees whether they have been sold or not; if not, he issues a permit for the return of the cattle to New South Wales, and the duty is not paid.

841. Mr. Gibson.] That is, if they are returned within twenty-four hours from the time of their crossing the river? Yes.

842. Chairman.] Can our cattle be sold on the other side in bond and delivery taken of them on this side as if they had not been sold at all? Practically that is done. It is evading the law.

843. Mr. Lyne.] Is there not an understanding that cattle can cross to Wodonga and return within twenty-four hours without any payment of duty? Certainly.

844. And that if they get out of bond in Victoria the bond has to be renewed, or the duty paid? Yes.

845. Mr. Gibson.] How many years ago is it since you were last in Albury? I have passed through Albury, but I have not stopped in the town since 1870.

846. Is it, or is it not, beneficial to concentrate a district's cattle sales? Yes; it is advantageous to do so.

847. Do you think that it would be better to concentrate the trade in one set of yards rather than to have sales scattered over private yards? I think that concentration is always a good thing.

848. Have the municipal yards in Rochester paid for themselves? Oh, dear, no; therevenue is practically nil.

849. Mr. Lyne.] How many auctioneers pay the charge of 25s. a month? Sometimes six and sometimes four. £90 a year is about the maximum revenue from the yards.

850. Is that amount enough to keep the yards in order? Yes; the caretaker, a butcher, gets the bulk of the revenue for his services.

851. Mr. Gibson.] Were not dues charged in the first instance? Yes.

852. Afterwards, the Council, instead of charging dues, imposed a certain charge upon every auctioneer who effected sales in the yards? Yes.

853. Mr. Lyne.] Why did the Council make that charge instead of imposing dues? The auctioneers look upon the charge as a most iniquitous one, small as it is. The present state of feeling, as I said before, is in favour of municipal yards in Echuca.

854. You say that in your opinion there is sufficient accommodation now in the private yards? Ample.

855. Mr. S. Smith.] How long is it since the present yards were erected in Echuca? They were erected in 1873 by a private firm. One of the members of that firm got into trouble, and the other partner induced the Council to buy their yards.

856. How long did the Council charge dues? Only once or twice I think.
857. And since then a certain charge has been imposed on every auctioneer who sells in the yards? Yes. Mr.
J. T. Brown.
2 June, 1887.
If I remember right a charge of 25s. has been imposed for the last five years.
858. Mr. Gibson.] How long have you been selling in Rochester? About four years.
859. How long were these yards in existence before you commenced business there? Eight or ten years.
860. Mr. Lyne.] For how long have you been a member of the Shire Council? About eleven years.
861. Mr. S. Smith.] Were you a member of the Council when dues were charged? No.
862. You have an intimate knowledge of the history of these yards? Yes. The charges average something like £5 or £6 a month.
863. Chairman.] Are the Rochester yards extensive and good ones? Yes. They are not large enough for the district.
864. Have you any idea what the Council gave for them? I think that it was about £1,200; I am speaking from memory.
865. Mr. Gibson.] Has the cattle trade at Rochester been on the increase during the last few years? I do not think that it has.
866. Mr. Lyne.] Rochester is situated on the railway? Yes.

C. L. Griffith, Esq., recalled and further examined :—

867. Mr. McLaughlin.] Do you remember hearing Mr. Alderman Frew swear that your yards do not provide sufficient accommodation, inasmuch as he saw on one occasion nearly 1,000 head of cattle in the lanes? He stated that I had sold cattle in a lane, and that I had not sufficient accommodation in my yards; the statement is utterly false. C. L. Griffith, Esq.
2 June, 1887.
868. Is it true, as Mr. Frew has sworn, that a few months ago you had in a lane 1,000 head of cattle which your yards would not hold? It is utterly untrue.
869. Have you at all times been able to find accommodation for the cattle? Always. The largest sale that I ever had was about fifteen months ago, and I had ample room on that occasion.
870. Your principal buyers come from Victoria? Yes.
871. Mr. H. Clarke.] I suppose it is not necessary that all the cattle should go into the yards. I presume that you have paddocks adjoining the yards for the purpose of classifying the cattle? I have ample room in my yards for that purpose.
872. Mr. Lyne.] What is the arrangement at Albury with respect to the stock tax? You can cross the cattle from New South Wales to Wodonga, offer them for sale, report the sales to the Customs authorities, and recross whatever cattle are bought by New South Wales people, and pay the duty on the number that remain in Victoria, so that the Victorian buyer is practically on the same footing as the New South Wales buyer is.
873. With respect to the stock that remain in Victoria, what is the arrangement? I do not know about that. I believe that they go to Victoria under drawback; the duty has to be paid, and it is returnable within the time of the bond if the cattle are not sold.
874. Is that a special arrangement made in Wodonga to facilitate sales there? Yes. I believe that the Collector of Customs slightly exceeds his duty; it is done all the same. The Customs people ascertain from our books the number of cattle that are sold.
875. There is no secrecy in the matter? No; it is a perfectly above-board transaction.
876. Mr. McLaughlin.] Is the cattle market in Albury benefited in any way by reason of this duty? I consider that it is against Albury, because our main buyers come from Victoria.
877. They have not to bother about the duty if they buy in Wodonga? No. The largest portion of my fat cattle are bought by Victorians; it is the same, too, I believe with the majority of my store cattle. They know that if they buy cattle in Albury they have to pay the duty when they cross the river.
878. Cattle, as a rule, bring 5s. more per head at Wodonga than they do at Albury? I consider that they bring more than that amount. Nine-tenths of the Queensland cattle are sold in Wodonga. All the Melbourne agents sell in that town.
879. Mr. Gibson.] Have stock never been in the lanes of Albury for some hours before they were yarded in your yards? They might have had to wait for twenty minutes on my own ground.
880. For no longer than twenty minutes? I am not aware of it. I have not had stock kept out of my yards for want of room.
881. Do stock ever remain in the lanes while you are getting the place ready for them? I have seen cattle in the lanes. All the stock arrive within two hours.
882. What is the longest delay that you have had? About twenty minutes.
883. Never longer than that time? I do not think so.
884. Mr. McLaughlin.] Have you seen Mr. Andrew Hore, junior, since Mr. Frew gave his evidence? Yes. Mr. Hore said that he had never asked Mr. Frew to get yards erected, and that any statement to the contrary was utterly untrue. Those are his words as nearly as I can recollect them. His statutory declaration will be here in a day or two.

The Under Secretary for Lands to The Council Clerk, Albury.

Sir, Department of Lands, Sydney, 22 October, 1886.
 I am directed to inform you that your application of the 25th June last, on the subject mentioned hereunder, has received the approval of the Minister for Lands, and that as soon as the requirements of the 10th clause of the Crown Lands Act of 1884 have been completed a grant will issue in due course.

I have, &c.,
 R. H. DE LOW,
 (For the Under Secretary).

Subject:—The permanent dedication of 26 acres, viz., section No. 103, in the town of Albury, as a site for cattle sale-yards.

Present:—The Mayor, Ald. Billson, Ten Brink, Gulson, Edmondson, Frew, Wallder, and Scanlan.

LETTER from Dr. P. Kennedy, complaining of the nuisance caused by the sale-yards of Mr. C. L. Griffith just behind his house.

Proposed by Ald. Billson, seconded by Ald. Gulson,—That the letter be received. (Carried.)

Proposed by Ald. Edmondson, seconded by Ald. Frew,—That Dr. Kennedy be informed that the matter contained in his letter had been brought before the Council and they would take some action to abate the nuisance, and that a letter be written to Mr. C. L. Griffith asking him to use his endeavours to prevent the same by prohibiting cattle being taken in over-night. (Carried.)

COPY of Letter sent 10th January, 1884.

Gentlemen,

By direction of the Borough Council, I have to inform you that complaint has been made that great annoyance is caused to the ratopayers in the vicinity of your sale-yards by the noise created and dust raised in driving cattle to and from them, and that sheep have been put in the yards over-night and there left till the next morning, causing an incessant noise and dust the whole night.

The Council request you will find some means to modify this.

I am, &c.,
 J. H. PAINE,
 Council Clerk.

Messrs. C. L. Griffith & Co., Albury.

COPY of C. L. Griffith & Co.'s reply.

J. H. Paine, Esq., Council Chambers, Albury,—

Dear Sir,

22 January, 1884.

We are in receipt of letter written by direction of your Council respecting dust created by the stock traffic to and from our sale-yards in Olive-street, and beg to assure the Council that we will do all in our power to reduce the annoyance (suffered by close residents) to a minimum. We also wish to add that we have been for some time in treaty for a suitable site (more remote from traffic), and when secured propose removing our yards thereto.

We remain, &c.,

[Handed in by Chairman.]

Mr. A. Phillips to G. Day, Esq., M.P.

Dear Sir,

Albury, 30 May, 1887.

As Messrs. C. L. Griffith & Co are opposing the sale-yards, and in the event of the municipal yards being erected seeking compensation, I, as an owner of new and complete yards, wish my claim to be considered, which I presume in both cases would be by valuation. I by no means oppose the yards (Council) being erected, and wish to put nothing in the way to prevent the carrying out of what is without doubt the proper thing to do, and is being done all over the Colony.

I remain, &c.,
 ARTHUR PHILLIPS.

F.

[Handed in by the Chairman.]

I, ANDREW HORE, senior, of Mugwee, Bowna, do solemnly and sincerely declare that I did not state that I was in favour of the erection of municipal cattle-yards at Albury, nor did I authorize Mr. Alexander Frew to state so before the Committee of the House of Assembly.

If, as has been reported to me, he made this statement, I hereby declare same to be totally untrue.

I further declare that I consider that the accommodation now provided at the yards of Messrs. Chas. L. Griffith & Co. is amply sufficient for the requirements of the district, and that I have never heard any grazier express dissatisfaction with said accommodation. I am also of opinion that the erection of municipal cattle-yards as proposed would divert the trade to Wodonga, and consequently injure the trade in Albury. And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing the same to be true, and in virtue of the provisions of an Act made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of Her present Majesty, intituled "An Act for the more effectual abolition of Oaths and Affirmations taken and made in various Departments of the Government of New South Wales and to substitute declarations in lieu thereof and for the suppression of voluntary and extra-judicial Oaths and Affidavits."

Made and signed before me, at Mugwee, this } 2nd day of June, 1887,—

THOS. APFLECK, J.P.

his
ANDREW × HORE, SEN.
mark.

The foregoing having been read over to me, I hereby declare that I fully understood same.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

ALBURY CATTLE SALE-YARDS BILL.

(PETITION FROM C. L. GRIFFITH AND T. H. GRIFFITH TO BE HEARD BY COUNSEL IN OPPOSITION TO.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 17 May, 1887.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Legislative Assembly of the Colony of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of Charles Lucas Griffith and Thomas Hunter Griffith, of Albury, Auctioneers and Stock and Station Agents, trading as "Charles L. Griffiths & Co."

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH:—

1. That the Borough Council of Albury have petitioned your Honorable House for, and obtained, leave to bring in a Private Bill entitled "A Bill to authorise the erection and maintenance of Cattle Sale-yards by the Borough Council of Albury within the Borough of Albury," and that such Bill has, by your Honorable House, been referred to a Select Committee of your Honorable House for inquiry and report.

2. That your Petitioners are ratepayers of the said Borough, and have erected, at considerable expense, stock sale-yards and other buildings in connection therewith, and carry on business at such yards in the said Borough as Auctioneers and Stock and Station Agents, and that the said Bill proposes to take power to the promoters to demand and take fees and charges in respect of cattle yarded in or brought to such yards of your Petitioners.

3. That the erection of cattle sale-yards by the said Borough is unnecessary, and it is not expedient that they should be established, or that the said Borough should have power to borrow money to erect same, or to charge fees for cattle sold in private yards.

4. That your Petitioners will be seriously and injuriously affected, and prejudiced by the acquisition of such powers by the promoters on the following grounds:—

1. That the erection of such yards is not necessary.
2. That it will involve the ratepayers of the Borough in unnecessary expense.
3. That it will damnify the interests of your Petitioners.
4. That even if your Honorable House should pass the preamble of the said Bill, your Petitioners submit that they are entitled to have various clauses inserted, and amendments and alterations made therein for their own protection.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that they may be heard by their counsel or solicitor before your Honorable House, or before the Select Committee, in opposition to the said Bill and the provisions thereof, with liberty to adduce such evidence as they may be advised in opposition thereto or in support of this Petition.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

Dated this seventeenth day of May, A.D., 1887.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON

BOROUGH OF BALMAIN WHARVES BILL.

FRIDAY, 1 JULY, 1887.

Present:—

MR. BARBOUR,		MR. GARRARD,
MR. DAY,		MR. HAWTHORNE,
	MR. F. SMITH.

JACOB GARRARD, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Phillip Hurley Sullivan, Esq., appeared as Solicitor for the Bill.

William Moffit Burns, Esq., called in, sworn, and examined:—

1. Chairman.] You are an Alderman, and now Mayor of the Borough of Balmain? I am.
2. The Borough of Balmain is almost surrounded by water, is it not? It is.
3. And is dependent upon ferry steamers for its access to Sydney principally? Principally.
4. The borough consequently has a large number of wharves at the foot of its streets? Yes.
5. Can you give the Committee any idea of the value of the borough's assets in this particular;—how many wharves are there? I think there are about eight, including the last new wharf.
6. Can you give us any idea roughly of the cost to the Borough Council of constructing these wharves? I should say about £10,000.
7. Has any case arisen lately in which the right of the borough has been contested to hold these wharves? There have been cases in the District Court, in one of which we were nonsuited on the ground that we were suing for rent, and the Judge held that we had no right to sue for rent, we should have sued for dues. We have counsel's opinion to the effect that if the matter were taken to a higher Court we should have no legal claim for either dues or rent.
8. What are the boundaries of the municipality? Low water-mark.
9. And these wharves and jetties project beyond low water-mark? Yes, considerably.
10. And therefore there is a doubt of the legal holding of the Council of wharves projecting beyond that boundary? Yes.
11. This Bill is for the purpose of removing that doubt, and giving the Council the right to erect wharves for the convenience of the ratepayers? Just so, and to charge for the use of them.
12. This Bill has been before the Borough Council, and has received its approval? It has.
13. The ratepayers generally are aware that this Bill has been prepared for the purpose of being submitted to Parliament? They are.
14. Has there been any agitation or public movement against the provisions of this Bill in any way? None whatever.
15. Are you in a position to say whether it is looked upon with absolute favour by the people generally? I think it is by the majority. There has been no voice raised against it.
16. Has there been plenty of opportunity to object to it? There has.
17. How long is it since the desirability of having this Bill was submitted to the Borough Council? Some three months ago.
18. And reported in the proceedings of the Council? Yes.
- 19.

W. M.
Burns, Esq.
1 July, 1887.

W. M.
Burns, Esq.
1 July, 1887.

19. Which are open to the ratepayers? Yes.
20. Do the ratepayers attend the meetings of the Council in large numbers? Yes.
21. Has the Bill been advertised in the local papers? It has.
22. Mr. Day.] When this question was brought before your Council was there any division upon it? I think not,—I think the resolution was carried unanimously.
23. Then the whole of the members of the Municipal Council are in favour of this Bill being passed into law? Yes.
24. Was there any question as to how they intended to raise money to purchase the wharves already made or to construct new wharves? No; that question never arose. I do not think that we want to erect new wharves particularly; it is the wharves we have already erected by the ratepayers' money that we wish to obtain proper control over.
25. As I understand it then, the Council have wharves of their own? Quite so.
26. Already paid for by them? Yes.
27. And they simply ask to obtain power from Parliament to manage these wharves for the benefit of the ratepayers and the use of the public? Quite so.
28. It is not proposed to go outside the borough further than lands abutting on the borough boundary to erect any wharves? No.
29. From your experience in the Municipality of Balmain are you under the impression that the power asked for by this Bill will be of great benefit to the ratepayers of that locality? It will be a benefit for the Council to have proper control over the wharves so that they can charge anyone who applies for the use of them, and it will give the ratepayers a revenue.
30. Generally speaking, the ratepayers are in favour of what the Council are doing? Yes, undoubtedly.
31. Mr. Barbour.] I understand that your object is to secure a good title to the wharves, which are at the present time your own property? Exactly.
32. Have you any desire to acquire any wharves beyond those which are at present your own property? No, not unless any new wharf should be proposed for construction.
33. And you desire to have control over any new wharf which you may consider it necessary to erect? Just so. As a matter of fact we are paying the Government £10 a year as lease for these wharves.
34. The wharves are all abutting upon the municipality? They are.
35. And where they go beyond the municipality boundary they project into deep water? Just so.
36. There has been no objection on the part of private individuals to this Bill? No, none whatever.
37. It is considered to be for the general interest of the public and the Municipality of Balmain? It is.

Henry Brewster Macintosh, Esq., called in, sworn, and examined:—

H. B.
Macintosh,
Esq.
1 July, 1887.

38. Chairman.] You are Council Clerk to the Borough of Balmain? Yes.
39. You are aware that there is a Bill before the Committee to enable the Balmain Council to have better control over their wharves? Yes.
40. Has any objection been made by the ratepayers to this Bill? Not any.
41. How long is it since the Bill was first submitted, or the desirableness of the Bill considered by the Borough Council? I should say about three months.
42. Was the resolution affirming the desirability of having the Bill passed carried on division in the Council, or was it carried unanimously? It was carried unanimously.
43. Do you know of any objection on the part of a number of persons or of individuals to the provisions of the Bill? None.
44. Would you be in a position to know if there were likely to be any objection to the Bill? Yes; but I have heard of none.
45. How many wharves or piers are erected at the foot of the streets of the Balmain Municipality now? I think thirteen or fourteen.
46. Can you tell us the cost roughly of these wharves? I think I should be safe in saying that they have cost not less than £6,000. It is more likely that the amount would be larger than that.
47. There are still a number of streets running to the water where it may be desirable in the future to construct wharves? Certainly.
48. Mr. Barbour.] What occasion has arisen that requires you to get this Bill? We require to have more facilities in dealing with the wharves.
49. Has any question arisen as to your title to hold the present wharves? There was something of that sort.
50. Was there a decision against the Council? It was hardly against the Council.
51. Was there a doubt expressed as to the legality of your holding? Yes.
52. Chairman.] Under the Municipalities Act, and also by your by-laws, you are empowered to charge for the use of these wharves? Yes.
53. Has such charge been made on the two ferry companies that recently ran to Balmain? Yes; and always paid.
54. For many years? Yes.
55. No judicial decision has been given against the right of the Council to charge rent? No.
56. But counsel's opinion has been expressed that it is a doubtful point as to the legal holding of the Council? Exactly.
57. Mr. Barbour.] And it is to remove that doubt that you have applied for the Bill? Yes.
58. Mr. Day.] Does not the Municipalities Act give full power to the Council to erect wharves, jetties, and piers for the accommodation of the public? It does.
59. And notwithstanding that, an opinion has been given that the Council has not the power to charge dues? Yes; the boundary is not exactly defined.
60. How many wharves are there under the Council's control at the present time? As far as I remember there are thirteen.
61. Is the land leased from the Government? Yes; we got permission from the Government to erect every one of them.
62. And the structures have been put up at the expense of the ratepayers of Balmain by the Municipal Council? Yes.

63. I suppose they are a great accommodation to the general public? They are very great indeed. Thousands of people pass by the ferry-boats to Sydney by means of these wharves.
64. Mr. Sullivan.] They could not pass otherwise? No; unless they went a long way round by road.
65. Mr. Day.] There are other portions of Balmain where it is necessary to make wharves at streets leading to the water? Yes; nearly all the streets run down to the water.
66. You require power to construct wharves into the deep water? Yes.
67. Mr. Barbour.] Wharves abutting on the municipality? Yes.
68. Mr. F. Smith.] The Mayor has stated that there are eight wharves, the cost of which he estimates at £10,000? There are thirteen wharves. I think his estimate of £10,000 is more likely to be correct than the amount I named,—£6,000.

H. B.
Macintosh,
Esq.
1 July, 1887.

Phillip Hurley Sullivan, Esq., sworn and examined:—

69. Chairman.] You are solicitor for the Borough of Balmain? Yes.
70. You are aware of the provisions of the Bill before the Committee? Yes, and with your permission I will ask you to make an amendment on the preamble.
71. Will the preamble, as it is set forth here, meet the requirements of the Council? No.
72. Do you propose or desire to add to it? Yes, to amend and add to it.
73. In what way? The preamble reads as if they were about to erect new wharves and take on lease wharves already erected. At the present moment the Council have wharves already erected there. It is doubtful; in fact counsel has said that we cannot charge rates for landing on wharves already in existence and erected. The Council wish to amend the preamble, so as to enable them to clear up that point.
74. What words do you propose to insert? We desire to have inserted after the word borough, in the thirteenth line of the Bill as printed, these words: "and to charge for and recover at law if necessary all rates fees and tolls fixed by the by-laws of the said borough now existing or which may hereafter be proclaimed."
75. Has the borough that power now? No.
76. Have you had counsel's opinion upon that point? I have been handed a copy of Mr. Knox's opinion, given on behalf of the Borough of St. Leonards, on a similar matter. I also hand in a copy of the opinion of Mr. Salomons, given at the request of the Borough of Victoria, also for similar wharves and jetties. [Vide Appendix A.]

[To the Evidence of H. B. Macintosh, Esq.]

CASE FOR OPINION OF COUNSEL.—THE BOROUGH OF VICTORIA.

1. Blue's Point Wharf is a public wharf handed over to the Council by the Government.
  2. The boundaries of the Borough are the waters of Port Jackson.
  3. A portion of the wharf was extended by the Government at the joint expense of the Borough of Victoria and the Government; the Government doing the work, and in so doing went outside the boundaries of the Borough up to and beyond the reclamation line.
  4. It is now proposed by the Borough to make a further extension from another part of the wharf hitherto not utilized, by means of a jetty 120 feet beyond high-water mark, for the purpose of establishing a ferry for passengers and vehicular traffic to and from Sydney, permission being granted by the Government under lease.
- Doubts having arisen as to the legality of the Borough in spending money outside the boundaries of the Borough, the opinion of Counsel is asked as to the position of the Borough, and in considering this question Counsel will please consider section 125 of the Municipalities Act of 1867, as to whether the provisions of that section can or cannot be made to apply to this case.

Fitz-Evans Chambers, 25 August, 1886.

W. H. FIGOTT,
Solicitor for the Borough of Victoria.

OPINION.

EXCEPT where otherwise expressly provided by the Act, the powers of the Council are limited to the boundaries of the Municipality. (See, as to such boundaries, sections 9 and 10, and Graham v. Berry, 3 Moore, C.P.R., N.S. 207.)

It is otherwise provided by section 125 of the Act, but I am of opinion that nothing in that section applies to the matter or the circumstances of the case now before me. Section 117 enacts that the "Council shall, within the boundaries of the Municipality, have the care, construction, and management of public roads, other than the main roads of the Colony, and of public streets, lanes, ferries, wharves, jetties, and public thoroughfares, &c." From this it by implication follows that their rights and duties cannot be held to extend outside those boundaries. And it will be noticed that this same 117th section authorizes, in certain cases, the expenditure of money for objects wholly or partly outside the Municipality; but none of those cases includes the erection or extension of a wharf or jetty, as here proposed. As a matter of strict law I must advise that the Council cannot expend any of the Borough funds in the way suggested. If there are any fees or tolls to be levied for the use of the jetty, perhaps the Government might erect it and receive the fees or tolls till the cost (I suppose only trifling) was repaid.

JULIAN E. SALOMONS,
Chambers, September 2, 1886.

CASE FOR OPINION.

THE Borough Council of East St. Leonards have decided to erect wharves at the foot of High-street, Western-street, and Willoughby-street.

The wharves are to be built on land leased from the Government under reclamation, being portions of what is known as the foreshore, that is, ground between the high and low water levels. A portion of the land in one instance is said to be beyond the original foreshore and under deep water.

It has been contended that the Council is precluded by law from spending the money of the Borough on ground beyond high-water mark, high-water mark being the proclaimed boundary to seaward.

As the same point crops up in all the instances mentioned, it is important that the Council should see their way clearly, and therefore a carefully considered opinion is required.

The Borough is practically barred of outlet to the water from the fact of almost all the reserves on water frontages having got into private hands. And this is the reason why the Council wishes to secure for the use of the Borough all such natural wharfage as still remains public property.

The Government leased the land knowing it was the intention of the Borough to erect wharves thereon.

Counsel will please advise whether it would be legal for the Council under the above circumstances to expend the Municipal funds in erecting the wharves, or whether under any of the above circumstances the Council can expend the funds of the Municipality in works outside the boundaries of the Borough.

W. H. FIGOTT, 26/8/86.
OPINION.

OPINION.

THE point submitted is a very difficult one.

On the one side it may be said with reason that the expression "within the boundaries of the municipality" ought to receive a literal construction as regards wharves, because wharves, to be of any use, are not as a rule above high-water mark, and, so long as they adjoin lands vested in the Municipal Council, as a road or otherwise, they would seem to be included in the reason of the thing. Otherwise, if the banks which formed the sea-side of a municipality were shallow, it would be utterly impossible for the Council either to take over or to construct any wharves which would give any accommodation to the public. On the whole I am inclined to think that this is the correct view, and that wharves, to authorise expenditure upon them by the Council, need not be wholly within the proclaimed boundaries of the municipal district. As regards those cases where the land is reclaimed, that is, is brought above high-water mark, it will become within the boundaries of the municipality, and the Council will be justified in expending money on the erection of a wharf upon it.

The considerations which are against the view suggested above are as follows:—1. The Legislature, in s. 120, gives special power to the Council to deal with a road running along, but outside the boundaries of a municipality. This would seem to imply that there is no power under s. 117 to make or manage such a road. In other words, the word "within," in s. 117, cannot, as regards roads, be read as "adjoining." Again, s. 125 seems against the construction that the Municipal Council can carry out works over water adjoining the boundaries of the municipality; but it is a significant fact that the section refers only to bridges and ferries, and not to wharves or jetties, which are just as likely to be necessary in the river. It may also be urged that there is no hardship upon the inhabitants of municipalities, even if wharves cannot be constructed below high-water mark, inasmuch as the boundaries of municipalities may be made, by proclamation, to extend below high-water mark.

I can see great difficulty in the way of bringing the questions now raised before a Court for decision, unless an information is filed by the Attorney-General at the relation of some ratepayers to restrain the Council by injunction. In my opinion, the best course would be to apply for a short Act giving the necessary powers to the municipality. I may mention that I have been unable to find any case at all bearing upon this point.

AMENDMENT BILL.

WEDNESDAY, 18 MAY, 1887.

Present:—

MR. TEECE,
MR. BURDEKIN,MR. ALLEN,
MR. BALL.

WM. TEECE, ESQ., ELECTED CHAIRMAN.

William Hilson Pigott, Esq., called in, sworn, and examined:—

1. Chairman.] I believe that you are acting on behalf of the solicitor for the Bill—Mr. Betts? I am.
2. He is also one of the petitioners for the Bill? I believe that he is.
3. The Company desire to increase their capital? Yes.
4. Do you know what the present capital of the Company is? I believe £10,000.
5. And they require power to increase it to £50,000? Yes.
6. Will you kindly state to the Committee reasons sufficient to warrant them in reporting the preamble proved? As I am instructed by Mr. Betts, the reasons are simply that the Company finds that its operations are considerably hampered by the limitation in the present Act. The population of the city of Goulburn has increased very rapidly, and the Company finds it absolutely necessary to have its capital increased in order to carry on operations successfully. I produce a certified copy of a resolution passed at a meeting of the shareholders on the 29th January, by which the directors were authorized to apply to Parliament for power to increase the capital to £50,000. [Handed in.] I also exhibit the deed of settlement of the Company, showing that its present capital is only £10,000. [Produced.]
7. All the Standing Orders have been complied with? Yes.
8. Mr. Burdekin.] I suppose that the Company have already spent £10,000, and require more money to supply Goulburn with gas? I cannot say positively, but I believe those are the facts. The Company do not propose to raise all the new capital at once, but only to do so by degrees as their operations extend.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON

CRISP'S ENABLING BILL.

WEDNESDAY, 6 APRIL, 1887.

Present:—

MR. BARBOUR, | MR. DALTON,
                  | MR. DAWSON.

GEORGE DAY, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

John Crisp, Esq., called in, sworn, and examined:—

1. Chairman.] Your name is John Crisp? Yes.
2. You are one of the administrators in the estate referred to in this Bill? Yes.
3. Acting under authority from the Supreme Court in your father's estate? Yes.
4. How long is it since your father died? Very nearly six years. He died on the 4th July, 1881.
5. After his death, did you make any search to find out whether he had made a will? Yes.
6. What was the result of that search? I could never find any tidings of any will.
7. What did you do then—did you continue to manage the property? We administered then as soon as it could possibly be done.
8. What did the Court do? They granted power to my mother (Elizabeth Crisp), to my brother (Amos Crisp), and to myself.
9. What number of brothers and sisters had you at that time? My father had seven sons at that time and five daughters. There were twelve of us altogether.
10. Are they all alive at present? No; one is dead.
11. Which one is dead? Eliza Jane.
12. How many of the children are now under age, and what are their names? Three are under age; Charles Crisp, George Crisp, and Grace Susan Crisp.
13. How long will it be before Susan Crisp, the youngest child, reaches the age of twenty-one years? Very nearly seven years.
14. Mr. Dawson.] Will she be of age on the 20th of December, 1893? Yes.
15. Chairman.] At the time of your father's death, had the Commercial Bank a lien or mortgage over the whole of the property to secure to the Bank the payment of £9,930 1s. 2d.? They had a mortgage over the freehold property and freehold land of Jimenbuen and Ironmongie Stations, also upon the sheep and cattle.
16. The Commercial Bank had a mortgage over the whole of your father's property for the due payment of that sum, £9,930 1s. 2d.? Yes.
17. Did your sister, Eliza Jane Crisp, make any will before her death? No.
18. She was as much interested in the property as you were? Yes, just the same.
19. Did you find any difficulty in carrying on the property at that time—did you make any application to the Supreme Court for letters of administration? Yes.
20. Was it granted? It was.
21. How long did you carry on the property before you made any further application to the Court? I think about four years. I cannot exactly remember when it was.
22. Mr. Dawson.] Administration was granted on the first of November, 1882? Yes; about three years ago.

J. Crisp, Esq.
6 April, 1887.

- J. Crisp, Esq.
6 April, 1887.
23. Chairman.] The administrator carried on for three or four years after the administration was granted before you made a further application to the Court? Yes, about three years.
24. Did you find any difficulty then in carrying it on? Yes.
25. What was the result of your application to the Court? We were allowed to borrow money.
26. In the interest of the family? Yes. The Court granted us permission to borrow, but the Bank was not satisfied; they said that they had not power to lend us money unless we could get some further title.
27. To what amount did the Court give you power to borrow? £7,500.
28. Mr. Dalton.] Was that in addition to the amount which was formerly owing to the Bank? No; that would be inclusive of what was then due.
29. Chairman.] What was the debt when your father died? £9,900 odd.
30. When you applied to the Court the debt had been reduced to something like £4,000? Yes.
31. Having reduced the debt to £4,000, you now find it necessary in the interest of the family to borrow more money to put stock on the property? Just so.
32. Has there been any depreciation in the value of stock and wool during the last two or three years? Yes. Very much last year. The value of the wool last year was nearly 40 per cent. below that of the year before; in fact it has been falling off during the last three or four years until the present year.
33. I suppose that owing to the drought and the low price of wool you have found it difficult to carry on the property? Yes, we lost a lot of stock, cattle especially, and the sheep were almost starving; we could not keep them in anything like condition to get a flecce of wool. During last summer we had to keep about 3,000 sheep on the mountains.
34. At the present time there is not nearly enough stock on the run? No; we could carry 5,000 more sheep comfortably.
35. How many sheep have you now? 14,000, and between 300 and 400 head of cattle. The Ironmongie run will carry 5,000 sheep. We took that over from Mr. Rolfe for debt. It was under mortgage at the time of father's death, and as Mr. Rolfe could not clear it off we were obliged to take over the run without stock, and we want to stock it now.
36. You find it impossible to pay off the debt to the Bank, or even to carry on the property, without being able to get more money? Yes.
37. What do you want the money for? We want to square up the old account, if possible, to purchase stock, to pay interest, and to make improvements.
38. Have you any improvements to make on conditional purchases? Yes.
39. Are there any conditional purchases which it would be advisable for you to purchase for the benefit of the family? Yes; very much so.
40. Suppose Parliament refuses to pass the Bill, what will be the result? We shall be forced to sell.
41. In that case, would you be able to realise anything like a good price for the property at the present time? No; in fact I do not think we could sell it at any price.
42. If you are not allowed to borrow money to carry on the property it will be disastrous to the family, in your opinion. Very much so.
43. Suppose you are left to carry on the property as at present, do you think you would be able to pay current expenses and make both ends meet? No; we should not be able to pay off the old debt to the Bank. They are anxious to have that account cleared off, and to have another account opened in the name of the administrators.
44. You think that it would be for the benefit of the estate to enter into such an arrangement with the Bank? Yes.
45. It is stated in the preamble that money is wanted for the purchase and the improvement of lands, and for the purchase of stock. Do you want the money for any other purpose? No.
46. Mr. Dawson.] You require some to pay balances on freeholds? Yes; the interest that is mentioned in the Bill.
47. Mr. Dalton.] How much money do you require to pay the interest on selections? It comes to about £600 a year.
48. Chairman.] That is in addition to the interest which you have to pay to the Commercial Bank? Yes.
49. These two interest accounts would be a large amount of money for the family to pay out of the present income? Yes.
50. You believe that under the Bill you would be able to carry on the property to greater advantage to all parties interested? Very much so. If we were allowed to purchase 4,000 more stock our income would be very much greater. We have the country to put them on, but no means to buy them.
51. Does all the family live on the station? No.
52. How many live away from it? Two.
53. What are they? Two sisters—Mrs. Woodhouse and Mrs. Crawford.
54. Have you ever heard any complaints from your brothers or sisters, or your mother, about the management of the property up to the present time? Not a word.
55. Have your mother and your brothers and sisters above the age of twenty-one signed the petition? No; two of them did not sign it.
56. Why? Because I had not time to send it to them. One lives in Gippsland, Victoria, and the other was away on a station 40 miles distant, and I had only two or three days to get the petition signed.
57. Do you think that they would have signed the petition had they been asked to do so? Yes.
58. Has either Mrs. Woodhouse or Mrs. Crawford complained of the management of the property? No.
59. Have you made any arrangement with Mrs. Crawford for the payment of her share? Yes.
60. Have you paid her any portion of it? Yes.
61. What amount remains unpaid at the present time? £350.
62. Mrs. Woodhouse is entitled to a full share? Yes; she has not been paid anything yet.
63. Do you know whether the Commercial Bank are willing that the Bill should be passed? Yes; they are anxious that it should pass. The matter has been mentioned through the manager at Monaro several times.
64. Mr. Dawson.] As a matter of fact, is it not at their request that you are doing it? Yes.
65. Chairman.] I understand that the Bank have told you that if you were placed in a different position they would lend you all the money you require to carry on the station? Yes.
66. Mr. Barbour.] Is the Commercial Bank the only creditor? Yes, barring some small store accounts.

67. Mr. Dalton.] What is the value of the property as a family asset? It is worth about £50,000. J. Crisp, Esq.
There is also property at Cooma.
68. If the property were fully stocked, what annual revenue do you think you would get from it? 6 April, 1887.
Roughly speaking, I should say about £4,000. With what we have now, our return will be over £3,000.
69. How do you propose to pay off the Bank if the Bill is passed? We will have to borrow money from the Bank to pay off the old debt, and of course create a new debt.
70. Chairman.] Any money that you get from the sale of the Cooma land must be paid into the Bank to liquidate the original debt? Yes.
71. You have no power to use that money in any way? No.
72. So that if you got the £1,200 which is owing on that property it would go towards the decreasing the debt to the Bank? Yes.
73. Mr. Dalton.] Is that debt in the shape of a promissory note? The land was sold by order of the Commercial Bank. It was under mortgage to them, and any money realised is paid into the old account.

Mrs. Elizabeth Crisp called in, sworn, and examined:—

Mrs. E. Crisp.

74. Chairman.] You are the widow of Amos Crisp, mentioned in this Bill? Yes.
75. At the time of your husband's death he held the pastoral properties known as Jimenbuen and Iron-mongie Minor? Yes. 6 April, 1887.
76. How many children were living at the time of his death? Twelve—seven sons and five daughters.
77. Are they all living now? No; Eliza Jane is dead.
78. Did she make any will? No.
79. We notice that the names of two of your daughters who are not living on the station are not attached to the petition. Do you think they would have signed it had they had an opportunity of doing so? I am sure they would. We had not the time to send the papers to them.
80. How many of your children are under age at the present time? Three.
81. What is the age of the youngest? She will be fifteen next December.
82. Did the Supreme Court grant letters of administration to you and your two sons, Amos and John, to carry on the property? Yes.
83. How has the property been managed since then? My sons have managed it since then.
84. Did the Commercial Bank have a mortgage over the property at the time of your husband's death? Yes.
85. What was the amount due to the Bank then? £9,980 1s. 2d.
86. By your management you have reduced it to something like £4,000? Yes.
87. Did the Court grant permission to the administrators to borrow up to £7,000, including the old debt? I think so.
88. Have you ever heard any complaint from any of your children about the management of the property? No.
89. Has the property been managed to your entire satisfaction? Yes.
90. And you are thoroughly satisfied for the Bill to pass? Yes.
91. Do you think it would be for the benefit of yourself and your children if you were empowered to borrow money to put stock on the runs? Yes; they are not well stocked now.
92. Mr. Dalton.] Have you had a meeting of your family with regard to getting the Bill passed? Yes.
93. Were they all agreeable that it should be passed? Yes.
94. Chairman.] Your husband having died without a will you are entitled to one-third of the property? Yes.
95. And the passing of the Bill will not take away that right? I think not.
96. In point of fact you have the largest interest in the property at the present time? Yes.

Thomas Brocklebank Gaden, Esq., called in, sworn, and examined:—

T. B. Gaden,
Esq.

97. Chairman.] What are you? I am Assistant Manager of the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney. 6 April, 1887.
98. I understand that you know a great deal about the affairs between the Bank and the Crisp family? I do not think that anyone else knows as much about them as I do.
99. Mr. Dawson.] Knowing what you do about the estate, and having heard the contents of the Bill read, do you think the Bank would have any objection to offer to it? As far as giving power to the administrators to enable them to borrow money is concerned we have no objection, in fact I think it is the proper thing to do. Of course I cannot say anything as to the amount which should be borrowed.
100. Chairman.] Did the administrators apply to you to increase the amount of the debt from £4,000 to £7,000? Yes.
101. Were you willing to lend the money on the property offered, provided the parties were empowered to give security? To the best of my recollection we agreed to do so if they could give us proper legal security.
102. Were you not aware that the Supreme Court had given its consent to their borrowing that amount of money? I think that we thought that that was insufficient.
103. Did you suggest to them the propriety of having this Bill brought in? We did not officially at any rate. If the suggestion was made it would be in the course of conversation as to what would be an advisable course to take. I believe the suggestion was made, but I do not know whether I made it myself.
104. If the Bill is passed, and the Bank is paid the present debt, do you think they will be willing to advance £7,000 under a new mortgage? The Bill will enable the administrators to renew their application; but of course I cannot say anything as to the acceptance of it. I should think the Bill would enable them to be successful.
105. Mr. Dalton.] As creditors to the estate, has the Bank any objection to the Bill passing? None whatever.
106. Chairman.] You know a great deal about the estate. Do you think that the Bill will enable the administrators to work it to better advantage? Decidedly. I do not know that it will be more satisfactory for the Bank, because we know that it is perfectly safe now, and we are not troubling ourselves about it at all. The Bill will certainly enable them to carry on in a far more satisfactory way than they can possibly do at the present.

- J. B. Gaden, Esq.
6 April, 1886.
107. According to your opinion they are not able to carry on the estate properly because they have not the power of law to enable them to do so? They have not powers which seem to me to be necessary to enable them to conduct the property satisfactorily.
108. They have not the same power as an owner would have over the property? Certainly not. An owner could come and borrow from us; but they are debarred from doing that, no matter what their necessities may be.
109. You are under the impression that the Bank has no objection to the Bill being passed? We are perfectly agreeable to it.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON THE

CROOKWELL ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH LAND SALE BILL.

TUESDAY, 3 MAY, 1887.

Present:—

MR. HOLBOROW,
MR. BARBOUR,

MR. TEECE.

MR. S. SMITH,
MR. FRANK FARNELL,

WILLIAM HILLIER HOLBOROW, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Daniel O'Brien sworn and examined:—

1. Chairman.] You are one of the trustees mentioned in the preamble of the Bill? Yes.
2. Are the other trustees—the Right Reverend William Lanigan, the Reverend Michael Slattery, and Michael Tully—still living? Yes.
3. Do you produce the two deeds mentioned in the schedule? Yes. (Produced.)
4. The trustees want power to sell the land and to provide for the appropriation of the proceeds? Yes.
5. All the trustees concur in that desire? Yes.
6. Are all the parishioners agreeable to the sale of this land? Yes.
7. Have you heard of any objection to the Bill? No.
8. And you believe it is for the benefit of the Church that the land should be sold? I am certain of it.
9. Have you the consent of the Bishop to the sale? Yes; here is his written consent. (Handed in. See Appendix.)
10. You intend to apply the proceeds to the erection of a church on a more suitable site in the town of Crookwell? Yes, and other money besides; we have already obtained a convenient site.
11. You have two Crown grants—one for a church, and the other for a presbytery;—why do you want to part with them? The sites are not convenient for church purposes, and we want to dispose of the grants in order to build a church in a more suitable place.
12. You know, of your own knowledge, that your co-trustees are agreeable to the Bill? I am certain of it; they have sent me here to represent them.
13. The whole of the parishioners are agreeable? Yes.
14. And no one has objected? No.

Mr.
D. O'Brien.
3 May, 1887

APPENDIX.

Goulburn, 23 April, 1887.
I AM desirous of selling the Government grant of land at Crookwell with the view of building on a more appropriate site in the township. I hope Mr. Daniel O'Brien or Mr. Michael Tully will be pleased to represent me before the Committee appointed to examine into the matter. I believe, too, that all concerned concur with me in the wish to obtain an Act for its sale.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON

THE HAY AND DENILIQVIN TRAMWAY BILL.

WEDNESDAY, 22 JUNE, 1887.

Present:—

MR. BLACK,
MR. CHANTER,
MR. LAKEMAN,

MR. McMILLAN,
MR. STREET,
MR. R. B. WILKINSON.

ROBERT BLISS WILKINSON, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

Thomas Robertson, Esq., Solicitor for the Bill.

Alexander Pentleton Stewart, Esq., called in and examined:—

1. Chairman.] You are one of the parties who are asking for permission to construct this tramway? Yes.
2. Do you represent all the parties who are mentioned in the preamble of this Bill? Yes; I am authorised to represent them all.
3. You know the road between Deniliquin and Hay? Yes, very well.
4. What is it like? It is a road across what is called the Old Man Plain. It is 79 miles in length, and very good for a team or coach to travel over in dry weather; but it is a very bad road indeed in wet weather. During the drought it is impassable, because there is not a mouthful of grass for the stock. In wet weather, such as the present, it would cost at least, I believe, £10 a ton for dray carriage between Hay and Deniliquin. I have endeavoured to get as near the truth as possible on this point by consulting the different forwarding agents in Hay; they say that £10 a ton would be about the amount.
5. As manager of the local Australian Joint Stock Bank you have good opportunity to know this? Not exactly from that position, but rather from making careful inquiries from the people who pay the money to the carriers.
6. Is the traffic between the two places large at the present time? Not at the present time, because the road is almost impassable.
7. Mr. Black.] What are the principal goods which are carried? The principal produce has been wool. During 1885 200 tons of wool were sent from Hay to Deniliquin. The stations to the north of Hay sent 200 tons of wool—within a few hundred yards of the railway goods-shed at Hay—to Deniliquin last year. Wool from the Cowl Cowl station was also sent from Hay to Deniliquin. The trade between Hay and Melbourne is not carried on overland via Deniliquin as a general rule; it is done by steamer round by way of Echuca, and thence by railway to Melbourne.
8. Chairman.] What is the distance by steamer? From 600 to 800 miles.
9. Mr. McMillan.] How long does it take to do the journey? About a week I should think.
10. What is the cost of goods along that route? To Melbourne it is less now than it is by rail to Sydney. I think it is about £3 3s. 9d. for wool from Hay to Sydney, and it is about the same, I think, from Hay to Melbourne.
11. That is taking the river and the train? Yes.
12. Chairman.] What would it cost per mile to metal the road between Hay and Deniliquin? I have heard various statements on this point; I think that it would take from £3,000 to £4,000 per mile, exclusive of the cost of maintenance.
13. It is stated in the preamble of the Bill that there is no stone within 100 miles of this road? No; I have never seen stone within 100 miles of the place. There is none at Echuca, at the other end.
14. Is there any local opposition to the construction of this tramway? None whatever; I have seen letters written by the property owners between Hay and Deniliquin expressing their consent to its passing through

A. P.
Stewart, Esq.
22 June, 1887

A. P.
Stewart, Esq.
22 June, 1887.

through their land; no one to whom we have written on the matter has expressed any objection to the Bill. Mr. P. P. Curtain, who has one of the most important stations on the route, and through whose land the line will pass, is quite agreeable to the Bill. Mr. Porter, who owns the most important part of the township of Boorboorban, says that he has no objection whatever to allow the line to pass through his land, and that he will be glad to assist the company in any way in his power.

15. Mr. McMillan.] What do the people in the district think of the idea of connecting with Jerilderie and Deniliquin? None of the people around Hay take any interest in a connection between Jerilderie and Deniliquin; it does not seem to affect them in any way whatever. The construction of this line will not affect one bale of wool which now passes through Hay.

16. Chairman.] The construction of this line will not compete in any way with a line from Jerilderie to Deniliquin when it is formed? I do not believe that it would affect such a line to the extent of one bale of wool.

17. As regards the diversion of trade from Sydney, how many stations south of the Murrumbidgee are now sending their wool to Sydney? Only one.

18. How long has this railway been in existence? Four wool seasons to the best of my recollection.

19. And notwithstanding that it has been in existence for five years only one station sends its wool to Sydney by this means? Yes; Burrabogie alone sends its wool by train.

20. As a matter of fact there would be no diversion of the wool south of the Murrumbidgee to Melbourne? No.

21. It would facilitate the transit of wool to where it now goes? Yes; I should mention that there were sent from Hay to Sydney about 9,000 bales in 1884, 6,000 bales in 1885, and 5,000 bales in 1886. In 1885, 22,000 bales were sent from Hay to Melbourne, and in 1886, 266,600 bales; in 1885 200 tons of wool went right past the railway goods-shed at Hay overland to Melbourne.

22. You are aware that there is a large farming population settled now in the neighbourhood of Deniliquin and Moama, and that a large number of sheep died during the drought? Yes; the decrease in the number of sheep between 1883 and 1884 was about 1,000,000, at Hay it was 189,000, and at Hillston it was 805,000. The value of these sheep to the country would have been very nearly half-a-million of money if they could have been trucked into Victoria where the grass was going to waste during the disastrous drought in Riverina.

23. Why did they not travel across the Old Man Plain? There was no grass, they would have died of starvation.

24. Large quantities of produce were imported into Hay at that time? Yes; enormous quantities.

25. Nearly all the stations were feeding their horses? Yes; and sheep on hay.

26. How much of that produce came from the neighbourhood of Deniliquin? A good deal came from Deniliquin and a good deal came from Victoria; the principal part of it came from Victoria south of Deniliquin; they had to bring it round by way of Albury, a distance of 335 miles, instead of 100 miles, owing to the impassability of the Old Man Plain.

27. Did the farmers in the neighbourhood of Deniliquin and Moama send their produce by way of Albury to Hay? Yes; on account of there being no grass on the Old Man Plain.

28. How do you propose to make this line join the present Government line? There is no Government line; we propose to join the Deniliquin and Moama line at Deniliquin.

29. How is the junction proposed to be effected at Hay? We do not intend to cross the river at all there. It would cost an enormous sum to cross the river, but sooner than that the Bill should not be passed we would agree to cross the river, although at present we do not contemplate doing so.

30. Mr. McMillan.] There is a break there? Yes.

31. Chairman.] Would not this line open a market for the people of Deniliquin and Moama? Yes, for the agriculturists of Deniliquin and Moama, and of Victoria near the Murray. The northern part of Riverina is a sheep-breeding country, and it could exchange its beef and mutton for the agricultural products of Victoria.

32. Mr. McMillan.] At what point towards Sydney would the diversion first begin? At Darlington

33. Chairman.] What would it cost per mile to construct the tramway? £2,300 per mile.

34. What would it cost the Government to make a road over this plain? Between £3,000 and £4,000 per mile, exclusive of maintenance.

35. Mr. McMillan.] What is the average cost of carriage on this road? From £2 to £3 a ton.

36. The average rate, according to clause 7, on the tramway would be £2 a ton; what saving per ton would that represent all the year round on the present cost? I would not venture to offer an opinion. The forwarding agents tell me that in good seasons it costs from £2 to £3 a ton to carry goods from Hay to Deniliquin, and that in seasons like the present it would be £10 a ton.

37. Chairman.] In a wet season it costs £10 a ton to go between Hay and Deniliquin? They say that it would cost that at the present time. I do not say that it would be that amount in all wet seasons.

38. What does it cost in droughts, when they have to buy feed all the way? From £2 to £3 a ton, according to the condition of the road.

39. In a drought? Probably it would cost a pound more a ton in a very dry season, when they had to buy feed all the way.

40. What does it cost in ordinary seasons, when there is plenty of grass? £2 a ton.

41. Mr. McMillan.] In clause 5 of the Bill you propose certain charges for the carriage of general goods and of live stock;—what basis have you to go upon for those charges? We fixed maximum rates, which would be a certain profit. We thought that competition would bring about minimum rates, which would still be profitable. We did not base our calculations on anything but a certainty.

42. Is it a fact that sheep and live stock will be the principal items of carriage? Yes.

43. Would it not be better to have a schedule of rates for the carriage of sheep and live stock than to adhere to the charges which are stated in clause 5? It would be fairer, I think. It was with no intention of taking advantage of the public that the large margin was made. It would be fairer, I think, to fix the maximum rate for sheep at a half-penny per mile.

44. Suppose Parliament reduces the amounts, should we not have some indication of the minimum amounts at which you would be prepared to carry sheep and live stock? I think that we would rather abandon the Bill than be forced to carry sheep at less than a half-penny a mile. We might be asked to carry sheep for 20 miles, and it would hardly pay us to carry them at that price.

45. Would it not be better to have this Bill revised by the promoters and thoroughly considered with regard to the absolute maximums than to go on with it in its present shape? Yes, it would be better to be explicit in these matters, I think.

46. Chairman.] Your idea is to get a profit out of this tramway? We hope to get a profit. We should not have spent so much money unless we had that expectation. It must be made some day, and the people want it now. The centres of population ought to be connected by the shortest and cheapest route. It would absorb surplus labour, increase the value of private property and public estate, promote the prosperity of the people, provide facilities for the exchange of live stock, for agricultural produce, save stock in time of drought, cost less than an ordinary road, exclusive of maintenance, and would be in consonance with the principles of free-trade.

47. If the Government were to undertake to construct this line, would you consent to abandon the Bill at once? The other day I said that I was authorized by everybody to abandon it; I spoke rather rashly at the time. On behalf of myself and three others, I now say that we are willing to lose what it has cost us and to abandon the Bill if the Government will undertake to make the line. We would do it cheerfully in the interests of the public. It would cost us some £300 or £400, probably, if the Government were to take over the matter now. The majority are willing to abandon the Bill. I would buy out anyone who objected to the adoption of this course in order that we might get a line in the interests of the public.

48. What proportion of the goods which come to Hay at the present time come from Melbourne and from Sydney? The trade of Hay is about £400,000 per annum. At least four-fifths of that trade is done with Melbourne, the other fifth is done with Sydney, and will be continued to be done whether this tramway is built or not. It is 280 miles from Hay to Melbourne, and 454 from Hay to Sydney, and we free-traders think that we ought not to be forced to travel over the longer distance. About 140,000 sheep and 10,000 head of cattle pass through Hay every year to Melbourne. They lose in weight travelling over the Old Man Plain, and we lose Victorian money to the extent of that loss in weight.

49. Are the promoters of this Bill making allowance for distance agreeable to base their schedule of charges on section 175 of the Deniliquin and Moama Railway Act, namely:—

For each passenger by the first-class of carriage, 4d.; by the second-class of carriage, 2½d.

For the carriage per truck per mile of horses, cattle, calves, and pigs, 6d.

For the carriage of sheep the whole distance, 4d. per head; carrying from ninety to a hundred, 8d. per truck per mile.

For the carriage of every dog, 1d. per mile; provided that the minimum charge for any dog shall be 1s.

For the carriage of wool for the whole distance, 3s. per bale.

For the carriage of general goods—

First-class, 5d. per ton per mile.

Second-class, 6d. per ton per mile.

Third-class, 7d. per ton per mile.

Fourth-class, 9d. per ton per mile?

Yes, it is quite satisfactory. Nothing could be fairer than that I think.

Thomas Robertson, Esq., Solicitor for the Bill, called in and examined:—

50. Chairman.] You are the Solicitor for the Bill? Yes; I produce a map of the proposed line, prepared by the public draftsman. [Produced.]

51. It runs through certain private property? Yes.

52. Is there any objection on the part of those landowners to sell the necessary land or give it to the Company for the purposes of this tramway? Most of them have expressed in writing their acquiescence in this Bill.

53. Have you any other information which you wish to give? I was one of the promoters, and also Solicitor of the Deniliquin and Moama Railway Bill. That railway supplied a want which was greatly felt by the people in that part of the Colony, without interfering in the slightest degree with the trade of Sydney. It is about 45 miles long, and cost £162,000 odd for the construction of the permanent way, stations, plant, and rolling stock included. For some years after it was opened it paid a dividend of 10 per cent. per annum, and for several years past the dividend has been 8 per cent. per annum. A reserve fund of over £10,000 has been created. The whole number of employees on the line at present, including the officers, is fifty-one, being an average of one and two-fifteenths to the mile. This tramway from Hay to Deniliquin can be constructed at as little expense, and can be worked as economically as the railway from Deniliquin to Moama. It would be a great boon, I believe, to the settlers in that part of the Colony in getting their stock to the Victorian market, and in getting flour from our own farmers about Moama and Deniliquin.

54. There is a great quantity of wheat grown there? Yes, a great deal. I know a merchant at Hay who has now a large contract for flour from Albury. Of course Deniliquin would have suited him better if there had been any possibility of getting the flour across the Old Man Plain. I frequently have travelled across this plain. The journey occupies about twelve hours, and is most fatiguing, because the road is so rough. At this time of the year it is a quagmire, and in the summer months it is a dusty desert, so that it would be an enormous advantage to travellers if a railway or tramway were constructed between the two places.

55. What about the gauge? We have only given a minimum gauge. The Bill provides that the Government may at any time direct the gauge to be whatever they please, and that we are to alter it in accordance with their wishes. I believe that the construction of this tramway would materially increase the passenger traffic—both ways—on the line from Junee to Hay.

56. There is no information in the Bill with regard to the Company who propose to construct this tramway? I went on the same lines as we adopted in the case of the Deniliquin and Moama railway; there was no Company in existence when that Bill was passed.

57. Mr. Black.] The Company was formed after the Bill was passed? Yes.

58. Mr. McMillan.] Should it not be provided that the line should be built in such a way that it may be joined at any time with the Government railway system? Yes.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON

THE MITTAGONG COAL-MINING COMPANY'S RAILWAY ACT AMENDMENT BILL.

FRIDAY, 3 JUNE, 1887.

Present:—

MR. CARRUTHERS,
MR. DAVIS,MR. F. FARNELL,
MR. McCOURT.

J. H. CARRUTHERS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Present:—Mr. A. J. Dodds, Solicitor for the Bill.

Alexander James Dodds, Esq., Solicitor for the Bill, called in, sworn, and examined:—

1. Chairman.] You are the solicitor for the Bill? I am.
2. Will you explain to the Committee the necessity for the Bill? I have been informed by the Chairman of the Directors, and I verily believe that the time was unsuitable for borrowing money to enable the company to carry out the work within the time required by the Act; that is why the work was not carried out.
3. Do you produce the Act that you seek to amend? Yes.
4. This preamble recites that the second section of the Act provides that the railway should be constructed and brought into use within two years of the passing of the same;—do you desire to have that time extended? Yes; for two years.
5. What is the reason? The reason is what I have stated, that the time was unfavourable for borrowing money. The company could not get the money at that time at a sufficiently cheap rate, and they think now that a more favourable time has arrived, and they wish to extend the period allowed by the Act for another two years.
6. You ask to get power to take certain land, the mention of which was omitted from section 1 of the principal Act? Those lands are mentioned in the schedule of the old Act, but not provided for in the clauses of the Act, I think through a misprint or something of that sort.
7. Have you had any objections from the owners of the land? No; the only parties that raised any objection to the last Bill were the Joadja Creek Company. We have sent them a copy of the Bill, and asked if they were going to make any objection, but we have not heard from them since.
8. Mr. McCourt.] Is this land referred to here the Joadja Creek land? No.
9. You ask to get power to carry 100 tons over the line during twelve working hours, instead of thirty-six? Yes.
10. Why do you wish to do that? 100 tons was the amount originally put in the Act, but it was reduced to thirty-six by the House.
11. Why do you propose to alter it now? I believe there was some opposition to making it 100, and rather than lose the opportunity of getting the Act passed the directors determined to reduce it to thirty-six.
12. If it was altered to 100 do you not think that would bar other companies from using the line? No, 100 is the amount in other similar Acts.

A. J. Dobbs,
Esq.

3 June, 1887.

- A. J. Dobbs, Esq. 13. But does it not prevent other people from using the line? No.
 14. Mr. F. Farnell.] You have reduced the price, have you not? Yes.
 3 June, 1887. 15. Mr. McCourt.] Is not this intended to block other companies? No; why should not we be able to carry the same amount as other companies?
 16. You want to increase it to 100 because that was in the original Bill? Yes; 100 tons is mentioned in the Act of the Joadja Creek Company.
 17. Chairman.] Is it necessary for the company to carry on its work with profit to have the power to carry 100 tons a day? The directors think so.
 18. It restricts the operations of the company having power to carry only 36 tons a day? Yes, I think so.
 19. You wish to alter the word  $\frac{1}{2}$ d. and make it  $1\frac{1}{2}$ d.? Yes; we are bound to carry for the Joadja Creek Company, and we only charge them  $\frac{1}{2}$ d., but if they carry for us they charge us  $1\frac{1}{2}$ d.
 20. Mr. F. Farnell.] What is the length of the line? I think about 3 or 4 miles.
 21. Do you think  $1\frac{1}{2}$ d. really a reasonable charge? I cannot answer that.
 22. Chairman.] With regard to the fourth clause, I may ask who has the power to use the railway for transit and to supply locomotive power besides yourselves? The public.

TUESDAY, 7 JUNE, 1887.

Present:—

MR. WADDELL, | MR. FARNELL.

J. H. CARRUTHERS, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

A. J. Dodds, Esq., appeared as Solicitor for the Bill.

John Stanworth Martin, Esq., called in, sworn, and examined:—

- J. S. Martin, Esq. 23. Mr. F. Farnell.] You are one of the parties interested in the construction of this line of railway, and a director of the Mittagong Coal-mining Company? Yes.
 7 June, 1887. 24. You have given evidence before a Select Committee previously? Yes; a Select Committee of the Legislative Council.
 25. The original Bill which you now seek to amend is the result of the deliberations of that Committee? No, it is not. Had it been the result of the deliberations of the Committee of the Upper House, we should not have required this Bill. In that Bill we had five years in which to complete the railway, and instead of  $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per mile 2d. was inserted.
 26. At the time of the passing of this Act did you think you and your co-directors would be able to comply with its provisions? Yes.
 27. Will you be good enough to state to the Committee some of the reasons why you have not complied with this Act? The reason is that the money market has been so tight since the passing of this Act, that we have not been able to advance the construction of the line; but things are easier now, and we think we can complete it in the time applied for.
 28. You ask for an extension of time to enable you to construct this railway, and which you think a necessary time to allow? Yes.
 29. Have you had any experience in connection with the construction of railways? A very great deal.
 30. Can you give the Committee any information as to the supervision of the construction of this line; or perhaps I might say, I suppose you will employ a thoroughly competent engineer to superintend the work of construction? A civil engineer would be appointed for the purpose.
 31. In fact the work will be carried out in a somewhat similar way to Government contracts? Exactly the same.
 32. I do not notice anything in this Bill which would show what gauge you intend to adopt. I presume it will be the same gauge as is adopted on the Government railways, namely 4 ft. 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  in.? Yes.
 33. Can you give the Committee any idea of the nature of the permanent-way materials you propose to use—by this I mean is it to be a light or more substantial line of railway? A substantial railway, equal in every respect to the Government railways, rails 70 lb. to the yard, sleepers, ballast, fastening, everything equal to the material used in the construction of the Government lines.
 34. Are you able to tell the Committee the kind of rolling stock that will be used on this line; I suppose it will be of that description which will be best adapted to the line? Yes. The Commissioner for Railways has stated to me that there will be no difficulty about the rolling stock if we construct a line equal to the Government line, and it will save us a deal of expenditure in the transferring of coal from one truck to another if we have the Government rolling stock upon the line.
 35. Do you know at what speed your engines will be able to travel with safety? 30 miles an hour. 60 miles an hour with perfect safety.
 36. Do you intend to regulate the speed at which the engines are to travel? It would be difficult to say. Engines travel at all speeds. The speed upon our line would be regulated in the same way as that upon the Government lines.
 37. Goods trains are not run at more than 15 or 20 miles an hour? I believe so.
 38. In that case there will be provision made so as to punish the driver if he exceeds the limit mentioned? Yes.
 39. How do you propose to maintain this railway—I suppose in the same manner as our public railways are kept? Precisely.
 40. You intend to give every facility to the public and those whose lands this line will pass through in order that they may have access to any road, &c.? Yes.
 41. You will make such provision that nothing detrimental will be done to the interests of anyone? Certainly.
 41. What is the estimated cost of this line? £14,000. No doubt however the amount will run into £16,000, to cover extra expenditure on sidings and so forth.
 42. Do you know about what length it will be? 4 miles 4 chains.
 43. You seek to have the words "thirty-six" omitted from the original Bill, and in lieu thereof to insert 100? Yes.

44. Can you explain to the Committee the reasons of your asking for this alteration? We consider that 100 tons will be quite little enough for anyone to pass over our line in 12 hours. We had it in the first Bill before the Select Committee in the Upper House as 100, and other coal-mines in their Acts have the same quantity. J. S. Martin,
Esq.
7 June, 1887.
45. It would appear that you intend to allow locomotive power and trucks to be used by persons other than yourself? Yes.
46. As a matter of fact it is quite possible no one else will be likely to use the line, except it be the Commissioner for Railways? There is no appearance to the contrary at present.
47. Such being the case you propose, in order to meet the working expenses, to charge 1½d. per ton per mile for the use of the line? Yes.
48. Do you consider that a fair and reasonable charge? I do.
49. I suppose the real traffic that will be on the line will consist of coal? Yes.
50. Do you know at what rate per ton per mile coal is carried on the public railways? It varies. I have a list of the charges here. The charge set down here on the Government rates for anything under 7 miles is 10d. per ton, so that the charge over our distance of 4 miles 4 chains would be 10d.
51. I think the rate for 50 miles is 1d. per ton per mile? Yes.
52. Under that the minimum is 1s. 6d. per ton? I think if you will refer to the rates you will find that under 7 miles the charge is 10d. per ton.
53. I observe that the pamphlet from which you are quoting was published in 1881, and I think it probable that the rates have been altered since that time? Perhaps so.
54. Your proposed rate is actually lower than the Government rates? Yes.
55. Are there any other private railways in the vicinity of where this proposed railway will run? The Joadga Creek trainway runs for 2 miles in the same direction. Their gauge is only 3 ft. 6 in., and their line is therefore no use to us whatever, our gauge being 4 ft. 8½ in.
56. Do you know the rate they are authorised to charge the public or the Commissioner for Railways for using the line? 2d. per ton per mile.
57. Do you know the length of the line just mentioned by you? Between 16 and 17 miles.
58. Supposing this Committee should not feel disposed to agree to the increased rate you desire to have inserted, and should reduce it by ½d., would that not strike you as being reasonable enough? It would be low; but I have no doubt the Company would take off the ½d. per ton if necessary.
59. There is a provision in this Bill to give you power to recover compensation for damage the line may sustain through the public, or the Commissioner for Railways using the line? Yes.
60. By "damage," what do you mean;—of what nature do you suppose it will be? Rolling stock might run off the line and put the rails out of position. The reason of the alteration of this clause is to ensure that repairs will be promptly made. Under the old Bill they could take any time—three or four days—to make repairs which it might perhaps be possible to get done in an hour. We inserted this to keep them up to the mark, and to prevent ourselves from being subjected to needless annoyance.
61. This fourth section is really copied from the Railway Act, and you are not desirous of going further than that provides? No.
62. On the completion of this line how do you intend to arrange for its proper and safe working; I presume that you will secure the services of men who have had practical experience on some other railway? Yes.
63. You say that this railway will be the means of giving you facilities to get your coal to market, and that consequent upon this the Government Railway receipts will be increased by the extra traffic this line will bring to it? Yes.
64. Have you any idea as to the quantity of coal or other produce that will be carried daily on this line for transmission on the Government Railways? From 200 to 300 tons a day.
65. You are perfectly sure this line is necessary, and you undertake to work it subject to the conditions embodied in the Bill? Yes.
66. There is one question I omitted to ask you, and there appears to be no provision in the Bill for it, namely, power being given to the Government to take over this railway on paying you fair and reasonable compensation. I suppose you would not object to such a provision being embodied in the Bill? No.
67. Mr. Dodds.] You are chairman of the directors of the Mittagong Coal-mining Company? I am.
68. Do you consider it necessary to get a further period of two years in which to construct this railway? Yes.
69. And you also consider that the other amendments now asked for are equally necessary? I do.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

NORTH SHORE BOROUGHS WHARVES BILL.

(PETITION AGAINST—T. E. CRESWELL AND H. H. ROBEY.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 29 June, 1887.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Legislative Assembly of the Colony of New South Wales, in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of Thomas Edgar Creswell and Harry Henry Robey, of St. Leonards, near Sydney, in the Colony of New South Wales, Captain and Secretary of the North Shore Rowing Club, on behalf of such Club,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH:—

1. That the Boroughs of North Willoughby, Victoria, St. Leonards, and East St. Leonards, have petitioned your Honorable House for, and obtained leave to bring in a private Bill, intituled, "The North Shore Boroughs Wharves Bill," and that such Bill has, by your Honorable House, been referred to a Select Committee of your Honorable House for inquiry and report.

2. That the North Shore Rowing Club has for the last eight years occupied a portion of Carcening Cove, at the foot of Willoughby-street, adjoining a small stone pier, also at the foot of such street.

3. That until January, 1886, the said Club were lessees from the Government of the site so occupied by them. A renewal of such lease was objected to by the Borough of East St. Leonards.

4. That the Borough of East St. Leonards applied for a lease of the same site, and your Petitioners lodged objections with the then Minister for Lands against the granting of such lease.

5. That the North Shore Rowing Club has gone to great expense in the erection of sheds and in the purchase of boats and gear, and that such club is of great public benefit so far as North Shore is concerned.

6. That in the event of the proposed Bill becoming law such club must be disbanded.

7. That there is ample room for the erection of a wharf or jetty alongside the North Shore Rowing Club's premises, although your Petitioners submit that a wharf or jetty is not required there, the present stone pier being quite sufficient for all purposes.

8. That your Petitioners will be seriously and injuriously affected and prejudiced by the acquisition of such powers by the promoters on the following grounds:—

(1.) That the erection of a wharf or jetty at the foot of Willoughby-street is unnecessary.

(2.) That it will involve the North Shore Rowing Club in great loss and expense—loss in the event of the club being disbanded, and expense in the event of such club being compelled to remove and re-erect their buildings and to purchase or lease a water frontage site on North Shore.

(3.) That even if your Honorable House should pass the preamble of the said Bill your Petitioners submit that they are entitled to have certain clauses inserted, and amendments and alterations made therein for the protection of the North Shore Rowing Club.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that they may be heard by their counsel or solicitor or in person before your Honorable House, or before the Select Committee in opposition to the said Bill and the provisions thereof, with liberty to adduce such evidence as they may be advised in opposition thereto or in support of this Petition.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

Dated this twenty-ninth day of June, 1887.

H. H. ROBEY.

NORTH SHORE BOROUGH'S WHARVES BILL.

(PETITION AGAINST—P. O. WILLIAMS AND ALFRED G. MILSON.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 29 June, 1887.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Legislative Assembly of the Colony of New South Wales in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of Prosper Orleans Williams and Alfred George Milson, of St. Leonards, near Sydney, in the Colony of New South Wales, Gentlemen, on behalf of themselves and other ratepayers of the Borough of St. Leonards,—

RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH:—

1. That the Boroughs of St. Leonards, East St. Leonards, Victoria, and North Willoughby have petitioned your Honorable House for, and obtained leave, to bring in a private Bill, intituled, "The North Shore Boroughs' Wharves Bill," and that such Bill has by your Honorable House been referred to a Select Committee of your Honorable House for inquiry and report.

2. That your Petitioners are ratepayers of the Borough of East St. Leonards.

3. That the said Bill proposes to give power to the promoters, amongst other things, to erect wharves, and to expend the rates received upon the erection of such wharves and upon their repair and maintenance.

4. That the erection of a wharf at the foot of Willoughby-street, East St. Leonards, is not necessary, and it is not expedient that the same should be erected and established, or that the Borough should have power to borrow money to erect the same, or to use the ratepayers' moneys for such purpose, or for the repair and maintenance of wharves or jetties.

5. That your Petitioners will be seriously and injuriously affected and prejudiced by the acquisition of such powers by the promoters on the following grounds:—

(1.) That the erection of such wharves or jetties is unnecessary.

(2.) That it will involve the ratepayers of the Borough in unnecessary expense.

(3.) That it is against the spirit of the Municipalities Act to allow the Borough Council to expend the rates outside the boundaries of the Borough.

(4.) That a wharf or jetty at the foot of Willoughby-street will be of no benefit whatever to the residents of the Borough of East St. Leonards.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that they may be heard by their counsel or solicitor, or in person before your Honorable House, or before the Select Committee, in opposition to the said Bill, and the provisions thereof, with liberty to adduce such evidence as they may be advised in opposition thereto, or in support of, this Petition.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

P. O. WILLIAMS.
ALFRED G. MILSON.

TAKEN BEFORE

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON

SAYWELL'S TRAMWAY ACT AMENDMENT BILL.

WEDNESDAY, 23 MARCH, 1887.

Present: —

MR. DAVIS,

MR. EWING.

MR. TOOHEY.

JOSEPH HECTOR CARRUTHERS, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Charles Joseph McDonald appeared as Solicitor in support of the Bill.

Mr. Thomas Saywell called in, sworn, and examined:—

1. Solicitor.] You produce the Act authorizing you to run this tramway, which you desire to amend? Yes. (Produced.)
2. Between what points does that tramway run? It runs from Rockdale Railway Station down Bay-street to Lady Robinson's Beach.
3. Have you constructed a loop in connection with that line? Yes.
4. Some doubt has arisen as to your legal right to construct that loop? Partly.
5. And that is one of the reasons why you are asking for this Bill? Yes.
6. You produce a plan showing the position of that loop? Yes. (Produced.) I want power to make one or two similar loops, in order that the trams may pass each other.
7. Mr. Ewing.] You find in the working of the tramway that you want crossing-places? Yes.
8. Will these crossing-places interfere with the value of the adjacent property? I do not think so. I want to establish loops where the up and down trams may pass one another.
9. Will these loops interfere with the traffic of the road. I do not think so.
10. Mr. Toohey.] Is there any condition in this Bill to extend the present terminus? I am not asking for power to extend the loop-line.
11. You do not claim a right under the Bill to extend the terminal point? No.
12. Chairman.] You are the Mr. Saywell who obtained the passage of the original Bill? Yes.
13. And you constructed a tramway from Rockdale Station to Lady Robinson's Beach? Yes.
14. And you also constructed a siding near Rockdale Station to work your tram-line? Yes.
15. Is that siding necessary in order to carry on your traffic safely and economically? Yes.
16. It has never been legalised yet? Never.
17. You constructed it because you thought you had the right? I constructed it because I knew that I should require it. I did imagine at the time that I had this legal right.
18. You have since found out that you had not the power, and you want Parliament to legalise the piece which you constructed in error? Yes.
19. Mr. Toohey.] Are we to understand that the present loop-line is included in the expression "or other loop-lines"? No.

Mr. T.
Saywell.

23 Mar., 1887.

- Mr. T. Saywell.
23 Mar., 1887.
20. You propose the construction of some other loop-lines? Yes; about midway.
21. Chairman.] There are no other sidings already made? No.
22. Have you any plan to show where you propose to put the loop-lines and sidings? No; I do not think that there would have been any objection if I had applied in the first instance for power to construct a duplicate line.
23. Mr. Ewing.] Will two loop-lines be enough for your purpose? I shall be satisfied if you grant me two besides the one in existence which is not more than 100 feet long.
24. Mr. Davis.] What length would you like these two loop-lines to be? I have got four cars built; each car is about 40 feet long, and the engine is about 40 feet long; therefore I should think that I shall require loops not much less than 400 feet in length. I shall have to extend the present loop.
25. Mr. Toohay.] You will not require to do anything to that loop except to extend it? No.
26. Solicitor.] Will it be more convenient for the public to have these loop-lines so that the trams may run very frequently? Yes. I experienced great difficulties in working the traffic on holidays. Great numbers of people have to wait for the return of the tram. I have to run the cars before the engine and if an accident were to happen I suppose I should get into hot water.
27. Mr. Ewing.] The Borough Council approves of this Bill? Yes.
28. Chairman.] What is the width of the tram-road? It is 66 feet all through.
29. Has anybody objected to the Bill? No.
30. Have you given notice to the Municipal Council of your intention to ask for these powers? I have their consent. They are quite agreeable to the Bill.
31. Is there any property that these loop-lines may injure in any way? No.
32. Do you propose to alter the levels of the road? No; the principal Act regulates the levels of the road. My reason for asking for a second loop in Bay-street is this. I expect to run my line down to the terminus by allowing the carriages to run down the same as they do at Bridge-street, in Sydney.
33. Mr. Toohay.] Have you not any room at the terminus to shunt? No.
34. Chairman.] You produce a copy of the original Act? Yes. (Produced.)
35. And you also produce copies of the notices you have inserted in the different papers. Yes. (Produced.)

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON

THE WEST WALLSEND AND MONK-WEARMOUTH ACT
AMENDMENT BILL.

THURSDAY, 16 JUNE, 1887.

Present:—

MR. DAY,
MR. J. S. FARNELL,MR. STEPHEN,
MR. H. TAYLOR.

JAMES SQUIRE FARNELL, ESQ., IN THE CHAIR.

Henry John Withers, Esq., called in and examined:—

1. Chairman.] What position do you occupy in connection with this matter? I am a director of the West Wallsend Coal Company and a large shareholder in the Monk-Wearmouth Company, and I am authorized by the directors of both companies to appear here on their behalf.
2. It is necessary first to prove the preamble of the Bill;—will you state the facts to the Committee? The West Wallsend and Monk-Wearmouth Railway Act of 1886 was assented to on the 22nd August, and authorized us to take land from Messrs. Notley, Price, Griffiths, Morgan, and Price, and the Newcastle-Wallsend Coal Company, for the purpose of constructing a railway to join with the Sydney and Waratah line, about 92 miles from Homebush. After that Act was passed it was found that the line would be a very expensive one, with cuttings of over 40 feet in depth, and a new route was proposed, which was level from the start to the finish.
3. Do you produce a plan of the proposed deviation? Yes. (Plan produced.) The new route joins the Government line further away from Newcastle, but by its adoption a saving to the coal companies concerned of £8,000 or £9,000 will be effected.
4. Mr. Day.] Is there any objection to the proposed alteration in the route? None whatever.
5. Mr. Stephen.] Are the parties through whose land the proposed line will run willing that it shall run through their land? Yes, every one of them; the people are all agreeable, and are rather glad that the line is to be taken round that way.
6. Mr. Day.] You say that the new line will cost £9,000 less than the old one? Yes, at the very least.
7. Is it longer than the old one? No, about the same, within a few chains.
8. What is the greatest distance between the two lines at any one point? About 3 miles. If the line had been constructed according to the old route the cost of traction would have been 1s., while on the proposed line it will be 13d., so that the Government will reap a benefit from this change.
9. Have both the companies concerned, the West Wallsend and Monk Wearmouth, held meetings and agreed to this new route? Yes.
10. And they have both authorised you to appear here on their behalf to prove the preamble of the Bill? Yes.
11. And you consider from your knowledge that the proposed deviation will be of great benefit to both companies? Yes, I am certain that it will.
12. Will it enable them to deliver coal more cheaply? I do not know that it will do that; but it will save them a great deal of money in the cost of construction.
13. If they have to pay interest on £9,000 less, will that not enable them to deliver coal more cheaply? Well it is a matter of calculation, because we shall have to pay the Government a penny more by the proposed new line than by the one formerly authorised.

H. J.
Withers, Esq.
16 June, 1887

- H. J. Withers, Esq.
16 June, 1887.
14. Will the new line pass through more Crown lands than alienated lands? No, it will only pass through Crown lands when it crosses the roads.
15. In crossing these roads what provision is made for the public traffic? Gates will be constructed, as provided for under the original Act.
16. Chairman.] This amendment Act will be read in connection with the original Act, and will form part of it? Yes.
17. And the only substantial amendment is the deviation described on the plan? Yes.
18. Mr. Day.] After leaving the Wallsend Company's works, the first road crossed by the new line is about 30 chains from the Wallsend pit, is it not? Yes.
19. Would the original line have crossed that road? Yes.
20. Is there much traffic on the road? None whatever. No one would find the road; it is all bush.
21. According to the plan the next road to be crossed is a short distance further on;—was that crossed by the original route? No.
22. Is there much traffic on that road? Very little; indeed it is almost impassable higher up.
23. The next road is about  $2\frac{1}{2}$  miles from the Wallsend pit? Yes.
24. Was that crossed by the original route? No.
25. Is there much traffic on the road? None whatever; in fact it is fenced across.
26. Has any objection been offered by any of the inhabitants to the crossing of any of these roads? None whatever.
27. Then from this last road to the junction no other roads are crossed? Yes; the line will cross another road nearly 3 miles from the Wallsend pit.
28. Was it proposed to cross that road by the original route? Yes, but at a point a long way distant.
29. Is there much traffic on that road? No, not a great deal; we should be obliged to keep a man there to open the gates.
30. Those are all the roads the new line will cross? Yes.
31. Mr. Stephen.] Are the crossings level? Yes.
32. As far as you know no objection whatever has been made by anyone to the proposed deviation of this line? None whatever.
33. Chairman.] Have you given the usual notice in the Government Gazette and in the newspapers circulated in the district relative to the introduction of this Bill? Yes.
34. I suppose that, as a matter of fact, the roads to which you have referred, with the exception of the Newcastle road, are small tracks, or what are called occupation roads? That is all.
35. Wherever there is any traffic on the road, and it is necessary to have a gate and to place a person in charge, is it the intention of the Company to take this step? Yes.
36. Are they not compelled to do so under the original Act? Yes.
37. By whom was the petition in favour of this Bill signed? By Mr. David Wilson, Chairman of the West Wallsend Coal-mining Company, and Mr. Andrew J. Seavers, Chairman of the Monk-Wearmouth Coal Company.

Walter Andrew Harper, Esq., called in and examined:—

- W.A. Harper, Esq.
16 June, 1887.
38. Chairman.] What are you? A civil engineer.
39. Are you engineer for the proposed railway? Yes.
40. Mr. Day.] Are you engineer for both companies? I was only appointed by one, but I am acting for both, as they are both concerned in the construction of the line.
41. You are the engineer employed in connection with the construction of this line? Yes.
42. Did you make the plan of deviation produced by Mr. Withers? Yes.
43. Have you made a survey of the line? Yes.
44. You observe on the plan a line of railway marked out;—will you vouch for the correctness of the line so delineated? Yes.
45. It crosses several roads;—what is the character of those roads with the exception of the main Newcastle road? The first one crossed after leaving the Wallsend pit is not used at all. It is about 30 chains from the pit. It is not cleared, and is simply a road used by the company for their own purposes. The next road, a short distance further on, the traffic on which is very small, and is confined chiefly to the Wallsend Company, is not used by the public. The next road crossed is about  $2\frac{1}{2}$  miles from the pit. There is not much traffic on that road; it is not cleared, and is fenced across at the north-east end. It is used by the public, who come down the valley sometimes, but not very often.
46. Is it proposed to have a gate on that road? I think not. There is scarcely any traffic upon it—perhaps one cart a day.
47. Will the deviation, as far as it affects the traffic of this one cart a day, make much difference to the inhabitants? No.
48. Mr. Stephen.] Will they be able to cross the road there after the line is constructed? Yes. The line will almost be on a level with the road. There will, perhaps, be a difference of 2 feet; but a crossing will be made on either side.
49. The most important road is the main one from Newcastle;—what distance is that from the Wallsend shaft?  $2\frac{1}{2}$  miles.
50. Is there much traffic on that road? Yes, a good deal; I should think about one cart every two hours.
51. What provision is intended to be made in regard to that road? It is proposed to erect a gate and have a gatekeeper there.
52. Are there any other roads between that road and the junction with the Government railway line? No; the land intervening is all one estate, belonging to Mr. Black.
53. Did you survey the line from start to finish? Yes.
54. Had you any conversations with the owners of the land, and did any of them object? None of them objected. I think they are all agreeable to the construction of the line, which will in fact be a great benefit to them.
55. Chairman.] Did you lay out the line originally proposed? No.
56. I suppose you know where it was to be taken? I think the terminus was about three-quarters of a mile distant from the proposed line.

57. Is it your opinion that the new route will be superior and more economical to the Company? There is no comparison between the two. The route of the new line is comparatively level—the whole way there is scarcely a cutting in it; it follows the creek the whole way up.

58. Does it join with the Government line at the same point as the line originally proposed? No, I think not.

59. What is the distance between the two points? I am not very clear where the old line was, because there were two.

60. I mean under the Act of 1886? I think it is about a mile away.

61. Has the Commissioner for Railways been consulted with regard to the proposed new junction? No. I do not think so.

62. Do you think he can have any objection? I am sure he cannot; I took special precautions in that way. There will be no difference about the points in any way, as everything will be furnished in accordance with the Railway regulations.

63. I suppose you have read the Bill now before the Committee? No. I have not; I saw a description of the route.

64. I suppose you prepared the schedule of the Bill? I made a description of the line.

65. Mr. Day.] Do you think it necessary for the Committee to obtain information from the Railway Department as to whether, in their opinion, the proposed junction is a proper one? No; I do not think it will be necessary. I am sure there will be no difficulty in that respect, because the Railway Department will lay that portion of the line themselves, so that it is compulsory upon us to do everything that is necessary for the proper junction of the two lines.

66. Then with regard to the points and things of that kind, the proposed junction will correspond as nearly as possible with the junction under the old Act? Yes; it will be just the same in every way.

67. And the Railway Department will have the power to see that the points are right? The Government will lay down that portion themselves, until we get clear of their line; therefore that is a guarantee that everything will be properly done.

68. Then the Commissioner for Railways will have power to see that the junction with the Government line is properly effected? Yes.

69. And you cannot join on to the Government railway without the sanction of the Department? No.

70. And without conforming to their regulations? No.

W. A. Harper,
Esq.

(PETITION IN FAVOUR OF—RESIDENTS OF WILLIAM-STREET.)

Received by the Legislative Assembly, 26 April, 1887.

To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly, in Parliament assembled.

The Petition of the undersigned residents and persons interested in property in William-street,
Woolloomooloo,—

HUMBLY SHOWETH :—

That your Petitioners are aware that a Bill asking leave for the construction and maintenance of a Tramway to be propelled by electric force now awaits the consideration of your Honorable House.

That your Petitioners hail with delight so important a transit development as the provisions of the Bill referred to affords.

That your Petitioners are residents of a suburb to which said means of travelling will be a valuable boon.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that the provisions of the William-street Tramway Bill may receive favourable consideration at the hands of your Honorable House.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.
NEW SOUTH WALES.

MINUTES OF EVIDENCE

TAKEN BEFORE

THE SELECT COMMITTEE

ON THE

WILLOUGHBY AND GORDON TRAMWAY BILL.

TUESDAY, 31 MAY, 1887.

Present:—

MR. LYNE,		MR. LAKEMAN,
MR. FRANK FARNELL,		MR. DALTON.

WILLIAM JOHN LYNE, Esq., IN THE CHAIR.

Mr. Andrew Armstrong called in, sworn, and examined:—

1. Chairman.] Is there any opposition to this Bill? None whatever.
2. Have you obtained the sanction of the Borough Councils through which your tramway will pass? Yes, I hand in two letters from the Councils of North Willoughby and St. Leonards agreeing to our proposal. [See Appendix A.]
3. Those are the only municipalities interested? Yes.
4. The present Bill is precisely similar to the one passed by a former Select Committee? Yes, it is as amended by them.
5. Are the owners of the private lands through which this line passes in favour of this Bill? Yes; I produce a plan which shows the ownership of the land, and I hand in letters from Mr. Harnett, and from the Executor of the late Sir Alexander Stuart, approving of our action. [See Appendix B.] The owners of the land are Michael M'Mahon, J. A. Brown (one of the parties to this Bill), Richard Harnett, T. T. Forsyth, and the Executors of the late Sir Alexander Stuart.
6. Are any other private lands traversed by this Bill? No.
7. Mr. Lakeman.] Have you the consent of all the owners above referred to? Yes, all of them.
8. Chairman.] Is the plan now produced the same as that produced before the previous Committee? Yes, it is the identical plan.
9. You are one of the petitioners for this Bill? I am.
10. What is about the length of the proposed tramway? The exact length is 3 miles and 16 chains.
11. Is the terminus within the Borough of North Willoughby? No, it is beyond the boundary of North Willoughby. It is at the northern boundary of a Government reserve within the parish of Gordon.
12. What is the estimated cost of the line? The cost of an electric tramway which we propose to construct is £20,000.
13. Will that include the bridge? No, that is exclusive of the bridge, which will probably cost £5,000 more; that is being arranged for by private subscription.
14. You propose to raise the capital by means of a Company? Yes; a Company, consisting principally of the land-owners, who will be benefited by the line.
15. They have subscribed to the extent you have mentioned? Not yet, but they have pledged themselves to do so after the passing of the Bill.
16. They have undertaken to find the capital to carry out the work? Yes.

Mr. Andrew Armstrong.
31 May, 1887.

APPENDIX.

[To Evidence of Andrew Armstrong.]

A.

The Acting Mayor, North Willoughby, to Mr. A. Armstrong.

Sir, Borough of North Willoughby, 21 March, 1887.
 In answer to your letter of date, 11th instant, re Willoughby and Gordon Tramway Bill, and asking this Council's sanction to the Bill to be introduced during the present Session of Parliament,—I have the honor to inform you that the following resolution was this day passed by this Council, with reference to the same:—
 "That this Council give its sanction to the construction and maintenance of the proposed Willoughby and Gordon Tramway, as described by notice of same duly advertised; and that the Mayor be authorized to sign and seal with the corporate seal of the borough a letter to Mr. Andrew Armstrong, containing the Council's assent."
 I have, &c.,
 HOWARD FLEMING,
 Acting Mayor.

Sir, Borough of St. Leonards, Council Chambers, 5 April, 1887.
 In answer to your letter of , requesting the sanction of this Council to a deviation in route of the Willoughby and Gordon Tramway, I have the honor to inform you that the following resolution was this day passed, with reference thereto:—
 "That the Council approve of the deviation in route of proposed tramway to Long Bay, Willoughby, and Gordon Tramway, and sanction the line as set forth in the amended Bill."
 I have, &c.,
 BENJAMIN JENKINS,
 Mayor.

*Sealed with the common seal of the Council this 5th day of April.

(L.S.) W. BARNETT SMITH,
Council Clerk.

B.

R. Harnett, Jun., to Mr. A. Armstrong.

Dear Sir, Sydney, 31 May, 1887.
 I shall be very pleased to see the proposed tramway running, and will do all in my power to forward the matter for the benefit of the residents of Gordon and Willoughby, &c.
 Yours, &c.,
 R. HARNETT, JUN.

Mr. W. E. Wilson to Mr. A. Armstrong.

Dear Sir, Sydney, 31 May, 1887.
 I have seen Mr. Robison, executor of Sir A. Stuart, and he sees no objection to the tramway passing through Palmer and (or) Illidge's 10-acre blocks; in fact he knows it ought to improve the property considerably. You will therefore be able to give the same evidence before the Parliamentary Committee as you did on the former occasion.
 Yours, &c.,
 WM. ED. WILSON.
