And in the exercise of that right, the Crown, by its officers and servants, may enter any land and take such measures as may be thought fit or as may be prescribed for the conservation and supply of such water as aforesaid and its more equal distribution and beneficial use and its protection from pollution, and for preventing the unauthorised obstruction of rivers. For the purposes of this subsection "occupier" includes the Crown. ~~Whenever the occupier of any land has before the passing of~~ this Act conserved and enjoyed the use, free of charge or hindrance, of a supply of water, whether permanent or intermittent, such occupier shall be entitled to the use of such supply of water: Provided that nothing herein contained shall be deemed to sanction any work which diverts or impounds the water of any river or lake to the detriment of any person or persons having interests in such river or lake or the waters therein.

(II) The said right shall be subject to the following restrictions:— Restrictions to right of Crown.

(a) It shall not be exercised in contravention of any right conferred on and lawfully exercisable by any person, company, corporation, or board by or under the authority of any Act dealing with mining, or of any public or private statute or of any license granted by the Crown.
