MANAGEMENT OF SHARKS IN NEW SOUTH WALES WATERS

Organisation: Humans against Dolphin Captivity and Slaughter

Date Received: 22/09/2015

Hello. I live in Victoria and will soon move to southern New South Wales. Tourism is a valuable resource, however, to cull sharks from their own habitat in a time when millions of sharks are slaughtered for their fins, is despicable. Humans have a plethora of entertainment at their fingertips and do NOT need to swim in waters that house sharks, crocks or any other living creature. Humans have infiltrated too many spaces and good eco tourism will work WITH these creatures rather than against them. Get your business people working on clever ways to keep our sharks and use them to our advantage.
