

Executive and Branches

The NSW Apiarists' Association is run by an Executive Council of five, who are elected at the Annual Conference. In addition, we engage a part-time Secretary/Treasurer.

The Association has Branches throughout the state, and many of these run individual events and meetings in their regions.

Most Association members are also members of their local Branch.

New South Wales Apiarists' Association

The peak industry body representing commercial beekeeping interests in NSW, Australia's largest beekeeping state

www.nswaa.com.au

Who are we?

The New South Wales Apiculturists' Association Inc. (NSWAA) is the state peak body for commercial beekeepers.

Honey bees are essential not just for the production of honey and other hive products, but also for pollination of the numerous food crops that feed us and our livestock – bees are the cornerstone of Australian agriculture.

Our Association plays a crucial role in ensuring that we have a viable and sustainable beekeeping industry in NSW, and any beekeeper can become a member.

What do we do?

Government and community liaison - the NSWAA Executive Council represents its members in liaison with government, media and the general community.

There are many problems faced by commercial beekeepers in NSW. Of particular importance to our members is secure access to floral resources and biosecurity.

We are in regular contact with the various public land managers, to develop a state-based beekeeping policy. This is essential so that our members can plan and maintain their businesses and ensure healthy honey bee populations.

Promotion and Publicity

The NSWAA holds an Annual Conference and Trade Show. This industry event features prominent international and Australian speakers, as well as opportunities for beekeepers to network, learn about beekeeping products and socialise.

For two weeks each year we also run 'Honeyland' at the Sydney Royal Easter Show. This provides an opportunity for us to promote honey and related products to the public, and to raise awareness of the importance of beekeeping in NSW.
