Partially Confidential

Good day to you !

I am a firm believer that marriage can only be between a man and a woman; the primary reason for this is that it is not possible due to the same type of genitals for same sex couples to have a sexual union that represents a physical confirmation which is a crucial part of the of a covenant relationship of marriage.

This means that same sex couples can only have a legal relationship not a covenant relationship such as marriage.

Additionally the significant confusions and blurring of guidelines for children will only be damaging additionally the significant cost to government in terms of law and legislation and other changes will be significant and significantly more complex in the long run.

Additionally making this change will mean the change should also be made for those who want to marry multiple partners or marry unconventional items such as animals and objects.

This is a subject close to my heart the real meaning of marriage is covenant union spiritually AND physically.

I hope this makes my point of view clear, and you will take this into consideration in your decisions.

Yours sincerely
