Re: Same sex marriage

To think that same sex marriage is normal is completely illogical. If nature intended for there to be same sex relationships, then we would have sexual organs that allowed us to have sexual intercourse with both a man and a woman, and same-sex couples would also be able to procreate. As nature has not allowed this, then it obviously is not what nature intended, and therefore it is simply an unnatural lifestyle.

In addition, if it were natural then instinctively we would all have a natural attraction to both sexes and could naturally fall in love with either sex. However this is not the case and you may find that homosexual relationships are actually stemmed from poor parenting, sexual abuse, rape and other circumstances that can cause "mental illness". Hormone imbalances are also a factor. I also, find it interesting that gay men ACT like women and are attracted to men, vice versa. Doesn't this naturally suggest female/male relationship? Any woman that is a lesbian yet acts feminine I am sure you will find they were previously straight, and have been sexually assaulted/raped, and it was this that caused them to "jumped the fence" - (Reference to: Discussions I have had with gay women)

Marriage recognises the committed union of a man and a woman - who can conceive and give birth by uniting physically (the natural way to breed) - to create a family; to encourage the stable social context needed, resulting children to be raised to responsible adulthood - this is not going to be the case with same-sex couples.

We all know mothers and fathers parent differently, and children need both approaches in order to develop a balanced identity and lifestyle. To take this away from a child will cause instability in their up-bringing. This is why marriage should remain a union of a man and a woman.

To put it simply.. Same-Sex marriage is just wrong!
