I believe in retaining the constitution of marriage to 1 man and 1 woman. In the natural way of things children cannot be born any other way. Marriage in the dictionary is defined as a ceremony by which a man and a woman become husband and wife. If the definition of marriage is changed then what constitutes a family in Australia will be changed. There is the real danger that people that believe in marriage as it is will end up being discriminated against. Also the church in Australia would perhaps be put in an illegal position of having to refuse same sex marriage. Also we do not want multiply wives etc. Please stick with what God says. He knows best. Same sex partners are not discriminated against in Australia let's not make others discriminated against either.
