Dear Sir/Madam, I have been working in the Community Sector for over 17 years.

Never have I been so amazed and shocked about a simple thing such as Workers entitlements, being accosted by the NSW Government.

Workers compensation is a workers right if an injury should occur.

Families should never have to worry about compensation for pain and suffering caused to a Family member as a result of a workplace injury.

What right does a State Government have in taking simple compensation away from Workers employed in any Workplace, much less those employed in the Caring Industry?
