THE TRANSPORT NEEDS OF SYDNEY'S NORTH-WEST SECTOR

I find that the transport system for North-West Sydney is nowhere near up to par. Many a time I have been left waiting well past the scheduled arrival time for the bus, only to stand all the way to the city. I find I have to get up a lot earlier than I should to travel into the city, and I find myself wanting to seek employment around the Hills vicinity so that I do not have to deal with the transport system. The train is a lot more efficient, however there is no train station near me, and I would have to get up even earlier to fight the traffic to get there. I feel like Cherrybrook is stuck in a rut in terms of its' transportation system. It is even hard to get a bus to Castle Hill, and it is only 10 minutes away! I am hoping for an improvement in transport as time goes on, and I hope that by the time I have children and raise them in the Hills area, that they will be able to hop onto a reliable bus service and not feel let down, as I do.
