

INQUIRY INTO SAME SEX MARRIAGE LAW IN NSW

Name: Mr Eric Jellett

Date received: 15/02/2013

The English language is not a relative concept which can be twisted to suit the ideology of the day. An adjustment to the definition of marriage made by the state does not change the true meaning the word. The state simply cannot rewrite the history of language, words derive meaning from the history of those words, not the state legislatures. History will not be kind to the governments which have arrogantly presumed that the language is theirs to change. Additionally, homosexual behaviour is objectively selfish and depraved, opposite of marriage.
