I am a 12 year old home-school student. I think home schooling is great because you have the flexibility you can't have with school. In my usual week we take half of Thursday off school to spend that time with other home school kids. In home schooling we can get done in half a day what the normal school kid would struggle to get done in a whole day. Because we can get done with school early it is more fun because we get the afternoon off. It also gives us time to do things like ballet dancing, karate, and music lessons. These are things other kids could do too, but home school parents don't have to rush from this to that every afternoon, we can change our schedule to suit. Home schooling is also good because you can't have bullies because everyone in your school is your sibling. I think it would be amazing if the government would make it easier for my Mum
