THE TRANSPORT NEEDS OF SYDNEY'S NORTH-WEST SECTOR

Name: Mrs Bev Jordan

Date received: 15/10/2008

The Hills area is in desperate need of good, fast public transport. There are too many cars on the road. There are not enough buses and no trains. This lack of transport options mean that many houses have three or four cars because older children are still living at home. The huge proportion of car ownerships means that our roads are just clogged, particularly the M2, and air pollution is not great. It is also very expensive. This is the most expensive area to live when it comes to travel. I drive to Seven Hills to catch a train and when I drive to the city (not my first choice) I pass queues of bus commuters waiting for buses that are full when they arrive.
