INQUIRY INTO HOME SCHOOLING

Name: Name suppressed

Partially Confidential

I know several families who homeschool their children and I am thoroughly impressed with the outcome of all. If I had the time to invest in this way, I would have loved to have homeschooled. The children are all well adjusted, polite, diverse in their knowledge, able to mix with adults and kids and are at the same or higher level academically than those attending regular schools. In addition these kids seem to have more life skills as they are spending more time with their parents and in the home.. They get through their school work faster allowing time for extra activities that expand them in areas such as music, food, language, sport etc. I would hate to see the opportunity for this sort of education taken away from those who are willing to commit to ensuring their kids are educated in a way that can be tailored to suit them and bring out their best.
