Our constitution defines us as a nation "under God". The Bible, God's word to those who are 'under' him, makes clear that same-sex sexual activity is sinful. It is clear that those whose sexual preference is other than what is acceptable to God, must forego sexual relationships or must make the best of that which is acceptable. If this appears unfair or even unjust, those affected should ask themselves: 'Would I exchange my affliction for blindness, or deafness, or physical deformity, or mental retardation?' Many who have these greater afflictions 'carry their crosses' with God's help, and remain as obedient to Him as their faith allows.

Church and State are rightly kept separate. Nevertheless, the Church must guide the secular state in Godly ways. Those who rebel against God's will for his creation, do so to their eternal cost.
