

Submission
No 95

INQUIRY INTO HOME SCHOOLING

Name: Name suppressed

Date received: 4/08/2014

Partially Confidential

Parents have the right to choose the education they want for their children. The State cannot dictate what parents must believe about education or tell them what will be best for those children. It is entirely possible for parents to educate their children without any state intervention and they are only motivated by what is best for the children. Who else knows the children better than the parents. Also State education is never going to keep up with this rapidly changing world.