Please keep the institution of marriage restricted to the current understanding of it being a relationship between a man and woman. This is necessary for all of society but particularly children. Some people may argue that children need the stability of married parents regardless of their gender. I would say that they need stability of societal values too. Sure marriages may fail and bring negative consequences to children, but this is not by intent. Bringing children up in homosexual marriages starts with a relationship that is unhealthy from the beginning, and introducing children brings negative consequences that are known from the outset.
