Dear Committee,

Thank you for the opportunity to make a submission on this important legislation. My partner and I have been in a loving relationship since 2001. To us, the right to marry is fundamentally intertwined with our right as a family (we have one daughter) to be accepted as equals in our society. We believe the same holds true for other same-sex couples, regardless of whether they have children or not. The institution of marriage remains an important element on which society is structured. Broadening that right to same-sex couples will only serve to strengthen its roots.

Yours sincerely,
