I am a mother of 3 girls. I am a wife. And that fact that my partner is a man is not important. Its that I love him. We often talk with my girls about the day they may get married, and it is never a discussion about the "man" of their dreams. It is always a discussion about their life partner, boy or girl.

My biggest hope is that my girls can grow up without fear of loving whomever it is that they choose. And I hope that I can share in a celebration of that love via their wedding day, boy or girl.

I know in my heart that Australia will one day allow Same Sex Marriage because we are that kind of country. The country that believes in equality. I just hope that it will be sooner rather then later.
