On one hand the NSW and central labor government are distributing billions of dollars to car companies and to the general public in order to keep people spending money and to save jobs in Private sector. On the other hand the same governments are trying to cut jobs in different public services and to sell public organizations like prisons to private hands. Private prisons in whole of Australia are unsuccessful and are returning back to public hands. They are working successfully in NSW so why privatise them? After a few years when the state government will think of bringing them back to public, most of the politicians would have changed. Many prison officers family life would have been disturbed and no politician or bureaucrat will take responsibility for these actions. The money spent to try this experiment would be in many millions just to try to save a few millions.
