The term 'marriage' historically has always described a binding relationship between a man and woman who create a new family unit and hence an ongoing generation. No matter how much gay people jump up and down and protest it is inappropriate to redefine marriage as it has stood for thousands of years just to appease a small minority group. Gay couples enjoy the same legal rights and privileges as married couples so they are not being discriminated against. Deb O'Neill federal member for Robertson estimates that 78% of her constituents oppose the concept 'same sex marriage'. To label both heterosexual and homosexual partnerships as marriage will create confusion and undermine the traditional family unit. Let the Homosexual community come up with their own definition rather than hijack the word Marriage and all it stands for.
