in every walks of life there is dishonesty..however ..I represent myself in saying...I would never hurt one of my dogs.....I also would never consider the use of any drugs as most trainers I know feel the sameyou cannot brand the odd individual and tarnish so many dedicated trainers.who love there animals...the greyhound control board have shown their feelings by increasing swabs on winners..this appears to be very successful and most trainers are very happy to remove any cheats from the sport....remember the good outways the few bad individuals that will be found and removed..i believe the sport is in reasonable shape..however I believe there should be a mediator between trainers and the greyhound control board....this would benefit both parties and I believe help the industry as a whole....
