Marriage between a man and woman is an act which provides the security that that couple need in order to raise their children in a stable relationship.

Same sex marriage would degrade the act of marriage even further than it has already been degraded, thus reducing society's ability to raise secure and well adjusted children.

Same sex couples have all the legal rights that opposite sex couples have. For what reason would government legislate to change the meaning of marriage. Wouldn't such a change undermine the rights of all those who wish to retain the meaning of marriage as it is and has been for thousands of years.
