Dear Robyn

In my last letter re the management of NSW Ambulances I omitted the following

In relation to complaints telephoned to that particular section there is no feed back either by telephone or in person.

I had reason to complain re an officer at who was extremely rude to me and was completely wrong in his accusations to me. I telephoned and was assured that someone would contact me personally in regard to this matter, but of course no one did. Eventually after upsetting patients and staff he was I believe he was dismissed from the service.

Also although it will be dismissed as political remember how many calls I made in relation to and his use of the Ambulance Service to back his political career?

Sincerely
