INQUIRY INTO THE BUILDING THE EDUCATION REVOLUTION PROGRAM

With reference to Ungarie Central School's BER Project, I am both disappointed and embarrassed that government in the country that I live can roll out a program, which is pathetically impractical.

Thankfully in Ungarie's case we still have a chance to see value for value as the project has yet to commence.

The school community and community in general (because that is who will be paying for these projects in the long run) have not been consulted on the BER. With community input the one million dollar budget will be used to it's true value and put towards a project that is needed.

The project proposed and the funding provided is a joke and no business would survive if they were to pay such inflated prices for so little return.

Consult the community and have the current building plans scrapped.

Yours Faithfully

Malcolm Williams
