INQUIRY INTO MANAGEMENT OF PUBLIC LAND IN NEW SOUTH WALES

Name: Mr John Chmurycz

Date received: 27/07/2012

Dear sir

National parks were introduced to have native land free from use by farmers and glaziers and miners, it was always meant to be used by the public for a variety of uses. In resent years we have seen a lock down and lock out mentality which has seen an increase in feral animal numbers, the recent decision to allow recreational hunters is a good one and the number of parks available to recreational hunters needs to be increased.

I would also like to see horse riding in certain parts of the National parks to be allowed there are horse riding groups that take handicapped children horse riding that would be lovely to see the smile on a young persons face riding thru a park and see native animals.
