Marriage is known all around the world since the existence of civilisation that marriage is between a man and a woman. that is the only formation that has produced and continues to produce children. Marriage is not between any others than one woman and one man. Any other union is not marriage. the definition of marriage must not change, just like the definition of any other word does not change. if others want to be together and live their lives together they can but what they have should never be considered a marriage because it simply is not. No other union works the same way marriage does. Not polygamy, not extended families through separation, not anything other than one man and one woman faithful to each other to produce children the way nature ordained it.
