

INQUIRY INTO SAME SEX MARRIAGE LAW IN NSW

Name: Mr Jayden Mooy

Date received: 30/01/2013

I think that marriage should be separated from state laws, as it should have no legal grounds in a modern society.

However, since it does, it should extend to all members of society. Preventing any group or person from a basic right is tantamount to removing their freedom.

To prevent someone from getting married is simply a step back for society as a whole. Society should be constantly advancing and progressing, but as it is, we're just going backwards.

People don't allow it, because of religion. I thought religion and state were meant to be separate entities? Why aren't they in this case? What gives these circumstances the right to break the rules?

Quite simply, there is no excuse for this not happening. Make marriage equal.
