

INQUIRY INTO SAME SEX MARRIAGE LAW IN NSW

I believe strongly in same sex marriage. I am not gay myself, but I do believe in the equal rights of all Australians, and the right to love whomever we choose. I do not understand how two consenting adults being in love can not be recognised by the courts solely for the reason of them being the same gender. That could be seen as discrimination.

Equality of marriage would be a law to acknowledge their commitment and that it is legally recognised. Religion can be seen as a whole different boardgame altogether, but I believe that, at least, same sex marriage should be recognised by law.

Although some religions and opposing communities do not believe in equality of marriage, I believe it should be at least legalised, regardless whether or not religions and the opposing community choose to follow.
