Partially Confidential

There was a research project done in 2001/2 by an ambulance officer smith called the Attrition Rates Research Project (AARP). This project surveyed all ambulance officers and operations centre assistance that had left the ambulance service in the previous 5 years. It concentrated on the reasons why staff had left. The results and recommendations were not to my knowledge acted on. Officer Smith is not allowed to discuss it due to confidentiality issues (insert here the ASNSW does not want the results released), you should ask to read this report.
