1. Marriage should not be redefined and should stay between men and women. This system has worked throughout the history of time and has been the fibre that has helped keep society strong.

2. Same sex marriage takes away a child's right to a Mother and Father as they would then either have two Mothers or two Fathers.

3. Children are then exposed to homosexuality constantly and I believe this would not give a balanced perspective of sexuality for the child. Parents are key role models to children. Children would most likely grow up thinking same sex relationships were what was expected of them. How confusing for children.

I have got nothing against gay couples or people and have many great friends who are gay. They are all terrific people.

I just personally think that bringing marriage into the equation is taking things too far and denying children their basic right.
