To Whom It May Concern,

Tottenham Central School (which my Grandchildren attend) recently had a new canteen built under the BER scheme, costing $600,000. This has been a complete waste of the taxpayers money.

Why do Government Schools get such poor value for money when Private Schools are getting projects two-three times the size of the buildings for the same money?

Why are the Government Schools P & C 's still having to pay out more money to finish these projects with air conditioning, etc when they should have been included with the price?

Why were Government Schools pressured with personal liability and not allowed to manage the building projects themselves? They would have got more functional buildings and better value for money, if managed and built with local tradespeople.

Yours Sincerely,
