Name: Mr Timothy Devin

Sydney North-West have been so used to using there cars to get to point A to B that they either refuse to use or are slow to change to new ideas, the government need to use incentives like tax deductions or rebates for using public transport to get to work. At the moment the only people who can get tax benefits for driving there car to and from work are people in company cars or novated leases ie the more Kilometres they do the less FBT tax they pay, why catch a bus if it will cost you less (in tax savings) to drive.
