INQUIRY INTO MUSEUMS AND GALLERIES

Not only is the Powerhouse Museum an important cultural centre in Sydney, it is an important building in its own right. It represents a vanishing part of the history of this city. I wonder how London would have lost if the Tate Modern had been consigned to developers. This government is quickly eroding our heritage and it is shameful. It is not as if there is not enough at the museum to fully furnish the tiny museum proposed for a car park in Parramatta which will cost billions anyway. What will Baird sell off next? We visit the Powerhouse regularly but we won't be going to Parramatta to do so. Sydney's yet another loss. It is, after all, the capital of NSW.
