I would like to lodge my objection to the Incinerator to be built in Eastern Creek. I feel the health issues alone is enough to have this built in a not so residential area that is highly populated with young families and zoned near local schools. Western Sydney already has enough issues with pollution and adding another facility to interfere with the air quality is not required. I'm sure there is another location this can be built that is not within the vicinity of local communities that already cannot afford the growing costs of living to add additional medical expenses would mean a lot of residents going without proper health care as they cannot afford an additional cost.
