Dear Sir,

Sydney nightlife is suffering, I visit Sydney a lot and it is difficult to go to a venue to enjoy the city.

People say there is no point in going out, we might as well stay in and order food and watch Netflix.

I can't imagine what this is doing to our economy. Coming from Melbourne this is a huge change, here in Melbourne the nightlife is thriving and people are enjoying their city.

Sydney-siders are going to lose their social skills and become device dependant.

I can't imagine what will happen to the amazing hospitality and arts scene that Sydney has.

Please reconsider these laws and let Sydney dance again!

Yours faithfully,

Shelley Strauss
