Rebuilding 1, 2 or 3 stadia in Sydney is simply a vast waste of resources, and re-inforces the (true) cliché that NSW is only interested in supporting in sport and gambling as recreational activities.

I simply don't believe that any of the stadia are no longer fit for purpose, or that crowds and teams/clubs cannot work with the venues as they stand.

Hundreds (thousands?) of arts groups (drama, music, visual arts) manage to work with existing theatres, concert venues, halls and studios throughout the state, most far older and in genuine decrepitude.

It's simply insulting to those of us (the majority I believe) who don't hold sport up as the highest and noblest form of human activity.
