I can't even form a proper argument for this, it is so unfathomable. I've read dystopian texts where people have snuck into graves to bury their loved ones rather than cremate them, but even in DYSTOPIAN LITERATURE the government still protects the rights and dignity of the deceased. Even eliminating the moral or religious reasons not to do this, the expenses for birth and death have been present since the beginning of commerce and it is not on a subscription basis. This isn't FOXTEL or NETFLIX or SPOTIFY, so don't treat human bodies as such.
