INQUIRY INTO IMPACT OF THE WESTCONNEX PROJECT

It seems bizarre that citizens must continuously voice their opposition to a project which is so clearly works contrary not only to the public good, but to a clearly expressed weight of opinion which runs contrary to the WestConnex proposal. As someone who has lived for some years in New York City, I'm baffled by this obsession with more and more road construction in the densely populated urban areas. Is it any wonder that we see the shadow of a Robert Moses bout of madness overtaking us? Please: stop already. Give us public transport. Real public transport. Please.
