I cannot for the life of me fathom WHY this proposal would be considered. Think back to the work of the people who purchased the land that created the Blue Mountains National Park, and ask what M Dunphy and his colleagues would be saying now, after working so hard to have the National Parks gazetted. National Parks are hallowed ground, they are as sacred as a white man can make a land, a place. The more over developed the city becomes the more desperately people need the wild places. No one who has ever walked these regions would even consider such a proposal. There is such a thing as an environmental legacy and it's time to think about the needs of the planet and future generations, not just greedy developers and politicians. Tinkering with a World Heritage Listed National Park is completely out of line with contemporary values and out of touch with the electorate. Please remember there is an election coming up in March and people are watching closely what you are doing. Poor science, poor decision, poor choices, Move on to your next idea please.
