I love to go to music festivals. So do my friends. They are an important part of our lives, and I'm concerned the NSW music festival laws weren't properly designed or consulted on by the NSW government. I'm worried the laws will cause festival cancellations and destroy culture and business in NSW, even though they don't make people safer. I ask the NSW Legislative Council to disallow the laws that were passed earlier this year. In addition to this, please consider that musicians are a group of creatives who are undervalued enough as it is. Their talents are not rewarded or supported enough by the infrastructures of urban life. A balanced and culturally diverse society benefits everyone.
