The flood planes below the Warragamba Dam should follow the same rules as the Qld 1974 flood plane. You draw a line on the map where the maximum flood levels are (100 year flood). Nothing can be built below that level with the exception of houses on stilts like qld houses. Houses on stilts can only have permission to install non dwelling infrastructure like garages. Just think of the gold coast which got around the flood line by using dredged canals. Leave the dam alone.
