Raising the walls of Warragamba dam is not the answer to Sydney's water problems. Evidence suggests that the act of flooding the banks will destroy the habitat of The Regent Honeyeater, now restricted to this area and Capertee Valley. Land preserved by flood plain will become built out in a pathetic way, greasing the palms of the least worthy people in our society. This is a stupid idea thought up by some crazy politician and is not in the best interests of the people.
