INQUIRY INTO PROVISIONS OF THE RIGHT TO FARM
BILL 2019

Name: Miss Shannon Roberts

Date Received: 25 September 2019

Why are the ones who are committing acts of cruelty on animals able to get away with treating the animals in a abusive and cruel manner but the people who are brining this to the attention of the authorities being prosecuted? If people where treating animals we consider 'pets' in a way that the agribusiness treats animals people would be prosecuted. Is Australia a country that will allow systematic animal abuse and allow people to get away with it? I've grown up in a farming community and the amount of abuse is horrifying, yet you want to protect these people? Who is going to protect those that don't have a voice and suffice?
