The freedom to expose cruelty in all its forms, should continue to be a constitutional right in Australia. In China, authorities show little tolerance for those who speak out over scandals the government would rather keep hidden. In India journalists who seek the Right To Information are killed. In Turkey, those who want to expose injustice are imprisoned. This should not be the future for the nation of Australia. This 'Aggag' law is nothing more than an attempt to silence and punish those who wish to expose cruelty rather than punish those who commit these acts. Please reject the 'Aggag' law in order to avoid becoming like countries where the freedom to speak is denied.
