INQUIRY INTO PROVISIONS OF THE RIGHT TO FARM BILL 2019

Name: Ian Anderson
Date Received: 27 September 2019

My wife and I bought a small farm in retirement. A place where our grandchildren can visit, learn about and help produce the food they eat.

I have learned that wherever you have livestock you have dead stock. Sometimes things don't go to plan.

That doesn't mean we don't love and care for our animals, they are our investment as well, we need them to perform well.

These recent animal rights and vegan vigilantes have my wife and I now living in fear for no reason of our own.

We need legislation in place to protect our property and our livelihood from vandalism by people who have a different mindset.

Having a different point of view use to be something you could talk about, but today people think they have the right to force their point of view on you and damage your property and livelihood in the process.

Please put strong measures in place to protect small farmers like us and allow us peace of mind as we go about our business quietly contributing to society.

Thank you

Ian Anderson
