INQUIRY INTO SYDENHAM-BANKSTOWN LINE CONVERSION

Name: Mr Tony Rodi
Date Received: 1 October 2019

Fixing the mess successive governments have created should be a priority.

Exacerbating present day over population, densification, social, cultural, environmental, and heritage destruction by planning for more of the same into the future is as perverse as government policy can be.

Implementation of ill considered, and short sighted policy, squandering vast amounts of public money to create even more social division, traffic chaos, and cultural disintegration is a continuation of the ignorance leading to inevitable ecological and civil collapse.

There are limits to growth, and particularly to the inorganic anti-nature of that growth.

Nature will respond with far greater ferocity than what has been perpetrated on it.

Planning for unlimited expansion into the future, without consideration for balanced dispersal of that expansion, is no planning at all.
