I lodge this submission as a responsible land manager and primary producer. We care for our animals, our crops, soil and water at our own expense. We aim to produce healthy, livestock (both sheep and cattle) fit for human consumption from a sustainable production system. Our livelihood is seasonally dependent and relies entirely on how well we manage those risks from year to year.

Primary production is the first cog in a massive production chain that feeds this country.

I strongly believe that landholders should have the right to farm free of outside intimidation, interference and harassment from particular interest groups.
