The organisation LECC needs more funding, and to act on punishing misconduct. We are seeing an influx of police abusing powers, and misconduct being overlooked when it is blatantly uncovered, such as on social media. Yet even with proof of misconduct being released, there appears to be no consequences. This is causing the public to lose faith and trust in the police. Police clearly cannot run on their own accord because of this culture of covering up misconduct to protect their own. They need to be held accountable.
