Without laws and a police force we would be in a state of anarchy. NSW however is sleep walking into a police state with operating under their own interpretation of the law ABUSING their power.

Good policing is way more effective with the support of the public.

It is a fact that the extremely large majority of complaints about our police are not even dealt with because the government do not provide anywhere near the funding needed to finance those who police the police.

I would have thought an honest government with nothing to hide would make this type of funding a priority. Keeping our policing honest and weeding out corruption.
